DESPITE OBJECTION EVOLUTION TRIAL OPENS WITH PRAYER

Darrow Objects to "Prayer;" Judge Asks Indulgence in Decision, on Motion to Quash

Court Room, Dayton, Tenn., July 14.—Objection by Clarence Darrow of the defense counsel to the daily custom of daily prayer in court created tense excitement for a few minutes at the short session of the trial of John Thomas Scopes, here this morning. Judge John T. Raulston, presiding, overruled the objection, and then ordered a court recess until one o'clock in order that he might complete the preparation of his opinion on the motion of the defense to quash the indictment argued yesterday. Mr. Darrow said "I do not object to anyone praying in private, but I do object to this court being turned into a meeting house."

Judge Raulston responded: "I don't want to be unreasonable about anything, but I am responsible for the conduct of the court. I over rule this objection." Dudley Field Malone followed with a statement of his objection to the procedure saying "As one of the members of counsel, who is an agnostic, I desire to file my objection. I respect Mr. Darrow's rights to his belief, which is as sincere as my belief, but the prayers so far have been largely augmentative and we submit should be excluded."

Attorney General Stewart declared that the same religious atmosphere was prevailing in the court now that had prevailed before.

Judge Raulston remarked he had uniformly followed his custom of opening court with prayer when a minister was available. He had cautioned ministers called on not to refer to the case on trial in their prayers. "I believe in prayer," said Judge Raulston, "I pray myself and often invoke the blessing of God on my endeavors of practice on the bench and off. I have overruled the objection." The Reverend Matthew C. Stripling, pastor of the Dayton Cumberland Presbyterian church then offered prayer and Mr. Darrow entered an exception to the procedure. Judge Raulston announced he would have to ask indulgence in announcing his decision on the motion to quash. A matter of several hours, he said, might be needed for him to get his opinion in shape, and lack of light in Dayton last night due to disturbance at the power plant, interfered with his work. Court then recessed until one o'clock.

AUSTRALIAN ATHLETES TO MEET UNITED STATES BLUEJACKETS IN CONTEST

Honolulu.—Arrangements for extensive competition between athletes of Australia and those of the 55 visiting vessels of the United States fleet are under way and probably will be complete before the ships arrive in the Antipodes.

Baseball, boxing and rifle matches are the sports in which the athletes of the two countries are most likely to compete, and schedules in these events are being arranged. The Victoria Baseball Association of Melbourne has suggested a series of games between the American fleet and an all-Australian nine composed of players chosen from each state in the commonwealth. The tentative schedule: Fleet vs. Australia, July 25; Fleet vs. South Australia, July 27; Fleet vs. New South Wales, July 28; Fleet vs. Australia July 30 and Aug. 1.

LEGISLATION'S EFFECT ON LIBERTY CRITICIZED IN THE OXFORD DEBATE

Oxford.—In a recent debate and discussion the Oxford Union agreed by a large majority that "contemporary legislation tends to destroy liberty." G. K. Chesterton, the principal speaker in the debate, declared that there is a wide distinction between liberty and security which is the aim of most modern legislation. "While it is true," he said, "that property normally gives security, it does not follow that security brings property. If the chief end of man is to be fed and housed, then we should return to slavery, a simple tried measure, which insured economic security to the masses."

PLANS FOR PROPOSED INTERURBAN ROAD BE PRESENTED DUKE

Proposed Extension of the Piedmont and Northern Railroad to Be Presented to Duke at An Early Date

Charlotte, July 14.—The matter of the proposed extension of the Piedmont and Northern Railroad from Charlotte to Winston-Salem, will be presented to James B. Duke here at an early date as soon as the move to back the project gains sufficient momentum in the cities along the route, it was stated here today by those behind the movement. Expressions of enthusiasm over the plan had been received today from the cities and towns to be tapped by the proposed extension, it was stated.

Announcements that public men and their community leaders would organize committee groups to cooperate with the cities of Charlotte and Winston-Salem, were received yesterday by former Governor Morrison, who spoke in Concord, Salisbury and Lexington, in connection with the proposition. Mr. Duke's representative here has received letters from the Concord Chamber of Commerce and the Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce assuring him that the proposition will be supported in those cities.

NO CESSATION OF PRODUCTION TO TAKE PLACE BY FORD CO.

Varied Rumors of Shut Downs and Radical Changes of Models Without Foundation

Detroit, July 14.—Many and varied rumors of shut downs and radical changes of models by the Ford Motor Company were spiked today when the Ford Company offices, at Dearborn, let it be known that no cessation of production is contemplated and that the only model changes planned are in the lines of the car.

There will be some reduction of Ford forces during the coming week, beginning tomorrow, but this is in line with the Company's practice followed the past year. The men who leave tomorrow will return to work August 1, and those who leave on subsequent dates will return two weeks later. The production will be continued without interruption although the working force is slightly reduced.

Reports that the Company would make a six cylinder gear shift model were characterized as without foundation.

State Salary and Wage Commission In Session Today

Raleigh, July 14.—No developments other than the transaction of routine business incident to the finishing touches to the final report are expected to develop today at the meeting of the State Salary and Wage Commission, it was stated by Louis Merriam, expert in charge. "The commission will probably complete the actual work of fixing salaries," said Mr. Merriam, "but there will remain the work of preparing the exact forms to be used and other routine work. He indicated there would be no announcement forthcoming today, but that within a short while the commission hoped to release its findings and rulings for publication.

R., relatives here have been informed. Mrs. Conway's grave is one of the only two resting places of daughters of soldiers of the American revolution of which the Erie chapter has record. The other is that of her sister, Mrs. Eleanor Hoppack, who is buried in Erie. Mrs. Conway, who died here nine years ago, was the daughter of Philip Johnson who fought in the revolution in the command of George Washington.

TOKIO'S RECONSTRUCTION WORK HAMPERED BY SOFT GROUND

Tokio.—The softness of the ground upon which Tokio is built is interfering considerably with the reconstruction work now under way. Recently Dr. Kishi, of the Reconstruction Bureau recommended that all work on the paved streets in the districts where the new subway is to be built be delayed until after the underground project has been completed. He based his recommendation upon observations made during the recent sewer construction.

300 ACRES PEACHES DAMAGED BY HAIL

Raleigh, July 14.—Hail stones pelting an acreage of between 250 and 300 acres between Eagle Springs and Samarcand damaged peaches between $50,000 and $100,000,000 yesterday afternoon. The decision of the market of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture today reports that it had been advised of the storm and that it covered one of the finest peach acres of the Sand Hill section. The division's representative in Candor estimated that 75 percent of the path of the storm was a total loss.

MILNER DEATH CAUSES OMISSION OF DINNER TO RHODES SCHOLARS

Oxford, Eng.—The annual dinner given by the Rhodes trustees to the Rhodes scholars will be omitted this year because of the death recently of Lord Milner. It is thought the custom of the annual dinner will not be revived until the new building which is to be the Oxford headquarters of the Rhodes Trust, is completed.

Past dinners have been notable for the eminence of the speakers, English statesmen, including the prime ministers, making them occasions for pronouncements of their views on Anglo-American and empire questions.

OXFORD LENDS GROTIUS PORTRAITS TO HOLLAND

Oxford, Eng.—The Oxford House of Congregation has been persuaded to lend to the Dutch government the two supposed portraits of Hugo Grotius, the founder of international law, which have hung in the Bodleian Library for 200 years. It has long been the rule that no book may go out of the library, even at the request of the King himself, or on any manner of condition or bond, but while books contained pictures often enough, yet pictures are not books and so have been held to fall without the rule.

Two Major Questions Holding Attention of Prohibition Officers

Washington, July 14.—Two major questions are holding the attention of prohibition enforcement officers who are taking the offensive in one, and a defensive stand in another. While treasury and department of justice branches concerned with prohibition are planning to dry up "high power," their sources under a permit system under Secretary Winston, of the Treasury, are fighting an avalanche of political pressure in the new enforcement machine.

Assistant Secretary Andrews and Assistant General Willebrandt have devised a new brewery permit system and have arranged for closer co-operation between their department and more rigid prosecution of prohibition law violation.

PICTURES SHOW TRICKS BY WHICH MADRID BEGGARS DECEIVE PEOPLE

Madrid.—Street begging here is on the increase and the efforts of the authorities to suppress it have been frustrated by a too generous public who give liberal alms to the beggars. The authorities have now, however issued a photograph in the press which they hope may have the effect of putting an end to what has been described as a nuisance. In this picture a number of beggars are shown before and after their admittance to the asylum reserved for beggars. In one the men are shown in a very pitiable condition, blind, paralytic and one apparently with one leg.

In the other the photograph shows the same men erect and apparently quite normal, the missing leg having been tucked from its hiding place. The pictures, it was pointed out, are merely proof of the ease with which the alms-giving persons in Madrid is tricked. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sugg and son, Marvin, have returned from a week end trip to Morehead City.

PEORIA 'CLEAN UP' RESULTS TROUBLE FEDERAL OFFICERS

Federal Dry Squad Sub-Poenaed to Appear Before Grand Jury to Explain Charges Made By Them

Peoria, Ill., July 14.—John E. Asher, "The Lone Wolf," of the Federal Dry Squad, and two of his mates who introduced a new wrinkle in prohibition enforcement when they purchased a saloon and under the title of "Uncle Sam's Place" obtained evidence against Peoria bootleggers, have encountered legal difficulties of their own.

Asher, Max Hartzig, and Thomas L. Howard have been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury to explain charges made by them that Peoria city and other officers were implicated in conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. Asher's refusal to confer with the State's Attorney until the United States District Attorney was present resulted in Attorney Pratt, representing the state, issuing the subpoena with a threat to file charges unless the agents appeared before the grand jury.

The city counsel also is expected to take a hand in the affair. Alderman Ireland stated that he would introduce a resolution tonight asking for an investigation of statements credited to the agents that "two thirds of the police department was involved in shady transactions."

SAYS DEMPSEY SHOULD FIGHT WILLS OR RETIRE

Skilling, secretary of the Commission. "At meeting tomorrow suggest passing resolutions, assuming commissioners Muldoon, Brower, Pheland, and Ware concur, that an invitation be extended to Jack Dempsey and Jack Kerns to appear before Commission at meeting before July. We must have definite decision in my judgment from above mentioned parties today. Dempsey should fight Wills this year or retire. If he refuses to accept the challenge the public will reach only one conclusion—that he is afraid."

JAPAN HAS TROUBLE PROVIDING FOOD ENOUGH FOR THE POPULATION

Tokyo.—The food and population problem still continues the most serious one confronting Japan. At a recent meeting of high officials of the department of agriculture and Forestry it was decided that the government should revise the regulations for opening up and bringing land under cultivation. The officials were of the opinion that there are considerable areas in Hokkaido and Korea which might be opened up and tilled if proper encouragement were offered settlers. It was stated that, while the area of land in Japan and the volume of food, stuffs have been materially increased the rate of increase has begun to fall off lately and is not keeping pace with the increase of population. Consequently, additional inducements are to be offered settlers in the districts which are still open to cultivation.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS ADDRESSES ROTARY ON VISITORS' NIGHT

Mr. Rollins, of the A. C. L. Delivers Interesting Address On "Cross Crossings Cautiously" Campaign

Last night was visitors' night with the local Rotary Club and the program including special musical numbers and several short talks was greatly enjoyed.

Following the evening meal, committee reports and other routine business the club enjoyed several quartette numbers rendered by Pen Watson, Manley Sellars, Ed. Williams and Bill Lee. This part of the program was followed by a talk by Burney Warren on "Some Things Rotary Can Accomplish for Greenville." In his talk he stated that one of the greatest things that the club can accomplish is for every member to live Rotary daily and carry the spirit of Rotary to his fellowmen with whom he comes in contact.

Mr. Rollins, of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, one of the visitors of the evening, addressed the club on the Cross Crossings Cautiously campaign that is now being carried on by the various railroads of the country. He pointed out the dangers of the railroad crossings and cited a number of serious accidents recently, because of the failure of travelers, especially motorists to observe the Stop, Look, Listen signs. He urged the hearty co-operation of the public in the campaign in order that the number of grade crossing accidents might be decreased to the minimum.

The guests at last night's meeting were Messrs. Pen-Watson, Manley Sellars and R. G. Fitzgerald, of this city, and Rotarians John Sawyer and John Andrews, of the Ayden Club.

EXCHANGE RATES ENABLE MANY SWISS TO ENJOY THE PARIS SHOW

Paris.—Profiting by the height of the Swiss franc as compared with the French, entire clubs, chambers of commerce and other bodies of Swiss, with their families have come over the border to attend the exposition of decorative arts in numbers that compare favorably with the English and American visitors.

Switzerland's contribution to the exposition is one of the most important, considering the size of the country, at the Grand Palais. All the old historical cities have sent imposing displays of their burghers' handicraft.

GERMAN TELLS OF HUMANS OF THE PERIOD 50,000 B. C.

Heidelberg.—The ideas of mankind 50,000 years ago, was the subject of a discourse by Professor Bern of Bonn University at the Congress of German Philologists. About 20,000 B. C. the art of the glacial period began to flourish in Europe, said the speaker. This art, he asserted, had its origins somewhere around 50,000 B. C. He claims that it has been fairly well established that 40,000 B. C., or thereabouts, the Neanderthal beings were superseded by a race resembling that of the present day.

This race had a well-defined cult of the dead. These early progenitors of our present race firmly believed in an existence after death. It has been clearly proved that they feared the dead, as their limbs frequently were broken before burial to prevent them from harming the living, according to the speaker.

VALUABLE STAMP COLLECTION REPOSES FOR YEARS IN ATTIC

London.—More than $50,000 worth of unique stamps have been discovered under romantic circumstances in the attic of a titled woman's house in fashionable Mayfair. There are complete sheets of stamps which are of rare value. They were land in Japan and the volume of food, stuffs have been materially increased the rate of increase has begun to fall off lately and is not keeping pace with the increase of population. Consequently, additional inducements are to be offered settlers in the districts which are still open to cultivation. It was only by chance they were discovered recently when the woman went to the attic and accidentally came across them. They are to be sold by auction.

A CODE OF MOTOR ETHICS

The following editorial from the New York World would certainly be applicable in this immediate section of the country. There are thousands of automobile drivers who never violate the law, and who drive carefully, yet they disregard the other driver by not following the automobile laws, such as keeping to the right, dimming lights and exercising care at all times.

The World in advocating a Code of Ethics for motorists, says:

"Every week-end or holiday brings the usual lengthened list of road fatalities; it grows ominously throughout every week. To lessen these the American Automobile Association proposes the framing of a code of ethics for drivers. It might seem at first thought that the law's enforcement would offer a more substantial corrective of abuses. Yet an ethical code would have its practical value.

"The law must always deal with the grosser offenses of motorists. The man who zig-zags, gloriously drunk, through crowded streets, or who kills a pedestrian and seeks to run away, must be dealt with by public authority. But there is a whole vast field of minor auto offenses which might be greatly lessened simply by the general inculcation of the rules of courtesy.

The selfish driver who flashes undimmed lights in the eyes of another driver meeting him knows that it is dangerous; there is little use in telling him that. Let him know that it is prescribed as bad manners by the common consent of decent drivers and he may refrain. The driver who passes another car on the wrong side knows that he is taking a chance. He may hesitate if it is impressed upon him that such conduct is boorish and discourteous. A national code of ethics such as President Henry proposes could do no harm. It would do some good. It is worth trying."

I looked at my comrades. Lord John was standing at gaze with his finger at the trigger of his elephant-gun, his eager hunter's soul shining from his fierce eyes. What would he not give for one such head to place between the two crossed oars above the mantelpiece in his snugery at the Albany! And yet his reason held him in, for all our exploration of the wonders of this unknown land depended upon our presence being concealed from its inhabitants. The two professors were in silent ecstasy. In their excitement they had unconsciously seized each other by the hand, and stood like two little children in the presence of a marvel. Challenger's cheeks bunched up into a seraphic smile, and Summerlee's sardonic face softening for the moment into wonder and reverence.

"Nunc dimittis!" he cried at last. "What will they say in England of this?"

"My dear Summerlee, I will tell you with great confidence exactly what they will say in England," said Challenger. "They will say that you are an infernal liar and a scientific charlatan, exactly as you and others said of me."

"In the face of photographs?"

"Faked, Summerlee! Clumsily faked!"

"In the face of specimens?"

"Ah, there we may have them! Malone and his filthy Fleet Street crew may be all yelling our praises yet. August the twenty-eighth—the day we saw five live iguanodons in a glade of Maple White Land. Put it down in your diary, my young friend, and send it to your rag."

"And be ready to get the toe-end of the editorial boot in return," said Lord John. "Things look a bit different from the latitude of London, young fellow my lad. There's many a man who never tells his adventures, for he can't hope to be believed. Who's to blame them? For this will seem a bit of a dream to ourselves in a month or two. What did you say they were?"

"Iguanodons," said Summerlee. "You'll find their footmarks all over the Hastings sands, in Kent, and in Sussex. The South of England was alive with them when there was plenty of good lush green-stuff to keep them going. Conditions have changed, and the beasts died. Here it seems that the conditions have not changed, and the beasts have lived."

"If ever we get out of this alive, I must have a head with me," said Lord John. "Lord, how some of that Somaliland-Uganda crowd would turn a beautiful pea-green if they saw it! I don't know what you chaps think, but it strikes me that we are on mighty thin ice all this time."

I had the same feeling of mystery and danger around us. In the gloom of the trees there seemed a constant menace and as we looked up into their shadowy foliage vague terrors crept into one's heart. It is true that these monstrous creatures which we had seen were lumbering, inoffensive brutes which were unlikely to hurt anyone, but in this world of wonders what other survivals might there not be—what fierce, active horrors ready to pounce upon us from their lair among the rocks or brushwood? I knew little of prehistoric life, but I had a clear remembrance of one book which I had read in which it spoke of creatures who would live upon our lions and tigers as a cat lives upon mice. What if these also were to be found in the woods of Maple White Land!

It was destined that on this very morning—our first in the new country—we were to find out what strange hazards lay around us. It was a loathsome adventure, and one of which I hate to think. If, as Lord John said, the glade of the iguanodons will remain with us as a dream, then surely the swamp of the pterodactyls will forever be our nightmare. Let me set down exactly what occurred.

We passed very slowly through the woods, partly because Lord Roxton acted as scout before he would let us advance, and partly because at every second step one or other of our professors would fall, with a cry of wonder, before some flower or insect which presented him with a new type. We may have traveled two or three miles in all, keeping to the right of the line of the stream, when we came upon a considerable opening in the trees. A belt of brushwood led up to a tangle of rocks—the whole plateau was strewn with boulders. We were walking slowly towards these rocks, among bushes which reached over our waists, when we became aware of a strange low gabbling and whistling sound, which filled the air with a constant clamor and appeared to come from some spot immediately before us. Lord John held up his hand as a signal for us to stop, and he made his way swiftly, stooping and running, to the line of rocks. We saw him peep over them and give a gesture of amazement. Then he stood staring as if forgetting us, so utterly entranced was he by what he saw. Finally he waved us to come on, holding up his hand as a signal for caution. His whole bearing made me feel that something wonderful but dangerous lay before us.

Creeping to his side, we looked over the rocks. The place into which we gazed was a pit, and may, in the early days, have been one of the smaller volcanic blow-holes of the plateau. It was bowl-shaped and at the bottom, some hundreds of yards from where we lay, were pools of green-scummed, stagnant water, fringed with bull-rushes. It was a weird place in itself, but its occupants made it seem like a scene from the Seven Circles of Dante. The place was a rookery of pterodactyls. There were hundreds of them congregated within view. All the bottom area round the water-edge was alive with their young ones, and with hideous mothers brooding upon their leathery, yellowish eggs. From this crawling flapping mass of obscene reptilian life came the shocking clamor which filled the air and the mephitic, horrible, musty odor which turned us sick. But above, perched each upon its own stone, tall, gray, and withered, more like dead and dried specimens than actual living creatures, sat the horrible males, absolutely motionless save for the rolling of their red eyes or an occasional snap of their rat-trap beaks as a dragon-fly went past them. Their huge, membranous wings were closed by folding their fore-arms, so that they sat like gigantic old women, wrapped in hideous web-colored shawls, and with their ferocious heads protruding above them. Large and small, not less than a thousand of these filthy creatures lay in the hollow before us.

Our professors would gladly have stayed there all day, so entranced were they by this opportunity of studying the life of a prehistoric age. They pointed out the fish and the dead birds lying about among the rocks as proving the nature of the food of these creatures, and I heard them congratulating each other on having cleared up the point why the bones of this flying dragon are found in such great numbers in certain well-defined areas, as in the Cambridge Green-sand, since it was now seen that, like penguins, they lived in gregarious fashion.

Finally, however, Challenger, bent upon proving some point which Summerlee had contested, thrust his head over the rock and nearly brought destruction upon us all. In an instant the nearest male gave a shrill, whistling cry, and flapped its twenty-foot span of leathery wings as it soared up into the air. The females and young ones huddled together beside the water, while the whole circle of sentinels rose one after the other and sailed off into the sky. It was a wonderful sight to see at least a hundred creatures of such enormous size and hideous appearance all swooping like swallows with swift, shearing wing-strokes above us; but soon we realized that it was not one on which we could afford to linger. At first the great brutes flew round in a huge ring, as if to make sure what the exact extent of the danger might be. Then the flight grew lower and the circle narrower, until they were whizzing round and round us, the dry, rustling flap of their huge slate-colored wings filling the air with a volume of sound that made me think of Hendon aerodrome upon a race day.

"Make for the wood and keep together," cried Lord John, clubbing his rifle. "The brutes mean mischief!"

OFFICER OF SALVATION ARMY INDORSES KARNAK

"I Am Certainly Feeling Fine Since Taking This Splendid Medicine," Declares Envoy George Best.

WAS ALL RUNDOWN AND GETTING WORSE

He Is Second in Command of Charlotte Corps And Is Also Well Known in Durham and Spartanburg

"I just want to tell everybody about this new medicine, Karnak, and how it has overcome troubles from which I suffered the past eleven years," declares Envoy George E. Best, Box 82, Charlotte, N. C. Mr. Best is Assistant to the commanding officer of the Charlotte Salvation Army Corps, and served during the past three years, as a new man at work. Yes, sir, I am sure feeling fine since taking Karnak, and if my statement will lead just one person to take Karnak and get the relief I have, I will be paid many times over for making it."

"For the past eleven years I suffered from intestinal indigestion, and for a long time before I got Karnak I had to choose my food with the greatest care. Even then most everything hurt me.

"My stomach had gotten into such an awful ulcerated condition that it pained me terribly in the lower part of my bowels. I had been under many different treatments, but still my trouble continued and grew worse until I had to live on such things as sweet milk, toast and soft boiled eggs, and even then I suffered afterward.

"I was hungry all the time but my stomach was in such a weak condition I didn't dare eat.

"I will always thank the day I started taking Karnak, and money couldn't buy the good six bottles of this remarkable medicine has done me. I am now eating cheese and other such foods that I couldn't eat at all before, and am not having a bit of trouble afterward. If that doesn't speak for Karnak I would like to know what does.

"And I have so much new strength and energy it just makes me feel like a new man at work. Yes, sir, I am sure feeling fine since taking Karnak, and if my statement will lead just one person to take Karnak and get the relief I have, I will be paid many times over for making it."

Karnak is sold in Greenville by B. S. Warren, and by leading druggists everywhere.

Reprinted from the First Balloon Tire Announcements

- "You ride on a cushion of air."
- "Ruts and bumps are smoothed out."
- "The car and its occupants are protected from jolts and jars."
- "Shocks are absorbed before they reach axles and springs."
- "On uneven roads where ordinary tires bounce, these flexible low-air pressure tires roll over the bumps, permitting better average speed."
- "Save repairs."

Low-Air Pressure is the Answer

HERE is a list of balloon tire advantages taken from the first balloon tire announcements.

These were the things that car owners wanted.

The things that made them demand balloon tires.

Read them and then ask yourself how you can get them except in a tire that can be run at low enough air pressure to provide a soft air cushion between the car and the road.

Some car owners have been sold the balloon principle and then handed the name only.

Just a big, round, fat tire with the name "Balloon" on it will not necessarily give low-air pressure riding comfort.

The original ideal of the industry was a flexible side wall, low-pressure tire.

Yet today some "balloon" tires must be run at too high pressure for ideal cushioning, as they wear out too fast when they are run soft.

It is important to you as a car owner to remember this fact.

The United States Royal Balloon is spoken of as the "Balloon Tire Principle at its Best," because it can be run at low-air pressure without injury.

It is built of Latex-treated Web Cord which provides the necessary strength and flexibility.

It has the U. S. Low-Pressure Tread which wears slowly and evenly and eliminates early, uneven and unsightly wear.

Specify U. S. Royal Balloon Cords and be sure of true low-pressure cushioning.

DIPLOMA FOR HIGH SCHOOL WORK IS GOAL OF MAN 57

Baxter, Tenn.—Baxter Seminary, located in Putnam county on the Cumberland plateau in the mountains of Tennessee, is unique in the age and poverty of its students. Of the 14 students who were graduated this year, three were between 35 and 40 years of age. The average age of the 110 students in attendance throughout the year was between 25 and 30.

"Our students are poor and needy, live in little log cabins, have poor land, and are older than the average," said Rev. Harry L. Upperman, president. "Three students between 30 and 35 years of age are in the first, second and third years of high school respectively, and some who are between 20 and 30 are in the first and second years of high school. One man is now 57 and has been trying all his life to finish so that he could have the honor of graduating from high school work before he died."

Normally all the students work their way through the seminary, doing sweeping, farming, waiting on tables, etc., and most of them pay their tuition in cornmeal, flour, meat and beans.

"We have never turned a student away because of poverty," said President Upperman.

BRITISH BUSINESS MAN ORDERS BAN ON GIRLS' LIGHT STOCKINGS

Cardiff.—The manager of a large business house has created consternation among his women employes and those of other concerns, by issuing instructions that his staff must not wear champagne-colored or flesh-colored stockings during business hours. This has developed into quite a controversy and the great question of the day is "are light stockings and abbreviated skirts permissible for business girls?"

MRS. LUCY MANGUM GIVEN PARTY IN HONOR OF HER 87TH BIRTHDAY

Immanuel Baptist Church was the scene of an unusually happy occasion on last Tuesday evening, when the members of the church, both old and young, met to honor their most beloved member, Mrs. Lucy Mangum. "Grandma" as she is affectionately known among a wide circle of friends was much surprised at the honor done her. She left home to take a ride with friends but soon found herself the center of attraction at a party celebrating her own eighty-seventh birthday.

After a beautiful basket of flowers had been presented the honoree, Mr. S. J. Everett, who had himself lived in Grandma's home during his boarding school days, made the address of the evening. In appropriate words he pointed out that Grandma's life had covered more than half the life of our Republic. When Mrs. Mangum was born in Halifax county, North Carolina, in 1838, Andrew Jackson had left the presidential chair but the year before. She was a small girl during the Mexican war and by the time of the Civil War was married and living in Virginia. Many are the interesting stories Grandma can tell of those early days. Since 1909, Mrs. Mangum has made her home in Greenville with her son, D. H. Mangum, and her daughter, Mrs. C. W. Wilson.

Mr. Everett next pointed out the relation of Grandma to the church. It was she who threw the first spadeful of dirt for the erection of the commodious building which the church now occupies. Not only by her own efforts, but through the work of her son and daughter, Professor and Mrs. C. W. Wilson, has she endeared herself to every member of the church. Her name is written indelibly on the spirit and history of the church and some of the most precious memories of Immanuel are associated with her name.

At the conclusion of Mr. Everett's address, Grandma was presented with a bag of gold, containing eighty-seven dollars, one dollar for each golden year of her life. This money was a gift not only from her Greenville friends but from her admirers scattered far and wide. The evening was brought to a close with the serving of refreshments by the ladies of the church. Those present left thankful that they had had the privilege of honoring one whose life has been both an inspiration and a benediction.

"THE THUNDERING HERD" A GREAT PRODUCTION

History came to life in all its vivid realism last night at White's Theatre. Which is merely another way of saying that "The Thundering Herd," Paramount's picturization of the powerful novel of the same name by Zane Grey, began its local engagement there and will remain for today.

Those who are familiar with the story know that it is written around the winning of the west, and deals with a particularly important and violent period of American history—the rush of the pioneers in 1876 from their farms in the east to the buffalo fields of the far west.

Not a small measure of the success of the photoplay is due to the skillful adaptation of Lucien Hubbard and the directorial shrewdness of William K. Howard. There was no easy task for the transference of popular story to the screen is always attended with a good many difficulties. In this case it was accomplished successfully and the result is a film, replete with adventurous action, flavored with romance and chock-full of pictorial beauty.

Nothing has been omitted from the film that would contribute to an accurate and faithful portrayal of the old west. The hardships and privations of the sturdy pioneers is vividly depicted and the wholesale massacre of the great herds of buffalo is pictured with startling boldness.

The cast was evidently selected with care and the featured players, in particular, acquit themselves with considerable distinction. Jack Holt has seldom been seen to better advantage; Lois Wilson has a part to which she brings both beauty and histrionic ability; Noah Beery plays a villainous role in his usual effective style; and Raymond Hatton wins new laurels in his characterization of an experienced buffalo hunter.

Picture-goers who prefer their film fare seasoned with plenty of thrills will find this screen play much to their liking. The Indian battle is one of the tremendously exciting highlights in the picture, and the stampede of two thousand fear-maddened buffalo is certain to make even the most blasé film fan sit up and take notice.

"The Thundering Herd" is not only excellent film entertainment but it is an enduring tribute to that race of Americans too often forgotten in the hustle and bustle of this jazz age.
