POLICE STOP LAS VEGAS FIGHT

Chief of Police Interferes With Butchery
JOHNSON ALL-WAY WINNER

White Hope Has Lights Dimmed by Biggest Dinged That Ever Wore the Heavyweight Crown. Only Nine Rounds Fought
RINGSIDE, East Las Vegas, N. M., July 4.—Jim Flynn's white hope expired in the ninth round of his scheduled 45 round bout with Champion Jack Johnson. Flynn's face was chopped and cut frightfully by Johnson's deliberate blows and in the ninth round Captain Cowles of the New Mexico State police, pushed his way to the ring and declared the contest ended as a brutal exhibition. For three rounds Flynn had realized his inability to defend himself.

At times he leaped a foot from the ground endeavoring to crash his skull against the champion's jaw. Time and again Referee Smith warned him to stop and Flynn made no defense. "He's holding me, he's holding me," he would declare to Smith and in the next clinch he would try it again. When the police entered Referee Smith through the announcer, awarded Johnson the fight. Johnson made no serious effort to hurt Flynn at any time during the nine rounds.

Apparently he held himself in check even when Flynn's butting tactics were at their worst. Johnson bore not a single mark of the fight beyond a slight cut inside his lower lip.

Arena Not Completed
Ringside, East Las Vegas, N. M., July 4.—Bright weather greeted the fight fans who gathered in the fight arena here at 12:30 this afternoon, an hour and a half before Johnson and Flynn entered the ring.

Work on the hastily constructed arena had not been completed by the time the first spectators appeared. Carpenters were nailing down the glaring white canvas of the ring floor, placing the three strands of ropes which circled it and were wrapping the corner posts with their covering of bandages.

There was little gossip as to the condition of the men at the ringside. Johnson it was reported weighed 212 pounds but with his drying out work expected to weigh 211 when he climbed through the ropes. Flynn weighed 193 pounds at his quarters. He expected to enter the ring weighing a trifle over 190.

Betting Light
The extremely light betting downtown fluctuated a little around noon. Johnson's reduction of the odds on his $10,000 bet from 10 to 5 to 10 to 4, sent the general betting to 10 to 3.

Flynn's supporters from Pueblo perhaps 200 in number and distinguished by white rooster hats sat together and were prepared to greet their man when he arrived.

At 2:04 official announcer Tommy Gannon, of Oklahoma City, took the ring to call attention to the several hundred ladies who had graced this occasion by their attendance and asked that the spectators remember their presence when it came to shouting comments on the fight. It was the first sign of life in the ringside.

Gannon then announced a boy-sized preliminary four rounds of one minute each, which appeared to be a family affair.

The Preliminary
The boxers were Kennett Day, weight 58 pounds and Freddie Day, 62 pounds. "Papa" Day, 200 or over, refereed. The Day family came from Colorado Springs.

Before the midgots opened fire Gannon introduced Cass Taylor, a huge Texas unknown white hope aspirant. He challenged the winner, that is, of the Johnson-Flynn, not the Day-Day bout.

It was announced that Victor Breyer of Paris, offered Johnson $30,000 for a 30 round contest there with Jeanette.

TRAIN DISASTER IN N. Y. STATE

A Lackawanna Train Rammed By Express
34 PERSONS LOSE THEIR LIVES

On a Straight Stretch of Track a Train of Pullmans Was Rammed From Behind by an Express Running at Top Notch Speed
CORNING, N. Y., July 4.—Lackawanna passenger train No. 9, which left New York city at 8:45 o'clock last night for Buffalo, was crushed from behind by a train of express cars near here early today and at least thirty-four persons were killed and fifty injured. Thirty four bodies have been taken from the debris.

The crash occurred before daylight. Many of the injured were mortally hurt. Most of the dead and injured were in two day coaches on the rear of the train, which were toppled into the ditch. The five Pullman cars remained on the track.

The passenger train which runs from New York to Buffalo had been standing on the track for twenty minutes when the express train, which carried no passengers, struck it in the rear at full speed. The two day coaches attached to the rear of No. 9 were hurled down an embankment and the express plunged half way through the rear Pullman of the standing train before it came to a stop.

Most of the killed were passengers in the day coaches who were going home to spend the Fourth. F. W. Drake, of Passaic, N. J., the Pullman conductor, said that four passengers were killed in the Pullman.

Pinned Under Wreck
On account of the confusion and the lack of wire communication, news of the disaster was slow in reaching this city, but by 6:30 o'clock a score of physicians were on the scene and the dead were laid on the top of the embankment along the tracks and at the roadside and covered with blankets from the Pullman. A number of the injured were pinned under the wreckage and their groans and shrieks could be clearly heard.

Every undertaker in Corning was called to help care for the dead, but their wagons were first pressed into service to carry the injured to the hospital. Many of the injured also were taken away in automobiles.

The place where the wreck occurred was a straight stretch of track. So far as can be ascertained the engineer of the express train had no warning that the passenger train was in his way. It is believed that when he first saw it he thought the train was standing in a parallel track.

The passenger train had been brought to a standstill by a freight train which had become stalled. One of the two engines of the passenger train was uncoupled and attached to the freight train to put it on the siding.

Conductor Staples of the passenger train, says he caused the blocks to be set against any westbound train.

Crash Awful
"The train had been standing about twenty minutes when there came an awful crash which pitched me forward against the front of the dressing room," said A. G. Ingram, of Chicago, one of the Pullman passengers. "A second later there seemed to come a second jolt and then the engine of the express train came to a full stop. There was an awful grinding and crunching and then a great crash as the day coaches were pitched into the ditch. Then came the screams of passengers who found themselves pinned in the wreckage."

No Flagman Out
Scarnton, Pa., July 4.—Information received by the company says that train No. 9 had stopped at Corning freight station to allow a freight train ahead to take a siding when the express train smashed into it at almost full speed.

It is believed by officials here that it was impossible to get out a flagman in time to prevent the crash, the express having entered the block close behind the passenger train. Nearly all the cars in both trains were wrecked.

Two Striking Figures at The Baltimore Convention

Photos copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

"EAST is east and west is west," but in spite of Kipling the twain do meet occasionally at American national conventions. The accompanying illustration presents an example. The dark man in light clothes at the left is Manuel L. Quezon, delegate from the Philippine Islands to the Democratic convention. The tall, rawboned veteran at the right is Colonel Bill Fairman of Punxsutawney, Pa., who was a delegate to the Baltimore convention, as he has been to conventions of his party for the last seventy years. Both of the delegates were objects of interest to their fellow delegates and to spectators—the one because of his age and the other by reason of his foreign appearance. The representation of the Philippines in the convention was due to an error in the call under which the delegates were summoned. Up to this convention "imperialism" has not been recognized to the extent of admitting Filipino delegates. Senator Quezon is a Nationalist and is resident commissioner in Washington for the islands.

Asheville Boys Accused of N. C. Solons Lionize Texas Brutality Senator

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 4.—Claiming that he had been captured, tied to a tree and whipped, Ralph Brendle a boy about 16 years of age, asked the police to arrest Willie McNamara and Willie Post, two boys about his own age. He said that the two boys captured him, tied him to a tree and proceeded to whip and kick him. The boy bears a number of bruises which added to bear out the statement that he has been whipped but assigns no reason for the action of the two boys in whipping him. Both the latter whidney any malice and say that the whipping was administered in fun.

AFTER YOU MY DEAR GASTION

Democrats Waiting on Action of Col. Roosevelt
"DEMOCRATS WILL WIN"—MACK

Democratic National Committeeman is Very Optimistic and Lays Little Stress on Doings of Third Party. Will Call on Wilson

BALTIMORE, July 5.—Members of Democratic national committee indicated tonight that the plan and scope of the presidential campaign in the interest of Gov. Wilson will in a measure depend on whether or not a third party is formed by Colonel Roosevelt.

The committeemen who depart tomorrow to pay their respects to the Democratic nominee at Sea Girt, N. J., discussed informally tonight the outlook for Governor Wilson's candidacy. It was suggested that as Wilson was a progressive, Colonel Roosevelt might within the next few weeks announce the abandonment of his plan for a progressive party.

"Whether Roosevelt forms a third party or not, the Democratic ticket as it is now constituted, will appeal to both conservatives and progressives (publican vote divided, success for within our ranks and with the Re-Wilson and Marshall is assured," said Chairman Mack.

The committeemen say that while the coming campaign will be discussed with Governor Wilson tomorrow, it is extremely unlikely that any well-defined plan of action will be adopted for some time. The subcommittee appointed by Chairman Mack to confer with the nominee on the naming of the new national chairman and the desirability of forming a campaign committee as a board of strategy, will talk with Mr. Wilson tomorrow. Announcement is to be made later when a full meeting of the national committee will be called to take definite action.

The full national committee to name a chairman and outline plans of campaign and establish headquarters probably will be held in Chicago or some other central point.

The national committee leaves here tomorrow morning for Sea Girt and is due at the Governor Wilson summer home at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The general opinion here tonight is that William F. McCombs, of New York, or A. Mitchell Palmer, congressman from Pennsylvania, will be chosen head of the committee to conduct the Wilson campaign.

Practically all of the delegates have departed for their homes and tonight Baltimore hears only the echoes of the national convention that ended its weeks work early today.

Champ Clark Recives Ovation in House

WASHINGTON, July 5.—When Speaker Clark, showing the effect of the strain under which he has labored during the Democratic convention, entered the House today he was given an ovation that lasted for several minutes.

When Representative Underwood, of Alabama, appeared the cheering and applause was resumed. Members pounded their desks and the Southern contingent added to the noise by their shrill rebel yells.

There was a second Clark demonstration when Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, Republican, paid a tribute to the speaker as the greatest Democrat in the whole United States. Mr. Moore scored William Jennings Bryan for his alleged part in defeating the nomination of the speaker and occasioned Republican applause when he declared the Democratic party was split wide open while the Republican hosts in November would be found voting as one man.

"Who's the man," cried Representative Howard, of Georgia.

"Name your man," shouted a score of Democrats amid laughter. "We'd like to know the identity of the sole Republican vote."

In the applause and laughter that followed the sally, Mr. Moore sat down.

MAJ. GEN. HOKE GOES BEYOND

Death Occured Yesterday in Lincolnton
GALLANT CONFEDERATE AT REST

Had Made One of Most Brilliant Careers of any North Carolinian. Raleigh Keenly Feels Death of Its Distinguished Son

RALEIGH, July 5.—The death of Major General Robert Frederick Hoke at Lincolnton today caused profound sorrow in Raleigh where the distinguished soldier spent many years of his life. The funeral services will be held from the church of the good Shepherd Friday morning at eleven o'clock. He is survived by a wife and four children: Van Wyck Hoke of Lincolnton; Dr. Michael Hoke of Atlanta, Mrs. Alexander Webb, of Raleigh, and Mrs. W. D. Pollock, of Kingston. He was an uncle of Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia and of Associate Justice Hoke of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

General Hoke entered the Confederate army in 1861 as second-lieutenant of Co. K. and served with the Bethel Regiment. His genius and daring soon won attention and he was steadily promoted until he reached the rank of Major-General, President Davis conferring this honor on him after a brilliant and successful attack on the Federal forces at Plymouth. He served with both Lee and Johnston and was in all the hard campaigns except the at the Battle of Chancellorsville preventing his accompanying the army Pennsylvania invasion, a severe wound north.

Capt. Ashe, in his biography, declares Gen. Hoke to have been the most distinguished soldier of North Carolina, and it is said that he was Gen. Lee's personal choice as to successor in case of death. So sound was his judgment and so great was his confidence in men had in him that it was invariably the rule that had his judgment prevailed where his advice was solicited the Confederate armies would have achieved greater victories.

Returning from the war he again took up farming and plowed his old army horse and made a crop. He engaged in mining and was interested in the iron mine at Cranberry and another at Chapel Hill. He had the bearing of a soldier and was a strikingly handsome man. He was 75 years old.

The flag over the capitol was lowered to half mast in honor of his memory.

The New party A Useless Luxury

LANSING, Mich., July 5.—Governor Chase O. Osborn, an ardent Roosevelt supporter during the colonel's battle for the Republican nomination today issued a statement in which he declared his belief that there is no necessity for a new political party.

He also stated he hoped Roosevelt would not be a candidate.

"The issue is clearly joined for the people," said the governor, in his statement, temperament, preparation and fitness is above the high average of American presidents. He is a Christian, a scholar and a fearless citizen.

"Republicans can vote for Wilson without leaving the party or bolting. The real Republican party has no candidate for president this year. There has been no nomination. The action of the political freebooters at Chicago is not binding upon the Republican party even if for the moment they are bearing aloft its stolen ensign."

states, but under the law the change in the flag could not be made until Independence Day following their admission to statehood.

The law governing the subject is contained in the act of Congress approved April 4, 1818. That act provides as follows:

"On the admission of a new state into the Union, one star shall be added to the union of the flag and such addition shall take effect on the 4th of July next succeeding such admission."

This is the first time since 1890 that more than one star has been added at a time. In that year were added for the five new states of Idaho, Washington, Montana and North and South Dakota.

Since July 4, 1896, the official arrangement of the stars in the blue field of the flag has been such as to permit the addition of more stars without destroying the symmetry of the approved design. In none of the acts of Congress relating to the flag has the manner of arranging the stars been prescribed. Before the date named there were a lack of uniformity in the matter. After July 4, 1896, when Utah was admitted to the Union, the forty-five stars in the flag were arranged in six rows, the first, third and fifth rows having eight stars each and the second, fourth and sixth rows, seven stars each.

Four years ago a rearrangement of the stars was made by a joint board of army and navy officers to meet the case of Oklahoma. Under the arrangement, which has prevailed until today, there were eight stars in the first, third, fourth and sixth rows and seven stars in the second and fifth rows. The rearrangement to meet the case of Arizona and New Mexico was a very simple matter. All that was necessary was the addition of a star each to the second and fifth rows, which makes six rows of eight stars each. Since the admission of any of the territorial possessions to statehood is a matter of the distant future the present arrangement of the stars in the national flag is likely to remain unchanged for a long time.

All Americans Should Reciprocate the Great Love China Bears This Country

By the Right Rev. J. W. BASHFORD, M. E. Bishop of China

EVERY citizen of the United States must TAKE SOME OF THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE REPUBLIC IN CHINA.

You Americans who must have been startled at the appearance of the Chinese republic, you Americans who never set foot in China or taught a Chinese boy in America—even you CANNOT ESCAPE SOME RESPONSIBILITY.

YOU HAVE SENT FORWARD MISSIONARIES AND HAVE Poured OUT MONEY FOR SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES AND HOSPITALS AND HAVE Nourished THE FAMINE VICTIMS UNTIL YOU HAVE COMPELLED THE CHINESE TO LOVE THE VERY NAME OF AMERICA ABOVE THE NAME OF EVERY OTHER LAND ON EARTH.

You have built up such homes and schools and churches as have made the young Chinese entering them and sharing their blessings return to China tenfold MORE AMERICAN THAN YOU ARE YOURSELVES.

Are not our hearts drawn to China by the fact that in the formation of their constitution they have not drawn a single line from any political document in European history, but have taken our bill of rights and our AMERICAN CONSTITUTION and have made them the constitution of the Chinese republic?

FRIDAY, JULY 5, 1912

SKETCH OF GOV. MARSHALL

Governor Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana, the physically diminutive candidate of the Democratic party for Vice President of the United States, was born in North Manchester, Wabash County, Indiana, fifty-eight years ago.

His mother, who was Martha E. Patterson, before her marriage, was a direct descendant of Charles Carroll of Carolina, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. His father was Dr. Daniel M. Marshall, a well-to-do physician, whose comfortable circumstances relieved his son of all those early experiences of grinding poverty, thought, by some, to be essential in the formulation of a strong character.

In 1873 Mr. Marshall graduated from the Wabash College at Crawfordsville, receiving the degree of bachelor of art and incidentally achieved reputation for scholarship that has never been outrivalled in that institution. During his college course he became a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Greek letter fraternity, which was founded by Chief Justice John Marshall. After his graduation Mr. Marshall moved to Ft. Wayne and took up the study of law in the office of Judge Walter Ods. On the day he was 21 years old, March 14, he was admitted to the bar. He had, however, moved to Columbia City, Ind. the year previous, where his home has been ever since.

It was not long before Mr. Marshall began to display legal attainments that made him a conspicuous figure in the courts of Northern Indiana. His practice grew rapidly and he soon made himself recognized as one of the ablest attorneys in the state.

His manner, however, has always been quiet, almost to the point of reticence. But this serene front is only the calmness of the morally brave and the intellectually efficient Hoosier Governor.

Along the early 90's Mr. Marshall, while acting as special judge in the circuit court at Angola, met Miss Louis Kemsey, who was acting as a deputy of her father, who was clerk of the court. It was not long before the special judge began to turn his attention to that branch of the law which comes under the general head of "domestic relations," and in 1895 he submitted his brief to Miss Kinsey. His able presentation of the case, was so able that she was induced to become Mrs. Marshall of Columbia City. She is a brilliant woman possessing great personal charm, which qualities have made her favorite both in Columbia City and in Indianapolis.

This quiet, unobtrusive man pursued his course with so little noise, that when the Democratic party of Indiana nominated him for governor in 1908, everybody asked "who is Tom Marshall?" The nomination had come to him unsought, but since it had come he went out after the election with an energy and frankness, which won for him a big majority over its opponent, Representative "Jim" Watson. He was greatly assisted in his campaign by his wife, who traveled with him wherever he went. In fact, throughout their entire married life, this devoted couple have not been separated for a day.

From the moment he assumed office at Indianapolis, Mr. Marshall made it known to the bosses that he was the governor of all the people of Indiana and that through a Democrat, believing firmly in Democratic principles, the office of governor was going to be administered for the welfare of all the people.

And this principle he had adhered to with all the firmness of his staunch soul. Being a Presbyterian in religious belief he holds that whatever will be, shall be and though not exactly a fatalist, he thinks that nothing can alter the eternal decree as to what life shall hold for every man and woman. Marshall is absolutely sincere in this philosophy and there seems to be nothing that can excite him or disturb his serenity. This faith, however, does not deter him from working fighting for what he considers the right.

He is a Democrat of old lineage with the modern views of a progressive and he presents a striking figure in the ranks of his party. He believes public were far away ables than any of our modern statesmen. And thinks absolutely that their aims and purposes are carried out the country will be safe from the rocks and the quick sands that line the political shore.

As Governor of Indiana he has delineated by messages to the legislature, and in public speeches, the dangers he thinks will inevitably follow the centralization of governmental power. Holding that the union is a creature of the states instead of the state being creatures of the Union, he deprecates every tendency toward a centralization of national power. As a natural consequence he opposes the Aldrich currency plan. Also he thinks that the states themselves should be left to regulate the monopolistic corporations within their respective borders.

And he is, first, last and all the time, a champion for perfect honesty in public as well as private life. In presenting his views, in messages and on the stump he has endeared himself to the people by his unusual knack for dry, shrewd expressions. A very good example is found in the beginning of his message to the Indiana legislature last winter, which starts off with the following advice to the law makers:

"It is not unlawful for you to hold private conferences, but it is inexpedient. If you are wise you will avoid the appearance of evil. Beware of the man who wishes to show you a good time the day after he is introduced to you. He has an axe to grind and he intends to chop his own wood with it. There is no money in honest public service. He who flies high in public office has someone holding the strings of his kite. Beware of the high flyer. By way of warning, let me suggest that your constitutional immunity from arrest does not mean that bribery will go unpunished. If personal interests be permitted to thwart the public will, you will be justly condemned. If logrolling and swapping of votes be allowed to pass pet measures, you will be charged very justly of being spoliemen rather than legislators. Your success or failure will be measured by the standard of whether you wisely enact legislation for the interests of the whole citizenship of this State."

From the foregoing it is perfectly plain to see what the Democratic candidates' notions are as to the fundamental duties of a public official. And with his shrewd eyes steadfastly fixed upon the lawmakers of his state he has held them to the mark without apparently interfering in the least with their deliberations.

Mr. Marshall has a strong conviction that the three departments of the government should not interfere, one with the other, holding that that was the intention of the founders of the republic. For that reason he has looked askance at Presidents and Governors, who, instead of suggesting legislation along certain lines, have presented to Congress and to legislatures, their personal measures. The critics of the Indiana governor say that he has gone too far in this regard declining to interfere when his interference would have wrought a benefit to the state. However, that may be, the lawmakers have had a wholesome respect, if not a fear for their governor and the people of the state generally, hold him close in their affections.

Mr. Marshall is a scholar. His education at college was along the old fashioned classical lines and it imbedded in him a love of books and of a abstract mental speculation that has increased for the years. He has never been caught with the craze for outdoor physical exercise. In fact he has an aversion for it. He never had a fancy for tolling with his hands. All jobs of physical labor he turns over to some one else. The answer he makes when asked what he does for exercise is that he reads and so long as he has good health he says he will take no other.

Anyone, assuming from this, that the vice-presidential candidate is lazy, would be firing in the opposite direction from the mark. He is a prodigious toiler, but he toils with his mind and not with his hands.

There is a prodigious human side to Mr. Marshall. One needs only to spend a few hours in Columbia City to be convinced of this. The people of that town, his old friends and neighbors, speak of him as little "Tommy" Marshall. And the tones in which those words, were spoken indicate the affection that lies behind them.

The devotion of Mr. Marshall to his admirable wife, is that of a knight of old; it is reminiscent of that of the late President McKinley to his sadly afflicted help mate.

His 17 years of married life Mr. Marshall refers to as a "honeymoon," and has already been stated that he has not been beset from his wife one night since marriage. Furthermore, it is evidently his attention that they shall never be separated for so long a period as long as they live.

Soon after his first election as governor he declined to go with a party of governors on a tour of inspection down the Mississippi river, because no provision had been made for him to take Mrs. Marshall along. Immediately another boat was put in commission for the wives of the governors and he again declined because it would necessitate their separation and besides he didn't think his not going would hurt much.

Having no children of their own, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall lavish their affection on other peoples. The Columbia City friends of the candidate say that it was not an uncommon thing to see, the then obscure lawyer standing on the corner and watching the children as they went by on their way to school. If any child bore evidence of having come from a home of poverty where new clothes were an infrequent, if not unheard of, luxury, his kindly eye was quick to notice that child and off he would trot with it, first to a clothing store, for a new suit of clothes, then to a book store for a complete supply of school books. This he would do quietly, gently and with every effort to keep it hidden from the eyes of the world.

"He simply wanted to make the children happy," his neighbors would say. And this deep sympathy of his has not been confined to children. There are young men scattered all over Northern Indiana, bright young lawyers, doctors and the like, who were assisted through college by him. It seems to be his habit to always assist where assistance is justly needed.

There is nothing foggy about the views of Mr. Marshall. He has a clear idea as to where he is going. But unlike the rampant reformer, however, he does not expect to accomplish everything at once. He thinks that true progress is made slowly and painfully and that only through education.

As already stated, Mr. Marshall feels strongly on the subject of state sovereignty. He thinks that corporate control can best be managed by the states themselves. In this connection he stated to the Indiana legislature in 1911:

"The progress made by the general government in eliminating the trusts has been equalled only by the frog which jumped one foot and fell back two. The trusts can be eliminated by the states. If you are desirous of starting this elimination, enact a law forbidding any corporation of this state from holding or owning the capital stock, or any portion thereof, of other corporations and compelling the sale of such stock, if it now owns it; making it unlawful for any foreign corporation whose capital stock for a controlling interest there in is owned or held by any other corporation, holding company, voting trust, or syndicate to do business in this state forfeiting the charter of a domestic corporation offending against this law to do business in the state, and preventing the use of the courts of the state to enforce contracts made by corporations violating this law and providing additional penalties for the violation thereof."

Mr. Marshall is a staunch advocate of economy in government. To tax the people one dollar more than is actually necessary to carry on the government, he holds to be robbery. If he gains the white House, it will therefore be his first aim to affect sweeping reforms in the conduct of the national affairs, looking towards economy. He has also stated that he will work sedulously in an effort to restore to the states the many powers they have lost through federal government.

Bryan and Glenn are both prophets. The former says Wilson will carry the nation by two million votes and the latter says he will carry North Carolina by sixty thousand.

The platform adopted by the Democratic national convention is one that should meet the approval of all the people.

Another distinguished North Carolinian has passed in the death of Gen. Robert F. Hoke at incoln on Wednesday.

In going off to spend the summer let The Reflector follow you if you want to know what is going on at home.

Roosevelt's third party will not out much figure against Woodrow Wilson.

Baltimore is missing 'em now, but had a harvest while they were there.

They have commenced naming the youngsters Woodrow Wilson.

Greenville should get a move on for a Wilson-Craig club.

Cock-A-Doode-Do

Yes, crow away, big rooster, Hip cock-a-doodle-doo! You sure now are a booster. For grit you take the hue.

You don't stunt up for winter; You crow when its redhot; You're cheering when its cloudy; You hooray when it's not.

You crow when you are henpecked; You crow without a tail; You crow your red head almost off. When you some rooster whale.

You crow when you are starving; You crow when you're full fed; You crow ten hours every day; You even crow in bed.

O, optimistic crower, You surely beat the band! You've got the grit and gumption. Gee crippens, you've got sand!

Now, here's to any croaker That reads this rooster rhyme— Say, pardner, it's far better To crow and boost than whine.

Yes, quit the avil chorus, You better crow and bust Than be an old dill pickle And fill folks with disgust.

THE LITTLE SHRINKING ONE.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

By Howard L. Rann.

THE MINISTER

THE minister is a charter member of the most underpaid profession of all the annals of history, unless it is that melancholy figure, the printer's devil. The average minister's income seldom gets heated up to over $50 a month and the first time he says anything in the pulpit that hits some pillar of the church in a vital spot it will shrink so fast that his congregation will have to shower him with premium hams and rocking chairs. On this account, very few are able to lay up anything in this life except a conscience void of offense and a record of loyal service. Nobody is really qualified for the ministry who is not able to live on well water and due bills. It is a very exacting and painful occupation. Everybody is perfectly satisfied with the minister so long as he preach es on something that happened 12,000 years ago, but the minute he begins to let a current of air through anything that is going on in the community he will be requested to put on the soft pedal or seek a more congenial clime. If the minister hit all of the high spots in his repertoire he would be assisted into the next country without a cent of expense. About the most unpopular thing a minister can do is to object to having the collection taken by some earnest brother who lopes from the evening service into the arms of a poker game. There is nothink that will chill the ardor of the average congregation quicker than a few pointed sermons on the round dance and the bridge whist habit and the minister who turns his vocabulary loose on these topics is liable to detect a perceptible drop in the temperature. Many a minister is prevented from doing his best work by people who sleep out loud in church and then criticize the sermon. What is needed is a brand of piety which will induce people to contribute as much to the minister's salary as they do to the moving picture show.

It Was A Hoodoo.

We don't wonder that the railroads decided to grant the shippers of Spokane and other interior Northwestern cities some relief from discriminatory rates after the commerce court had decided for the railroads and the case has gone up on appeal. After being reversed eight times straight, the commerce court's record was a hoodoo which nobody could be expected to face.—Charlotte Observer.

The Issue Explained

The initiative recognized the people's right to originate something in their own interest. The referendum provides them a way to exercise the right of voting on questions that concern them. The recall is exercise of the people's right in discharge of the unfaithful incumbent of a public office.—Wilmington Star.

Press Comment

Keep It Down.

Keep down discord. The democratic party by now should know that it can break its neck just as well by running away and butting into some obstacle, as it can by falling into a pit dug by the republicans.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Left His Mark.

Perhaps Roosevelt will not enjoy it, but he has "left his mark" on Taft. If nominated he cannot be elected and if he gets out of the way it ought to please the mighty one, even if he is put in the hole before it is done.—Greensboro Record.

A DECLARATION OF INTERDEPENDENCE

(From Manufacturers Record, Baltimore, Md., July 4, 1912.)

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for the South to strengthen the bands which connect it with other parts of the country, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that it should declare again why the development of the South means the enrichment of the nation. We hold these truths to be self evident, that a nation blessed with the national resources for industry and trade must be the main reliance for the healthy life of other sections lacking such resources and that in the union centering in that section of the capital mind, muscle, money and material resources of the country is the hope of national advancement. To prove the strength of the South for such a union let facts be submitted to a candid world. The South has 400,000,000 acres of lands suitable for farming, of which less than 200,000,000 are now cultivated. The South has 50,000,000 tons of coal to be mined, more than 10,000,000,000 tons of iron ore, and unmeasured quantities of petroleum, natural gas, sulphur, lead, zinc and other minerals. The South has 253,000,000 acres of forest land. The South has 17,000 miles of navigable streams on a coastline of 3000 miles on ocean and gulf marked off by more than 30 ports handling more than 300,000,000 of foreign commerce annually. The South has 89,000 miles of railways. The South's population of 22,000,000 is producing annually in agriculture, mining, manufacturing and fisheries to the value of nearly $3,000,000,000. It is equipped in natural resources for a production three times as great as that, with more to follow. For the union of all sections in a sharing of the mutual advantages to be derived from interdependence in Southern development the Manufacturers Record renews its pledge of thirty years ago by which it has abided in season and out of season.

The Editor of The Reflector:

My Dear Sir:—The Eastern North Carolina Baptist assembly now in session at Winterville is projected along broad lines and upon a lofty plan of practical usefulness. It is proposed that it be made a permanent institution meeting at some point in the eastern part of our state every year and performing for Eastern Carolina what Ridgeway affords for the central and western part of the state. The leaders are already provided and the brain and energy for its successful management are firmly buttressing the movement.

The only thing that can compass its failure is indifference and non-attendance on the part of Christian men and women of the Baptist persuasion.

Because the movement has within it the power for edifying a large body of Christian people and for giving a mighty impetus to the extension of Christ's kingdom among us. I believe to register my voice in persuading all my fellow-Christians of the Baptist church to support the movement in every way possible within their power.

The assembly closes tomorrow afternoon. Plans for permanent organization will be effected at that time. The leaders need encouragement. Nothing could afford it better than the presence at that session of a large company of Christian men and women from Greenville.

I am, sir
Respectfully yours,
RICHARD V. LANCASTER.

Is the connecting link between the merchant and customer—it is the merchant's salesman.

Goods snugly resting on a shelf are very need of circulating.

A Secret has better chance to travel than the goods of a merchant who will not talk about them all the time. The up-to-gold—all right, but in much like a miser's-date merchant looks to advertising like the aphone. Advertising enlarges the circle of merchant's business, announcer to his megaphone strengthens the volume of the voice. Both multiply the chances of a hearing. In grand father's time advertising was not thought of. But in grandfather's time competition was slight. Today it is so keen that a merchant must look out else the edge of competition may separate him from his business.

Be sure to tell the people what you have, why you have it, and what they can have it for. This is vital to your business. Also when telling the people use a medium that will reach them with your message of intelligence.

NEW YORK, June 29.—During the last few years the popularity of the one piece trotting frock for street wear has steadily increased and now such frocks in silk, in light weight wool, in linen and even in the thinner cottons are accepted as correct for such uses where once they would have been considered odd and out of place. This new custom undoubtedly means comfort, for a coat and skirt costume with separate blouse, even when made with light weight wool or of silk, is warmer than a frock of light material, but it is one that may easily be abused.

One objectionable feature of these frocks is the excessive shortness of the sleeves often supplemented by extreme lowness at the throat, the inexpensive, ready made frocks being practically prone to these foibles. Of course it is an easy matter to wear a gump with such a frock, a gump as well as chemisette or collar. Every that will supply little undersleeves short sleeve such gump in great and pleasing variety. Collars, hand embroidered or ornamented by both hand embroidery and lace, have to a noticeable extent superseded the frill collar on the latest French frocks, the frill, through attractive, having been overdone. Often these collars do not meet in front but extend only around to reach side of the front, the space between being filled by one of the wide jabots. This gives a cut with a suggestion of square at the throat, in place of the more familiar round or pointed lines, and many women to, whom the two latter eyes of collarless neckfinish, or rather low collar neck finish, are unbecoming, will find that this square line is kinder.

Collars are frequently to be seen, and the collar running in straight lines from the base of the throat to some point on a line with it to the shoulder points is also liked, this kind of collar being associated with some sort of soft fichu or revers drapery or with front frills.

The transparent or semi-transparent guilpe with sleeves worn with a heavy blouse which is sleeveless is exceedingly practical for the hot weather, and, luckily, is once more in style. Most often, perhaps, it is in or net or other sheer stuff echoing the color of the frock, but one sees is too in sheer white or cream lingerie material associated with a jumper blouse of darker coloring. This sort of thing must be carefully handled if it is to have smartness, but when successful the arrangement is very fresh and pretty.

Some extremely good looking models are made up in black or very dark blue charmeuse of taffeta, and chiffon sleeves to match the frock, having an unlined air but really mounted on flesh colored tulle, may be provided for wear when the lingerie sleeves seem undesirable.

Regnault's "Salome," For Which $105,600 Was Paid

FRENCH art circles have been greatly exercised over the purchase by a New York firm of art dealers of the painting "Salome," by Henri Regnault. The picture was offered at auction with other paintings of the Carcano collection and knocked down to the successful bidder for $105,600, much to the dissatisfaction of many Frenchmen, who hoped to see it purchased for presentation to the Louvre galleries. Indeed, a group of patriots had collected a large sum with such a purpose in view. Much of the interest felt by his countrymen in Regnault arises from the fact that he was killed in battle during the Franco-Prussian war. His works are chiefly concerned with oriental subjects, and his preference was for scenes of horror and bloodshed. Another of his famous canvases is "Decapitation in Granada" depicting a tragic episode of Moorish times.

A Charming Simple Summer Style

The body and sleeve in one is a feature that has been adopted for the little girls as well as for their mothers and in the model here shown we have a very pretty dress on this order. It may be made with or without a guilpe and the neck edges may be cut in either of three outlines. Percals or gingham will be practical for general wear with braid or feather stitching for a finish. The pattern is cut in sizes: 2, 4 and 6 years. It requires 2 yards of 36 inch material for the 6 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

William Collier and his son, William Collier, Jr., will have a scene especially written off them in the Friday's Frolic.

WASHINGTON BEATEN TWICE

Two Snappy Games of Baseball Are Won by the Greenville Team
 The Washington team returned home last night after spending the 4th in Greenville and consequently losing two fast games of baseball to the home team, one game being played in the morning and one in the afternoon, the scores being 6 to 2 and 6 to 1.

Willis Fleming and Ferrell Burch composed the battery for Greenville in the first game with Shelton and Bland working for Washington and both pitchers pitched good ball, the luck not being with Shelton, that's all.

In the afternoon Ben Bryan did the pitching for us and "they do say he had the enemy". Burch continued behind the bat. Bland was the opposing pitcher and as the score indicates he was hit for hits when hits meant runs. Fairly good audience graced the park for the afternoon game.
