PITT COUNTY'S NEW COURT HOUSE

There is Not a Better One in the State
IS NOW NEARING COMPLETION

In Architecture And Construction It
Is Almost Perfect—Well Arranged
For Carrying On The Work Of
The County And Holding Courts—
Fine View From Tower.

Though the editor of The Reflector could sit at his desk and see the work on the new court house, just across the street, going on and from day to day observed with some degree of pride the progress of the work as brick upon brick and stone upon stone brought out the symmetry and architectural beauty of the building, it was not until Friday afternoon that he went over to take a real inspection of the structure. Then in company with Mr. E. W. Foster, superintendent of construction and Mr. J. L. Wooten, secretary of the building committee, he went through from basement to dome.

The building is now near enough completion for a good idea to be formed of its perfect construction and complete arrangement for the use for which it is intended. The basement has a passageway through the centre extending from east to west the length of the building, with a dividing door about two-thirds the distance from the front and a steel stairway at either end to reach the first floor. On the south side of the passage in the corner is the dead record and storage vault underneath the clerk's office. Next to this are three inside reserve rooms that will not be completed at present but kept for future use when need for them may arise. At the west end on the same side is another dead record and storage vault underneath the registrar of deeds office. The front room on the north side of the passage is what is called the farmers' room, or a place for holding meetings that do not require a large hall. Next to this is the furnace and coal room, then the lavatories and toilet rooms for men, and at the west are lavatories and toilet rooms for women.

On the first floor are entrances from both Evans and Third streets with large halls running through the building both ways. From both ends are steel stairways leading to the court room on the second floor. First to the left of the Evans street entrance are the offices and record vault for the Superior court clerk that extend to the cross hall. At the other end on the same side are offices and vault for the registrar of deeds. First on the north side of the hall are the rooms for the sheriff, and next to these is the room for the treasurer. Both of these also have a small vault. Beyond the treasurer's office is a double room for the county commissioners, corner being an office for the county superintendent of education. All these offices are well lighted and excellently arranged.

The second room contains the auditorium for the court room which, including the gallery, has a seating capacity for about 700. The court room extends across the entire width of the building and is 64.2 x 52.2 feet inside. On the north side of the passage leading from the stairway to this is the grand jury room and on the south side are waiting rooms for witnesses. On the west end back of the bar and judge's seat are two retiring rooms for juries, a large sleeping room for juries that are held over night, a private room for the judge and a lawyers' consultation room. All of the jury and witness rooms have convenient toilets adjoining. The building is wired throughout for electric lighting and the entire construction seems as near perfect as could be made. When finished it will be handsomely furnished in keeping with such a structure.

The dome rises from the centre of the building and reaches nearly a hundred feet. The writer is not much for climbing, but reinforced by the two gentlemen above named, one leading and the other following, he decided to get up in the world for once. After much winding in and out over ladders the topmost landing was reached, and through the openings left for the clock dials a view of the town and surrounding country was had that was well worth

LICENSE HOLDERS.

Will Probably Resist Searching Of Their Premises by Police Officers

It is stated that a number of persons holding United States license to sell whiskey, or malt, will not receive without a contest searches by police officers, in accordance with an ordinance adopted by the council at the recent meeting conferring this right. It is stated that they will not tolerate the presence of an officer on their premises for the purpose set forth in the ordinance, resorting to force if necessary to eject him from the building. It is reported that persons holding licenses have been advised by their attorneys that the ordinance cannot be enforced and that they have a perfect right to protect their places against inspections by police officers. On the other hand both City Attorney McClammy, and Assistant Attorney Perchau are of the opinion that the city is within its right in the ordinance as adopted. The first section of the ordinance makes it unlawful for persons or firms to keep for the purpose of illegal sale intoxicating drinks; the second section declares such places a nuisance; the third gives the chief of police, or any officer, the right to make an inspection of all places holding United States license.

It is said that several persons holding such license have said openly that they will not submit to searches, and if necessary will resort to force to keep officers off their premises. The ordinance becomes effective July 22. Members of the bar are said to be divided as to the legality of the ordinance and some lively times may be expected when the police begin the enforcement of the ordinance next week.—Wilmington Dispatch.

After Bear.

Saturday morning early, while Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell, who live on the land of W. J. Riddick, near the A. C. L. bridge over the creek, were fishing, some one coming up the stream in a boat fired a gun and the shot entered the limbs of Mrs. Hopewell. Drs. York and Saunders were summoned hastily and found that the woman was not seriously wounded. There is a suspicion that a negro, thinking that he was looking at a bear, fired where Mrs. Hopewell was sitting on the banks and wounded her.—Williamston Enterprise.

No Place For Women.

Atlanta, Ga., July 14.—Believing that there is no place for women at the Georgia bar, the general judiciary committee of the house has recommended that the bill to let women practice law do not pass. Mrs. Minnie A. Hale, whose application for admission to the bar was recently refused, was the person chiefly interested.

Not So Well.

Reports of the condition of Mr. W. W. Perkins are not so favorable today. His brother, Mr. J. W. Perkins, went up to see him this morning.

Love makes the heart flutter and the tongue flatter.

the climb. We had no idea before that Greenville looked so good from a bird's eye view of nearly the whole town at once, and the panorama of the surrounding country was magnificent.

GOOD ROADS CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

APPOINTED BY ASSOCIATION.

Will Ask County Commissioners At August Meeting to Order Election

On the Fourth of July a meeting was held for the purpose of organizing a good roads association for Greenville township. The officers of the association selected at that meeting were authorized to appoint a committee of twelve to be known as a central committee in the interest of good roads, to work in conjunction with the trustees named in the bill passed by the last legislature relative to issuing bonds for building good roads in the township.

Before making the appointment of the campaign committee, the officers of the good roads association invited the trustees to confer with them and this conference was held this morning in the city hall. Several of the trustees, as well as some other citizens, were present and there was considerable discussion of good roads and the best methods to obtain and maintain them. Some argued for direct taxation, some favored private subscriptions, while other were for a bond issue as the quickest and best method of getting good roads.

As to the campaign committee it was decided that twelve, as first intended, was too many and the number was reduced to five. Those appointed on this committee were Messrs. H. A. White, Major Mills, Harvey Allen, A. A. Forbes and C. E. Fleming.

The committee, with the trustees provided for in the bill, will ask the county commissioners at August meeting to order the election on the question of issuing bonds to build the roads.

Court House Bell.

The bell for the new court house has arrived. It is a large one and a beauty. It is thirty-six inches in diameter at the base and about four feet tall. It is intended for use to strike the hours by the clock as well as to summon people to meet by its ringing.

A negro by the name of Bishop, of known reputation for a bad character was placed in jail last week for fighting and cutting in Roxobel township. Bishop created a disturbance with a train crew and when constable Minton, familiarly known as "Sheriff" Minton attempted to arrest him, Bishop resisted, and we are told badly cut and bruised the officer.—Windsor Ledger.

A most distressing accident occurred on Wednesday last week, when little Edith Cress Redwine fell from the rear porch at her home and sustained injuries about her head and neck which caused death to follow in an hour and a half. The child was 2-1/2 years of age, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Redwine, of the vicinity 6 miles east of Albemarle.—Stanley Enterprise.

When it comes to enthusiasm and would seem as if the plan must go action in behalf of better roads, to the Ninth Virginia District. According to the Galax, Va., Post-Herald, the counties have authorized bonds issued to the following amount: Wise, $700,000; Lee, $304,000; Tazewell, $625,000; Smith, $100,000; Russell, $425,000; Washington, 200,000; Pulaski, $70,000. We shall be glad to hear of any other southern district that can dispute this claim to leadership.

Isaiah Hodges, young negro man, was tried here before Mayor Welton a few days ago for forging two orders from Mr. C. Q. Stephenson for money to Austin-Stephens Co. He had worked for Mr. Stephenson but had taken pay for all his work before the orders were issued. One of the orders was for about three dollars and the other for $4.50. He was sent to jail to await court. Late yesterday evening about dark the jailer went into the jail and sent this negro out with a bucket of slops. He heard him empty the slops and just a little later heard him jump from the high wall enclosing the jail. Thus he made good his escape.—Smithfield Herald.

President Pardons Indian.

Washington.—President Taft reviewed the action of President Hayes in a pardon case in 1878 yesterday and extended execution clemency to Joshua Wade, a half breed Choctaw, who has spent the last thirty-three years in jail for a crime against a woman.

President Taft in 1878 saved Wade from hanging and commuted his sentence to life imprisonment. The man is now old and feeble and still protests his innocence. President Taft ordered him released at once. This crime was alleged to have been committed near Caddo, Ind. T.

That Picture.

"At the meeting of the press association at Lenoir, an enterprising photograph—Holliday, of Durham—equipped with a revolving camera, 'took a picture' of the editors and their wives, on the campus of Davenport college. The Chronicle's copy came to hand several days ago, but we have hesitated to imperil it by the half tone. It would not print good in the paper, and we are sure Colonel Bob Phillips' pose, which is the best thing in the panel, would not show up well. It is not very much to the credit of the Chronicle that it didn't wear a pleasanter look with its immediate background of three of the handsomest women in the party. But then it could not see what was behind it. In the foreground H. C. Martin, who had just completed his managerial job, appears in a delightful, refreshingly wearied attitude. Poet Laureate Hill is looking over his glasses in a benevolent fashion. One not acquainted with the group might think he recognized John Temple Graves in it, but it is not the colonel. It is a bigger man, if anything—Sims, of the Raleigh Times. Sherrill always 'takes' good and Robinson is the only man who can smile naturally at the camera. As a representation of congregated intellectuality, we will put this North Carolina Press group in competition with any that a camera has yet turned out. We have one of those pictures in a neat frame, hanging in our sanctum, but that pose mentioned by Colonel Harris is one of the unexplained things about it, unless it was caused by that revolving camera. But did you notice the expectant look on the face of Editor Klutz? and Scottish Chief Harker was wondering which way the bird would fly. The picture of Whichard looks quite handsome while one of the most attractive features in the case which Judge Clark maintains his position on the ground. The mendacity of the Siler City Grit turns into jeweled innocence sitting beside the Charlotte Chronicle. We prize the group highly, although we look in vain for the faces of Professor Patton and Jimmy Cowan.—Greensboro News.

Will One Withdraw?

E. J. Jeffries, writing from Raleigh, to the Greensboro News says: "There is a rumor afloat here that Chief Justice Clark feels a little bit sore that Editor Josephus Daniels, of the News and Observer, is supporting ex-Governor Aycock in preference to him, especially when the platform of the Chief Justice as to trusts, initiative and referendum and his general course on the bench has fitted in so well with the Daniels point of view." Logically, Judge Clark should have been The News and Observer's candidate, but in these days a platform may be sworn by or discarded, as found most convenient.—Charlotte Chronicle.

New Bern Seeing Snakes.

There seems to be a sufficient supply of snakes in this locality this summer. During the past few days a number of these reptiles have been killed right in the business district of the city and yesterday morning one was dispatched near the draw on Neuse river bridge.—New Bern Journal.

The death of Dr. J. B. Carlyle, of Wake Forest College, which occurred a few days ago, was indeed a great loss to the state. He was foremost among the educators of North Carolina, a scholar of high rank and a speaker of ability. The work that he did in raising the endowment for Wake Forest College will be a lasting monument to him.

INFECTED COTTON.
Black Root or Cotton Wilt Has Been Found Here.

Zeno Moore, a demonstrator in the Department of Agriculture, found cotton wilting and sent in samples. Other samples had been sent in so this letter should be explanatory: Naleigh, N. C., July 10, 1911.

Mr. T. E. Brown, Ahsokie, N. C.

Upon my return to Raleigh from ten days' absence, I found your letter and the specimen of diseased cotton plants. Upon examination I find that these plants are affected with cotton-wilt or black root. This is confirmed by Dr. Stevens, the pathologist in the department of the college here. It is very characteristic of these plants to die suddenly when attacked by wilt. The disease occurs about as you state in spots. If cotton is planted continually on the same ground these spots will enlarge from year to year, because the plow will carry the germs in the soil and may even carry it from one field to another. Land infected with this wilt should not be planted in cotton for several years nor should it be planted to cowpeas except to the variety as iron peas, which are immune to the disease. There is quite a good deal of this trouble on sandy soils in North Carolina and some clay soils. You can easily recognize the disease by cutting through the roots and seam with your knife. You will find the stalk blackened inside. Usually it is right in the center of the stalk but may extend throughout the stalk. Sometimes one side of the stalk will be infected and the other side may continue to grow. At present we of no remedy for this disease except the planting on these infected soils such crops as the wilt does not attack. Wherever this trouble is found methods should be put into operation to stamp it out.

I will write Mr. Moore concerning the matter.

But It Was Statesmanship.

Senator Bailey spoke three hours in the senate Tuesday against the reciprocity bill, admitting that he was speaking merely to prevent and delay the passage of the measure. That is a fair specimen of the tactics used in congress to kill legislation the people want and the people have to pay for it, not only by frequently failing to get the legislation desired but also by having to foot the bills for unnecessary sessions of congress and for time wasted at regular sessions.—Greensboro Telegram.

The Steel Trust.

The restriction of competition, which is in violation of the law, was the prime object of the organizers of the United States Steel corporation, according to information which has recently come to light in Washington. When formed, the steel trust had property valued at $682,000,000. But it was capitalized at $1,402,000,000. Of the capital stock, $720,000,000, or more than half, was water. Three partners of J. P. Morgan advanced $28,000,000 to finance the trust and received stock worth $19,500,000. The average rate of profit from 1910 to 1910 on the corporation's actual investment was 12 per cent.

Really, Was Durham Dry?

The utter absence of whiskey yesterday and Wednesday in the Southern express office was explained yesterday by officers as the result of a big seizure the day before in Clarksville when 1,700 gallons of unstamped booze was confiscated and the market demoralized.—Durham Herald.

FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die. At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well. I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardui. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardui is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years. Your druggist sells it. Please try it.

Bitten By Mad Dog.

Last Sunday while a crowd was at Sunday school at the Nichols house, district No. 3, Deaver Dam township, Mr. James Vandiford, a young man grown, was bitten by a supposed mad dog. Several others had narrow escapes, and Mr. Vandiford would have escaped, but for the fact that in trying to get out of the dog's way he fell. Then the dog bit him. Dr. E. A. Moye cauterized the wound and sent Mr. Vandiford to Raleigh for treatment.

The crowd was coming out of the school house when the dog was seen acting strangely. Then it was said, "Give the dog a wide berth, something ails him." But the dog rushed at them with the above result. The dog then went off and bit some hogs at Mr. Forlines, a dog at Mr. Alfred Nichols, some hogs at Mr. McArthur's and there are reports of other dogs being bitten.

Later a dog supposed to be the same one was killed at Mr. John Hemby's store. His head was sent to Raleigh and the analysis showed well developed hydrophobia.

A Georgia Kid.

Mt. Airy, Georgia, claims the biggest baby for its age in the world in James Adolph Cody, 2 years and 3 months old. He weighs 122 pounds.

With the first indication of the abnormal growth his parents consulted a physician, and James Adolph was put under his care. All efforts to keep the baby on a diet suitable for one of his age proved unsuccessful to keep him normal.

The baby's measurements are: Height, 39 inches, barefooted; waist, 36 inches; across hand, above thumb, 6 1-4 inches; around thigh, 25 inches; length of foot, 6 1-2 inches; across shoulders, 15 inches.

ESKIMO WIDOWERS.

Six Weeks Is the Limit They Will Wait Before Remarrying.

In civilization it is said that a wife does not always add to her husband's ease or render his life more supportable, but up on the barren grounds the worst of wives would be better than none.

There, among the heathen tribes, if a man's wife dies—provided he is not a polygamist, in which case, says the Wide World, there is less need for hurry—he often marries again within the week.

Even the Christian Eskimo widowers are with difficulty persuaded by the Moravian missionaries to allow six weeks to elapse between the death and remarriage. On the very day after the six weeks have lapsed the hunter presents himself with a new bride and asks that the marriage service may be speedily read.

The reason is not far to seek. It is said in civilization that "a woman's work is never done," and far more is that true of the helpmate of the savage and the semi-savage, the woman of the barren grounds or of the ice edge. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up and carries to camp her husband's kill. She dresses the skins of deer and seal.

She is responsible for the fashioning of footgear and clothes. On a journey she often paddles the canoe, and on portage she carries a heavy load. In fact, it is easier to write down the duties not expected of a squaw than those which by immemorial custom she must perform.

A Turkish Love Story.

A Turk knocked at his beloved's door, and a voice answered from within, "Who is there?"

Then he answered, "It is I."

Then the voice said, "This house will not hold thee and me."

And the door was not opened.

Then went the lover into the desert, where there is nothing but Allah, and fasted and prayed in solitude.

And after a year he returned and knocked again at the door.

And again the voice asked, "Who is there?"

And he said, "It is myself."

And the door was opened to him.

D'Orosy and His Tailor.

"D'Orosy, the Complete Dandy," as Mr. Tiegmouth Shore calls him in his biography, was fully aware of the value of his patronage to the tailors.

When clothes arrived for him, in the most mysterious manner banknotes had found their way into the pockets.

Once, when this accident had not happened, D'Orosy bade his valet return the garments with the message that "the lining of the pockets had been forgotten."

The Old, Old Story.

"What did you do when your husband told you the old, old story?"

"I told him to shut up before he war half through."

"Oh, is that what you mean? I thought you mean the story he told last night when he came home from a wine with the boys."—Houston Post.

Sized Up.

"Yours must be a gas works," shouted a rude, uncultured person who occupied a back seat.

Cecil Rhodes' Grave.

Cecil Rhodes, the "diamond king" and famous South African statesman, is buried in Africa, in obedience to his own wish, as expressed in the following words left in his will: "I admire the grandeur and loneliness of the Matoppas, in Rhodesia, and therefore I desire to be buried in the Matoppas, on the hill which I used to call the 'View of the World,' in a square to be cut in the rock on the top of the hill, covered with a plate brass plate with these words thereon: 'Here lie the remains of Cecil John Rhodes.'" Rhodes died March 26, 1902, at the age of forty-seven.

Windows of the Soul.

Eyes are bold as lions, roving, running, leaping, here and there, far and near. They speak all languages; they wait for no introduction; they are no Englishmen; ask no leave of age or rank; they respect neither poverty nor riches, neither learning nor power, nor virtue, nor sex, but intrude, and come again, and go through and through you in a moment of time. What inundation of life and thought is discharged from one soul into another through them!—Emerson.

Remarkable Case.

"How much your little boy resembles your husband?" said the cunning politician.

"I've always heard," she replied, "that people grow to look like those they are much with, but this is quite a remarkable case. We only adopted the little fellow last week."

In His Interest.

Jack—You know when Mabel rejected me last week I told you my troubles, and you promised to help me.

Well, she accepted me last night. Am I to thank you for interceding for me? Cousin Belle—Not exactly, dear boy. I simply intimated to Mabel that I was after you myself.

How shall I be able to rule over others that have not full power and command over myself?—Rabelais.

Though some of us are poor, let us be content.—Stevenson.

RESEMBLES A MERMAID.

N the Dugong Had Long Hair It Would Make a Real Sea Woman.

The old stories about mermaids do not seem so improbable after all when one looks at a full sized dugong. The only thing it lacks to make it a real sea woman is long hair.

This enormous fish has flippers instead of fins and rudimentary arms. The flippers end in four distinct fingers and are startlingly like the human hand. The shoulders of this weird marine creature slope in to a short but perfectly defined neck, on which is set a round head. The eyes are like a human being's in shape and expression, but very much larger. They are set far apart on each side of the head and have a brown iris swimming in a white ball, but are lidless. The dugong has no nose, but the forehead is broad and well developed, and while the mouth is "fishy" in shape there is a distinct under lip.

The dugong is twice the height of a tall man when it is full grown, and a mother dugong moving about through the water holds her baby tenderly in her "arms" pressed to her breast, just as a human mother does.

Glimpses of this strange inhabitant of the sea no doubt gave rise to the old time belief in mermaids. The dugong is rapidly becoming extinct, but still can be found in fairly large numbers in the Indian ocean.—New York Press.

SICKROOM PLANTS.

Why They Should Be Put Out of Doors During the Night.

In his random suggestions to his students, printed in the Medical Record, Robert H. M. Dawbarn, M. D., tells why it is considered best not to keep flowers or growing plants in a sickroom at night. Flowers give off moisture taken up from the soil; hence air becomes somewhat humid if many—particularly growing plants—are kept in the room. Flowers having a method of breathing, they use up the oxygen as human beings do and in exchange give off carbonic dioxide as waste matter.

The action of sunlight upon the stems, leaves and all green parts of flowers is to store carbonic dioxide within the plants and release oxygen. Thus in daylight there is a fair balance between the carbonic dioxide and the oxygen given and taken, leaving neither good nor ill results. But during the entire night the plant continues to breathe, and until the return of daylight the oxygen is used just like an additional person breathing in the room, thus leaving less oxygen for the use of the invalid. Therefore the standing order to remove all plants and flowers at night is based upon the facts of plant physiology and is right.

Chateaubriand's Early Struggles.

A new discovery has been made about Chateaubriand—nothing less than that he once sold stockings on commission. It was in 1790, when he was still an officer in the royal service. He had a debt of honor, amounting to £200. He wrote to a distant relative, one La Morandais, who manufactured stockings in Switzerland, appealing for help on the ground that he must either pay that debt or blow his brains out. La Morandais, instead of sending him money, sent him 169 dozen pairs of stockings, offering him a liberal commission if he would sell them among his distinguished friends. He gratefully accepted the offer and succeeded in disposing of the merchandise. There is reason to believe that he managed to plant a good deal of it on the stores department of his own regiment.—Westminster Gazette.

The Clever Brahman.

Speaking of the great power the Brahmins in India possess in localizing thought, a prominent Brahman once said: "We would consider a game of chess as played in this country mere child's play. An ordinary Brahman chess player could carry on three or four games at a time without inconvenience. The usual game played by the Brahmins consists in checkmating with one pawn designated when the play begins. I have seen a man perform a long problem in multiplication and division, at the same time noting the various sounds and discussions going on about him in the room. I have seen a man compose a triple acrostic in Sanskrit in a given meter, at the same time having three well versed men trying to overthrow him in his argument on religion."

Somewhat Unfortunate.

"There are some times in my life when I have felt that fate is indeed ironical," said the man who was seldom troubled by his debts.

"Do you refer to any special occasions?" inquired one of his oldest creditors.

"One of them came last week when I was in Chicago," said the cheerful debtor. "I had a money order for $25, and the only person who could identify me was a man to whom I owed thirty."—Youth's Companion.

Contradicting a Proverb.

"My landlord manages it," replied Mr. Growcher. "He makes me sign a contract to pay a full year's rent whether I live in his flat or not."—Washington Star.

Respect for the Aged.

"What's the matter, Miss Dallington?" asked the village wag. "You never laugh at any of my jokes."

"I have been taught never to laugh at the old and decrepit."—Chicago Record-Herald.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

They Go into Particulars in High Life in England.

In this country, when the contracting parties to a marriage desire to inform the public of the event, you will see inserted in the proper column a little notice like this:

"Brown-Smith—Married on Saturday, March 4, at St. Joseph's church, Mary Smith to William Brown."

It's simple and sufficient. But did you ever take up one of the English social weeklies and see how a marriage is recorded? It will read something like this:

"Married at Ramsgate Rookery, near Oakley, Stafford, at noon on Thursday, 30th instant, by the Rev. Plantagenet Clutterbuck, LL. D., F. R. S., A. T. S., M. N. O., Q. E. D., uncle to the bride, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, Elephant's Head, Briary lane, Berkeley, assisted by the Rev. Theophilus Timoleon Titmouse, J. O. B., R. R., R. X. Y. Z., D. B. F., cousin of the bridegroom, rector of Cavalry church, St. Martin's-in-the-Back-Cellar, Man's Nose, Grantley, Gertrude Maude Beatrice Constance, daughter of Grantville Neville Bolling-broke Bopgappers, Esq., L. P., M. P. T., S. P. Q., W. P. N., of Bareknees Briary, Cholmondeley Chairbones, Somerset, to Harold St. John Evermont Stragsby, K. C. B., R. B. A., L. G. J. and T. E. C., late of the Fourteenth Royal Lancers, of Pumpernic Priory and Stonehenge and Stickle-neck Lodge, St. Christopher's-Under-the-Hedge, Mumblepeg, Hartford."—Everybody's Magazine.

ORGIES IN NEW GUINEA.

Wild and Bloody Scenes When the Natives Get Intoxicated.

Of the unpleasant drinking customs of certain nations in New Guinea Walter Goodfellow writes: "We did not find the people down by the coast nearly so tractable or companionable as those at the headwaters of the river. They were also much more quarrelsome among themselves. They tap a species of sugar palm up the river and make fermented drink out of it. On this they get fearfully intoxicated, and wild orgies take place all day. Parties of them would go off in canoes and sit under the palms from which the drink was obtained. In the morning they would return extremely drunk, and fights used to be the result."

"Sometimes these fights lasted for two days at a time. In our vicinity they more often than not took place at night. The natives then made such an indescribable din with their howling and their noises that we could not sleep at our base camp. Spears and showers of arrows were discharged in all directions, and one could hear the sound of their axes dealing blows on the bodies of the combatants."

"After a time the women would join in the fray, and their shrill voices added to the babel, making the noise greater than ever. When they became involved in the fights they seemed to be worse than the men. The cries were not like sounds emitted by human beings, but rather like the cries of animals."—Chicago News.

Wanted to Make Sure.

Under ordinary conditions he was a man of prominence, but as he ascended the steps of his residence very early in the morning it was very evident that he desired to be as much otherwise as possible. The caddy was lingering near by to see that his charge was safely disposed of for the night. The door opened before the man on the steps could get the key to work, and he was greeted with the question, "Henry, where have you been?" (Silence.) "Henry, where have you been?" (He turns to descend the steps.) "Are you going to answer my question?" "Yes, dearie heart, I sure am. From my personal knowledge, beloved of my soul, I can't give th' desired information. So you jest lay down again while I go back an' ask th' back driver!"—Argonaut.

Holes In Everything.

It is held by more than one high authority that matter is neither continuous nor homogeneous. Thomson showed by an experiment that hydrogen can be passed into a vacuum tube through an incandescent platinum window. In a similar way sodium passes through glass, and this is a useful fact in the manufacture of vacuum tubes, because sodium can be passed into the tube to absorb the residual oxygen. Bellati, the Italian physicist, has shown that hydrogen can pass through cold iron. Matter may therefore be generally regarded as full of holes.

Got His Dose Later.

Mr. Courtney (flatteringly)—I had the blues awfully when I came here to-night, Miss Fisher, but they are all gone now. You are as good as medicine. Miss Fisher's Little Brother—Yes; father himself says she'll be a drug on the market if she doesn't catch on to some fellow soon.

Quit Voluntarily.

"My good man, how did you happen to be thrown out of work?"

"I got out," replied Weary Wombat, with dignity. "I didn't have to be thrown out."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A DUEL IN THE DARK.

The Unexpected Happened When the Englishman Fired.

Among the less known writers of the nineteenth century was Samuel Rogers. He kept open house and frequently entertained Dickens, Macaulay, Carlyle and other celebrities of the time. Rogers was a notable wit, but unfortunately his thrusts were not always tempered with kindness. Irving in a letter says: "I dined tete-a-tete with him some time since, and he served up his friends as he served up his fish—with a squeeze of lemon over each. It was very piquant, but it set my teeth on edge."

This same caustic flavor of his wit is shown in a story he was fond of telling to the discredit of French valor.

An Englishman and a Frenchman had got into a wordy squabble, which led to mutual insults and a challenge. Nothing could save the honor of either of them but a duel.

But duels were not fought to kill. Even serious wounds were unpleasant, and a mere scratch would answer the purpose much better. So that the antagonists might have a better chance of missing one another they repaired to a dark room.

All was in readiness. The signal was given. The Englishman, no less eager to preserve his foe than himself, groped to the open fireplace. He pointed his pistol up the chimney and fired.

"And, by Jove," Rogers was wont to exclaim, "he brought down the Frenchman!"—Youth's Companion.

FOLLOWED THE DIAGRAM.

The Motorcar Tourists Rewarded the Man Who Drew It.

An amusing practical joke which was played by a Canadian farmer on a party of motorcar tourists is described in Suburban Life. The farmer had drawn a diagram to show the automobilists how to proceed through the little known country.

"For five miles," writes the author of the article, "we followed the countryman's diagram and then came to a piece of road which was atrocious. We climbed over stumps and in and out of ruts and gulleys. Grass grew in the middle of this road, showing how little it was used. At last we saw ahead a little house just at the edge of the woods. We felt sure we were off the right road and decided to make inquiries at the house."

Great was our surprise upon drawing up in front of the house to find our countryman, his wife and several children out in the middle of the road to meet us. They all looked at the car with wondering eyes, and the smallest child hung to her mother's skirts and howled with fright. The other children fled to the house and peeked out of the window.

"Our friend the countryman said: 'Well, I most run my horse to death to get here before you did. I wanted the kids to be sure and see this critter. They never saw one before. I'm much obliged to you, and now if you want the right road you'll have to pull back two miles to the road where you turned in and go straight ahead!'"

Too Much Toothbrush.

It is possible to err in the direction of a too free use of the toothbrush. "Once a day for three minutes is sufficient," writes a dentist in the Family Doctor of London. "Even in using a toothbrush once a day it is better not to rub it directly across the surface of the teeth, but to slant it, holding the point down so that it cleans the spaces between the teeth as well as the front of the teeth and removes the full force of the contract from the teeth. I have had many patients who have literally rubbed the enamel from their teeth by the excessive use of a brush. The average person uses a brush too much and not too little. In addition to being careful with the brush, it is also important to see that the bristles are soft and not hard. Tooth powder should be used only once a day."

Many Kinds of Knives.

An extraordinary thing about the cutlery trade is the variety of knives made. At the Suffolk works in Sheffield, for instance, they have 10,000 different patterns on the books. They make sometimes 8,000 patterns to order at one time. The same thing is true of the large cutlery works at Solingen, in Germany. One firm has 9,000 patterns for Germany alone. New ones are constantly coming out. The Suffolk works have averaged ten new patterns a week for two years. This is a trade that will not be standardized, which is one reason why America has failed hitherto to compete.—Cassier's Magazine.

The Important Question.

"It broke out at midnight in the Von Biffers' house on the avenue," he said, "and just as we got there Miss von Biffer came stumbling out of the flames and smoke, carrying her little niece all wrapped up in her arms. It was the bravest act I ever saw."

Willing to Tune It.

"John, that man next door came over here today and offered to tune little Lucy's piano."

"Great! Did you let him do it?"

"No, dear. He wanted to tune it with an ax!"—Baltimore Sun.

What do we live for if it is not to make life less difficult to each other?—George Elliot.

SPANISH LAW.

The Snub It Gave a British Consul in Cuba Some Years Ago.

The haphazard character of Spanish law is well illustrated by the following case: Some years ago a young English sailor, accompanied by an American and an Irish sailor, went on shore at Havana. When returning to their ships they were attacked by Chinamen. The American struck one of the Chinamen on the head with a stick, and the man died. The Spanish authorities did not trouble to discriminate, but sentenced the three men to two years' imprisonment.

The British consul, being unaccustomed to Spanish ways, took up the case of the Englishman very strongly. The authorities thereupon, possibly to teach him a lesson, tried the men over again and gave them twenty years each.

The Englishman after three years in a Cuban prison, during which time his companions died of yellow fever, was transferred to Ceuta to serve the remainder of his time. After some years he and a fellow prisoner, a Spaniard, escaped, but they were recaptured. The food provided in the convict prison of Ceuta consists of two meals a day of garbanzos—chick peas—occasionally flavored with a tiny bit of salt pork, a remarkably healthy if not appetizing diet, and the Englishman came out of prison in particularly good health. After his twenty years' unjust imprisonment he married a Spanish woman.—London Family Herald.

HE SAW THE POINT.

And For That Very Reason He Didn't Join in the Laugh.

"They" were chatting in the smoking room of a little Koninklijke Paketvaart Maatschappij coaster, on a two months' run among the islands below the equator, when some one speaking of the Malay peninsula some one else said, "My impression of the Straits Settlements can be summed up in a single picture—a strong black man, standing in the center of a muddy stream, trying to split a rock with a shirt."

Now this always provokes a laugh; it is venerable and infallible. But to my surprise, said Frederick S. Isham, the novelist, one of the smoking room contingent, on this occasion it partially failed. What was the trouble? The delinquent, the one man out of seven who didn't laugh, was sallow, saturnine and English.

"What's the matter, old chap?" asked the novelist. "Don't you see the point or are you waiting until tomorrow to wake up to it?"

The other man turned his head wearily. "See the point?" he said sadly. "I should think I did. I ought to, I," tragically, "am the man who owned the shirt."

Then we, knowing he had lived twenty-five years in the orient, became silent; our laughter ceased. A sympathetic melancholy descended upon us. Englishman or not, we took him to our heart of hearts and made a brother of him.—Baltimore American.

Jokable Relatives.

One of the curious social customs practiced by the Crow as well as by many other Indian tribes is the "mother-in-law taboo"—that is to say, a man is under no circumstances permitted to hold conversation with his wife's mother. Another strange regulation is that relating to the playing of practical jokes. A man is not permitted to jest with any one he pleases, but is limited to the individuals whose fathers, belonged to the same clan as his own father. Within this group, however, practically any liberty is allowable. If a man discovers that a "jokable relative" has committed some foolish or disgraceful act he can publicly twit him with it, and the person derided must not get angry, but bide his time for some favorable opportunity to retaliate.—American Museum Journal.

Fissures in the Rockies.

In some of the high plateaus or mesas of the Rocky mountains there are to be found a short distance from the edge cracks or fissures not more than four feet wide and often as much as eighty feet deep. During the terrific blizzards that rage in the winter these crevices are filled to the level, and cattle and horses which are not acquainted with the country frequently drop into them, their struggles only causing them to sink deeper and deeper. The cracks, into which the sun never penetrates, are like refrigerators, and the hapless brutes, when death has come to their relief, become to all intents and purposes mummies.

A Close Student.

The late Goldwin Smith, writing for the Nineteenth Century, recalls that Robert Lowe, afterward Lord Sberbrooke, was so nearsighted that when he was reading his nose literally touched his book.

He took high honors at Oxford, but a wit said of him:

"Lowe would have taken higher honors at Oxford if he had not rubbed out with his nose what he had written with his pen."

Dodged His Duty.

Social Lemonade.

COINS UNDER WEIGHT.

In England It's the Duty of Those Who Get Them to Break Them.

It is the duty of each loyal British subject not merely to refuse gold coin that is under a certain weight, but to break it.

"Every person," the act reads, "shall, by himself or others, cut, break or deface such coin tendered to him in payment, and the person tendering the same shall bear the loss."

But in spite of this act it is a risky business interfering with coins which you may suspect to be under weight or spurious. Some months ago a Grimby woman offered a half sovereign in payment of goods to a local shopkeeper. The latter put the coin in a testing machine and, as it broke in two, refused to take it.

The coin, however, was pronounced by experts to be perfectly genuine, and when the case was taken into a court of law the shopkeeper was ordered to refund 10 shillings to the customer.

Money, both gold and silver, wears out at a startling rate. It is reckoned that there is usually £100,000,000 in gold coin in England, a very large proportion of which is locked in the strong rooms of banks. Yet of that which is in active circulation the wastage is so great that during every twelve months £70,000 worth of gold and silver is rubbed off into fine dust.—Pearson's Weekly.

PUNCTUATION.

The Modern System Was Introduced by Aldus Manutius.

Punctuation by means of stops or points, so as to indicate the meaning of sentences and assist the reader to a proper enunciation, is ascribed originally to Aristophanes, an Alexandrian grammarian, who lived in the third century B. C. Whatever his system may have been, it was subsequently neglected and forgotten, but was reintroduced by Charlemaigne, the various stops and symbols being designed by Warnefried and Alcuin.

The present system of punctuation was introduced in the latter part of the fifteenth century by Aldus Manutius, a Venetian printer, who was responsible for our period, colon, semicolon, comma, marks of interrogation and exclamation, parenthesis and dash, hyphen, apostrophe and quotation marks. These were subsequently copied by other printers until their use became universal.

Most ancient languages were innocent of any system of punctuation. We find in many early manuscripts that the letters are placed at equal distances apart, with no connecting link between, even in the matter of spacing, an arrangement which must have rendered reading at sight somewhat difficult.

Strict School Rules.

John Wesley held that school children should do without holidays altogether. When he opened Kingswood school in 1748 he announced that "the children of tender parents, so called, have no business here, for the rules will not be broken in favor of any person whatsoever. Nor is any child received unless his parents agree that he shall observe all the rules of the house and that they will not take him from school, no, not for a day, till they take him for good and all." Further, no play days were permitted, and no time was ever allowed for play on the ground that he who plays when he is a child will play when he becomes a man. Every Friday the children had to work till 3 in the afternoon without breaking their fast.—London Chronicle.

A Faith Cure.

Dr. Josiah Oldfield relates a story of his student days at St. Bartholomew's hospital. A man came to him with an injury to his hand. The doctor did not know what the ailment was, but he prescribed an ointment which was practically lard. The man returned to the hospital the following week.

"Ah, sir," he said, "I begin to recognize why it is that St. Bartholomew's hospital has such a great reputation! I come from Leicester and have been to all the doctors in Leicester. Your ointment has done me more good in one week than all the ointments of the doctors of Leicester in many months."

That result, added the doctor, was owing to the fact that the man came to St. Bartholomew's believing that he could be cured there.—London Graphic.

"Have you?" replied the man from Chicago. "My record beats that."

"Quite remarkable. By the way, old chap, how many states are there now?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

CONFEDERATES IN CONGRESS

Fifty years after the first guns of the civil war sounded the congress of the United States is comparatively in control of the Confederates. If the battle roll of the house and senate was called today it would show more Confederate veterans in each branch of congress than survivors of armies of the blue.

They are veterans of many battles and survivors of many trying situations. In the senate there are six of these Confederates warriors; three of them. Senator Bacon, of Georgia, and Senators Johnston and Bankhead, of Alabama, were captains in the Southern ranks; the others, Senators Martin, of Virginia; Thornton, of Louisiana, and Tillman, of South Carolina, fought either as privates in the regular army or as members of cadet corps that were enrolled for active service.

In the house of representatives there are eight Confederates, including Brigadier General George W. Gordon, of Tennessee; Major Charles M. Stedman, of North Carolina; Captain John Lamb, of Virginia, and William Richardson, of Alabama. The other Confederates include representative Talbot, of Maryland; Rucker, of Colorado; Taylor, of Alabama, and Estopnal, of Louisiana.

The only Confederate general in congress is representative George Washington Gordon, of Tennessee. At the recent Confederate reunion at Little Rock, Ark., General Gordon was a prominent figure. His history is a striking one. He was captured three times, dangerously wounded once, and slightly wounded several times; was in every important battle participated in by the Tennessee troops, and was finally taken prisoner and removed to Fort Warren, Mass., where he was held until three months after the war was concluded.

Two men in the house of Representatives—Captain John Lamb, of Virginia, and Major Charles Stedman, of North Carolina—were with the 1,200 Confederates who fought the battle of Bethel, the first battle of the war, and were still fighting with the army on northern Virginia when Lee laid down his arms at Appomattox April 9, 1865. The records show that only twelve men enjoyed this distinction.

Atteno W. Rucker, now a representative from Colorado, went through a trying prisons experience as a 15-year-old boy.—New York Herald.

The Printer's Unique Distinction.

The interesting statistical fact was recently developed that among the 1,200 or more convicts in the Virginia penitentiary there is not among them a printer. It seems that the editor of a weekly newspaper recently wrote to Governor Mann, making inquiry on the subject with a view to giving a man employment, the governor sought information at the penitentiary with the result that not a printer could be found among the felons in striped garb.

It might be asserted that this is a mere curious accident, inasmuch as there have recently been preachers, lawyers, physicians and men of every avocation among this large criminal class, and perhaps the condition is unique. There is a reason, however, why more printers are not criminals: In the first place the trade or art is one in which a man need rarely remain long unemployed. The demands for printers is still great, even since the invention of several typesetting machines. The hand compositor cannot be dispensed with yet and there is scope for much taste and judgment in the business of hand composition. In the first place the printer is seldom a loafer. If he loafs or speers for a time, he goes back to work again. Another reason for this immunity from criminality is the fact that the printer who has been at the business for any length of time is usually intelligent and well informed. Not a few men have acquired practically all the education they have at the case. They think as they work and read. Indeed, no man man will become a competent printer who does not soon begin to understand what he reads. Generally the ability to speak and write correctly and fluently comes to the man who stands all day picking up type and aligning them in a "stick." Life would be a dreary monotony to him if he did not comprehend what he is putting in type.

Intelligence, education and employment are antipathetic to crime, just as ignorance and idleness are contributory to it. All honor to the calling whose thousands have no representative in the felon class. May the avocation maintain its present high standard and prove an example and an inspiration to future apprentices to maintain the ethics of the "art preservative of all the arts."—Danville Register.

About one year ago a 7-year-old colored girl, whose parents live near McFarlan, swallowed an enameled picture about the size of a silver quarter, says the Wadesboro Messenger. The child had difficulty in swallowing for several days. This soon passed off, but she commenced to fall off almost immediately. Finally her parents thought she was going off into consumption and brought her to Wadesboro to see Drs. Ross and J. M. Covington, Jr. Yesterday Dr. Covington inserted a rubber tube in the child's throat and located the picture, finally dislodging and removing it from the throat.—Concord Tribune, 14th.

Rev. Baylus Cade was in town at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. W. Green, the first part of the week. Mr. Cade hopes to have his type setting machine on the market about the first of the year. Those acquainted with the mechanism of the machine say it will revolutionize the typesetting business in the way of costs, etc., when it gets into use.—Littleton Reporter.

A new automobile factory for Henderson, so the Gold Leaf learns on reliable authority, is practically an assured fact. It is understood that the capital stock of the new concern will be at least $75,000 to start with, and more than half of that amount has already been subscribed, it is learned.—Gold Leaf.

The Ten Commandments which Mme. Maeterlinck has issued for the guidance of wives are filled with good sense. How could you better these recipes for a happy home? Wait on your husband yourself; get out the proper clothes for him to don each day; smooth over all the rough places; be sweet when he is out of humor; laugh when he is gay; feed before fondling him; don't say anything when you think he is wrong—only look it; don't ask him to walk if he doesn't want to; be a good cook; save his money. This is the meat of the first nine. The last commandment is to not lose sight of the fact that you are his superior in more ways than he is yours, and if you are able to carry out faithfully the first nine you surely will be. Nor will there be any to deny you that distinction, least of all your husband.—Baltimore Sun.

Turn Tricks For You

And Rain Came.

Wetumka, Ok.—Creek Indians in this vicinity are resorting to ancient tribal customs in an attempt to obtain a rainfall.

One of their customs which has been widely followed in the last week, is to stake mud turtles on the edge of a stream just far enough away from the water so that it cannot reach it. It is the Indians' belief that the turtle despairing of their attempts to reach the water, invoke the aid of the "Great Spirit" to send rain so that the stream will be raised and brought to them.

Since the turtles were first staked out several rains have fallen. The Indians believe their prayers are being answered and they are fastening up more turtles to pray for a still greater rainfall.

Every time a man pays a bill he buys experience.

Millions of Swallows.

The swallows have returned and taken up their roosting places in the trees on South Front street and in the riggings of a three-mast schooner. There are millions of the birds in the flock. It will be remembered that about a year ago these birds roosted in several trees in the rear of Mr. Blumgart's store next to the Willenbrink boarding house until the trees were cut down, which caused the birds to seek other quarters.—New Bern Sun.

Summer Hog Killing.

A farmer living near Lumberton tried an experience with nitrate of soda last week that he will likely never want to try again. He says that he has always had good results with it as a top dresser on his crop, and determined to try it on something else. So at last one day when he had been putting some to his crops he decided to try his hogs with some. He mixed a little with some cotton seed meal and gave it to them, when lo and behold, 11 fine big hogs fell over dead.—Exchange.

Died.

Stuart Lindsay Carter, young son of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Carter passed away Sunday morning at 11:25 at the residence of his parents on East Main street, aged 11 months, 1 day. The little fellow has been sick with the whoopingcough and colitis ever since the 15th of last May. He made a very heroic effort to regain his health.—Washington Progress.

Newton, July 13.—A case that has attracted attention is that against Frank Fry, of Brookford. Several months ago he went through a mock marriage ceremony with a young Lawrence girl, fourteen years old, the daughter of his landlady, and the facts came out in the course of a few weeks. He was indicted for the crime and now the grand jury has found a true bill against him for a more serious offense, and he is held without bail until the next court.
