

TREATY FIGHT NOW ENTERING FINAL PHASES IN SENATE

Leaders Hope During This Week to Clear Away All Proposed Amendments FORTY-ONE DEMOCRATS STANDING BY WILSON Fifty Five Senators is to Report to Have Reached An Agreement.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The long treaty fight in the Senate is about to enter its final phase. Leaders hope during the coming week to clear away all proposed amendments and make substantial progress in the framing of a ratification resolution.

Virtually conceding that no amendments will be adopted, the opposing managers are determined to qualify the ratifying resolution with reservations and Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, declared in a statement tonight that a decisive majority would stand for reservations that would be "unequivocal and effective."

Privately the opposition leaders declared Mr. Lodge's claim was backed by an understanding amounting virtually to a complete agreement among all of the 49 Republicans and six Democrats to stand together for a reservation program evolved after many weeks of conferences. It was said not all of the details had been agreed upon though on general principles and in some cases on phraseology itself the fifty-five Senators had been brought very close together.

How far the remaining forty-one Senators will go in their opposition to reservations is an uncertain question even in the minds of some of their leaders. They have stood unwaveringly through the long fight for President Wilson's program of a ratification that would not require the treaty's re-submission to the other powers. But it is for the President himself to decide finally whether any reservations adopted do require such re-submission, and his illness has left the Administration leaders somewhat in the dark.

There have been intimations that should reservations unacceptable to the Administration be put into the ratification resolution the Administration forces would vote "no" on the ratification roll-call, but their leaders are not ready to say how they will cross that bridge until they come to it. It would take only thirty-three votes to prevent ratification.

RED CROSS SENDS COMMISSION INTO A HUNGARY CITY

The First of Central Powers Receives Aid From the Red Cross. UNIT IS IN CHARGE OF EFFICIENT MEN The Commission Was Sent at Request of Commission In Paris.

Paris, Oct. 20.—Hungary is the first of the late Central Powers to receive an official commission of the American Red Cross for civilian work. To meet the urgent need for medical and surgical supplies in the hospitals of Budapest, a train of 30 cars in charge of a unit of twelve American officers has been sent from Paris. The supplies carried are valued at $350,000.

The unit is in charge of Major S. A. Moffatt, of Brooklyn and Major B. B. Metheny, of Seattle, both of whom have had long experience in relief work in France. The transportation is under Captain H. H. Kidder, of Maryhill, Wash., and the personnel is under Captain Howard Armstrong of Buffalo. Other members of the unit are: Lieutenant John A. Langston, of Cleburne, Texas; Lieutenant Frederick H. Mead, of Troy, N. Y.; Lieutenant William Hosi, of Troy, N. Y.; Lieutenant L. E. Walsh, of Amherst, Mass.; Lieutenant V. J. Oldhouse, of Pittsburg, and Sergeant R. D. Heimbach, of San Francisco.

The commission was sent to Budapest at the request of the Inter-Allied Commission in Paris. Hospitals, in Budapest were reported as crowded to overflowing but without the barest necessities. A report on the situation in Budapest, sent to Paris by one of the advance agents of the American Red Cross says:

"Hungary today seems the least able of any of the defeated nations to right itself and resume its place among the people of the world. Budapest, the (Continued on page five.)"

TWO MEN FOUND DEAD NEAR SHORE OF TRANTER CREEK

Two Colored Men, Alex Meeks and Warren Peten Thought to Been Killed.

Alex Meeks, a young colored man about 20 years old, of Carolina's township, left his home last Monday morning to go hunting. Failing to return home that night or the next day, his people became uneasy, and failing to learn anything of his whereabouts by inquiry among the neighbors, a search was started. Both white and colored people joined in the search which continued two or three days, and on Saturday the body of the missing man was found in Tranter's creek.

A strange coincidence in connection with the finding of the body of Meeks, which was near the shore on the Pitt county side of the creek, the body of another colored man, Warren Peten, was found about 75 yards distant near the Beaufort county shore of the creek. From the finding of the bodies about the same time and near the same place, it is supposed they had gone hunting together and in some way both were drowned. There was nothing to indicate how the accident occurred, and no doubt this will remain a mystery.

Coroner J. J. Turnage went over today to investigate the matter. A later telephone message to The Reflector this afternoon says an examination of the bodies discloses evidence of foul play. Two gun shot wounds were found in Meeks' side and the back of Peten's head was crushed. From this it is supposed that the men were both killed and their bodies thrown in the creek, but how or by whom is a mystery. Neither of the guns the men carried with them when they started hunting have been found.

YOUTHFUL BANDITS TERRORIZE FOLKS IN TENNESSEE

One Boy Kills Sheriff in Tennessee and Makes His Escape. CITIZENS GOING TO RESCUE HELD AT BAY After Rope Is Placed Around James Oliver He Makes a Confession.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 20.—When indignant citizens of James county put a rope around the neck of James Oliver and strung him up to the limb of a tree near Ooltewah shortly after midnight Saturday night he is said to have broken down and told them the name of his companion who shot and killed Deputy Sheriff W. B. McIntosh a few hours earlier.

Oliver, who is not yet 21, and Ed. Martin, who is charged with having killed McIntosh, are said to have barricaded a point on the Dixie highway just south of Ooltewah shortly after dark Saturday night and held it until nearly midnight, while they held up and robbed occupants of all automobiles and other vehicles that passed.

Citizens who heard of their activities and went armed with pistols and shotguns to arrest them were themselves captured by the boy bandits, and at one time six men and one woman were huddled along the roadside, covered with the pistol of one robber, while the other waited behind his barricade for other vehicles to bring fresh victims.

This was after McIntosh had been shot and for some time his body lay by the side of his automobile, (Continued on page five.)"

MR. C. Y. EUBANKS FIRST MEMBER OF THIRD ROLL CALL

The North Carolinian Is So Impressed He Joins The Red Cross

The first Red Cross member to be registered in the Southern Division in the Third Roll Call—which hasn't begun yet, by the way—is C. Y. Eubanks of Pittsborough, N. C., a Confederate Veteran among those present at the great reunion in Atlanta last week. Mr. Eubanks was not asked to join the Red Cross. It was his own idea. He was in the Red Cross emergency hospital at Camp Johnston, where the veterans were encamped.

Mr. Eubanks was convalescing from a touch of illness. He beckoned to a nurse.

"Here," he said, holding out a dollar bill. "You take charge of this, please, and give it to whoever takes dollars for Red Cross memberships, and put me down as a member. They tell me the Red Cross is going to have some kind of a campaign for members soon. Well, count me in—I've seen enough of what the Red Cross does since I got into the hospital to make me a member for life."

National Electric Light Association Decides to Solve the Problem. UNITED STATES WILL BE DIVIDED INTO SECTIONS Coal Conservation and Water Power Development to Receive Attention.

New York, Oct. 20.—Solution of the great war problems which confront the electric light and power industry in the United States, such as coal conservation, electrification of railroads, water power development and better public relationship by reason of non-political activity, has been undertaken by the National Electric Light Association, composed of 15,000 large and small plants throughout the country, it was announced here today by M. H. Aylesworth, formerly chairman of the Colorado Public Utilities Commission, who has been elected to give his entire time to the project as executive aid to R. H. Ballard of Los Angeles, Calif., president of the Association.

"Our ambition," said Mr. Aylesworth, "will be to bring about the highest development of efficiency and economy in the light and power industry in the interest of the consuming public. We shall endeavor to carry out a national idea, uniform and systematic, for better service by means of education. The experiences of the biggest plants in obtaining the best results from coal and affecting other economies of operation, for instance, will be made available for the smallest producers of current."

JAMES ALEXANDER DELIVERS ADDRESS IN ATLANTIC CITY

Speaks Before a Committee of the International Trade Conference.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 20.—Government financing of America's foreign trade should be ended and the pre-war course of private financing and enterprise resumed in order to solve the difficulties in international commerce, according to James S. Alexander, president of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, before a committee of the International Trade Conference today. Mr. Alexander, who is chairman of the committee advocated as other measures of reform in all nations the necessity of "the greatest possible number of people doing a day's work and of the greatest possible conservation of the results of that work," and the interchange of goods between the United States and Europe on a better balanced basis.

"The exports and imports of one kind and another in the commerce of the world do not, from the point of view of any one nation, give evidence of trade-of exchange of commodities on a reciprocal and balanced basis," he said. "Therefore, I think we can be specific in our agreement that the chief abnormal international factor is this alarmingly unbalanced interchange of goods—that the balance of trade is too favorable to the United States and too adverse to Europe for the best interests of both, and that the correction of the exchange situation resulting from this one-sided balance will find its natural and permanent solution through a reduction of our exports or a increase of our imports until a point of approximate equilibrium is reached."

Mr. Alexander asserted that the re-establishment of our commercial relations with Europe should be accomplished on a business basis.

Another shower Friday evening brought out some overcoats again.

PRESIDENT STILL MAKES PROGRESS TOWARD RECOVERY

Attending Physicians Encouraged It Is Stated. PATIENT MAY SIT UP BUT CAN'T SEE CALLERS All Efforts Made For His Recovery Are Being Met With Success.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Having obtained relief from the prostatic condition which retarded his recovery last week, President Wilson was the victim today of slight digestive trouble. His condition otherwise throughout the day, Rear Admiral Grayson, his personal physician, announced tonight was unchanged.

Dr. Grayson issued the following bulletin from the White House tonight: "President had a slight digestive disturbance today. Otherwise his condition is unchanged."

President's general condition was regarded as satisfactory, notwithstanding the slight attack of indigestion. Until mid-day Dr. Grayson and the physicians assisting him found in the examination of their patient every evidence that Mr. Wilson was more an holding his own, and the development after noon was not regarded as serious or as any indication that the President's general condition was worse.

It was said, however, that any incidental ailment tended to increase nervousness and to that extent retarded recovery.

Further progress by President Wilson in recovering from his attack of nervous exhaustion was indicated today by his physicians. Although the mid-day bulletin from the White House was a conservative statement, saying that the President had rested well, and that there had been no material change in his condition, it was learned from members of the President's official (Continued on page five.)"

REV. GEO. ATKINSON CONDUCTS Y. W. C. A. VESPER SERVICES

Made an Appeal to the Girls to Win Christ for Themselves.

Girls at the Training School very fortunate in having Rev. George Atkinson, president of the Normal and Industrial Institution at Salisbury to conduct their Y. W. C. A. Vesper services. He chose for his subject "Win Christ". He told how we all are working to win something, to make a record or reach a standard. He used as an illustration the trains trying to reach a certain speed limit. He showed how some people try to win records in the social world, some great wealth, others places in politics, and some standards in education. Even education he said, is a failure within itself. He made clear that only those working to win Christ won true success. He made an appeal to the girls to win Christ for themselves, and in addition the other things that were worth having, and assured them that was the only way in which they could attain success. The special music was a solo sang by Miss Kathleen Vaughn. Mr. George Howard, superintendent of Edgecombe county schools, will give a illustrated lecture at the Training School this evening at eight o'clock. The public is invited to come out and see what is being done to get fewer and better schools in one of the neighboring counties.

HOME OF NOBILITY PASSES INTO HANDS OF REAL ESTATE CO.

Devonshire House Is Purchased for $5,000,000 by An American Company LAST SEAT OF NOBILITY TO BE SOLD IN LONDON A Large Hotel Will Be Built on the Site According to the Reports.

London, Oct. 20.—The sale of the Duke of Devonshire's town house to a real estate syndicate for $5,000,000 is the latest of the seats of the old nobility to pass into the hands of outsiders. The purchaser of this London home of the Governor-General of Canada is an American syndicate and it is reported that a hotel will be erected on the site.

Devonshire House was erected nearly two centuries ago, in 1738, at a cost of about $1,000,000. It is one of the most important and historic of the old London mansions with gloomy exteriors and splendid interiors which Thackeray and the other Victorian novelists made the stage settings of their most impressive passages of London life. It stands with characteristic disregard for display, its back to London's chief thoroughfare, Piccadilly, its porches facing a spacious garden worth some dollars per square inch. Landsdowne House, the town place of the Marquis of Landsdowne, which commands an even larger garden, is the nearest neighbor and that is reported to be in the market also.

The Governor-General of Canada and the Marquis of Landsdowne both own three of four country estates as well. They are at the front of the great landed proprietors of the kingdom, and the Duke's palace named Chatsworth in Derbyshire is one of the most magnificent private establishments in the world surpassed by nothing in Britain except Windsor Castle.

Chesterfield House, owned by generations of Lords Chesterfield, and long considered the finest of the old London residences, has been sold recently. This had been rented for some years by the Duke of Roxburghe who married Miss May Goelet, the daughter of Ogden Goelet, of New York. Here the government entertained Colonel House when he came to London as special commissioner after the United States entered the war. The Duke of Rutland has just parted with his town house which for a time was tenanted by the American merchant, Gordon Selfridge. Lord Ebury's great country estate in Surrey near London has been purchased by a newly created peer, Lord Leverhulme, the soap magnate.

The newspapers ascribe various reasons for these sales. The chief one is that super-income taxes and the general increase of the cost of living make impossible the upkeep of such buildings and the necessary retinue of servants; another that the motor car makes it possible for people to live in the country and still enjoy all the advantages of town life. Another writer credits the Duke of Devonshire with a belief that the constant eight of such costly private possessions by the bus-riding masses who daily pass the iron gates of Devonshire House tends to promote Bolshevism."

MARKS SPOT OF YANKS' LANDING

France Lays Cornerstone of Monument at the Pointe de Grave.

WALLACE PRAISES FRENCH

President Poincare Urges Both Nations to Guard Against Estrangement—Lafayette Sailed for America From Same Port.

Pointe de Grave, France.—France paid lasting tribute to American activity entry into the great war by laying the cornerstone of a monument here commemorating the landing on the spot of the first contingent of American troops in 1917. Speeches by President Poincare and Hugh C. Wallace, the American ambassador, were the features of the exercises, appropriately held on the birthday of Lafayette, who sailed for America from this same port in 1777.

The scene was a brilliant one, numerous detachments of French and American soldiers, sailors and marines assembled among the sandy dunes of the Pointe giving color to the picture. The guard of honor, for instance, was composed of United States marines, many of whom were veterans of the fighting on the Marne in 1918.

Distinguished Gathering.

In addition to Premier Clemenceau, Marshal Foch and other distinguished Frenchmen, numbers of prominent Americans assisted in the ceremony, among them Frank L. Polk, under secretary of state; Gen. Tasker H. Bliss and Brig. Gen. W. D. Connor, now commander of the American forces in France. The French representation included also Marquis de Chambrun, a descendant of Lafayette and a member of the Joffre mission to the United States in 1917; Andre Tardieu, and Deputy Maurice Dameur, chairman of the committee in charge of the exercises. A band from the U. S. S. Carola played.

A crowd of some 3,000 witnessed the ceremony. President Poincare in his speech called to America to continue that close relationship which caused the United States to come to the aid of France.

"In the plains of Picardy, Lorraine and Champagne by the side of 1,400,000 whom the war has mown down," said he, "sleep your Americans whose mothers do not know their tombs. They all sacrificed to the same ideal the French died for. Let us bend down over these tombs and listen. It is the same voice which everywhere arises from the depths of the earth. 'We have suffered,' they say, 'in order that the world should become free.' To you now falls the duty to watch that never again may leap up this danger which we have removed. Do not allow France and America to estrange themselves one from the other. Do not draw apart those hands which are now joined. Be on your guard that there shall never be kept between you misunderstandings which sooner or later might be transformed into disagreements.

"Tomorrow no more than yesterday can you dispense with each other. Separated you will quickly be exposed to the offensive return of violence. Side by side the peoples who have won the war will be strong enough to make such war impossible."

Praises Spirit of France.

American Ambassador Wallace said the monument would be to "victory and liberty."

The speaker praised the spirit of France and said that while "many and great are the glories of France there is none that compares with the glory of the Marne."

Ambassador Wallace, after having dwelt upon the part Lafayette had played in the Revolutionary war, said the United States was proud to have had the opportunity to cross the ocean in this case, and that General Pershing had the honor of serving under Marshal Foch. The ambassador said he also considered it a great honor to himself that the opportunity was given him to affirm what was the due of France, which, he declared, must come out of the war with added strength and prestige, as otherwise victory would have been won in vain.

This Poker Player Was Thoroughly Cleaned Out

GERMAN TRADE DRIVE IS ON

Commercial Agents Flock to Venezuela, Underbidding Americans.

San Juan, Porto Rico.—American travelers who recently arrived here from Venezuela report that there are open evidences of renewed German activity in that country. Many Germans have been arriving in Venezuela during the last few months and German commercial travelers are reported particularly active. They represent all lines of industry. As one man who returned from Venezuela last week explained it:

"If I want to sell clothing at $15 a suit to the Venezuelan merchants, a German salesman has something just as good for $12 or $13. If I offer 90 days or six months' credit the German offers six months or a year. In every line it is the same way: They are offering to take orders for all classes of manufactured goods and promise prompt delivery. Many Germans are arriving in Venezuela, evidently prepared to settle there."

'BLIND TIGER' DEVICE BARED

People of Porto Rico Had Developed Interest in Distribution of Plants.

San Juan, P. R.—The government officials have just discovered the means by which liquor is carted around San Juan and disposed of in contravention of the prohibition law.

The old crude methods were stopped long ago, but the liquor still continued to circulate. Recently an inspector noticed a big boom in the business of peddling growing plants.

People who had been in the liquor business, it appeared, were particularly interested in horticulture all of a sudden, and the agent got suspicious and investigated. He found that gasoline tins had been arranged with false bottoms, inclosed in which was the contraband liquor.

The upper part of the tin was filled with clay and a growing plant placed in it. The dealer had only to transplant his shrubbery from the filled tin to an empty one and get out the particular form of intoxicant he wanted.

FASHION GOSSIP

By the Fashionable Woman's Clothier

To the Woman who wants the most in style, most in value, most in workmanship, we commend our charming dresses—Winsome Suits, Handsome Coats, Saucy Coatees, Snappy Skirts, Bewitching Gowns, Bewildering Blouses, Luxurious Furs, Smart Smocks.

Coats

There's a terrible scandal in Coatland this fall. Some of the smartest modes refuse to have pockets! And after we've become so accustomed to them, too.

But they are gorgeous enough to be forgiven. One exquisite mode of tin sel-tone, for instance, falls straight and graceful, with a huge beaver collar and a wide belt that wraps round and round before it fastens. But never a sign of a pocket.

And those coats that wouldn't give up their pockets are flaunting them in diverse shapes and sizes—right in the face of their rivals.

Let us show you.

Suits

"To be or not to be"—that was the question that confronted several yards of exquisite tricotine. Whether 'twas smarter to be a dress and with the dresses hide, or whether a Fall suit stood more chance of winning favor.

The suit finally answered the question, and you'll find it's keeping company with dozens of other stunning Fall models of kordovan cloth, weaves akin to duvetyne, and our old comrade serge.

The many new shades add delightful zest to the entrancing modes.

Spend a leisure hour in their company, the many smart style themes will keep you interested. Let us show you.

Furs

If you're inclined "forward" these days, have a look at the newest caprices that we are showing.

Exquisite Scarfs of Fox, Wolf, Lynx and Coney and all the rest* that have been "passed by the censor"—Dame Fashion.

Saucy coatees; perfect loves of shoulder capes and stoles—quaint collars to snuggle one's chin into.

Let me whisper it—prices are wonderfully moderate.

Let us show you.

Dresses

Right into the heart of Femininity flutter the new Fall dresses, and between me, you and the gatepost, we think they're going to prove most popular.

Stunning serges and tricotines; lavishly embroidered satins and exquisitely simple tricolettes. Girdles and sashes that play hide-and-seek; stopping in the back when you look for them on the side, fastening on the side when you have about made up your mind they should be in front.

"Individuality"—that is the dominant note of the charming Fall dresses.

Let us show you.

Gowns

"All's well that ends well"—so when a shimmering, glimmering satin dinner frock ends in a demurely short train, one finds it very well, indeed. Apricot satin it was—with a hint of rainbow blue at the girdle, and a youthful drapery of silken net to the side.

Dainty dance frocks of frail colors rubbed shoulders with creations in black satins and charmeuse, aglitter with silver. Will 'o the wisp models, recklessly youthful and sedate ones of quiet elegance—one finds them all in the concourse of new evening frocks for Autumn "doings."

Let us show you.

Don't forget when you come to see us, to ask to see our Gingham House Dresses, Bungalow Aprons, Kiddy Dresses and Rompers, Serge Middy Suits and Twill Middy Blouses, and the thrifty minded will do well to see our Coat Suits and Coats specially priced $19.95, $24.95 and $29.95—all wool and real values.

KEEP SMALL IN CONGRESS.

When people send a representative to congress they want a representative there. That is just what the people of the first North Carolina district have in Congressman John H. Small, who has been their representative for now nearly twenty years. No district has ever sent a man to congress who has been more faithful to his constituents and their interests than John Small. It cannot be pointed out that he has ever neglected any duty, or ever failed to give attention to the request of a constituent, it matters not how humble might be the person from whom the request came. He has accomplished more for the people of his district than was ever done by any previous representative, and his long experience and familiarity with public matters qualifies him to render better service than could be given by another. Again, John Small is a man of clean life and unquestionable character that stands above reproach.

Just now there are other candidates opposing Mr. Small, wanting his seat in congress. Of course they have the right to aspire to such a position, but the most unwise thing people of the district could do would be to put John Small for either of those who are opposing him. His faithful record enough to cause him to be kept in congress, and a comparison of his life and character with the others should cause any right thinking man to hesitate before casting a vote against him. John Small is the man to keep in congress.

Dr. Grayson, who has spent the night at the White House ever since the President returned from his speaking tour three weeks ago today, was not called to the patient's bedside at all last night. It was the first time that some phase of the patient's condition had not made it necessary for his physician to attend him after he retired for the night.

The President has been permitted to sit up occasionally and has insisted at times that he be permitted to attend to some work. His physicians have insisted that for the time being he must be content to wait. Callers are not permitted to see him, but numerous reminders of their visits are sent to his room, one today being an armful of chrysanthemums personally delivered at the White House by three enlisted men of the army, and a sailor accompanied by an attendant from a nearby military hospital, where they are patients.

AREY IS NEW EXTENSION DAIRYMAN.

West Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 18.—Mr. John A. Arey, formerly assistant in dairy extension for the Animal Industry Division, and now county agent in Iredell county, has been selected to head the Dairy Field Office of the Animal Industry Division succeeding Mr. A. J. Reed, resigned.

Mr. Arey is a graduate of the State College of Agriculture, class of 1900, and has done special graduate work at the University of Wisconsin in dairying, devoting attention to the manufacturing phases. He comes to his new position January 1.

Mr. Arey began his agricultural work in this State as County Agent in Iredell County, after which he came to the Extension Service as field worker in dairying. He resigned this position during the past year to again take up county agent work so as to be able to give some attention to his farm which is located in Iredell County. He comes to his new position, therefore, with ample experience, both as a farmer and county agent. During the time of his former connection with the Animal Industry Division he was unusually successful in the establishment of breeding associations in the piedmont section of the State. For a number of years he was secretary of the State Dairyman's Association, bringing this organization to a high standard among those which are building the State's livestock industry.

According to Mr. Dan T. Gray, chief of the Animal Industry Division, the Extension Service is very fortunate indeed in securing the services of this worker. No man in the State has the cordial co-operation of all the dairy men to the extent that Mr. Arey has, nor is there a more available worker in the south with the practical experience and knowledge of dairy affairs.

"FLU" EPIDEMIC WILL BE Milder

If There Is Recurrence It Will Not Be as Severe as Last Winter.

NO POSITIVE PREVENTIVE

Previous Attack Brings Immunity in Percentage of Cases—Enforcement of Sanitation and Avoidance of Personal Contact Necessary Precautions.

(Authoritative Statement Issued by United States Public Health Service.)

Probably, but by no means certainly, there will be a recurrence of the influenza epidemic this year.

Indications are, that should it occur, it will not be as severe as the pandemic of the previous winter.

City officials, state and city boards of health, should be prepared in the event of a recurrence.

The fact that a previous attack brings immunity in a certain percentage of cases should allay fear on the part of those afflicted in the previous epidemic.

Influenza is spread by direct and indirect contact.

It is not certain that the germ has been isolated, or discovered, and as a consequence there is yet no positive preventive, except the enforcement of rigid rules of sanitation and the avoidance of personal contact.

A close relation between the influenza pandemic and the constantly increasing pneumonia mortality rate prior to the fall of 1918 is recognized.

It is now believed that the disease was pretty widely disseminated throughout the country before it was recognized in its epidemic state. This failure to recognize the early cases appears to have been largely due to the fact that every interest was then centered on the war.

Above are the important facts developed by the United States health service after a careful survey and investigation of the influenza pandemic of 1918-1919, carried on in every state and important city, and even in foreign countries.

No one of the many experts of the service would make a more positive forecast of the all-important question, Will there be a recurrence? All agreed, however, that a recurrence was not unlikely, and in the face of the known facts, that it would be wise to be prepared, mere with a view of being on the safe side than actually anticipating danger.

The following excerpts from the government report are published for the benefit of the public and health officers in the hope that this will serve to set at rest the daily publication in the newspapers of statements, which on one hand are calculated to lull the public into a sense of false security and on the other to unduly cause alarm.

Contrary to the opinion expressed frequently during the early weeks of last year's pandemic by a number of observers, the studies of the United States public health service indicate that the epidemic was not a fresh importation from abroad. Careful study of the mortality statistics of the United States shows that there were a number of extensive though mild fore-runners of the pandemic during the previous three or four years. The epidemic was generally of a mild type and has since been almost forgotten. It occasioned, however, a noticeable increase in the recorded death rate from pneumonia.

MUSICAL COURSES FOR AMERICANS

France Establishes Summer Conservatory in Palace of Fontainebleau.

SUGGESTED BY BANDMASTER

School Will Be Conducted for Benefit of Students of Both Sexes Who Have Been Studying at American Conservatories.

Paris.—An American conservatory of music soon will be established at Fontainebleau as the result of the action of the Fontainebleau municipal council, which voted a subvention of 100,000 francs for the creation of the school. The suggestion was put forward by Mr. Francis Casadesus, president and conductor of the Paris orchestra, and the French minister of public instruction has set aside for the school the Louis XV wing of the national palace of Fontainebleau. It will be a summer school and the first session will begin July 1, 1920.

Mr. Casadesus spent seven months at Chaumont, the American headquarters of the A. E. F., teaching instrumentation at the American army bandmasters' and musicians' school created by Dr. Walter Damrosch at the request of General Pershing.

Suggested by Casadesus. Mr. Casadesus first conceived the idea of the school after the American school at Chaumont completed its work. He planned to place the courses of the National Conservatory of Music in Paris at the disposal of the Americans. His friends discouraged the idea, on the theory that Paris, with all its attractions, was not the proper place to study music, as the temptations to waste time were too many for students.

Following a recent meeting between Mr. Casadesus and Mr. Fragnaud, subprefect of Fontainebleau and a great lover of music, the historic place was selected. It was agreed that it was an ideal spot for such a project and that American students would not be subject to the influences of a great city.

The municipal council unanimously voted the 100,000 francs, which will be added to by French donations to be expended for proper lodging and board facilities.

The school will be conducted for the benefit of students of both sexes who have been studying at American conservatories in winter and who desire to perfect their studies in France during summer months. The professors will be those of the staff of the National Conservatory of Music in Paris, and students will be able, through competition, to get high French awards equivalent to those given at the Paris conservatory.

The courses will last three months—July, August and September—and will include musical composition, harmony, orchestra leading, counterpoint and fugue, organ, piano, violin, violoncello, voice and harp. Students in those courses may also enter competition for the Paris grand prize for musical composition.

Competition Every Year.

The competition for this grand prize will be held every year and only those pupils who have followed the course in a musical composition and have passed rigid tests will be eligible. The trials will last six days, from September 15 to 20, inclusive, the tests consisting of fugue for four voices and an eight-part chorus.

The rules of the Paris conservatory, which are most severe, will be rigorously enforced. The definite admission to the competition will be given October 2, and the selection of competitors will begin on October 5. During that time the contestants will not be allowed to see or communicate with any one. They will be rigorously isolated and their correspondence will be opened.

The work demanded will be one of the following: An allegro for symphony, a symphonic poem, a cantata for three voices and orchestra, a sonata for violin and piano or for violoncello and piano. The hearing of the compositions will be held in the concert hall of the Paris conservatory in December. At the end of the hearing, which will be open to the public, the awards will be made.

Sure, Fish Got Away.

Chester, Pa.—Joseph Randle, fishing in Silver lake, near this city, hooked a fish so big that he was yanked overboard, dropping head first into a bed of quicksand, where he stuck fast. Companions of Randle dived for him and he was finally released and brought to the surface.

Smoke "Virginia-Carolina" Straight

310 million pounds vs. 62 million pounds

That's how much Virginia-Carolina tobacco is smoked in cigarettes each year compared with Turkish.

Virginia-Carolina is a five-to-one favorite.

Why?

Because men like that lively Virginia-Carolina taste.

And it's five-to-one you will too, if you try it in a Piedmont—the Virginia-Carolina cigarette.

PEACH BLOSSOMS AT THIS SEASON OF THE YEAR

Mr. O. W. Harrington brought several peach blossoms to The Reflector office this morning, stating that they were pulled from a tree in his yard. They are beautiful and look as pretty as they do in peach blossom time. They have caused quite a good deal of comment, as it is an unusual sight to see peach blossoms in October.

WINTERVILLE FOOTBALL TEAM TO PLAY KINSTON TUESDAY

The Winterville football team will play its second game of the season Tuesday, October 21, 4:30 P. M. at Winterville when the team from the Kinston High School will be met. The Winterville boys lost to Kinston on the latter ground week before last mainly because of inexperience, but with hard practice since then and a line which Kinston was unable to penetrate, the Winterville team expects to take revenge for their previous defeat and as it gets more experience to develop one of the strongest High School aggregations in the state.
