HOME ECONOMICS CLASSES CONDUCT SPLENDID EXHIBIT

Courses in Home Economics One of the Most Popular Features of High School Curriculum; Great Interest Manifested

Thursday afternoon and evening Miss Millsap's high school classes in Home Economics conducted one of the most successful food and clothing exhibits in the history of the school.

The dresses on exhibit, many of which were worn by the girls who had made them, comprised all the newest fashions in spring and summer frocks English broad cloths, tub-ticks, voiles, linens, and crepes were the favored fabrics, the colors running the range of all the latest shades, from the many tinted pastels of the afternoon dresses to the gay stripes in green blue, orange and red of the sport frocks.

The clothing exhibited included was not only the dresses made for the students themselves, but also a number of small children's frocks and a large collection of dainty lingerie most of which were undertaken by students as outside projects in connection with their courses.

Attached to each piece of work on display was a card announcing the price of the materials used. The surprisingly low cost of many of the most attractive dresses was enough to convince anyone of the extremely practical value of training high school girls to make their own clothes.

The tables on which the food exhibits were arranged invited enthusiastic attention. There were luscious looking cakes of all sorts—fruit cakes, tea cakes, devils food cakes, cakes with golden icing, and cakes resplendent with nuts and cherries. There were also delectable pies—from lemon cream to chocolate and back again, as well as crisp doughnuts and cookies, flaky biscuits and delicious rolls.

Another interesting feature of the exhibit was a group of colorful posters made by the students in connection with their study of hygiene, and menu planning. The posters were as varied as the posters and bore witness to the value of this feature of the course.

This year the department of Home Economics has made unusual progress under the competent supervision of Miss Millsaps and much has been added to the courses in the way of new equipment as well as the study of house furnishing, budgeting, menu planning and personal hygiene not hitherto emphasized. The exhibits yesterday are evidence that the courses in Home Economics bid fair to being the most popular feature of the High School curriculum.

It was declined by the carpenters, and following a conference last night they voted to strike today.

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST CLOSSES IN CITY SCHOOLS

First Prizes High School and Evans St. School Won by Misses Alice Foley and Katherine Jones

The Music Memory Contest which has been conducted for the past 8 weeks in the Evans Street and High School has come to a close. A great deal of interest has been manifested and the results have been most gratifying. Boys and girls who have never liked classical music and knew very few standard compositions, can now not only recognize twenty-six of our best musical compositions when any parts of them are played but can also tell the names and nationalities of the composers. They like these pieces too. Some boys who have been whistling "Hard-Hearted Hannah" and "What Makes You Do Me Like You Do-Do-Do?" now whistle "Louvenit" and "Sextette from Lucia." This Music Memory Contest which the Woman's Club and school have promoted has probably done more toward creating a taste for good music among the boys and girls than anything else that has been done in our town. Miss Lusian Fulgham, who is supervisor grammar grades in North Carolina, says that she is gratified that the Greenville schools have instituted Music Memory Contest work.

The first prize of $7.50 offered in the High School was won by Alice Foley and the second prize $3.50 by Louise Dickinson.

In the sixth and seventh grades of the grammar school the first prize $7.50 was won by Katherine Jones, and second prize $3.50 by Frances Morton. These girls were given the same test as the High School pupils.

In the fourth and fifth grades the first prize $2.50 and $1.50 were won by Esther Respass and Margaret Tillett. In these grades the children were required to have fifteen records, their composers and where they were born.

In the first, second and third grades a list of fifteen records was given the children and they checked the numbers as the records were played. Dorothy Tillett won first prize $2.50 and Aratha Harris won the second, $1.50.

It was very hard for the judges to decide who should be the winners since there were so many papers almost perfect. Several had to be eliminated at the finals because they made minor mistakes, like omitting an apostrophe. Many of the boys and girls had splendid papers and deserve credit for the work they have done.

The prizes were offered by the Woman's Club, the school and the Kiwanis Club.

The Divorce Suit Against Duke Was Dismissed Today

New York, May 15.—Supreme Court Justice Geigerich today dismissed the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Lillian Nathan Duke against James B. Duke, tobacco magnate. She had raised the question of the finality of a decree granted to Mr. Duke after a trial in New Jersey 20 years ago. The Justice held that this decree must be recognized as final. Mrs. Duke contended in her action that the divorce obtained in the New Jersey court, 20 years ago, was invalid, because she and Mr. Duke were at that time residents of New York. Justice Geigerich held that whether or not the Duke's resided in New Jersey at the time of suit, the court acted fully within jurisdiction.

OFFICIALS PLAN RUM BLOCKADES AT MANY POINTS

Efficacy of Atlantic Rum Row Blockade Demonstrated; Planes Being Made Guard Gulf Mexico, Mississippi River, Canadian Border

New York, May 15.—The efficacy of the Atlantic Rum Row blockade demonstrated, Federal Prohibition Officials are laying plans to guard the Gulf of Mexico, the Mississippi River, and the Canadian border more carefully than ever before.

The weakest point in the great drive against liquor is admitted to be the Pacific Coast off Southern California, particularly as rum runners are doing a good business there. Two large steamers dropped anchor about forty miles from San Pedro yesterday, making give rum vessels in that vicinity. Whiskey is reported to be as cheap as $45 a case in Los Angeles, but prohibition officials are hopeful that they will stop the leak.

New York rum row conditions are dwindling. Coast Guard officials reported that twelve steamers unanchored yesterday, leaving only two schooners and two steamers on the row.

At Jackon, Mississippi, Edward Charles Yellowly, prohibition field agent, indicated that extensive plans were on foot for a rum blockade off Mississippi, in which 100 speed boats would be utilized. In Philadelphia forty policemen are to be suspended for assisting in the delivery of real beer for saloons, and a shake-up involving 400 policemen is threatened. The seizure of $10,000 worth of champagne, liquor, and candy filled with cordial, on the Belgium steamer, Mercier, at New York yesterday indicated that customs officers were closely watching the crews of Foreign ships to forestall any attempt on their part to defeat the blockade. No one claimed the beverages, and no arrests were made. About 100 agents are now on the Canadian border, seeking to prevent land running of rum in North Eastern and North Western border points. The Coast Guard of rum row are criticizing William H. Stayton, head of the association against prohibition amendments. He regards these activities as futile and a waste of money.

SHEPHERD'S TRIAL TO BEGIN MONDAY

Cameras, Typewriters and Telegraph Instruments to Be Barred From Court Room During Trial

Chicago, May 15.—Cameras, typewriters, and telegraph instruments will be barred from the court room during the trial of William D. Shepherd, charged with the murder of his foster son, William N. McClintock.

Typewriters and Telegraph apparatus, however, will be set up in an adjoining room, according to present plans. The first step in the actual preparation of the trial has been taken by Judge Thomas Lynch, who will preside. He has instructed the clerk to send out a call for a venire of 100 men to report Monday when the trial is set to start. Attorney for Shepherd said they thought the trial would be completed within three weeks after the jury is drawn, but the prosecution expressed opinion that it might take that long to pick a jury, and an additional period of the same length for the trial.

MEDICAL SOCIETY HOLDS INTERESTING MEET IN FARMVILLE

Superintendents of the Schools Honor Guest of Pitt County Medical Society

The Pitt County Medical Society held one of the most interesting and enthusiastic meetings of the year in Farmville last evening. Drs. Jones and Willis were hosts while the superintendents of the school of Pitt county were honor guests. The program was featured by a paper by Dr. C. J. Ellen, a report on the Medical convention in Pinehurst, by Dr. Paul Jones, a talk by Supt. R. G. Fitzgerald and a report on "The retardations and defectives," by Supt. Geo. Wheeler of the Farmville Schools. Twenty one members were in attendance.

Dr. Hemingway, of Bethel, vice-president, presided over the sessions. After many matters of vital importance to the society had been discussed and disposed of, Dr. C. J. Ellen, read an interesting and instructive paper on "Tonsils and their treatment." This was discussed by Drs. Pace and Smith. The discussions as well as the paper gave much valuable information on the subject of "tonsils" and showed just how much trouble they can cause, and the serious results which follow from neglecting same.

Dr. Paul Jones, in an interesting manner told briefly of the great success of the Dental Convention which was recently held in Pinehurst. He emphasized what he considered the most important events of the convention, telling of the inspiration and help which he received from attending the sessions. Dr. Jones told of the great progress which is being made in dental work throughout the state showing the improved health conditions resulting from same.

A talk by Supt. R. G. Fitzgerald on "Pot-Powri," was ably and masterfully discussed by Dr. C. O'H. Laughinghouse. Mr. Fitzgerald is an interesting speaker and his talk and the discussion of same were enjoyed by everybody present.

Supt. George Wheeler, one of the county's most able educators, gave a splendid report on "The Retardations and Defectives." He told of how defect had been corrected in children and of the great values derived from same. Many children have been benefited and made into strong and healthy children. The children of today will be the men of tomorrow, and by correcting defects in children, they will be prepared for the future. Supt. Wheeler showed how defect retard the progress of a child. His talk was instructive and most helpful. His talk was discussed by Supts. Rose, Sawyer and Page.

On account of the meeting being such a decided success it was decided that at the July meeting; the Medical Society would again have as honor guests, the superintendents and also the county commissioners.

A rising vote of thanks was given to the hosts, Drs. Jones and Willis, for the tempting fried chicken dinner, which was thoroughly enjoyed by everybody.

The June meeting will be held at the Rotary Club with Drs. Joe Dixon and Joe Smith, hosts.

SYNOPSIS

Malone, a young London newspaper reporter, rejected by the girl he loves because he has no great deeds to his credit, appeals to his editor for a dangerous assignment, and is sent to interview Professor Challenger, a scientist, who has recently returned from a solitary expedition to South America with an amazing story, which no one believes, of the existence there on a great plateau of many forms of prehistoric life. Angered, Challenger has since refused to talk. By a ruse Malone obtains an audience, but is unceremoniously ejected when Challenger discovers he is a reporter. But because Malone refuses to press a charge against him, Challenger is sufficiently mollified to order him into the house again. After extracting from the reporter a promise of secrecy Challenger shows him two drawings from a tattered sketch book which was among the possessions of an explorer, Maple White, whom he had found dead of starvation. One showed a line of cliffs, apparently the edge of a plateau, and an isolated pyramidal rock, crowned by a tall tree. The other was of a monstrous animal, resembling, so Challenger declares, the supposedly prehistoric stegosaurus. Challenger decided, he says, to explore the river country in the direction from which the artist was supposed to have come.

CHAPTER IV (Continued)

"What did you do?" My hippancy was all gone. This massive man compelled one's attention and respect.

"I overcame the extreme reluctance of the natives—a reluctance which extends even to talk upon the subject—and by judicious persuasion and gifts, aided, I will admit, by some threats of coercion, I got two of them to act as guides. After many adventures which I need not describe, and after traveling a distance which I will not mention, in a direction which I withhold, we came at last to a tract of country which has never been described, nor, indeed, visited save by my unfortunate predecessor. Would you kindly look at this?"

He handed me a photograph—half-plate size.

"The unsatisfactory appearance of it is due to the fact," said he, "that on descending the river the boat was upset and the case which contained the undeveloped films was broken with disastrous results. Nearly all of them were totally ruined—an irreparable loss. This is one of the few which partially escaped. This explanation of deficiencies or abnormalities you will kindly accept. There was talk of faking. I am not in a mood to argue such a point."

The photograph was certainly very off-colored. An unkind critic might easily have misinterpreted that dim surface. It was a dull gray landscape, and as I gradually deciphered the details of it I realized that it represented a long and enormously high line of cliffs exactly like an immense cataract seen in the distance, with a sloping, tree-clad plain in the foreground.

"I believe it is the same place as the painted picture," said I.

"It is the same place," the Professor answered. "I found traces of the fellow's camp. Now look at this."

It was a nearer view of the same scene, though the photograph was extremely defective. I could distinctly see the isolated, tree-crowned pinnacle of rock which was detached from the crag.

"I have no doubt of it at all," said I.

"Well, that is something gained," said he. "We progress, do we not? Now will you please look at the top of that rocky pinnacle? Do you observe something there?"

"An enormous tree,"

"But on the tree?"

"A large bird," said I.

He handed me a lens.

"Yes," I said, peering through it, "a large bird stands on the tree. It appears to have a considerable beak. I should say it was a pelican."

"I cannot congratulate you upon your eyesight," said the Professor. "It is not a pelican, nor, indeed, is it a bird. It may interest you to know that I succeeded in shooting that particular specimen. It was the only absolute proof of my experiences which I was able to bring away with me."

"You have it, then?" Here at last was tangible corroboration.

"I had it. It was unfortunately lost with so much else in the same boat accident which ruined my photographs. I clutched at it as it disappeared in the swirl of the rapids, and part of its wing was left in my hand. I was insensible when washed ashore, but the miserable remnant of my superb specimen was still intact; I now lay it before you."

From a drawer he produced

what seemed to me to be the upper portion of the wing of a large bat. It was at least two feet in length, a curved bone, with a membranous veil beneath it.

"A monstrous bat!" I suggested.

"Nothing of the sort," said the Professor, severely. "Living, as I do, in an educated and scientific atmosphere, I could not have conceived that the first principles of zoology were so little known. Is it possible that you do not know the elementary fact in comparative anatomy, that the wing of a bird is really the forearm, while the wing of a bat consists of three elongated fingers with membranes between? Now, in this case, the bone is certainly not the forearm, and you can see for yourself that this is a single membrane hanging upon a single bone, and therefore that it cannot belong to a bat. But if it is neither bird nor bat, what is it?"

My small stock of knowledge was exhausted.

"I really do not know," said I.

He opened the standard work to which he had already referred me.

"Here," said he, pointing to the picture of an extraordinary flying monster, "is an excellent reproduction of the dimorphodon, or pterodactyl, a flying reptile of the Jurassic period. On the next page is a diagram of the mechanism of its wing. Kindly compare it with the specimen in your hand."

A wave of amazement passed over me as I looked. I was convinced. There could be no getting away from it. The cumulative proof was overwhelming. The sketch, the photographs, the narrative, and now the actual specimen—the evidence was complete. I said so—I said so warmly, for I felt that the Professor was an illustrious man. He leaned back in his chair with drooping eyelids and a tolerant smile, basking in this sudden gleam of sunshine.

"It's just the very biggest thing that I ever heard of," said I, though it was my journalistic rather than my scientific enthusiasm that was roused. "It is colossal. You are a Columbus of science who has discovered a lost world. I'm awfully sorry if I seemed to doubt you. It was all so unthinkable. But I understand evidence when I see it, and this should be good enough for anyone."

The Professor purred with satisfaction.

"And then, sir, what did you do next?"

"It was the wet season, Mr. Malone, and my stores were exhausted. I explored some portion of this huge cliff, but I was unable to find any way to scale it. The pyramidal rock upon which I saw and shot the pterodactyl was more accessible. Being something of a cragsman, I did manage to get half way to the top of that. From that height I had a better idea of the plateau upon the top of the crag. It appeared to be very large; neither to east nor to west could I see any end to the vista of green-capped cliffs. Below, it is a swampy, jungly region, full of snakes, insects, and fever. It is a natural protection to this singular country."

"Did you see any other trace of life?"

"No, sir, I did not; but during the week that we lay encamped at the base of the cliff we heard some very strange noises from above."

"But the creature that the American drew! How do you account for that?"

"We can only suppose that he must have made his way to the summit and seen it there. We know, therefore, that there is a way up. We know equally that it must be a very difficult one, otherwise the creatures would have come down and overrun the surrounding country. Surely that is clear?"

"But how did they come to be there?"

"I do not think that the problem is a very obscure one," said the Professor, "there can only be one explanation. South America is, as you may have heard, a granite continent. At this angle point in the interior there has been, in some far distant age, a great, sudden volcanic upheaval. These cliffs, I may remark, are basaltic, and therefore plutonic. An area, as large perhaps as Sussex, has been lifted up on bloc with all its living contents, and cut off by perpendicular precipices of a hardness which defies erosion from all the rest of the continent. What is the result? Why, the ordinary laws of Nature are suspended. The various checks which influence the struggle for existence in the world at large are all neutralized or altered. Creatures survive which would otherwise disappear. You will observe that both the pterodactyl and the stegosaurus are Jurassic, and therefore of a great age in the order of life. They have been artificially conserved by those strange accidental conditions."

FORTUNE SMILES ON ARTIST WHO TROD HUMBLE PATH

London.—One of London's numerous sidewalk artists, who draw and paint in the streets to attract pennies from the pockets of pedestrians has risen to fame and had his works exhibited at the Redfern Gallery, in Old Bond Street.

He is B. Birell, a miner, who saw service in France. After the war, being out of employment he took up the occupation of daily drawings on the pavement, and sat with upturned hat to catch small coins. His skill eventually was recognized by artists who had fared better in life, and recently he was invited to exhibit a number of his drawings.

Finance Minister Caillaux has expressed the view that the inter-allied debt problem must be solved to re-establish French credit, and he told the Finance Commission of the Chamber of Deputies on his recent appearance before it that part of the Dawes Reparation plans received must be devoted to the purpose immediately even though France were hard pressed for money.

M. Briand, as Foreign Minister, is known to have been considering the debt question as a part of his foreign policy, and although his views have not been revealed, it was said recently in authoritative quarters that the negotiations for settlements of the debt to the United States would be resumed during the present months.

The American Government has made it clear that the negotiations, when they take place, will be in the hands of its debt funding commission, and it is felt that the diplomatic exchanges in the matter must be made in Washington, rather than in Paris.

LOCAL COMMANDERY CONFERS DEGREE AT GASTONIA MEETING

Ferguson, W. Z. Morton and Frank Wilson.

Miss Emma Mallison, Mrs. Earl V. Carter, Mrs. R. A. Tyson, Jr., Messrs. Will Lipscomb and R. F. Pittman composed the choir which assisted the Commandery in conferring its degree work and was without a doubt one of the outstanding features of the event. They received praises which are seldom accorded a choir and every body lauded their efforts.

KING GEORGE DECIDES AGAINST ANY MORE ROYAL RESIDENCES

London.—Disregarding ancient precedent set down by Roman emperors, King George recently declined to accept a legacy of Gwyrch Sastle in Wales and $250,000 for its upkeep, bequeathed to him in trust by the Countess of Dundonald who died last year leaving an estate valued at more than $1,000,000. Hope was expressed in the countess' will that the castle would become a permanent residence for the kings of England and for the princes of Wales, but as the bequest has been disclaimed by the ruler the property will pass according to directions, to Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England.

The castle will be used by the order as a priory for residential and administrative purposes.

In connection with King George's refusal to receive the legacy it is recalled here that the Roman emperors, from Augustus on down the line vastly increased their private estates as was the custom, by means of legacies from their loyal subjects.

SWEDEN DRAWS LESSONS FROM AMERICAN ROADS

Stockholm.—American road building experience, technique and machinery will be used in re-building and perfecting Sweden's national highway system in order to serve the country's ever growing automobile traffic. This has been announced here in connection with the opening next June of a special laboratory for the testing and selection of new paving materials. The engineer in charge, Ragnar R. Schlyter, has personally made a study tour through the United States.

Sweden spends 72 percent of the income from automobile taxes for the re-construction, widening or repaving of roads, 10 percent for new road building machinery, four percent for new bridges, two percent on new surface materials and two percent on research work. American methods of drainage have already been adopted in the southern part of the country and, allowing for differences in climate, the American style of surfaces probably will be followed. The scientists in charge have found that of all countries, the United States is the most advanced in the matter of making automobile roads.

TAX COLLECTOR RESIGNS RATHER THAN GRIND POOR

Southampton, England.—The most talked of man in Southampton is A. G. Parry, tax collector of the South Stoneham Union, who resigned his job because of his conscience which, he said, would not permit him further to collect the high taxes which he felt were causing distress among people of the district. Mr. Parry

Kin of Notables to Wed

Miss Gratia Houghton, niece of Alanson B. Houghton, United States Ambassador to London, will marry Gillespie Rinehart, son of Dr. Stanley Rinehart and Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, famous novelist. This photo was taken in Washington, D. C., just after the announcement was made. Miss Houghton, who is an excellent horsewoman and tennis player, has been presented at court in London, and presented to Berlin and American society. Mr. Rinehart is following in his mother's footsteps as an author.

WILLIAM BOWS AFFABLY TO CHILDREN OF DOORN

Amsterdam.—A picture of William Hohenzollern, one time German emperor, dressing in the latest fashion and seeking to win the good-will of the children of Doorn, is given by a Dutch journalist, Barteld H. Ibelings, who recently visited Doorn castle.

Another pastime of the former emperor is collecting photographs of the Prince of Wales, and he is also fond of cutting and pasting up pictures of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland. He dresses most carefully, says Sir, the top, and his suit are always of the latest cut. At the court which William continues to hold, the same stiff ceremonial as obtained in Berlin days is observed.

One of the former emperor's chief ambitions is to become popular with the people, and especially the young folk of Doorn. He therefore often goes out personally to help and address the townfolk in their native Dutch dialect. He even deigns now to tip his hat pleasantly in greet, whereas formerly he had everybody bowing to him.

HORSES WEAR SNOW SHOES TO CROSS ROCKY MOUNTAINS

Missoula, Mont.—Weather conditions in some parts of northern Montana, particularly in the mountain sections, make it necessary at times to resort to rather unusual efforts to circumvent nature's handicaps.

An instance is the reported plan of G. S. Hinkle, superintendent of construction work on the Lola pass road project, on the border between Montana and Idaho where the highway crosses the Rocky Mountains.

With snow still two and a half feet deep and the beginning of the season's construction operations planned, Mr. Hinkle decided to send 30 horses over the mountains on snowshoes.

Boards about a foot square are fastened to the feet of the horses. These, Mr. Hinkle says, will be sufficient to support the animal's weight, and it is said they quickly learn to handle the unaccustomed footwear.

Fred Morrell, district forester for the northwestern area of Montana, says his men occasionally find it necessary to resort to the same expedient in crossing the summit of the range.

PRESERVE THIS RELIC

After a quarter of a century of service the old fire bell is resting in the trash pile behind the city hall where it was placed a few days ago by workmen who are repairing the building. Just what is to become of this old relic no one seems to be able to say but it played a prominent part in the life of Greenville and now that it is obsolete it should not find its way to the scrap heap.

Nearly thirty years ago, when Greenville was but a village and the Hope Fire Company was in its infancy, members of the fire company realized that the town should have adequate means of informing the citizens when their property or that of their neighbors was in danger of being consumed by flames, so the late Captain A. J. Griffin, at that time head of the fire company set out to secure such an alarm.

Through his efforts the rim of a locomotive drive wheel was secured from the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad in Rocky Mount and brought to Greenville to be converted into a fire alarm.

For years the gong hung in the tower of the old fire house on East Fourth Street and beside it swung a sledge hammer to which was attached a rope by means of which the alarm could be sounded. In 1909 when the present city hall was constructed and the fire company moved to its quarters there the gong was placed in the tower above the building. There it continued its service until years later when more modern devices of alarm usurped the duties that it had so faithfully performed. Since that time the old gong has continued to hang in the city hall tower, but now that the building is being repaired and the gong has been removed no one knows what is to become of it.

Could this gong express in words the history of its career it would relate how in the still hours of the dark it had called the populace from its slumbers to save the city and how its notes of warning had in many instances averted great catastrophes.

This old fire gong has played a great part in the history of Greenville's present fire company and is no doubt very dear to every one of its present members. The City Fathers should present the gong to the fire company in order that it may be made into a suitable memorial or if the fire company does not desire the city or one of its civic organizations might do well to see to the fact that the old gong does not find its way to the junk heap.

Good bakings are becoming a matter of fact in this country. Years ago, the woman who had success on bake day was rare. Now, most anyone can be proud of their bakings—the young bride, the school-girl and all.

Calumet Baking Powder has made all this possible, it is sitting on the pantry shelf in millions of homes, that's the secret of baking success—the real reason for uniform and wholesome food.

If you are among the few who are not familiar with the results obtained from using Calumet, try it—learn the difference between the results that come from using a perfect leavener and those that are experienced when using unreliable brands.

To follow the directions on the Calumet label is to invite success. You must not use as much as you do of many other kinds. You know Calumet has greater leavening strength than many other brands—it goes farther—makes more bakings—the last spoonful is as good as the first.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.
