

ANNUAL MEETING OF GROUP ONE NORTH CAROLINA BANKERS OPEN AT HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING TODAY

President W. E. Stubbs of Belhaven Bank, Delivers Opening Address During the Morning

MANY OTHER PROMINENT BANKERS TALK CONCERNING CONDITIONS OF PRESENT

Session to Adjourn Tonight Following Banquet to Be Held at the Training School

With fifty or more members present at the time of opening, Group One of the North Carolina Bankers' Association, embracing several counties in this eastern section, held its seventh annual meeting here today.

The meeting began at 11 o'clock in the auditorium of the high school, and was presided over by W. E. Stubbs, of Belhaven. Rev. W. P. Shanhart, of the Christian church, offered the invocation.

Mayor D. M. Clark, in behalf of the town, cordially welcomed the visiting bankers to Greenville. In his address he referred to the beginning of banking, and of what these institutions have done for the progress of the world. Without the banks there would be no enterprise. Sterling manhood is our chief asset, and the banks are great factors in sustaining the things that count for this. Quoting Greenville's slogan, "Our Greenville, yours if you come," he asked that the visitors accept this literally.

Mr. John B. Sparrow, of Washington, responded to the address of welcome. Group One having previously come in contact with Greenville's hospitality, there was no hesitancy in accepting the invitation for holding this meeting here. He referred to the benefit and inspiration coming from these meetings and heard the members after touching elbows, return home enthused with the spirit of progress with the determination to redouble their efforts for progress. Real value is not measured by gold, but our chief asset is in the manhood we produce. The minutes of last meeting were read by W. R. Willis, secretary of the organization, which (Continued on page 4)

BAPTIST BANQUET PROMISES TO BE A SPLENDID EVENT

Reports From Committees Indicate Great Activity and Bright Prospects

Judging from the activity of the various committees, the banquet for the male membership of the Memorial Baptist church, scheduled for 6:45 o'clock Thursday night, will be a decided success. It is now expected that some sixty men and boys will be present for this delightful occasion.

That a men's club for the Memorial Baptist church will result from this banquet and get-together is confidently expected. In fact, it is with this forward step in view that the banquet is planned.

The Ladies Aid society is busy with the preparation for the banquet and will leave nothing undone to make a success of it.

FORD WILLING TO MODIFY CONTRACT TO SUIT CONGRESS

Congress Assured by Admiral Mayo That Every Effort Be Made to Come to Terms

(By International News) Washington, Feb. 22.—Congress was today assured by Admiral Mayo that Henry Ford is willing to modify his offer to meet objections raised by members of the military committee, following a conference with Ford at Detroit.

The Alabama Power company's offer which has been placed before the committee by representatives of the company, will be heard against the Ford offer before the committee closes its hearings on the Ford bid.

It will probably take the committee over two weeks to sift the testimony before submitting recommendations for acceptance or rejection of the Ford offer.

Foggy mornings indicate that the weather is not yet settled.

BUILDING PROGRAM AT COLLEGE TO BE PUSHED RAPIDLY

Entire Program to Be Put Into Effect Soon, Trustees Decided at Meeting Yesterday

PRESIDENT WRIGHT EXPLAINS WHAT IS TO BE DONE SOON

Every Angle of Building Program Outlined to Students During the Morning Hours

There was an important meeting of the board of trustees of East Carolina Teachers college yesterday. The chief work of the day was mapping out the building program which will be put into effect as rapidly as possible. The beginning will be made towards the expansion of the plant into a really big college.

The administration building will be completed by the enlargement of the auditorium and there will be an adequate stage with a real curtain and other things necessary to an auditorium. A wing will be added and provision made for a temporary gymnasium, library and society halls. When other buildings are erected to take care of these, partitions can be put in and these halls turned into classrooms. A unit of another dormitory will be built with the remainder of the money.

The building committee and architects will go to work at once and the building will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

In connection with the change of name and the change to college a number of changes have had to be made in details and some of these were attended to yesterday. Diplomas had to be decided upon, one for the normal school two-year course and one for the degree, or four year college course. The seal and pin had to be changed also. These apparently small matters are really of importance, but when they are attended to once they are permanently fixed.

President Wright at the assembly period this morning explained to the students the building program and told them something of the fine spirit of unselfishness manifested in the board of trustees. To their spirit he attributes much of the success of the school.

ANCIENT ABBEY TO BE REDRESSED FOR PRINCESS WEDDING

How Westminster Will Look When Princess Mary Becomes a Bride Soon

By F. A. WRAY, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, When Princess Mary is married at Westminster Abbey—the first child of an English King to be married there since 1269—the ancient cathedral will be completely transformed.

Raised staging of the nave has been hastily set up in order to enlarge the accommodation. Elaborate scaffolding is being erected to give a view to still more guests. Hundreds of men have been at work cleaning thoroughly the old-time edifice and the grime of generations has been removed. Darkened varnish has been cleaned off and hidden masses of elaborate and rich coloring have been revealed.

Through broad streets gay with flags and banners, Princess Mary will drive up to the west door of the Abbey, chosen because it makes a longer route and gives a view to many more thousands of people.

Along a wide path between tiers of seats the bridal procession will walk the whole length of the nave, through the choir and into the sanctuary, where the wedding will be celebrated.

The steps of the sanctuary, where the bridal couple will stand, were laid with the most beautiful mosaic by the Abbot Ware. They have now been beautifully polished by men specially sent from South Kensington Museum, and the east windows, which

NEW ROTARY CLUB OF FARMVILLE IS A LIVE ORGANIZATION

First Meeting and Supper Held Last Night Attended by Members of Greenville Organization

GREENVILLE MEMBERS TAKE PRINCIPAL PART IN EVENING ACTIVITIES

Greenville and Farmville Will Send Large Delegation to Winston Salem in March

The first regular meeting of the Farmville Rotary club was held in the high school building at Farmville last night, being well attended by Farmville members and several from the Greenville club. The occasion was one of the most interesting held in Farmville in some time, and being the first Rotary meeting it naturally attracted considerable attention among Farmville people.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. Paul E. Jones, president of the tentative organization. Other officers of the organization present were George R. Wheeler, vice-president; G. A. Rouse, secretary; David E. Ogleby, treasurer.

Members of the Greenville club attending the meeting were Dr. C. J. Ellen, R. L. Crow, W. L. Best, S. K. Phillips, Burgess Warren, Judson Blount and L. S. Whitchard, Jr.

Messrs. J. S. Rasberry, Jasper Shackelford, Leonard Padgett, Carl Turnage and Alfred Moore were initiated into membership of the "Stuck Up Club" by Dr. S. K. Phillips, and this was attended by much merriment.

After this feature the meeting was turned over to Dr. C. J. Ellen, who read a lengthy article from the February number of the Rotary magazine, entitled "Something Else in Rotary." The article explained in an interesting way what Rotary is, and the great part it should play in communities wherever clubs are established.

The district conference to be held in Winston-Salem during the month of March, resulted in decision that Farmville and Greenville would do their best to send the largest delegation of any county in the district. The meeting will be an important one it was pointed out, and the fact that Greenville is the only city in the world with a Rotary home and Farmville the smallest city in the world with a Rotary club should give Pitt county members greater prominence than under ordinary circumstances.

While the Farmville organization is merely tentative at the present time, it is one of the liveliest in the state, and its members are exhibiting spirit in the work that promises great things for the future. A charter has not yet been granted the club, but its members were advised to go ahead with organization work and this would come later.

Directors of the Farmville club are Dr. Paul E. Jones, George R. Wheeler, G. A. Rouse, David E. Ogleby, T. C. Turnage, Mack D. Horton and Leonard B. Padgett.

The following song, composed by Leonard Padgett, was sung by a quartette of Farmville Rotarians during the meeting:

I'm just a Rotary baby. I am only a few days old. But grown-ups now in Rotary Were babies once I'm told. Rotary, Rotary, Rotary, Rotary, Rotary for me; I'm a jolly Rotary baby As jolly as jolly can be.

were taken down during the air raids have been specially replaced for the wedding. These windows are of handsomely stained glass and add greatly to the austere beauty of the sanctuary.

The wedding register will be signed on the tomb of Edmund Crouchback, second son of Henry III, curiously enough the last child of an English sovereign to be married in the Abbey. He married Aveline Lancaster, heiress of William de Fortibus, Earl of Albemarle, on April 8, 1269.

The service will be conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury—and it will be the last official act of this venerable prelate—assisted by the Archbishop of York and the Dean of Westminster.

BELHAVEN DEFEATS GREENVILLE OUTFIT IN FINAL BATTLE

Locals Eliminated From Championship Race by Losing to Belhaven, Score 67 to 33

AYDEN TO CLASH WITH GREENVILLE IN PLACE OF BELHAVEN FRIDAY

Splendid Game to Be Staged at Forbes & Morton's Warehouse Here Friday Night

The Belhaven high school basketball team defeated the Greenville high school team in Belhaven last night by the score of 67 to 33, thereby eliminating Greenville from further participation in the championship elimination series, now in progress. The game featured as the second of the series, Greenville having won the first from Washington last Friday night by a splendid score.

The contest last night was one of the hardest fought of the current season, although the large score gained by Belhaven indicates superior playing in many stages of the game. Greenville battled hard and determinedly, but Belhaven gained such a lead in the first half that they found it impossible to overcome. Greenville several times threatened to overcome the lead, but all in vain, as Belhaven took advantage of every opening and declined to permit scoring at critical stages.

Coach Duncan was highly gratified at the excellent showing made by the locals, but regretted that they weren't able to win the second contest so as to play out the remainder of the series.

Coach Duncan said this morning that Greenville people will not be disappointed by the locals' defeat at Belhaven, as arrangements have been made for Ayden to play here Friday night. Ayden has a strong club, and should be able of putting up a fight that should appeal to every follower of the game.

BLAME FOR WRECK OF ROMA SHIFTED TO SHIP'S PILOTS

Inability of Pilots to Make Controls Function Result in Death of 34 Persons

THREE CONCURRENT INVESTIGATIONS TO BE CONDUCTED SOON

Giant Dirigible Comes in Contact With Electric Wires on Descent, Catching Fire

Norfolk, Feb. 22.—Preliminary investigation of the Roma disaster shows that it was due to faulty control. General Mason Patrick, chief of air service, testified to this fact on the stand this afternoon.

(By International News)

Langley Field, Feb. 22.—Blame for wreck of the Omar has been placed on failure of controls to function, according to an official army explanation by Lieut. Colonel Fisher, acting commander of the air base. Inability of the pilots to prevent the descent also was cause of destruction of the giant dirigible.

A searching investigation will be made immediately from Washington, according to Washington dispatches received here today. Three concurrent investigations are being pushed by army officers, Major Kennedy, summary court officer, announced.

Thirty four persons were killed when the giant dirigible plunged from an altitude of one thousand feet to earth at Hampton Roads yesterday afternoon. There were forty odd persons aboard the ship, and it is considered short of a miracle how they escaped death. The giant ship came in contact with electric wires in its rapid flight to earth, caught fire and was destroyed in short order.

Prominent Member of American Tobacco Co. Dies of Heart Failure

Mr. D. C. Watkins, of Richmond, Va., prominently identified with the American Tobacco Company, died suddenly yesterday afternoon of heart failure, according to information received by members of the American Tobacco company here today. Mr. Watkins was one of the best known tobaccoists in the country, having been connected with the large concern many years. He made frequent trips to this part of the state where he won many friends. News of his demise will be received with keen regret by his wide circle of acquaintances everywhere.

Mrs. Georgia James left yesterday for northern cities to purchase the spring and summer millinery for Young's Department Store.

SEVERAL DIVORCE ACTIONS FEATURE IN SUPERIOR COURT

Breach of Warranty Case of D. A. Moore and B. O. Turnage Settled Last Night

COURT GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS IN EARNEST EARLY THIS MORNING

Many Other Actions to Be Cleared From the Docket During the Session Today

Divorce cases played an important part in yesterday's session of the civil term of Pitt county superior court, but yesterday afternoon these were completed and court began work in the case of D. A. Moore against B. O. Turnage, the jury returning a verdict in case of the plaintiff last night about 10:30 o'clock after deliberations continuing from five o'clock.

The court this morning delved into the docket energetically, and from all indications adjournment this afternoon will find several other cases definitely cleared from the docket. Judge Cranmer is a great dispatcher of business, and the cases completed yesterday would have probably consumed greater time had he not kept the wheels of justice grinding continuously.

Absolutely divorce was granted to Sallie Silverton, white, who entered suit for annulment of marriage because of immoral relations of her husband with other women. Other divorces were granted to the following colored persons:

Carrie Crandall against James Crandall; Stephen Warren against Emma Warren; James Oakley against Ida Oakley. In the Oakley case it was divulged that Ida Oakley had already been married prior to marriage to Oakley.

The case of Moore against B. O. Turnage went to the jury yesterday afternoon about five o'clock, but a decision was not reached until its members had deliberated five hours. The decision provided that the defendant should pay the plaintiff the sum of $350, and the plaintiff the defendant the sum of $1295. The case involved an alleged breach of warranty on an automobile.

BOLL WEEVIL TO BE FOUGHT WITH THE MOVIES HERE

Motion Picture Machine Recently Purchased by County Arrives, Will Soon Be in Operation

W. B. Pace, farm demonstration agent, stated this morning that the moving picture machine recently purchased by the county for combating the boll weevil menace had arrived and would be placed in operation as soon as films could be secured. The machine was purchased from Winston-Salem and is of the same type being employed for the similar purposes in other parts of the country.

The county commissioners recently ordered the machine to be purchased, realizing the necessity for some effective way of fighting the boll weevil which promises to visit this section this year. Films depicting the campaign now in progress in other localities will be shown in different parts of the county, and it is expected the farmer will be inspired to fight the pest more determinedly than under ordinary circumstances.

Mr. Pace stated that pictures along other lines would also be purchased. In fact, the machine will be used for every purpose tending to promote the welfare of planter, and if they will take advantage of the many lessons contained in the pictures the venture will be a great success. The machine also will be used by the welfare department in an endeavor to create better social conditions among the laboring classes.

The boll weevil menace, however, will receive first consideration, Mr. Pace stated, and it is hoped to have the farmer well prepared before the pest reaches the cotton fields of Pitt county.

The senate has enough "blocs" to make some constructive measures, if nothing more.

The senate doesn't appear to be able to create anything but "bloc", and its building air castles out of them.

The senate and house are unable to agree on the tariff bill. And this is one time the public hopes they never will.

Lodge's chances of reelection are said to be very poor. Another case of a man talking himself out of a good job.

A husband in the western part of the state charges his brother-in-law with alienating his wife's affections. That's what we call domestic troubles, sure enough.

Capturing blockaders by air is the latest "wrinkle" pulled off down in Florida. With the introduction of a few other measures of the kind and the illicit whiskey traffic members won't know how and where to turn for fear of detection.

The comptroller of currency says we have more gold than we really have any use for. He will have a hard time getting other people to believe it. In fact, times are so hard they indicate anything else but a surplus of gold.

The senate may not like the idea of turning Muscle Shoals over to Henry Ford, but that's about the best thing they could do at the present time. Mr. Ford is in position to handle the project better than anybody else, and the sooner the fact is realized the better.

Wilson had the misfortune to lose one of its largest warehouses by fire recently. That's to be regretted, but it all comes about in a lifetime. Greenville recently suffered a similar loss, both towns are on the same footing in that respect. Both are the largest bright leaf tobacco markets in the world, and have made a record that fire can't destroy, even though the warehouses may go up in flames.

Pitt county tobacco growers should not be misled by reports that increased tobacco acreage is necessary this year. In fact, it's about time they were beginning to realize the futility of congesting the market more than it is already. Prices certainly can't be improved by another large crop, and the man that believes it is doomed to disappointment, as he will live to see.

Farmers in some counties of the state are buying co-operatively, and report great success. The plan is a good one, and should result in a great saving. Anything purchased in large quantities is cheaper, and the enterprising farmer in every community would do well to give the plan a trial. The cotton and tobacco farmer will find it to his advantage to adopt great thrift programs this year, as they will need them before the year ends.

Food crops better and larger food crops—should be the slogan of farmers in this section this season, as the demand for something to eat isn't likely to decrease. The United States is the only country in position to furnish starving nations with food, but if we go ahead and raise large crops of tobacco and cotton, not even the best we can do will improve the situation. The thing to do is to get busy and plant something the entire world needs and rest assured of receiving prices in proportion of the cost of production.

The farmer that goes ahead and plants more tobacco this season will find things unfavorable when marketing time rolls around. If ever there was a time to reduce acreage it is now, and the planter should get the fact firmly fixed in mind before planting. The market is already congested beyond hope of relief in several months, and a large crop would not demand high prices as some seem to think. No one should be misled by reports of what organizations may do. Life is still real, and the tobacco market isn't any place for fairy tales or air castles.

JUDGE CRANMER.

The following editorial from the "American Issue" will be of interest to our readers. The first of the month this editor received a letter from a citizen of Pitt county, a portion of which we pass on:

"The best thing for Prohibition that I have known to happen in this community is Judge Cranmer. Beginning Monday he tackled a congested criminal docket of more than two hundred cases, and has been a woe to all criminals, especially the blind tigers and moonshiners. He stated that it was again his constitution to fine a liquor dealer, consequently all who have faced him for judgment after conviction have received a reward of from one to two years. He is certainly causing consternation in the ranks of the liquor dealers, and has succeeded in putting to flight with much chagrin criminal lawyers who cater to that class, and who have heretofore had such a sway, especially under Judge Bond.

"Judge Cranmer is holding night sessions in order to clear the docket and is thereby bringing to trial some of the worst criminals, who, through the influence of their lawyers, have been able to have their cases carried over by continuing from term to term on a pretext that there was not sufficient time to try them. Therefore, do you not agree with me that, for his splendid efforts, Judge Cranmer should some special mention through the press of the state that is friendly to the Prohibition cause? Too much can not be said in praise of what he is accomplishing and his influence in the communities which he visits."

The State should exempt its judges from income tax just as the Federal government does. Both perform the same mission, and should not be troubled by financial worries in the performance of the one of the greatest duties of the day. The fact is, our judges are not paid enough, but we hear very little kick coming from them because they do not like to give the public the idea that they are commercializing their high positions. It's an issue there should be very little haggling about, but now that it has come up it should be settled definitely. Judges should be encouraged in every way possible, but it is poor encouragement for the state to take part in trying to deprive them of the small salary they receive.

The completion of the hard surfaced road from Greenville to Farmville will be received with pleasure by everyone in both towns, as the slight strip of road near Greenville has been a source of much worry to motorists. The road was too fine to be ruined by one short piece of bad land, and it was imperative to pave it to make the entire system complete. Pitt county within the next three years will have one of the best hard road systems in the country, and its people should be proud of it because they haven't been forced to "put out" very much in the way of taxes. We provided five hundred thousand dollars for the purpose and the state and government did the rest.

W. B. Pace, farm demonstration agent of Pitt county, was gratified at the interesting facts presented at the sweet potato school in Rocky Mount, and believes Pitt county farmers will derive great benefit from them. More intensive cultivation of the sweet potato would be a paying proposition for farmers in this locality, Mr. Pace thinks, but they must first have storage warehouses. Thousands of dollars are lost annually because of improper preservation of the crop, and not until this situation is improved can we expect to make the industry a success. The Rocky Mount school was a great success and brought out many facts of interest to growers everywhere.

WOMAN DISCOVERS SECRET OF REGULATING SEX OF CATTLE

London.—Mrs. Maude S. Hunter, woman farmer, claims to have discovered the secret of sex determination in cattle. Seven years ago Mrs. Hunter began the business of breeding pedigree Jersey cattle. The extent of her knowledge was that a Jersey heifer, which may add nearly thirty to the herd in the course of ten years is worth twenty times the value of a Jersey bull calf.

"But," says Mrs. Hunter, "I chanced on the secret which has baffled Professor Huxley and all the other great scientists.

"Subject to one limitation, I can now regulate the sex of the calves born to my cows.

"The limitation is this: It is impossible to settle the sex of the first calf. But for all succeeding calves determination is possible.

GEORGE WASHINGTON PARTY

Circle No. 5 of Methodist Church Entertains at Interesting Party.

Circle No. 5 of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church entertained with a George Washington party on last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. James on Fifth street. The home was beautifully decorated with the color scheme of red, white and blue. Upon arrival the guests were given a most cordial welcome by George Washington and his wife, Martha. These parts were taken by Prof. June Rose and Miss Madeline Higgs who represented the characters perfectly. After tea and sandwiches had been served the following program was rendered. Two solos by Mrs. Knott Proctor; solo, Mrs. W. L. Hall; solo, Miss Arlene Joyner; Readings, Mrs. Milton White and Mrs. Wiley Brown; Piano solo, Miss Bertelet; male quartette, Messrs. Rowlett, Phillips, Lipscomb and Spain. Each participant rendered their part in a wonderful manner and each number was thoroughly enjoyed.

A candy booth, from which delicious home made candies were sold, was arranged in one corner of the dining room. It was decorated with the national colors.

Much interest centered around the fishing pond, where those who enjoy the spot, fished to their heart's content.

Eight beautiful young ladies dressed in red, white and blue dresses, sold peanuts, in red, white and blue bags throughout the evening.

An interesting contest took place in the dining room when the guests were asked to guess the number of cherries on the cherry tree, which was placed on the table, and which was to represent the cherry tree which George cut with his new hatchet, from which the famous saying "I can't tell a lie," has been handed down. Mrs. E. L. Baker being the successful contestant was presented a box of Martha Washington candy.

It was one of the most delightful entertainments given in Greenville this year and was largely attended. The proceeds amounted to over $70.

Mrs. John Horne Entertains.

Mrs. John Horne delightfully entertained the members of the younger bridge club at a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon complimentary to Miss Gladys Bagwell, bride-elect. The library in which five tables for the games were arranged was decorated with cut flowers and ferns and carried out the color scheme of pink and white. Small pink baskets, tied with pink tulle and containing salted nuts were placed on the tables. The score cards were pink and represented a bride. The table prizes, cupid powder puffs were won by Misses Lillian Joyner, Iver Shelburn, Josephine Skinner, Helen Joyner, and Mrs. Knott Proctor. The honoree was presented a cupid powder puff and a pair of silk hose.

At the conclusion of the games the hostess served a salad course.

Teacher Paints Boyhood Picture of the President

By WILLIAM A. WEYGANDT, International News Service Special Correspondent. (Copyright 1922, by International News Service.)

Cleveland. — "There was nothing unusually bright about Warren Harding, but he was a good, whole-souled, solid-principled boy when he went to school to me in the little town of Caledonia."

And Warren Harding when a boy was intensely human, too, because he loved fresh baked apple pie.

All of this and much more, a representative of the International News Service learned today from Louisa Cope Rhodes, of No. 2174 Searns Road, Cleveland, who was Harding's teacher in the Caledonia public schools for two winters nearly a half-century ago, when the present President was thirteen and fourteen years of age.

A boy doesn't have to be a prodigy nor extraordinary in any sense to become President, Mrs. Rhodes observed, when she told, with wonderful clearness of mind and vivacity of manner, despite her seventy-six years the story of Warren Harding's boyhood days in her school in the country village where she taught.

Warren stood well in studies. "Warren stood, well in his studies; he was bright in all of them, but not remarkable so in any branch. He was studious, but not extremely so; he was a little bit mischievous; yes, he was pretty full of mischief, but there was nothing mean about him." Mrs. Rhodes remarked reminiscently. As she recalled the characteristics of the boy whose progress as captain of the ship of state she watches with almost motherly anxiety.

"I believe Warren's nickname was 'Granddaddy' when he went to me to school," Mrs. Rhodes continued. "That was because he was sort of slow in his deliberations and was kind of fatherly too. He seemed to be a little above and over the others just naturally; he wasn't bossy or 'cranky.' It was a strange nickname the other scholars gave him, but I can see now better than I could then how he got it. Indeed, I now see the same characteristics in Warren as President and as a man that I saw in him as a boy, only they stand out more now."

Mrs. Rhodes doesn't know where Warren Gamaliel Harding got his middle name. She never speaks it, and in all of her mention of the President calls him plain "Warren." And it was as "Warren" that her pupil who rose to fame always desired to be addressed Mrs. Rhodes recalled.

MUSCLE SHOALS
WOULD BOOST
WATER POWER

Total of the Nation Would Reach
10,243,000 With Niagara
Still in Lead

(By International News.)
Washington.—Completion of the 1,000,000 horsepower waterway project at Muscle Shoals, Ala., under direction of Henry Ford, would give America 44 per cent of the world's developed waterpower, it was declared recently by Senator Harris, Democrat, of Alabama.

The project, however, probably will not be completed for several years. It would give America a total of 10,243,000 horsepower generated by waterpower.

New York, according to Senator Harris' statistics, is the leading State in the Union with 1,300,000 horsepower, while California is second with 1,111,000 horsepower. The Muscle Shoals project would place Alabama in third place, he said.

The Muscle Shoals project, as outlined by Ford, would give the South an additional horsepower volume equal to the entire supply of waterpower developed in Japan, Harris said. The Japanese total, he added, is the largest in Asia.

The Alabama project, the Senator declared, if generated to capacity, would surpass the waterpower now developed at Niagara Falls, where both Canadian and American sides generate but 870,000 horsepower. He explained, however, that engineers were adding 425,000 horsepower to the development at Niagara Falls which probably will be completed prior to the Ford project.

"At any rate the Muscle Shoals development would be the second largest in the world after Niagara Falls has been enlarged," he said.

"The Muscle Shoals project," the Senator added, "compares favorably with the total development in some of the most progressive nations of Europe, France, Italy, Germany, Norway and Sweden and Switzerland have total developments of a little more than 1,000,000 horsepower. The Muscle Shoals development will almost approximate the totals in these countries."

Annual Meeting Group One
North Carolina Bankers

was followed by the roll call. President Stubbs delivered his annual address and said:

We just passed through one of the most eventful years in the history of banking and one that will I am sure be long remembered. When we met a year ago we were in the throes of deflation both in prices and credit. We had advanced funds to produce probably the most costly crop ever produced. We faced the lowest prices in proportion to cost of production that any group of bankers ever faced. The farmers were faced with the problem of paying from two to three dollars for every dollar borrowed. The business man faced a similar situation. Every pound of 30c cotton and 60c tobacco or $2 corn produced during the year 1920 and sold at prevailing prices during the past year was the equivalent of paying in the proportion named. Every stock of merchandise meant a like loss to the merchant. Every economic law seemed to be shattered. We had been taught that large stocks of gold and large amounts of currency in circulation meant high prices and on every side for months before the crash we heard complaints of "cheap money" and thus the remedy of "deflation" began but without the desired results. Large stocks of gold and bank note circulation did not maintain high prices; neither did "deflating" the currency raise the price of a single raw product, for Federal Reserve Bank note circulation was reduced one billion dollars during the year, and the price of many raw products reached the lowest level since 1914. Bradstreet's describes the year 1921 as the last work in irregularity and we are inclined to accept his definition. We thus began the year under cloudy skies with no north star to guide us and most of this time we have walked by faith.

But the banking business is passing through a transition period and many of our experiences of the past year are no different than we should have expected. Many of the remedies applied to all lines of business have been drastic but will prove to be of estimable value. No class of business has adjusted itself to new conditions with less difficulty than have the banks of Group One. Almost without exception the bankers of Group One put their hands to the plow early in the year 1921 with a determination not to look back and decided that the dead past should bury its dead. They have succeeded right well. Only a few have listened to the song of the siren and wandered from the path of rectitude and wherever there has been a casualty the derelict will serve as a beacon to warn others who might be tempted. The axe is laid at the root of the tree and we feel sure that the banking business not only of our community but of the State and Nation will be pruned of everything that may savor of unsound business methods.

Many a wholesome lesson has been taught by the experience of the past year and none more needful than the difference between commercial and investment banking. Never again will the conservative banker pile "frozen" or "petrified" credits but will leave this class of loans to others and the long time real estate loans will be left to the investment banker to whom this class of business belongs.

But we have not met to paint a gloomy picture or to hold a convention of sorrow. Although a year ago we knew not what the future held in store for us and often the question was "To be or not to be" and often we wondered whether it was better "To bear those ills we have or to fly to others we know not of," we have come out conquerors and today we find a condition much better than the most sanguine could have hoped for. Group One has shown a greater liquidating power than we could have believed a year ago. The following comparative statements of 48 banks out of a total of 80 in the group reflect in our opinion a strong position and one that reflects credit worthy of praise:

Capital and surplus, Dec. 31, 1920 $3,674,941.40, Dec. 31, 1921, $3,905,409.48.

Bills payable and rediscounts, Dec. 31, 1920 $6,113,631.23, Dec. 31, 1921 $2,608,232.94.

Deposits, Dec. 31, 1920 $16,141,520.90, Dec. 31, 1921 $16,578,208.74.

From which you will note that bills payable and rediscounts were reduced 57 per cent. Bills carried by the 12 Federal Reserve Banks which is a fair index of condition of the entire country were reduced from $2,482,108,000 on January 7, 1921 to $1,239,432,000 on January 4, 1922. The reduction by the Federal Reserve Banks was 56 1-3 per cent while the reduction by the banks of Group One was 57 per cent or slightly better than the country at large. During the same period member banks' reserve account remained almost unchanged. These amounts were $1,795,343,000 January 7, 1921 and $1,731,374,000 on January 4, 1922 showing a reduction of 4 per cent while the deposits of Group One increased 2 2-3 per cent. A record not to be ashamed of. With the same caution exercised during the year 1922 we should see bills payable off the books of all the banks of the group. Many of the banks show that condition to exist even now.

Prof. A. C. Kinsey, of the State College, spoke on agricultural activities. He said the bed rock of our civilization rests on agriculture. This being true it behooves us to strive for agricultural improvement. The most valuable thing to the farm is the milk cow. Imperfect or insufficient milk supply hinders development. Where the banker can play a hand in this is through a campaign of education showing the farmer the value of the milk cow. The farmer can get 40 per cent of his food supplies from dairy products. The cow is the best source of constant cash income the farmer can have. The one crop idea brings depletion of soil fertility. Help bring these things to the mind of the farmer in the way they will be remembered.

C. E. Taylor of Wilmington, spoke on war finance co-operation loans. With the appointment of resolutions and nominating committees the morning session adjourned.

Another session was held this afternoon at 2:30 at which there were several addresses, closing with the election of officers. The final feature of this meeting is the banquet to take place tonight at the Teachers College with F. C. Harding as toastmaster.
