

CELEBRATION OF THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Of Breaking Ground for the Buildings of E. C. T. T. School

SCHOOL AUDITORIUM WAS FILLED

Ex-Gov. Jarvis Gives Interestingly History of Origin and Growth of The School—Excellent Address by Governor Kitchin, Dr. Strayer and Mr. Brooks—Students Make Donations for Library Fund.

This is another proud day for Greenville and Pitt county, and it fully demonstrates the interest our people feel in the institution they labored so earnestly to have located here, and none are more rejoiced than they over the great success to which this institution has attained.

On the second day of July, three years ago, the first spadeful of dirt was thrown in preparation for the buildings to be provided for East Carolina Teachers' Training school. The anniversary of that date following this year coming on Sunday, today was selected as the day upon which to celebrate the event with appropriate exercises.

Beside the people of the town and county who were out in large numbers, there were many here from other towns, in fact, the eastern section of the state was well represented. Some business houses of Greenville were closed during the exercises, so they might have an opportunity to attend, and the auditorium of the school was filled. The president and faculty and board of trustees of the school, county and town officials, and speakers taking part in the program had seats upon the rostrum.

After prayer by Rev. C. M. Rock, pastor of Memorial Baptist church, and the singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," President Wright welcomed all here, and in introducing ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis, who was to give the history of the origin and progress of the school, Mr. Wright stated that the spadeful with which the first dirt was broken by Gov. Jarvis and the photograph taken of the scene had been and would be preserved as long as the institution stands.

Governor Jarvis' historical sketch of the school was as follows:
Ladies and Gentlemen:

As we are assembled to celebrate the third anniversary of the breaking of ground for the buildings of the East Carolina Teachers' Training school, I deem it appropriate to give you a brief account of the beginning, growth and work of this school.

The act establishing the East Carolina Teachers' Training school was passed by the legislature at its session in 1907, and was ratified March 8th, 1907.

On the 7th day of May, 1907, the people of Greenville, by practically a unanimous vote, authorized the board of aldermen to issue and sell $75,000.00 of bonds with the distinct understanding that the larger part of it was to be appropriated to this school, if it should be located at Greenville.

And, on the 14th day of May, 1907, the people of Pitt county, by a large majority, voted to issue and sell $50,000.00 of bonds for a like purpose.

The act creating the school appropriated $15,000.00 towards the erection and equipment of the buildings and authorized the state board of education to locate the school at some point in Eastern North Carolina. A number of the progressive towns in the eastern section of the state made attractive bids for the location of this school in their midsts. Greenville and Pitt county jointly offered the state board of education $98,000.00 in cash, to be expended in the purchase of a site and the erection of buildings, if the school should be located at Greenville.

The state board of education visited the several towns bidding for the school, and inspected the sites offered, and in July, 1907, the board, after careful consideration, located the school at Greenville and selected the present site.

The trustees of this school were appointed by the state board of education, in accordance with the act creating the school, and these trustees met in the town of Greenville on the 9th day of March, 1908, and organized. At this meeting Thos. J. Jarvis, J. Y. Joyner and Y. T. Or-

TWO WOMEN KILLED BY LIGHTNING STROKE

YOUNG MAN SEVERELY SHOCKED Were All Working in a Field Near Black Jack.

During the thunder storm Thursday afternoon two women were killed instantly by the same stroke of lightning while they were at work in the field of Mr. A. B. Hudson, near Black Jack. They were Mrs. W. H. Corbett and Mrs. Alfred Edwards. A son of Mrs. Corbett who was plowing nearby was also struck and knocked insensible, but soon revived. The electrical storm was very severe in that section of the county, while they had only a little rain.

Mrs. Edwards leaves a husband and several small children, the oldest about nine years.

Mrs. Corbett leaves a husband and one child nearly grown. They were buried this afternoon.

mond were appointed an executive committee, and Hook and Rogers, of Charlotte, and H. W. Simpson, of New Bern, were chosen architects.

The second meeting of the board of trustees was held in Greenville on April 16th, 1908, at which time the architects submitted to the board the plans, which had been approved by the executive committee, for four buildings, to-wit: An administration building, a girls' dormitory, a boys' dormitory and a refectory. The plans were approved by the board, and the committee was instructed to call for bids and proceed with the erection of the four buildings. How well the committee obeyed their instructions and performed their duty you can judge for yourselves by an inspection of these four buildings.

The committee advertised for bids, and on the 9th day of June, 1908, these bids were opened. There were eighteen bidders present. They came from Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia and New Jersey. There was $36,270.13 difference between the highest and lowest bids, the highest being $117,800, by G. W. Wharton, of Bellville, N. J., and the lowest by the Building and Lumber Company, of Greenville, N. C., for $81,529.87.

The Building and Lumber Company gave the bonds and executed the contracts required by the committee, and on the second day of July, 1908,—three years ago,—the ground was broken for the erection of these buildings; and it is this event we celebrate today. I make bold to assert that nowhere else in North Carolina, at any period in her history, has so much been done in the cause of education in the same length of time as has been done here in the last three years.

Hear This Marvelous Story:

The contractors began the work of construction as soon after July 2nd as they could complete their preparations, and they pushed the work with all speed consistent with good workmanship, both Messrs. York and Cobb, the managers of the contracting company, giving it their constant attention, and the architects and executive committee making frequent inspection. In excavating the ground for the administration building the contractors encountered at its west end, on the highest point of the ground, an extensive pocket of black quick sand, into which one might insert a rod several feet with one hand. This unexpected difficulty necessitated a suspension of work on this building till we could go into the woods and cut and haul piles, and get a pile driver on the grounds to drive them. As soon as this could be done 100 piles from 12 to 18 inches in diameter and from 25 to 30 feet long were driven into this loblolly of quick sand, and on top of these were put three feet of concrete. It cost $1,700 extra to make the foundation safe and secure, and when this was done the work on this building proceeded.

The legislature of 1909 appropriated the sum of $50,000.00 for two additional buildings—a central power house and an infirmary—and for the furnishing and equipping all six of the buildings, including the laundry and refrigerating plant. The committee directed the architect to prepare the plans for these two new buildings. Bids were asked for these, and the furniture and equipment for all the business. These bids were opened on the 4th day of May, 1909, by the executive committee, and the contract for the two additional build-

AN OPEN LETTER FROM MR. EVANS

TO "GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE." Takes Issue With Bond Advocates For Using Term.

An open letter to the Greenville Township "Good Roads" Committee:

Dear Sirs:
In Wednesday's issue of The Reflector, I notice a call by you for a mass meeting to be held in Greenville, on July 4th, for the purpose, as you give it, of forming a Greenville Township "Good Roads" Association, and to carry to a successful issue the election for a bond issue, which was recently provided for by the legislature.

What I wish to know is, how you can link both of these propositions together and ask all who are in favor of good roads to unite with you. There are very few, if any, in the township who are not in favor of good roads, but there is quite a large number, an overwhelming majority, I think, who are opposed to the bond issue as proposed in the legislative act.

I have noticed that those who favor the $50,000 bond issue are continually calling themselves the friends of good roads, and in the same breath are dubbing those opposed to this bond issue as the opponents of good roads—which strikes me as another effort to befuddle the issue and mislead the people.

How strange it is, that those who favor the issuance of bonds are continually trying to find some other banner under which to conduct their campaign! Why is it that you do not forthwith openly and boldly form an association for the ostensible purpose of carrying the election for bonds, and like men who have faith in their cause, hoist on high a flag that represents your true position?

If your meeting Tuesday is called for the purpose of organizing to carry this election, it looks as if the meeting is not to be exactly as represented. There are men all over the township who would be glad to meet together to devise ways and means to make better roads, but who should not be fooled into coming here to merely sanction the "ways and means" already devised by a hand full of citizens who did not represent the township when they met here in Greenville one night last winter without giving more than twenty-four hours' notice that such meeting would be held, and proceeded to fix a law according to their own sweet will.

ings was awarded to the same contractors at the price of $13,000.00. The committee remained in session three days and let the contracts for the furniture and equipment for all the buildings.

The Board of trustees met on June 11th, 1909, and after having received full reports of the progress of the work of construction, determined to upon the school for the reception of students on the 5th day of October, 1909. At this meeting Prof. Robert H. Wright was elected president of the institution, and C. W. Wilson, H. E. Austin, Sallie Joyner Davis, Maria D. Graham and Minnie E. Jenkins were elected professors. The other positions were filled later on; and by earnest and untiring effort the buildings were ready and the officers and teachers on hand prepared to open the school on October 5, 1909. The enrollment of students on the first day exceeded our fondest expectations, and in a few days the school was fully organized with a large attendance and doing earnest work.

On the 12th day of November, 1909, the president-elect was formally inaugurated president of the institution in the presence of the board of trustees, many notable educators from other institutions, the student body and a large concourse of visitors.

The first regular session of the school opened on October 5th, 1909, and closed on May 20th, 1910. There were enrolled at this session 172 students.

The first summer session opened on the 24th day of May, 1910, and closed on the 30th day of July, 1910. There were enrolled at this session 330 teachers.

The second regular session opened on the 13th day of September, 1910, and closed on the 23rd day of May, (Continued on 2nd Page.)

EDITORS AT LENOIR.

The editor of The Reflector is back at his post after an absence of four days attending the meeting of the North Carolina Press Association at Lenoir. He has attended many meetings of the association since he became a member in 1878, when he joined at Catawba Springs, near Hickory, and can truthfully say that none of them was more delightful than this last meeting at Lenoir. The people of that progressive mountain city did everything that seemed possible to add to the pleasure of their guests.

Arriving at Lenoir Monday evening, the editors were met by a committee of citizens and taken to their respective stopping places, most of them being quartered at Davenport College, where the sessions of the convention were held. Rev. J. B. Craven, president of the college, and his charming wife, gave every attention to the comfort of those stopping with them.

At the first meeting of the convention, Monday night, the board of trade distributed envelopes containing post card views of Lenoir for the use of the members in writing home, and checks for cold drinks or cigars at any of the drug stores. Tuesday morning they were taken in carriages and automobiles for a drive up Hibriten mountain and lunch was served on the mountain top. That afternoon while the members were engaged in meeting, the ladies of the editorial party were delightfully entertained at a reception by the ladies of Lenoir. That evening the men had automobile trips around the city.

Tuesday night and Wednesday forenoon were devoted to the business of the convention. In addition to the part taken by the editors in the splendid program, there were addresses by several distinguished men of the state, these being Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, Dr. Few, president of Trinity College, Dr. John A. Ferrell, Hon. J. R. Young, Dr. Poteat, founder of Wake Forest College, and Congressman John H. Small.

The work of the convention was completed by dinner Wednesday, though the program had to be rather hurried, and that afternoon a large number left on the three days' mountain trip to Blowing Rock, Boone, Linville, Edgemont, Grand Father Mountain and other points in that beautiful country. While The Reflector man was among those who did not take the extended mountain trip, he nevertheless spent another delightful afternoon before facing homeward. Dr. A. A. Kent, a leading physician and Caldwell county's rep-representative in the legislature (he is a brother-in-law of President R. H. Wright, of East Carolina Teachers' Training School) took us out over the Turnpike mountain roads for a trip of about twenty-five miles. Besides the pleasure of discussing various topics with a gentleman so well informed, the ride over the fine roads among the mountains was much enjoyed.

With today's issue of The Farmville Enterprise "Uncle Zack" Broughton's term as its editor expires, he having resigned to take a more lucrative position on a tobacco market elsewhere. Since taking up the editorial work of The Enterprise, Uncle Zack has endeared himself to many of its readers and he will be missed. Mr. G. A. Rouse, formerly of Snow Hill, will succeed him.

Greenville extends a cordial welcome to the governor and other citizens of the state who are here today to attend the celebration of the anniversary of the breaking of ground for the buildings of East Carolina Teachers Training school. We are all proud of our splendid institution and are glad to have others come here and see what we have. The institution speaks for itself.

Editor Isaac London, of the Siler City Grit, was awarded the mendacity medal at the recent press convention, and will wear it the coming year. He has certainly told some whoppers during the past year.

About Advertising.

A business ebbs or flows, goes up or down, in proportion as the business man let people know what he has to sell them. To act on the idea that what people want they will come and seek after, might do if all business men followed it. But the shrewd, up-to-date business man will not follow such fossilized methods, but through judicious, attractive and generous advertising tells the public what he has, and the public reciprocates by trading with him. In truth, people do not want to bother themselves with wondering where they can get an article when the fact can be brought to their notice through an ad in the local paper. The invariable rule is no advertising, little business; fair advertising, fair business; generous advertising, prosperous business. Why the rule works out so infallibly is clear to every intelligent mind.—Standard Laconic.

REAPING BENEFIT.

From The Experience of Greenville People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Greenville residents on the following subject will interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had. Mrs. Jane L. Godwin, 416 Dickinson avenue, Greenville, N. C., says: "I feel justified in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the benefit I received from them. For a long time my back ached and I had dizzy spells and headaches. The kidney secretions also annoyed me and I had pains through my loins. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box from the John L. Wooten Drug Company, and their use as directed relieved me. I can now rest much better at night and my condition has improved in every way."

CELEBRATION OF

1911. There were enrolled at this session 228 students.

The present session of the summer school opened on the 6th day of June, 1911, to close July 29th, 1911, and up to the present time there have been enrolled 280 teachers. The total enrollment for the two years, 1,010.

From these recorded facts, we are able to make this marvelous summary:

In three years' time we built, furnished and equipped with the most improved, up-to-date conveniences and appliances, six beautiful buildings, well fitted and adapted to school work, and that 1,010 students have entered these buildings and have received instruction from an able corps of high class teachers. In addition to the number that have been enrolled, not less than 200 others have applied for admission into the dormitories for the two summer terms. The president was compelled to write them that every room was taken. Some of these found room in the town. And just here I wish to thank the town people for the generous manner in which they have opened their doors to these teachers. But even this was not sufficient and great numbers have been kept away who needed the instruction. Such a record cannot be found anywhere else or at any other period in the state's history, and well may I call it marvelous.

There is another fact in this record that should not be forgotten. The title to this property, building, furniture, equipment and everything pertaining thereto, is in the state, but the state has put $65,000.00 into this valuable plant, while the county of Pitt and the town of Greenville have put into it $98,000.00. To that the state is still behind by $33,000.00. This remarkable record teachers these important lessons that should appeal to the friends of education everywhere: There was a place for this school, and it is filling that place; there was a need for this school, and it is meeting that need. The people appreciate and approve the stand it is taking and the work it is doing, because they see in its mission the coming of better schools for their children, and they are rallying to it.

So far, ladies and gentlemen, I have simply been rehearsing facts which are of record, and which anyone may verify. I now propose to submit a few reflections of my own. This school is what its name indicates—a Teachers' Training School,—nothing more and nothing less. It does not aspire to be a college or to do college degree work. It is not in opposition to competition with any college in the state, but it seeks to serve them all by stimulating and informing the public schools from which they must draw their patronage. It has its own chosen field, and it is content to occupy it. It does not hope to completely fill this field because its borders are ever widening and its opportunities and demands ever increasing. The service it is rendering in its chosen field is fundamental and invaluable, and it takes great pride in rendering this service.

It stands for trained teachers for our public schools, and it is bending all its energies to furnish such teachers. It is so near the public schools and comes in such close touch with them, that it may well be called a part and parcel of the public school system of the state.

Ninety per cent of our people are dependent alone upon the public schools for what education they get. The only training they and their children can receive to fit them for the duties of life, and for the discharge of citizenship, is what they get in the public schools. If these public schools are poor, then the training they get will be poor. If the training in these public schools is what it should be, then we may look for an educated citizenship, prepared and equipped for the duties that lie out before them. It therefore follows that a school that is pouring its life into these public schools to make them better, is rendering great service to the state and society.

The governments of our country are coming nearer and nearer to the people, and the people are being invited and urged to take more effective control and management of their governments, national, state and municipal. For the people to do this wisely and well, it is absolutely necessary that they should be educated and fitted for these duties. It must be clear to every thoughtful man, that the great masses of our people are dependent upon the efficiency of the public schools, is dependent upon the efficiency of the teachers, and the efficiency of the teacher is dependent upon the efficiency of the state.

Social and Personal.

Mr. D. J. Whichard returned on last midnight train from Lenoir, where he attended the state press association. He cut out the mountain trip that followed the convention in order to get back home in time for the training school celebration today.

Misses Inez Pittman and Josephine Little are attending a house party at Willow Green, given by Miss Laura Carr.

Mrs. C. D. Tunstall and little child are visiting her parents at Belhaven.

Mrs. J. B. Johnston, of Raleigh, is visiting Mrs. B. G. Albritton.

Meeting Called Tuesday, July Fourth.

A committee formed of the presidents of the woman's clubs of Greenville, hereby call a joint meeting of said clubs for 10 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, July Fourth, in Carolina Club rooms.

Mrs. R. R. Cotten, the newly elected president of the State Federation will give a talk on the work of the conference of the women's clubs, recently held at Asheville. Every member of the various women's clubs of the town are urged to attend this meeting. 6:30-21-fro-mon.

Choir Practice.

The Baptist choir will meet at the church at 8:15 tonight for practice.

Red Men meet tonight.

EDITORS ELECT OFFICERS.

Will Probably Meet in Morehead City Next Year.

At the meeting in Lenoir the North Carolina Press Association elected the following officers for the coming year:

President, J. J. Farris, of the High Point Enterprise.

First Vice-President, J. H. Caine, of the Asheville Citizen.

Second Vice-president, H. C. Martin, of the Lenoir Topic.

Third Vice-president, J. T. Fain, of the Greensboro Telegram.

Secretary and Treasurer, J. B. Sherrill, of the Concord Tribune.

Historian, R. F. Beasley, of the Monroe Journal.

Orator, Josephus Daniels, of the Raleigh News and Observer.

Poet, William Lurie Hill, of Barium Springs, Our Fatherless Ones.

Executive committee, H. A. London, of the Pittsboro Record; R. M. Phillips, of the Greensboro News; D. T. Edwards, of the Kinston Free Press; R. W. Vincent, of the Charlotte Observer.

The association will probably hold its meeting next year at the Atlantic Hotel in Morehead City. While the selection of the time and place of meeting is left with the executive committee, the association expressed a preference for Morehead City and recommended that the committee select that place if satisfactory arrangements can be made.

Getting Ready to Shop.

Once upon a time the professional humorists used to have a great deal of lucrative fun out of the women who would go into a store in search of an article she wished to buy and insist upon seeing the merchant's entire stock before concluding the purchase. When that joke originated it had a foundation in truth—for that was before the days of intelligent advertising.

Nowadays the woman looks the merchant's stock over in the daily newspaper before she goes shopping. She doesn't waste her own time, the salesman's or the merchant's in making up her mind what she wants—she goes forth provided with full information about styles, qualities and prices. The newspaper advertisement narrows her choice down to a mere question of patterns, and often even that matter is decided in advance.

If women still drive salesmen frantic with their indecision it is only in the stores of merchants who do not advertise. In that case the women are not to blame. The fault lies with the dealer who fails to realize how the newspaper announcement, besides helping him to sell larger quantities of his wares, would help him to sell them more quickly. It saves both time and money to make shopping convenient and expeditious by spreading out the stock for preliminary inspection in the advertising columns.—Philadelphia Record.

Saving And Earning.

A Chicago millionaire came to this country in 1871, with 12 cents in his pocket. The other day, referring to it, he said he laid down this rule: "Never to be out of work and never to spend as much as you earn." It was that rule that made him a millionaire, and that is the kind of millionaire that is entitled to honor.

His idea is that it is good for a man to save, for economy is a healthy habit. As a rule men can live on half they spend, have better health, and can do more work. Let a man sit down and make a list of what he needs, not scantily but bountifully, and he will be surprised how many things he can cut out and yet keep body and mind in fine condition.

There are many things that one buys that are the objects of his fancy. He sees them and wants them; if he didn't see them he wouldn't want them. We once heard of a man who would not go to market, because he said, he wanted to buy everything, and succeeded in buying much he did not need. It is possible to live well on meals that average only 10 cents per capita. In a school on the West Side they do it, and that little club of teachers are hearty and happy as robins in a cherry tree. We must get out of the idea that great chunks of heavy food are required for energy. As a rule they reduce it.—Ohio State Journal.

The Young Man Has His Choice.

There was never a time since the Declaration of Independence was signed when the path of success was so plain and open for all young men as it is today. Whether a youth chooses to become a consummate and successful rascal or an honest worker and benefactor of his kind, the way lies open for him. Whatever choice he makes and whatever ideal of success he elects to be his guiding star, opportunity awaits him. All the materials, energies and devices by which one attains to mental education, moral training, technical skill and social influence are at hand to be used at his discretion for good or ill, according to the bent of his nature and the rewards he prizes. Highway robbery, smuggling, piracy and embezzlement of trusts never offered such enormous wealth as can now be gained by means that still lie within the province of legality and never were the high prizes of integrity, skill and well-trained ability more attainable by those who begin life at the bottom of the social ladder. It is now the insistent duty of society to block the way of the wicked and make the way of the righteous so plain that the wayfaring man, though a fool, need not err therein.—Christian Register.

Exit Mummy Wheat.

One by one are the old idols shattered, the old traditions exposed as silly lies, fakes or mistakes. The shattering of old beliefs comes with a shock and leaves a trace of sadness. Most of us have cherished as true the oft repeated story of growing good, modern wheat from the seed-wheat found in the tombs of Egyptian mummies, where it has reposed for thousands of years. Reluctantly we must admit that that was deluded. The Agricultural Department at Washington has started a fight on swindlers who are selling wheat grains to farmers with the statement that they were obtained from the tombs of Egyptian mummies and were of superior quality.

A grain of wheat is dead after ten years, says the department, and of no use as seed after that time.

Fact and mythology cannot dwell in the same abode.—Norfolk Virginian Pilot.

Ten Things to do in Typhoid Fever.

1. In all cases of typhoid, however, mild, the patient should remain in bed. The course of the disease may be greatly shortened by keeping the patient in a prostrate position.

2. The vessels used in the sick room should be thoroughly scalded after use.

3. All food utensils should be washed and scalded separately before placing with dishes used by the family.

4. Bed linens, towels, wearing apparel, should be plunged into boiling water or water containing a strong solution of carbolic acid before they are washed.

5. Chloride of lime, which can be bought in dozen cans, or bichloride of mercury, are safe disinfectants for vessels used in the sick room.

6. The caretaker should cleanse her hands with a disinfectant (carbolic acid, creolin, bichloride of mercury,) before taking food.

7. Treat all excreta from patient with disinfectant of sufficient strength that all typhoid germs may be killed before removing from the sick room.

8. Bury all excreta from typhoid patient.

9. Keep all flies from the sick room.

10. Write to your State Board of Health for literature upon the care and treatment of typhoid fever.—Raleigh Progressive Farmer.

A Charming Woman

Is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion, and perfect health. Try them. 50c at all druggists.

The Price of Love.

Says an advertisement in the London Express: "Mary—Waited three hours at appointed spot until questioned by suspicious policeman. If this is the price of love it is too heavy a one for me to pay. Farewell. Potts."

In the Air.

She—Did you notice that an eminent professor, lecturing the other evening, asserted that were there an undue proportion of oxygen in the atmosphere people would become intoxicated? He—Yes; air tight, I suppose he meant.

iciency of his training. The trained teacher for the public schools, is therefore, a public necessity. The private schools and the denominational colleges may supply some of these teachers, but it is none the less the duty of the state to make ample provisions for this vitally essential work and to see to it that all the public schools are supplied with trained, competent teachers.

The state has taken charge of the public schools. It levies and collects the taxes for their support. It appoints and licenses the teachers to teach them, and it supplies the money to pay them. It is therefore imperative duty of the state to furnish competent teachers for the children who are forced to attend these schools or none. Anything short of this is a criminal neglect of a public duty.

The school and audience then sang "The Old North State," and President Wright introduced Governor W. W. Kitchin, who spoke. The governor had every cause to feel gratified at the ovation given him as he arose.

Governor Kitchin's Address.

He said it filled him with pride to be here, and in looking around upon what is here, he must say that he never saw a healthier three-year-old institution, and that much credit for it is due ex-Governor Jarvis, Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale, and the late Hon. J. L. Fleming, who labored so earnestly to secure it.

The state of North Carolina may have made a good bargain in securing this school, but if Governor Jarvis made a bad bargain for Greenville and Pitt county, it was the first bad bargain he ever made.

The state levies taxes to maintain schools not for the benefit of a few, but for the benefit of all the people of the state. We want to see North Carolina occupy a high place; we want to see our farmers and manufacturers prosperous and happy. We want to see the lawyers, the doctors, the teachers so honorable, so high above suspicion, so worshipping at the shrine of truth and justice that the finger of criticism can never be pointed at them. Teachers are laying the foundation for this in an educated citizenship. If the teachers fail in their duty, the structure of citizenship is erected on a false foundation.

Civil government is taught in our schools, and it is well. I would not say that the old patriarchal government of thousands of years ago was not the best of the men of that age were prepared for. In those old days there was no printing press, no rapid communication, so the people had to struggle along with patriarchs, kings and nobles to make laws for them. The struggle of the successive ages has been to throw off these and bring the government to the hands of the people. Self-government has come to stay. The printing press and rural mail delivery, coupled with the work of the earnest teacher, the freedom of the press, freedom of speech and growth in intelligence have made things change.

The old highway robber found the farmer on his way to the market an easy prey. Those robbers have been succeeded by the green goods and gold brick swindlers, and it requires more intelligence to protect themselves against these. When you find men advocating an unjust law, they do so under the guise that it is best for the people. We need a high class of citizenship to prevent being deceived by these, and here is where the work of the good teacher comes in. Men must be above corruption and the purchase of influence, and they must have the courage of their convictions and to do right.

Let no one think that because generations ago some great men were produced who never saw inside of a school house, that this can be done now. The farmer who now plants and cultivates corn after the methods of the past can raise some corn, but he's a failure as a farmer. Education is preparation for life work, for conflicts, for the environments with which you are to be surrounded. The thoughts that stick are the ones that count.

Education makes people honest. Do not think because you are honest now that you need no fortification. The tide and current of temptation run high, and we need to strengthen against this by a love of honesty and honor. Overcome one temptation and the next one is easier to overcome, likewise the yielding to one temptation makes it easier to fall under the next. The first downward step is the one to be regretted. Had not the first step been taken no failure would occur. The difference between a good man and a bad man is not in status nor brilliancy, but in moral character. One man resists temptation and is good, another succumbs to the temptation and is bad.

The sour man is not happy, he may have accumulated a fortune, but if he is lacking in human kindness, friendship and sympathy he is a failure. You need friends for the good you can do. Your enemies will not follow your advice, but it is only your friends upon whom you can count.

No one rejoices more in the strides North Carolina is making than myself. We are on the up grade agriculturally, industrially, commercially, educationally and religiously. Yet we need the help and sympathy of every good man and woman. Love your duty and do it bravely.

Dr. Strayer's Address.

Dr. George D. Strayer, of Columbia University, was the next speaker. He drew a striking comparison of the schools of Germany and those of Democratic America. In Germany they are not trained to help conduct the government, but to be subservient to authority. The ideal American school prepares for the public good. He emphasized the administration of the American school, and declared that the type of education that is demanded cannot be had until the needs are recognized by those in authority. Turning from the teachers to the audience, he said this school here is doing an admirable work, but is not properly equipped for the work required of it. It is for the people to say whether these teachers are to be able to do their work. They have the right to demand of the people a liberal education, a minimum term and a minimum salary. This school needs a practice school and a library.

Mr. Brooks' Address.

Mr. E. C. Brooks, editor of North Carolina Education, was next introduced. He said this institution came in the midst of a great educational awakening. With a determination that the most remote school should have the best trained teacher, the patriotic spirit of the people of Greenville and Pitt county was asserted in founding this school. But there are still further demands that must be met. There are yet people who do not believe in public education, and school boards who are inclined to select relatives as teachers instead of those equipped for the work. Education against those ideas must continue until they are corrected.

All the speeches at these exercises were excellent, but space forbids only brief reference to them. The songs by the student body that interspersed the speeches were a pleasing part of the exercises and reflected credit upon the school.

In his closing remarks, President Wright referred to the students' aid fund, contributed by the last graduating class, and read the following as coming voluntarily from those attending the present summer term, which indicates their sentiment in keeping with the motto, "To Serve," that has been adopted by the school: On June 28, 1911, by permission of the president, a mass meeting of the student body of the summer school was held in the auditorium, its specific purpose being to form plans for raising a fund toward increasing the school library appropriation. This fund to be a testimonial of the appreciation to the state of the advantages afforded in the Training school through the efficient services of its able corps of earnest officers and teachers.

The purpose of the meeting was stated by Miss Daisy Reed, met with a most enthusiastic reception. A chairman was elected, committees appointed, and work begun at once, and today we find in the treasury $41.45 in cash with notes aggregating quite an appreciable sum payable in a short time.

Wins Fight For Life.

It was a long and bloody battle for life that was waged by James B. Mershon, of Newark, N. J., of which he writes: "I had lost much blood from lung hemorrhages, and was ever weak and rundown. For eight months I was unable to work. Death seemed close on my heels, when I began, three weeks ago, to use Dr. King's New Discovery. But it has helped me greatly. It is doing all that you claim." For weak, sore lungs, obstinate coughs, stubborn colds, hoarseness, la grippe, asthma, hay-fever or any throat or lung trouble its supreme. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.
