NOTES FROM WAKE FOREST COLLEGE

Wake Forest Defeats Roanoke in Football Game

DEBATE HELD IN WINGATE HALL

Subject That the South Should Encourage the Settlement Within Her Borders of Such Immigrants as Are Lawfully Admitted Into the United States.

WAKE FOREST, Oct. 25.—Before a large audience of students and visitors there was held in the Wingate Memorial hall last Friday evening the first junior-sophomore debate. This is a new thing in the debating activity of the college and was instituted to correspond to the regular anniversary debate, which is held in February. Its object is to furnish further opportunity for the development of public speech. Those eligible are juniors and sophomores, and the speakers are regularly elected by the two societies.

President was A. J. Hutchens, of the Euzelian Society, while O. P. Campbell, of the Philomathesian Society, occupied the chair of secretary. The judges for the occasion were Prof. J. B. Hubbel, Prof. E. W. Timberlake, and Dr. R. M. Squires.

W. C. Willis was the first speaker on the affirmative. He clearly stated the question, outlining the argument of his side and basing his speech on the fact that the question as stated by the query was not one of getting new immigrants into this country, but making use of those who are already lawfully admitted into the United States. He dealt on the problem of the slums in its relation to immigration. Mr. Ellis opened and closed the discussion. In his rejoinder he said in part: "These gentlemen to my right have come to you with a eulogy on the Anglo-Saxon blood. We admit that this falls with pleasing effect upon the ears of a Southerner, but ladies and gentlemen, if they had proved that the South were populated with angels, they have not proved, and so long as human beings respect the laws of a just God, they will never prove, that the people of the South can be justified in helping make laws that allow immigration to come to our shores, then rearing back on their 'holier-than-thou' haunches, hugging an age-worn idol of an Anglo-Saxon ancestry, boasting of it, as if it within itself were the crowning 'Dago' and 'Sheeny' at every passer-by who happens to not have blue eyes and fair skin, while the immigrant who comes to the United States at our invitation to drift to the pig-tail alleys and hell's half-acres of the slums of the cities near the ports of entrance."

V. C. McGuire was the first speaker of the negative. He made the points that the class of immigrants that come to the United States are not unstable, that they are not needed, and that they would even be detrimental to the agricultural and general interests of the South. He strengthened his argument by concrete illustration.

J. W. Freeman closed the main speech for the affirmative. Taking up the economic phase of the question, he dealt on the South's need of the immigrant. He spoke of the necessity for more laborers in the South and of the need of a better class of laborers. He gave instances to show wherein the problem could be solved by the proper encouragement of stable immigrants.

E. P. Yates was the last speaker for the negative. He showed that there is no place for the immigrant in the political life of the South; that the presence of such foreigners as commonly come to America would not aid in the social development of the South, and that they would set for us a low standard of morality, character, and religion.

The judges then rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative.

The marshals for this occasion were C. Farrell, J. E. Parker, A. R. Phillips, and E. P. Stillwell.

Last Saturday in a hard fought game of football between Roanoke College and Wake Forest, Wake Forest defeated the visiting team by a score of 53 to 0. The Wake Forest team outclassed the visiting team in every respect, and there was no cause to fear after the first two min-

BERLIN CONCERNED OVER LUITPOLD'S ILLNESS

HE IS NOW IN HIS 91st YEAR.

Has Been the Actual Sovereign of Bavaria for a Quarter of a Century.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—The serious illness of Prince Luitpold, the regent of Bavaria, is a cause for considerable anxiety in official circles in Berlin as well as in Munich. In view of his great age—he is now in his ninety-first year—it is feared that the prince will not recover from his present attack of acute bronchitis.

The passing of Bavaria's "Grand Old Man" will be sincerely regretted by all who have the welfare of the German empire at heart. For a quarter of a century, Luitpold has been the actual sovereign of Bavaria. The insane King Otto, his nephew, has been all this time under restraint. Prince Luitpold, a man of solid abilities, has carried on the business of the state to the general satisfaction. Considering the constant jealousy with which Bavaria, the second German state in population and resources, regards Prussia, the regent has had a delicate task at times, but he has always been equal to it, and his influence has been exerted for the preservation of that "unity" which is essential to the wellbeing of Germany.

Prince Luitpold has led an active and eventful life ever since 1835, when he began his active service in the army. He fought against the Prussians in the war of 1866 and with them against France five years later. It was he who overcame the hesitation of his eccentric nephew, King Louis, and induced him to invite King William, of Prussia, to assume the crown and title of German Emperor. Luitpold was chosen by the rulers of German states to submit to King William the German imperial crown, and ever since that time Luitpold has never for a moment wavered in his loyalty to the German Empire.

More than twenty years after the establishment of the empire the divergence of views between the two sections of Northern and Southern Germany became so pronounced that the Hohenzollerns felt the need of placating Southern German sentiment by some conspicuous appointment that appealed to its pride. When in 1894 Prince Hohenlohe, a distinguished Bavarian, was called to the chancellorship of the empire, the appointment was less a tribute to his high abilities than a concession to Bavaria and the neighboring states in the South. Bavaria was proud of Prince Hohenlohe and his appointment gratified both national and progressive sentiments. Correspondingly, it rendered Prince Luitpold's work easier.

FATHER GIVES HIS BLOOD.

To Save The Life of His Child—Both Recovering.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 24.—To save the life of Otis, his 7-year-old son, J. G. Harris, a farmer residing near Vaughan, N. C., gave up more than a pint of his blood at Memorial hospital here by means of the operation known as transfusion in medical science. Following the operation, which occurred yesterday, the father left for home today, assured that his child was doing nicely and would likely recover as result of the sacrifice he made.

Convalescent from typhoid fever, Otis Harris was brought to the Richmond hospital early last week by his mother to be treated for a gangrenous affection of the mouth resulting from general debility and emaciation. The surgeons, while confident the case was curable by the skillful treatment, said that the child should be saturated with additional blood before anything could be done. Returning home, Mrs. Harris reported the views of the surgeons to her husband, who immediately determined to come to Richmond for the purpose of giving up his blood. Placed on a table beside his child an artery in the father's right forearm was severed and sutured to an artery in the arm of the boy, thus permitting the strong life-blood of the man to flow freely into the system of the child.

Harris was put to bed after the operation, but he arose today strong and vigorous once more.

TO DISCUSS SOCIAL CENTER IDEA

GOVERNOR WOODROW WILSON

Will Deliver The Opening Address Tonight.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 25.—With an opening address by Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, on "The Need of Citizenship Organization," the most notable conference ever held in America to consider the problems of the social center movement gets under way here tonight for a three days' session. Hundreds of delegates arrived today to take part in the conference, which meets under the joint auspices of the extension department of the University of Wisconsin and the Social Center Association of America.

The proceedings are certain to attract widespread attention, if for no other reason than that the conference is the first national gathering ever held for the purpose of furthering the social center movement. If the hopes of those interested in the movement are fulfilled the near future will see every school house in the country made a public meeting place for non-partisan gatherings of citizens for the presentation and discussion of public questions and for other social, civic or recreational activities.

In addition to Governor Wilson the prominent speakers to be heard at the several sessions include Senator Moses Clapp, of Minnesota; Dean H. L. Russell, of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin; Clarence A. Perry, of the Russel Sage Foundation; Dr. John R. Commons, of the Wisconsin Industrial Commission; Livy S. Richard, of Boston; and Dr. G. E. Young, health commissioner of Chicago.

The conference will conclude Saturday evening with a banquet at which toasts will be responded to by William Allen White, Colonel S. S. McClure, Dr. Josiah Strong, Miss Zona Gale, Frank P. Walsh and Mrs. David Kirk, the first woman school superintendent in America.

W. C. T. U. MEETS FRIDAY.

The Sessions Will Continue Until Next Wednesday.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 25.—The national officers and the headquarters working force of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union arrived in Milwaukee today to take up the final work of preparations for the thirty-eighth annual convention of the organization which is to begin its sessions here Friday. It is estimated that 1,500 delegates and several hundred visitors will be in attendance. According to custom, tomorrow, the day preceding the opening of the convention, has been designated a day of prayer.

Mrs. Lillian M. H. Stevens, of Maine, the national president, will call the convention to order and deliver her annual address at the opening session in the auditorium Friday evening. The sessions will continue until next Wednesday. The discussion of plans for a closer alliance and co-operation of the temperance organizations throughout the world will be a leading feature of the convention. Legislation for the better regulation of child and woman labor also will receive considerable attention.

FINE SINGING.

Mr. Armstrong at The Galey Delights Audience.

Last night's program at the Galey Theatre was a big success and was highly appreciated by the vast audience.

The special feature was Mr. Armstrong's singing. He is a singer that possesses a great amount of talent. He is a graduate from the Boston Conservatory of Music. The song, "The Day That You Grew Colder," was rendered in good style, and he justly deserved the round of applause that was given him. Tonight he will sing a new song, entitled "When I Woke Up This Morning She Was Gone." This song tells a story of a dissatisfied man and wife. Don't fail to hear it. Some rag. Mr. Armstrong will be with us two weeks. His singing alone is well worth the price of admission. Hear him tonight. See third page for program.

If a man hasn't any sense some woman is sure to think he is sentimental.

CAN WE REALLY STOP WORRYING?

(Number Three).

How Certain Proverbs Have Actually Done Harm.

Many a good old saying, proverbial for its truthfulness, when properly understood, has resulted in destroying the peace and happiness of those who have come to worry over its too literal fulfillment. Take such a proverb as "Look before you leap." This old saying certainly contains good advice, yet I have known a number of earnest men and women who have long remained stationary in their life plans, looking with such care and scrutiny over the present and the future that they have failed to take advance steps; they have been altogether too fearful to leap, they would not dare take a chance, they were afraid of the risk. Old age is creeping upon them, and their careers have been ruined by a too literal interpretation and overregard for such a good proverb.

Another of the old proverbs responsible for causing much worry is the oft-repeated saying, "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well." While this proverb contains sound and wholesome advice for every young man and woman it must be remembered that every day of our lives we are called upon to perform a large number of wholly unessential tasks, tasks which are but temporary scaffolding, as it were, compared to the more important character we are building. It is true that these minor tasks must be done with sufficient care so as not to endanger the real structure we are erecting; nevertheless it would be a great waste of energy to try carefully to square polish and paint the scaffolding which stands but today, and tomorrow is thrown away.

This is true of much of our common work. Each day's efforts should be wisely divided up into the essential and the unessential, and it should be no occasion for worry and self-reproach that some trifle has to be slighted or altogether neglected, as we review the events of the day in its closing hours. If the brick and mortar you have put into the real character structure are sound and good, if your wall has been raised up true to the plumb, the miscarriage of some detail should not distress nor worry you.

Many conscientious young people have worried altogether too much over such teaching as "Be sure you are right, then go ahead." Owing to their peculiar mental makeup, their naturally diffident and hesitating disposition, they can never be quite sure that they are absolutely right, and so they never go ahead. For years they remain stationary in their plans, first contemplating one thing, then another, and then pretty soon they begin seriously to worry because they have not gone ahead.

And so we see that the misunderstanding and misinterpretation of even good and true teaching may lead to such a one-sided and extreme regard for truth and duty as to create a condition of mental uneasiness and dissatisfaction eventually leading to chronic worry with all its evil effects upon mind, soul and body.

EDUCATIONAL DAY AT FAIR.

Friday, November 3rd, the second and last day of the Pitt county fair, is to be made a special educational day. At 11 o'clock on that day Hon. J. Y. Joyner, state superintendent of public instruction, will deliver an address, and County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale has requested every public school in the county to close for that day and observe it as a school holiday by all of the teachers and pupils coming to the fair. He requests also that all teachers who have not begun their schools at this time will go to the districts in which they are to teach and get these children also to attend the fair. After the schools have reached Greenville that morning they will be formed in a procession at Five Points and headed by a band of music will march to the Star warehouse in which the fair is to be held. Such a procession as the schools of Pitt county can make will be worth going miles to see. The success of this, however, depends upon how the people respond to the request that has been made of them to be present.

The Reflector wants to impress upon the parents of the county the educational value such a day will be to their children and to urge them to bring their children. It not only gives them the opportunity of hearing the state superintendent, but they can see and observe what their county is doing in the way of agriculture, stock and poultry raising. The exhibits will be an inspiration to them. Then, too, they can come in contact with pupils of other schools, and this will be a help to them. Besides this they can visit the new court house, the Training school, and see what their county has in these. We hope to see a great gathering of school children in Greenville on the school day of the fair.

That you can never tell how the speculation in cotton is going to wind up, is shown in the bankruptcy into which O. J. Heath & Co., of Charlotte, has gone. This was one of the largest cotton broker firms in the South. The liabilities are computed around a million dollars with assets only about one-fifth as much. Banks in Charlotte and neighboring towns and in Wilmington are among the creditors. A big failure like this works harm to business.

Durham officials put the ban on Beulah Binford and Beattie pictures being shown in that town, and the manager of the picture show threatened to shoot the policeman who went to stop his show. No better evidence than this can be advanced for the wisdom in the suppression of such pictures. If they make a matured man want to commit murder, they surely cannot make a good impression on

JOY VS. GLOOM.

The Daily Reflector is publishing a series of articles reprinted from the Ladies' Home Journal. They have to do with people who worry and the immediate effect of their worryment. Worry is the eternal source of cranks, grouches, "Gloomy Gusses" and general handlers of the damp blanket, a crowd of miserable, self-suggested victims of fate, luck, predestination and a few other "hoodos," all products of their depressed imagination. It is a pity that science has not, as yet, found time to attend to these sick people. No doubt, in time some treatment will be devised to relieve the worriers of their self-imposed burden, and we will have a great deal of comfort, even of the sun forgets to show up now and then. It would seem that atmospheric and climatic conditions affect the mind to an alarming condition. Thus, for instance, we have the people living in the southern countries brimful with cheer, but not so brimful of energy, whilst on the other hand northerners appear at almost all times, with a halo of gloom over their heads, but always on the look-out for some sort of occupation to put "dull care" in the background. A very good instance of the powerful influence of the weather on weak minds is furnished yearly throughout the northern part of the country. A wave of crime fairly sweeps the northern states, and the police records show that the long, terrible, humid days of July and August are their busiest. Minds kept on the go by worryment completely surrender to the depressing climatic conditions and suicide upon suicide and crime upon crime is perpetrated as a consequence. But, although weather conditions play a prominent part in a worrier's progress to making of him an objectionable member of society, the weather should not be charged with the whole amount of the bill.

Much as a man with delirium tremens does a worrier behave. The sufferer of what may be called "drunkard's climax" is after all an original worrier. He went to the saloon, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, to forget something which troubled him. His mind must have been already weak, or he would not have thought of conquering "dull care" in that wise. A little something gone wrong, a disappointment, or perhaps only a stomach a little out of order, originated a depression on his mind. Instead of looking for sunnier fields in which he might find a cure for his ailment, he takes the "easiest way" and you have him starting down the toboggan. After this start everything is ridiculously easy for the worrier. A series of circumstances, that have no connection whatever, but is called a series because they must forcibly succeed each other is linked by him and interpreted by his weak mind to give him the blackest outlook. An ant-hill of infinitesimals, if any importance is turned over in his mind and like a snowball, rolled down hill, keeps growing and growing, until a ponderous mountain results. The repeats itself with a frequency in direct proportion to the awkwardness of the sufferer's mind. After a while the worrier feels very much like the Hercules of mythology; the responsibility of the world rests entirely upon his own particular shoulders. Naturally so much weight makes his shoulder stoop. So much to think about exhausts his brain-power and he early becomes a wreck, both physically and mentally. For it is the weakest weakness of the worrier to assume all responsibilities. This does not mean that the worrier likes to hear other people's worries. Far from it. Of all things, he is not sympathetic. He may like to hear about them. But this only to look them over and assimilate them, if worth the trouble.

We all know to what extent is the man who worries a pest to those with whom he comes in contact. We dislike to have him around. Perhaps we are afraid of infection, and well may we be. Worry is a most dangerous disease and we would like to see a cure for it. The only known remedy for worry at the present time is joy and to those that know, joy is the cheapest medicine on the market. You don't need to buy it and you can find it in everything on earth, if you only look for it. Mr. Tom Powers the delightful cartoonist of the New York American, has lately been making a study of the question of worry and joy—or rather gloom and joy, as he puts it—in his humorous manner he has personified, for his admirers' benefit, both these states of mind. Gloom is an undersized grouch, with melancholy, bushy whiskers and a neck-to-necks overcoat, whilst joy is a funny little fellow, with a pleasant grin, a single hair curling on his head, and light raiment, which bespeaks the terrestrial proclivities of the wearer. If you have not seen these two little persons, which have so much to do in our short passage through this world you ought to make it a point to look for them. If you are a grouch it will make you ashamed to be one any longer—if you have been marching in the army of joy, you will be prouder than ever of your own disposition.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Increasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the system passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot dry skin, rheumatic pains, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

T. R. Moore, 918 Evans street Greenville, N. C., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, for I have used them with the greatest benefit. I was troubled by a lameness in my back and my kidneys did not do their work as they should. I got Doan's Kidney Pills from the John L. Wooten Drug Co. and I had not used them long before I received relief. I can say that this remedy acts just as represented."

Thoughts at 8 a. m.

I love to think of boyhood days when
I the turkeys fed;
I used to fix their breakfast-food ere
yet the sky was red.
I used to dry-shampoo the horse and
manicure the cow;
I love to lie in bed and think I needn't
do it now.

I love to think of boyhood days when I rose at four
And fetched the water from the well,
a hundred pails or more.
And then I dragged the harrow out
and harnessed up the plow;

I love to lie in bed and think I needn't
do it now.
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Messrs. D. J. and L. R. Whichard went to Raleigh today to attend the Whichard-Carroll marriage.

Mrs. W. T. Crawford, of Williamston, who has been visiting Mrs. E. H.
Shelburn, returned home Tuesday evening.

Mr. J. B. Kittrell left this morning for Littleton.

Miss Alice Blow returned this morning
from Washington.

Born.

L. P. Dudley, a daughter.

Well Dressed Ladies.

Have you noticed the well dressed ladies on our streets? Observe their splendid fitting coat suits and latest style hats and bear in mind that this is the kind that come from Munford's big store. He was never better prepared than now to fit out the ladies in the very best tailor-made suits and ready-to-wear garments. And in millinery his store is Greenville's fashion center. In this department skilled milliners are employed who know how to fill orders to the greatest satisfaction of the purchaser. The lady who buys her outfit at Munford's does so with the assurance that she is getting the best to be had.

necessary for overcoming natural body waste.

Tablets in your vest pocket, or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal and prove our assertion that indigestion will not bother
you.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Pick Ups and Hand-me Downs.

Just two months to Christmas.
Prayer meetings in the churches tonight.
It is an every day occurrence that there are big sales and high prices
on the Greenville tobacco market.
Some business men are losing the opportunity to get more trade in neglecting to advertise.

Stockholders' Meeting.

The stockholders of the Greenville baseball park are requested to meet at the city hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

PITT COUNTY FAIR.

Governing Board And Committee Meet Friday.

The governing board and county committees of Pitt County Fair Association will meet here Friday morning. This will probably be the last meeting before the fair and it is important that all of the governing board and committees be present. At this meeting the final arrangements for the fair will be made and directors will be assigned to the different departments of the exhibits.
There is every indication that the fair is going to be a great success.
People are coming from all sections of the county and there will be many of all kinds of exhibits.

REMEMBER

Dr. Rankin's Lecture Next Wednesday Evening.

The patrons of the graded school,
and all other persons interested, are asked to keep in mind Dr. Rankin's lecture in the graded school building at eight o'clock next Wednesday evening.
The subject of the lecture will be "The Relation of Health to Education."

Dr. Rankin is secretary of the State Board of Health. He is a good speaker and an interesting lecturer. It is not often that we can have men of the type of ability and attainments of Dr. Rankin in our midst. The address will be well worth hearing; and it will be a big mistake on the part of the people who fail to hear the address if it is so that they can attend.

Please remember that the lecture will not be limited to the disease of school children. The speaker will discuss public health and sanitation, a topic that touches very closely the lives of all of us.

Come out and hear Dr. Rankin.
Anyone who has ever heard him will tell you that his lectures are good,
and highly instructive and beneficial.

H. B. SMITH,
Superintendent of Schools.

Averts Awful Tragedy.

Timely advice given Mrs. C. Willoughby, of Marengo Wis., (R. No. 1) prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightful cough was a "consumption"
cough and could do little to help her.
After many remedies failed, her aunt urged her to take Dr. King's New Discovery. "I have been using it for some time," she wrote, "and the awful cough has almost gone. It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." This matchless medicine has no equal for throat and lung troubles. Price 50 cents and $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Here is a question for lyceums to discuss this winter: "How much is enough?"

Sand-Clay Roads.
The macadamizing method of rendering roads improved and permanent is about to give way to a more natural and substantial material in the form of sand-clay which expert road builders are persuaded will be of far less cost to the counties constructing such thoroughfares and far more permanent and satisfactory. Mecklenburg took the lead a few years ago in the macadam process, but some other counties of the state have insisted upon the sand-clay specimen of road building and are going ahead with marked rapidity toward improving their pikes with this material. It might be well for the officials of Mecklenburg to investigate the cost of using this process here and ascertaining the comparative life of the macadam and the sand-clay variety of permanent road. It is evident that the macadam is proving too costly under the present methods of building to justify its continuance unless there is no other material that can be secured that will combine endurance and effectiveness more acceptably.—Charlotte Oszserver.
