REPLY MAY LEAD TO AGREEMENT OF SECURITY PROBLEM

Germany Replies in Conciliatory Manner Concerning Suggestions for Security Pact

Paris, July 21.—Germany has replied in a conciliatory manner to the allied observations concerning her suggestions for a security pact to guarantee her western frontiers, and it is agreed with but few exceptions that the German communication, while far from removing all the obstacles to a settlement of the security problem, opens the way for negotiations from which an agreement may emerge.

The evacuation of the Ruhr region by the French and Belgian forces of occupation is going ahead, the belief being expressed that by July 31, virtually all of the allied troops will have left the Ruhr in fulfillment of promises made by the French government that France would evacuate the Ruhr within a year after the Dawes plan becomes effective.

No little had been expressed from the German communication on the subject of a security pact that its conciliatory nature has made a highly favorable impression and foreign office officials appear to think the difficult parts can be cleared up within fifteen days. Such optimism is not shared by those writing for the newspapers who believe that Germany is not likely to abandon her "familiar haggling methods."

All together however, the impression prevails that Germany is showing a much more accommodating attitude than heretofore, and that there is promise of genuine improvement in the general European situation.

The note which is in direct reply to a memorandum sent to the German government by M. Briand was presented by the German Ambassador last night, but its contents will not become known officially before Wednesday, M. Briand having decided to communicate with the various governments concerned before authorizing publication of the text.

Berlin, July 21.—The German government attitude is that future discussions of a European Security Pact is contingent upon clarification by the allies of the conditions upon which Germany may enter the League of Nations. The German note directed to France and England yesterday stresses this contention. Although the Reich government is opposing in principle to making the question of Germany's admission to the League a part of the discussion regarding the proposed security pact, it believes the fundamental ideas of the pact proposed by Germany in February could be realized without Germany being a League member.

ACCEPTANCE FORD'S BID FOR VESSELS RECOMMENDED

Indications Are That Shipping Board Will Approve the Recommendation of President Palmer

Washington, July 21.—Acceptance of the Henry Ford bid of $1,706,000 for the 200 shipping board vessels set aside for scrapping has been recommended to the shipping board by President Palmer, of the Fleet Corporation.

Indications are that the board will approve the recommendation. The general counsel has held the procedure of the Fleet Corporation in conducting of the proposed sale to be legal, although the Boston Iron and Metal Company, of Baltimore, protested it was irregular. The Baltimore Company was the highest bidder when the original bids were opened June 30, its offer being $1,370,000. But this bid was rejected by the board after President Palmer had urged its acceptance, and now offers were called for to be opened July 16. The Baltimore Company then withdrew its offer, claiming that only the original bidders should be permitted new offers. Henry Ford was not among those submitting bids at the first opening.

It is the intention of Mr. Ford to scrap most of the 200 ships, but he will retain some for conversion to Diesel Engine propulsion in salt water transportation. He will also use some of the engine and other equipment in his own manufacturing operation.

SCOPES IS FOUND GUILTY AND FINE FIXED AT $100.00

Bond Fixed at $500 Pending Appeal; Feels He Has Been Convicted of Violating Unjust Statute

Court Room, Dayton, Tenn., July 21.—A verdict of "guilty" was returned in the Scopes case at 11:29 o'clock. John Thomas Scopes was summoned before the bar. Judge Raulston told him of his conviction by the jury and read a copy of the statute to him. The Judge then fixed the fine at $100.00.

"Have you anything to say, Mr. Scopes?" Asked the Judge.

"Your honor I have been convicted of violating an unjust statute," replied Scopes.

"Any action other than that I have pursued would be in violation of my idea of academic freedom."

The Judge repeated the fine of $100. Bond was fixed at $500 pending an appeal.

Dayton, Tenn., July 21.—Scopes said to the court in his statement that he would continue to oppose the law in every way in his power as he considered it an unjust law and in violation of the constitution.

Dudley F. Malone announced that bond would be arranged today and Arthur G. Hays, for the defense, made a formal motion for arrest of judgment. Judge Raulston pointed out that the law of Tennessee permits 60 days for perfecting an appeal. It was announced that the appeal would be made to the Supreme Court at Knoxville. The court gave the defense 30 days in which to perfect the appeal, and said that an extension would be granted if necessary.

AGED MOTHER OF HARRY K. THAW IS SUING GRANDSON

Alleges That Grandson Took $600,000 From Her When She Was Easily Influenced

New York, July 21.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, 83 years old mother of Harry K. Thaw, is suing her 26 year old grandson, Lawrence Copley Thaw for $600,000 obtained from her, she alleged when she was ill, weak in mind and body and easily influenced. Lawrence Thaw is the son of the late Edward T. Thaw, Harry Thaw's half brother. In a complaint filed in court yesterday, Mrs. Thaw charged that her grandson had induced her to give him $600,000 or representation that he had been discriminated against unjustly in his father's will.

Tarboro Youth Falls From Top of Church Dies From Injuries

Tarboro, July 21.—Sunday afternoon Luther Brown, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Brown, of this city, while endeavoring to get some pigeons in the top of the Baptist church fell a distance of more than thirty feet and had his arm broken, shoulder badly crushed and skull fractured. His injuries resulted in death Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The little fellow stepped on the glass dome thinking it was wood and it broke with his weight, hurling him downward with great force against the furnace below. He was rushed to the hospital where all possible medical service was rendered him, but he never recovered.

James Hagan was in the roof of the church when Luther fell, but he had presence of mind enough to climb down without accident and he went to his little friend at once and assisted in taking him to the hospital. Luther was a very bright and attractive boy who was well liked by all who knew him. The Boy Scouts of which he was a member, attend the funeral in a body as a mark of respect.

MORE SOAP AND LESS PAINT IS A NEW BEAUTY RECIPE

Chicago, July 21.—More soap and less paint is a new beauty recipe. "Keep your neck clean and your hair combed" is the advice of beauty experts here attending the National Convention of the American Cosmetics Society. "Women will create their own fads this year, and wear their hair as they please so beauty experts are giving their attention to teaching patrons that inconspicuous make up, a clean face and neck, are the marks of the gentle woman, and they really are becoming."

Declares Present Day Civilization Races Education, Disaster

Lake Junaluska, July 21.—Advocating a program of religious education in denominational schools as wide as the service of the State schools, Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University, declared that in his opinion the provision of week day religious education is probably the greatest task in the world.

"Our present day civilization is a race between education and disaster," Dr. Few declared. Leading the discussion on "Religious Education in the Church College," he defined the qualifications and tasks of the Christian college. Dr. Few declared that the Christian college is one which is committed to the Christian view of the world and of God. Many who speak of Christian education seem to put a restriction on its powers, he said, declaring that "what we need is freedom for freedom, and we must command respect if we are to be recognized as leaders in the educational world."

"Nothing concerns me so much as the question how to make religion effective in the lives of girls and boys in our schools and colleges. I am more concerned about having it brought out than to talk about it."

Speaking on the preparation of teachers, the Rev. W. M. Hunter, of Davidson, N. C., Presbyterian, gave as his opinion that "the man who majors on brains and minors on religion" is not a good teacher and should not be considered as a suitable member of a school faculty.

In a report of a survey made by him of college curricula, Dr. Albert R. Bond, of Birmingham, noted a growing tendency to give prominence to religious education. In 117 Baptist institutions of learning he reported courses in religious education.

"In curriculum building," said Dr. Bond, "you ought to fix first your educational ideals; readjust the curricula without regard to outside pressure by special groups, but on the basis of proportionate emphases."

German Emigration Decreases

Berlin.—Though German emigration during 1924 decreased from the 1923 figure the total is still much larger than the pre-war period. Last year 58,087 Germans emigrated; 115,000 in 1923, while the yearly prewar average was 25,000, according to the German Statistical Bureau.

URGES FORMATION OF A PITT COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Association Would Preserve the Historic Site of the "Old Pitt County Court House"

July 21, 1925.

To The Editor of The Daily Reflector, City.

Dear Mr. Editor: The Society and Amusements section of The News and Observer, of Raleigh, last Sunday contained a well written article entitled, "Old Pitt County House is Rich in Traditions."

For over a year, in personal conversation with many friends, I have expressed the hope that something would be done to repair, restore and preserve this historic building. It seems to be a case of "what's everybody's business is nobody's business."

and that condition of affairs does not suit me, nor strike me as reflecting any particular glory on our community. This is my only apology for trespassing upon your valuable space with the following suggestions:

- 1. Let the mayor call a public meeting of public spirited citizens to form the Pitt County Historical Society.
2. Let everyone be invited to subscribe $1.00 a year for membership therein, or $25.00 for life membership.
3. If Judge F. M. Wooten saw this movement gain popular approval, he would, without doubt, make such terms as would assist the association in its effort to preserve this historic site, even if he could not see his way to donate the building and the strip of land in front of it running down to the highway.
4. The building procured, the society could fit the upstairs rooms for the exhibition of Colonial and other relics, which may be found today scattered through the homes of our county, and which would be cheerfully donated to the society. The downstairs rooms might be utilized as a library and a place in which to hold monthly meetings of the Historical Society.

It seems to me, Mr. Editor, that no finer thing could be done by our citizens with this property. The past belongs to us, as well as the present. We are all made by our yesterday's. No nation has ever been strong, progressive or patriotic that did not cherish the memories of its great men and of the scenes of its historic advances. Let us not permit this present opportunity to escape us.

Sincerely Yours, JAMES E. W. COOK, Rector St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Omaha, July 21.—"I am going to manage my own affairs after 1926," Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion told Omaha newspaper men during a brief stop in Omaha this morning, enroute to the Pacific Coast. "I am going to settle all my real estate with Jack Kearns and when his contract expires in September, 1925, I am going to strike out alone."

NEGROES CHARGED LARCENY ARRESTED AT HOUSE STATION

Believed to Be Members of Gang Which Has Been Breaking Into Stores Throughout County

Frank Modica and Walter Forrest, colored, were arrested Saturday night at House Station by S. H. Martin, Chief of Police Bethel, on the charge of larceny and store breaking. For several months stores in Bethel, Robersonville, Everetts and Stokes have been entered and articles of merchandise, principally clothing, have been taken, and it was through the diligent efforts of Chief Martin that the defendants were arrested. Their plan of operation was rather clever and it is thought that there are several others connected with them and dues are now being run down in an effort to get the others. Walter Forrest was the proprietor of a pressing club and Frank Modica outside man, who spent most of his time in going over the negroes for suits, and from negroes to get into the stores. Arrangements were made to break in some store and there obtain the necessary suits to fill the orders obtained from his customers. Modica says that there are two white men of foreign decent and one woman who went with him at the towns above mentioned and entered the stores of Whitehurst-Andrews Co., J. R. Bunting's Sons and M. O. Blount & Sons of Bethel, and Bailey and Barnhill of Robersonville, W. G. Stokes, Stokes and others. It is believed that their operations have been on a large scale and through the sheriff's office of Pitt county where the matter is now being vigorously investigated, it is hoped that the other guilty parties will be brought to justice.

Some time ago two negroes were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, for breaking in the store of Turnage Bros., of Ayden and it is believed and evidence has been obtained that they were also members of this same gang. These two are now in jail along with Modica and Forrest to await trial at the August term of Pitt Superior court.

ASKS PUBLIC FOR SUGGESTIONS FOR DISTRIBUTING CASH

Leopold Shepp, Philanthropist, Wants Advice on Best Way to Distribute His Millions

New York, July 21.—Leopold Shepp, 85 years old philanthropist, today asked the public for suggestions as to the best way in which he could distribute his millions. He recently established a foundation with $2,500,000 trust fund to assist deserving young boys. In addition he has contributed some $3,500,000 in individual donations, gifts, and pensions.

Now he wishes to accelerate the distribution of other millions but desires to canvas the entire subject of public philanthropy with a view of determining the way which will afford the quickest and surest relief to those who need and merit help, and at the same time offer some permanent good to society. Sitting in his office on Hudson street, where the headquarters of his coconut business has been located for more than 90 years, Mr. Shepp announced his intentions to retire absolutely from commerce, and devote his time and attention and money to philanthropy.

BRYAN'S TESTIMONY EXPUNGED FROM THE RECORDS OF TRIAL

Judge Raulston Says Testimony Cannot Aid Higher Court as it Sheds No Light on Any Issue

Court Room, Dayton, Tenn., July 21.—The testimony of Mr. William J. Bryan given in the Scopes evolution case yesterday was expunged from the record of the case by Judge Raulston this morning.

"I fear I may have committed error yesterday," he said, "In my over zeal to ascertain if there was anything in the proof that was offered to enable the higher courts to ascertain if there was error. I feel that the testimony of Mr. Bryan can shed no light on any issue that will be pending before the higher courts."

"The issue is whether Mr. Scopes thought that man descended from a lower order of animal." "I feel that Mr. Bryan's testimony can not aid the higher court. Therefore I am pleased to expunge this testimony from the record of the court."

After Judge Raulston had expunged the testimony of William Jennings Bryan, from the record of yesterday afternoon's session, an agreement was quickly reached to bring the case to a close.

Mr. Bryan, however, made a statement that he would make public later a series of questions he would have asked Clarence Darrow, Dudley Field Malone, and Arthur G. Hays, if he had had an opportunity to examine them as witnesses. It was explained that the defense testimony on which it relied to have acquitted Scopes, having been excluded, the defense would state to the jury that it could not ask a verdict of "not guilty," and was satisfied to have a conviction in this court in order an appeal might be made to the Supreme Court of Tennessee and probably eventually to the United States Supreme court.

Clarence Darrow said he would make such a statement to the jury. The suggestion that the Judge direct a verdict of "guilty" was discarded when it was pointed out that for the defense to openly admit guilty would deprive it of the right of appeal. The records would show, it was said, that the verdict of guilty was in regular form.

SWEDISH PRISONERS CONVERT FARM INTO MODEL PENAL COLONY

Halmsted, Sweden.—An abandoned farm has become Sweden's model penal colony. About five years ago the government conceived the idea of sending prisoners there to complete their terms at outdoor work in virtual freedom. Transfer to the farm was made the reward for good behavior and now is the goal of all Swedish prisoners.

The land has been put under cultivation by the prisoners so successfully that it serves as an object lesson to the peasants of the district. Notwithstanding the complete freedom of movement permitted for farm work, none of the prisoners has attempted to escape.

BATTLING THE BILLBOARDS

In the past several months much has been said about the "billboard battle," that is that large billboards which dot our road sides detract from the beauty of the landscape and appeals are being made to the advertisers to have them removed. In many places throughout the country big corporations are responding to the appeal and are not erecting any more sign boards on which to advertise their products. In commenting on the battling of billboards the New York Times has the following to say:

"Handsome gentlemen with Mona Lisa smiles deftly exhaling tornadoes of tobacco smoke still dot the roadside in some regions—reproduced in giant style by billboard 'artists.' But fortunately their tribe is not increasing. To the credit of most of the big corporations using national advertising he it said that they have responded with public spirit to the constant appeals of nature-lovers to stop erecting billboards by the roadside. The Standard Oil Company of California, for example, is reported to be engaged in the removal of 1,200 billboards in the Western States. Similar work has been done in the East. But the roadsides are not yet clear, for many of the local interests have not yet been persuaded to abandon this method of making known their goods and services to passers-by. Hotels and inns naturally seek to advertise on the highway. Many a traveler is grateful for the news that the Marigold Manor serves griddle cakes with maple syrup, or that rooms at the Outside Inn are from $1 to $6 per day. But even this can be told without recourse to twenty-foot letters and without a picture that is almost as big as the hostelry.

"The remedy is comparatively simple. If every person who finds a billboard so placed as to mar the landscape will write a courteous letter to the advertiser, calling attention to the disfigurement and asking that it be moved, those interests which are not yet willing to abandon this practice will soon begin to see the light. Incidentally, local Chambers of Commerce and similar organizations are beginning to see that the landscape can be made to pay. Many travelers, to be sure, still motor just to be "on the go." They are interested only in the state of the roads, the hotel accommodations and the filling stations. But the number of persons motoring for the enjoyment of the landscape and ready to linger in a charming place is steadily increasing. These are the foremost enemies of the billboard. At the same time they are the ones who are able to turn scenery into gold."

"Leaks cost money-stop 'em!"

"If you don't get that oil drip stopped you're going to run short some day and burn out a crank bearing before you know it. Look at the oil that's wasted, too. Long, black streaks along every road. Bad for tires. Dirties up running gear. And stop that leak from your pump gland. Water's cheap, but a dry radiator can make a lot of trouble.

"Big mistake, too, to let her leak and try to make up by just adding a quart or two of oil occasionally. Like adding a pint of fresh milk to a gallon of sour. You never get the real good out of new oil by mixing it with old."

The experienced Fleet Boss has learned to save money—to stop the leaks and fill her up every 500 miles with clean, fresh "Standard" Motor Oil of the correct consistency. It's a famous oil, made by men who have been in the game all their lives and whose fathers were in it before them. Experience counts in oil refining, as well as in running an economical fleet.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

The sun was just above the western sky-line, and the evening was particularly bright and clear one, so that the whole extent of the plateau was visible beneath me. It was, as seen from this height, of an oval contour, with a breadth of about thirty miles and a width of twenty. Its general shape was that of a shallow funnel, all the sides sloping down to a considerable lake in the center. This lake may have been ten miles in circumference, and lay very green and beautiful in the evening light, with a thick fringe of reeds at its edges, and with its surface broken by several yellow sandbanks, which gleamed golden in the mel- low sunshine. A number of long dark objects, which were too large for alligators and too long for ca- noes, lay upon the edges of these patches of sand. With my glass I could clearly see that they were alive, but what their nature might be I could not imagine.

From the side of the plateau on which we were, slopes of wood- land, with occasional glades, stretched down five or six miles to the central lake. I could see at my very feet the glade of the iguanodons, and farther off was a round opening in the trees which marked the swamp of the ptero- dactyls. On the side facing me, however, the plateau presented a very different aspect. There the basalt cliffs of the outside were reproduced upon the inside, form- ing an escarpment about two hun- dred feet high, with a woody slope beneath it. Along the base of these red cliffs, some distance above the ground, I could see a number of dark holes through the mass, which I conjectured to be the mouths of caves. At the open- ing of one of these something white was shimmering, but I was unable to make out what it was. I sat charting the country until the sun had set and it was so dark that I could no longer distinguish details. Then I climbed down to my companions waiting for me so eagerly at the bottom of the great tree. For once I was the hero of the expedition. Alone I had thought of it, and alone I had done it; and here was the chart which would save us a month's blind grop- ing among unknown dangers. Each of them shook me solemnly by the hand.

But before they discussed the details of my map I had to tell them of my encounter with the ape-man among the branches.

"He has been there all the time," said I.
"How do you know that?" asked Lord John.
"Because I have never been without the feeling that something malevolent was watching us. I mentioned it to you, Professor Challenger."
"Our young friend certainly said something of the kind. He is also the one among us who is endowed with that Celtic temperament which would make him sensitive to such impressions."
"The whole theory of telepa- thy—" began Summerlee, filling his pipe.

"Is too vast to be now dis- cussed," said Challenger, with de- cision. "Tell me, now" he added, with the air of a bishop address- ing a Sunday-school, "did you hap- pen to observe whether the crea- ture could cross its thumb over its palm?"
"No, indeed."
"Had it a tail?"
"No."
"Was the foot prehensile?"

"I do not think it could have made off so fast among the branches if it could not get a grip with its feet."
"In South America there are, if my memory serves me—you will check the observation, Professor Summerlee—some thirty-six spe- cies of monkeys, but the anthro- poid ape is unknown. It is clear, however, that he exists in this country, and that he is not the hairy, gorilla-like variety, which is never seen out of Africa or the East." (I was inclined to inter- polate, as I looked at him, that I had seen his first cousin in Ken- sington.) "This is a whiskered and colorless type, the latter char- acteristic pointing to the fact that he spends his days in arboreal se-clusion. The question which we have to face is whether he ap- proaches more closely to the ape or the man. In the latter case, he may well approximate to what the vulgar have called the 'missing link.' The solution of this problem is our immediate duty."

"It is nothing of the sort," said Summerlee, abruptly. "Now that, through the intelligence and activ- ity of Mr. Malone (I cannot help quoting the words), 'we have got our chart, our one and only im- mediate duty is to get ourselves safe and sound out of this awful place.' 'The flesh-pots of civilization,' groaned Challenger.
"The ink-pots of civilization, sir."

It is our task to put on record what we have seen, and to leave the further exploration to others. You all agreed as much before Mr. Malone got us the chart.

"Well," said Challenger, "I ad- mit that my mind will be more at ease when I am assured that the result of our expedition has been conveyed to our friends. How we are to get down from this place I have not as yet an idea. I have never yet encountered any prob- lem, however, which my inventive brain was unable to solve, and I promise you that tomorrow I will turn my attention to the question of our descent."

And so the matter was allowed to rest.
But that evening, by the light of the fire and of a single candle, the first map of the lost world was elaborated. Every detail which I had roughly noted from my watch- tower was drawn out in its rela- tive place. Challenger's pencil hovered over the great blank which marked the lake.

"What shall we call it?" he asked.
"Why should you not take the chance of perpetuating your own name?" said Summerlee, with his usual touch of acidity.
"I trust, sir, that my name will have other and more personal claims upon posterity," said Chal- lenger, severely. "Any ignoramus can hand down his worthless mem- ory by imposing it upon a moun- tain or a river. I need no such monument."

Summerlee, with a twisted smile, was about to make some fresh as- sault when Lord John hastened to intervene.

"It's up to you, young fellow, to name the lake," said he. "You saw it first, and, by George, if you choose to put 'Lake Malone' on it, no one has a better right."
"By all means. Let our young friend give it a name," said Chal- lenger.

"Then," said I, blushing, I dare say, as I said it, "let it be named Lake Gladys."
"Don't you think the Central Lake would be more descriptive?" remarked Summerlee.
"I should prefer Lake Gladys."

Challenger looked at me sym- pathetically, and shook his great head in mock disapproval. "Boys will be boys," said he. "Lake Gladys let it be."

CHAPTER XII

"It was Dreadful in the Forest"

I have said—or perhaps I have not said, for my memory plays me sad tricks these days—that I glowed with pride when three such men as my comrades thanked me for having saved, or at least greatly helped, the situation. As the youngster of the party, not merely in years, but in experience, char- acter, knowledge, and all that goes to make a man, I had been over- shadowed from the first. And now I was coming into my own. I warmed at the thought. Alas! for the pride which goes before a fall! That little glow of self-satisfac- tion, that added measure of self- confidence, were to lead me on to that very night to the most dread- ful experience of my life, ending with a shock which turns my heart sick when I think of it.

It came about in this way. I had been unduly excited by the adventure of the tree, and sleep seemed to be impossible. Summer- lee was on guard, sitting haunched over our small fire, a quaint, angu- lar figure, his rifle across his knees and pointed, goat-like beard wagging with each weary nod of his head. Lord John lay silent, wrapped in the South American poncho which he wore, while Challenger snored with a roll and rattle which reverberated through the woods. The full moon was shining brightly, and the air was crisply cold. What a night for a walk! Add then suddenly came the thought, "Why not?" Suppose I stole softly away, suppose I made my way down to the central lake, suppose I was back at breakfast with some record of the place— would I not in that case be thought an even more worthy associate? Then, if Summerlee carried the day and some means of escape were found, we should return to London with first-hand knowledge of the central mystery of the pla- teau, to which I alone, of all men, would have penetrated. I thought of Gladys, with her "There are heroisms all round us." I seemed to hear her voice as she said it. I thought also of McArdle. What a three column article for the paper! What a foundation for a ca- reer! A correspondentship in the next great war might be with- in my reach. I clutched at a gun—my pockets were full of car- tridges—and, parting the thorn bushes at the gate of our zaraba, quickly slipped out. My last glance showed me the unconscious Summerlee, most futile of senti- nels, still nodding away like a queer mechanical toy in front of the smoldering fire.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE-ELECT.

Farmville, July 21.—Mrs. Ely Joyner, Misses Sarah Pollard and Bettie Joyner were hostesses at the home of Mrs. Joyner on Thursday afternoon at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Hazel Williams, who is to be married on the 23 of this month to Alva Jordan of Greenville. The veranda was decorated in baskets of rose crepe myrtle, ferns and daisies. The hostesses met the guests here, and directed them to the punch table, where Miss Tabitha De Visconti and Mrs. Sam Kittrell served. They were then introduced to the honoree who stood in the living room which was elegant with its baskets of pink roses, gladioli and pink and white candles in silver holders.

An unique and amusing contest was held. Miss Agnes Moore being the fortunate contestant, was presented with a rolling pin which she presented to the bride-elect who was also presented with a graceful arm bouquet of Sweetheart roses. Miss Bettie Joyner then asked Miss Williams to follow the "White Way," which would lead to "Treasure Island." This proved to be a silken white cord which wound its intricate way to the dining room table, over which hung an immense white wedding bell from which streamers of tulle extended to the corners and were caught in large bows with lilies of the valley. There were three arches from which were suspended lovely bells and under the tallest, centre arch stood the tiny bride and groom. It was a veritable treasure land for there were numberless beautiful gifts for the bride-elect.

No bride within the recollection of the guests has received lovelier things than did Miss Williams on this occasion. The dining room was decorated in crepe myrtle, rose canvases and in silver holders and here delicious Miami Beach, Fla. In the afternoon pink and white ices, mints and the orchestra will give a concert in the evening. The dancing will be served by Misses Irma Joyner, Mamie Ruth Smith and Mrs. C. F. Bacon. The favors were most attractive being appropriate to the wedding festivities.

Master Hector McLean Has No Aspirations To Ever Be "Governor"

Raleigh July 20.—Four-year-old Hector McLean, the Governor's youngest son, has no gubernatorial aspirations, he declared. He doesn't care to "grow up and be Governor." While making this assertion he sat "writing a letter" on a typewriter in the executive mansion office. He explained that the letter was "purely personal." He was telling a friend, he said, about some new rabbits that had come into his possession.

"Do you like it up here in Raleigh?" he was asked.

"O, I like it well enough," he replied, looking out over the lawn. "I've got rabbits, and Rags—he's my dog, you know—has plenty of room, but he is likely to run away again."

But Hector did not want to be Governor. Political ambition was the least of his worries.

About that time some callers entered and Hector took his "letter out of the typewriter and sauntered into the library.

"Great boy, that," somebody in the crowd remarked to the Governor.

"Yes," he replied. "And I get a whole lot of pleasure out of having him here with me.

"Those boys of mine are fond of their rabbits and dogs, continued the executive he too, forgetting the weighty State affairs for a time.

"I'll never forget what the young Wilton said to me one day during the legislature continued the Governor.

"After a strenuous week, I had decided to spend Sunday at home, in Lumberton. As soon as I got into the house, Wilton came running up and excitedly asked, 'Is it true they're passing a law up in Raleigh that all dogs must be vaccinated? I told him they were talking about passing such a law. 'Well, they won't vaccinate my dogs,' he said. 'O, yes, they will if the law passes,' I explained. 'You know we all have to obey the law.

"Wilton then looked at me thoughtfully for a moment and asked: 'Do you mean to tell me you can't keep them from vaccinating my dogs?'"

"I told him I would not try,—that law was law.

"And you the Governor, too?" he asked in a spirit of almost disgust.

"Governors and their folks have to obey the law same as anybody else," I expostulated.

"Then, what's the use of being Governor?" he asked. "If you can't govern anything? I haven't seen anything yet for you to govern, except the legislature—and if you can't govern the legislature and keep them from vaccinating my dogs—pahaw, I don't see any good in being governor, anyhow."

SURGEON PERFORMS SUCCESSFUL OPERATION WITH JACK KNIFE

Cordova, Alaska.—A tonsil operation was performed recently at Bering River on Controller Bay, 60 miles east of here, by Dr. W. W. Council of Cordova, with a jack-knife and denatured alcohol.

When Dr. Council arrived at Bering River from a hunting trip he was scalled on to handle the case. He had no implements. With the crude outfit he performed the operation with success. No anesthetic was administered. The alcohol was used to sterilize the knife.

BERLIN ZOO PURCHASES COACH ONCE USED BY NAPOLEON'S SON

SCHOOL DAYS By DICK

Ricardo Cortez and Jetta Goudal in "The Spaniard," A Paramount Picture

The matador, master of maddened bulls, is, perhaps, the greatest of all national heroes.

Matching speed of human brain and limb against a wild, baited beast, only a slender steel blade standing between him and sickening mutilation, the matador surpasses all other national idols.

The roar of the American throng paying homage to the superman of the baseball diamond or the football field dies to a whisper before the thunder of applause with which Spain greets its favorite of the bull ring. The most colorful gathering at the Epsom Downs derby or the Yale-Harvard gridiron classic fades to drab tones compared with the kaleidoscopic brilliance of the arena in Madrid on a summer holiday.

Those unacquainted with the history of Spain and the character of its people find it difficult to understand the intense national feeling of affection behind the beloved matador or bull fighter of the Land of Alhambra. The heroes of other countries pale under the honors, glory and worship deluged upon the head of a popular matador by the great mass of the Spanish people.

"The Spaniard," opening a two days' run at White's Theatre yesterday is based on the highly successful novel by that name by Juanita Savage. Cortez is featured with Jetta Goudal and Noah Beery in the leading roles.

It is against the colorful background of the bull-fight that much of the action in the picture takes place. Raoul Walsh, the producer, is claimed to have brought to the screen all the spectacle and human interest of this great national sport of Spain.

Emily Fitzroy and others appear in the supporting cast of the production, which was adapted for the screen by J. T. O'Donohoe again today.

AIRPLANES WILL USE STEAM AS POWER, BRITON PREDICTS

Cardiff—The use of steam engines in airplanes was predicted by Dr. boiler would be much smaller and John S. Haldane at the annual meeting of the Institute of Mining Engineers.

In the course of a paper on coal and steam, Dr. Haldane said in the very near future he believed steam engines would take the place of internal combustion engines to a very great extent, and that future development of the steam engine would bring along the lines of increased steam pressure with smaller and lighter engines. The complete engine and Another scientist, Sr John Cadman, said he looked upon oil as a phase which was passing. What oil was doing today coal would do again tomorrow, although oil would go into certain channels of use which coal would never again be able to regain.

Robert M. Koenig Found Remedy For Pimply Skin

For years my skin would break out every once in a while—and ointments did very little to help me.

I read a doctor's article stating that pimply skin usually comes from the stomach—and bowels not getting rid of the poisons.

I tried Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days—and since that time my skin is smooth and clear. Now I tell my friends the right way of getting rid of a broken out skin—and also of steering clear of upset stomach and sick headache. Carter's are all you claim for them.
