URGE RENOMINATION OF COL. BRYAN GRIMES

Citizens of Pitt County Urge Recognition of His Services by Renomination as Secretary of State

A MOST CAPABLE MAN

As the time approaches for the nomination of state officers, it is natural that all of our people should be considering the most competent and available man for each position. The office of secretary of state is one of great importance. The Democratic party has always so considered it. They have done so to such an extent that when they have a thoroughly competent man in the position, it has rarely ever been the case that they have changed him. This has really been a principle with the Democratic party. So fixed has been this principle, that from 1776 to 1859, a space of eighty-three years, only three incumbents occupied the office. Until the war, the secretaries of state were retained in office regardless of their party affiliations and since the war, they have been retained in this office until removed by death or party changes, as their knowledge and experience rendered them more valuable to all the interests of the state. The Department of State is the great record office of the state. Here are deposited all the plats and surveys upon which all the lands of the state have been granted. Here are kept all the deeds, maps, manuscripts, laws and original documents of North Carolina. Here all corporations are chartered and supervised, all laws enrolled and prepared for printing, all grants issued, all automobiles licensed, etc.

The people are vitally interested in having the best and most efficient man they can get in this office. In these days of quick changes and conflicting opinions in our ranks, it is wise to consider well the temperament, strength, capability and absolute efficiency of any candidate for office and more especially for this office.

Pitt county will again present the name of its honored son, Col. J. Bryan Grimes, for renomination for the office of Secretary of State by the next Democratic State convention. He has been tried. He has fully met the expectations and desires of the party. He is eminently qualified to fill the position both from the standpoint of intelligence and experience. He is conservative in its best sense, and his steadfast convictions and fixed purposes have been most valuable to the state on more than one important occasion.

As a member of the Council of State Board of Public Buildings and Grounds, State Board of Education.

WAS HE MURDERED?

RELATIVES OF PARRISH SUSPECT

YOUNG MAN BURNED IN DURHAM BOARDING HOUSE HAD A SUM OF MONEY

DURHAM, April 10.—There is considerable talk here that there will be a further investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. Bernice Parrish in the fire that partially destroyed the High boarding house early last Saturday morning. A brother and a nephew of Parrish spent several hours here Monday investigating the unfortunate affair, but they left without giving any definite information as to what they had discovered, if anything. They visited the scene of the death and questioned the firemen, the undertaker who prepared the body for shipment to Coats and all others who were in a position to throw any light on the tragedy. There are several phases of the occurrence that seem to puzzle them and it was along these as well as general lines, that the relatives investigated. The deceased was known to have had money on his person in both paper and silver dollars, yet no signs of these or of a leather wallet were found.

Tar Heel May Act as Counsel

James H. Pou Suggested to the Committee by Representative Daugherty, of Mississippi. Important Task in Investigation into Money Trust.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9.—James H. Pou, of Raleigh, is being considered as counsel of the banking and currency committee of the House in its investigation of the money trust. His name was suggested to the committee by Representative Daugherty of Mississippi, at a meeting this evening. Mr. Daugherty said that he did not know Mr. Pou personally, but that he North Carolinian had been highly recommended to him. The committee decided to write to Mr. Pou along with several New York lawyers to inquire if he would take the work and to ask him to suggest terms.

The committee has gone slowly in selecting counsel, having already eliminated a number of men who were being considered. It is recognized that the selection of counsel is one of the most important tasks that faces the committee.

"FLAGRANT MISUSE OF OFFICIAL AUTHORITY"

COTTON DEALING METHODS DISCUSSED BY MR. THOMPSON

ADVISE GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION OF COTTON AND GRAIN BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Government supervision of grain and cotton exchanges as the relief from violent fluctuation in prices of commodities and the safeguard against universal speculation and gambling was proposed by W. B. Thompson, former president of the New Orleans cotton exchange, who appeared before the House committee on agriculture to oppose the anti-cotton bills.

"I believe you should standardize the business methods of dealing in cotton as well as the grades of cotton," he said. "If the exchanges will not adopt your cotton grades I believe this would be a proper field for legislation."

He contended that future buying and selling afforded the cotton dealers the "hedging" facilities needed to protect the cotton market. He said that this protection extended to both grower and spinner of cotton and he predicted an absolute destruction of the business if the exchanges were closed by the bills now pending.

Will Pave Statesville Streets

Measure Comes Before Board of Aldermen and it is Almost Certain now that the Principal Streets will be Paved—Cement Sidewalks.

Statesville, April 10.—Statesville is to take a long step forward this spring by paving two of the principal streets of the town, this having been decided at the regular April meeting of the board of aldermen. The paving question has been under consideration for several months and a special committee from the board has been investigating the best materials to be used and estimating costs. The paving district will include Center street from Water street to the Southern Railway station and Broad street from Tradd to meeting. Both of these are 100 feet wide. It was ordered that for one block each way from the square 20-foot cement sidewalks be laid and the remaining 80 feet be paved. On Center street from Front to near the depot two 20 foot driveways will be paved, leaving a space of 20 feet in the middle of the street for Park purposes. The material to be used for the permanent street work will be tarvia.

QUEEN'S MAID OF HONOR A BRIDE

LONDON, April 11.—With the King and Queen smiling approval, Lady Eileen Butler, the Queen's most beautiful maid of honor, today became the bride of the Marquis of Stafford, at the most brilliant wedding that London expects to see this season. The bride is the daughter of Lord and Lady Lanesborough, while the bridegroom is the son and heir of the Duke of Sutherland.

St. Peter's was the scene of the wedding ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, had no fewer than fourteen bridesmaids. The bridal gown was of rich brocade, patterned with a large design in gold. It was in the form of a Venetian robe, cut square to outline a yoke of old Irish lace.

The wedding reception was held at Grosvenor House, lent for the occasion by the Duke and Duchess of Westminster. It brought together all the members of London's highest social set, and was as brilliant as the marriage ceremony.

Secretary Charged With Having Committed "a Great and Irreparable Wrong" in Ainsworth Case.

PERMITTED RETIREMENT

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9.—President Taft and Secretary Stimson are severely arraigned in a sensational report on the Ainsworth case presented to the House today by the military affairs committee.

Secretary Stimson is charged with having committed a "great and irreparable wrong" and "a flagrant misuse of authority" when last February he suspended General Ainsworth from his duties as adjutant general of the army and charged him with insubordination. That the president and Secretary Stimson prejudged the case, that the accusation against the general were based upon prejudice and that the secretary of war has an "erroneous idea" of his relation to congress are some of the conclusions reached by a majority of the committee of which Representative Hay, of Virginia is chairman.

Following General Ainsworth's relief from duty and when a court-martial seemed probable the president permitted him to retire from the army because of his long service. The report follows an investigation of Ainsworth's relief from duty, set afoot by a resolution by Representative Watkins, of Louisiana.

Criticizing the relief of General Ainsworth the report declares the "worst feature of it was that this officer of long and distinguished service had no tribunal to which he could appeal with any hope of justice or fair treatment."

THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1912.

NEITHER HAVE WE.

Have you seen them in Greenville? Looking through the Atlanta Journal we notice pictures of garden borders surrounding some of the homes in Peachtree Road, Atlanta. And as we notice them we can't help feeling a little jealous. Perhaps not really jealous, but something akin to that uncomfortable condition is what we feel when seeing them.

Why? Simply because they are in Atlanta and not in Greenville. The striking part is that there is, to our knowledge, no reason on earth why we should not share with Atlanta the pleasure of growing flowers. The delight of being surrounded by flowers. The cheer of the presence of flowers.

The days when we live materially longer are with us and no man or woman in Greenville could truthfully say: "I have no time to attend to the little garden in front of my house". We usually find time to do most things which we really want to accomplish and it seems a great pity that home gardening is not amongst them.

Most people will tell you, who have been abroad, that the Latin races are very cheerful. That life glides through for them in one continued song, a life-long streak of sunshine and a smile. And whoever tells you that is right. Unquestionably right. There is, however, something that your informant will not tell you. And that is "Where the Latin races derive their cheerfulness from." They derive it from their surroundings. It is true that climate helps a great deal in the art of being cheerful. But, sunshine is not absolutely all. Clean and neat surroundings will take the place of absent sunshine. We here in Greenville, however, can hardly complain of not having our share of sun rays.

Latin people are passionately fond of flowers. In fact to the majority of Latins a flowerless life would be an empty one. Even in cities where ground is at a premium which puts it far beyond the reach of the middle class they will not do without flowers. Window sills and roofs are covered with a multitude of flower pots and boxes and a sprinkling can is as useful in a Latin household as a boiler to a locomotive. For a Latin man or woman must have flowers wherever he or she be. And it is unquestionable that they derive most of their cheerfulness from them.

In a town of the size of Greenville, where practically every household has a little plot in front of his house it is a great pity that this plot should not be put to a better advantage than as a receptacle of waste paper and rubbish. It can't be that we do not appreciate flowers. We are willing to pay good prices for them whenever we sent for them and why we should not take pleasure (for it is not pain) to raise them is a puzzle. If every man or woman who owns or rents a house with front garden were to dedicate at least half an hour to producing cheerfulness in the form of flowers, we would have one of the prettiest towns in the south. And godness knows that we would never miss thirty minutes so employed.

COL. J. BRYAN GRIMES.

Friends and admirers of the Secretary of State are urging the renomination of Col. J. Bryan Grimes for the office he now fitfully occupies.

The attention of these friends is fully deserved by the valuable service rendered by Mr. Grimes since he has held the position.

If party principles are to stand for anything, the mere fact that during a lapse of 80 years there were only three incumbents to the office, should add weight to the renomination of Mr. Grimes. The office of Secretary of State is of such a nature that once the citizen occupying the office has shown ability he should not be removed except by natural causes. His work is such that the longer he is connected with it the more beneficial his efforts will be. And there is no question as to the true ability shown by the present Secretary of State.

The endorsement tendered by the citizens alluded to is but a recognition of the good work done by Mr. Grimes and all people who sincerely have the interests of the county at heart should join in the movement to keep Col. Grimes at the helm.

You had just as well get the thing fixed in your mind, if you are a delinquent, that no poll tax receipt by May means no vote in November.

Roosevelt's "call of the people" is about on a par with some newspapers "filling a long felt need".

They are about to find out that they can't find out Sidna Allen.

The row between Taft and Roosevelt is not a Democratic funeral.

Next month town politics will demand some attention.

There is something else big brewing for Greenville.

Aycock Memorial.

Wayne county moved promptly in the matter of erecting a monument to the lamented Aycock and there has been an equally prompt response all over the state. Wake county is already organized and joined hands with Wayne in this work of love. The press will gladly aid in the work in every way possible. Speaking of the plan for a monument the Charlotte Observer says: "Within less than twenty-four hours after Ex-Governor Aycock's death there had been organized in his former home city of Goldsboro the Wayne County Monument Association for the purpose of contributing to a memorial, and one thousand dollars had been pledged. It is expected that contributions will be forthcoming from all over the state. In this matter Goldsboro asks the assistance of the state press. The plan is to erect a statue in Raleigh. Both of these features were heartily approved.

"By some people it will doubtless be said that Governor Aycock should have as his memorial an educational building or fund. We hope that there will be more than one memorial of this kind. But we also hope that the state will permit no such project to interfere with a memorial whose erection shall serve no object beyond commemorating him. His life and public work were of that kind which cannot be adequately commemorated unless they are commemorated thus. The box of precious ointment hath a meaning not fully manifest in any other wise. If the people of the state endow themselves and name the endowment for Aycock, they pour out a spirit of pure sacrifice or affection upon him. They are not in the position of one who would commemorate another by this means—it is from the people themselves to contributions are asked. Let them give wholly to Aycock. Let them not give to themselves except the high reward of having expressed their affection and set him as a perpetual inspiration before the state.

"In the capitol grounds at Raleigh there will soon be unveiled a statue of Charles Duncan McIver, an educator who did splendid things in the field where Aycock's best battle to lasting remembrance was won. The two were co-workers and warm friends. There should be a statue of Charles Brantley Aycock to keep company with McIver's no matter what additional tribute any man or number of men may pay." The memorial meeting to be held here Friday night will be the greatest meeting of the kind ever held in the state. On that night Mr. Aycock was to have opened his campaign for the senatorship. Soon after his death of Mr. Aycock expressions began to come in asking that a memorial service be held on the night set for the opening of the campaign and this was agreed upon. The whole state will be represented in the meeting. From every section of the world comes that people are anxious to attend this memorial and by their presence pay tribute to the memory of the departed leader.

Reforming The Jury System

One of the chief reforms the North Carolina Bar Association has under consideration and that has been analyzed by the special committee appointed by the association is the jury system. Not, of course, to change the manner of the system as to verdicts and the rights of the people, but in relation to the saving of time and money, and first of all, in the rendition of quicker and clearer justice. In other words, the Association wants to reform the system in order that so much time will not be consumed in the selection of a jury, and if anything was wanted to illustrate to the people of New Hanover county the need of such reform the procedure in the present Holly trial certainly can have furnished it. Two entire days were consumed in getting a jury in this case. It was not the fault of the court, nor of the lawyers, because the latter naturally and quite commendably wanted to safeguard their client in every way, but the law governing the getting of jurors was at fault and consequently two days were devoted in selecting a jury, which meant that valuable time was lost; not only time as calculated in money, but in justice to other people in litigation in the Superior Court, because, by reason of the loss of this time, a number of civil actions will have to be shoved aside for this term. As we understand it, the Bar Association intends to strive to reform the jury system in this respect, and it is well. There are too many grounds of disqualifications for jurors. For instance, if a man has served on the jury in two years is one ground for exclusion for cause. Another wide ground is if a man has formed an opinion in the case. This latter is a delicate matter, and yet when a case of much moment is up it is hard to obtain a juror who has not expressed an opinion, even though he would do his duty if he entered the jury box. This is a knotty question, but, as a learned Judge said, not long ago, to excuse all men who had formed an opinion, would be to turn away from the jury box about all the intelligence. Just how a man has formed an opinion, as to the innocence or guilt of the defendant, should not be specified in open court, because it may have a bad effect on other Courts in some of the States do not require the prospective juror to say how; that he has formed an opinion is sufficient for information, as in favor of which side he has formed it could have no possible effect upon justice itself.—Wilmington Dispatch.
