ROOT TO CALL POLICE IF DELEGATES ATTEMPT TO BOLT

Latest Chicago Bulletin.
ROOSEVELT HAS DECLARED HIMSELF WILLING TO HEAD ANOTHER PARTY AND CUT LOOSE OF CONVENTION—READS DECLARATION TO FRIENDS, "FOR RANK AND FILE OF REPUBLICAN PARTY AND THE HONEST PEOPLE OF THE ENTIRE NATION."

Special to Reflector
CHICAGO, Ill., June 20. (Noon).—It is no longer a secret that ex-President Roosevelt, disgusted with the turn affairs are taking at the Coliseum has rented a large hall and is now planning to bolt the convention. It is generally discussed and admitted by even the most conservative that Roosevelt's followers will make a second convention possible. Root's argues in learning the fact that the GOVERNOR HIRAM W. JOHNSON, CALIFORNIA.

Colonel had taken such steps, that should Teddy's delegates bolt, he will do his utmost to thwart the move, he having hinted that the police will be called in to detain delegates.

Roosevelt said to his loyal delegates "AS FAR AS I AM CONCERNED I AM THROUGH. HOPE THAT IF YOU ARE LOYAL AND WILL REMAIN SO TO THE PARTY, WILL REALIZE YOUR STRENGTH AND ACT ACCORDINGLY"—This was generally taken as an invitation to be ready to follow the Colonel to his new arena.

Gov. Johnson, of California, a steadfast friend of the ex-president, was equally strong in expressing his disgust for the methods employed at the convention by the Taft ring. Johnson said this morning, "I AM THROUGH FIGHTING WITH MY FISTS AND WILL NOW TAKE A CLUB."

Nothing but routine work is expected to come up before the committee today. Many Rooseveltites are sticking to him through thick and thin while others will not quit the party for any consideration.

Chicago, Ill., June 19.—The credentials committee of the Republican national convention broke up in a row shortly before midnight.

Chicago, June 19.—The Roosevelt forces met their second defeat in the Republican national convention today in a session which had for its outstanding feature a remarkable demonstration of nearly an hours duration in honor of Governor Herbert S. Hadley, of Missouri.

All of the Roosevelt delegates joined in this demonstration, while some of the Taft states lent a voice. The ovation to the Missouri executive was quickly interrupted by many of the delegates as the possible forerunner of a boom for Hadley for president. One enthusiastic Pennsylvanian jumped to the stage and called: "Three cheers for Hadley, the next President of the United States".

Governor Hadley led the fight on the convention floor today to out 92 contested Taft delegates and to seat 92 Roosevelt men in their places. The convention finally refused to entertain the motion by a vote of 564 to 510.

This transferred the fight to the committee on credentials, appointed just before the convention adjourned until tomorrow noon.

The Convention Story.
CHICAGO, Ill., June 19.—At 10 o'clock an hour before the convention time, less than 200 spectators were in the hall and but eight of the delegates seats were occupied. James D. Preston, in charge of the press section of the convention hall, came in with a big bundle of mail.

"The Coliseum postmaster wanted me to help him get the newspapers mail," he said. "It's all for one reporter, William Jennings Bryan." Soon after Chairman Root had arrived on the platform he was flanked on one side by Governor Hadley, the Roosevelt leader and on the other side by James Watson, of the Taft forces.

Chairman Root finally pounded the table with his gavel at 11.15 a. m. and ordered the sergeant at arms to clear the aisles.

Then pounding on the table, Root announced:

"The exercises—I mean the business of this day will be opened with prayer by the Rev Joseph Stolz."

The delegates and alternates and every person in the galleries arose and stood during the invocation.

Postpone Meeting of Good Roads Movement

LEXINGTON, June 19.—Col. H. B. Varner, president of the North Carolina Good Roads Association announced today that the annual convention of the association will be held August 1 and 2 instead of July 25 and 26, as announced from Chapel Hill. This change is ordered by Colonel Varner because the July dates conflicted with the meeting of the state press association. Among the prominent speakers on the program are Locke Craig, Senator Simmons, John H. Small and E. Y. Webb. An Carried Booze in Trouser Leg.

Durham Herald.
When the police searched Tom Dorton, a one-legged man, who along with five other white men were arrested for gambling early Sunday morning, they found that the man who had lost his limb was using the empty trouser leg as an itinerant bar room. The man had his leg cut off just below the hip and had tied the empty half of his trousers at the knee and above this he had crammed quart bottle of whiskey and a number of small bottles. The police relieved him of this burden, and he, along with his companions were placed in the guard house to await a hearing on the charge of gambling.

FERRELL - MITCHELL WEDDING

St. Paul's in Kinston Scene of Brilliant Ceremony

One of the most prominent marriage ceremonies and one which aroused the liveliest interest in social circles in different cities in the state, took place last night in Kinston, when Miss Hazel Mitchell, daughter of Mrs. R. A. Mitchell of that town, became the bride of Mr. E. Vernon Ferrell of Winston-Salem.

The ceremony which was perhaps the most brilliant wedding function ever witnessed in this part of the state took place in the Episcopal church of St. Paul, E. King street, Rev. J. H. Griffith officiating.

The interior of the church was beautifully and lavishly decorated with palms and a profusion of natural flowers, the erection of three floral arches directly before the altar completing a scheme of floral decoration as has seldom been seen. Although the time set aside for the ceremony was 8:30 guests began to arrive at the church long before that hour and when a few minutes after the appointed time, the bridal party entered, the church was filled to its capacity.

At the organ, which was almost hidden behind a miniature garden of palms and ferns, Miss Jessie Wilson presided. As a prelude Mrs. L. K. Wooten sang "Because," the sweetness of her voice and the happy selection of the song being most fitting to the surroundings.

A few minutes after 8:30 the ushers Messrs. Courtney Mitchell and Lloyd LaRoque extended the bridal carpet and to the strains of Tanhousers' "Here comes the Bride" the party of bridesmaids composed of Misses Lottie Cadey, Sussie Perry, Annie Turner and Lova Ferrell, beautifully attired in white Valenciennes dresses with pink silk and gauze trains and holding gorgeous bouquets of sweet peas, slowly marched up the aisle and took their positions on the steps fronting the altar. The maids of honor, Miss Iris Mitchell and Mrs. Courtney Mitchell as well as the matron of honor, Mrs. S. C. Citterson, becomingly attired in white, long train gowns and carrying magnificent bouquets of white roses, followed. Little Miss Louise Best acted as flower girl whilst Master D. Mitchell seriously undertook the task of ring bearer.

The bride beautifully attired in bridal white and leaning on the arm of her brother Mr. D. A. Mitchell, was met at the steps by the groom who

SELECTION OF PARKER IS OPPOSED

Friends of Bryan Object to New York Jurist

OPPOSITION COMES AS SURPRISE

Telephone Conversation Held by Com-moner From Chicago With Some of Its Friends in Baltimore Credited With Change

BALTIMORE, Mr., June 19.—Opposition developed unexpectedly tonight against the naming of Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, for temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention. While a majority of the arrangement committee that is to select tomorrow the temporary officers of the convention were favorable to the selection of Judge Parker, it became known tonight at informal conferences of the committee members that friends of William J. Bryan had come out against Judge Parker's selection and that a new choice might have to be made.

The statement was made by those opposed to Judge Parker's selection, that he was a conservative and that as this was a progressive campaign, a progressive man should be named for the temporary chairmanship to make the keynote speech.

William J. Bryan was said to have communicated by telephone from Chicago late this afternoon and presented his views on the temporary chairmanship. Leaders of the movement to nominate Speaker for president, planned to hold a meeting in Washington tonight to go over the situation and determine whether they would present a candidate for temporary chairman to the arrangement committee. The Wilson leaders were also uncertain as to whether they would urge the selection of a temporary chairman to look with favor upon Governor Wilson for president.

A number of the arrangement committee said that while a majority of the committee was in favor of Judge Parker's selection it could not be definitely stated tonight what the outcome would be as the committeemen felt that it was desired to maintain harmony in the matter.

There were reports that the question of the temporary chairmanship might be brought before the convention for settlement.

Friends of Representative Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, became actively engaged today in seeking to bring about the nomination for president of the floor leader of the house, Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, came over from Washington and conferred with the national committeemen here.

Clark Howell, national committeeman from Georgia, reached here today and engaged in numerous conferences.

VICTOR ROSEWATER, ACTING CHAIRMAN OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. Howell believes that Oscar Underwood is the logical choice of the party for the presidential nomination.

DEM. CONVENTION LONG DRAWN AFFAIR

Politicians Expect A Full Week Will Be Consumed

AS DID ST. LOUIS CONVENTION

Injection of Fifth Candidate to a Certain Extent is Responsible for Change in Conditions in Baltimore Gathering.

BALTIMORE, June 19.—If one is to judge from the gossip heard in the hotel lobbies among the prominent politicians and leading newspaper men of the country the Democratic convention is to be a long drawn out affair, lasting probably until Sunday as was the case in St. Louis in 1902 when the final details were not arranged until long after midnight Sunday morning.

It can be stated upon god authority that the Underwood forces are confident that New York's 90 votes will go to the Alabamian by the time the third ballot rolls around. That Speaker Clark and Governor Wilson will have more votes on the first ballot than any other presidential aspirant, and that both will lose strength after these first two or three ballots few people in a position to know now doubt. Both Clark and Wilson supporters have been dickering with Murphy for the Empire State's delegation. That they have received little encouragement from the Tammany leader, is not disputed even by so great a leader as Senator Bill Stone, Clark's chief mainstay in the campaign.

There is a well grounded rumor afloat here that New York will alternate in its vote for armon and Underwood after it shall have cast a complimentary vote for Mayor Gaynor, until something like a definite idea of the respective strength of the candidates is obtained by the New York contingent. In other words Murphy's game is to feel out the convention by switching alternately from Gaynor, armon and Underwood.

Wants Contract With City For 24 Years

White, whom the city has employed to act in the advisory capacity with the board of a lderman in treating with the water company in making contracts, has arrived in the city and has begun his investigations. The present contract of the water company with the city expires in 1918 and it is the wish of the Durham Water Company, in asking for a new contract that in consideration of expending an amount of approximately $150,000 in improving the present system, the city extending their contract for a period of 24 years, beyond the limit of the present agreement. The new contract provides for the same rate as now exists. The new contract gives the city the power to purchase the Durham Water Company plant with in every ten years.

Special Washington Letter

WASHINGTON, June 19—Fear that the ravage of tuberculosis and trachoma diseases that now are rapidly dealing the ranks of the Indian tribes, will eventually contaminate the whole nation, is expressed by Martin J. Bentley, a recognized authority on the Indian subject. Mr. Bentley is in Washington for the purpose of interesting the authorities in a drastic campaign to eradicate these diseases among the red men and to help the Indian generally.

Mr Bentley makes the startling statement that of the two hundred and fifty thousand Indians in this country at least thirty thousand are afflicted with tuberculosis and that in some of the tribes the entire population from the suckling babe to the aged warrior are suffering from Trachoma. This situation demands prompt action on the part of the authorities, he says, for unless these diseases are mastered the whole nation is liable to become afflicted with the maladies.

Bentley bases his statements on figures obtained from the government records, recognized private authorities on the subject and from his personal observations made on the Indian reservations.

According to the records obtained by the Indian bureau, during the fiscal year 1911, fifteen thousand and ninety two cases of tuberculosis were treated by physicians paid and detailed to the Indian reservations by the government. In addition the records of the bureau show that in 1911 there were nine hundred and sixty-one deaths from the white plague among the Indians. These records do not include the five civilized tribes which constitute one-fourth of the Indian population of the United States, nor the infected members of other tribes not coming within the jurisdiction and treatment of the Indian office physicians.

It is declared by Bentley that those who have made a study of the subject have estimated that thirty thousand is a very conservative figure as to the number of tubercularly affected Indians. He says that the harmful consequences of their association with the white population are almost incalculable.

This alarming condition among the red men, according to Bentley, is due to natural causes. He points out that it was disclosed in testimony recently adduced before the House Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department, that the principal cause of these diseases was the poverty of the Indian. It was shown, he said, that the Indians were neither well housed, closed or fed and the full-blood, or timber. Indians in some localities had become sored with their food consisted chiefly of rabbits, roots and bark.

It is the opinion of Bentley that the Indian people in many instances are suffering for want of the necessities of life and are not receiving sufficient sustenance to keep their bodies in a healthy condition. For this reason, he states, they are in no physical condition to withstand these dreaded scourges.

Bentley asserts that the Indian is in fact the victim of a relentless paternalism which deprives him of his own freedom and utterly crushes out of him any possible incentive or inspiration necessary to the success of any kind of man.

Bentley is among the many persons who are conducting a campaign for a more liberal treatment of the Indian of the ajipfir of urging Congress to take some acto relieve the condition of the nation's wards. e would especially change the present system of handling the funds for the Indian tribes, under which it is alleged ninety cents of every dollar is expended in salaries of the Indian service and but ten cents of each dollar is left for Poor Lo.

It is argued by the friends of the Indian that is hewere given proper and sufficient food and adequate and sanitary living quarters he would in time be able to combat the ravages of the maladies that now beset him, and eventually become a useful citizen, instead of a dependent of the government as he now is. At the rate the ranks of the Red men are diminishing now it will not be many years before they will have disappeared entirely.

As pointed out by Bentley who appears to be supported by facts and figures, the prevalence of tuberculosis and thachoma among the Indian tribes notably is treating the complete delection of the race, but is a menace to the white as well.

THE SOURCE OF THE SOUTH'S PROSPERITY

Agriculture, climate, minerals, timber, manufacturers and position, constitute the South's sources of prosperity.

Agriculture is a volume to itself and has a literature of its own. Modern methods are gradually making the yields larger. Historically, this has been brought about by the course of events. From colonial days, after the question of labor was settled by the introduction of "blackamoors" by the thrifty shipowners of the New England ports, the Southern planter held a position of his own. Land was easily acquired and with careless improvidence of soil, crops were produced. The negroes knew nothing of soil analysis or soil exhaustion. Their foremen or overseers knew nothing more and as land was worn out, more land was cleaned up by denuding it of the native forests.

It was living on principal and accumulating neither interest nor sinking fund. Political events extinguished the system. Then came the next question as to the most practical method of improving existing conditions. The new owners who dealt with this many-sized problems had as a rule, little capital. Land had largely changed hands. Some by deaths consequent to war, some by foreclosure of debts, that war had prevented being cared for. Consequently the new owner had relatively few acres. He had to make them yield and with limited capital and labor conditions absolutely revolutionized, he had no easy task. He had to learn a new business. Scientific fertilization on the hands of the South had its start then. It has received considerable impetus from the discovery of natural supplies of natural phosphate in South Carolina, Florida and Tennessee. A somewhat myopic decision of the German authorities seemed to have made the necessary potash for the soil impossible by prohibitive cost, but it was a blessing, though very much disguised for the home sources are being investigated and with most unexpectedly flattering results. With proper fertilization, drainage, and in a word scientific farming the conditions are improving and will continue to improve.

Next as to climate. All this is covered by carefully recorded government statistics that nothing new could be suitably added to their figures, unless possibly the suggestions, that the horse never gets its full symmetrical development unless under special conditions of herbage. The states of Tennessee and Kentucky have the soil and the exact humidity to bring the native grasses to such perfection as to develop the horse. And it is more the climate than the feed, for with entirely different feed but at its highest luxuriance, the Arabian horse has been quoted as perfection of the animal. So, further east, though less known, is the island of Timor in the eastern seas, where the same or similar conditions have produced similar results. And California is in the same belt.

The reasons for introducing these facts here is that owing to climate conditions, food is easily produced, labor is not exorbitant and these are valuable assets in the growth of the South.

Minerals again, with coal, iron, copper, zinc, lead, bauxite, phosphate rock, potash marls, clays, dolomites and a dozen more, development is certain and it has largely arrived. At Ducktown, Tenn., the cheapest copper in the world is produced and at Birmingham, Ala., the producing price of steels is lower than elsewhere, even in competition with the cheap labor of Germany. Timber is here in the South in wonderful abundance and with the scientific conservation now being installed, the timber acreage can produce the needs of the United States. Of course it would not so be diverted. To choose an illustrative but extreme example, it would not pay to send pine from Alabama into Oregon, but it can be safely left for each district to supply its own needs, as far as it can and buy what it requires from the cheapest and nearest shipping point.

About every change of the moon there comes another account of Thaw trying to get released from the asylum.

Of course the Chicago convention was not complete without the presence of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth (Miss Alice) to try to smile votes for father.

The state good roads convention meets in Charlotte next month, and Pitt county ought to send some delegates.

In a headline the News and Observer asks "Can Roosevelt be truthful?" If so there must be a decided change from his past record.

Pardon the reference, but the Chicago convention went to the Root of it for temporary chairman.

Signs are good for a while, but advertisements in the newspapers are better all the time.

The Political Situation.

All matters relating to the selection of a Republican candidate for President seems to be hanging in a balance. The press reports in the last few days have made a favorable impression of Mr. Taft's gain, but in all of these contests Mr. Taft has so far gained only what he had been claiming.

It looks now as if LaFollette and other independent forces might tie the convention up unless Taft or Roosevelt provides to get a majority on first ballot which might happen. In any case a dark horse seems possible, and the dark horse most in sight is Governor Hughes, now on the Supreme court bench, but it is a question whether Governor Houghes would give up a position on the Supreme Court Bench to undertake a very precarious race for President.

On the Democratic side the four principal candidates continue to be the four principal candidates. Clark seems to be somewhat in the lead. This lead is mainly by delegates from the North. It is largely attributed to his vote on the pension bill. There are two adverse influences against Mr. Clark. One is that he voted for an excess pension bill, and the other is that he dared to do so on the assumption that he would get the Southern delegates anyhow. This thing of assuming that the South need not be counted at all in the Democratic party, except to go solid one way, is ceasing to be effective and is beginning to be offensive. As to the other candidates, Harmon, Wilson and Underwood, they seem to remain about equally important candidates. Possibly for general qualifications of a good President, Mr. Wilson has somewhat the lead. Harmon would probably be most agreeable to the general business interests, but for the whole people of the United States, Wilson would make a candidate somewhat on the order of Thomas Jefferson in his time, representing the interests of the people. Underwood is still the most popular candidate in the list, but his This is one time the "big stick" seems to have lost its force. His main strength lies in her personal population.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Editorial of Human Interest

By Arthur Brisbane

Part II. THE unknown frightens us. And often the greater and more unveiled the greater the fright and the truth reveals the hatred.

Men of genius have given to the world one great invention after another. Each as it came was denounced and hated. The steam locomotive was to put small poor stage-coach drivers out to work and send them to the poorhouse. As a matter of fact, it gave work to tens of thousands more than had work before and at higher wages. The spinning jenny and every other device for clothing human beings better and more cheaply met with hatred and suspicion. It was necessary to operate the new machines in factories built like forts. For again stupidity was frightened by the unknown thought that the machine would diminish the amount of work. Instead of that, the number of workers has multiplied by thousands—and again for better pay.

Even at this day a new machine that saves labor is greeted with hatred and the suspicion of the unknown. Workmen that should know better, forgetting that every labor-saving device increases the general wealth and benefits the whole world, oppose the new idea and fight against the unknown.

The sewing machine freed millions of women from the slavery of the needle in its most tiring form. The sewing machine gave clothing to millions that hadn't it before, lengthened the lives and multiplied the power of all the mothers in the world. But it was hated and opposed because men and women thought that it would deprive poor women of a living—and the first inventor of the sewing machine was persuaded to break his model and abandon his idea.

Now that machine, run by electric power, does the most painful work for women. And where formerly they stitched, slowly, with breaking backs and tired eyes, one stitch at a time, they now guide the cloth before the flying needle, and can make one thousand stitches where formerly they made but one.

Not only in the material world but more especially in the abstract world of ideas and speculation the unknown is feared, looked upon with suspicion by those that are called educated, looked upon with hatred by ignorance.

Those that call themselves educated look upon the mystery of the unknown, and upon all effort to solve the mysterious, with suspicion and contempt. And the ignorant see in new ideas only that which is hateful and dangerous. It is difficult to believe, but it is true, that when science first discovered anaesthetics, the possibility of making human beings unconscious so that they would not feel the pain of surgical operations, certain clergymen—bating the unknown of their ignorance—actually denounced the invention as blasphemous. They declared that it was an interference with the will of God, who wished men to suffer and become better by suffering. Rather a foolish suggestion from one supposed to believe in the omnipotence of God. For of course if an omnipotent God didn't want chloroform used in surgical operations He could easily stop it.

Nine-tenths of all human beings on earth live in a state of worry, anxious as to the future, and more or less distressed in the present. The lot of man, as a rule, is unhappy. Old age frightens him, and after old age death is there with its terrors and mysteries. Yet if any man suggests the possibility of making prosperity and peace of mind universal, if anyone dares to say that human beings, having already accomplished wonders, will do greater things and become a happy race—the ignorant and educated alike denounce the suggestion.

The man who talks of a civilization that will be free from care, poverty and selfishness is surrounded like the woman in this picture by a ring of monkeys full of contemptuous curiosity and hatred.

Look at this picture and think for yourself what thoughts, fixed, confused and dull, are probably passing through the minds of those monkeys. One monkey thinks the woman is horrible because she has no hair on her face.

And another monkey thinks that this woman is a fearful, degenerate creature, some kind of monkey going to seed, because she cannot climb a tree properly, being unable to use her feet like hands.

And the lady monkeys in the circle probably think still less of the woman, who represents advancement and thousands of centuries of cultivation—and they despise her from every possible point of view they despise particularly the fact that her nose is not flat.

After you have thought of the things that the monkeys probably say to themselves as they LOOK UPON THE UNKNOWN, make up your mind that you will not act in the presence of the unknown, in the presence of the NEW IDEA, as these monkeys act when they see the woman.

Keep your mind open to all that is new. Give everything a hearing. Never believe a thing is false or bad because you have not seen it or heard it before.

And remember what Napoleon said when they praised him for crossing the Alps in Winter. "I deserve no praise for crossing the Alps. But I do deserve praise for

GOV. WOODROW WILSON

"The Most Available Democrat."

Can Win With Wilson.

Senator Gore, who is a delegate at large from Oklahoma to the Baltimore convention, said: "The announcement of the World in favor of Governor Wilson is a great accession to the Governor's strength, not only on account of the World's influence, but because it is an index to the thoughts and feelings and probable action of a most influential section of the press of the United States. If Wilson is nominated, the independent press of the country will support him more generously than any other Democratic aspirant. The independent vote generally turns the scales in favor of the successful candidate. This will be preeminently true in the pending campaign. Any Democratic nominee will, of course, secure that large and invaluable vote that is always loyal to the ticket. The several candidates have an equal title to this vote, but this is not sufficient to insure success. Underwood is stronger in the east than Clark, but Wilson is as strong or stronger in the east than Underwood. Clark is stronger in the west than Underwood, but Wilson is as strong or stronger in the west than Clark. He is stronger with the independent vote everywhere than either of them. He will be stronger with the disaffected Republican vote, whose tribe the Lord seems to be increasing than either Underwood or Clark. In the last four campaigns, the best principles, the best causes and the best candidates and everything else excepting votes and I might add, campaign funds.

"Wilson is neither radical nor erratic. He is neither as revolutionary as Roosevelt nor as reactionary as Taft. He is at once animated and restrained by the spirit of rational progress. He will appeal to the common sense of the American people and suit a larger number of individual voters than any other candidate on any other ticket.

"We ought to nominate a man who can secure the requisite vote and guarantee a united and triumphant Democracy."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

By Howara L. Rann.

PIZARRO

THREE hundred seventy-one years ago this day Francisco Pizarro, conqueror of Peru, breathed his last with considerable abruptness as the result of being assassinated in the jugular vein, by some people with whom he was not on good terms. Pizarro was a discoverer by profession, having learned the art of Balboa, who established quite a reputation by annexing the Pacific ocean before anybody knew where it was, but as Columbus and Cortez had discovered all of the known world which had not been laid out in town lots he decided to conquer Peru. Pizarro was one of the hardest men to do business with that ever came to this country. He had a very cruel temper, which followed him from place to place and he never thawed out or permitted a fleeting smile to locate on his title page until after he had strangled somebody with whom he was not in rapport. Pizarro did not conquer Peru with a shoe string, but found it necessary to kill a large number of people who had never said an unkind word about any member of his family. The ruling sovereign of Peru at this time had the keys to the royal mint in his hip pocket. This gentleman took a violent dislike to Pizarro because he could not read or write and kept talking about the demonetization of silver. Pizarro gave a stag dinner at his house one day and invited the Inca and his staff to sit in. Then after diner, while his guests were idly turning the pages of the photograph album, Pizarro had everybody shot down but the Inca, whom he took prisoner. Pizarro treated the Inca with great leniency. He gave him his choice between being strangled to death in front of the county jail or being set on fire and consumed, together with all of his contents. After reading upon the matter a little and conferring with relatives who had witnessed one or two of Pizarro's incendiary conflagrations, the Inca chose the former route as being the more direct, and soon after said goodbye to this world in a voice checked with emotion and a hemp rope. Pizarro then had himself elected governor on a reform ticket and tapped the Peruvian treasury with so much animation that the inhabitants revolted and announced that they were about to retire him from circulation. Pizarro, however, made some witty remark about the Peruvian bark being worse than its bite and cremated a few more natives. But his doom was at hand. At noon of June 26, 1541, being still wrapped in slumber and a pair of languid Peruvian pajamas, he was set upon by thirteen vindictive inhabitants, who took turns in opening crevices in his physique. Pizarro's death did not cause anybody to go into mourning, and Peru has been trying to forget him ever since.

not believing the fools who said it could not be done." Prove all things, hold fast to that which is good. Don't be afraid of the unknown. Everything that we have worth while today was unknown a few years or a few centuries ago, from the wheelbarrow to the flying machine.

Wilmington Secures Tract of Land in Southern Part of City

The deed by which the municipality secures from the Suburban Development Company 22 acres of land bordering on Greenfield pond, in the southern part of the city, was probated yesterday and will be filed for record today or tomorrow. The document is now in the hands of Major Joseph Smith, having been handed to him yesterday by Mr. Martin S. Willard of the Suburban Development Company. In return for the land, which is to be issued for park purposes, the city agrees to improve Fourth street, from Wright to Greenfield, at a cost of about $18,000. Mayor Smith said last night that a special meeting of the council might be held within the next few days for the purpose of awarding the contract for the improvement of the street, so that the work could be commenced without delay.—Wilmington Star.

Reading Folks out of the Party.

Wilmington Star. "I am a democrat," the late David B. Hill was wont to declare. He was read out of the party by men whose skulls were full of Populism, but the New York statesman went on being a Democrat till he died. Those who read him out were without the proper jurisdiction.

Duncan in Chicago.

Wilmington Dispatch. Committeeman Duncan of North Carolina is standing with the Taft forces in Chicago. He likely understands that there is yet nearly a year for pie to be dished out by Mr. Taft when after that time—Well, the Democratic party will be in full control.

Women

They're saucy and they're fickle and they're mighty hard to please. We have to cater to them all upon our bending knees. They're flighty and inquisitive, Exasperation, too. And every man must find out somehow before he's through. They reason with a suddenness that makes a fellow jump, and they don't find it hard at all to make him look a chunk.

They cannot give a reason for a single thing they do. They jump at a conclusion with no valid course in view. They're fussy and they're frivolous. Sometimes it seems that way, they're tender and they're heartless, and they're mournful and they're reckless, and in faults they all around. They cost a lot of money, but they're nice to have around.

How to Stir up the Porch Party—Two Summer Night Diversions—Better Than Common-Place Talk

When the group on the porch lapses into one of those long silences, significant of fatigue and boredom, there is no use in endeavoring to rekindle the dead fires of interest by comment on the Great Dipper, the absence of mosquitoes, or the presence of an unusual number of fireflies.

It is time for action, novelty to the front.

The person who can really suggest something out of the beaten track, not requiring exertion of a bodily kind on a sultry summer evening, will be stirred up, but who do not want to do the stirring themselves.

As these means of enlivening a porch group have never been copyrighted there is no name for the diversions quoted. They can be christened in accordance with whatever title is most appropriately suggested in carrying them out.

In the first game, the "interlocutor," so called for the want of a better name, generally sits on the top step, while the balance of the porch party occupies chairs and railing, being close enough together to be able to rapidly pass from one to another a small ball of paper.

A little pad, or a dozen small squares of paper and a single pencil, are all that is required to literally set the ball rolling.

The one on the step writes a word on the paper, rolls it into a tight ball and gives it to the person nearest. Then he turns his back gives the word "go" and counts thirty. The other players rapidly pass the ball from hand to hand until the count has reached thirty and the person in whose hand the ball it at that time unfolds it, reads the word on it if there is sufficient light, if not the interlocutor states what it is. The holder of the ball must then compose a quadrain on the subject and also introduce the name of the interlocutor.

For example, if the word happens to be "bird" and the interlocutor is "Fred," some foolish thing like the following would fulfill the requirements:

If I could be a little bird I'd sing off my head So that I surely would be heard By one we know quite well like Fred.

Of course this is not intended to be a poetical contest and as each rhymer is given only three minutes to dish up some jungling nonsense, the result is not always as good as this. The rhyming is only essential on the word found in the paper ball, the name either being introduced at the end to rhyme or in the line. For instance, with the word "auto" and the

Christian name "Evelyn", this effusion met with great applause:

I've bought a new 36 auto And have asked Evelyn out for a ride, And I really think this will sort o' Incline her now to be my bride.

After a player has successfully complied with the conditions he or she changes places with the interlocutor and the game goes on until each one has made a rhyme of some sort. If a variation is desired it can be by exacting forfeits from the unsuccessful, with the later redemption carried out in the usual manner. As, however, this generally demands a little more exertion than one cares to indulge in on a summer night it is best to reserve this for a rainy evening indoors.

Another game where sides can be played in this way: If there are two or more on a side the side agrees on a word such as "bags" which by changing a single letter at a time is to be transformed into "corn". Of course, the two words must always have the same number of letters and the number of changes required must be tested by those giving the problem. Thus when one side challenges the other to change the word "bags" to "corn" in eight moves they know that it can be done as follows: (0) bags, (1) sags, (2) sage, (3) sale,

(4) bale, (5) bare, (6) barn, (7) born, (8) corn.

If the challenged side can accomplish the transformation with fewer changes it is credited with the number challenged, say eight plus whatever number less it took to get the right result. If they cannot do it in eight and leave to go on the twelve for example, the excess beyond eight is the original count for the challenged. If absolute failure is admitted the double of the changes is allowed the challenging side. The score is governed by the number in three or for alterations. Very difficult words should be avoided if fun is the motive, but as solitaire takes hold of many, this transposition effort is frequently thought out by day to be sprung at night, the mental gymnastics being as exhilarating to the challenger as to the challenged.

The score is generally set at 100, the side reaching this first of course wins. Challengers and challenged alternate and the letter changing is done in turn by one person after another on the side challenged.

It is here that much of the real fun comes in for one person while changing a letter may completely throw off the next who has in mind a different route for reaching the final goal.

British Boy Scouts Have Wireless and Signal Corps

Photos copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

EACH year sees new developments in the organization of the boy scouts. In this country their energy and enthusiasm have been utilized by the campaigners against the disease bearing housefly, and in England, where the movement was originated and where it has a more marked military aspect than here, wireless telegraphy and signal corps have been formed among youngsters who, if conditions of a few years ago prevailed, would probably be members of juvenile gangs of a more or less mischievous character. As yet only one troop has a wireless installation; it is the Second Eltham association, which owes its equipment to the generosity of Sir Harry North. The boys meet twice a week for instruction and practice, have built their own "aerials" and can erect their installation anywhere. They also have a heliograph section, the members of which are shown at their signal work in the lower of the two photographs.

"HOME OF THE BEST PRINTING"

We take this means of thanking all of our friends who have been thoughtful enough to compliment us on our "LARGER AND BETTER" DAILY REFLECTOR. The Raleigh Daily Times comments in part: "A paper which shows improvement reflects the development of the country over which it circulates. Every word of which is true. The Greenville Tobacco market will probably sell 14,000,000 pounds of tobacco this year, or 5,000,000 pounds more than last year. This meant a strenuous planting campaign by our farmers. Mr. Merchant, why not begin your selling campaign now? Join THE REFLECTOR'S advertisers. Know that your ad will be read by 4,500 people, with this number increasing daily.

Afraid Something May Spoil It.

Wilmington Dispatch.
Everything is certainly moving along in smooth and harmonious manner now so far as the Democratic party is concerned, but we do tremble for fear a good beginning may make a bad ending, if some of those "do or bust" get extra nervous.

The Happenings Around Standard STANDARD, June 17.—Miss Mary Wainright who has been lingering for some time passed away on last Friday morning, June 14, about 8 o'clock, after all that kind friends and loving hands could do for her and was buried on Saturday evening in the home burial ground.
