How They Brought the News From Chicago to Washington

NO presidential campaign is really launched until the candidate has been formally notified of his nomination. Persons who have had no practical experience in politics may wonder why it wouldn't do the candidate and the country just as much good if he received the from the newspapers or saved his time and his wife's carpets by getting answering the notification by mail, but the politicians don't see the matter that light. So Senator Root and four hundred odd friends went to the White House recently, and in a few thousand well chosen words Mr. Root told the president that he had been renominated. Then Mr. Taft, successfully concealing his surprise at the announcement, read his acceptance in twenty type-written pages. The notification speech pronounced the president's title to the nomination "as clear and unimpeachable as the title of any candidate since political conventions began," and Mr. Taft said that the occasion was "appropriate for the expression of profound gratitude at the victory for the right which was won at Chicago."

INFANT DEAD

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Outlaw's Baby Passes Away

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Outlaw will be pained to hear that they are today grieving the death of their infant son. Intestinal trouble which started late Saturday evening developed yesterday into serious disorder that necessitated an operation. Inadequate as means are here in Greenville to carry out such an operation as was needed, prompted the parents to take their baby to some hospital. Kinston was tried but a negative answer was received from that town, the hospital there being taxed to capacity. The distracted parents then attempted to reach Goldsboro and after many difficulties boarded the 6:30 train to make connection in Kinston for Goldsboro. Their brave attempt to save the baby, was however, futile as he died in Goldsboro at 2 o'clock this morning. The baby's body was brought back this morning for interment here. Our heartfelt sympathy goes to the sorrowing parents.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 19.—The twenty fourth annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose which began a week of festivity in this city today, has attracted an attendance estimated at 20,000 visitors who come from many parts of the United States and Canada. A spirited contest is on for the honor of entertaining next year's convention of the order.

New Hotel in the Hub

Colorado Bankers in Session

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 19.—Several hundred men who stand high in the world of banking and finance assembled in Pueblo today for the annual convention of the Colorado Bankers Association. A two days program of papers, addresses and discussions has been prepared for the gathering.

The Primary

Saturday's Democratic primary in this county brought out some over 2500 voters, not quite as many as had been expected. We are giving in this issue the tabulated vote, showing just what each candidate received in the different precincts. The canvassing board will meet tomorrow to go over the official returns. In cases where there was no nomination a second primary will be held on September seventh, when only the two highest candidates for each office in Saturday's primary will be voted for.

AUGUST TERM CRIMINAL COURT

Opened this Morning With Judge Kline Presiding

ADDRESS TO GRAND JURY

The August criminal term Pitt superior court opened this morning with Judge E. B. Cline presiding Solicitor C. L. Abernethy prosecuting for the state and A. M. Rean, stenographer.

The drawing of the grand jury showed some absentees because of sickness and some others had excuses for not serving. The grand jury sworn in for the term is composed of the following:

F. J. Forbes, foreman, J. B. Rives, J. B. Bell, J. E. Cobb, S. K. Jackson, A. J. Flanagan, W. J. Sermons, Lafayette Cox, L. K. Gregory, J. R. Cooper, J. I. Manning, J. O. Wingate, E. G. Barrow, J. T. Nelson, Bailey Phillips, W. S. Tucker, C. J. Whitehurst, Heber Jackson.

This is Judge Cline's first court in Pitt and his charge to the grand jury was listened to with close attention and interest. He said it gave him pleasure to come to the eastern part of the state and since his arrival he had found only courtesy and kindness shown him. He also expressed pleasure at seeing the grand jury before him composed of comparative young men. Then addressing them as to their duties as grand jurors he referred to the importance of the position they held not as a drudgery but a privilege. Quoting from Blackstone he gave their duty as laid down by the great expounder of law and said it was the same today.

He said it was necessary to go in to the criminal law code, as in this day of schools, newspapers, telegraph and telephones, the people themselves have made advancement in intelligence until there is hardly a man but who knows what a violation of the law is. He said the crap shooter and petti gambler should not alone come up for indictment and presentment, but those "high up" as well who gamble in futures and those who are amenable to anti-trust laws. The child labor law was referred to which declares it unlawful for any child under 12 years of age being employed to work in a factory. The law restricting the sale of cocaine, morphine and kindred drugs was emphasized, because the sale of these drugs, especially in large places has become a curse to the state. The time to stop it is now.

Summing up his charge Judge Cline said he believed the jury before him would show equal justice to the interests of both state and defendants in all matters coming before them. There are thousands of men women and children in Pitt county who will lie down with a feeling of peace and safety tonight because they believe the court and jury are here to carry out the law and protect them. He would only ask that each juror plow the furrow straight doing his duty honestly and fairly in accordance with law and not in accordance to any personal opinion he may hold, whether it be a matter of stock law, prohibition, or any other matter. Men who violate the law should be punished regardless of what personal opinions may be in regard to that law. Unless we do our duty to enforce all the laws just as they are given us by the law making power, we can have no assurance that the graver laws so necessary to protection of life and property will be enforced. Every juror should be able to walk out and face the public with the declaration, "I have done my full duty in upholding the law and helping to make Pitt county and North Carolina better to live in". He urged upon the grand jury the spirit of giving these few days unselfishly to the service of their state and county doing their duty for the protection of the life, property and rights of citizens just as they would wish their own to be.

In referring to institutions of the county on which the grand jury should report, he knew before getting here that Pitt had the best court house in

ROLLA WELLS IS EARLY ON THE JOB

Democratic National Treasurer Is After Small Contributor.

THE PEOPLE ARE TO HELP

There is to Be No "Tainted Money" Used in Electing Wilson and Marshall.

New York.—A small, smooth shaved, middle-aged man with a coat of tan that gave evidence of much outdoor life recently came into the Waldorf carrying a suit case early in the afternoon and registered as "Rolla Wells, St. Louis, Mo."

The smooth shaved little man, who is to be the watchdog of the Wilson campaign money from now on, was asked for vital statistics, whereupon it was learned at first hand that he is a banker and ex-mayor of St. Louis, is fifty-six years old, was graduated at Princeton in 1876, or three years before Governor Wilson was graduated; that he has two sons who are Princeton men and a grandson who some day will be a Princeton man; that he had no notion of seeing New York this summer until the Wilson organization selected him as its treasurer and that just at present the one thing that sticks out in the appointment in his mind is that the new job cut in seriously upon a most beautiful vacation which he and Mrs. Wells had been enjoying in a camp at Little Traverse bay, Michigan.

Mr. Wells believes in getting at his desk at 8 o'clock in the morning.

"We are going to raise our campaign fund through the small contributions," said Mr. Wells.

"I am sure that a large part of the money will be raised by popular subscription."

"The people have confidence in Woodrow Wilson, and they will give what they can of their means to elect such a man president."

"I am a great believer in publishing broadcast, before and after election, the various contributions made."

"There are men who can well afford to give the committee $5,000, but I want to assure the public that we are not going to have any tainted money. We are appealing to the people, and we are relying on them to help elect Wilson and Marshall."

"I have two boys who have been graduated from Princeton, one five years ago and one seven. But it is not because ours is a Princeton family that I like Governor Wilson. He is a great big man and the type that we should have in public life."

Woodrow Wilson says this is not a time to be afraid to "speak out in meeting." That he was not afraid is demonstrated by his logical speech in accepting the Democratic nomination.

Roosevelt was willing to crawl from the White House to the capitol in 1908 if he could help his friend Root. Today he would like nothing better than meeting Root up a dark alley.

The Democrats are depending on the small contributor to help elect Wilson and Marshall. The appeal is being made to the people, and the people are responding.

The Democrats are not taking the election of Wilson for granted. They are working and working harder than in a score of years and working as a united party.

Farmers have awakened to the folly of the so called blessings of a protective tariff.

Winning with Wilson means more than a mere Democratic victory it means restoring real prosperity.

the state and he finds from seeing it that no report is necessary on that as it is a credit to the people and county, but he would be glad to know if when they visit the county home they could report if Pitt county had done as well for that institution as should be done.

Judge Cline is comparatively a young man of pleasing appearance and the impression he has made upon the people of Pitt county is most gratifying.

Wilson Marshall

HOW DEMOCRATS HELPED LABOR.

Chairman W. B. Wilson of the Committee on Labor of the Democratic House of Representatives, pointed out in a recent speech in the House that the labor interests of the country had received more consideration from the present Democratic House than had come to them for many years.

He laid special stress on the fact that the Democrats had restored to government employees the right of petition—a constitutional privilege that had been taken away from them by executive orders under both Roosevelt and Taft—and on the further fact that the Democratic party had lived up to its platform promise in the treatment of labor. Mr. Wilson cited fifteen specific measures beneficial to labor that had been passed by the House at the present session at the request of the workers of the nation.

Prominent among the list is the eight hour bill, extending the operation of this law to work done for the government as well as work done by the government; the anti-injunction bill, to protect workmen during wage disputes; the contempt bill, to provide for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt; the bill creating a Department of Labor and the inauguration of Taylor and other systems of scientific shop management, which impose undue hardships on working men.

WILSON PROGRESSIVE, BUT SAFE.

Governor Wilson has quieted the fears of the business interests that the tariff may be reduced too suddenly in the event of Democratic success in November.

Governor Wilson recently had a conference with Congressman Redfield of New York, who has made some of the most sensible tariff speeches ever heard in Congress and it was agreed between them that the proper and safe thing to do with regard to the tariff is to cut it down gradually until the proper level is reached. In fact it will be easy to ascertain just what effect each successive cut has on price conditions and wages. Thus by easy stages the tariff for private profit can be turned into a tariff for revenue and this process is sure to result in a reduction in the cost of living.

Governor Wilson is not anxious to injure any man's business. He will insist, however, in the event of his election, that all business be legitimate and that the false foundation be taken from under the tariff trusts. But he will make it a gradual process and one that will not disturb either business or the country in general.

WATERED STOCK COSTS EACH FAMILY $100 ANNUALLY

Overcapitalization of our industries is not only one of the prime causes of the present high cost of living, but is also one of the principal causes of the present unsatisfactory condition of labor. This can be demonstrated by a little arithmetic.

Various prominent financial students conclude, and their conclusions are sustained by the reports of the United States Commission and the published figures of the National Corporation Tax Returns, that about $30,000,000,000 of outstanding stock represents water. On this stock, dividends of about $1,500,000,000 are being paid, amounting to about $18 a person or nearly $100 an American family.

Holders of first series shares in The Home Building and Loan Association passed up their pass books for the last time Saturday that being the last payment on maturity. The association begun business the first Saturday in May, 1906, hence has matured its first series in 329 weeks, or about three weeks less than the average time of maturity with building and loan associations. There are about 490 of these maturing shares and Secretary H. A. White says he will have his books ready to begin paying them off in a few days.

According to the way some men talk and act, they must think it little short of a crime for anybody else to have a different opinion from theirs in regard to candidates for office. It is right along this line that politics causes some people to lose their heads and both say and do very foolish. Such need to awaken to the realization that this is a free country and every man has a right to think and act for himself and favor whomsoever he pleases for office.

We cannot see that Saturday's primary in this county made any new advocates of that method of selecting candidates for office. On the contrary we have heard numerous expressions favoring a return to the old method of nominating conventions. A voting primary that is not legalized is little less than a farce.

There were not many surprises in the primary even though some candidates might not have received as many votes as they were expecting.

There will be another three weeks' hustle from now until the next primary on September seventh.

Those who are now out of the running can get to looking for another job and after the next primary some others can do likewise.

The lower house of congress passed the wool bill over President's veto, but when it came to the senate that body sustained the president.

Out in California a woman has taken the stump for Wilson. The committee should help her down.

Yes, they all had a right to run, but of course all could not be elected.

He took a more or less prominent part in the Filipino insurrection of 1898-1900, serving on the staff of Generals Aguinaldo and Mascardo. The "Middle Class" Man Has Always Been the Fighter, The Real Revolutionist

Our distinguished and able fellow citizen, Victor Berger, who represents the whole Socialist party of the United States in the United States congress, comments interestingly up on the Roosevelt program and party in a letter which he sends to The New York Times.

Berger sees in Roosevelt a man who will create Socialists and develop socialistic theory and socialistic voting.

Mr. Berger says that Roosevelt "appeals to the restive middle class, not to enlightened labor."

Nobody knows better than Victor Berger that nothing is so powerful in this world as a restive middle class.

Berger knows that the great changes in the world have come from the restive class. It is not the roof of the foundation about of the social structure that has done the work and brought about the changes.

Chomwell belonged to the restive middle class—he changed England and all of Europe.

Napoleon Bonapart belonged to the restive middle class. His mother was a middle class woman almost as broad as she was high and with good business instinct.

Dayton, Robespierre, Marat all belong to the restive middle class.

And Mirabeau who started the stand that he did because prejudice and dieke a pushed his down from the nobility and compelled him to ally himself with that restive middle class.

The restive middle class followed Caesar in Rome, and destroyed the power of the patrician senate.

A restive middle class in this country represented by George Washington and Jefferson and men of this type threw over the English power. The aristocrats of that day in America, as in England, wanted no change. And the masses at the bottom of the heap demanded no change.

If Roosevelt can lead the restive middle class, or can ride securely along on a wave of middle class restiveness, he will travel far. The man who has any power in our days raises himself into the middle class easily. He may not reach the top. Usually intelligence of unusual dishonesty or good luck is necessary to put a man among the first few.

But in our day real ability gets into the middle class readily. And when real ability finds that it hasn't a fair chance, that it lacks justice, it becomes restive here in America, or in England of Cromwell's day or in the France of 1790, or before the Christian era.

Workingmen feed the middle class, workingmen supply the ablest individual to all of the classes to called above the labor class.

But the great work is not done in movements by working class individuals. And as that is historically true, it may as well be frankly acknowledged by Berger and others.

In the whole of the French revolution there was never one single educated workingman that ever reached any position of power or influence. It was "restive middle-class" work.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

BEAUTY HINT, NO 1

Our receipts are perfectly harmless and can be used between meals with entire safety. We shall first treat with the subject of hair, which, next to the privilege of free speech and plenty of it, is the crowning glory of womanhood.

There are two kinds of hair—domestic and imported. Domestic hair is held in place by centrifugal forces and should not be pulled out to make room for the foreign article. This kind of hair is quite adhesive and will stick to the shoulder of a blue serge coat in a very blazen manner.

Imported hair is a Chinese product and comes in the form of the rat, the switch and the puff and the greatest of these is the switch. This variety of hair has to be fitted on with a kit of repairing tools, ranging from the wire hair-pin to that seductive device known as the kid curler. Curly hair is a manifestation of a prejudiced and unscrupulous providence and as an evidence of rank favoritism is a decided success.

In buying a switch, care should be exercised to secure a color that will match up within four or five shades of the natural article. A switch which does not harmonize with the scenery about it is a greater disappointment than a pink waist over a green skirt.

The hair should be washed in semi-annual installments which will make it so pliable that it can be bent into any shape, from a clever imitation of the Shoshone falls to the rugged promontory called the Psyche knot.

In order to secure a fetching pompadour effect, cause the hair to leap over a small trellis and allow it to fall gracefully in the direction of the setting sun.

Do not dye the hair with anything except fast colors. A head of hair which looks like a faded Navajo blanket will never help the wearer in the smart set.

Press Comment

The Stick and Deception.

Why is it that when a man becomes stricken unto death there is a disposition to minimize the seriousness of his condition—to hold out hopes that on their face are false? We have in hand a recent issue in which those gifted with the talent of "reading between the lines," knew at once that an attempt was being made to veil the real condition of the victim, and while some may have been led to hope, the more thoughtful awaited for the investable news. We could never understand this desire on the part of the family and friends to practice this manifest deception. Is it not better to tell the truth and prepare the friends of a sick person for them believe there is hope when what to expect, rather than to make there is none? It seems to be a species of deception that has been countenanced by custom, and one to

The Wool Tariff.

The house on Tuesday passed the wool tariff revision bill over the veto of the president. Democratic and progressive senators are quoted as saying that they don't believe enough votes can be mustered in the senate to duplicate in that body the action of the house. It usually works out that way. Be the house ever so ready to give legislation calculated to help the consumer or rather to protect him from the rapacity of "infant industries," the senate can be depended on to get in the way of actual accomplishment. But even that conservative body is waking up and if substantial tariff revisions is not secured at this session, it will be at the next.—New Era Journal.

As fleeing visions of the night they shine,

Or daylight trances, aping the divine,

That we may bow knees to them and pray;

Dishonored outcasts of the dolorous way,

They lurk, and show with perilous design

Their Dead Sea apples and their worm-wood wine,

Glories that hurt and treasures that decay.

They come as ghost and phantoms.
Yet the lure

Is hard for hungering spirits to repel,

Old Gods are these, of ancient rites secure,

Craving the stones from which they erstwhile fell—

Still finding secret worship homage sure,

And smoldering hot desires that serve them well.

—Arthur L. Salmon, in Pall Mall
Gazette.

MISTAKE IN INITIAL

Linotype Boy Not as Much to Blame as Proofreader

In our issue of the 27th, ult., we published a notice from Mrs. J. D.
Cox, director of the Womans' Department of the Pitt County Fair. By one of those misfortunes which are as well a matter of overlooking, the proof came to the desk with the notice signed Mrs. B. T. Cox, instead of J. D. Cox. Again the proofreader flew over his proofs and the mistake in initials went by unnoticed. We are sorry for it and promise to in the future look out for "squalls in the proof reading sea".

NEXT!

H. Bentley Harris, Esq.,

Dear Sir: In acknowledging receipt of the first year's dividends under my Ordinary Life Policy for $500. with The Mutual Life, I am highly pleased to note this dividend, for the first year, is 20 per cent of first premium.
This sustains the reputation of your company for paying high annual cash dividends, together with other valuable Policy Conditions.

Very truly,

Signed, F. C. HARDING.

Our Citizens Demand

Fully Complied With—A Greenville Resident Furnished It.

There are a few items which appear in this paper more important to Greenville people than the statement published below. In the first place, it is from a citizen of Greenville and can be thoroughly relied upon. In the second place, it indisputably proves that Doan's Kidney Pills do their work thoroughly and not temporarily.
Read this carefully:

Mrs. E. G. Worthington, Washington street, Greenville, N. C., says:
"I have been so greatly benefited by Doan's Kidney Pills that I am glad to recommend them. My back ached nearly all the time and I could not rest well. The kidney secretions caused me annoyance and it was plain to see that I was suffering from kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got from the John L. Wooten Drug Company, relieved my aches and pains and improved my condition greatly. I cannot praise this remedy too strongly".

Application for Pardon

Notice is hereby given that applipardon should make the fact known to the governor at once.
