TROOPS GUARD, TREASURE BURIED IN EQUITABLE RUINS

Nearly $500,000 Recovered From

THE ICE COVERED VAULTS RESIST

Workers Are Risking Their Lives to Recover Millions Buried Under Debris of Burnt Equitable Building—
Bank Officials Recover Six Millions in Box—Millions Still Buried

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—New York's financial center became an armed camp today when, guarded by detectives and uniformed police, nearly half a billion dollars in money and securities was removed from the vaults in the ruins of the Equitable building. To remove this huge treasure from the fire-swept debris of the building, whose walls threatened at any time to collapse, men took their lives in their hands. Danger of explosions of gas leaking from broken pipes increased the peril in which the salvagers worked.

Not since the establishment of Inspector Byrne's famous "dead line" have such elaborate precautions been taken to safeguard money in Wall street.

The vaults of the American Exchange National Bank, at 128 Broadway, across Cedar street from the Equitable, were emptied of their treasure so that the business of the institution might be carried on in the temporary quarters, at 66 Broadway.

The mass of money and securities was placed in a steel-barred express wagon, in which ten heavily armed private detectives rode. In front, on both sides, and behind the wagon as it moved through lower Broadway were 50 plainclothes men, uniformed policemen, and private detectives. Immediately behind came a large automobile packed with armed employes of the bank. Not one would tell the value of the wagon's contents, but financiers said the bank's vaults must have disgorged $60,000,000.

At 11:15 the vaults of the Merchants branch of the Bankers Trust Company were opened, experts declaring it would be safe. Thirty plainclothes men, 20 uniformed men, and 35 private detectives gathered around as the officers threw the bolts and exposed the great wealth they contained.

New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The New York Herald today says in part:

"It is a clean, open race, with six or seven strong candidates in the field."

With this statement, Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee, today gave his view of the situation in the Democratic party and the contest for the presidential nomination.

Mr. Mack made the declaration after a day of conference with William J. Bryan and party leaders from all sections of the country, who are spending a few days here before returning to their homes from the meeting of the national committee in Washington.

Friends of Gov. Wilson, Champ Clark, Oscar W. Underwood, and other candidates considered as leaders in the race, were disturbed by reports that Mr. Mack and other party managers were leading their influence to the support of Gov. Harmon of Ohio.

APPEAL MADE IN FAVOR OF REV. RICHESON

Probable Plea Of Insanity For Boston
Pastor

FIANCEE'S FAMILY FINANCE FIGHT

Father of the Young Lady Richeson
Was to Marry Believes That Richeson is Insane and is Ready to Help Financially in Fight to Prove His Insanity—Educator of Richeson Denounces Him.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—It became known today that counsel for the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, condemned to death on his own confession of the murder by poison of Avila Linnell, will seek a rehearing of the proceedings in court on January 9. The ground will be taken that the mental condition of Richeson was such at the time he pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree that he was unable to fully comprehend the nature of that act.

The move will have to be made in the supreme judicial court, and if the contention of the defense is sustained the case will have to go again to the superior court, there to be disposed of as if no previous action had been taken.

The fight to save the life of Richeson will be financed by Moses Grant Edmands, father of Miss Violet Edmands, the former fiancée of Mr. Richeson. He has retained faith in the minister, believing him mentally unbalanced when he gave Miss Linnell the poison which caused her death.

A scathing denunciation of Richeson was contained in an address by President George E. Horr today to the students of the Newton Theological Institute, of which Richeson is a graduate. President Horr, who was to have solemnized the marriage of the pastor to Miss Violet Edmands, described Richeson as "a scoundrel, a man convicted of colossal crime, and a traitor to God and man."

SAMUEL GOMPERS AGRES WITH T. R.

Sherman Anti-Trust Law Not Definite Enough

LABOR MUST BE EXEMPTED BY LAW

Unions Want to Know Their Status, Declares Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor—
Do Not Want to be Lulled Into Faceted Security.

Banking up his demand that the Sherman anti-trust law should be so amended as to exempt labor organizations from its provisions, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who appeared before the senate interstate commerce committee yesterday, quoted an interview he had with former President Roosevelt in 1908.

"President Roosevelt," declared Mr. Gompers, "said that the law should be so constructed that it would affirmatively state that which is unlawful, and admit references to labor organizations. He said he would take it up with his cabinet during the summer, but that was all that came of it, except that he frequently made reference on his swing around the western states to the fact that the law should be amended."

Mr. Gompers declared that he had been given assurance that the Sherman law would not affect labor organizations, but never took them seriously.

Prince Arthur of Connaught.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of Governor-General of Canada and first cousin of King George V. today entered upon his thirtieth year, having been born January 13, 1883. Prince Arthur is one of the most popular of the British royal family and without doubt is one of the most promising. He is as much a favorite with the present king as he was with the late King Edward, who, during latter years of his reign frequently showed his confidence in the ability of his young nephew by despatching him on important diplomatic missions. Prince Arthur, like his pretty sister the Princess Patricia, who is enjoying the winter with her parents at Ottawa, shows no inclination to rush into matrimony. There is no doubt that some years ago the dashing young prince was madly in love with Lady Marjorie Manners, the fascinating daughter of the present Duke of Rutland, but circumstances and the royal negative intervened to prevent a match, since which time the prince has been content to remain a bachelor.

POLITICAL FORECAST FOR NEXT WEEK

Important and Political News From National Capitol --- Schedule of Next Week's Business

REFLECTOR'S WEEKLY LETTER FROM CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 13.—Political conferences and the movements of the presidential aspirants will continue to contribute much of the important and interesting news of the week. In various states the party leaders will meet to discuss the preliminary work of the approaching campaign. In Alabama there will be a state conference of the Republican progressives and at Fargo, N. D., the Democrats of the Northwest have been called to meet for a general pow-wow. Considerable interest attaches to the Fargo gathering. The promoters disclaim any intention of booming any candidate for the presidential nomination, but as North Dakota will be the first state to declare its preference in the primaries it is likely that the campaign managers will overlook the Fargo gathering. Incidentally the meeting will serve to call attention to the fact that North Dakota has a good man for second place on the Democratic ticket in the person of Governor John Burke.

President Taft is to go to New Haven on Friday to attend a banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of that city. The next day he will attend the meeting of the Yale Corporation and that night he will address the New York City Bar Association.

Governor Judson Harmon has speaking arrangements for the week in several Western cities, while Governor Woodrow Wilson, his rival for the presidential nomination, has accepted an engagement to address a convention of Michigan editors in Detroit.

Hearings on the resolution introduced by Representative Humphrey of Washington directing the appointment of a special committee to investigate the "Shipping Trust" will begin Monday before the House Committee on Rules.

The first extra session of the legislature in the history of Idaho will convene Monday in response to the call of Governor Hawley. The sole purpose of the session is the revision of the revenue laws of the state.

One of the most important conventions of the week will be the annual meeting of the United Mine Workers of America, which will assemble Tuesday in Indianapolis. The convention will discuss a new wage scale to be presented at the joint conference with the operators. The present scale will expire April 1 and it is believed the miners will demand a general advance in wages.

Other events of the week will include the inauguration of Earl M. Brower as governor of Mississippi, the welcome of Cardinal Farley upon his arrival in New York from Rome, the opening and dedication of the New Museum of Art in Toledo, O., the annual convention of the National Board of Trade in Washington, the annual session of the Tuskegee Negro Conference, the annual observance throughout the south of the birthday anniversary of General Robert E. Lee, the annual meeting of the Western Golf Association in Chicago and the meeting of the American Association for Highway Improvement in Washington, D. C.

NAVY EMPLOYEES FAIL TO RECEIVE AN ANSWER

Navy Department Faces Serious Situation
With Machinists

REASON FOR DELAY IS EXPLAINED

Contrary to Expectations the Naval Committee Failed to Answer Petition of Machinists for More Pay—
Mr. Winthrop, Asst. Secretary Explains
That Committee Has Not Had Ample Time to Inquire.

The naval committee considering the demand for increased wages by the navy yard machinists did not forward its answer to the men yesterday as expected. The committee announced several days ago that it hoped to be able to give the machinists an answer yesterday.

Assistant Secretary Winthrop stated last night that he and his colleagues had not been able to complete their investigation. They are inquiring into certain labor conditions in other yards, and until they are through with that, it was stated, they will not be able to settle the questions before them. The assistant secretary said further that he hoped to have a final answer for the men by tomorrow or Monday.

The machinists were disappointed at not hearing from the committee. The executive committee met last evening at the Naval Lodge building, Pennsylvania avenue and Fourth street southeast, and discussed the delay. It was decided to wait until next week to present the petition to President Taft, asking his intervention.

"There is nothing we can do but wait," said one. "The men are somewhat impatient, it is true, but that is natural. They have confidence in the naval committee."

If the request for an increase is refused, the 1,800 machinists at the yard will hold a mass meeting to discuss the situation, according to a statement made last night.

rive in China.

MANILA, Jan. 12.—The transport Logan, which is to carry the First battalion of the Fifteenth United States infantry to China, in all probability will not get away from port before Friday evening. The further delay has been due to preparations of the quartermaster's department for a long expedition, which has necessitated a change in the allotment of supplies.

The loading of the transport proceeded all through last night, the troops sleeping aboard. Gangs of men, worked in long lines from the quartermaster's wagons and auto trucks, at one time the lines extending for half mile. The transport dock is still piled high with cases of goods, which will task the energy of the carriers to stow aboard the vessel within the allotted time.

It is expected that the voyage to China will last ten days. The troops will disembark at Chin Wang Tao, and Rear Admiral Joseph B. Murdock commander of the United States squadron, probably will assist at the landing.

Carnegie Reluctantly Admits Helping

of Attorney General—House Steel Trust Board Continues Investigation Into Steel Methods.

Andrew Carnegie, pressed hard yesterday by members of the house committee of inquiry into the United States Steel Corporation, admitted that he recommended the appointment of Philander C. Knox, present secretary of state, as attorney general in President McKinley's cabinet in 1901, Mr. Knox having been one of the chief counselors for the Carnegie Steel Company since 1890, when the Sherman anti-trust law was passed.

Mr. Carnegie repeatedly had declared before the committee that he never knew that the participation of his company in the steel plate pool and other like pools was unlawful, and Representative McGillicuddy, of Maine, sought to show that he had recommended to President McKinley the appointment of Mr. Knox after the latter, as counsel for his company had left him in ignorance of the government statutes so many years.

Mr. Carnegie also told the committee that he believed no protective tariff was necessary on steel rails or steel products with the exception of needles, that are not manufactured in this country. He asserted that congress need have no fear that foreign rails would flood the United States if the tariff were removed.

The ironmaster was given an uncomfortable half hour late in the day by Representative McGillicuddy, and he is to be recalled again today, through he urged that he be permitted to conclude his testimony yesterday.

"You said that you did not know for many years the scope of the Sherman anti-trust law," said Mr. Gillicuddy, in beginning his examination of Mr. Carnegie. "Between the years 1890 and 1900 you were the head of the Carnegie Steel Company were you not?"

"I never was at its head, not even a director," Mr. Carnegie replied. "I was the majority stockholder, owning 54 per cent of the stock."

LORIMER NAMES HIS ENEMIES

Publishers, Assorted Senators Sought His Downfall

MEDILL PATTERSON HIS ENEMY

Attack on Lorimer Began When He Refused to Help Publisher of Chicago Tribune to Run for the Senate.

Senator Lorimer yesterday told the story of his early life in politics to the senate investigating committee, and talked at length of his differences with some of the Chicago newspaper publishers. The opposition of H. H. Kohlsaat to him, he testified, began at the Chicago convention that nominated James G. Blaine for president.

"I was a Blaine man, and began to organize the Illinois delegation for him," said Senator Lorimer. "Mr. Kohlsaat sent one of his men to tell me that he had no objection if I voted for Blaine myself, but that I must stop working to split the Illinois delegation, or he would put me out of public life. He went in just the same, we split the convention, and Blaine was nominated."

Differences with the late Joseph Medill, owner of the Tribune, he testified, began when Mr. Medill was said to have been a candidate for the United States senate.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 13, 1912.

This is not our kind of weather.

If weather counts for anything all politicians must have cold feet these days.

In little old New York Riverside is the name of a beautiful drive. In Greenville Riverside is the name of something that drives. And it is not beautiful, either.

If some still persist in going through the winter without the aid of an overcoat, we might see them going around Indian fashion. Blankets are after all cheaper than overcoats. And they will serve two purposes.

Fire Commissioner Johnson, of New York, has found out that the Equitable building was destroyed by the careless throwing away of a lighted match. The Asch building fire with a total loss of 147 lives was due to the same cause. When will we be more careful?

The man who reports the weather certainly has it back on those who have been making fun at him for missing the mark in his predictions. He hit it right this time with a sledge hammer blow that drove the nail up to the head and clinched it on the under side.

When a rich man tries his hand at many games he is usually called versatile, but let a poor mortal try more than ordinary every day pen-driving or some other such subject. He is called a "Jack of all trades" a "rolling stone" etc. No wonder justice goes around with a bandage on her eyes.

Wish somebody would whisper in Cook's ear to "hit the grit" and hike it back to the north. The unfortunate doctor announces his intention of coming south, snow and frost get busy, and he gets a most realistic setting for his lectures.

Great capitalists differ from small ones in that such men as Carnegie and Rockefeller underate their assets while small capitalists, like you and I overate them. The Carnegie Steel Company had a book value of $84,000,000 yet it was sold for $420,000,000.

And now some philosophers come to the front with the statement that Richeson's crime was really an "in-social act." Perhaps the Beattie murder was only a breach of etiquette and Thays incident a "faux-pas" in the behavior of a gentleman. Really it seems that some home made philosophers ought to be given a berth in asylums for the mentally unbalanced.

Many of the business men or Greenville now have handsome stickers with the slogan, "Our Greenville. Yours if you Come," for use on the

WITH OTHER EDITORS

How It Feels to Be Rich. Mr. John J. McDewitt, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., having inherited a vast fortune, and having, from the days of childhood, longed to know that opulent sensation which comes of having means, is giving, for one performance only, an imitation of John D. Rockefeller, as he imagines John D. to be. A cool thousand dollars is the mighty wad this gentleman found himself possessed of not long ago. With it he could have opened a bank account and perhaps have laid the foundation for a still greater fortune, but he was out for sensation, and sensation he will have.

By special train, at a cost of $600 McDewitt goes to New York, where all the primrose paths of all the land seem magically to lead. He will tip the porters and baggage boys with princely liberality. He will smoke gold-tipped cigarettes, and ride in a taxicab from the depot to his hotel where he will frolic for a day in an expensive suite. He will toss a hundred "bones" for his dinner, take in a Broadway show—or be taken in, be driven to his car by motor, retire in a private drawing room, and awake the next morning in Wilkes-Barre with a nickle left to take him home by trolley. Thus fondly imagining that for a day at least he has lived the life of the rich man he will resume his occupation at the old stand and salary. If he were wiser and were quite well to do and desired to spend a day in the big town, he probably would walk to the depot in his native village, climb aboard a modest day coach, snuggle down in the red plush scowl at the candy butcher, argue with the conductor over the price of his fare, beat the porter out of a dime by carrying his grip himself, take a surface car in New York up to the cheapest hotel he could find, and proceed to see Manhattan with one eye on the tall buildings and the other on the pocket in which he kept his hoard.

Rich men don't riot around as the Wilkes-Barre innocent fondly imagines—that is, not outside of the best sellers. They hold on to their coin with both hands, and like John Gilpin's wife, have frugal minds, although on pleasure bent. That's why they're rich.—Washington Post.

letters they send out. Every one using the stickers is helping to advertise Greenville. The stickers are in green and white and in design are a facsimile of the slogan printed near the top of the first column on this page.

The wisdom of not having a lynching has been demonstrated at Shelby. A murder occurred near that town, and two negroes on whom suspicion fell were arrested and placed in jail. Feeling against the negroes ran high and there were such threats of lynching that officers spirited the negroes away. Later another man confessed to having committed the murder. Thus it is seen that two innocent men would have lost their lives if the would-be lynchers could have carried out their purpose.

Mr. D. M. Jones has some chickens that he was thinking to dispose of, but one of the hens took to laying 4-ounce eggs and he concluded to hold on a while longer.

Attractive Store.

B. G. and J. R. Abeyounis have nicely fixed up their new quarters in the White building on Five Points. They have made such changes about the store that it does not look like its former self.

Map Sent to Architect.

The map with all information as to survey, sewer, etc., with photographs, report on foundation, have been turned over to Mr. R. C. Flanagan to be forwarded to the government supervising architect at Washington so that plans for Greenville's post office building can be drawn at once.

And They All Got Spilled.

Just before noon today some parties concluded to try the snow for sleigh riding. Rev. C. M. Rock with two ladies were in Mr. R. W. King's cutter, and for the time being enjoyed the fun immensely, but upon turning the corner of Evans and Third streets there was a collapse of the vehicle and down they all came in the snow. Then there was walking ahead of them.

Honor Roll.

4th grade—Christine Smith, William Forbes.
5th grade—Leona Tyson, Mattie Smith.
6th grade—Lanie Tyson, Clifton Corbett.
The highest average was made by Mattie Smith, Christine Smith, and Clifton Corbett.

Snow and Blizzard.

It began snowing early this morning, and the ground being frozen it all lay. The snow kept coming through the day, and the high wind with it made it a regular blizzard. It has been a most disagreeable day out of doors.
Owing to the blizzard the teachers' association could not meet today.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Pick-Ups And Hand-Me-Downs.

Court will begin Monday. "I tell you, it's cold up west!" was the remark of a west ender as he blew down town this morning. Those who could not stand up today slipped down.

The weather also broke up the Farmers' Union meeting today. Everybody had to give way for the weather today.

You might do some good, looking after the needs of the poor in this weather.

The teachers had a rough day for their meeting.

There were more frozen pipes sufferers today.

SHALL GREENVILLE HAVE A MODERN HOTEL?

IF SO OUR PEOPLE MUST ACT

Mr. Proctor Will Take Half of the of the Stock if Greenville People do Likewise.

Editor Reflector: There has been so much talk and such little action concerning the erection of a new hotel in Greenville that the people have begun to look upon the project as a pipe dream. We are all too prone to sit off, discuss and wait for the other fellow to act, and if he does not suit us then knock Greenville for its lack of public spirit. But with the people and money that we have in Greenville it does seem an absurdity for the whole town to sit down and wait for one man who does not even live in town, to take the all important step and build a hotel. It does not seem very consistent to expect a nonresident of the town whose gain is only the revenue from the investment, to put his money in an undertaking which the town people, although receiving revenue and the general benefits that come from city development, are afraid to touch. I hope our progress does not depend upon Mr. Proctor's action alone, yet none other seems so disposed.

I believe we all agree upon the necessity of a larger hotel. The Bertha, no doubt, was adequate at the time it was built, but the town has grown both in size and importance since that time and unless we can arrange to accommodate the people that come here they will make it convenient to go elsewhere. Four years ago there was no Training School to make Greenville prominent as an educational center and now after having contributed $50,000 to the school to receive that prominence are we going to allow the benefits to leak out for lack of hotel accommodations? Educational gatherings and conventions of different kinds will be here from time to time which is the best advertisement the town can get, if we fix it for them, but they will not come, nor will they be interested in us if they do come, if they find a dead town, and no where to lodge. Our present hotel accommodations are limited almost to the daily transients, so what are we going to do when extras come in? New here is the situation, our salvation, the man of the hour, Mr. Proctor of Grimesland, has agreed to subscribe half the stock in a new and up-to-date hotel for Greenville, to be built on the corner of Third and Evans streets. With a capital stock of $60,000 it means that it is up to the business men of Greenville to subscribe or invest $30,000 in hotel stock. Can we do it or are we indifferent to our future? Under some conditions a general collection would raise almost that much, yet here is a paying investment for you and for the town which no one seems to jump at. Are we ever going to wake up and quit, letting well enough alone? If we are proud of the court house we will be prouder of the hotel.

Carolina Club is going to work to get this hotel and we ask your cooperation. Let us exert ourselves and accomplish this first great step towards progress. Investigation shows that there is not a modern hotel in North Carolina that is not paying handsomely.
Think it over and let us hear from you with an application for hotel stock.

HAPPENINGS AROUND STANDARD

News From That Section of the County.

STANDARD, Jan. 12.—Several of our people attended the sale of the late B. F. Crawford last Friday at Arthur.

Miss Rueberta Flanagan, one of the teachers in the school here, went home Friday evening, but returned Sunday evening through the snow. If every school had teachers with as much get up in them as this school the people would have better schools and their children would learn faster. We are sorry to learn that Mr. C. R. Willoughby, who has been with us for the last two years, is moving back to his farm. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby much success during the year 1912.

Miss Annie Tyson, who is teaching at Langs school house, came home Friday and returned to her school early Monday morning. We hear several of the people near Miss Tyson's school praising her work. Miss Annie is carrying on a very fine school.

Mr. Gilbert Bibb, near Reedy Branch church, who lived here last year, was here Tuesday and Wednesday attending to some business. We are wishing Mr. Bibb much happiness at his new home.

Mr. J. E. Cobb went to Greenville Tuesday on a business trip. If you know any thing new, then why not tell the reporter of Standard. We are sorry to hear of the death of an infant of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nichols that was called to rest at 7 o'clock Thursday, January 11. The people extend to them their sympathy.

A FRIEND OF THE ROBBINS.

Wants The Slaughter of the Birds Stopped.
A lady drops a note to The Reflector suggesting the writing of an article on the wanton destruction of robins around this town. She says that "according to the agricultural bureau the robin is the farmers' best friend and each one is worth counting $10 to the farmer. They are being killed now in Greenville by the dozen and sold for 5 cents apiece or thrown away. Would it be possible to stop this?"

We are not prepared to say if the killing of the birds can be stopped. They have been very plentiful in this section for the last few weeks and hundreds of them have been killed. So far as known those that have been killed have been used for food and they make a very palatable dish. Possibly too many birds are killed, and possibly too many birds are killed, and they are plentiful during the open season the hunters will be after them.

COTTON SEED MEAL AS A FOOD

OF IMPORTANCE TO FARMERS.

Experiments Made on College Farm, Athens, Ga.

The efficiency of cotton seed meal as a food for dairy cows has been thoroughly investigated during the past twenty-five years. Few feed-stuffs have been subjected to a greater variety of tests. It is all the more gratifying, therefore, to learn that a great majority of the tests have substantiated the highest claims made for it. The idea that it will produce sickness and death in animals where rationally fed was long since exploded. It is not the cause of abortion in cows as has sometimes been suggested. Like any other rich concentrate it is not so well adapted as some others for the nutrition of very young animals. The best conditions for using cotton seed meal are found where it can be fed to cows on pasture during the summer, and to animals provided with silage as the principal source of roughness in the winter. It can also be fed with satisfaction where winter grazing crops are provided. Since these may be grown in such great variety and profusion throughout the south, the small farmer and the city cow owner can have an admirable substitute for silage available at all times. It is better when feeding silage and cotton seed meal to cows to provide a little dry roughness. Hulls are excellent for this purpose, and five to ten pounds may be fed per head per day. Corn stover may also be utilized, or even mixed hay or that derived from legumes, through the cost of the last two is ordinarily such as to make their use unsatisfactory from an economic point of view.

In tests made by the writer silage, wheat bran and cotton seed meal, when fed in opposition to silage, alfalfa hay and wheat bran resulted in the production of a gallon of milk at a cost of 8.5 and 9.2 cents respectively. In other words, the results were in favor of using cotton seed meal as a source of protein rather than alfalfa hay. Virtually the same results were obtained when an attempt was made to substitute copey hay for cotton seed meal. It is true, these experiments were made several years ago, and while the cost of producing a gallon of milk may be somewhat higher now than at that period, the relative difference in efficiency was undoubtedly established by these tests. Since the experiments in question were made alfalfa hay has increased relatively more in price than cotton seed meal, and the difference in favor of cotton seed meal as a source of protein has increased thereby.

In experiments made on the college farm at Athens, Ga., the following rations were fed to groups of four cows each. The first group received seed meal 6 pounds, silage 30 pounds and corn stover 4 pounds, silage 30 pounds and stover 6 pounds. The third group received bran 10 pounds silage 30 pounds and stover 6 pounds. In this test the attempt was made to demonstrate the relative efficiency of cotton seed meal as a concentrate in a ration for dairy cows when fed in conjunction with wheat bran and in direct opposition to it. Note that the same amount of silage and stover was fed all groups. The efficiency of the rations is determined by the relative cost of a gallon of milk and the cost of the feed per cow per day. The first group made a gallon of milk at a cost of 5.97 cents the second group made a gallon of milk at a cost of 7.5 cents and the third group made a gallon of milk at a cost of 10.07 cents. The cost of the feed per cow per day was with the first group, 12 cents; with the second group 15 cents; and with the third group 19.9 cents. These figures certainly show that at the prices prevailing for food stuffs when this test was made that cotton seed meal clearly out classed wheat bran as a source of protein for dairy cows. In this test the cotton seed meal was charged at $23.50 per ton, and the wheat bran at $30.00 per ton. The same relative figures apply to these two foodstuffs today.

In this connection the high fertilizing value of cotton seed meal as compared with the other concentrate should not be overlooked. In feeding dairy cows 75 per cent of the fertilizing constituents should be returned to the soil in the form of yard manure where proper care is taken to preserve the excrements. It has been shown that cotton seed meal is frequently worth as much per ton for fertilizing purposes alone as it actually cost at prevailing market prices. Its ability, therefore, to enrich the manure and thus increase crop yields on soils to which it is applied is an important matter to bear in mind. Last winter another test was conducted at the College. In this instance four cows were used in each group and the following rations were fed. The first group received beef pulp 5 pounds, cotton seed meal 5 pounds and silage ad libitum. The second group received wheat bran and cotton seed meal at the rate of 8 pounds per day mixed in the proportion of wheat bran 66 pounds and cotton seed meal 110 pounds with silage ad libitum. The average cost per gallon of milk with the first group was 8.86 cents; with the second group, 7.28 cents; and with the third group was 6.25 cents. In this instance the cotton seed meal again clearly demonstrated its efficiency as a producer of milk.

Real Estate and Insurance

Having fed cotton seed meal as the principal concentrate to dairy cows for many years, it would appear that its use in the quantities indicated in this report resulted not only in the production of milk at a moderate cost, but has not impaired the health or longevity of the cows receiving it. In my own experience cotton seed meal has been fed in opposition to corn meal, corn and cob meal, chopped cowpea hay, alfalfa hay, beet pulp and wheat bran. In every instance it has proven the cheapest source of protein and the most desirable concentrate to feed to dairy cows. Some have experienced dissatisfaction from its use, but these parties have in most instances fed it in too large quantities, or have not provided any succulent food for the ration, such as silage or good pasture may be made to furnish. Persons who simply feed cotton seed meal at random will not secure good results from its use. It should be fed according to the weight and size of the animal and the quantity of milk she is giving. It is a simple matter to buy a pair of scales and a properly gauged measure to enable this work to be done quickly and economically.

The overfeeding of cotton seed meal, like any other concentrate, is likely to produce digestive troubles and may even produce derangement of the nervous system. This is only what may be anticipated from careless feeding, however, and if one should be so unfortunate as to have an experience of this kind he should attribute the cause to the proper source and not charge it up to the meal. Dairy industries may be organized and promoted as successfully in the south as elsewhere. Protein is one of the costly elements in the ration of a dairy cow and yet it may be had in large amount and relatively speaking, at a low cost so long as there is an abundant supply of fresh, bright cotton seed meal available.

MINERS' CONVENTION.

Miners to Consider Their Wage Demands.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 13.—The advance guard of delegates to attend the annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America to meet here Tuesday has reached here. The convention promises to be one of the most important as well as the largest gathering in the history of the organization. It will be attended by delegates representing the tens of thousands of miners who labor in the immense bituminous fields, which stretch from West Virginia and central Pennsylvania to British Columbia and southwest Texas and Oklahoma. The anthracite miners of Pennsylvania are expected to be more largely represented than at previous conventions, owing to the fact that the wage agreement of the anthracite miners will expire this year as well as that of the bituminous workers.

It is probable that the convention will last two or three weeks or longer. The matter of a new wage agreement will be thoroughly discussed, though final action in the matter will be left to the committee which will meet in joint conference with the operators next month.

In addition to the ordinary routine business the convention will have many matters of importance to consider. It is generally conceded that the report of the tellers of the recent national election for officers will show the re-election of John P. White of Iowa as president over Tom L. Lewis, his opponent. Edwin Perry, the secretary-treasurer, had no rival for the office.

One of the questions that is being discussed among the delegates already on the ground is whether the convention will rescind the resolution that placed John Mitchell before the alternative of giving up his union card or resigning from the National Civic Federation. Mr. Mitchell will be recalled, recently made charges that the last winter's convention was "packed" and to that fact was due the adoption of the resolution.

The question of renewing the agreement with the operators, however, will overshadow all other matters before the convention. The present agreement will expire March 31st, next. No attempt is made to conceal the fact that a general strike of both the bituminous and anthracite miners is among the possibilities. The situation in the anthracite field is the more alarming as a strike of the hard coal miners is always more serious in its consequence than a suspension of work by the bituminous miners. The district organizations in the anthracite field have held their conventions. These gatherings adopted resolutions demanding 20 per cent increase in wages, a decrease of about 11 per cent in working hours without a corresponding decrease in pay, payment by weight exclusively, and other concessions.

The operators have not given any official notice of their intentions, but it is well known they have no intention of granting these demands. While the mine workers argue that the increased cost of living has made necessary a wage increase, the operators hold that the "sliding scale" created by the Strike Commission has given the miners advantage of every advance in the price of coal and that no flat advance in wages is possible under present conditions.

The Conciliation Board promises to be a bone of contention also. This is composed of three representatives of mine workers and three representatives of the operators. It was created by the Strike Commission to settle differences as they arise from time to time. The miners declare that the methods of work of the Conciliation board are cumbersome and impractical.
