FOR PRACTICAL SCIENCE.

Good Work Done by United States Government.

By far the greatest establishment in the world for practical work in the science is that maintained by the government of the United States. The department of agriculture, the geological survey, the bureau of fisheries, the coast and geodetic survey, the naval observatory and a long list of other departments could be named, in which the most thoroughly practical, useful investigations and experiments are conducted constantly. Uncle Sam is equipped with the people and facilities to do anything in the range of science, from weighing a star that the eye cannot see to producing an economically useful hybrid of the horse, and the zebra or dropping out a plant to swat the fly and exterminate the yellow fever germ. He is engaged in all the multitudinous activities that present themselves to the scientific imaginations as of possible utility. It was a government scientist, now at last come into belated honor after his death, that thought out and applied the principle of the aeroplane.

So recently as six summers ago Washington was ringing with a curious campaign of muckraking the scientific departments of the government. They were accused of providing soft berths for an army of dreamers or grafters, and there was a noisy and noisome chorus of insistent demand that the waste be stopped. There was some investigation—and it ended in the vindication and strengthening of the government's scientific activities. The public needed to stop and think the matter over, with a view to getting a clear notion of the benefits derived from this work. It got attention focused on the subject, and as usual gave unqualified indorsement when it saw that the project was good.

No other government in the world, save possibly Germany, does so much of this kind of work. Indeed, Germany's scientific activity is directed more by the universities and technological institutions, and less by the government, than that of the United States. An illustration of the cooperation among nations in these departments of humanitarian and utilitarian endeavor is afforded by the recent forwarding to our agricultural department of a great collection of African insects, for classification and study. They come from the British committee on entomological research and are sent to this country because here is conceded the greatest practical establishment for such studies.

DEATH OF MRS. W. M. PUGH.

A Good Woman Passes Into The Life Beyond.

At 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night, at her home on Greene street, Mrs. Rosa B. Pugh, wife of Mr. W. M. Pugh, passed into the life beyond. She was 54 years of age and a daughter of Mr. M. L. Booth, of Houston, Va. She was married to Mr. Pugh in 1839, and they moved to Greenville in 1903 and have resided here since that time.

Mrs. Pugh was a great sufferer for several years, but bore her afflictions with patience and resignation. She was a member of the Baptist church and a devout servant of her Master. The husband, one daughter, Miss Helen, and one son, Mr. Milton Pugh, survive her, and those have the heartfelt sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Messrs. H. McClellan, A. M. Moseley, N. O. Warren, B. S. Warren, W. S. Moye, J. H. White, J. L. Hassell and C. C. Pierce.

In Re The Negro.

Some how or other we have always had a warm spot for the negro—that is the good negro. The negro who attends to his own business and tries to make a decent living and respects himself and the white people among whom he lives. We dislike the "uppity" negro just as we dislike the vain, pompous and conceited white man. We want to see all our people prosper along industrial and intellectual lines. As a matter of fact, our first concern is the white people, but we believe that if the negro prospers it will be an incentive to stir the white man to greater efforts. We have no patience with the idea of social equality.

There are lots of white people whom you do not associate with, not because they are not as wealthy as you may be or because they may not be as well educated as you may be, but because they have not enough respect for themselves to make you respect them. No self-respecting white person will associate on terms of equality with a colored person and no self-respecting colored person would for a moment think of attempting to associate on terms of equality with a white person. There is a line that has been drawn, especially for we people of the South, that must be adhered to, and yet there is nothing about that line which keeps the white man from helping the negro and wishing him well—Gaffney, (S. C.) Ledger.

No Name, No Print.

When the poet tries his hand he should also show his name. The failure of "Rooter" to disclose his identity accounts for his poem not getting in print. It has been said perhaps a few less than a thousand times, that this paper does not print anything without knowing who writes it.

If you would have others think well of you, set an example by thinking well of yourself.

THE FAN GOT HOT.

Electric Troubles Interfere With The Amuzu Program.

Fans do not always do what they are cut out for, that is keep things cool. One in the Amuzu Theatre, Wednesday night, got hot instead of keeping cool, which caused the insolation in the motor attachment to burn, and the audience stampeded though there was not a particle of danger. Something also, got wrong with the circuit in the machine so that the program for the night had to be called off.

NEWS THAT IS OF INTEREST TO TAR HEELS

GATHERED FROM EXCHANGES.

And Briefly Told For The Reflector's Busy Readers.

Lexington.—Six prominent South Carolinians were badly hurt in an auto wreck near Lexington this afternoon, while driving down Long Hill, in a big six passenger car. They encountered a traction engine, which they had not seen on account of the sharp curve, and in attempting to turn from the road the car was overturned and the entire party, including the negro chauffeur, were caught underneath the car. All were badly bruised and cut, but no bones were broken. The car was badly damaged, the rear wheel being smashed and the steering gear and wind-shield put out of commission. A member of the party admits that the car was going at the rate of thirty miles an hour, but the crew with the traction engine says the speed was at least fifty miles an hour.

At their regular session in Winston-Salem, the rural mail carriers selected Asheville as the meeting place for the next annual convention. The second and last day's meeting of the eighth annual session of North Carolina rural letter carriers will be held in Winston-Salem today. The meeting was called to order yesterday morning, after which the address of welcome was made by Mayor R. L. Dalton. The response was made by Editor John D. Gold, of the Wilson Times. Among other speakers for the meeting are United States Senator F. M. Simmons, Gen. P. V. DeGraw, Washington, D. C.; and J. H. Rich, editor of the Carrier's Messenger.—Asheville Citizen, July 4th.

Hickory.—Edward Bumgardner, assistant electrician for the Thornton Light and Power company, of this city, was electrocuted at 11 o'clock Monday night while repairing a street lamp at the corner of Twelfth street and Fourteenth avenue. The insulation at the top of the lamp had been destroyed and the chain connecting with the lamp and reaching to the street had become charged with electricity. When he took hold on the chain to lower the lamp several hundred volts of electricity passed through his body, killing him instantly.

Raleigh.—Governor Kitchin and Treasurer Lacey today affixed their signatures to the recent issue of $310,000 in North Carolina bonds for the state administration building and the school for the feeble-minded. Asked about the matter, Mr. Lacey replied that the "rubber stamp," so often on the job, was not at work today, the governor and he signing their names to the bonds.

Cherryville.—Lightning struck an outhouse on the plantation of Andrew Stroud, four miles from here this afternoon, and killed Miss May Costor and severely injured Messrs. Sylvanus Mauney and Charlie Neil, of Cherryville. Other members of the party, which numbered about 20, were shocked, but none seriously. A horse driven by the party was also killed.

Washington.—Senator Overman was advised by the civil service commission today that an examination will be held in the larger cities of North Carolina August 5, to secure lawyers to examine land titles in connection with the purchase of land for the Appalachian park reservation. It is not known what salary will be offered by the government, but it is understood that it will be such as will demand the best talent in the state.

Charlie Belcher, a young white man, seemingly about 25 years old, in an attempt to catch a southbound freight train in front of the passenger depot here yesterday about 11 o'clock was thrown under the wheels and his body terribly mangled. Belcher came to Reidsville a few weeks ago and went to work at the Eda Cotton Mills.—Reidsville Weekly.

Mr. R. G. Cartner and Miss Pearl Hendley, both mutes, were united in marriage yesterday at Cedar Hill, N. C. They each attended the Deaf Mute school at Morganton, where Cupid with his little arrow, first found his way to their hearts. The love grew until it reached the hymeneal altar, the desired goal of all overs.

The completion of the Mattamuskeet railroad seems assured and it is asking for the right of way into Washington.

THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1911.

The hot wave continues to roll.

You cannot help Greenville by never taking part in anything that means for progress.

Oxford has caught the craze from that Elizabeth City story and gone to hunting for eleven hundred dollar gold pots.

The Biblical Recorder, of Raleigh, the organ of the Baptist denomination in this state, is 77 years old. Quite an honorable age, and the Recorder is as good as it is old. In these 77 years the paper has had ten different editors.

The prospect of good crops ought to make the merchants more active in advertising so as to keep themselves and their business more prominently before the buyers. People soon forget those whose names they do not see in print.

In the bond election Tuesday Charlotte people showed that they placed higher appreciation on schools than they did upon an auditorium. The school bonds received a majority of 444 and the auditorium bonds 233. Charlotte folks usually have their ideas on right.

Charlotte celebrated Independence Day, July 4th, in a way that counts for growth. On that day an election was held on the question of issuing bonds, amounting in the aggregate to $815,000, for various city improvements, and the vote showed a large majority in favor of the bonds.

Council's Duty to The People.

It matters not what one's attitude toward commission government may be, whether favorable or adverse, he cannot deny a people's right to express their will on this, as on any other question, of vital public concern.

This is the outstanding issue in Atlanta at the present moment. Whether the voters will accept or reject the commission plan must be settled at the ballot box. This is a matter for the community, not for council to decide.

It is, therefore, the plain duty of council to aid in submitting to a popular vote a question in which so many thousands of citizens are interested.

This is the least that council can do, in duty and honor to the people it represents.

The commission government charter that has been drafted is the outgrowth of an earnest and widespread demand for a more efficient and popular form of municipal government. It will soon be submitted to the state legislature with the request that that body pass a special act to enable the voters of Atlanta to declare whether they approve or reject the plan of administration thus presented to them.

A trial package free to any mother who will address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

If council refuses to join in such a request, it will thereby place itself in direct and flagrant opposition to the freedom of the public will. It is not asked to endorse the commission charter. It is simply asked to aid in giving the people an opportunity to declare their minds. As a representative body, therefore, council cannot consistently or honorably refuse this demand of the citizens it was elected to serve.

This issue is so clear that no member of council can evade it. Each and every one of them is responsible to the people of his particular ward to see that they are given a chance to vote on the commission plan. Hundreds and thousands of Atlantians desire such form of government. Every voter is entitled to express his will through his ballot. The members of the general council are sworn to represent not a faction but the people as a whole, and, if they refuse to grant this popular demand, they will have violated a sacred trust of their office.—Atlanta Journal.

An Old Battle Renewed.

In England this week, "the captains and the kings depart," but the "tumult and the shouting" do not die. As the coronation ends, the political combat over the house of lords begins anew. And now the long struggle between Liberals and Conservatives hurries toward a decisive juncture.

It has been a cause for general rejoicing that this crisis was deferred until after the coronation festivities. For the past month all factions laid aside their arms and joined with the whole empire in celebrating a broadly national event. The British people are one in heart, no matter how divided in opinion they may be.

However the present issue may terminate, it seems certain that the upper house of parliament is to undergo a sweeping change. Two measures looking to the reform of the house of lords now pending. The one is the bill already passed by the commons, greatly restricting the power now held by the peers and virtually abolishing their veto authority. The other is the plan of the Marquis of Lansdowne, leader of the opposition in the upper chamber, who proposes, among other things, to make a number of the lords subject to election and to submit a popular referendum questions over which the two houses cannot agree.

Either of these measures if adopted—and adopted one of them certainly will be—will work radical changes in the house of lords, as regards both its constituency and its power.

Indications are that the Liberals' plan will be pressed to acceptance. If necessary, Premier Asquith's ministry will call upon the king to create a sufficient number of new peers to give the government a majority in the upper house, thus compelling the passage of the bill. Certain it is that the dominant party in the house of commons has the strength to carry out its will, a fact which means that the power of the lords is soon to be bridled.—Atlanta Journal.

Caesar's Newspaper.

Julius Caesar was, so far as we know, the father of the newspaper. He instituted a regular official gazette of general news, known as the Acta Diurna, which was probably the original newspaper. There was all official editor. The gazette was exhibited daily in public and was copied by scribes, who sold it to their customers taking it to them, possibly, as papers are delivered today. The Acta Diurna contained the decrees of government law notices, birth, marriage and death notices and many items relating to private affairs. Its circulation was as wide as the empire, being carried everywhere by the legionaries.—Exchange.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

GRAY HAIR MAKES

YOU LOOK OLD

A Simple Remedy Brings Back The Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

How often one hears the expression, "She is gray and beginning to look old." It is true that gray hair usually denotes age and is always associated with age. You never hear one referred to as having gray hair and looking young.

The hair is generally the index of age. If your hair is gray, you can't blame your friends for referring to you as looking old. You can't retain a youthful appearance if you allow your hair to grow gray. Many persons of middle age jeopardize their future simply by allowing the gray hair to become manifest. If your hair has become faded or gray, try Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation which a chemist by the name of Weyth devised a few years ago. It is simple, inexpensive and practical, and will banish the gray hairs in a few days. It is also guaranteed to remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

It is a pleasant dressing for the hair, and after using it a few days itching and dryness of the scalp entirely disappears.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agent, MOYER'S PHARMACY.

Human Vultures.

The greatest enemy of mankind is man himself. The truth of this assertion is abundantly proved by the daily press, as from time to time it is called upon to chronicle the latest instance of man's degrading traffic in creatures of his own image. Just now the morbid interest of the public is centered in Lexington, where a man and woman are held behind the bars charged with criminally abducting, or inducing to leave home and go with them, two little girls, aged 13 and 14 years, respectively. It is charged that they induced the children to go with them to Charlotte, promising them "a good time, fine clothes to wear and no work to do."

The trial is to take place next Monday and some twenty-five witnesses will be called upon to tell what they know. Like all trials of this nature it may be depended upon to attract large crowds, which will throng to hear the whole sorry business threshed out in detail. Without indulging in any hasty ex parte judgments, those who have reviewed the facts in the case as published in the state press can hardly escape the belief that it is another instance of criminal abduction, and that the chief actors in the vile business ought to get all that the law provides for them. The sooner these kind of traffickers find out that the state of North Carolina has an efficient and drastic way of dealing with them the sooner will the state be rid of this most despicable class of criminals.

The man who kills his fellow man, whether in the heat of anger or with malicious forethought, knows at least that there is a chance of himself being killed, and in so far as at least retains an element of courage. The second-story man, plying his hazardous trade, braves falls and corner cops. The burglar risks his life, the bank-breaker, embezzler and common thief all take, embezzle and steal from full grown men who are at least able to retaliate; but the human vulture, and the female of his kind, who lure and consign innocent and helpless children to lives of degradation, plays a loathsome game with the cards stacked, and ought to receive in generous measure the punishment provided for his kind by a clean and moral people.—Durham Sun.

SHE GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Physicians Failed To Help Mrs. Green, But She Finally Found Relief in Cardui.

Meetze, Va.—Mrs. J. C. Green of this place, says: "I suffered with womanly troubles so that I could hardly sit up. Two of the best doctors in our town treated me, and I tried different medicines, until I gave up all hope of ever getting well."

One day, I decided to try some Cardui. It did so much for me that I ordered some more, and it cured me! Today, I feel as well as I ever did in my life.

The pains and the trouble are all gone. I feel like another person in every way. I wish every sufferer could know what Cardui will do for sick women.

A few doses of Cardui at the right time, will save many a big doctor bill, by preventing serious sickness. It tones up the nervous system, and helps make pale cheeks fresh and rosy. Thousands of weak women have been restored to health and happiness by using Cardui. Suppose you try it. It may be just the medicine you need.

Summer's Song.

You call it the patter
Of raindrops that scatter, Like diamonds the grasses among,
Or else, if it pleases You whisper of breezes, And cadence of songs they have sung.
Of clear lilted fountains,
And murmuring mountains,
The voice of old ocean, sublime, But jocund or lonely, I'll wage you they're only The songs of the glad Summer Time.
Oh, the rollicking notes of a rhythmical rhyme,
The matins and vespers of gay Summer Time.

You call them voices Of birds, and your choice is The robin, the linnet, the wren.
You praise the quails drumming,
The honey-bees humming, The Katy-Did's call from the glen.
The maple boughs sighing, You reckon on trying The rustle of corn at its prime.
But plaintive or merry, Or solemn or cherry,
This song of the gay Summer Time.
Oh, the rhythmical rune of a fathom-less rhyme,
The matins and vespers of gay Summer Time.

Mrs. T. E. Hooker

Entertains.
On Tuesday evening Mrs. T. E.
Hooker delightfully entertained a number of her friends at a Fourth of July party at her home on Fifth street. When the guests arrived they were received at the door by the hostess and were ushered to the punch bowl, which was situated in the center of the porch and beautifully decorated in the National colors.
Here they were served cherry smash by Mesdames H. L. Coward and E.
G. Flanagan. They were then presented to the recent brides, Mesdames T. M. and W. E. Hooker by Mesdames J. L. Wooten and F. G.
James.

After all the guests had arrived the game of "Fourth" was played.
The signal for the game, as each table progressed, was the explosion of a fire cracker. The favors for those who progressed were miniature liberty bells, flags and steins with appropriate mottoes. The favors given to all were sparklers and the lights were turned off and these lighted.

When the game was over cakes, decorated with small flags, and block ice cream were served by Misses Nancy Coward, Pattie Wooten and Annie Leonard Tyson. While the refreshments were being served Miss Francis Bagwell favored the guests with several instrumental selections and Miss Mary Moye, of Farmville, with two vocal solos, "The Red, Red Rose," and "I Cannot Help from Loving Thee," the accompaniment to which were played by Miss Mae R.

B. Muffy.

The entire decorations were in national colors in keeping with the day.

Miss Maude Lee

Entertains.
On Wednesday afternoon, from 5 to 7 o'clock, Miss Maude Lee charmingly entertained a large number of her friends at a porch party, given in honor of Misses Eula Cromartie, Carrie Wilson and Dora Creel, of Wilson.

The guests were welcomed by the hostess, assisted by Misses Lillian Carr and Essie Ellington. After being introduced to the guests of honor they were ushered into the front hall, where delicious fruit punch was served by Misses Pattie Wooten and Edith Mafe Lee.

Dainty score cards were distributed by little Misses Ruth Andrews and Lillian Hooker. Soon each person was at her appointed table and an enthusiastic game of "Hearts" dice was in progression.

After the game was over delicious ices and cake were served.

The out-of-town guests were Miss Evelyn Aydtel, of Elizabeth City; Misses Lydia Winslow and Glennie Yelverton, of Goldsboro; Miss Elizabeth Page, of Aberdeen; Miss Annie House, of Wadesboro; Miss Lillian Gray, of Kinston; Mrs. Paul Webb, of Grifton; and Miss Lillie Tucker.

White-Forbes

Engagement Announced.

On Wednesday evening at the handsome new residence of Dr. E. A.
Moye, on Evans street, Miss Helen Forbes entertained her club friends and a few invited guests. The porch was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The hostess, assisted by Mesdames Paul Webb, Bert Moye, George Hadley, Fred Forbes and Misses Lillie Tucker, Evelyn Adyette, and Mary Moye, met the guests at the front entrance. They were then ushered to the punch bowl, which was presided over by Mesdames Quinerly and Charlie Forbes. Misses Ellie Brown and Hilda Critcher assisted in serving.

Hearts was the game of the evening and the guest winning the most hearts was Miss Mary Shelburn. She was presented with a lovely picture, "Cupid Awake." The consolation prize, a picture, "Cupid Asleep," was presented to Miss Yelverton, and the booby, a picture of Cupid, "I'm So Discouraged," to Miss Essie Ellington.

At the close of the game the guests were given hand-painted cards of Cupid, holding two hearts and making the following announcement:

White-Forbes,
Oct. 11, 1911.

The bride-elect was showered with beat wishes for health, wealth and happiness.

The couple referred to in this announcement are Mr. S. T. White and Miss Helen Forbes, both very prominent, and their marriage is looked forward to with much interest.

Homicide in Davie.

Mocksville, July 6.—Nine miles north west of here, near Calahalm, was the scene of a homicide yesterday afternoon. It occurred at a wheat threshing when Romus Swisher and Jule Clear got into an argument over some trivial matter. Soon Zal Clearly, brother of Jule, got into the controversy, and before Swisher realized any serious trouble he was knocked down with a club by one of the Clearys and beaten with a pitchfork by the other.
Swisher lived about five hours, but never regained consciousness.

Sheriff Sprinkle and deputies, coroner and Dr. J. K. Peper arrived on the scene at 2:30 this morning and began their task. The officers returned this afternoon, having in custody Jule Cleary. The other brother could not be located.

SIGNING THE DECLARATION.

Affixing of Signatures to Famous Document an Afterthought.

It is not generally understood that the signing of the Declaration of Independence was an afterthought by the fathers, who on July 4, 1776, made their names famous and established a political principal that has been imitated in several parts of the world by adopting a paper containing a declaration that all men are created equal and that the united British colonies of North America "are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States."

It is held by students that the Declaration was committed to the printer Dunlap immediately, and that the broadside was ready on the following day, July 5, when it received the signatures of Hancock and of Thompson President and secretary of congress, respectively, authenticating the copy to be forwarded to the government of the thirteen states. The signatures were followed by the words, "By order and in behalf of the congress."

There, then were the first signatures appended to the famous document, and it may have been when he wrote in his fine, bold hand, that signature better known than any other on the document, that Hancock made the historic exclamation attributed to him. At the time it will be seen there was no mention of having the members of congress sign the document. There was, indeed, a precedent for it. The articles of confederation received the signatures of those members present.

Copies of the broadside were sent to the various states and to the commanding officers of the continental troops. It is not certain that each of these bore the signature of the president and the secretary. But on July 19 it was ordered that the declaration "passed on the 4th should be fairly engrossed on parchment with the title and style of 'The unanimous declaration of the thirteen United States of America', and that the same, when engrossed, be signed by every member of congress."

On August 2 the Journal records that "The Declaration of Independence, being engrossed and compared at the table, was signed by the members."

It has been seen that signatures appear on the document of men who were not members of the congress at the time the Declaration was agreed on. It has been suggested that the proper interpretation of the orders of congress to have the document signed by every members was intended to include those who became members about this time.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

He Seeks Us.

He seeks each of us by the inner voice and emotions in our hearts and minds, sometimes we hear by the sudden, unstarting convictions of duty and truth, which sometimes, without manifest occasion, flash across our hearts. These voices are Christ's voice, for in a far deeper sense than most men believe, "He is the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

He is seeking us by our unrest, by our yearnings after we know not what by our dim dissatisfaction, which insists upon making itself felt in the midst of joys and delights and which the world fails to satisfy as much as it fails to interpret. There is a cry in every heart little as the bearer of the heart translates it into its true meaning—a cry after God.
And by all your unrests, your disappointments, your hopes unfulfilled, your hopes fulfilled and blasted in fulfillment, your desires that perish unfulfilled—by all the mystic movements of the spirit that yearns for something beyond the material and the visible, Jesus Christ is seeking His sheep.

He seeks us by the discipline of life, for I believe that Christ is the providence of God, and that the hands that were pierced on the cross do move the wheels of the history of the world and mold the destinities of individual spirits.—Alexander Mc-Claren.

Titles in England.

Forty or fifty years ago few people in England had titles. There were only a few decorations which entitled their owners to prefix "sir" before their names. We, all of us, looked down with lofty contempt upon the counts and barons that were so plentiful in continental countries.
Now we can do so no longer, for probably there is no other country in the world where the traffic in titles is so openly and so indecent as in England. What the number of our decorations is I do not know, and I imagine that few do. Every few years some new one is created, and an Englishman with a taste that way can easily manage to exhibit himself covered with metal disks and bits of ribbon like some successful cow at an agricultural show. These embellishments may flatter the vanity of their wearers, but they do not increase the respect that is felt for Englishmen.—Truth.

Advertising A Necessity

The Daily Newspaper is the great common carrier. It brings to the home the news gathered from every quarter of the globe and side by side with the varied descriptions of the world's activities are the announcements of merchants, bankers, realty operators and the rest of those who have something to sell. Information about everything in the way of business is set before the reader. Why, Mr. Merchant, is information about your enterprise, about your offer, absent from these columns?

There is no method of announcement of the goods you want to sell to the people who want to buy simpler, more direct and more efficient than that offered by the Daily Newspaper.

Advertising is the order of the day and no man in trade can dispense with its enormous influence. Any business man may become known without advertising in the course of years, but while the grass is growing the steed starves.
Do not starve. Do not hide your light under a bushel.

Needed Investigation.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has announced an intention to investigate the express companies, both as to charges and as to methods of doing business. The inquiry is one that ought to have been made long ago and, possibly, would have been had not the Commission been too busy dealing with other problems to give attention to the matter. Now that it is at last to come, let us hope that it will be thorough and searching, and prove productive of some measure of relief to a public which has long believed that it was being subjected to heavier extortion at the hands of these parasitic corporations.

And while the Interstate Commission is probing the conduct of interstate express business, the Virginia Corporation Commission might well make a similar investigation of the charges and methods of the companies operating within the state. The latter are matters which come directly home to the people of this Commonwealth and which are exclusively within the jurisdiction of the state authorities.—Virginia-Pilot.

Clark Sinned and Repented.

Clark's first Sunday saw him at the little church where worshipped the followers of Alexander Campbell, called the Disciples of Christ. Clark put in his letter from the Christian Church at Cincinnati, where he had been in the law school, and was received into full fellowship. Within a few days a steamboat trip was arranged by the young men of the town; the old steamer War Eagle, towing the barge Mamie, brass band, lamnade stand and all, steamed slowly up the broad river, while the full June moon rose over the picturesque bluffs of Pike county, Illinois. The music the perfect night, the odor of a thousand roses, the enthusiasm of youth—all else was forgot, and the young churchman danced all the way up the river to the turning-round point, and then danced all the way back to the landing at Louisiana, at two o'clock in the morning.

The next Sunday he took his way to church, all unconscious of the gathering storm. Before the service began the young Kentuckian was called before the bar of the church and expelled from its membership for dancing, in violation of the laws of the church. Clark, crestfallen, but not discouraged, walked out and cooled his brow in the shade of the long rows of maples on Georgia St. It was depressing, discouraging. But soon the air cleared; he walked resolutely back to the church, slipped in and took a seat on the last bench in the rear, observed by none. There he sat and heard a sermon on backsliding that seemed to be directed at him alone.

In the Christian church it is the unflinching custom, at the close of the service, to offer an invitation to all repentant sinners to come forward and take a place on the front seat while the congregation sings a hymn. It is a goodly custom. The usual invitation was given, when up rose a tall blonde and blue-eyed young man with a square jaw—the young Kentucky lawyer, who, according to The Riverside Press, had "settled in our minds." He stalked straight to that front bench and sat resolutely down, the only repentant sinner to make the good confession. The pastor was nonplussed; the presiding elder gasped; the deacons were agitated. The book containing the rules and laws of the church was dug up and hastily consulted; all hands put their heads together, but there was only one thing to do, a repentant sinner could not be turned away, so Clark went back into the fold, and there abideth to this day.—P. Harvey Middleton, in July Columbia.

Hatch Will Have New Store.

Hatch is to open another 5 and 10 cent store here at an early day. He has leased from Mr. W. H. Harrington the store at present occupied by B. J. and J. R. Abe-Younis and the one occupied by the Central Barber Shop adjoining. These two are to be thrown in to one with an entire new front, and Hatch says it will be the largest and best 5 and 10 cent store in Eastern North Carolina. The present occupants will vacate by the first of August, and the work of remodeling will begin then. 7 12

Bamboo Trees.

The bamboo tree does not blossom until its thirtieth year, when it produces seed profusely and then dies. A famine was prevented in India in 1912 by the sudden flowering of the trees, when 50,000 people gathered the seed for food.

THE JOHN FLANAGAN BUGGY CO.

Where the Country is Behind.

Since the establishment of the germ theory of disease the subject has been investigated by scientists, has been carefully studied by physicians, has been considered and acted upon by state and municipal boards of health. The conservation of the health of the towns and cities by stamping out disease has been the topic of discussion of business men's leagues, civic improvement societies, women's clubs, public schools, not forgetting the splendid campaign for health that has been carried on by the ministers of the Gospel all over the land.

But what of the country? All this organized and individual effort has spent itself upon the city or town and today we still witness the spectacle of a rural population, in the main, unorganized, unprotected and in many instances uninformed, an easy mark to epidemics of disease.
In these organized, well regulated cities and towns we find a protected water supply, and sanitary disposal of garb. We observe barns and stables carefully guarded to insure against breeding places for flies. We note that the garbage is carefully and effectively disposed of, that the swamps and other breeding places of the mosquitoes are effectively drained.
All this precaution, the result of organized effort for better health conditions.

How is it in the country? There we frequently find the open well, located in many instances without regard to drainage, surface water or fifth contamination. We observe open privy vats, possibly containing disease germs, systematically neglected offering a loathsome rendezvous for flies, as well as a source of filth in the food supply of many of the farm animals. Or we sometimes find even worse conditions; a farmhouse unprovided with any kind of out-house.
Statistics more or less reliable, have been collected which give us the startling information that fully 40 per cent of our southern farmhouses have no provision for the disposal of human excreta.

We observe further that in this rural community there is no arrangement for the systematic disposal of garbage; that masses of waste and debris remain month in and month out, offering a harbor as well as a source of food supply to insects and other household pests. About the premises are marshy places, stagnant pools, undrained ditches, which offer breeding spots for the fateful mosquito.

This is not the picture the poets and novelists have given us of the country, I am well aware. They have given us an ideal, and it is the work of the intelligent farm man and woman to make the ideal a reality.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

The reason a man is an optimist is so he can get taken in by everybody.
It's better not to know how to read and write than to get into the love letter business.

The only crazy people in the world who don't try to convince you they aren't are engaged couples.

When a man's wife wants him to write her a check he can have a sudden attack of writer's cramp.

It's no use to tell a pretty girl she is pretty; she knew that long before you did. The place to work it in with success is where a girl isn't pretty.

The successful dentist merely lives from hand to mouth.

When a woman of forty laughs heartily she really means it.
