COL. GRIMES ON COTTON SITUATION

Early Maturity and Ginning Have Created Erroneous Impression

THE GREAT BULK IS MARKETED

Some Valuable Information and Suggestions by a Competent Authority On the Unusual Conditions Which Obtain at Present.

To the Editor: The greatest problem that confronts the South today is the present low price of cotton—a question that provides the immediate welfare of more than 5,000,000 people and indirectly affects many, many millions more. The meeting at New Orleans on October 30th is one of the most important gatherings of Southern people ever held. All such meetings are most helpful and evolve many ideas and plans wise and otherwise. Now is the time for the business men of the South to come to the rescue of the cotton farmer.

If this meeting is strongly supported by the business interests of the South (and the very life-blood of Southern business is at stake) much can be done to check the sale of cotton and plans devised to help the holding of "distressed" cotton. This will of itself steady prices and have a tendency to restore the price of cotton to a figure nearer its actual worth. If there were any way by which the representatives of the cotton states gathered there could assure the world that an average acreage only would be planted for 1912, the price of cotton would go up immediately, but unfortunately a lack of complete organization among the agricultural interests renders immediate effective co-operation impossible. The education of the farmers to the necessity and the benefits of organization and co-operation is the great work before the Farmers Union, and it is now manfully striving for that end. If the farmers determine to cut the cotton acreage ten per cent and the April, 1912, government report shows such a curtailment, we will see high priced cotton at that time.

The cotton grower is now in a panic and is dumping cotton on the market as fast as he can haul it. The farmers' stampede to sell is a continuous assurance to cotton buyers that by bidding their own good time they can buy cotton at lower and lower figures. It is an invitation to the investor to hold off his purchases because the farmers' mad eagerness to sell now, regardless of prices is a license to the speculator to buy cotton on his own terms. I am satisfied that cotton at present prices is a good investment because it is now below the cost of production even with the "bumper" crop that is on. With an acreage of 35,000,000 acres in 1912, it is not probable, nay, it is hardly possible, to raise so large a crop again. Thirty-five million acres with 200 pounds of lint per acre would give 14,000,000 bales and only a few times in the history of cotton production has the yield exceeded or equaled 200 pounds of lint per acre.

The farmer, or cotton buyer, can now buy cotton for October, 1912, delivery about as cheap as he can raise it. The farmer who speculates in cotton is generally a fool who plays the other man's game and has to pocket a loss for his experience besides countenancing one of the greatest evils and swindles from which the cotton farmer suffers. As an actual investment, cotton is now worth more than it is bringing on the market, and there is abundant money now in the South to buy it. Will the people of the South have confidence enough to buy actual cotton to hold until normal conditions are restored, thus conserving the prosperity of this section and profiting the investor?

The estimate that the cost of cotton is only $33 a bale is misleading and absurd. Some farmers raise it at much less than that, but I venture to say the average cost to the great mass of cotton growers, planters, farmers, tenants, etc., is over $45 a bale. Some may raise it for $25 a bale, others at $50, but there are more who raise it at a cost of $50 than at the first figure. The begin with the correspondent who makes thereport is generally above the average as a farmer, and in estimating cost he selects above an average acre. To that acre is charged the labor actually used on it, the actual time consumed by mules plowing and cultivating it, the cost of seed, fertilizer, picking, cost of ginning, etc. This seems to be the common method. Too frequently no account is taken of the interest on land, the wear and depreciation on tools, teams, etc. On the average cotton farm, probably one-half the mules used to make a crop stands almost idle one-third of the year; the gin house, engine, gin and machinery stand idle two-thirds of the year; a large percentage of the land or farm investment is unimproved land and stands idle and unproductive all the year. But the tax and interest on the investment are legitimate expenses chargeable to the farm and must come out of the cotton profits; the cost of necessary barns, stables, out-buildings, tenant houses, conveniences around curtilage, etc., are proper expenses to charge against the farm, and must be borne by the cotton crop of the cotton farmer, and the value of the supervision, or direction, should also be counted in the cost. All these items must be taken into account as part of the cost of production.

The census bureau report of yesterday shows that to October 18th, 7,740,634 bales of cotton has been ginned. The report seems to have had no effect on the market, as it was more than discounted before it appeared and the bears had made the most of this unusual condition. The report is the most hopeful news we have had. It was a surprise that it was not over 8,000,000 bales as from observation and from reports from all over the country, we were satisfied about two-fifths of the crop had been ginned. Other ginning heretofore represented 38-per cent to 55 per cent of cotton produced, but only twice has the record for ginning at this time been over 50 per cent.

In 1909, 54.9 per cent of the crop had been ginned to this time, the largest ginning ever known to October 18. The census report says that up to October 18, 1911, 438,466 bales had been ginned in North Carolina. If the percentage of ginned cotton was not greater than in 1909, then 55 per cent of the crop would make about 8,000,000 bales, which does not much exceed the yield of last year. But this is not true, for it is almost certain that more than 70 per cent of the North Carolina crop has been ginned and the best informed men in this state say the North Carolina cotton yield will not exceed the crop of 1910, which was 744,752 bales. Every one in this state knows that cotton opened early and almost all at once, and reports from the far South show the same condition except that the opening is even greater, in fact, it is the greatest and earliest opening ever known.

The government report shows that in Oklahoma in 1911 394,012 bales have been ginned against 421,625 in 1910. Last year Oklahoma made 955,951 bales. Governor Cruce in a letter to the Progressive Farmer says Oklahoma will make 800,000 bales. The report shows Arkansas to have ginned 277,978 in 1911 against 161,362 at the same time in 1910. That this does not mean a "bumper crop," there is shown by Governor Donaghey's letter to the Progressive Farmer, in which he says "Our crop is undoubtedly short in Arkansas, and I do not think it will reach eight hundred thousand bales." It was 284,228 in 1910.

In Louisiana the government report shows 175,446 bales in 1911 against 113,770 at same time in 1910. Governor Saunders says the crop in Louisiana is heavily curtailed by boll weevil depredation and reduction in acreage incident thereto. He further says the crop has suffered severely from heavy rains in July and August, while recent rains have stopped picking and ruined much open staple.

The government reports Mississippi as ginning 384,976 bales against 358,851 at same time last year. Governor Noel in his letter to the Progressive Farmer says conservative estimates place Mississippi's crop at less than last year and that it will not exceed 1,300,000 bales. The Mississippi crop in 1910 was 1,254,419.

The report shows Texas as having ginned 2,694,067 by October 18, 1911, against 2,070,261 by October 18, 1910. The census report show that in 1910 the 2,070,261 was 70 per cent of the Texas crop. Even if the crop in 1911 is not further advanced now than in 1910, it means a crop of about 3,800,000 bales, a much smaller crop. (Continued on 4th Page.)

MAYOR OF "MODEL TOWN" FACES TRIAL

TO USE DICTAGRAPH RECORDS.

The City Has Yet to Celebrate Its Tenth Birthday.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Nov. 2.—To the court records of Porter county there are about to be added several interesting chapters that might be approximately entitled "The Troubles of a Model Town." The cases of Mayor Thomas E. Knotts and several other officials of the city of Gary, against whom serious charges are pending, are on the docket for next Saturday and it is expected the trials will begin here early in the coming week. If half that has been printed concerning the alleged corruption in the "model city" planned and dominated by the steel trust is true, then revelations may be expected at trials that will relegate the political grafters in some of the big cities to the shelf reserved for "pickers."

The city of Gary has yet to celebrate its tenth birthday, but despite its youth it is a city in all that the word implies. Where scarcely a decade ago there was nothing but the long sweep of sand dunes on the shore of Lake Michigan there are now located the greatest steel mills in the country, together with numerous other industries that have been attracted by the excellent transportation facilities and other advantages offered by the new city.

But with the virtues also came the vices of a metropolis. For several years the newspapers have told of the moral and political corruption alleged to flourish in the "model town." Many of the vicious elements driven out of Chicago from time to time are said to have found in Gary a most desirable haven. Gambling houses are said to have been conducted almost openly. Frequent arrests by the federal authorities have given rise to the belief that the little city also has been a centre for the "white slave" traffic.

Efforts of the better element to "clean up" the place long provide unavailing. The authorities were unmovable. At the head of affairs was Thomas K. Knotts, who held the mayoralty, it is alleged, by virtue of an election in which thuggery held the winning hand. Knotts came to Gary a few years ago from Hammond, where he conducted a newspaper and was prominent in town politics. So far as is known he was not overburdened with worldly goods when he stepped off the train in the "model town." Today he is reputed to be in the near-millionaire class, with heavy interests in realty, manufacturing, public utility and banking corporations in and around Gary.

Falling to make any progress in the crusade against vice, the reformers in the town turned their attention to the political corruption alleged to exist. Their progress along this line promised better results from the moment they hit the trail. The climax came early in September, when Mayor Knotts and several members of the city council were placed under arrest, charged with bribery.

It is charged by detectives, who have carefully worked up the case, that the mayor and those arrested with him solicited a bribe of $8,000 from representatives of a utilities company to put through a heating franchise which would have entailed an expenditure of many thousands of dollars by the city and public.

Dictagraph records will play a stellar part in the coming trials. It is said that dictagraphs were connected up in the hotel room occupied by T. B. Bean, the applicant for the franchise, and also that one had been installed even in the mayor's private office.

One extract from the dictagraph records made public purports to be a conversation between Dean and Alderman E. L. Bowser. The conversation is thus recorded:

Dean—"What did the mayor say about my matter, Mr. Bowser?"
Bowser—"I started to tell you that I told him there was $8,000 in it for us. Right here is where he got interested. He wanted to know what I knew about you personally and if you were all right, and if you had the money to go ahead and build the plant. I told him you were, and asked him how he stood on the A. F. franchise." Tom said, "A. F., he can't get me any money. There is nothing in this matter for me. If Knott's desk.

PITT COUNTY FAIR A GREAT SUCCESS

SURPASSES ALL EXPECTATIONS.

Large Display in All Departments And Immense Crowd Present.

The first Pitt County Fair was formally opened this morning in the Star Warehouse with a great crowd of people present and a large array of all kinds of exhibits, showing the county's varied products of agriculture, live stock, poultry, dairy and pantry products and manufactured articles.

The exercises began with a selection by the band, followed with an invocation by Rev. J. H. Shore. President J. L. Wooten then gave a brief history of the inception and organization of the Pitt County Fair Association and extended a cordial welcome to all the people who have come. He then introduced Mr. T. B. Parker of the State agricultural department, who delivered the opening address. He came as the representative of Commissioner Graham, who was to have opened the fair, but who had to go to New Orleans to attend the cotton convention.

After another selection by the band the people then went around viewing the exhibits. These in variety and number far surpassed the expectations of everybody and expressions of delight were many.

Expert judges from the State department of agriculture are here to judge the exhibits of the different departments and will judge them and designate the winners tomorrow.

To sum the whole up briefly the fair is a great success in every particular.

Notes of the Exhibits.

The John Flanagan Buggy company have a beautiful booth of buggies, bicycles, lap robes and harness.

J. B. Higgs' attractive booth is a public place for everybody. He had letters written, sent out errand boys, furnished post cards and stationery and did anything else for the convenience of visitors.

The woman's department is the admiration of everybody with its display of fancy work, dairy and poultry products, ferns and flowers.

The folks did not know there was as much fine poultry in all of Pitt county as is shown at the fair.

The live stock exhibit is a marvel. The Cabinet Veneer Co.'s veneer is admired by everybody.

The old guns, old pistols, old swords and old relics of Revolutionary and Civil war days are a great curiosity.

There is corn and corn and then some, which shows that Pitt county is some when it comes to corn raising.

There are some pumpkins, too, the biggest one weighing 70 pounds.

The display of farm machinery and implements is fine.

The town's display of electrical goods is worth going to see.

The two live alligators attract much attention, but they are not Pitt county grown.

Nobody blames the roosters for crowing. The fair is certainly big enough to crow over.

Every visitor says it is the largest and best county fair they ever saw.

Dean and his franchise are all right we will put it across."

Mayor Knotts was arrested in the city hall just after Dean came from the executive's office with the heating franchise in his pocket. Dean alleges he paid the mayor $5,000. Before entering the mayor's office, Dean had himself searched by four persons as a proof that he had the $5,000 in his pocket when he entered Mayor Knott's room. When he left the room he had himself searched again. He told the deputies to serve the warrant, and they would find the money in an envelope in a pigeon-hole in Mayor Knott's desk.

PITT COUNTY FAIR.

This is Pitt county's first effort toward holding a county fair, and its success has gone so far beyond expectation that the people are enthusiastic over it.

While those who have had the management of and preparation for this fair were without experience in such things, they have done well and have cause to feel gratified. With every one it has been purely a labor of love for the county pride.

The Reflector wants to take occasion to extend a cordial welcome to every visitor to the Pitt county fair. We want everybody to feel that it is truly "Our Greenville, Yours of you Come."

The Reflector has always believed in Pitt county, and the county fair is still further evidence of her ability to do things.

The fellow who thought Pitt county could not have a fair has got another think coming his way.

It has worked some of us almost to a finish, but the fair is worth it.

The fair has further emphasized Greenville's need of a large hotel. In quite a number of states elections will be held next Tuesday.

Whenever you see Pitt county she is in the lead.

Don't it make you feel proud of Pitt county?

Her Head Aches, Too.

Her head aches, too, perhaps like yours;
Her hands are weary and her feet;
She longs, perhaps, like you, for rest.
For something of life's glad and sweet.

Her shadows have been falling, too,
Her troubles have been great today
Kiss the soft lips till 'cross the blue
Of heaven's sweet clouds roll away!

Her limbs are trembling, too, like thine,
Her temples beat with fevered blood;
She, too, hath seen the grave cares come

Sweeping the hard day like a flood.
Her efforts have been made in vain,
Like thine are often made forsooth—
Take her frail hand, and smooth again
The temples that were smooth in youth.

Her head aches, too; her hands are sore,
Her limbs are weary—just like thine.

Think not forever: "No one feels Such aching and such pain as mine"
She has her shadow and her strife,
She has her daily trial, too true!
Lift up her lips, and fill her life
With sunlight as you used to do!

Green-Carrow.

A simple but beautiful and impressive wedding ceremony was solemnized at the residence of Mr. Harvey H. Carrow, Main street, this city, at 7:30 o'clock this morning, when his daughter, Miss Annie, became the bride of Mr. Walter Seymour Green, of Portsmouth, Va. Only relatives were present at the wedding. The east parlor was very prettily decorated in ferns, palms and potted plants and lighted with numerous waxen tapers in silver candelabra the whole making a pretty effect.

The bride entered from the north door leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away. The groom entered from the east door with his best man Mr. William F. Clark. Together they stood before an improvised altar, and Rev. Nathaniel Harding, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, pronounced the ceremony making them man and wife. Miss Sallie Carrow, a sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. She wore a white lingerie dress and carried white caranations. The bride was becomingly attired in a blue tailored suit with hat and gloves to match and carried a bouquet of brides roses. The bride and groom left on the morning train for a bridal tour north. After which they will be at home in Portsmouth, Va.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Carrow, and a social favorite in this city, having a large circle of warm friends. The groom is the manager of the Western Union Telegraph company's Portsmouth office and a young man of sterling worth and integrity. Many handsome presents were received by the bridal couple.—Washington News.

Mr. Green is well known here. He was operator at the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company several months, and while among us he made quite a number of friends.

Coffee Goodness Proven by a Century of Use

There is something wonderfully satisfying and fascinating about this coffee blend that has been in daily use for over a century. Something far different from ordinary coffees. This is the coffee that was served in the quaint French Market, New Orleans, to society belles and beaux of the olden time. And that was so liked by Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay and other famous men. It is today the same identical, deliciously aromatic blend that was famous over a hundred years ago.

Then you could get this coffee with a history—the real

French Market Coffee

only at the French Market, New Orleans. But NOW you all may serve it daily at your own table. For the old French Market blend is perpetuated by

The Same Unique Hygienic Roasting Process and delivered everywhere in perfect aroma and strength in hermetically sealed tins. Injurious elements are roasted out of French Market Coffee. In New Orleans, for hundreds of years, it has always been the custom to drink cup after cup, even at midnight. You may do the same today. Be sure you get the genuine. "There is only one real old French Market flavor."

COTTON SITUATION

than Texas had in the "bumper" year 1906. It would appear that the present ginning represents nearer 76 per cent or 80 per cent than 70 per cent of the Texas crop. Governor Colquitt in his letter to the Progressive Farmer says he is confident that the government has over-estimated the Texas crop. That the crop has opened rapidly on account of dry weather and the crop in South Texas is almost entirely gathered and ginned.

It is a general opinion that the government report for December will show that the cotton crop has been over-estimated and that there will be a sharp rise in cotton. In 1909 with 30,938,000 acres planted, the crop was 10,386,209 bales, in 1910, with 32,403,000 acres planted, the crop was 11,965 bales. In 1911 there are 25,004,000,962 acres planted in cotton.

Even with a 14,000,000 bale crop this year, which is unlikely, cotton cannot remain at present low figures. It cannot be produced with profit at present prices, and the intelligence of the South has grown to that point where we will not raise another big crop with a prospect of present prices which would mean certain loss. If the merchants, bankers, money lenders and business people of the South will agree upon some concert of action to finance the crop it will save millions to the South and mean a continuance of Southern growth and prosperity.

The plan of Mr. A. J. McKinnon that would bind farmers, land owners and tenants "not to plant, or permit to be planted, exceeding 60 per cent of the open tenable land now owned or hereafter acquired in cotton," would give great relief for 1912, but would not entirely accomplish the purpose. It would restrict the large cotton farmer, but would not affect the crop of the general farmer in the South.

It will be difficult to formulate a plan that will work a satisfactory restriction even if the farmer is ready to agree to it. In the cotton growing states there are about 150,000,000 acres in cultivation. Of this area less than 25 per cent or 35,000,000 acres were planted in cotton in 1911. In the greatest cotton state, Texas, with 27,000,000 acres in cultivation 10,868,000 acres (about 40 per cent) were planted in cotton in 1911. There are more than fifty counties in Texas in which no cotton is grown. In more than half of Florida no cotton is grown.

Many farmers are realizing the necessity of making home supplies and are finding these crops more profitable than cotton. It is predicted by some of the wisest men in the country that the capacity of the soil and farmers of the American states will be taxed to their utmost capacity within the life of the next generation, to feed and sustain the population of this country. The farmers of the South are facing the future most hopefully, and are learning the lesson of diversification and year by year are growing less dependent on cotton. Year by year, they are growing more and more of general farm crops. The cereal crop of the South is now about as large as the cotton crop, and will far exceed the cotton crop in the next few years. As illustrations, I will mention only a few states:

In the last decade Alabama increased its cotton crop 16 per cent, while its forage and hay crop was increased 179 per cent.

Florida increased its cotton crop 18 per cent, while it increased its hay and forage 138 per cent.

Mississippi increased its cotton crop 17 per cent, while it increased its hay and forage crop 131 per cent.

South Carolina increased its cotton crop 23 per cent, while it increased its hay and forage 97 per cent.

It will surprise some of our readers to know the grain acreage in North Carolina is more than twice as great as cotton area. We have a large wheat, rye, oat and hay crop for 1911, and the corn crop this year embraces 3,072,000 acres, while the cotton crop is 1,587,000 acres.

But we import more wheat than we raise. We also annually import into North Carolina one and a half million bushels of corn, as well as rye, oats, hay, etc., etc. At present prices the North Carolina corn crop will sell for almost as much as the cotton crop in the state.

Our people are fast turning their attention to general crops and each year are raising more home supplies, but not enough for home consumption. Each year the people of the state of North Carolina are importing more than $80,000,000 worth of food stuffs or more than twice the value of our cotton crop. If we people of the South consider our own welfare, we will raise crops to meet our needs, and then cultivate our money crops at greater profit and sell them at more remunerative prices.

If the Southern Conference at New Orleans can satisfy the cotton world that the South will raise more home supplies next year, which will mean

Here Is Where The Draft Enters

The most perfect draft ever discovered is the patent Hot Blast Down Draft of the Wilson Heater. The only draft that secures perfect combustion and prevents waste. This draft is found only in the

Wilson HOT BLAST Heater

The air enters at the top, drives the combustible gases into the fire where they are burned—prevents the escape of heat up the chimney—doubles the heating power of the fuel.

In other words, only half the amount of fuel used in ordinary heaters is necessary. The Wilson is air-tight, making perfect combustion possible and a fire can be held 36 hours.

We sell Wilson Hot Blast Heaters for either wood or coal.

a reduced area in cotton, it will immediately send the price of cotton up.

If it can secure the co-operation of Southern business interests to take distressed cotton off the market and find some "friends" to cotton among our own people, it will make higher prices.

If it can help to make the farmer realize himself that his cotton is and must always be worth the cost of production (even if necessary to hold a year to get it) it will stop his wild scramble to sell and manufacturers will be glad to buy at values much higher than prices are now ranging.

If it can prove as a fact that the present crop as now claimed is grossly over-estimated, cotton will go up at once and before it passes out of the hands of the man who needs most the honest profit of his labor—the farmer and tenant who raise it.

DON'T HAVE GRAY HAIR.

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Restores the Natural Color.

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that nature needs assistance. It is nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agent, Moye's Pharmacy.

Good Music.

"Uncle" Tom Christman was on the bass drum job at the fair today. He made it make the proper noise, too. There were several Greenville band artists playing with the Washington band and they altogether made good music.
