WHITE'S THEATRE TO OPERATE UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

New Company Takes Over Leases of White's and Colonial Theatres; New Policy Announced

Of interest to all theatre goers and music lovers of Greenville and the surrounding section is the announcement of the change in management of the Greenville theatre Messrs. H. J. Paradis and Jack Marcus closed the deal for the leases about thirty days ago and take actual charge of the operation of the theatres Monday July 6.

Messrs. Paradis and Marcus have theatre interests in several cities of North Carolina including Wilson, Kinston, Dunn, LaGrange besides options on additional properties and plans for enlargement of their circuit in the near future. The addition of Greenville to their chain insures the local patrons the very best presentation of programs selected from the pick of the producing field with each feature surrounded by selected comedies and short subjects.

The management announces their new summer policy and prices as follows: Each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, a special program with orchestra prologue and several novelties. On these days the prices will be optional with the management but the public may rest assured that the prices will be in reach of all and Saturday a program of unusual merit with selected features, comedy, news, etc. will be offered and the prices will be 10 cents for the children and 25 cents for adults to any seat in the theatre. It is the desire and intention of the management to make of White's the leading theatre in the Carolinas setting the standard for this part of the state. An orchestra will be a permanent feature on the extra feature days and overtures of popular medleys together with solos and duets will be greatly enjoyed.

The theatre is now undergoing a few changes putting on its summer wear to add to the comfort of its patrons. Mr. Marcus stated that the management wants each patron to feel that the theatre is his or hers and any criticisms or suggestions for the betterment and advancement of the theatre and the community will be appreciated.

After going over the entire field for an appropriate feature for the formal opening next Monday and Tuesday the management has selected Gloria Swanson's latest and greatest production "Madame Sans Gene" a super special in eleven reels. Gloria is more beautiful and more popular in this French comedy classic than ever before. For an added diversion an "Our Gang" comedy "Fast Company" featuring this great bunch of kids together with the latest Pathe News bringing the world before your eyes completes the picture program for the opening. White's Theatre Orchestra will cue the picture with appropriate music and popular medleys and solos are on Monday and Tuesday's program. The new management will operate a matinee each afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and the night shows will begin at 7:30 and 9:30. On Saturdays there will be a continuous performance from 2 p. m. until 11 p. m.

Such pictures as the "Ten Commandments" and "Hunchback of Notre Dame" are booked for a return engagement here at popular prices while among the new bookings are "Thief of Bagdad," "America," "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" together with the other best features of "Paramount," First National, Warner Brothers and Universal.

Mr. Marcus stated that the patronage would indicate the public's endorsement of his policies and program and invites any suggestions and criticisms.

ELATED OVER WILLS VICTORY NEGROES ATTACK 6 WHITES

Thinking They Can Accomplish the Same Feat They Proceed to Pick Their Man; Police Stop Disorders

New York, July 3.—Elated over the knock out victory of Harry Wills, negro heavy weight challenger over Charley Weinert, two groups of negroes early today beat up half a dozen whites, knocking two through a plate glass window, and one into unconsciousness. Speedy arrival of police prevented further disorders. All the negroes escaped.

Three men and a young woman were talking in front of a West 52 Street house when several negroes passed, discussing, police said, the case with which Wills stored the knockout.

"There is a white man about Weinert's size," one negro shouted, pointing to John Garsney.

Garsney was knocked senseless through a store front, his friend, Michael Earl, following. Both were severely cut and bruised. The woman and her escort were not molested before police arrived.

In the second fracas on 53 street, all participants escaped.

HOW ENGLAND'S BLIND MEN DID THEIR BIT FOR LONDON

London.—Interesting details as to how blind men were called in at one phase of the great war to assist in the defense of London were made public recently in connection with a campaign carried out by the combined forces of the air, army and navy to stimulate recruiting for reserves for the defense of the English metropolis in the event of another emergency. One of the inventions on display in various parts of the city was a sound locator, a very complicated instrument, and one of the most interesting of the many anti-air craft devices showed to Londoners.

"Sadder still," remarked Leslie E. Edmonds, state bonus director, "those veterans, who probably need the money, will not be able to get a cent of it after June 30. The state legislature has extended the time once, but will not do so again."

SAYS MISSION TO BE SENT WASHINGTON SETTLE FRENCH DEBT

French Cabinet Formally Acknowledges Debt; Announcement Awaited From Paris Government

Washington, July 3.—Word from Paris that a mission will be sent to Washington, probably by September, to settle France's debt to the United States is received with interest here, while officials of the American Debt Commission are awaiting some formal announcement by the Paris government.

Ambassador Daeschner called on Secretary Mellon yesterday and confirmed press reports that the French Cabinet had formally acknowledged the debt, but his announcement was informal in as much as he has not been directed by his government to begin funding negotiations.

In New British memorandums to France concerning the allied debtors, now under consideration at Paris, is being discussed in diplomatic circles here as well. In that connection suggestion has been made that any solution for debt settlement should be passed on a minimum annual payment plan instead of fixed annual remittances, the form now enabling debtor nations to increase debt payments when warranted by revenues from their reparation accounts.

TRIAL OF SCOPES MAY NOT BE HELD IN DAYTON, OHIO

The Lawyers Have Declined to Reveal Any Strategy They May Have Decided Upon

New York, July 3.—While Dayton, Tenn., is making preparations to handle crowds at the forthcoming trial of John T. Scopes for teaching evolution, there is a possibility that the trial will not be in Dayton at all.

Counsel for the defense at a conference in New York, are reported to have agreed to seek indefinite postponement of the Dayton trial in the state court, and seek in the Federal Court in Knoxville, an injunction against enforcement of the law.

Instead of marshalling an array of legal, scientific and theological talent at the contemplated trial in Dayton, a week from today, defense counsel, this report says, will seek to prove in the Federal Court that the law is unconstitutional. Reports of the sudden change of plans arose after a secret conference of John R. Neal, Chief Defense counsel and Associates, Bainbridge, Colby, Clarence Darrow, Dudley F. Malone and Arthur G. Hayes. Mr. Darrow and Judge Neal started home after yesterday's meeting in Mr. Colby's office.

The lawyers declined to reveal any strategy they may have decided upon.

Chicago, July 3.—Definite announcement was made here by Clarence Darrow that the Scopes Evolution trial set for hearing at Dayton, Tenn., would be taken into the Federal Court by counsel for the defense.

Mr. Darrow said this was decided definitely in a conference held in New York between himself, Dudley Field Malone, Dr. John R. Neal, and Bainbridge Colby, all of the defense staff.

Dr. Neal has left for Tennessee with the necessary data and the application for a Federal injunction to prevent the state authorities from proceeding with the case, and it will be made either on Monday or Tuesday.

The injunction will take the form of a restraining order on the ground that it violates the Federal Constitution.

Chicago, July 3.—Two complaints will be filed in some Federal court to be determined upon by Dr. Neal, said Mr. Darrow. One will be filed by Scopes and another by a property holder, as yet not determined upon. The complaint in effect the application for injunction to restrain in the State Court from proceeding with the trial of Scopes at Dayton, Tenn., on July 10.

Two major considerations are involved in the proposed step.

To obtain a short cut to a determination of the constitutionality of the motion to remove the sensational element from the case. Also it is desired to bring home to the people the really serious aspect it has assumed.

"This is an increasingly serious matter," said Mr. Darrow upon his arrival from New York.

Waited 30 Years for Victory.

St. Andrews, Scotland.—Members of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club are particularly pleased that Robert Harris, a representative of the club, won the amateur championship this year.

He is the first member representing the club to win the amateur cup in 80 years or since it was won by Leslie B. Melville in 1895.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE EARNS GOOD PROFIT FOR NEW YORK CITY

New York.—Brooklyn bridge is a shrewd landlord. It is to advance value of business property is shown by the announcement that it will increase its rents some 25 per cent as present leases expire. Commissioner Mills of the Department of Plant and Structures, as its fiscal agent, started the boom recently when he raised the first two tenants from $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

Brooklyn bridge as a business building has been more or less a novelty for all its 40 years. This, the oldest of the four East River plans, has been more commonly regarded in the public mind as a great transportation situation, content to bear upon its patient back the daily thousands, riding and afoot, who come and go between Manhattan and Brooklyn.

Yet the same causeway to which the city is so proud, is also a roof to a considerable business population. Chief Engineer Edward A. Byrne says it shelters 31 business houses within its lofty arches; 44 on the Manhattan side, and seven in Brooklyn. Six of the firms have been tenants for more than a quarter century. Collectively, they contribute to an annual rent roll amounting to $72,019.27.

The "twenty-five year" club includes The New York World, the New York Evening Journal, each maintaining departments in the bridge structure, and the "Brooklyn Freezer." This concern, the Brooklyn Bridge Cold Storage & Freezing Co., is one of the sizeable cold storage and packing adjuncts of Fulton Fish Market. Later tenants number firms active in the adjoining leather "swamp."

The bridge is a good money-maker in other directions as well. Its surface cars, charging a nickel a round trip, and elevated cars charging a dime, together produce a gross income for the city of almost $140,000. Seven stands where passing crowds regale themselves with fruit, candy and soft drinks pay about $80,000 for concessions. Other sources of income bring the total yearly receipts from the bridge to $307,632.45. This is behind all velvet, because the bridge was built primarily as a transportation link.

Gloria Swanson and Charles de Roche in a scene from the Paramount Picture "Madame Sans Gene"

Special orchestra music will accompany this special program and that this will be a permanent feature of the special programs at this popular playhouse. When you think about it only two theatres in this two Carolinas have theatre orchestras. In addition to the above super feature added short subjects include "An Our Gang Comedy you know how funny these kids are and this is one of their best "Fast Company" and it's a near riot for laughs. The latest Pathe News Reel completes the program. Prices are announced in the ad and remember the policy "best pictures at least admissions" note Gloria Swanson in "Madame Sans Gene, opened some four weeks ago in New York city and the prices were $5 top.

It's here at last! "Madame Sans Gene," Gloria Swanson's newest Paramount picture, which opens Monday at the White's Theatre. "Madame Sans Gene," produced in Paris by Leonce Perret with the cooperation of the Fine Arts Ministry of the French government, was adapted for the screen by Forrest Halaby, who wrote the screen play, "The Humming Bird," etc., from the French comedy stage classic by Victorien Sardou and Emile Moreau. Gloria's role is that of Catherine Hubcher, who manages a laundry shop in a little back street of Paris. It is through the independent manner in which she treats her customers that she wins for herself the nickname Madame Sans Gene (Madame Devil May Care).

One of her customers is none other than Napoleon, at this time "the Little Corporal." The time is the early days of the French Revolution. One day Count de Neipperg, a young Austrian officer fighting on the Royalist side, rushes into Catherine's shop, beginning a few moments' shelter. He has been wounded and is pursued by a crazy mob of patriots. Catherine hides him, and later, with the help of Sergeant Lefebvre, whom Catherine has promised to marry, the Count successfully makes his escape. In the course of this Catherine and Lefebvre are married.

Napoleon Becomes Emperor. The passing years work great changes in France. Napoleon makes himself Emperor; and Lefebvre, having proved his courage and daring on the battlefields, is now a Marshal of France. His manners have taken polish rapidly and he finds little difficulty in adapting himself to the new environment.

But poor Sans Gene does not fare so well. She is ill at ease in the atmosphere of royalty; the dignity of her position—she is now the Dutchess of Danzig—proves irksome, and she is constantly making some terrible break. All in all, her behavior for a duchess is truly deplorable. As a result she incurs the displeasure of the court in general and of the emperor's sisters in particular. Word of her unbecoming conduct finally reaches Napoleon, who summons her to appear before him.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

Tomorrow is the Fourth, holiday of holidays, the 149th Anniversary of our Declaration of Independence. It will be a day of shout and play, of the pell-mell rush of restless energy, a day dedicated to joy and celebration.

It is well. We have a right to make merry on Independence Day. We have a right to cheer and to bombard the clouds with bomb and rocket. For it is the birth of a great nation we acclaim, its lengthening honorable life and the rosy prospects for its future.

It is not a day for soberness, though it will be well, indeed, if we bear in mind why it is we shout and what it is we herald. It is fitting, too, that we keep in thought the honor and that is due the brave whose blood and courage made possible this day of days, this national natal day.

Independence day gave us liberty, a chance to live our national life in our own way, freed from the dictates of any distant power. I did not give us license, and as we celebrate with consideration for the rights of our neighbors we are reminded that while we may have liberty in our joy there can be no license. License encroaches upon liberty, nullifies it.

Independence day gave us a charter of individual manhood. The founding fathers might have set up a government that was administered from the top down. They chose to establish a government that was administered from the bottom up. They chose to agree that every man should have a voice, and that one man's voice should be equal with that of every other.

Independence day gave us opportunity, opportunity to live our individual lives as we would live them, opportunity to enter any field of endeavor, opportunity to develop, to grow better as well as stronger, and—above all—opportunity to serve, cheerfully and willingly, our fellowmen in the up-building of a great democracy.

The priceless heritage of our freedom is still inviolate. Our people have met every challenge from without and have repeatedly demonstrated their capacity to withstand every insidious assault from within. So great has been our security, so conscious our realization of power, that the only apparent menace on the horizon of today is that we may rest too easily, remain too much self-assured in the face of those influences which would honeycomb our institutions. Even as we celebrate our liberty, our individual responsibility and our opportunity, we must remember that vigilance is the price of security.

G. C. Buck, the beginning, containing 26.2 acres, more or less, and being lot No. 2, as shown on plot or map of the E. R. Buck division as made by H. L. Rivers, C. E. in December 1921.

This sale is made by reason of failure of Mary E. Buck, John L. Buck and wife Minnie May Buck, to pay off and discharge the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust to the North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank of Durham.

After breakfast we unpacked the bundle in which our leader had brought his climbing accessories. From it he took a coil of the strongest and lightest rope, a hundred and fifty feet in length, with climbing irons, clamps, and other devices. Lord John was an experienced mountaineer, and Summerlee had done some rough climbing at various times, so that I was really the novice at rock-work of the party; but my strength and activity may have made up for my want of experience.

It was not in reality a very stiff task, though there were moments which made my hair bristle upon my head. The first half was perfectly easy, but from there upwards it became continually steeper until, for the last fifty feet, we were literally clinging with our fingers and toes to tiny ledges and crevices in the rock. I could not have accomplished it, nor could Summerlee, if Challenger had not gained the summit (it was extraordinary to see such activity in so unwieldy a creature) and there fixed the rope round the trunk of the considerable tree which grew there. With this as our support, we were soon able to scramble up the jagged wall until we found ourselves upon the small grassy platform, some twenty-five feet each way, which formed the summit.

The first impression which I received when I had recovered my breath was of the extraordinary view over the country which we had traversed. The whole Brazilian plain seemed to lie beneath us, extending away and away until it ended in dim blue mists upon the farthest skyline. In the foreground was the long slope, strewn with rocks and dotted with tree-ferns; farther off in the middle distance, looking over the saddle-back hill, I could just see the yellow and green mass of bamboos through which we had passed; and then, gradually, the vegetation increased until it formed the huge forest which extended as far as the eyes could reach, and for a good two thousand miles beyond.

I was still drinking in this wonderful panorama when the heavy hand of the Professor fell upon my shoulder.

"This way, my young friend," said he; "vestigia nulla retrorsum. Never look rearwards, but always to our glorious goal."

The level of the plateau, when I turned, was exactly that on which we stood, and the green bank of bushes, with occasional trees, was so near that it was difficult to realize how inaccessible it remained. At a rough guess the gulf was forty feet across, but, so far as I could see, it might as well have been forty miles. I placed one arm round the trunk of the tree and leaned over the abyss. Far down were the small dark figures of our servants, looking up at us. The wall was absolutely precipitous, as was that which faced me.

"This is indeed curious," said the creaking voice of Professor Summerlee.

I set to work in earnest upon the trunk, taking turn and turn with Sir John.

I turned, and found that he was examining with great interest the tree to which I clung. That smooth bark and those small, ribbed leaves seemed familiar to my eyes. "Why," I cried, "it's a beech!"

"Exactly," said Summerlee. "A fellow-countryman in a far land." "Not only a fellow-countryman, my good sir," said Challenger, "but also, if I may be allowed to enlarge your simile, an ally of the first value. This beech tree will be our saviour."

"By George!" cried Lord John. "A bridge!" "Exactly, my friends, a bridge! It is not for nothing that I expended an hour last night in focusing my mind upon the situation. I have some recollection of once remarking to our young friend here that G. E. C. is at his best when his back is to the wall. Last night you will admit that all our backs were to the wall. But where will power and intellect go together, there is always a way out. A drawbridge had to be found which could be dropped across the abyss. Behold it!"

It was certainly a brilliant idea. The tree was a good sixty feet in height, and if it only fell the right way it would easily cross the chasm. Challenger had swung the camp axe over his shoulder when he ascended. Now he handed it to me.

"Our young friend has the thews and sinews," said he. "I think he will be the most useful at this task. I must beg, however, that you will kindly refrain from thinking for yourself, and that you will do exactly what you are told."

Under his direction I cut such gashes in the side of the tree as would insure that it should fall as we desired. It had already a strong, natural tilt in the direction of the plateau, so that the matter was not difficult. Finally I set to work in earnest upon the trunk, taking turn and turn with Sir John. In a little over an hour there was a loud crack, the tree swayed forward, and then crashed over, burying its branches among the bushes on the farther side. The severed trunk rolled to the very edge of our platform, and for one terrible second we all thought it was over. It balanced itself, however, a few inches from the edge, and there was our bridge to the unknown.

All of us, without a word, shook hands with Professor Challenger, who raised his straw hat and bowed deeply to each in turn. "I claim the honor," said he, "to be the first to cross to the unknown land—a fitting subject, no doubt, for some future historical painting."

He had approached the bridge when Lord John laid his hand upon his coat.

"My dear chap," said he, "I really cannot allow it."

"Cannot allow it, sir!" The head went back and the beard forward.

"When it is a matter of science, don't you know, I follow your lead because you are by way of being a man of science. But it's up to you to follow me when you come into my department."

"Your department, sir?" "We all have our professions, and soldiering is mine. We are, according to my ideas, invad'ing a new country, which may or may not be chockfull of enemies of sorts. To barge blindly into it for want of a little common sense and patience isn't my notion of management."

The remonstrance was too reasonable to be disregarded. Challenger tossed his head and shrugged his heavy shoulders. "Well, sir, what do you propose?"

"For all I know there may be a tribe of cannibals waitin' for lunch time among those very bushes," said Lord John, looking across the bridge. "It's better to learn wisdom before you get into a cookin'-pot; so we will content ourselves with hopin' that there is no trouble waitin' for us, and at the same time we will act as if there were. Malone and I will go down again, therefore, and we will fetch up the four rifles, together with Gomez and the other. One man can then go across and the rest will cover him with guns, until he sees that it is safe for the whole crowd to come along."

Challenger sat down upon the cut stump and groaned his impatience; but Summerlee and I were of one mind that Lord John was our leader when such practical details were in question. The climb was a more simple thing now that the rope dangled down the face of the worst part of the ascent. Within an hour we had brought up the rifles and a shot-gun. The half-breeds had ascended also, and under Lord John's orders they had carried up a bale of provisions in case our first exploration should be a long one. We had each bandoliers of cartridges.

"Now, Challenger, if you really insist upon being the first man in," said Lord John, when every preparation was complete.

"I am much indebted to you for your gracious permission," said the angry Professor; for never was a man so intolerant of every form of authority. "Since you are good enough to allow it, I shall most certainly take it upon myself to act as pioneer upon this occasion."

Seating himself with a leg overhanging the abyss on each side, and his hatchet slung upon his back, Challenger hopped his way across the trunk and was soon at the other side. He clambered up and waved his arms in the air.

"At last!" he cried; "at last!" I gazed anxiously at him, with a vague expectation that some terrible fate would dart at him from the curtain of green behind him. But all was quiet, save that a strange, many-colored bird flew up from under his feet and vanished among the trees.

Cotton Summary

Mills operating more than 10,000,000 spindles in south have signified intention of cooperating in curtailment movement. Relief in total curtailment to August 15 will amount to more than equivalent of production of 15,000,000 spindles.

Western wholesale dry goods distributors report business running ahead of corresponding period last year. June business exceeded June a year ago.

Fair inquiry for cloths in local markets yesterday morning, but following Government report, buyers withdrew to await more settled conditions in cotton market.

Very little rain fell in South yesterday. Outlook is for unsettled weather with local thundershowers in South Atlantic States today.

Fall River cloth sales are estimated as above 100,000 pieces by both Journal of Commerce and Daily News Record.

Of 6 opinions 5 are bullish and one non-committal.

Secretary Hester's mill takings and into sight figures have been discontinued until after July 31.

Average price of 25 active southern cotton mills shares is 118.66 against 114.72 preceding week.

Liverpool says: Market depressed by liquidation and short selling, bureau a surprise spinners apathetic. India cloth demand slightly better. China news more reassuring. Texas clear, warm.

Grain

Of June 11 I advised a straddle proposition in grain consisting of short Dec. wheat and long Dec. corn at a difference of 65 cents. The difference at last night's close was about 53 cents. Wheat has had a severe break and as we are now entering the period of crop scarce in the Northwest, I believe it advisable to take profits on short side of this straddle and wait for a substantial rally on which to sell wheat again.

The spread between Dec and Sept. corn has narrowed from 21 cents three weeks ago to 14 cents now. I would take profits on the short side of this straddle also.

Bedrooms restful, cheerful with rugs of lovely linen

—at very little cost with KLEARFLAX

You want your bedrooms to be bright and cheerful yet soft and restful in effect. With the lovely colors of Klearflax linen rugs and carpets you can now attain just such charm.

And you can have it without extravagant cost. In fact, Klearflax offers artistic possibilities never before attainable at so little cost! Woven entirely of linen! To this fact is due the color beauty of Klearflax. Colorings for any interior scheme for any room; rich solid tones—grey, taupe, chestnut, rose, blue, green, mulberry, goldenrod. For gayer effects there are handsome heathers and Picwicks; smart all-overs, stripes and borders.

Klearflax gives long wear, too; for, woven thick and heavy, it has linen's durability and because it is reversible its wearing life is practically doubled. It is moth-proof and practically burn-proof.

You can always tell Klearflax by the look and feel of the pure virgin flax of which it is woven. This gives it a finish which blends perfectly with the decorative vogue for rough homespun fabrics in hangings and upholstery.

A new standard of cleanliness is possible with Klearflax Linen Rugs and Carpets, for dirt does not become embedded in its thick, compactly woven body, but stays on the surface. The power-driven brush suction sweeper, or just brushing, keeps Klearflax always fresh and clean all through.
