

IN THE MATTER OF MUZZLING DOGS

THE LAW IS AN UNJUST ONE.

More Attention to Vagrancy And Finances Would be Better.

Editor Reflector:

The board of aldermen have passed an ordinance that all dogs shall be muzzled, beginning August 1st, 1911, which seems to me to be a very unjust law for a town of this size. I have talked to several prominent doctors, and they have stated to me, that there has been practically no trouble from bites of dogs in their practice.

In other words, the State of North Carolina recognizes foot ball and base ball as good training for students. In my opinion base ball is the best game that can be played, with less danger, and more development for its students, but as to foot ball, that is more barbarous than prize fighting. In prize fighting it is man to man, but in foot ball there are 11 men in the game, and if there is a specially strong man on the team the balance of the 11, in order to win the game, will try to cripple or even kill him. That has been demonstrated by the games they have played in the last few years. I contend that more boys are killed by playing base ball and foot ball than have been killed by the bites of dogs, also the greatest per cent. of deaths, according to the number of people that participate in the pleasure, are from automobiles; still you allow automobiles, base ball and foot ball games to go on. I also notice that there is a vagrancy law in effect which is not enforced, which law applies to both black and white. In my opinion one of the worst curses that a community can have are a lot of idlers. An idle brain is the devil's work shop.

I went out the other day to employ some hands. I came by a negro cabin and saw a man sitting in the shade. He was too lazy to answer my questions, but his wife spoke up and said that he did not want to work. I drove about half a block further, and another negro told me that you could not hire that negro, that his wife was cooking for Mr. Fred Forbes. I expect I am boarding some of those negroes myself, who will not work because their wife is cooking for me. There are a lot of these classes in the town of Greenville, and I expect the reader is boarding some of these.

I think it will also be found that there are some white vagrants that ought to be dealt with. In my opinion this class of people are more dangerous to a community than 400 dogs, still nobody seems to try to enforce the law. You will hear some people say that this is a good law, because it will get rid of a lot of worthless curs. Don't you think that the people who own these curs think just as much of them as I do my fine bird dogs? But they have to take just such dogs as they can get, and they are just as much to them as my dogs, that I paid a big price for, are to me, as they guard their homes just as well.

You will find all hunters want to tax dogs, so there will be more game for their benefit, but they never look at the other side, that a poor man has a use for his dogs—to catch hogs, to guard his family while he is away from home.

While I am talking on this matter, I would like to say that there are only four counties in the State of North Carolina that levy taxes on dogs. The owners of dogs are like the owners of children. You seldom ever see the parents of children but what will say their children are the best in the community.

As I understand, the leader of this dog movement is a gentleman who was the leader of a movement to have cold drinks sold on Sunday, but I am glad he was defeated, as I cannot see any more reason for selling cold drinks on Sunday than selling whiskey on Sunday. If the dope fiend wants his dope on Sunday, let him buy it on Saturday, like the whiskey drinker has to do.

In my mind if the mayor and the board of aldermen would try to enforce the laws they have already made, instead of passing new ordinances, such as muzzling dogs, and pay more attention to the finances of the town, which is worth something to its citizens, they would be better representative people.

THE INVENTOR OF THE ELEVATOR

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO TODAY

One of The Most Useful Inventions of The Nineteenth Century.

BOSTON, Mass., August 3.—One hundred years ago today there was born in the little town of Halifax, Vt., a man whose inventive genius led the way for the erection of the skyscraping buildings that now distinguish every American city, and incidentally added millions of dollars to the value of real estate.

The man was Elisha G. Otis. His invention was the elevator, undoubtedly one of the most important and useful inventions of the nineteenth century. Without the facilities offered by the elevator for reaching any desired height the tall buildings of today, it is hardly necessary to state, would be wholly impracticable.

Otis began life as a farmer, but his inventive genius led him to turn his attention to mechanical pursuits. After engaging in various lines of manufacturing in Albany, Troy and one or two other places he finally located in Yonkers, where he was given charge of the erection of some buildings for a manufacturing company.

In erecting the buildings it became necessary to construct an elevator for use on the premises, and in connection with this Mr. Otis devised a plan to prevent the fall of the platform in case of the breaking of the hoisting cables. It was this safety device that brought the elevator into practical use.

Mr. Otis first demonstrated the safety utility of this invention at the International exposition held in New York in 1853. Within a few years thereafter the elevator system was introduced into public buildings. The old Fifth Avenue Hotel, which was torn down a few years ago, was the first to install an elevator and for a long time it was an object of much curiosity to all visitors to the metropolis.

Mr. Otis lived to see his invention come into general use not only in America, but throughout a large part of the world. He established a factory for the construction of his elevators in Yonkers, where he resided until his death in 1861. While his name will always be inseparably linked with his invention of the elevator he was fertile in other lines of invention and improvement, among his products being a machine for making blind staples, an automatic wood-turning machine, a steam plow and a rotary oven for use in the making of bread.

CONFEDERATE REUNION AT WILMINGTON

VETERANS GIVEN ROYAL TIME.

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N. C., Aug. 3.—The old Confederate Veterans of North Carolina, who are holding their annual convention at Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach, have taken the city as well as the beach, by storm. Approximately 2,000 of the old vets are here, led and presided over by General Julian S. Carr, of Durham, whose every appearance calls forth cheers of enthusiasm from the loyal remnant of the 127,000 North Carolinians who served to make North Carolina famous in the annals of history. Prominent among the visitors at Wrightsville Beach, may also be mentioned Adjutant General H. A. London and wife and Miss Bessie London, of Pittsboro. Miss London is a winsome and popular visitor at Wrightsville and numbers her friends here and in Wilmington by the score. Miss London is sponsor for the 2nd regiment, U. C. V.

Tonight, perhaps the largest dance of the season was given complimentary to the veterans and their families. Little Confederate pins were presented to each member of the delegation. The flute and drum corps, consisting of three members, the only survivors of the original corps, will consent to play at Lumina tonight, and received the unbounded acclaim of several thousand interested spectators. The beautiful building, Lumina, was decorated profusely with Confederate flags and emblems. In the center, overhanging the ball room, is a huge picture of the beloved Lee, which was unveiled during one of the feature dances. The picture was painted especially for this purpose by Mr. F. M. Walker, of Wilmington, and is a splendid likeness of the immortal leader of the Lost Cause. The veterans have been given the freedom of the beach. The hearts and homes of the management of the hotels and the residents at the beach, the freedom of the clubs, passage over the Tide Water Power Company's line, and in fact, every facility at Wrightsville, as well as the city of Wilmington, has been extended to them.

An interesting instance occurred yesterday just off the Seashore Hotel pier, when a party composed of ladies and gentlemen came up with a porpoise or sea-hog and harpooned him. Even after he was captured, it was some time before the party could get him ashore, as he weighed in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. The porpoise is very game and sometimes even a dangerous fish for small boats, and the capture of one of these representatives of the finny tribe by this means is almost unprecedented in this section.

Grifton came up Wednesday with a good delegation of rooters to join issues with Greenville at the local ball park, and what the visitors did for the home boys was a plenty. Ball Notes.

Grifton just put it right over Greenville Wednesday. That's what we made the wrong prediction for Greenville Wednesday. Grifton simply turned the joke, and did it cleverly.

That bunch of players Grifton sent up Wednesday are the real article, and they put up a game that was a game.

NEWS THAT IS OF INTEREST TO TAR HEELS

GATHERED FROM EXCHANGES.

And Briefly Told for The Reflector's Busy Readers.

SALISBURY.—A disastrous fire occurred at noon Tuesday in Boone township, Davidson county, just across the Yadkin river from the toll bridge which connects Rowan and Davidson, when the magnificent country residence and home of Mr. H. Clay Grubb was reduced to ashes, the fire originated overhead in the kitchen. The residence was destroyed, also the private school building and large barns, as was also the greater part of the household furniture and a lot of feedstuffs. Mr. Grubb had one of the finest country residences in the south, elaborately furnished, and the loss will reach probably $25,000. It is learned that something like $11,000 insurance was carried. In the building was a complete library, one of the best in this section.

REIDSVILLE.—Elder L. H. Hardy, who was convicted of contempt of court by Recorder Humphries, of the Reidsville Recorder's court, some time ago, sentence upon whom was suspended, appealed to the Superior court and the case was tried before Judge Lyon today. Judge Lyon held that the article published by Elder Hardy, though rather harsh, was not in contempt of court and the verdict of the lower court was set aside.

WASHINGTON AWAITS ADMIRAL TOGO

TO PAY RESPECTS TO PRES. TAFT

The Stay in Washington Will End Next Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 3.—Chandler Hale, third assistant secretary of state, and Captain Potts and Lieutenant Cook, of the navy, have gone to New York to receive Admiral Togo, the celebrated Japanese naval commander, who is a passenger on the Lusitania, which is due to reach port at a late hour tonight or early tomorrow morning. Secretary Hale and the two naval officers have been detailed as aides to the Japanese admiral and will accompany him wherever he goes during his brief stay in the United States.

According to present plans Admiral Togo will come to Washington immediately upon his arrival in the county to pay his respects to President Taft. He will remain in the capital four days, during which time he will be elaborately entertained. President Taft will give a big dinner in his honor at the White House Saturday evening. Baron Uchida, the Japanese ambassador, will entertain his famous countryman at dinner Sunday evening and on the two evenings following similar functions will be given by Secretary of State Knox and Secretary of Navy Meyer.

The admiral will visit the Washington navy yard and will probably go to Annapolis to inspect the naval academy. A trip to Mt. Vernon is another feature of the programme.

The stay in Washington will end at noon next Wednesday, when Admiral Togo and his party will depart for Philadelphia. Thursday will be spent in the City of Brotherly Love. Then will come a visit of five days in New York City. The big feature of the entertainment program in the metropolis will be an elaborate dinner to be given by the Japanese Society of New York.

From New York Admiral Togo will proceed to Boston arriving there on August 16. From Boston it is expected the party will go direct to Niagara Falls, where the American escort will say good-by to the distinguished visitor, who will go from the falls to Montreal to begin the journey across Canada to Vancouver from which point he is to sail for home.

And a man named Gildewell, note the name, steps in and takes a pass at the governor.

The article "Do you stop to think?" which we copy elsewhere from the Wilmington Dispatch is one of the best we have read. It is reproduced in the hope that every person who reads it will be profited thereby.

The health officer of the city of Richmond, after a close study of mortuary statistics in cities, declares that the American negro is slowly and steadily dying out and will become almost extinct in the twenty-fifth century. He says that 3.8 per cent of Richmond's population are negroes, that they furnish 96 per cent of the deaths, and the birth rate is equally large against that race.

The Squirrel.

In many of the towns where the squirrel has been introduced, the little animal has proved a pest. In Wilmington owners of lots in the cemetery made a great outcry on account of the depredation on flowers and shrubbery. One Charlotte householder who has a large and attractive home, finds it impossible to indulge in the pleasure of sun-flower growing because of the fondness of the squirrel for the sun-flower seed. The city council of Watertown, N. Y., is talking of repealing the ordinance protecting the squirrels because of the havoc they have made under good treatment. People have fed and petted them until they have become a nuisance. They gnaw holes through shingled roofs, invade attics, cellars and pantries, steal food, rob birds' nests, drive away song birds and in numerous other ways demonstrate that they can become a pest. In a little digression on the squirrel, The Chicago Record-Herald thinks it a pity that like many people "he cannot be encouraged to live his own life without taking advantage of his neighbors. He is a graceful creature as he frisks over lawns and up and down trees, but it must be confessed that he abuses privileges. His beauty, however, depends largely on his bushy tail, and when stripped of that ornament, or when his tail is closely shorn he looks unpleasantly like a rat. His habits, furthermore, are like the rat's. Perhaps his worst offense is that he takes possession of bird houses and makes it impossible to have song birds near a home. He is noisy and quarrelsome, like the English sparrow." It is to be observed, however, that the squirrel community generally remains at a fixed status. Cholera and other diseases keep the squirrel population within bounds. The only place where the squirrel thrives, seldom dies and always multiplies is the capitol square, in Richmond.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Heyburn.

The one man in our public life who deserves the sympathy rather than the censure of the public is Heyburn the bitter senator from Idaho. He waves the bloody shirt above his head and vents his spleen upon the graves of the Confederate dead, not for political capital, for there is no political capital in it, but because it is his nature and he is glad when he is mad. Some men are born that way. The surprising thing to us is that the legislature of any state in the Union will send such a creature to the senate of the United States. A bill appropriated $100,000 for a Confederate naval monument was the occasion of the outburst from Heyburn. His language was coarse and violent. There could be no objections to his opposition to the bill. He has a perfect right to his views upon any public question and no man has a right to say him nay. It is his language and spirit that offend. He delights to indulge in diatribes and to cast aspersion upon the dead. He is bound to be a miserable man, for his heart is a fountain of hate. Senator Taylor of Tennessee replying to the frothy Heyburn used this language: "The war is over. Time has pulled down the forest and healed the wounds. The men who wore the gray delight to honor the men who wore the blue; but they do not delight to honor the men who never smelt powder and who stand here and unlimber their batteries of bitterness against the simple proposal to erect monuments to Southern heroes."—Charity and Children.

Do You Stop To Think?

Thoughtlessness is a well meaning blunder. It is often found within the make-up of loved one or friend, and for that reason it is hypocritical and peculiarly of great danger. The friend does not know he possesses it, of course, which adds to the peril. It is no respecter of persons. It turns on its owner as quickly and as feendishly as upon any one else. Hiding behind good intentions, lurking just outside the circle of sunshine and cooing in the sweetest, most alluring strain it gets the opportunity to do damage and it frequently accepts the golden chance to turn brightness into darkness, to make the sound of joy die away in a shriek of anguish, to tear flowers from the path, to suddenly transfix the smiling countenance with horror. It glides softly and unseen among the green grass of life and, with small, gleaming, though unperceived green eyes greedily watches children at play, happy mothers singing over rocking cradles, and contented fathers greeting little ones with bearish hug and tenderly kissing their helpmates. Then, in the twinkling of an eye, without even the faintest rattle, it strikes. Like a bolt of lightning from a clear sky it shoots. Sometimes it is only a shock, but at others a permanent blight. There are times when the heart is only saddened for a brief time, but there are others when the heart strings are torn asunder and, quivering and bleeding, are dragged in the dust of sorrow; sometimes in the mire of shame. Thoughtlessness has chased the sunshine from many homes. Thoughtlessness of the wife has goaded the husband to a misunderstanding and "fins" has been written in tear drops; occasionally in letters of blood. Touches of thoughtlessness have made black brooding and have led to distrust. "Oh, if I only had thought," has been the echo of many an ill-spent life. Many a woman and many a man, in the days of decaying hope, of dying ambition and standing at the grave of love, have piteously cried it, and many a young man and young woman, as their life boat was swept beyond the reach of outstretched hands of an old mother, to be tossed by the furious gale of scorn upon the roaring and violently tumultuous sea of degradation, have wailed it. Thoughtlessness has blasted hope, has wrecked happiness, has destroyed life. It is possessed of many forms and moves in strange ways. It is of many guises and is treacherous because it is generally arrayed in the shining raiment of that which means to do right, which wants to help. Its chances are great; its victims many. But it can be conquered. The wife can put it under heel; the husband can shackle it. Today, tomorrow and the next day the husband and wife can stop and think before letting the bitter word that arises to their lips go forth. They can stop and ponder before letting a fiery temper escape. And this same husband and wife can be more thoughtful of each other. They can be thoughtful of each other's comfort, of each other's happiness. They can be thoughtful enough, too, to tempt the other to envy and jealousy, and, above all else, to discontent. The latter furnishes a fertile field for the growing of weeds. The wife who can smile through her wants, knowing that the husband cannot meet them, is going to be happier in the long run, and the man who will push aside some unnecessary pleasures so that the wife and children may have more is going to have his heart made brighter by more sunshine in the home.

The young man and young woman must also be thoughtful. They must think. The turn of the tide is now. It costs nothing to think now, but it may cost untold mental anguish and physical suffering not to do so.

The parent, too, should think for the children. Too often does the thoughtlessness of a parent dig a pitfall directly in front of the child. The thoughtlessness of a parent frequently drags the child to the brink and, the next moment, there is a scream and a thud; thoughtlessness throws off its disguise and grins hideously, while the parent's heart is torn into shreds. Thoughtlessly the mother has let the child play with matches, or has left the little one at home alone. Last week in West Durham thoughtlessness suddenly snared its hand across a happy home and left poignant grief in its wake. A mother, just as tender as any other mother and with just as devoted a heart, thoughtlessly directed her 4-year-old child to the bureau to get a dose of castoria. The child obeyed directions, but in its innocence picked up the wrong bottle and drank poison. Death followed. Of course, you will say that mother was a fool, and no other would have done such a thing. But she was not a fool. She was just thoughtless. No one else may ever do the same kind of act, but they will do other thoughtless ones, and some of them will be just as fatal. Are you in the thoughtless class?—Wilmington Dispatch.

What Caesar Did.

When Caesar took an eastward ride what was the thing that he did to make them feel at home? Did he increase the people's loads and liberty forbid? No, he dug in and built good roads—that's what Caesar did.

Did Caesar put the iron heel upon the foeman's breast, or did he try to make them feel the Roman rule was best? What did he do to make them glad he'd come their midst amid? He built good roads in place of bad—that's what old Caesar did.

He built good roads from hill to hill, good roads from vale to vale; he ran a good roads movement till old Rome got all the kale. He told the folks to buy at home, built roads their hills amid, until all roads led up to Rome—that's what old Caesar did.

If any town would make the town the center of the map, where folks will come and settle down and live in plenty's lap, if any town it's own abodes of poverty would rid, let it get out and build good roads—just like old Caesar did.—American Lumberman.

SHE GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Physicians Failed To Help Mrs. Green, But She Finally Found Relief in Cardui.

Meets, Va.—Mrs. J. C. Green of this place, says: "I suffered with womanly troubles so that I could hardly sit up. Two of the best doctors in our town treated me, and I tried different medicines, until I gave up all hope of ever getting well.

One day, I decided to try some Cardui. It did so much for me that I ordered some more, and it cured me! Today, I feel as well as I ever did in my life.

The pains and the trouble are all gone. I feel like another person in every way. I wish every sufferer could know what Cardui will do for sick women."

A few doses of Cardui at the right time, will save many a big doctor bill, by preventing serious sickness.

It tones up the nervous system, and helps make pale cheeks fresh and rosy. Thousands of weak women have been restored to health and happiness by using Cardui. Suppose you try it. It may be just the medicine you need.

A BANK ACCOUNT IS A BEACON LIGHT T'WILL GUIDE YOU THROUGH FINANCIAL STORMS

In the year 1626 Peter Minuit bought the whole island on which New York City—now worth four thousand million dollars is built. He paid $24 for the island. Had he put out that $24 at 4 per cent. compound interest in 1626 it would now amount to as much as the present value of New York City.

Living Confederate Generals.

When it is considered that only 25 of the 425 general officers appointed in the Confederate army by President Davis are now living, the people begin to realize how few are remaining of the army that fought in behalf of the beloved southland. Brigadier General Marcus J. Wright, of the war department, who was himself to be the best authority upon the subject has compelled and given for publication the following list of the living Confederate generals:

Lieutenant general—Simon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky, 88 years old, living at Munfordville, Ky.
Major generals—Robert Fredrick Hoke, of North Carolina, 74 years old, living at Raleigh; George Washington Curtis Lee, of Virginia, son of General Robert E. Lee, 79 years old, living at Ravensworth, Va.; Lunsford Lindsay Lomax, of Virginia, 76 years old, living at Gettysburg, Pa., and Camillus J. Polignac, of France, now living at Radmansdorf Podwein, Austria.
Brigadier generals—Frances Marion Crockrell, of Missouri, 77 years old, living in Washington, D. C.; William Ruffin Cox, of North Carolina, 79 years old, living at Richmond, Va.; Julius A. DeLaguel, of Virginia, living at Alexandria, Va.; Henry B. Davidson, of Tennessee; Basil W. Dyke, of Kentucky, living at Louisville, Ky.; Samuel W. Ferguson, of Mississippi, living at Greenville, Miss.; Daniel C. Govan, of Arkansas, living at Memphis, Tenn.; James M. Goggin, of Virginia; William W. Kirkland, of North Carolina; Evander McIver Law, 73 years old, of Alabama, living at Bartow, Fla.; Thomas Muldrop Logan, of South Carolina, 71 years old, living at Richmond, Va.; John McCausland, of Virginia, living at Point Pleasant, W. Va.; Dandridge McRae, of Arkansas; William McCoomb, of Tennessee; Francis Tillin Nichols, of Louisiana, 77 years old, living at New Orleans; Roger A. Pryor, of Virginia, 83 years old, living in New York city; James P. Simms, of Georgia; George Washington Gordon, of Tennessee, 75 years old, living at Memphis, Tenn.; Robert Daniel Johnston, of North Carolina, 74 years old, living at Montgomery, Ala., and Marcus Joseph Wright, of Tennessee, 80 years old, living in Washington, D. C.—Durham Sun.

Some nearby counties are reporting the first open boll of cotton. Today one dog was seen wearing a muzzle sideways. Sooner or later the finger of scorn comes to the point. The way out of trouble is rougher than the way in.

"BACK HOME" MOVEMENT.

The Western States States Trying to Choke It Off.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 3.—As a result of the "Back Home" movement, it is estimated that 50,000 people will leave Washington and Oregon this fall for the South and East. Reports coming to this city from California, Idaho and Montana say that the movement is spreading rapidly in these states. This intelligence is obtained from men traveling out of Seattle and those stopping here. The newspapers, for obvious reasons, "kill" all stories about it, but are raising a mighty shout for more advertising by the railroads and commercial clubs. It is believed here that the railroads of the West and Canada can "choke off" the publicity given the movement by distributing heavy advertising contracts among the newspapers, especially in the South and East.

The "Back Home" circulars and literature received here in the West are passed from one to another until they are worn out. Sometimes one circular will be mailed and re-mailed a hundred times, and in this way interest continues to grow. Here in the city "Back Home" has become a by-word. I have heard men here say that it is worth a hundred million dollars to the South if the movement is pressed for all it is worth. It is generally admitted even by the "land sharks" and boomers of the West, as being a great "hit," but they say the people of the South are too slow to take full advantage of it.

New York Yacht Cruise.

NEW YORK, August 3.—Glen Cove's picturesque harbor was the rendezvous today for a fleet of the finest and fastest sailing and steam yachts in the United States, assembled to take part in the annual cruise of the New York Yacht Club to Newport. The commodore will order the squadron under way early tomorrow morning for the first run of the cruise from Glen Cove to Morris Cove, where the night will be spent. There also will be the customary over-Sunday stop at New London. Newport will be reached Wednesday. The race for the Astor Cup takes place Thursday, and that for the King's Cup on the following day.

Birthday of Norway's King.

CHRISTIANIA, Aug. 3.—Flags were displayed and the customary salutes fired today in celebration of the thirty-eighth birthday anniversary of King Haakon VII. The king and queen have but recently returned from England, where they were prominent participants in the coronation festivities.

The World's Greatest Waterfall.

Of the world's greatest waterfall, Dr. Richard Herring, German geographer, finds 3 pre-eminent in greatness. The Victoria Falls, of the Zambesi, in Rhodesia, discovered by Livingstone in 1885, are 386 feet high and more than a mile wide, and are estimated to be capable of applying fully 35,000,000 horse-power. The aggregate water-power of Europe cannot greatly exceed this amount. The second largest waterfall is not Niagara, but a little known fall of the Iguazu river, on the boundary between Brazil and Argentina, with a height of 213 feet, a width of nearly two miles, and a horse-power estimated at about 14,000,000. This is about twice the power of Niagara Falls, which are 164 feet high and a little less than a mile wide. The industrial menace of Niagara Falls is a source of much concern, and a small beginning in the case of Iguazu Falls is likely to be protected as a scenic wonder. The highest fall the world—the Yosemite Falls in California, with a descent of 2,600 feet in three successive stages—is secured against power-station invasion as a part of the national park created in 1864. One of the greatest potential sources of water-power is the Congo river, with 16 times the volume of the Nile. At the Stanley Falls it has a total descent of 164 feet in seven rapids, with a width of 4,000 feet; and be-
