SLAUGHTER AS LOCOMOTIVE BOILER BURSTS

Great Loss of Human Life in Railroad Shop

DEATH ROLL THIRTY--FIFTY INJURED

Locomotive whose boiler exploded was of the type generally called "Mogul."—Boiler exploded inside the shop—Property of Southern Pacific.

SAN ANTONIO, March 18.—At the least 32 men were killed and more than 50 injured today when the boiler of locomotive No. 704 exploded in the shop yards of the Southern Pacific Railroad here. The property damage will approximate $250,000.

A committee of railroad officials, army officers and citizens made an investigation this afternoon and is of the opinion that the explosion probably was due to carelessness of one of the men killed in allowing an inrush of cold water into the super-heated boiler in which the water was already low.

Twenty bodies have been identified twelve remain unidentified and human fragments picked up within a radius of several blocks probably account for the several missing.

The engine, a big passenger Mogul, practically new, had been brought to the shops for inspection. Those in the vicinity who escaped immediate death declare that the boiler burst without warning.

The Weather.

Fair tonight, warmer in extreme western portion, Wednesday probably fair with light to moderate east and southeast winds.

CONDENSED NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE OLD NORTH STATE

Fishermen and Fish Commissioner in Controversy.

Elizabeth City.—What may prove a very serious and unfortunate situation has developed on the coast of North Carolina in which the state fish commissioner and the fishermen are the opposing factors.

During the past week, State Fish Commissioner Vann has made an inspection of the fishing operations throughout this section and in many instances he has found nets sets in the channel and in other places prohibited by the laws of North Carolina.

Considerable Damage at Thomasville.

Thomasville.—Considerable damage has been reported in this section as a result of the recent wind and rain storm that passed over this section. Several bridges in the community have been washed from their places and all the creeks are swollen, most of them being impassible. No great damage was felt in the town. Recorder L. A. Martin had the misfortune to have all of his stove wood and der his house and drift out of a conceal washed away from its place un-ventil distance for regaining it.

Women Bound to Court

Two Other Women Arrested in Connection with the Myrtle Hawkins Case are Under Heavy Bonds to Appear Before the Superior Court.

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C., March 18.—Lizzie Shaft and Nora Britt were bound over to Superior court today under $5,000 and $1,000 bond, respectively by Magistrate Oates, charged with accessory before the fact to the murder of Myrtle Hawkins whose body was found hede in Lake Osceola last September. Of the 17 state witnesses brought from Asheville, the home of the defendants, only eight were examined.

The defense offered no evidence. Very little light was thrown on the murder mystery today, not one of the names of the other five defendants being mentioned during the proceedings, but it is believed that other officers reserved much important evidence. The defendants failed to make bond.

Freight Traffic Congested.

Spencer.—A considerable congestion of traffic on the Southern Railway has resulted from the many washouts on the main line Friday. Not for years has there been as little doing in the way of moving trains out of Spencer. There have, however, been heavy receipts of cars from the South and West, owing to the inability to forward these cars to Northern and Eastern markets, the Spencer yards are packed with freight. It became necessary last night to store more than two hundred loaded cars on the main line tracks and these will be moved as soon as the bridge can be repaired at Haw River, 50 miles north of Spencer, where traffic has been tied up for two days.

Royal Arch Masons.

Greenville Chapter No. 50, R. A. M. will have meetings both Thursday and Friday nights of this week for work in the Royal Arch degree. Some distinguished visitors will be present to assist in the work.

VIRGINIA OUTLAWS FORTIFIED IN THE DEVILS' DEN

Reward for Their Capture Has Been Still Boosted. $500 for Each Murderer.

THE ALLENS' TRIAL HAS BEEN SET FOR MARCH 26TH

HILLSVILLE, Va., March 19.—Stillness reigned over the reconstructed court when the grand jury filed in and returned arue bills against Floyd Allen, Victor Allen, Claude Swanson Allen, Sidney Allen, Fred Allen, Wesley Edwards, Bud Mason and John F. Moore, the latter for helping the gang in making their "get away".

Juryman Columbus Kane, who was shot in the abdomen is not expected to recover and should he die the Allen gang will be responsible for six deaths.

Jasper (Jack) Allen who lives about seven miles from Hillsville, but who it has been clearly established took no part in the tragedy, gave out a statement in which he said he did not have the slightest inkling his brothers had planned the shooting and attack on the court. "I am sure that my brothers will not give themselves up, as they would not get a fair trial in Carroll county and they fully realize it. Sidney passed by here late Thursday night. He was wounded. I have no idea of his present whereabouts and have received no word from him.

Safe in Roanoke.

ROANOKE, Va., March 19.—Floyd

Allen, his son Victor and "Bud" Mason were brought here by the authorities from Pulaski where they were originally transferred from Hillsville. Sentiment runs too high in Pulaski against the Allens and the authorities were afraid of a lynching should the prisoners remain there much longer.

Floyd Allen has a broken leg and is wounded seventeen times.

Location of Devil's Den.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 19.—Devil's Den, a cave where the prisoners are supposed to be fortified is at the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountain. It is accessible only to people well acquainted with the country. Many visitors, ascend to it in the summer from a neighboring summer resort, owned by Cicero Mitchell, Sidney Allen's father-in-law, a brother-in-law of the same man, occupies a house about 300 yards off the mouth of the cave. It is thought that the fugitives have plenty of ammunition and victuals in the cave and that their arrest will have to be the work of soldiers. Their position would enable the Allens to pick off their assailants without exposing themselves to their fire.

CHOCKING WATER PIPES

WORK OF ELM TREE ROOTS

SUPT. ALLEN, OF THE WATER & LIGHT COMMISSION DIGS UP MANY YARDS OF MATTING

Trouble on the water pipes along 4th and Greene streets had considerably worried Superintendent Allen lately and yesterday with some of his men he dug deep in the street to where the water pipe is.

What he found there was no more than what he had expected to and what efforts had been made to prevent. Some days ago several of the elm trees bordering the street were ordered cut down but it was a little late as the damage had been done.

Just as water finds its own level so do the elm roots find their way through the earth to the water pipes. Along the pipes to the joints and in they go. The rest is simple enough. Properly fed by the running water they grow with exuberance and pretty soon they occupy the whole interior of the pipe. In the long run they will eventually choke the pipe and make the passage of water through it impossible.

Flood in River.

The heavy up-country rains last Friday have put the river here on a rapid rise again. The water is close to flood stage with a prospect of going higher.

DESERT COLONEL ROOSEVELT

ORGANIZE FOR TAFT INST

IT HAD BEEN EXPECTED TO LINE UP 1000 ADHERENTS AT LEAST TO T. R.

Charlotte, March 18.—Although the call had been heralded broadcast for a mass meeting at which it was expected to form a Roosevelt club 1000 men strong today, the admirers of the Colonel somehow failed to materialize at the crucial moment, and instead leading local Republicans and independent Democrats took the bull by the horns and affected the organization of a Taft club announcing the immediate opening of permanent headquarters. Ed M. Bell was chosen secretary and will have general charge of the campaign to best the re-election of the President. The strength of the movement for Taft which took such unexpected shape today is well shown by the fact that the advisory board of the organization is composed of such men as W. S. Lee, vice-president and general manager of the Southern Power Company; A. J. Draper, president of the Chadwick Hoskins string of cotton mills; A. H. Washburn, southern agent of the Bib Saco Pettee concern of New England; Walter R. Henry, former southern bank examiner, and others equally prominent.

The Roosevelt boosters declare that they will form an organization at a later date.

GOV. KITCHIN AGAIN HITS SEN. SIMMONS

REITERATES CHALLENGE FOR DEBATE

Representative and Attentive Audience Greet Governor's First Visit to His Home State Since the Senatorial Campaign Started—Speech Was Well Received.

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 19.—

Governor William Walton Kitchin came to Greensboro last night and before a representative audience made the first public appeal to the people of the fifth, his home district, to send him to the United States senate to occupy the seat now held by Hon. F. M. Simmons. The speech was well received, though at no time did it evoke a demonstration or produce a scene which might be described as wildly enthusiastic. It was, as he added, an emphasis on his Raleigh speech, in which he charged that the Senior Senator from North Carolina was out of harmony with his party on its fundamental tariff principles, that instead of helping the party he had hindered it, that his course had created dissension in the party and that had the party made his record it would today be in the quicksands of destruction. He reiterated the charge that had the democratic party followed Simmons there could be no hope for a democratic success. Diverging from his manuscript which related to the record of Senator Simmons, Governor Kitchin reiterated the challenge flung out at Raleigh that the Senior Senator meet him in joint debate and answer the charges which he had made and expected to continue to make throughout his campaign.

TOO MANY LAWYERS.

According to Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Evening Journal, lawyers are allowed to play too important a part in our lives and to judge by a recent editorial, or collection of editorials, published by the New York World, Brisbane was right.

A comparison of the number of lawyers sitting in the House of Lords and the House of Commons, in Great Britain, and in the House of Representatives and in the Senate in the United States, shows very clearly why we are not getting better legislation and enforcement of laws.

In Great Britain's case, in the House of Lords, out of a total of 619 members, 156 are lawyers or about a quarter. In the House of Commons, out of 663 M. P.'s 151 are lawyers, or also, about a quarter.

Now take our own case. There are 91 U. S. Senators. Of these, 49 are lawyers, or a little over a half. In the House of Representatives out of 391 representatives, there are 220 gentlemen of the bar or approximately two-thirds of the total number.

With so many legal minds in both Senate and House the illegality of the many measures and bills consummated there seems an impossibility. Yet facts are opposite to fiction and we certainly are very far from living a life of romance these high-cost-of-living days.

It may be that lawyers, like men of other professions, grow callous as they get better acquainted with their work. For instance take the case of a structural engineer. First time he goes on his job he may feel quakle about it. The next time it won't seem so bad and he will wind up by hanging from his toes from a girder swinging in mid-air twenty stories above the street pavement. He has grown callous. He has lost the respect due to the risky calling he has followed.

About the same things may and probably do happen to the lawyer. In college he is told, at least we hope so, that law is something sacred, and must be held so by all people trying to gain a knowledge of it. Perhaps at first stern faces, deep voices, and the thickness of the volumes he has to wade through, fill him with profound respect and a great deal of awe for his chosen profession. Later follows the confidence of knowledge. It also must be remembered that the lawyer in going through college is told that the idea of learning the law is to fit him to defend and uphold it when the collegial grind is over and the young man takes the office with the meagre rug and the lone typewriter.

But, let us suppose him through with the long grind. He occupies that mentioned office and in opening the door to his new client the sacredness of the law comes to him and remembering what he has been told about championing the old dame (law) he makes up his mind that that is his motto for life: Upholding the law.

Remembering about the often quoted lines of Robert Burns: "The best laid schemes of mice and men oft gang a-glee" or words to that effect. Much too often the lawyer's plans and schemes do gang a-glee and before he is very old he has a more practical idea of what "upholding the law" should be. In a few words, he rewrites the law and whenever he is allowed he interprets it according to which platter on the scales holds the precious bacon.

Like the structural engineer, with a little practice, he hangs by his toes from the judicial chain and juggles his law-books to the glorious tune of "I can't get around it".

Of course no lawyer should be blamed for wanting to get to the Senate or the House. Far from it. A lawyer is just as human as a structural engineer and he knows a good thing when he sees it coming. The fault lies with the voter who will not realize that the laws we had were pretty good, and that if we did want good lawyers to sit on the benches, it was just as true that we wanted men from the different callings to represent us both in the Senate and in the House.

If we were to send up men who were better acquainted with our needs to the two mentioned buildings, it is more than probable that we would have a much better government.

FOR A MILITARY COMPANY.

As announced in our issue of yesterday, some of our young men have been lately talking Military Company and it is to be hoped that the project will not end in what it began: Talk.

There are enough young men in Greenville, and the majority of them could spare the time to form such a company and devote a little time, say once or twice a week, to perfect themselves into an organization that will be of the worth-while kind. This addition would be most welcome to our community and there is no end of purpose it might serve.

We already have a "hustling" business club. The ladies of the town have some four or five womens' clubs. The boys have organized successfully the Boy Scouts, and if the thing is properly launched, we ought to have a pretty good military company.

A gymnasium fitted up with baths, etc., etc., would not be altogether a luxury and might well take the place of the Y. M. C. A. that we lack. In fact it might be a good deal better than any Y. M. C. A. that we may have in the future.

It certainly is not a question as to how the thing could be accomplished. That's easy enough. Just as it would be very easy to bring our young men together and prepare some plan that would make the project possible.

Some real "Iser" is wanted to come forward and express his opinion in the matter of how best to start the ball rolling.

People have a mistaken idea when they think they are bettering themselves when they order goods from a city which could be bought from the home merchant. Pictures in catalogues may have an attractive appearance and the prices quoted look cheap, but the articles bought in that way seldom come up to representation and are rarely, if ever, worth the price paid for them. Having been paid for in advance, the purchaser cannot return the goods nor get his money back, even though he may be humbugged in the deal. In dealing with the home merchant the purchaser can examine the article before buying to see if it is what is wanted and worth the price asked for it. There is every advantage in trading at home.

A San Franciscoan lost a leg in an accident and provided a regular funeral for the dismembered limb. The leg was placed in a small coffin and sent in a white hearse followed by carriages to the cemetery where a formal funeral was held. A tombstone on which is graven "Step by Step" is to be erected over the grave. That fellow is certainly "one foot in the grave".

Plant Shade Trees

The park, trees and floral culture committee of the Civic Betterment league, of this city, in another column draws attention to the desirability of, and the profit to be derived from public co-operation in the planting of shade trees along our residence streets. The committee, however, believing that there is more power in deeds than words, has obtained from the Baltimore estate specially reduced prices on maples and English elms, perhaps the most attractive of all shade trees. The public is urged to buy these trees while the low prices are maintained.

Here is a work that every properly holder, as well as the average citizen interested in the betterment of conditions in this city, can take hold of with enthusiasm. The Civic Betterment league of Asheville is no longer an experiment, but a living reality, already showing the results of its efforts. It is officered by women of our city who are inspired by none other than patriotic motives, a sort of "civic loyalty" we may term it. Co-operation on the part of the public with the announced objects of the league's work will in a few years make Asheville known everywhere as "The City Beautiful."—Asheville Citizene.

Dr. Wiley's Personality

It will be an easy matter no doubt for the government to find a competent successor to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley as chief chemist of the department of agriculture; but it is extremely doubtful that it will find his equal in stimulating popular thought and in turning public opinion to definite account.

Dr. Wiley is of that rare type of men who not only fill but also illumine whatever position they may hold. Had he remained a college professor he would still have become known to the nation, in a different but scarcely less impressive manner. For, he carries with him the one open sesame to common interest, and that is personality.

He personalized certain truths and agencies in which the public had hitherto taken little concern, although they bore vitally upon the public's daily well-being. The average man knows little and cares less of reports and test tubes, calories and carbonhydrates. But, the whole will turn to watch a man who is humanly interesting, and it will listen to such a one whether he talks politics or chemistry.

Because of his gift in just this particular, Dr. Wiley has invigorated the government's pure food department and has brought it to close to millions of households. He has set the people to thinking upon the importance of pure food and thus he has imparted life and force to a set of laws which without the backing of popular sentiment would have been little more than letters.

He has frequently accomplished with a single epigram a task that would have baffled an equally expert scientist who speaks in conventional terms. He is a first-class fighting man, is this chemist, for in recent encounters he has worsted two cabinet members and has omre than held his own against the entire reactionary force of the administration family. His resignation will be a matter of common regret and his future will be watched with keen interest.—Atlanta Journal.

Gen. George P. Harrison, one of the few surviving generals of the Confederate States Army, was born near Savannah, Ga., March 19, 1841. At the beginning of the civil war he and his father entered the Confederate army and both rose to the rank of brigadier-general. The son was a colonel before has was 20 years of age and a brigadier-general before he was 22, being the youngest brigadier-general commissioned by the Confederate government. After the war he removed to Alabama, where he attained distinction as a lawyer. He served several terms in the Alabama legislature and one term as a member of Congress. ## Help! The Passionate Householder to His Love.

(Reprinted by demand of one who has lost faith in want ads, employment agencies and honest looking eyes that promise her to be there, Thursday morning, sure, yes'm.)

Come live with us and be our cook, And we will all the whimsies brook That German, Irish, Afric Slav And all the dear domestics have.

And you shall sit upon the stoop What time we cook the evening soup, And you shall hear by night and day, Melodies, and pianolas play.

We'll make the beds and sweep, of course; You'll have two autos and a horse, A maiden to marcel your tresses And all your lady's half-worn dresses.

Your gowns shall be of lace and silk, Your laving shall be done in milk; You'll have three doctors if you cough And Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays off.

While you are peeling common spuds You'll wear the very finest duds. If good to you these prospects look, Come live with us and be our cook.

On callers we have put no stops, We love the milkman and the cops, And no alarm-clock with its ticks, No bell to ring at half-past six.

O Gretchen, Bridget, Clara, Mary, Come, be our genius culinary. If good to you these prospects look, Come, live with us and be our cook.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES

Training School Societies.

The March meetings of the two literary societies were of especial interest. On Saturday evening the Edgar Allan Poe Society had a Dickens program. The first half of the program was made up of literary material on Dickens gathered from current magazines. The second half was "a visit from Dicken's People," a series of tableaux and scenes bringing in the favorites from Dickens. Great ingenuity was shown in getting up the costumes and copying the mannerisms of Mr. Picknick, Sam Wells, the fat boy, Dick Smirler, Mr. Micawber and the various other characters. At the close of the program the society Glee Club sang "A Dainty Plant in the Ivy Green."

On Monday evening the Sidney Lanier Society had a St. Patrick's Day program. Various interesting papers and clippings on St. Patrick's Day, Ireland and the Irish were read and told. An amusing contest to see which could tell the best Irish joke was held. Miss Sabra Sykes won the prize. Miss Arlene Joyner sang two beautiful Irish songs.

Y. M. C. A. Services.

The music committee of the Y. M. C. A. had charge of the Sunday evening services. They told of the life and work of George Matheson, one of the famous hymn writers and sang hymns written by him.

All who continue to sell them after this date will have to pay the required tax for selling pistols and cartridges. This February 17, 1912. S. I. DUDLEY, Sheriff.

J. J. JENKINS, Greenville, N. C.

Robin Hood of Sherwood Forest, or "Dick-Bend-the-Bow."

"Here begynneth a lytell geste of Robyn Hode and his myne and of the proude sheriffe of Nottingham."

Lithe and listen, gentylnen, That be of freeborn glode, I shall tell you of a good yeoman, His name was Robyn Hode. Robyn was a proude outlawe, Whiles he walked on gronde; So courtesye an outlawe as he was one Was never none yfounde."

The severity of the tyrannical forest laws introduced by the Norman kings at a time when Englishmen were everywhere trained in the art of shooting with the long bow, occasioned a great number of outlaws. These fled to the woods for shelter and, forming into troops, endeavored by their numbers to protect themselves. Among these Robin Hood, whose chief residence was in Shirewood Forest, Nottinghamshire, was affirmed to be "of all thieves the prince and most gentil theefe."

Born at Locksley, his real name was Robert Fitzooth. Having out-run his fortune and being outlawed, he lived as a free-boater in Barnsdale, Sherwood and Plompton Park. Historians tell us that his betes noires were the abbot of St. Mary's, in York, and the sheriff of Nottingham; that he took the goods of rich men only, wrighted woman's wrongs and charitably fed the poor. He killed no man save in self defense, but "entertained an hundred tall en and good archers upon whom four hundred—were they ever so strong—dared not make the onset." He was the famous subject of popular songs as early as the reign of Edward III. The Wizard of the North introduced him into two novels. Innumerable legends have gathered about his name and many dramatic pieces have had him for their hero. Such a play has been written for the May Fete at the State Normal College by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Douglas of Greensboro. Mrs. Douglas is an honored alumna of the college and a member of the Adelpian Literary Society, while her husband is an honorary member of the Cornelian Literary Society.

Robin's personal courage, his skill in archery, his fidelity to his comrades and his humanity rendered him a universal favorite and bestowed upon him the dignity of an earl. On his tombstone near Kirkley's nunnery, where his treacherous sister bled him to death in his old age, is inscribed this epitaph: "Here underneath this little stone Lies Robert, Earl of Huntingdon. No archer as he so good, And people called him Robin Hood. Such outlaws as he and his men Will England never see again."

Robin will come to life for the May Fete at the Greensboro Normal College, May 18th.

To Test Murderers Sanity.

SALEM, Va., March 19.—The commission composed of Dr. W. F. Drewey and Dr. J. C. King, which is charged with examining into the sanity of Johna Raines, the confessed murderer of Miss Eva M. Chambers, a school teacher of Roanoke county, resumed its work here today after an intermission of two weeks and heard a number of witnesses. Upon the result of the investigation and the report of the commission it will depend whether Raines will have to stand trial for the murder of Miss Chambers or whether he will be sent to the state institution for the insane.

Raines is a prosperous farmer of Roanoke county and lived with his wife and two children near Cave Spring. Some time ago gossip led to difference between Raines and Miss Chambers. Raines tried to have her removed from the school, but failed. The situation was aggravated by the fact that Miss Chambers filed suit against Mrs. Raines, asking $10,000 day of the murder, January 24, of this damages for alleged slander. On the year, Raines went to see Miss Chambers at her home and asked her to drop her suit against Mrs. Raines. Miss Chambers refused and Raines became so furious that he drew his revolver and fired four shots at Miss Chambers, killing her in her track. Before the murderer gave himself up he went to a neighbor's farm and fired five shots at a man named Charles Day, with whom he had had some difficulty. One of the shots hit Day in the right arm. Raines made no effort to flee, but voluntarily surrendered to the sheriff, confessing his crime, but refusing any additional information.

COLORED INSTITUTE NEWS.

The colored teachers of Martin county met in regular session Saturday, March the 9th in the Colored Graded School at Williamston. The discussion of the subject "How to teach spelling in the primary grades," opened by Prof. W. V. Ormond, was very interesting. The other speak-ers on the subject were Miss Emma E. Andrews and Prof. Chas. S. Mitchell, special instructor in agricul-ture at Parmele. They were follow-td by Mr. Fitzgerald of Durham, who spoke encouragingly of the work of the teacher.

The principal address was delivered by the Rev. Geo. J. Dowell, formerly superintendent of Durham county schools. He spoke upon the building of character as a necessity in the life of a teacher that the same may be inspired in the lives of his pupils. A few silent points from the Rev. Dowell's address are as follows: "Man may not be worth much in dol-lars and cents but he can be a mil-lionaire in character. Build up a good name. It matters not what one is worth, he is nothing if he has not character. Mans life does not con-sist in the abundance of his material worth, but upon the morality of his character." He gave two rules for character building. The first was ad-dition. "One needs to add," says he. "Add diligence. One cannot have character unless he is diligent in his business and fervent in spirit. He will lead a better life and become a willing worker. Jesus Christ was a willing worker. He dignified labor. Thus it is an honor for man to work. The hand that works is that of an honest man. Who fills the jails and floods the court houses? It is not the busy man, but the worthless, care-less man. The busy man does not doubt Christianity. To succeed, one needs faith. Man should possess vir-tue. Virtue means courage. Be able to say yes or no at the right time. It takes a man to do this. Be a man, don't be a mere cipher. Try to do good, be patient, be virtuous. Ex-ercise self control. Napoleon con-trolled armies, but could not control himself."

His next rule was subtraction. "Lay aside malice, guile and evil speaking and grace and peace will multiply upon you. Separate your-selves from bad company. Touch not unclean things, and so conduct your-selves from bad company. Touch not you," thundered the orator with pow-er of eloquence. The speaker closed his excellent address by directing the minds of his hearers to the life of George Washington as being well worth emulating. His address was thoroughly enjoyed by all who heard him, and his trend of thought was inspiring to those who have the moral courage to speak out and take the stand for right living.

The power to wield an influence for good or evil over any race is in the church and in the school. The future of the colored population in many communities of Eastern North Carolina is being stifled and com-pletely paralyzed because of immoral leadership. The schools should be the agency necessary to bring about the desired relief. But this cannot be accomplished unless those who, at least, take some pride in their moral fitness are put at the head of the schools. It will be exceedingly dif-ficult to secure the right kind of men so long as men of political shrewd-ness instead of men of moral fitness, are given the preference.

What the race needs today is not a leader to play the game of politics for personal aggrandizement at the sacrifice of its manhood and the proper interpretation of moral char-acter, but the leader who strives to live a clean and honorable life and to raise those about him to a higher plane of living. Men do not devel-op along all lines at the same time. Usually they develop along some par-ticular line at the expense of another line. The man who makes himself a professional politician and depends only upon his knowledge of such to get through is generally unfit for the position he secures through polit-ical wire manipulation; especially such positions as head of a church or a school and he may be counted upon to sell or destroy for a mess of pottage that which any race or na-tion should hold as the most sacred in its possession. The man who at-tempts, willfully and without cause, to main the physical being for life is not only an enemy to the human race, but is wholly unworthy of the respect of a citizen. Moreover, the man who would willfully destroy both the intellectual and moral being is infinitely worse than being an un-worthy citizen.

W. C. CHANCE, President.

Maine Democrats in Session.

AGUSTA, Me., March 19.—The Democratic State convention to se-lect six delegates to represent Maine in the national convention at Balti-more assembled in the city hall with United States Senator Charles F. Johnson presiding. Occupying seats on the platform were Governor Plais-ted, Senator Gardner, Congressman Mc-Gillicuddy and Gould and other leaders who helped to place the Dem-ocratic party in power in Maine a year ago after the Republicans had held almost undisputed sway for several decades. A marked division of sentiment appears among the leaders in regards the indorsement of a can-didate for the presidential nomina-tion. Woodrow Wilson is the pref-erence of Senator Johnson and a num-ber of others who stand high in the party councils, but it is considered doubtful is the Wilson sentiment is strong enough to result in an in-structed delegation.

SAID SHE WOULD FAINT

Mrs. Della Long Unable to Stand On Her Feet More Than a Few Minutes at a Time.

Pendergrass, Ga.—Mrs. Della Long, of this place, in a recent letter, says: "For five or six years, I suffered agonies with womanly troubles.

Often, I couldn't sit up more than a few minutes at a time, and if I stood on my feet long, I would faint.

I took Cardui, and it helped me im-mediately. Now, I can do my work all the time, and don't suffer like I did."

Take Cardui when you feel ill in any way—weak, tired, miserable, or under the weather. Cardui is a strength-building tonic medicine for women.

It has been found to relieve pain and distress caused by womanly troubles, and is an excellent medicine to have on hand at all times.

Cardui acts on the womanly consti-tution, building up womanly strength, toning up the nerves, and regulating the womanly organs.

Its half century of success is due to merit. It has done good to thousands.

Will you try it? It may be just what you need. Ask your druggist about Cardui. He will recommend it.
