

DANIELS PAYS SPLENDID TRIBUTE TO THE AMERICAN SOLDIERS WHO FOUGHT THAT THE WORLD MIGHT BE SAVED

Former Secretary of Navy Lauded Men in Address Before Legion Last Night

C. A. SLOANE TELLS OF MEN CONFINED AT OTEEN HOSPITAL

Daniels Tells of Spirit of the Thrilling Days During the Ending of the War

After spending the day in Greenville as guest of the chamber of commerce and Pitt county post of the American Legion, Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, former secretary of the navy, completed his activities here with an address before the American Legion and a large gathering of citizens at the court house last night.

Dr. Grady Dixon, of Ayden, post commander, presided over the meeting last night, and introduced Mr. C. A. Sloane, of Asheville, editor of The Oteen Echo, a publication published in the interest of ex-service men receiving treatment at Oteen hospital, near Asheville.

We have heard a good deal these days about vocational rehabilitation of disabled farmer service men, Mr. Sloane said, too little, perhaps of the need of physical rehabilitation. To most of those who were injured as a result of their service, physical restoration means more than anything else, and particularly is this true of those men at Oteen who are suffering from tuberculosis and to whom, if their former vocation in life is closed, most other forms of earning a livelihood also are closed.

Physical rehabilitation therefore as far as it is humanely possible, is of supreme importance, Mr. Sloane declared. When that is accomplished, as far as it can be accomplished, if there remains a vocational handicap it is time enough to talk about vocational rehabilitation.

The war is not over, he said, as long as the condition like the government at Oteen and Kenilworth remains filled with former soldiers. To many people the war ceased with the armistice, or with the return of their loved ones. And to many former soldiers the war is over—has been over perhaps for quite awhile. But to those men who, wrecked in health, attempting to find what they have lost, the war is not over, but in reality is just beginning.

J. C. Lanier announced that a woman's auxiliary of the Pitt county post of the American Legion would be organized at a meeting here Saturday week and urged every woman interested in the work of this organization to attend.

Mr. Daniels was introduced by W. G. Sheppard, of Farmville, who briefly reviewed the record of the former secretary of the navy. He declared Mr. Daniels came out of the cabinet one of the greatest men of the nation, and recognized as such in all parts of the world. He called attention to the wonderful record of the navy under the leadership of the North Carolina man, and said the war could not have been won without the operations of his important department.

Mr. Daniels at the outset paid a splendid tribute to the spirit of the four million men who sacrificed everything that the world might be saved. He said out of the war had come a mutual affection and devotion among the "buddies" that passed all understanding.

People thought before the war, he said, that our young men were lacking in moral fibre, but when the call came, they sprang to arms instantly, forgetting everything except duty to their country. Four million of the very best men the nation ever produced, answered the call, two million of whom crossed the ocean and suffered the hardships of actual warfare. They were placed side by side with soldiers of many years of experience, and fought and defeated the best troops Europe ever produced.

There has been no deterioration of the American man. They are made up of the same stuff of men of old heroic mold, and went to war and came back not looking upon themselves as the heroes the rest of the world had acclaimed them. They didn't tell of what they did in the war. They didn't throw out their chests with pride and tell of their valor, but waited for others to acknowledge the fact, which they did.

They are of the same stuff of the men who followed Lee and Jackson during the trying days of the Confederacy, he said, and we may honor them, but we can't honor them enough for what they have done. Mr. Daniels referred briefly to the great part which the soldiers and the navy displayed when America entered the war. General Haig's army was making its last stand against the onrushing German hosts, and Lloyd George said it was a race between Hindenburg, of the German army, and President Wilson—which would reach Paris first. He told how rapidly American builded her ships, and how quickly two million soldiers were placed on French soil.

This great task would have been well nigh impossible had not American used interned German vessels in sending troops across. Mr. Daniels said. We builded our ships hurriedly, but when the call came we needed them then and could never have put the boys over there in such a hurry had not those old ships been placed in service.

The task even then seemed impossible. The high seas literally swarmed with submarines and deadly mines. But the navy department ordered each troop ship to be surrounded by five fighting cruisers, and so no German submarine dared to touch them.

The speaker recalled the day when the armistice was signed and firing ceased on the shell-torn battlefields of France. He told of the spirit of thanksgiving that filled every heart when they turned their faces to peace. Our people were thankful, although thousands would never return. They bore their sorrow bravely, however, and welcomed the boys home in a way that will forever be remembered.

Mr. Daniels spoke of the effort to compensate the soldier. He scored those who opposed rewarding the men who sacrificed handsome salaries, homes and other properties to go to war that the world might be saved. He said the thousands of suffering, unemployed men today need compensation and that America is more able to pay them than England and France.

He closed his address urging the legionnaires to live up to the high ideals of the organization and incarnate the spirit of the thousand who died in the war that the world might be saved from oppression.

FIVE STILL ARE TAKEN IN RAIDS IN TWO COUNTIES

Prohibition Officers Also Capture Several Men and Pour Out Much Beer

Bootleggers and manufacturers of contraband whiskey received the scare of their lives this week when Prohibition enforcement officers, W. J. Manning, T. W. Snell and E. L. Houser invaded Martin and Lenoir counties, capturing a total of five stills, several men and much beer. The officers discovered several old still sites also, and destroyed approximately ten thousand gallons of beer.

In Martin they captured two stills, a horse and cart, two white men and a negro by the names of Rev. R. L. Taylor, and Clarence Leggett, white and Mack Little, colored. Robert McKeel was at the still at time of the raid, but made his escape. A warrant was immediately issued for his arrest. Taylor and Leggett and Little gave bond at a preliminary hearing during the week.

Three stills were taken in Lenoir county. Richard Jones and Quincy Smith, the latter a constable of Neuse township, were taken in the raids. Both gave bond at a preliminary hearing in Kinston. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Lester Stroud, who escaped from one of the stills during the raid.

The officers visited several old still sites, but operators had evidently anticipated their coming and escaped ten thousand gallons of beer was destroyed in the five stills.

DRAMATIC READER TO GIVE RECITAL AT LOCAL COLLEGE

Miss Katherine Fahnestock to Appear For One Night Engagement at College

Miss Katherine Fahnestock, the dramatic reader who will give a recital at East Carolina Teachers College on the evening of March 27th, is a young woman of distinct charm and personality, and of marked talent. Although still quite young, she has been before the public for some years. She is a graduate of Swarthmore College and was on the Swarthmore Chautauqua circuit every vacation while in college. Since her graduation she has been counted one of their star entertainers. She was in Greenville last summer, and charmed the chautauqua audience with her impersonations, especially in those of children.

She will give some numbers that require piano accompaniments and Miss Bertelet will assist her at the piano in these.

The Lanier Society is working for two purposes—to give the public an evening of delightful entertainment and to raise money for the Fleming portrait fund.

Washington and Torboro May Be Admitted at Meeting in Washington Later

OFFICERS ELECTED TO BE CONFIRMED NEXT MEETING OF LEAGUE

W. Z. Morton Elected Pres. and H. A. White, Vice Pres. During Meeting

The Eastern Carolina league was organized at a meeting held in rooms of the chamber of commerce here yesterday afternoon at four o'clock and the next several days will see final plans of the organization completed. The league is composed of Kinston, New Bern, Greenville and Farmville, with the possibility of a city league by the admission of Tarboro and Washington.

All officers of the league elected yesterday are from Greenville. They are W. Z. Morton, president; H. A. White, vice-president and H. S. Ragsdale, secretary-treasurer. Election of the officers will be confirmed by the board of directors, composed of presidents of each club, as soon as all clubs have been formed.

The meeting was probably one of the most enthusiastic held here in many seasons. Washington was represented by a large delegation and desired to enter the league at the time, but no still town was available and this matter had to be delayed. It was believed, however, that Tarboro is ready to enter the league again, and it is hoped to have a favorable report ready by the meeting of league representatives to be held in Washington April 3rd.

The sign of ball to be played this season was again discussed, and every club with the exception of New Bern, voted in favor of the independent kind. New Bern, however, yielded to the majority and decided to cast her lot with the organization again. Goldsboro failed to have any representation, and was eliminated entirely.

Bidding for application of membership to the league will be held open until the meeting in Washington when final plans for operation will be formed. Every effort will be made to find a companion town for Washington, as everyone is anxious that the town, composed of such fine spirited people, will be admitted.

Although various issues were taken up for consideration, many were dropped because of the inability to reach any definite decision at the time. The league agreement recently drafted in Kinston was adopted. This provides for a sixty game season, although sentiment in some towns is for seventy-two games.

Immediately after the meeting in Washington every city will begin preparations for complete organization of local clubs. Tentative plans are already under way in some towns, but nothing definite can be accomplished until unsettled issues have been made clear.

ROBBERS MAKE HAUL AT WINTERVILLE STORE

Robbers entered the store of B. T. Cox at Winterville last night and made a clean haul of about fifteen suits of clothes and a barrel load of shoes. Officers were making an effort to get on track of the parties this morning but without success.

The robbers gained entrance to the store by breaking out the iron bars on a rear window. They evidently knew what they wanted when they entered the building as nothing else so far has been missed.

It is believed the thieves loaded the goods in an automobile after leaving the store as officers were unable to follow the tracks any distance beyond the store.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS ADDRESSES PUPILS AT LOCAL COLLEGE

Raleigh Man Made Wholesome Talk to Young Women During Visit Yesterday

EXPLAINED POWER AND INFLUENCE OF WOMEN AT PRESENT

Mr. D. W. Simms Also Made Short Talk to Students During Assembly Hour

Hon. Josephus Daniels visited East Carolina Teachers College yesterday afternoon and made the students a good, wholesome talk, in an informal, charming manner. He advised the students to carry back to their fathers and mothers the fine spirit of joy and happiness, taking their parents into partnership with them and making them feel that the sacrifices they make to keep their children in school are worth while.

He spoke of the great power and influence women have in affairs of the nation and the world now as contrasted with the opportunities their mothers and grandmothers had. New conditions have called forth a new type of government and a new vision was needed. Government is in many of its phases today is only housekeeping on a large scale, and as the women are the housekeepers they are, the ones to help solve these questions of health and sanitation are all important today, and women are the best teachers of these. When a senator from Colorado was asked what effect women's voting had upon politics in that state, he replied that it had little effect politically but that the candidates were forced to measure up to a higher standard.

Women are not to get into the front, he said, by pushing men out, but by forming a partnership with them, with the partners of equal rank and influence and power.

The students were fortunate in having two good talks during the day to break the monotony of winter term examinations.

At the assembly period they enjoyed greatly a talk by Mr. D. W. Simms, the Sunday school man. He gave them the cream of the talk he made before the convention the night before, describing the "peg leg" Sunday school, and giving facts and figures proving the power of the Sunday school. He kept his audience in a roar with his apt illustrations and stories.

BELHAVEN BEATS KINSTON CLUB IN BIG BATTLE HERE

Belhaven Girls Claim Championship of East By Victory Of 35 to 25

The girls' basketball club of Belhaven defeated a similar aggregation from Kinston here last night at the score of 35 to 25. The game was fast and interesting in every part, with the exception of a few instances in which Kinston stopped to wrangle. Outside of this feature the battle measured up to the championship kind, the Belhaven girls proving themselves worthy of the high honor.

The outstanding feature of the game was the playing of Miss Pearl Jones for Belhaven. Miss Jones was credited with most of the scoring, and played a game that would have done credit to a much more experienced player.

Miss Brown was the outstanding star for Kinston, featuring largely in the scoring and defensive work. The game determined the championship of Eastern North Carolina, and was one of the hardest fought ever staged here this season by girls' club. A large delegation from both towns attended the game, and support was all that could have been desired.

H. H. Duncan acted as referee and Tom Kennedy as umpire.

Supt. J. H. Rose, of Greenville, Elected President of The Association

MR. SIMMS DELIVERS ANOTHER POWERFUL ADDRESS TO SCHOOL

Prof. Locker Makes Final Appeal in Behalf of Religious Education

Final sessions of the Pitt county Sunday school convention were marked by a good attendance. This convention which closed Friday night has been in session for the past three days. Notwithstanding the bad roads and bad weather the records show 12 Sunday schools were represented. There were present in the various sessions of the convention 10 preachers, 9 Sunday school superintendents and 52 Sunday school teachers. The total attendance was approximately 300 people. Featuring the closing session of the convention was the organization of the Pitt county Sunday school association and the election of officers for the ensuing year. The officers elected are:

J. H. Rose, county president, N. O. Warren, vice president, secretary and treasury, Mrs. E. Williams, president Greenville township, C. J. Ellen, Bethel township, My. Brown, Chiland township, J. C. Galloway, Swift Creek township, G. T. Gardner, other township presidents to be named later.

Through the organization of the various county and township Sunday school associations, Mr. Sims explained that the purpose was to create a public sentiment in favor of more and better Sunday schools. The convention brings the Christian people of all denominations together to think and talk about the Sunday school and how to make it better. Further, it is hoped to have an opportunity to study the needs in the county and plan to meet them. It is necessary to know conditions before we can plan intelligently to improve them. The conventions help to solve the new problems which arise each year.

At county and township convention workers can exchange ideas, learn from and help one another. Mr. Sims expressed great confidence in the upbuilding of the Sunday school work in Pitt county through the promotion of the county and township association work.

General Superintendent D. W. Sims, of the North Carolina Sunday school association, captivated the audience last night with an address on "Trained Workers for the Sunday school—Why and How." The greatest need in any Sunday school today is the need for trained teachers and officers to carry on the work. When our teachers and officers are properly trained," said Mr. Sims, "practically all of our other Sunday school problems will disappear."

"In every American profession, and in every line of business, we demand that those who carry on the work must be trained for the task, but too often in the Sunday school we just look for a good man or a good woman to do the teaching regardless of whether they know how to do it or not. Just because a person is good is no indication that they can teach the Bible. If a Sunday school teacher is late we go over to Brother Longface and say, 'come over and teach Sister Latecomers' class, and his reply is 'I can't teach,' then we say, 'Well you are such a good man, come over and do the best you can.' The next Sunday the pianist is late, and we go over to Brother Longface and say, 'come over and play the piano, and his reply is 'I can't play the piano,' and then do we say, 'Just come and do the best you can, because you are such a good man?' Is it just as absurd to ask a teacher to teach when he doesn't know how as it is to ask him to play on the piano when he has not learned how."

"When we want doctors," said Mr. Sims, "the first thing we ask is whether or not he knows anything about medicine, not whether he is a good man; when we want teachers for the public schools we demand to see their teachers certificate, and we will not

Saturday, March 18th, 1922

The farmer that fails to diversify this year has no one to blame for failure but himself.

Meat packers of the nation had a deficit this year. That's what they say, but wonder what actual figures of operation would show.

After opposition to the soldiers' bonus bill, Secretary Mellon won't stand much show with the American Legion.

After getting the bonus through the senate should confine its attention to slicing the Mellon in the cabinet because of his proposition.

The Federal Reserve system is crying for greater credits. But judging from past activity it wouldn't know how to use them.

Yesterday was a good day in Greenville, with a baseball game, two addresses by Josephus Daniels and a basketball game.

The United States may eventually get pay for maintaining the army on the Rhine. It's gratifying to know we are to get pay for something done in Europe.

Reduction in cotton and tobacco acreage in Pitt county is absolutely necessary to success of the farmer this year, and it is hoped the fact will not be disregarded.

Harding should make good the peace he is enjoying in Florida, as the storm brewing at Washington doesn't indicate any peace in the near future.

The Federal Reserve Board had enough funds to pay large salaries to employes and for buildings, but when the farmer needed loans the worst, there was nothing doing. If activity of the board isn't to be more helpful it might as well be closed.

"Live at Home" should appeal to the farmer in Pitt county who have fared like kings despite the period of deflation. Conditions have been mighty good here compared to other sections, and our farmers have something to be thankful for, no doubt about that.

In widening Dickinson avenue workmen made a mistake by placing the telephone post at Five Points close to the sidewalk. Wires in this section should be run under ground if such is possible. The poles give the streets a bad appearance, and especially right on the corner at Five Points.

DANIELS ON THE FEDERAL RESERVE.

Josephus Daniels gave the farmers some mighty good information in his addresses at the court house here yesterday, and set forth operations of the Federal reserve board in such way that it was easily evident the organization has not measured up to expectations. The institution was created to help the farmer through timely loans, but instead of doing this, money was applied to purposes having nothing to do with the farmer. Regarding operations of the board, Mr. Daniels had the following to say:

Let us not fall into the error of believing that the operation of the Federal Reserve Board in these months of distress has been in keeping with the purpose for which it was created. It was not established to make money. And yet when the need for its aid was sorest it began to make big profits. It was not established to pay extravagant salaries. And yet when farmers had to sacrifice their cotton and cattle because they could not borrow money on good security, the federal reserve board ran riot in paying fancy salaries. It was not established to invest its too large earnings in magnificent buildings. And yet when farmers were denied accommodation and banks in agricultural sections were denied the power to make additional loans to save the day, millions were available to construct buildings far beyond any need in times when every dollar should have been employed to aid farmers and merchants and preventing the necessity of sacrificing their all by throwing their crops on the market when prices reached their lowest level.

The Federal Reserve Board is not primarily responsible for the drop in prices. But it is responsible for failure to deal with the conditions fall of 1920, "Bank deposits were undergirded and stabilized conditions, chinking and the Reserve System failed to extend the aid which would have enabled member banks to meet depositors' demands without forcing the collection of loans entailing many bankruptcies." Mr. Williams says that "from the end of October 1920 to the end of August 1921, the deflation of credits by the Reserve System was steady and continuous and as the contraction proceeded, prices continued to tumble." Undoubtedly if the Federal Reserve Board had the national treasury.

HAMS! HAMS!

GOOD PEOPLE OF GREENVILLE, I am still on the job, and ready to take pleasure in giving you my best service to supply your wants of the best and most wholesome and relishing eatables in the provision line. Haven't had time to say anything in the newspaper for the last few days. So many have gotten on the "Trail" and found my place. I have been too busy to keep posted, those who are patronizing others of how many dollars and cents they are losing. But having drilled and broke in to some extent for the last 60 days in my business Jas. T. Corey, I decided to entrust it to his hands and take a day or two off and go out on the highways and into the byways and hedges in the interest and for the benefit of my customers. I have no hesitancy in saying that I have succeeded in obtaining and brought to my store the best, the most selected assortment of Hams, Shoulders, Sides and Bacon (smoked) ever brought to Greenville. It is true that I am selling Kinghan F.F.V. Hams @ 38c lb. I understand that my competitors are charging 40c per lb., and they have to lug it home at that after paying this price. I understand they also charge 57c for Smithfield Hams. If you would throw aside the names and brand of Smithfield and F.F.V. and allow the aroma to enter your nostrils and a flavor to appease your appetite. These selected country hams I have in stock smoked with hickory and sassafras wood that gives them a golden tinted color and you don't say that a rose by another name (You can call them Bill Allen's selected specials if you want to) and smell just as well and its flavor is fine enough for the King's table and to give a joyous smack to the Queen's taste. Then I feel almost like saying I am willing to pay a doctor to diagnose your case and find out if he can, what is the matter with your taste and system. I am selling these Hams at 34c per lb., and sides and shoulders at 22c. Could ship or express it to other towns at the same price in job lots if I desired to do so. Wanted to give the people of Greenville an opportunity to buy a high grade quality of smoked bacon and Hams at a reasonable price that they can afford to pay. I know that I am selling goods, quality considered from all information that I am able to gather, below my competitors. If you don't buy from me you are fattening the other fellow's bank account and only a question of time he can flant a fat pocketbook in the face of your own lean flat poor purse strings.

I am still making record breakers on the sale of "Waseo" Flour and Beauty Rose, hundreds of satisfied customers are still coming back with their happy smiles and calling for more. I am quoting a few specials as follows:

COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

(Continued from page one.) have them to teach in the public schools unless they have a certificate. Of course we want doctors and teachers who are good people, but we don't want them just because they are good. When we want a Sunday school teacher the first question is whether or not the person is a good man or a good woman, because that is the first qualification of a Sunday school teacher, but we also want them to know the subject we want taught in the Sunday school.

Prof. A. M. Locker, of Chicago, completed a series of interesting and instructive lectures on "Religious Education of the Child." His subject last night was, "Educational Evangelism." In discussing this subject Mr. Locker emphasized the importance of training and developing the natural tendencies and powers of the child in such a way that when the time came for him to make a decision to accept Jesus Christ as a personal saviour, he would do so naturally. "The trouble with many people, especially fathers and mothers, is that they try to measure the child's religious experiences and conduct by their own. It is wrong to take a forty year old religious measuring rod and try to measure the conduct of an eight year old child. The parent and teacher must be such a friend and companion to the child that they can stand as mediators between the child and Jesus Christ and show the child the right things to do.

"It is a sad day when a parent loses the confidence of the child. The mother should be the closest friend and companion the girl has, so that the daughter will tell the mother all of her secrets and confide in her about all of her troubles and temptations. We cannot direct boys and girls unless we have their confidence, and the young people always know in whom they can confide.

Mr. Sims and Mr. Locker left this morning for Henderson where they begin Sunday afternoon a similar meeting.

LOCAL CHAMBER DOES NOT FAVOR PROPOSED STATE ORGANIZATION

Yesterday's issue of The Reflector carried an article under the headline, "Proposes plan for advertising North Carolina" a "State Commercial Secretaries plan ambitious program for the future."

The article was sent out from Burlington without knowledge of officials of the Pitt county Chamber of commerce.

The state chamber of commerce proposition does not meet the approval of the directors of the Pitt county chamber of commerce. The divisions of the state are too great for a state chamber of commerce to benefit eastern North Carolina in any material way.

The problems of Eastern Carolina are common only to this section of this section of the state and can be worked out to a successful conclusion only through the Eastern Carolina Chamber of commerce, which has already been launched and which is now functioning.

Pitt county has several men officially connected with the Eastern Chamber: J. I. Morgan member of the executive committee; Dr. W. W. Dawson, J. E. Winslow, J. I. Morgan, Dr. C. J. Ellen directors, Dr. C. J. Ellen, president; H. L. Smith, temporary secretary.

What is in the bag?

A fertilizer may contain just the right elements of plant food, in just the right proportions, for your soil and the crop you want to grow.

But—is each element in such a form of availability that the plant is able to use it at the right time and over the proper period of growth? Are the three different elements thoroughly mixed? Chemically blended? Or, will one plant starve for lack of one essential element, and another be "gorged" with the second?

Since you can't see quality in fertilizers and must buy them on faith, your best guide is the reputation, experience and facilities of the people who make them.

A A C Quality Fertilizers have behind them the largest manufacturing organization, and are supported by the combined experience of such leaders as Bradley, Bowker, Stockbridge, Liebig, Wheeler, Coe, Lister, Crocker, Detrick, Zell, Hess, and others—probably the most noted group of fertilizer men the industry has ever known.

No man need ever guess what's in the bag if the brand is "A. A. C." It contains maximum fertilizer efficiency.

An important part of this organization is the Agricultural Service Bureau, conducted by Dr. H. J. Wheeler, formerly Director R. I. Agricultural Experiment Station. This Bureau carries on practical experimental work in all sections of the country, to determine just what fertilizers are best adapted to each crop and locality. WRITE to this Bureau, in care of the office nearest you, for suggestions on your particular crop problems. No charge or obligation. WRITE for free booklet "How to Get the Most Out of Fertilizers." WRITE for the A. A. C. Agency if we have no dealer near you.
