$58,591,713.69 Realized From the Baptist 75 Million Campaign; Great Extension Work Made Possible

Memphis, Tenn., May 14.—Cash in the amount of $58,591,713.69 was realized from the Baptist 75 Million Campaign the five year program of missions, educational and benevolences inaugurated by the Southern Baptist Convention late in 1919 and completed last December, it was reported to the Southern Baptist convention here today by Dr. R. L. Scarborough of Fort Worth, Texas, who was general director of the campaign.

While the total expenses of the various state offices and the Southwide headquarters in both the projection and completion of the undertaking amounted to considerably less than four percent of the total amount raised.

While the program did not reach its full financial goal, Dr. Scarborough reported, great extension was possible in the missionary, educational and benevolent enterprises fostered by Southern Baptist, both at home and abroad.

The money received, classified according to States showed that Texas led with a total of $8,720,161.50, Virginia was second with $6,657,778.86 and Kentucky third with $6,414,159.87. Says Trial by News-Papers Is Usurping Function of Courts

Chicago, May 14.—Trial by news papers is usurping the function of judges and juries, declared Attorney Arthur R. Sherriff, chairman of the Chicago Bar Association Committee, on the relations of the press to judicial proceedings in a statement issued today, after Chicago Judges ruled to bar cameras from court trials. "Our great trials are made cheap vaudeville acts," he said, "trials by newspapers has made our courts a laughing stock. But it is time for the pendulum to swing back, and the first impulse has been feed with the hand on newspapers photographs on court scenes." "It is not part of the function of the court to supply enthusiasm, thrills, or food for gossip to the public. The court rooms are opened to all who wish to attend in person, pal staff of life.

LIGUOR COMES HIGH IN NEW YORK AND LOW IN CALIFORNIA

Dry Navy's Blockade of Rum Row Driving "Rum Vessels" From East Coast to Pacific Coast

New York, May 14.—The price of liquor is going up in New York, and going down in California. The reasons, in the Dry Navy's blockade of the East Coast Rum Row. Many of the ships unable to do business here have sailed for the Pacific Coast, where customers are reported to be bringing loads ashore regularly and without difficulty. Some estimates place the value of whiskey landed in and around San Diego within the past 48 hours, at more than $100,000. As a result, the bottom has fallen out of the gin market in California. Scotch is reported to be selling for $4 a quart in Los Angeles, compared with previous prices of $6 to $9. Two cutters on duty are reported as being unable to cope with the movements of six rum ships off Southern California.

New York newspapers say that though liquor is still plentiful here, it is coming from reserved stocks, and wholesale prices have gone up to $10 to $15 a case ashore since the blockade started. The World says that Champaign, which formerly sold at $85 a case, now costs $100 and rye whiskey is very rare, and Scotch is as high as $60 a case.

Declares Governor Responsible For Rise Gas Prices

Lincoln, Neb., May 14.—In a state ment attacking the Republican State administration of Governor Adam McMullen today, former Governor Charles W. Bryan, unsuccessful candidate for Vice President in the last Presidential election, charged that Governor McMullen was responsible for the rise in gasoline prices prevailing in each state in the United States.

BANK OF HUMAN KINDNESS COMPELLED TO SUSPEND

Seattle.—Moved by the desire to help needy and worthy prisoners, William Pigott, a philanthropic local manufacturer, up $500 a few months ago to aid the down and out. The money was to be loaned only on the security of human nature, a promise to pay within 30 days, and its disbursement was entirely in the hands of Justice of the Peace C. C. Dalton.

Prisoners brought before the judge were advanced sums ranging from $2 to $20. The $500 was in due course drawn on heavily, but only one loan, for $2, has been repaid. Two other debtors came back and asked for more time, but all the others vanished quickly. The judge had the philanthropist, somewhat more cynical, have suspended disbursements, at least temporarily. The advances were confined to prisoners released by the court or discharged after serving terms in the county jail. "I wouldn't have believed it," said Judge Dalton recently. "It looked like a fine idea, helping the lowly, retrieving lost souls and all that sort of thing. But, hang it all, the souls won't be saved, and so we've got to save what's left of the bank."

SWEDEN SHOWS FONDNESS FOR AMERICAN BREAD

Stockholm.—While bread of American wheat flour is gaining in popularity in Sweden, according to official trade and crop statistics for 1924 now available. But at the same time Sweden's own grain producing capacity is rising, so that in a pinch the country could supply its entire need in breadstuffs. While still being supplemented by wheat from the United States, Sweden's own wheat production has also risen during the same periods from 51 to 63 percent of the total domestic consumption, and yet the imports of wheat flour rose from 267,000,000 kilograms in 1923 to 286,300,000 in 1924, so that the population not only raises more wheat than formerly, but also imports more. At the same time it consumes less of the old-time dark rye bread which was once its principal staff of life.

SEN. UNDERWOOD DISCUSSES MUSCLE SHOALS WITH PRES.

Declares There Is Little Prospect for Leasing Shoals.

Washington, May 14.—There is little prospect of leasing, for a short period, the power of Muscle Shoals, Senator Underwood, of Alabama, declared here today after conferring with President Coolidge. Senator Underwood championed a bill in the last session of Congress to lease the properties, but failure of Congress to authorize disposal of Muscle Shoals has led to suggestions that the Secretary of War lease the power temporarily in the meantime. Senator Underwood today agreed with the view of President Coolidge that no lease should be made of the power if it will hinder, in any way, final disposition of the property, a problem which is now being studied by a special commission appointed by the President.

HOUSES OF STEEL AND CORK AN EXPERIMENT IN ENGLAND

Deal, Eng.—Not far from the famous Deal Castle, built by Henry VIII, several workmen's houses of cork with steel framework, are being built as an experiment designed to assist in relieving the housing shortage in England. The entire skeleton of the newly conceived houses is of steel and the insulation core of the walls is formed of slabs of compressed cork. On the exterior the cork is enclosed in solid concrete to the depth of an inch and a half by a "cement gun" which applies the concrete under pressure. The itself having been pressed into a mould, will not swell and burns very slowly. Calculation value saved 25 percent in heating costs. Another advantage for the cork house claimed by the inventors is that it is sound-proof in comparison with the ordinary structure of brick, stone or timber. Owing to the fact that it may be built by unskilled labor under direction of experienced hands the cost is low and the authorities hope buildings of this kind may prove popular among the coal miners and other workmen in the industrial districts.

MEXICANS SEEK AMITY WITH AMERICAN BUSINESS HOUSES

Mexico City.—Adoption of a commercial arbitration agreement by the National Chamber of Commerce of Washington and the Confederation of Mexican Chambers of Commerce is recommended by a special committee named by the Mexican confederation. The plan recommended to settle, without recourse to the courts, differences between Mexican and United States business houses follows virtually without change the American-Argentine agreement. It will be voted on at the next meeting of the confederation.

SEEK TO DIVORCE ARMS CONFERENCE FROM THE LEAGUE

American Delegation Files the Amendment in Today's Session of International Conference

Geneva, May 14.—The American delegation to the League of Nations International Conference for the control of traffic in arms and ammunitions, today officially filed an amendment to divorce the Arms Conference from the League of Nations.

The presentation of the amendment, although expected in many quarters, caused something of a sensation. The conference itself hopes the amendment provides that a central international office shall be established by a council of the League of Nations for the collection and publication of documents of all kinds relations to traffic in arms.

The amendment offered by Representative Theodore Burton, head of the American Delegation, provides for a Central Office, but omits the specification that it be appointed by the League council.

It differs also from the Conference Convention by saying that a certain number of states to be determined later, shall nominate representatives to the Central Office, and these representative shall determine its organization and function, including the method of electing their successors. The Burton Amendment will be discussed later.

London, May 14.—Premier Baldwin said the League of Nations still has under consideration the question of general disarmament, and therefore any initiative on the part of the British Government at this time would not be advantageous.

Washington, May 14.—The amendment introduced today by Theodore Burton, Chairman of the American Delegation to the Geneva Arms Traffic Conference is not intended merely to divorce the international office proposed in the draft convention, neither to consider the former control by the League of Nations. It was said at the state department that it in no way was intended to separate the present conference from the League of Nations.

The international office would be charged with the collection and dissemination of data pertinent to the Arms Traffic and be responsible to the public of information for the use and guidance of the nation's participation in the convention. It is believed of Mr. Burton, and his colleagues, that if the office is left free to function as an independent agency, it would be in a position to give more satisfactory service to the nation's which may be members of the Arms Traffic Agreement, but which are not implicated directly with the League of Nations.

DEAD PETS PRESERVED FOR SORROWING OWNERS

Los Angeles.—Strange stories surround the pets which men and women bring into taxidermy studios here. Often the sorrowing owners want their dead cat, dog or bird companions stuffed and mounted.

Recently a man came in with a parrot. He explained the manner in which he wanted it preserved "I am having a little casket made," he added, "and it is to be placed there. We were pals for 19 years." He told how he and the bird had traveled over Europe together.

Weeplingly a woman brought in a canary to be mounted and put in a glass case. "The little thing has slept with me, eaten with me and been my greatest comfort for years," she told the proprietor.

Another customer, wishing to retain a life-like pose of his pedigreed English bull dog, killed in an automobile accident, had the skin of his pet mounted in a sleeping pose.

A college chap had his brindle bull dog preserved. This dog was called "Smoky" and, according to its owner, could smoke tobacco and drink strong liquor.

Reform Mayor

Mrs. Josephine Slater was elected Mayor of Cherry Valley, Ill., once reputed "wide open," on a promise to "clean up" the city, after male Mayors had supposedly failed to do so. Mrs. Slater, immediately after taking office, commenced a campaign of raids against dance halls and resorts.

CURB AND GUTTER CONTRACTS ARE LET FOR CITY STREETS

City Fathers in Call Session Let Contracts Other Important Business.

At a special call meeting of the Board of Aldermen held this week, contracts were let for curb and gutter on Student street between Third and Fourth streets, for additional curbing and gutter on East Third street, and curbing and gutter on Wade street between Dickinson Avenue and Broad street.

Following the letting of contracts the Board ordered the sewer committee to confer with the Water and Light Commission regarding the Commission taking over the sewers of the city. This the Commission agreed to do and in the future will have charge of the laying and maintaining sewers. All applications for sewerage will be made to the Water and Light Commission instead of to the Board of Aldermen as heretofore.

A map of the new cemetery has been completed and placed in the city clerk's office. Work of landscaping and developing the property will begin immediately.

The condition figures for North Carolina show 73 percent normal this year as compared with 83 percent last year.

EARLY SETTLEMENT OF FRENCH DEBT PLEASES AMERICANS

France to Begin Active Negotiations in Two Weeks for Funding Her War Debt to the United States

Washington, May 14.—Gratification of officials here that news that the French Government will begin within two weeks active negotiations for settlement of her war debt to the United States, is tempered only by absence so far of official advice from Paris.

The first news of development was transmitted in an Associated Press dispatch, which said that Foreign Minister Briand, and Finance Minister Caillaux were in favor of reaching an agreement with this country on the debt question within fifteen days. Awaiting conditions through regular governmental channels officials here characterized the advance in the debt situation as the most important for months, and indicated pleasure that France is ready to make a definite offer.

However, the information has served to revive interest in the possible form the French refunding program will assume, with this government's view as to use in this respect of payments from Germany occupying the foreground. It is generally expected that France must include in her finance balance sheet the revenue to be received from Berlin under the Dawes plan, but the Washington government does not desire to be placed in this position as collector for France of her claim against her late enemy.

Ambassador Daeschner, it is indicated from Paris, rather than a special envoy will conduct the negotiations with the American Debt Refunding Commission. In this connection it was not known here whether any significance is attached to the arrival in New York yesterday of Geane Parmentier, noted France Finance expert. He said there that he planned to visit Vice President Dawes and Owen Daniel Young, whom he knew as delegate to the commission which formulated the Dawes plan.

Health Department Sounds a Warning Against Typhoid Fever

The Pitt County Health Department calls attention to the fact that three cases of typhoid fever have been reported to the Health Department since April 15th. The case histories reveal the fact that no treatments for the prevention of the disease have ever been taken.

Listen—Those who have never taken the treatment and those who have not taken it within the last three years, this is a warning to you. You may be the next one to be stricken with it. We urge you to make use of the opportunity given you, without delay. As summer advances, typhoid will be on the increase if we don't get busy.

You who have servants in your employ, be interested enough in them to find out if they have had the treatment, and urge upon them the necessity of talking it at once. These treatments are given by your doctor, or you can get them free at the Health Office on Wednesday and Saturdays. Why have typhoid or run the risk of having it when it can be so easily prevented. Don't miss the opportunity to take treatment.

Kentucky Derby Be Held Saturday

Louisville, Ky., May 14.—King-horse, heralding the Kentucky Derby already has advanced upon Louisville with its four feet stamping the city as the temporary play ground of the nation. Although 48 hours remain before the running of the famous old Classics, the streets are thronged and the railroads are doing a crowded business. All hotels are filled and automobiles continue to pile into Louisville. It is estimated that a hundred thousand will be on hand for the event Saturday afternoon.

Hotels have refused applications from hundreds of people for reservations, and it is believed that still many hundred will come to the city without making any attempt to secure reservation in advance.

MRS. COOLIDGE WALKS BRISKLY, KNOWS OWN MIND

Washington. — Society leaders of the capital, accustomed to moulding their tastes to those of the first lady of the land, are stupefied by the form of diversion selected by Mrs. Coolidge.

Four to six miles of walking daily is the program of Mrs. Coolidge and this schedule stands, so far as the demands on the time of a President's wife permit, rain or shine, winter or summer.

Mrs. Coolidge has refused to be "jailed" in the White House. She regards the executive mansion as a home, and she has maintained the simple habits of life she has accustomed herself to as the wife of a Massachusetts lawyer. Social functions she disposes of with grace and ease, and she enjoys them, but they are kept at a minimum.

Two walks a day is the favorite program. The morning stroll is confined usually to shopping. Mrs. Coolidge is well acquainted with the stores here, and makes her way about quickly. She knows pretty well what she wants before entering a sales-room, and takes little time in making her selection.

Another walk in the afternoon usually finds her enjoying the freedom of one of the numerous parks, but the strolls are not confined entirely to parkways. There are few streets in the wide neighborhood about the White House, settled by every class of people, which she has not traversed.

On these walks Mrs. Coolidge usually is accompanied only by a secret service man. Jim Haley, who has been assigned to look after her protection ever since she entered the White House, is tall and naturally takes a long stride, but Mrs. Coolidge apparently never finds the pace too fast.

Very often the first lady is recognized by fellow pedestrians, particularly by the children, for whom she always has a happy greeting. But sometimes a sightseer, unaware of her identity, hails her to ask a direct question. She takes delight in answering these queries. At rare intervals in the stores, too, a clerk innocently asks to whom the goods shall be charged.

It takes extremely severe weather to deprive Mrs. Coolidge of her walk. In the midst of last winter she walked one night with her son, John, to the Union Station, more than a mile from the White House, to meet some intimate friends, and then walked back to the White House. She ducks into the rain clad in a raincoat and a "slicker" hat, and has been seen walking in some near-thunderstorms. Unless there are guests at the White House, Mrs. Coolidge seldom uses her private limousine. It has stood in the garage for weeks at a time.

An active housekeeper deprives her of most of the cares of the kitchen, and she leaves virtually all of that domain to others. She used to go in to the kitchen on Sunday afternoons when the boys were home, however, to pop some corn. Calvin, Jr., who died last summer, particularly favored the Sunday afternoon pop corn dish.

SYNOPSIS

Malone, a young London newspaper reporter, rejected by the girl he loves because he has no great deeds to his credit, goes in search of adventure. An appeal to his editor, McArville, for a dangerous assignment, results in his being sent to interview Professor Challenger, a scientist, who has recently returned from a solitary expedition to South America with an amazing story of adventure which no one believes. Angered, Challenger has since refused to talk. By a ruse Malone obtains an audience with him, but is unceremoniously ejected when Challenger discovers he is a reporter. But because Malone refuses to press a charge against him, Challenger is sufficiently mollified to order him into the house again. After extracting a promise that nothing he tells him will be repeated, Challenger brings forth a tattered sketch book, which, he says, he found among the possessions of an American artist and explorer, Maple White, whom he had come upon during his expedition, dead from exhaustion and starvation. Malone examines some of the drawings without finding anything unusual.

I was still unable to sympathize. It was a full-page sketch of a landscape roughly tinted in color—the kind of painting which an open-air artist takes as a guide to a future more elaborate effort. There was a pale-green foreground of feathery vegetation, which sloped upward and ended in a line of cliffs dark red in color, and curiously ribbed like some basaltic formations which I have seen. They extended in an unbroken wall right across the background. At one point was an isolated pyramidal rock, crowned by a great tree, which appeared to be separated by a cleft from the main crag. Behind it all, a blue tropical sky. A thin green line of vegetation fringed the summit of the ruddy cliff.

"Well?" he asked. "It is no doubt a curious formation," said I, "but I am not geologist enough to say that it is wonderful."

"Wonderful!" he repeated. "It is unique. It is incredible. No one on earth has ever dreamed of such a possibility. Now the next."

I turned it over, and gave an exclamation of surprise. There was a full-page picture of the most extraordinary creature that I had ever seen. It was the wild dream of an opium smoker, a vision of delirium. The head was like that of a fowl, the body that of a bloated lizard, the trailing tail was furnished with upward-turned spikes, and the curved back was edged with a high serrated fringe, which looked like a dozen cocks' wattles placed behind each other. In front of this creature was an absurd mannikin, or dwarf, in human form, who stood staring at it.

"Well, what do you think of that?" cried the Professor, rubbing his hands with an air of triumph.

"It is monstrous—grotesque."

"But what made him draw such an animal?"

"Trade gin, I should think."

"Oh, that's the best explanation you can give, is it?"

"Well, sir, what is yours?"

"The obvious one that the creature exists. That is actually sketched from the life."

I should have laughed only that I had a vision of our doing another Catherine-wheel down the passage.

"No doubt," said I, "no doubt," as one humors an imbecile. "I confess, however," I added, "that this tiny human figure puzzles me. If it were an Indian we could set it down as evidence of some pigmy race in America, but it appears to be a European in a sun-hat."

The Professor snorted like an angry buffalo. "You really touch the limit," said he. "You enlarge my view of the possible. Cerebral parents! Mental inertia! Wonderful!"

He was too absurd to make me angry. Indeed, it was a waste of energy, for if you were going to be angry with this man you would be angry all the time. I contented myself with smiling wearily. "It struck me that the man was small," said I.

"Look here!" he cried, leaning forward and dabbing a great hairy sausage of a finger on to the picture. "You see that plant behind the animal; I suppose you thought it was a dandelion or a Brussels sprout—what? Well, it is a vegetable ivory plant, and they run to about fifty or sixty feet. Don't you see that the man is put in for a purpose. He couldn't really have stood in front of that brute and lived to draw it. He sketched himself in to give a scale of heights. He was, we will say, over five feet high. The tree is ten times bigger, which is what one would expect."

"Good heavens!" I cried. "Then you think the beast was—Why, (To be continued)

Charing Cross station would hardly make a kennel for such a brute!"

"Apart from exaggeration, he is certainly a well-grown specimen," said the Professor, complacently.

"But," I cried, "surely the whole experience of the human race is not to be set aside on account of a single sketch—I had turned over the leaves and ascertained that there was nothing more in the book—a single sketch by a wandering American artist who may have done it under hashish, or in the delirium of fever, or simply in order to gratify a freakish imagination. You can't, as a man of science, defend such a position as that."

For answer the Professor took a book down from a shelf. "This is an excellent monograph by my gifted friend, Ray Lankester!" said he. "There is an illustration here which would interest you. Ah, yes, here it is! The inscription beneath it runs: 'Probable appearance in life of the Jurassic Dinosaur Stegosaurus. The hind leg alone is twice as tall as a full-grown man.' Well, what do you make of that?"

He handed me the open book. I started as I looked at the picture. In this reconstructed animal of a dead world there was certainly a very great resemblance to the sketch of the unknown artist.

"That is certainly remarkable," said I.

"But you won't admit that it is final?"

"Surely it might be a coincidence, or this American may have seen a picture of the kind and carried it in his memory. It would be likely to recur to a man in a delirium."

"Very good," said the Professor, indulgently; "we leave it at that. I will now ask you to look at this bone." He handed over the bone which he had already described as part of the dead man's possessions. It was about six inches long, and thicker than my thumb, with some indications of dried cartilage at one end of it.

"To what known creature does that bone belong?" asked the Professor.

I examined it with care and tried to recall some half-forgotten knowledge.

"It might be a very thick human collar-bone," I said.

My companion waved his hand in contemptuous deprecation.

"The human collar-bone is curved. This is straight. There is a groove upon its surface showing that a great tendon played across it, which could not be the case with a clavicle."

"Then I must confess that I don't know what it is."

"You need not be ashamed to expose your ignorance, for I don't suppose the whole South Kensington staff could give a name to it." He took a little bone the size of a bean out of a pill-box. "So far as I am a judge this human bone is the analogue of the one which you hold in your hand. That will give you some idea of the size of the creature. You will observe from the cartilage that this is no fossil specimen, but recent. What do you say to that?"

"Surely in an elephant—"

He winced as if in pain.

"Don't! Don't talk of elephants in South America. Even in these days of Board schools—"

"Well," I interrupted, "any large South American animal—a tapir, for example."

"You may take it, young man, that I am versed in the elements of my business. This is not a conceivable bone either of a tapir or of any other creature known to zoology. It belongs to a very large, very strong, and, by all analogy, a very fierce animal which exists upon the face of the earth, but has not yet come under the notice of science. You are still unconvinced?"

"I am at least deeply interested."

"Then your case is not hopeless. I feel that there is reason lurking in you somewhere, so we will patiently grope round for it."

"We will now leave the dead American and proceed with my narrative. You can imagine that I could hardly come away from the Amazon without probing deeper into the matter. There were indications as to the direction from which the dead traveler had come. Indian legends would alone have been my guide, for I found that rumors of a strange land were common among all the riverine tribes. You have heard, no doubt, of Curupiri?"

"Never."

"Curupiri is the spirit of the woods, something terrible, something malevolent, something to be avoided. None can describe its shape or nature, but it is a word of terror along the Amazon. Now all tribes agree as to the direction in which Curupiri lives. It was the same direction from which the American had come. Something terrible lay that way. It was my business to find out what it was."

Modern Payroll Check Plan Displacing Old Pay Envelope

Industry's New System Appeals to Employer and Employee.

A BLIND MAN evoked the simplest payroll plan of which there is any record in the United States.

The late Charles "Broadway" Rouse, a picturesque New York character, for many years had a store on lower Broadway. He recruited his employees from the down-and-outers. Their daily wage was fixed at one dollar. Every evening Rouse stationed himself at the employees' exit with a bag of silver dollars. As each employee passed, Rouse dipped his hand into the bag and brought forth a shining "cart wheel."

For Rouse it was an ideal plan. However, changing conditions have brought a wonderful freight of complications which are combining to supplant the cash pay-roll with a new system. The pay-roll check has come into being. The time-honored line flitting tediously past the cashier's window on Saturday afternoon is about to pass into tradition, and the bank check is becoming familiar to thousands who previously had known only government currency.

When the Whistle Blows
A feature of the pay-by-check plan that has met with general favor among employees is the distribution of the pay checks to the men while they are at their various desks. The Saturday noon whistle ends the week. The pay-roll line has gone. There is no quibbling over errors in amounts. The check speaks for itself. There are no lost pay envelopes, and a lost check means merely the issuance of a duplicate.

Nor is the paymaster sorry. A million and a half dollars stolen and 32 men killed by pay-roll bandits is the twelve months' toll that has had tremendous effect in introducing the check plan. Hold-up insurance can cover the loss of money, but there remains the hazard of life to which business men hesitate to expose their employees. Transportation of large sums of cash through the streets, over highways or on trains creates a lure to which all too many bandits are anxious to succumb. The lesson of prevention has been driven home to the business man, and the pay-roll bandit is finding leaner and leaner pickings.

Time and Money Saved
Heads of large industries who have abandoned the cash system in favor of the check plan state that the community is equally interested with the employer and employee in pay-roll methods.

On the one hand the old practice of paying by cash makes possible extensive pay-roll robberies, jeopardizes lives of paymasters and messengers; imposes unnecessary burdens upon police departments; induces extravagance among hundreds of people; and is generally a net economic loss to the community.

On the other hand, paying by check prevents loss and crime; saves the cost of pay-roll insurance; releases police for normal duties; encourages thrift among employees and increases bank deposits; and makes more capital available for home building and community improvements.

These are the outstanding benefits as viewed after the plan has been put into operation. But sometimes employers are inclined to hesitate to pay by check out of fear of misunderstanding on the part of employees.

Employees' Viewpoint
Often a natural misgiving as to the reason for the change may influence the employee, say employers. We may be inclined to regard the check as necessitating an additional step in the collection of his pay. Necessity for cashing his check before he is able to spend any part of it may occur to him as a thoroughly practical objection.

In actual practice, however, employers using the check plan say that these difficulties almost invariably disappear when the employee finds himself leaving a portion of his check with the savings bank, and when he finds that getting a check cashed in a country where six billion checks are written annually is a simple undertaking.

Changed Attitude
Surveys by business organizations and large industries have shown that almost invariably, where employees feared to break away from the old pay-envelope system, they have very quickly become far more emphatic in support of the pay-by-check plan, and would oppose any attempt to pay them in cash.

These investigations have further determined that modern check protection methods, safeguarding checks against forgery or alteration, have definitely established this form of currency in the confidence of the employee and the public.

Such popularity must be deserved

MRS. COOLIDGE WALKS BRISKLY, KNOWS OWN MIND

Washington. — Society leaders of the capital, accustomed to moulding their tastes to those of the first lady of the land, are stunned by the form of diversion selected by Mrs. Coolidge.

Four to six miles of walking daily is the program of Mrs. Coolidge and this schedule stands so far as the demands on the time of a President's wife permit, rain or shine, winter or summer.

Mrs. Coolidge has refused to be "jailed" in the White House. She regards the executive mansion as a home, and she has maintained the simple habits of life she accustomed herself to as the wife of a Massachusetts lawyer. Social functions she disposes of with grace and ease, and she enjoys them, but they are kept at a minimum.

Two walks a day is the favorite program. The morning stroll is confined usually to shopping. Mrs. Coolidge is well acquainted with the stores here, and makes her way about quickly. She knows pretty well what she wants before entering a sales-room, and takes little time in making her selection.

Another walk in the afternoon usually finds her enjoying the freedom of one of the numerous parks, but the strolls are not confined entirely to parkways. There are few streets in the wide neighborhood about the White House, settled by every class of people, which she has not traversed.

On these walks Mrs. Coolidge usually is accompanied only by a secret service man. Jim Haley, who has been assigned to look after her protection ever since she entered the White House, is tall and naturally takes a long stride, but Mrs. Coolidge apparently never finds the pace too fast.

Very often the first lady is recognized by fellow pedestrians, particularly by the children, for whom she always has a happy greeting. But sometimes a sightseer, unaware of her identity, hails her to ask a direct question. She takes delight in answering these queries. At rare intervals in the stores, too, a clerk innocently asks to whom the goods shall be charged.

It takes extremely severe weather to deprive Mrs. Coolidge of her walk. In the midst of last winter she walked one night with her son, John, to the Union Station, more than a mile from the White House, to meet some intimate friends, and then walked back to the White House. She ducks into the rain clad in a raincoat and a "slicker" hat, and has been seen walking in some near-thunderstorms. Unless there are guests at the White House, Mrs. Coolidge seldom uses her private limousine. It has stood in the garage for weeks at a time.

An active housekeeper deprives her of most of the cares of the kitchen, and she leaves virtually all of that domain to others. She used to go into the kitchen on Sunday afternoons when the boys were home, however, to pop some corn. Calvin, Jr., who died last summer, particularly favored the Sunday afternoon pop corn dish.

SYNOPSIS

Malone, a young London newspaper reporter, rejected by the girl he loves because he has no great deeds to his credit, goes in search of adventure. An appeal to his editor, McArville, for a dangerous assignment, results in his being sent to interview Professor Challenger, a scientist, who has recently returned from a solitary expedition to South America with an amazing story of adventure which no one believes. Angered, Challenger has since refused to talk. By a ruse Malone obtains an audience with him, but is unceremoniously ejected when Challenger discovers he is a reporter. But because Malone refuses to press a charge against him, Challenger is sufficiently mollified to order him into the house again. After extracting a promise that nothing he tells him will be repeated, Challenger brings forth a tattered sketch book, which, he says, he found among the possessions of an American artist and explorer, Maple White, whom he had come upon during his expedition, dead from exhaustion and starvation. Malone examines some of the drawings without finding anything unusual.

I was still unable to sympathize. It was a full-page sketch of a landscape roughly tinted in color—the kind of painting which an open-air artist takes as a guide to a future more elaborate effort. There was a pale-green foreground of feathery vegetation, which sloped upward and ended in a line of cliffs dark red in color, and curiously ribbed like some basaltic formations which I have seen. They extended in an unbroken wall right across the background. At one point was an isolated pyramidal rock, crowned by a great tree, which appeared to be separated by a cleft from the main crag. Behind it all, a blue tropical sky. A thin green line of vegetation fringed the summit of the ruddy cliff.

"Well?" he asked. "It is no doubt a curious formation," said I, "but I am not geologist enough to say that it is wonderful."

"Wonderful!" he repeated. "It is unique. It is incredible. No one on earth has ever dreamed of such a possibility. Now the next."

I turned it over, and gave an exclamation of surprise. There was a full-page picture of the most extraordinary creature that I had ever seen. It was the wild dream of an opium smoker, a vision of delirium. The head was like that of a fowl, the body that of a bloated lizard, the trailing tail was furnished with upward-turned spikes, and the curved back was edged with a high serrated fringe, which looked like a dozen cocks' wattles placed behind each other. In front of this creature was an absurd mannikin, or dwarf, in human form, who stood staring at it.

"Well, what do you think of that?" cried the Professor, rubbing his hands with an air of triumph.

"It is monstrous—grotesque." "But what made him draw such an animal?"

"Trade gin, I should think." "Oh, that's the best explanation you can give, is it?"

"Well, sir, what is yours?" "The obvious one that the creature exists. That is actually sketched from the life."

I should have laughed only that I had a vision of our doing another Catherine-wheel down the passage. "No doubt," said I, "no doubt," as one humors an imbecile. "I confess, however," I added, "that this tiny human figure puzzles me. If it were an Indian we could set it down as evidence of some pigmy race in America, but it appears to be a European in a sun-hat."

The Professor snorted like an angry buffalo. "You really touch the limit," said he. "You enlarge my view of the possible. Cerebral parents! Mental inertial Wonderful!"

He was too absurd to make me angry. Indeed, it was a waste of energy, for if you were going to be angry with this man you would be angry all the time. I contented myself with smiling wearily. "It struck me that the man was small," said I.

"Look here!" he cried, leaning forward and dabbing a great hairy sausage of a finger on to the picture. "You see that plant behind the animal; I suppose you thought it was a dandelion or a Brussels sprout—what? Well, it is a vegetable ivory plant, and they run to about fifty or sixty feet. Don't you see that the man is put in for a purpose. He couldn't really have stood in front of that brute and lived to draw it. He sketched himself in to give a scale of heights. He was, we will say, over five feet high. The tree is ten times bigger, which is what one would expect."

"Good heavens!" I cried. "Then you think the beast was— Why,

"Apart from exaggeration, he is certainly a well-grown specimen," said the Professor, complacently. "But," I cried, "surely the whole experience of the human race is not to be set aside on account of a single sketch?—I had turned over the leaves and ascertained that there was nothing more in the book—a single sketch by a wandering American artist who may have done it under bashful or in the delirium of fever, or simply in order to gratify a freakish imagination. You can't, as a man of science, defend such a position as that."

For answer the Professor took a book down from a shelf. "This is an excellent monograph by my gifted friend, Ray Lankester!" said he. "There is an illustration here which would interest you. Ah, yes, here it is! The inscription beneath it runs: 'Probable appearance in life of the Jurassic Dinosaur Stegosaurus. The hind leg alone is twice as tall as a full-grown man.' Well, what do you make of that?"

He handed me the open book. I started as I looked at the picture. In this reconstructed animal of a dead world there was certainly a very great resemblance to the sketch of the unknown artist. "That is certainly remarkable," said I.

"But you won't admit that it is final?"

"Surely it might be a coincidence, or this American may have seen a picture of the kind and carried it in his memory. It would be likely to recur to a man in a delirium."

"Very good," said the Professor, indulgently; "we leave it at that. I will now ask you to look at this bone." He handed over the bone which he had already described as part of the dead man's possessions. It was about six inches long, and thicker than my thumb, with some indications of dried cartilage at one end of it.

"To what known creature does that bone belong?" asked the Professor.

I examined it with care and tried to recall some half-forgotten knowledge.

"It might be a very thick human collar-bone," I said.

My companion waved his hand in contemptuous deprecation.

"The human collar-bone is curved. This is straight. There is a groove upon its surface showing that a great tendon played across it, which could not be the case with a clavicle."

"Then I must confess that I don't know what it is."

"You need not be ashamed to expose your ignorance, for I don't suppose the whole South Kensington staff could give a name to it." He took a little bone the size of a bean out of a pill-box. "So far as I am a judge this human bone is the analogue of the one which you hold in your hand. That will give you some idea of the size of the creature. You will observe from the cartilage that this is no fossil specimen, but recent. What do you say to that?"

"Surely in an elephant—" He winced as if in pain.

"Don't! Don't talk of elephants in South America. Even in these days of Board schools—"

"Well," I interrupted, "any large South American animal—a tapir, for example."

"You may take it, young man, that I am versed in the elements of my business. This is not a conceivable bone either of a tapir or of any other creature known to zoology. It belongs to a very large, a very strong, and, by all analogy, a very fierce animal which exists upon the face of the earth, but has not yet come under the notice of science. You are still unconvinced?"

"I am at least deeply interested."

"Then your case is not hopeless. I feel that there is reason lurking in you somewhere, so we will patiently grope round for it."

"We will now leave the dead American and proceed with my narrative. You can imagine that I could hardly come away from the Amazon without probing deeper into the matter. There were indications as to the direction from which the dead traveler had come. Indian legends would alone have been my guide, for I found that rumors of a strange land were common among all the riverine tribes. You have heard, no doubt, of Curupuri?"

"Never."

"Curupuri is the spirit of the woods, something terrible, something malevolent, something to be avoided. None can describe its shape or nature, but it is a word of terror along the Amazon. Now all tribes agree as to the direction in which Curupuri lives. It was the same direction from which the American had come. Something terrible lay that way. It was my business to find out what it was."

Modern Payroll Check Plan Displacing Old Pay Envelope

Industry's New System Appeals to Employer and Employee.

BLIND MAN evolved the simplest payroll plan of which there is any record in the United States.

The late Charles "Broadway" Rouse, a picturesque New York character, for many years had a store on lower Broadway. He recruited his employees from the down-and-outers. Their daily wage was fixed at one dollar. Every evening Rouse stationed himself at the employees' exit with a bag of silver dollars. As each employee passed, Rouse dipped his hand into the bag and brought forth a shining "cartwheel."

For Rouse it was an ideal plan. However, changing conditions have brought a weighty freight of complications which are combining to supplant the cash pay-roll with a new system. The pay-roll check has come into being. The time-honored line filing tediously past the cashier's window on Saturday afternoon is about to pass into tradition, and the bank check is becoming familiar to thousands who previously had known only government currency.

When the Whistle Blows

A feature of the pay-by-check plan that has met with general favor among employees is the distribution of the pay checks to the men while they are at their various tasks. The Saturday noon whistle ends the week. The pay-roll line has gone. There is no quibbling over errors in amounts. The check speaks for itself. There are no lost pay envelopes, and a lost check means merely the issuance of a duplicate.

Nor is the paymaster sorry. A million and a half dollars stolen and 33 men killed by pay-roll bandits is the twelve months' toll that has had tremendous effect in introducing the check plan. Hold-up insurance can cover the loss of money, but there remains the hazard of life to which business men hesitate to expose their employees. Transportation of large sums of cash through the streets, over highways or on trains creates a lure to which all too many bandits are anxious to succumb. The lesson of prevention has been driven home to the business man, and the pay-roll bandit is finding leaner and leaner pickings.

Tims and Money Saved

Hundreds of large industries who have abandoned the cash system in favor of the check plan state that the community is equally interested with the employer and employee in pay-roll methods.

On the one hand the old practice of paying by cash makes possible extensive pay-roll robberies, jeopardizes lives of paymasters and messengers; imposes unnecessary burdens upon police departments; induces extravagance among hundreds of people; and is generally a net economic loss to the community.

On the other hand, paying by check prevents loss and crime; saves the cost of pay-roll insurance; releases police for normal duties; encourages thrift among employees and increases bank deposits; and makes more capital available for home building and community improvements.

These are the outstanding benefits as viewed after the plan has been put into operation. But sometimes employers are inclined to hesitate to pay by check out of fear of misunderstanding on the part of employees.

Employees' Viewpoint

Often a natural misgiving as to the reason for the change may influence the employee, say employers. We may be inclined to regard the check as necessitating an additional step in the collection of his pay. Necessity for cashing his check before he is able to spend any part of it may occur to him as a thoroughly practical objection.

In actual practice, however, employees using the check plan say that these difficulties almost invariably disappear when the employee finds himself leaving a portion of his check with the savings bank, and when he finds that getting a check cashed in a country where six billion checks are written annually is a simple undertaking.

Changed Attitude

Surveys by business organizations and large industries have shown that almost invariably, where employees feared to break away from the old pay-envelope system, they have very quickly become far more emphatic in support of the pay-by-check plan, and would oppose any attempt to pay them in cash.

These investigations have further determined that modern check protection methods, safeguarding checks against forgery or alteration, have definitely established this form of currency in the confidence of the employee and the public.

PERMISSIBLE NEGLIGENCE?

If you carelessly ran over a man with your automobile, it is probable that you would have to pay him damage for your carelessness.

In every walk of life a man is held responsible for his careless act if it causes injury to others, except in case of fire. An individual can carelessly burn up $100 of his own property and $100,000 of his neighbor's and nothing is said. The city may spend $1,000 or $10,000 of taxpayers' money to put out the fire.

Owners of tenement houses, hotels and rooming houses can maintain absolute fire traps with open stairways which act as flues for a fire in the building, thus cutting off the means of escape for occupants. Such buildings burn down daily and we calmly read of the persons killed in the fire "which originated from some unknown cause" and think no more of it. We pay not attention to the fact that the building and the construction of its stairways offered visible proof that if a fire started in the structure it meant almost sure death to some of the occupants.

Thousands of cities permit this class of construction and when persons are burned to death the criminal negligence of an owner and a city permitting the use of such a fire trap, nothing is said and no damages are collected.

The whole process of the law will be set in motion to collect $100 for a man who has had a finger broken in an automobile accident. But 15,000 persons can be burned to death annually in the United States, many through the criminal negligence of property owners in maintaining fire traps, and not a complaint is uttered.

STUDEBAKER

The New Standard Six
Brougham
$1465

F. O. B. FACTORY

If the body of this new Studebaker Brougham were built by an outside concern—as is the practice with most other automobile manufacturers—its price could never be $1465.

But Studebaker builds all of its own bodies in the most modern body plants in the world. Thus Studebaker saves the profits which other car builders must pay to body makers. This means highest quality at lower prices.

The new Studebaker Standard Six Brougham combines smart appearance with brilliant performance and sterling dependability—at a price no other manufacturer can even approach.

Come in and see this new car—then you'll understand why it is that Studebaker values cannot be equalled.

Four wide doors. Full width seats. Smart appearance with long, low lines, oval rear windows and ornamental top braces. Full-size balloon tires. Brilliant performance of famous 50 h. p. Studebaker engine.

From School Teacher To Great Eminence

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania studied diligently and qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save up enough money to put him through medical college. After the Civil War, he began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pennsylvania, and often rode horse-back through the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill. He was a student of nature, knew and could easily recognize most of the medical plants growing in the woods.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, where he launched his favorite remedies, and in a short time they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known blood medicine and tonic. More than fifty million bottles have been sold in the U. S. If your druggist does not sell the Golden Medical Discovery, in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial package of the tablets by sending 10c to the Dr. Pierce Clinic, in Buffalo, N. Y.

Cotton Letter

New York, May 14.—Stop loss orders were caught in Liverpool sharply breaking that market, which had a very depressing influence here. The weekly weather was not as favorable as many expected and a small rally took place but selling attributed to a prominent operator came in the ring and the locals quickly dumped their cotton.

The adoption of short time by some very prominent Carolina mills has had a very depressing effect and it is thought here that more curtailment is inevitable. There appeared to be nothing in the situation to prevent prices from seeking a lower level unless crop accounts change decidedly for the worse.

Stock Letter

New York, May 14.—The stock market opened active and strong with opening quotations particularly outstanding in Mack Truck and American Can. Oils were well bought inspired by the strength in Maryland oil, the directors of which company meet at 3 o'clock today and it is expected that the stock will be again put on a dividend basis. Steel common was early very strong and active, which fact was encouraging to those bullish on the market. Steel is, after all, a natural leader. Around noon various movements set in in the market but on the whole price changes were small and unimportant. Leather stocks were in active demand at present prices reflecting an improvement in the leather business. Here and there some profit taking appeared noticeably in Freeport, Texas, which sold down about 2-1/2 points from the recent high. Bears tried hard to unsettle the market through heavy selling of Baldwin locomotive which lost over 2 points which however was later practically recovered. Other low

There is no reason whatever why you shouldn't have plenty of hot water. A Lion Automatic Storage System doesn't cost as much as old-fashioned "wait-until-I-heat-some-water" methods, and it provides 20 gallons of ever ready hot water, day or night.

Not a thing to be done but draw hot water, without going near this self-operating heater. The heating flame lights itself when the water cools or is used, burns for a few moments, and heats all the water in the rustproof storage tank up to the desired temperature.

The Lion Automatic Storage System costs little to run for two good reasons: 1. It saves gas by turning out the heating flame the instant all the water in the tank is hot. 2. The insulated tank keeps the water hot for 18 hours without lighting the heating flame.

priced stocks which came in for a good deal of trading were Glidden, to which we have called attention lately, also Spicer Mfg. company and Wheeling and Lake Erie. Towards the close vigorous buying took place, particularly in food stocks and there was an upturn of quite a few points in certain issues such as Gen Baking, Calif. Packing and Austin Nichols. The market today showed less activity.

Grain

Chicago, May 14.—Wheat: Our market has been very erratic, but it is noticeable that there is a dwindling of outside interest, buying orders appearing only on declines. An Associated Press item says Russia negotiating for importation of wheat from Manchuria to avoid famine, and this being so, we can definitely count on Russia as out of export column for another year, it is also probable that India will have no important surplus, all of which necessitates a large crop of spring wheat in Canada and United States. It is altogether too early to determine what sort of spring wheat crop North America will produce, but it is pretty well established that frequent rains throughout period of growth will be necessary if a proper yield is to be secured. It seems to us that underlying conditions promise possibility of ultimately higher prices although it is admitted that there is no exciting motive at moment, we therefore counsel purchases on depressions for moderate profits.

Coarse grains: A quieting of speculative interest was the feature in corn and oats, this followed by some profit taking although there has been no news to indicate weakening in cash market. Planting of corn nearing completion, but it is claimed that crop is making no headway because of cool weather and need of rain. We believe these markets should be treated the same as wheat.

DREADFUL PAINS

Georgia Lady, Who Had Lost Too Much Weight, Was Advised to Take Cardui and Is Now Well.

Columbus, Ga.—Mrs. George S. Hunter, of this city, writes: "After I married, thirteen months ago, I suffered with dreadful pains in my sides during the day. My side hurt so bad it nearly killed me. I had to go to bed and stay sometimes two weeks at a time. I could not work and I just dragged around the house. "I got very thin—I went from 126 pounds down to less than 100. My mother had long been a user of Cardui and she knew what a good medicine it was for this trouble, so she told me to get some and take it. I sent to the store after it and before I had taken the first bottle I began to improve. "My side hurt less and I began to improve in health. The Cardui acted as a fine tonic and I do not feel like the same person. I am so much better. I am well now. I have gained ten pounds and am still gaining. My sides do not trouble me at all. "I wish every suffering woman knew about Cardui." NC-160
