BAPTIST PASTOR DELIVERS ANOTHER SPLENDID SERMON

Good Crowd Attends Revival at Memorial Baptist Church Despite Torrential Downpour of Rain

Although showers continued all yesterday afternoon a large crowd attended services in the Memorial Baptist church and heard Dr. Smith deliver a splendid sermon on, "The Time is Short", taking his text from a part of 1. Cor. 7-29. "But this I say, brethren, the time is short." Dr. Smith drew a comparison between the earthly life which is for only a few years, and the life after death which is forever and ever. Stating that man has such a short time in which to prepare himself for the hereafter. "We have such a short while to do for our selves and such a short time to do for others," declared the speaker, "that we ought to make every minute count, so that when death comes we will be prepared". Dr. Smith cited several instances in which people were snatched, so to speak, from this world to go to face their God, with not a moment's notice in which to prepare. He also told of people who put off accepting Christ until it was too late, always saying to themselves that they would have time. "Both old and young die," stated the preacher. He then told of the death of an old man and little child at the same Xmas time.

His entire sermon conveyed an appeal to the sinner to make use of his short life, and to use it for the glory of God, and to the converted sinner to use the short time which is allotted man in which to go out and work for God, telling the lost world of the Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery delighted the audience with a duet which was in keeping with the sermon. They both have splendid voices and those who fail to hear them will certainly miss a treat.

This morning Dr. Smith spoke on the "Insignificant Channels through which man can receive blessings from God". He based his talk on the account of Namon the leper, who through the interest of a little captive girl, was restored to health. The little girl, although only a helper in the kitchen was the channel through which God worked to restore this powerful man to health. Then Dr. Smith used this same illustration to show how near we come to missing the blessings by trying to live our own way. After Namon had been told by the prophet to go and dip in the Jordan, he was angry, because the cure was so simple and wanted to go back into his own country and dip in a river. Just at this point his friends, who were also servants, begged of him to go and do as he was told, and he did and was restored to health. That every Christian can become a channel through which some one can be saved was brought out, and Dr. Smith appealed to every professing Christian to go out and compel the sinner to seek God.

All the Juniors are requested to sit together tonight and they will sing several selections. This with the choir, in its place, the B. Y. P. U. on the right side, with Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery the singing promises to be a delightful part of the program.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

WILLARD & SMITH OPENS TODAY FOR FUTURE BUSINESS

Judge Lloyd Horton Signs Petition of Creditors Permitting Stores to Open Immediately

Judge Lloyd Horton, who has been presiding over the civil term of superior court in this city for the past several days this morning signed a petition permitting nine stores of the Willard and Smith Co., to resume business immediately. The petition was presented by leading creditors of the concern who requested that the receiver be discharged and the corporation allowed to continue business under supervision of a committee composed of creditors appointed at a meeting for all creditors of the corporation conducted in Greenville in the early part of the week.

The corporation which is one of the largest credit concerns in this section of the state was forced into hands of a receiver about two weeks ago because of inability to collect large outstanding accounts. The action was the outgrowth of a desire to protect its creditors and also to prevent resources from being improperly appropriated. The notice filed with the clerk of superior court stated that if business was allowed to continue all obligation could be met in the course of several weeks. An effort was made to change receivers by one or two creditors, but action was restrained by order from Judge Bond permitting the stores to remain open, although practically everyone closed for the purpose of taking inventory and to wait until the matter was definitely settled.

At the meeting of creditors here the first part of the week a statement of conditions was presented showing that resources were considerably greater than liabilities, and plans were immediately formulated for continuing business so that the firm might be able to recover from the enormous loss resulting from business depression. A committee of creditors was appointed to supervise operations, together with an auditor, who is to keep in constant touch with the committee and report progress of operations. This will apply to every store of the corporation located in Eastern North Carolina and it is expected will result in recovery much sooner than at one time anticipated.

This lenient action on part of creditors has met with hearty approval of people in this city who have patronized the local store in a pleasing way since its establishment several months ago, and there is every indication that an expansion of business will result in a short time. The chain of stores has been instrumental in reducing high prices of merchandise owing to extensive buying power of members of the firm, and this fact has caused the public to watch every development recently with much interest.

BILL HARRINGTON AGAIN CONNECTED IN LARCENY CASE

Escaped Convict From Lenoir County Wanted In Connection With Disappearance of Mules in Pitt Co.

Bill Harrington, former Pitt county man who recently escaped from the Lenoir county chain gang while serving a term of six months for larceny, made his appearance in Pitt county again this week and succeeded in getting hitched up to a couple of mules which may result in a longer sentence to the roads as soon as officials succeed in bringing about apprehension. He is charged this time with stealing two mules from J. R. Barnhill, a farmer who resides a short distance from this city, and later collecting $100 from the owner by informing him where the mules might be found.

Harrington, who is about 38 years of age, is alleged to have deliberately stolen the mules last Friday night and held them in the woods until he saw an advertisement in the papers promising a reward for their recovery. He is said to have informed Mr. Barnhill that he would tell him the whereabouts of the mules for the sum of $300. After short parleying Mr. Barnhill told him that was too much and that he could buy a set of new mules for the amount.

Harrington changed tactics at the juncture, promising to restore the animals for the sum of $100. Mr. Barnhill paid the amount, and that night Harrington carried him to a dense stretch of woodland and, after pointing out where the mules could be found, disappeared in the darkness and since that time hasn't been seen in this section. Mr. Barnhill found the mules right where Harrington said they were and also became suspicious that he had been made the subject of a scheme mightily near approaching direct outlawry.

Circumstances connected with the incident and Harrington's lawless career for the past several months causes authorities to believe he stole the mules at the outset and held them for the purpose of receiving a reward. Although no warrant has been sworn out for his arrest, officers are desirous of apprehending Harrington because he is wanted by Lenoir county officials and also that it is quite probably something in connection with the mysterious disappearance of the mules may come to light. There seems to be no doubt in the mind of Mr. Barnhill that the animals did not stray away nor were stolen by anyone except the suspect, and as a consequence every effort is being made to secure sufficient evidence to bring about his arrest and subsequent conviction.

PRESS CONGRESS TO OPEN SOON IN CITY OF HONOLULU

Convention of Distinguished Newspaper Men Promises to Be Greatest in Many Years

Honolulu, T. H., Mar. 25.—The Press open in Honolulu in October of this year, will hold its session a stone's throw from the spot where the first printing was done west of the Missouri river, almost one hundred years ago. The old coral building where the Ramo press, bought from Boston by Elisha Loomis, turned out its first work on January 1, 1822, still stands on King street, Honolulu's main thoroughfare. It is but a few steps from the Iolani palace of monarchy days now the capitol, where the press congress will convene.

Entries in the diary of Elisha Loomis which is presented here, show that he and his precious printing apparatus left Boston on the brig Thaddeus which carried the first Christian missionaries to Hawaii, and landed in the Is-

SINN FEINERS TO CONTEST ELECTION IN UPPER SILESCIA

Unionists Going Ahead With Election Plans in District Although Conflict Is Inevitable

Belfast, Ireland, Mar. 25.—It is far from certain that the Nationalist party will contest the elections for the Ulster Parliament. The Unionists are going ahead with their election plans and preparing to select candidates and it is not unlikely that Sinn Feiners will take the field against them but the Nationalists are still of two minds as to whether to enter the list.

If they do their successful candidates will, it is understood, take their seats in the new parliament. In accordance with the party tactics adopted at the parliamentary election two years ago, Sinn Fein candidates if elected will have nothing to do with the Ulster parliament.

Conference have been lately in Dublin between Nationalists and Sinn Fein leaders for the purpose of trying to agree on a plan of joint action with regard to the forthcoming elections. The first meeting, it is said, was between Joseph Devlin and President De Valera of the Dail Eireann. They discussed several proposals of mutual party action and the conversations had not been concluded when Mr. Devlin left for London for the reopening of Parliament. Later two other nationalists leaders went to Dublin to talk with Mr. DeValera, but, it is said, no agreement could be reached.

Ulster Nationalists have no love for the Sinn Fein and they are loth to take any step that would aid the Sinn Fein cause. Hence one section of the party here is in favor of contesting the election. Another section, said to be equally strong, would refrain from entering the elections because of the belief that the formation of a nationalist opposition in the Ulster Parliament would be playing directly into the hands of the Unionists.

SAYS COUNTRY IS IN NEED OF FUNDS OF INVESTIGATION

Experiment Station Work Being Allowed to Go Under Because of Lack of Interest

Urbana, Ill., Mar. 25.—Since the rapid development of the Agricultural Extension Service, the public has lost interest in the Experiment Station, according to Professor Eugene Davenport, of the University of Illinois. Practically no new money has been appropriated in the United States as a whole for agricultural investigations since 1914, Dean Davenport says and the result is that eighty percent of the station workers have casual positions and about one fifth of the most experienced have left the Experiment Stations entirely for more attractive employment.

That the Experiment Stations have been of profound influence in affecting the changes which have taken place during the thirty years since the Experiment Stations were started and which are traceable directly to the work of the stations, continues Dean Davenport.

When the Experiment station were established, farmers were feeding what ever they happened to have, even if it were timothy hay to cows, while bran and middlings by the carload went into the rivers and cotton seed was left to rot upon the ground. At the same time they were paying out thousands of dollars for condimental feeds, which were shown by the station to be worth no more and no less than the amount of oil meal.

LANSING TO TELL OF NEGOTIATIONS OF PEACE TREATY

Former Secretary of State to Set Forth Terms Imposed Upon Germany in Coming Book

Boston, Mar. 25.—Robert Lansing, former secretary of State and member of the American Peace Commission, will reveal in his forth coming book on The Peace Negotiations, which will be published by Houghton, Mifflin Co., March 25, how close he came to resigning from the Commission because of difference with President Wilson over the Shantung decision and his belief that many of the terms of peace imposed on Germany were harsh, humiliating and seemingly impossible of performance.

The publishers of this book, which has been eagerly awaited by historians and the public, have carefully guarded the text of the manuscript but they have permitted the general trend of Mr. Lansing's argument to become known.

President Wilson, according to Mr. Lansing's belief, at one time during the Peace conference purposed to negotiate a preliminary treaty which would start the League of Nations functioning without laying the document before the United States Senate, and evidently was much perturbed when his secretary of State told him that the only way to change the status from war to peace was by a ratified treaty or a joint resolution of Congress.

A profound conviction that immediate peace was the primary need of the world, Mr. Lansing implies, was all that kept him from resigning from the Peace Commission because of fundamental disagreements with the President on principles. The former secretary discloses that in 1916, shortly before a meeting in Washington of the League to enforce Peace at which the President was to speak, Mr. Lansing wrote to Mr. Wilson objecting to the use of force to settle international disputes. In this letter he pointed to the menace to Monroe Doctrine contained in such a plan.

Alarmed at the complications of war and foreign entanglements in the guarantee of territorial integrity and political independence of members of the League a guarantee that finally was embodied in Article X of the Covenant Mr. Lansing says that at Paris he tried to have substituted a negative pledge that the members would not infringe upon each other's territorial integrity or political independence. He became convinced that Colonel Edward M. House, then President Wilson's closest adviser, was completely converted with regard to this question.

SUPERIOR COURT ADJOURNS UNTIL MONDAY MORNING

First Week Session Completed Yesterday Afternoon After Disposing of Three Cases

After a session filled more or less with numbers of vexatious problems the first week's session of the two week term of Pitt county Superior court for the trial of civil cases was brought to a conclusion in the city yesterday shortly before three o'clock. Judge Horton, however, remained in the city today for the purpose of signing several injunctions and considering petitions which have been presented from time to time throughout the week.

The court would have continued its sitting throughout today, but this was not necessary owing to the fact that practically every issue on the calendar for the first week was disposed of. There were, however, several matters continued until next week owing to insufficient evidence and sick witnesses, but it is not believed these additional cases will prevent the court from clearing the second week calendar almost completely before adjournment next Friday afternoon.

Judge Horton displayed splendid judgement and insight in every matter coming before him during the week, and as a consequence work was continued expeditiously, with the exception of one or two days when a long drawn out land controversy retarded progress considerably. Direct knowledge of conditions existing in this section of the state was plainly in evidence in every charge which Judge Horton made to juries and this fact is believed expedited action and eliminated much uncertainty surrounding legal technicalities involved in many instances.

Three cases were disposed of in the concluding session yesterday, which including two divorces issues and one controversy resulting from damage to an automobile owned by J. F. King by the Goldsboro Garage Company. The automobile in question was turned over by the owner to the garage for repairs, but instead of repairing it workmen managed to get in worse condition than ever. When turned over to Mr. King wasn't even in running condition, and consequently he entered suit for $1200 damage. The jury remained out only a short time after receiving the case, and returned a decision awarding the plaintiff the full amount of his claim.

Willis Barfield was granted a divorce from Maggie Barfield on the ground of improper relation with other men. Evidence presented in interest of the defense tended to show that the woman had not been living in accordance with the vows of matrimony, and as a consequence the jury found nothing connected with the case that prevented quick judgment.

Isaac Thigpen was also granted absolute divorce from Martha Thigpen, evidence tending to show that they had remained separate for a period of ten years, the time required by statutes of the State before a divorce becomes possible.

The docket for next week contains a number of issues which have been pending consideration for some time, and it is expected the court will make a desperate effort to dispose of every case possible. There are very important matters included, but there are enough controversies to furnish the court with something to do all the time.

Friday Afternoon March 25

Germany has refused to pay the billion marks demanded by the reparation committee. But maybe by the time the Allied soldiers get through collecting custom duties and taxes she may feel like coming across. There's more ways of handling such a situation than one, and the Allies will make this apparent before the question is settled.

The United States is apparently ready to open trade relations with Russia, providing Russia will be content at that and keep its undesirable as near home as possible. There are enough Russians in this country now without any more, and if the action succeeds in getting rid of all them it will be in better position to trade with Russia.

The fact that Rhode Island has 500 people to the square mile and North Carolina only 52 shows why one is a great manufacturing section and the other one of the greatest agricultural regions in the world. North Carolina people ought to appreciate this fact as they are given greater opportunity of enjoying freedom afforded the rural districts and that great boundless wealth of extensive agricultural projects. Both are great states, but there wouldn't give for all Rhode Island's is something in North Carolina people outlook as one of the most prominent manufacturing centers of the nation.

The strike has been averted in the packing industry through federal mediation. The packers decided to accept proposed reductions ranging from 8 to 12 cents an hour providing certain war regulations still remained in force. The regulation provided for the eight hour a day working system and overtime rates. This is the first time the new administration has had an opportunity of settling a labor dispute. Herbert Hoover and Secretary Davis were chiefly responsible for success of the negotiations, there here, it is believable they will be leading figures in other occurrences of the kind. Mr. Harding may feel disposed to take part in strike issues, but if he does he hasn't yet made it evident to the public. The results are probably better than expected, and ought to do much toward bettering labor conditions in the country.

The North Carolina Cotton Commission recommends reduction in cotton and tobacco acreage this year, supposing probably that it will give the market time to be relieved of congestion. This recommendation which was presented to the public yesterday ought to receive consideration which it so surely deserves, for both crops are the State's greatest agricultural assets and ought to be considered seriously by everybody acquainted with prevailing conditions. It has been stated repeatedly that there is no demand for cotton or tobacco in this country or foreign nations just at this time, and it is either reduce acreage or glut the market to such extent that prices will go down even lower than they were the past year. This would prove disastrous in every sense of the word. The farmer hardly received over cost of production this year, and it is unquestionably certain a crop equally as large would be nothing more than direct ruination. The grower ought to consider these facts before planting, and if he is still inclined to plant a large crop he should remember there's no body to blame but his own obstinate self.

MR. HARDING'S BIG JOB

Statements from Washington say the Harding machine is following the path blazed by the Democratic administration. If this is so, then it is not surprising its members have succeeded in amicably settling several controversies or recent date. The democrats had a way of handling things that appealed to the general public, or at least to the thinking element, and in many instances got results when failure seemed inevitable. It's probably the spirit which has lingered with democracy for years and years, in fact, the same spirit which the public misinterpreted last fall and caused it to vote for a change by overwhelming majority.

The new administration has many problems of paramount importance, to earnestly consider before the present year comes to a close. Many of them have been pending final consideration for months, yet there has been so much contention and dissatisfaction in congress and the senate that nothing definite has been accomplished. If its members have the best interest of the country at heart they will take up such legislation demanding immediate attention, and then grapple with those which could not be settled by the democrats because of determined opposition.

The administration finds itself in greater control of the government than any other possibly ever has. It has majorities in both senate and congress, therefore, it is plain there is nothing in the way but public sentiment to prevent expeditious progress with every matter. It is true, of course, some opposition may be incurred, but this should not be of any great consideration to party strength and concession. The problems which the future may present will be nothing in comparison to those handled so successfully by the Democratic administration, but those left for the new administration through Republican opposition are of vital importance and deserve constant while hearted attention until finally disposed of.

It may sound easy to settle the peace treaty controversy with Germany and there are many incidents connected with the League of Nations question, but with both issues which cannot be handled so quickly nor to the general satisfaction of the public. Its mighty and pleasant to talk about handling government affairs as they should be, as leading Republicans intimated before they came into power, but now that they have the bag to hold the present entire new phases. No reasonable proposition altogether different, and Mr. Harding is going about things slowly, and no doubt former loquacious followers silenced abruptly, hoping against hope that something may arise to relieve the intensity of the situation.

The successes they have enjoyed so far ought to be an inspiration to greater activity. They ought to cause Mr. Harding to recover from his apparent state of lethargy and do his best to serve the country to the best of his ability, regardless of political affiliation. The time for action is here and the sooner he acts, probably the better the people will like it.

Operatives of a Durham hosiery mill walked out this week because of an announcement of a decrease in wages. Such incidents are occurring in every part of the country showing that the average laborer has not yet realized that conditions must become normal. They fail to see inflation is practically over and that those who went up with the kite are bound to come down. It is one of the most direct laws of industry, and those who defy it subject themselves to irreparable loss in many ways. Abnormally played a mighty big part in American life while it lasted, but it is incumbent upon every laborer to accept changing conditions in the best spirit and help the country reach a stage of readjustment soon as possible. The price of virtually all commodities has undergone a pleasing reduction in the past several weeks, and it is perfectly natural for manufacturing enterprises to reduce expenses every way possible to meet the situation. It is true wages will never go down to what they once were, for the American laborer before the war was underpaid and in the future will be given an opportunity of improving living conditions as far as possible. However, he must accept fair reductions, remembering it is for the best interest for himself and country.

The death of Cardinal Gibbons in Baltimore yesterday brought to conclusion the life of a man who has wielded a great influence in the upbuilding of civilization. Not only among his denomination was he highly respected and admired, but also in other circles where his genuine abilities and worth were recognized. Much criticized at times because of the principles supported in interest of his denomination, Cardinal Gibbons, carried his work through to a successful finish and passed on to another life after rendering the best in behalf of a sin-stained world. There are many who still believe he might improved the greatness of his career, but those who have carefully followed his life work realize he did the best and went according to the dictates of his heart. He will go down in history as one of the truly great men who have done much in making this era one of the most eventful in world history.

The Training school is giving two days' Easter Holiday, Saturday and Tuesday. Most of the young ladies have gone to their homes. There are about fifty left at the school who live too far off to get home. Those who stay have a jolly good time, after the others are out of the way and the first flush of home-sickness subsides.

The end of the winter term and Easter come close together this year, therefore the faculty decided it was well to give this intermission between terms. Examinations for the winter term has been given this week, the young ladies leaving as soon as the examination were over.

lands April 9, 1820.

Loomis, who was born in Middlesex, Yates county, New York, in December 1790, says his diary that he started setting up his press in Honolulu in December of 1821, and on January 1822, this entry appears:

This day commenced the first printing that was ever done at these Islands. Governor Cox was president and printed the first sheet.

The governor referred to was the Hawaiian governor of the island of Oahu on which Honolulu is situated. He had been a warrior chief in the armies of King Kamehameha the Great, who united all the islands under the crown.

Loomis' press was used principally for printing educational matter for instruction of the Hawaiians by the missionaries, but an entry in his diary in March 1822 shows that at that early date the King realized its value and had sent him two royal decrees to be printed for promulgation.

The press that made history and laid the foundation of educational work

What would you do with it?

If constipation were a lighted bomb, would you carry it about with you waiting for someone to put it out? No. You would get rid of it as quickly and effectively as possible.

But constipation, though not so sudden in its effect, is an insidious and grave danger. Leading medical authorities agree that ninety per cent of human illness is caused or aggravated by a clogging of waste in the bowels, and that pills, castor oil, laxative waters and salts only force the bowels and bring greater weakness afterward.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system.

Nujol thus prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Nujol is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing Nujol trade mark. Write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 30 Broadway, New York, for booklet, "Thirty Feet of Danger".

stomach was shot to pieces. No matter how careful I was about food it disagreed, forming gas and bloated me up, and often caused cramps and heart burn.

Every body around Durham was praising Dreco so I got a bottle and it worked my liver off the finest you ever saw. My headaches stopped, dizziness passed away, bowels were soon regulated and my stomach so much strengthened that the gas ceased to collect and I haven't had heartburn since. Dreco sure gets my endorsement for it went to the bottom of my troubles and gave grand relief.

Dreco is composed of the juices and extracts of many different roots, herbs, barks and leavaem with act on the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels, and purifies the blood. It relieves constipation, prevents gas forming in the stomach, increases the appetite, insures sound, refreshing sleep, banishes catarrh of the head, and takes the pain out of rheumatic joints. All druggists sell Dreco.
