FUNERAL SERVICES FOR WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN WILL BE HELD ON FRIDAY

Services Will Be Held From the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington; Body Lies in State in Dayton Today; Hour of Funeral Not Announced

Dayton, July 28.—Funeral services for William Jennings Bryan will be held at Washington in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church sometime Friday afternoon, Mrs. Bryan announced today.

The Reverend Wallace Radcliffe, pastor of the church where final services for the former Secretary of State will be held, has been for many years a great friend to the Commoner and his family.

The exact time of the funeral will depend upon the arrival in Washington of members of the family now enroute from California.

Dayton, July 28.—As the body of William Jennings Bryan lay in simple state at the home of a friend today a simple people of America paid him sympathetic tribute. While notes from among their mist-poured messages of condolence into the little white cottage which housed the remains of the Commoner, uncounted thousands, whose causes he had championed, mourned a leader silently. Of varying political views he had found in them, a Common chord when he came forward as a defender of the inspired Bible and revealed religion.

Among the foot hills of the Cumberland, where he had spent the closing days of his career, farmers paused to talk with neighbors of the man who had passed. In simple terms they spoke of him as they had heard him during the past several weeks or laid aside their work in orchards and corn fields and made their way to Dayton where the body this afternoon will lie in state.

Lightly they stepped as they left the side walk and passed up the four cement steps to the grassy lawn where rested the bronze casket. Conversation ceased and they were silent as they viewed the classic features of him who last they heard and cheered as he defended the Bible, in which they believed.

Few of them ventured to intrude upon the widow. Believed of the burden of preparation, which she has borne unaided, she today found more time to contemplate the tributes of affectionate persons, which had come after her husband had passed on, and to think on the acclaim millions of hearts were bestowing upon the memory of their fallen leader.

Hearing in Evolution Suit Is Postponed Until Friday

Washington, July 28.—A hearing in Washington's evolution suit was postponed today until Friday. On that day the motion of the government to dismiss the case will have preferred status as the question before the court.

The delay was agreed to when counsel for Loren H. Wittner, who brought the suit in an effort to stop the pay of local school authorities, insisted that more time was needed to study the government's motion to dismiss, filed yesterday.

Mr. E. S. Peele, of Williamston was here today.

PROTESTS AGAINST WAGE REDUCTION TEXTILE INDUSTRY

President of American Federation of Labor Says Action is Not Based on Reason, Fairness or Doctrine

Washington, July 28.—Protests against the reduction of wages in the textile industry was made today by President Green of the American Federation of Labor, who declared such action was not to be based on reason, fairness or doctrine.

Mr. Green wrote to Robert Amory, President of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and to Andrew G. Pierce, President of the American Woolen Co., declaring action taken by them represented the power of force and might.

"It is economically and morally and wrong," he said, "to require the purchasing power of the workers engaged in textile manufacturing through the imposition by force of a reduction in wages, while wage levels are maintained in practically all other lines."

LOCAL ROTARIANS TURN ATTENTION TO CIVIC AFFAIRS

Effort Being Made to Have River Bridge Lighted and Take New Census for Greenville

The river bridge here will soon be lighted and a new census for the city will soon be taken if the projects now under consideration by the local Rotary Club are brought to a successful end. Both these matters were thoroughly discussed at last night's business meeting of the organization and committees were appointed to go into the propositions immediately.

The matters of lighting the bridge and taking the census were brought before the club following an address by Mayor D. M. Clark on "Is Rotary Accomplishing What It Should for the Community?" The proposition of lighting the bridge was presented by W. H. Dail and a committee was appointed to take the matter up immediately with the Board of Aldermen in an effort to get the work completed prior to the opening of the local tobacco market when traffic over the bridge becomes very heavy.

J. B. Kittrell urged upon the club Greenville's need for an accurate census and a committee was appointed to go into the details of having a census taken. It is the intention of the club to have the census taken under the supervision of a government expert in order that the government will certify the figures after they are compiled.

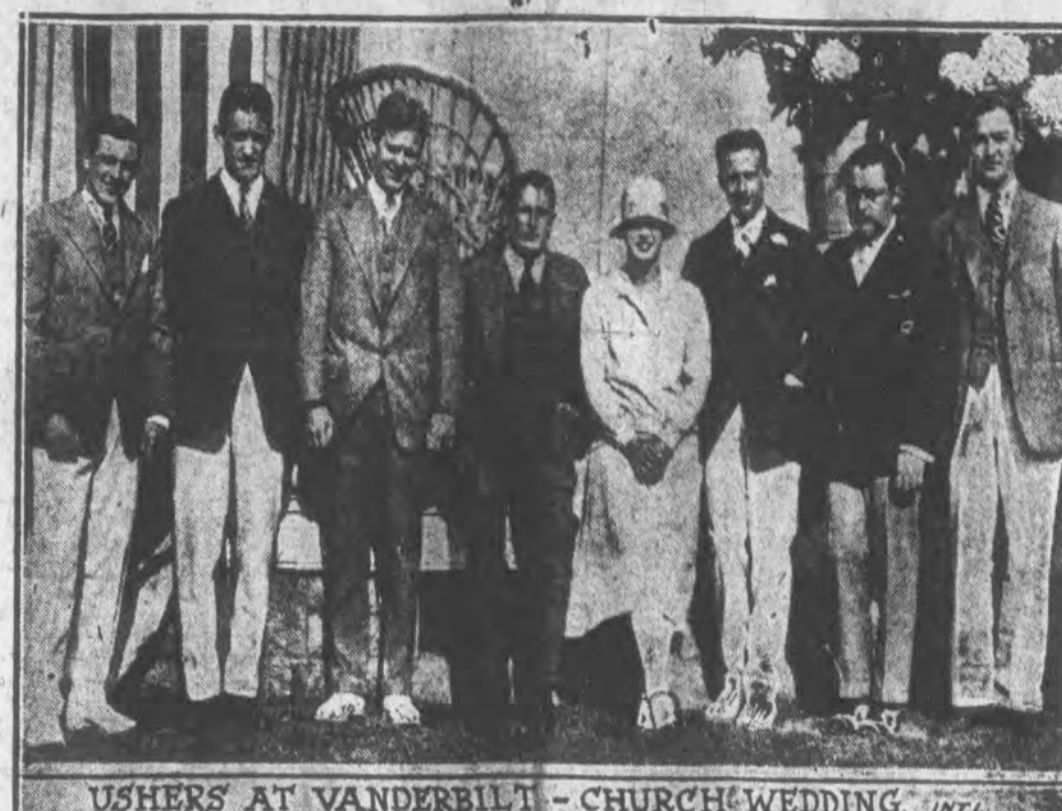

R. H. Wright, president of the Inter City Conference of Eastern North Carolina Clubs announced that the next Inter-City Meet would be held in Morehead City next month. The date of the meeting has not yet been announced.

Visiting Rotarians at last night's meeting were J. R. Turnage, of Ayden, and G. A. Rouse, D. E. Oglesby and James Wheelless, of Farmville, all of whom made short talks to the club.

Believes Attention of Congress Should Center Co-operative Marketing

Swampscott, July 28.—Discussion of the agricultural situation, between President Coolidge and Congressional leaders, who are visiting White Court for conferences, has revealed a general agreement that legislation in the next Congress should be limited to enactment of a co-operative marketing bill. This is the main recommendation of the Presidential agricultural conferences still remaining to be translated into law.

President Coolidge has favored passage of a co-operative marketing measure, although he is of the opinion it would be best for Congress to work out the details. This opinion also was expressed yesterday by Representative Purnell, Representative of Indiana, who called on the President, reporting to the executive that farmers of the Middle West were enjoying prosperity with good prices in prospect for their crop, he said he believed the attention of Congress should be centered on Co-Operative marketing.

DENIES COOLIDGE HAS GIVEN UP HOPE ARMS CONFERENCE

President Thinks Consummation of European Security Pact Would Lay Broad Foundation Disarmament

Swampscott, Mass., July 28.—Consummation of the European security pact, in the opinion of President Coolidge, would lay a broad foundation for further disarmament. Published reports that the President had given up hope of another armament conference were denied today at the Summer White House, although it was pointed out that conditions in Europe are not yet propitious for initiating a definite move for a conference.

It was stated that there had been no change in the status of the proposals, which thus far have been confined to preliminary and rather indefinite suggestions from the administration that it would make an effort to have a conference called when ever there appeared to be any likelihood of its going through to a successful termination.

Coolidge Not In Sympathy Abolishing Fed. Trade Comm.

Swampscott, Mass., July 28.—President Coolidge believes that Federal Trade Commission has a useful function and is not in sympathy with suggestions that it should be abolished.

Mr. Coolidge is of the belief that some of the practices of the commission might well be modified so as to avoid public injustices to legitimate industry, but he has not reached any conclusion as to what changes in methods should be adopted.

WHITE MAN CAUGHT WHILE OPERATING STILL LAST NIGHT

J. J. Saunders Placed in Jail on Charge of Manufacturing Whiskey; Released Today Under Bond

J. J. Saunders, white man, living on the farm of Mr. J. L. Speight, in Greenville Township, was arrested last night on a charge of manufacturing whiskey, and was placed in the Pitt county jail. He was released this morning under bond, for his appearance at the next term of criminal court.

Saunders was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Whitehurst, Officers Sellars and Fulford while operating a still which was located 100 yards to the rear of the Old Pitt County Court House. A negro who was at the still with Saunders succeeded in making his get-away.

The still was of a 80 gallon capacity and had a double worm. It was in full operation and five gallons of whiskey had already been made when the officers arrived.

The still was taken and six hundred gallons of beer destroyed.

RUM RUNNER MAKES DARING ENTRY INTO NEW YORK HARBOR

Whiskey Valued at $250,000 Gobbled Up By Bootleggers Before Custom Officers Knew Vessel Had Landed

New York, July 28.—The government blockade of the Atlantic Coast has been run by the biggest liquor laden vessel ever seized in New York Harbor. Champaign, whiskey and cordial valued at $250,000 were landed and gobbled up by bootleggers before custom officers knew what was happening. When they arrived at the dock on the Hudson River where yesterday morning they found the 200 ton steamer, Augusta, empty except for fifteen bottles of liquor in the officers headquarters. The crew was lolling about the deck in kid gloves. Acting captain, Charles Wilson, and 24 men were arrested and the ship, a $250,000 twin screw freighter, was seized.

Howard Barnes, assistant solicitor to the collector of the port, said Wilson should haul down the American flag and hoist the black banner of the pirates. The ship had no customs papers, none of the officers had a license, no logue was kept, and there were no ship's articles giving the names of the crew.

Customs officers described the landing of the liquor as the most daring, rum running feat in the history of the prohibition enforcement. Two weeks ago there were tips off that the Augusta had taken on its liquor cargo from a vessel off New Orleans, and was heading for New York. Despite precautions, the Augusta slipped in past the scores of coast guard ships through the busiest section of the harbor, transferred the cargo to a lighter, and sold the liquor to retailers.

Average for Today's Sales About Same as Opening Last Year; Indications Are That Chinese Boycott Will Not Affect Prices

Private reports from the Georgia tobacco market which opened this morning, indicate an average price of around 16 cents per pound throughout the belt which is about the same as last season's opening average. The report did not indicate the probable number of pounds offered in today's sales.

While it was feared at one time the recent Chinese boycott would seriously affect the prices on the American markets this season assurance has been given that the Chinese Government has nothing against America and that the American products will not be included in the boycott.

PAINTING, BELIEVED A VANDYCK OF CHARLES I, FOUND IN OSLO

Oslo—Art circles here are greatly interested in the discovery of a painting which experts are inclined to believe to be a portrait by Vandyck of King Charles I of England.

The picture was purchased by an Oslo solicitor recently. It depicts the king at about the age of 35, dressed in a suit of dark velvet with a broad collar of fine lace, and with hair falling in long curls over his shoulders.

The owner has had photographic copies made and despatched them to every famous gallery in Europe where contemporary portraits of Charles I are known to be. Experts at these galleries are reported to have unanimously pronounced that the original is not a copy of any known portrait of the king.

Miss Julia Hunter Parham, of Kinston who has been visiting Miss Elizabeth Phelps returned home yesterday.

REAL COMMUNITY SERVICE

When the local Rotary Club completes its present undertakings, the lighting of the river bridge and the taking of a new census for Greenville the club will have rendered another real service to the community. For more than a year the club has been making an effort to get the bridge lighted but the last time the matter was brought before the County Commissioners, Board of Aldermen and Water and Light Commission there was coupled with the lighting proposal an effort to have a walkway built onto the bridge. The walkway phase of the proposition was found unfeasible and the whole matter was dropped.

That the bridge is unsafe without lights is plain to everyone who has occasion to use it at night and when the tobacco markets open in September and the night traffic consisting mostly of trucks and wagons over the bridge becomes heavier the bridge will be even more dangerous than at present. The proposal to light the bridge has the approval of the individual members of the Board of County Commissioners and the Board of Aldermen and it is hoped that when the committee from the Rotary Club puts the matter up to the Water and Light Commission the work will go forward without delay.

THE MODEL COMMUNITY

The following are the requirements of a model rural community as set forth by The Banker-Farmer:

- A model rural community
- Will have good roads
- Will be patriotic
- Will be prosperous
- Will be sanitary
- Will be ambitious
- Will be cooperative
- Will have good schools
- Will be law-abiding
- Will be God-fearing.

A community with these characteristics does not merely happen. It becomes so only as a direct result of well-planned thinking and doing of men and women who have vision, personality, a tactful judgment, and the ability to do common things in an uncommon way. It is safe to say that a community will be just as strong and progressive as its citizenship.

OLD VETERAN BELIEVES HE COULD WIN FOOT RACE

"Why, This Medicine, Karnak, Has Built Me Up So I Am Like a Young Man," Says Thos. Welborn

The thin gray line of heroes of the "Sixties" are fast fading away and those that are left have reached that ripe old age where most every activity calls for exertion, but out in the Wake County Soldiers' Home in Raleigh, N. C., one of the beloved old fellows, who says he believes he could beat any man in a two mile foot race.

He is Thomas J. Welborn, one of the finest old Southern gentlemen that ever lived and he can thrill you by the hours with stories of his experience while fighting the "Yankees." But none of those war stories are more interesting or more full of human interest than what he tells about this new medicine Karnak, and how it has built him up until he is spry as a colt.

"I've seen a lot of surprising things happen in my day," says Mr. Welborn, "but none of them were ever more wonderful than the way this medicine Karnak has put me back on my feet. Why, if this medicine can take an old 89 year soldier and get him to where he feels as spry as a colt, like it's done me, what will it do for younger people?"

"Yes, sir, this Karnak is the most amazing medicine I ever saw or heard tell of. Why, I can jump out now and walk clear to the Capitol building and back as quick as anybody. That's about two miles and "by Cracky," I believe I can get out and beat anybody doing it, too."

"I was in pretty bad shape, too, when I began taking Karnak. I had been suffering a whole lot of misery from bronchial catarrh and indigestion for the past ten or twelve years and had gotten to where I could hardly walk to town."

"I was just about past going with bloating up from gas and shortness of breath that would make me pant like a tired dog on a hot day. That stomach trouble had weakened me so much and pulled me down so that the bronchial catarrh was about to knock me out. Sometimes in the morning when I would get up it looked like I was going to choke to death."

"I got to hearing so much about Karnak that I sent and got me a bottle. Why, it just knocked my troubles sky high before you could say "Jack Robinson." Did everything for me that is claimed, and more too."

"Yes, sir, all that indigestion and catarrh is gone and I feel better all over than I have in years. My whole system is toned up and I have got more than twice the strength I used to have. I am eating and sleeping like a man twenty years younger."

"These Karnak Pills are wonderful, too. I never saw anything act as fine as they do. And as for Karnak, well, if I ever need any more medicine, it's sure going to be Karnak."

Karnak is sold in Greenville by B. S. Warren's, and by leading drug gists everywhere.

To understand why U.S. Royal Balloons are known as "the Balloon Tire Principle at its Best," consider these facts—

THE comfort you get out of balloon tires depends on how soft you can run them with safety to the tires.

U.S. Royal Balloons are built in strict accordance with the original conception of balloon tire cushioning—true low air pressure.

They can be run at pressures which actually give you the comfort you expect from a balloon tire.

They do not have to be over-inflated to save them from early, uneven and disfiguring tread wear.

This is because their flat "Low-Pressure Tread" distributes the weight over a greater tread area than the ordinary round tread.

The entire surface of the tread comes in contact with the road.

The tire itself is built of the famous Latex-treated Web Cord, which gives the maximum strength and maximum flexibility so essential to balloon cushioning.

Put U.S. Royal Balloons on your car and enjoy the comfort of riding on genuine low air pressure.

Madman that I was to linger so long before I fled! Up to then he had hunted by scent, and his movement was slow. But he had actually seen me as I started to run. From then onwards he had hunted by sight, for the path showed him where I had gone. Now, as he came round the curve, he was springing in great bounds. The moonlight shone upon his huge projecting eyes, the row of enormous teeth in his open mouth, and the gleaming fringe of claws upon his short, powerful forearms. With a scream of terror I turned and rushed wildly down the path. Behind me the thick, gasping breathing of the creature sounded louder and louder. His heavy footfall was beside me. Every instant I expected to feel his grip upon my back. And then suddenly there came a crash—I was falling through space, and everything beyond was darkness and rest.

As I emerged from my unconsciousness—which could not, I think, have lasted more than a few minutes—I was aware of a most dreadful and penetrating smell. Putting out my hand in the darkness I came upon something which felt like a huge lump of meat, while my other hand closed upon a large bone. Up above me there was a circle of starlit sky, which showed me that I was lying at the bottom of a deep pit. Slowly I staggered to my feet and felt myself all over. I was stiff and sore from head to foot, but there was no limb which would not move, no joint which could not bend. As the circumstances of my fall came back into my confused brain, I looked up covered by branches, across the paths which marked the run of the animals as would destroy them in spite of all their strength and activity. Man was always the master. The sloping wall of the pit was not difficult for an active man to climb, but I hesitated long before I trusted myself within reach of the dreadful creature which had so nearly destroyed me. How did I know that he was not lurking in the nearest clump of bushes, waiting for my reappearance? I took heart, however, as I recalled a conversation between Challenger and Summerlee upon the habits of the great saurians. Both were agreed that the monsters were practically brainless, that there was no room for reason in their tiny cranial cavities, and that if they have disappeared from the rest of the world it was assuredly on account of their own stupidity, which made it impossible for them to adapt themselves to changing conditions. To lie in wait for me now would mean that the creature had appreciated what had happened to me, and this in turn would argue some power connecting cause and effect. Sure it was more likely that a brainless creature, acting solely by vague predatory instinct, would give up the chase when I disappeared, and, after a pause of astonishment, would wander away in search of some other prey? I clambered to the edge of the pit and looked over. The stars were fading, the sky was whitening, and the cold wind of morning blew pleasantly upon my face. I could see or hear nothing of my enemy. Slowly I climbed out and sat for a while upon the ground, ready to spring back into my refuge if any danger should appear. Then, reassured by the absolute stillness and by the growing light, I took my courage in both hands and stole back along the path which I had come. Some distance down it

As I emerged from my unconsciousness... I was aware of a most dreadful and penetrating smell.

In terror, expecting to see that dreadful head silhouetted against the palling sky. There was no sign of the monster, however, nor could I hear any sound from above. I began to walk slowly round, therefore, feeling in every direction to find out what this strange place could be into which I had been so opportunely precipitated.

It was, as I have said, a pit, with sharply-sloping walls and a level bottom about twenty feet across. This bottom was littered with great gobbets of flesh, most of which was in the last state of putridity. The atmosphere was poisonous and horrible. After tripping and stumbling over these lumps of decay, I came suddenly against something hard, and I found that an upright post was firmly fixed in the center of the hollow. It was so high that I could not reach the top of it with my hand, and it appeared to be covered with grease.

Suddenly I remembered that I had a tin box of wax-vestas in my pocket. Striking one of them, I was able at last to form some opinion of this place into which I had fallen. There could be no question as to its nature. It was a trap—made by the hand of man. The post in the center, some nine feet long, was sharpened at the upper end, and was black with the stale blood of the creatures who had been impaled upon it. The remains scattered about were fragments of the victims, which had been cut away in order to clear the stake for the next who might blunder in. I remembered that Challenger had declared that man could not exist upon the plateau, since with his feeble weapons he could not hold his own against the monsters who roamed over it. But now it was clear enough how it could be done. In their narrow-mouthed caves the natives, whoever they might be, had refuges into which the huge saurians could not penetrate, while with their developed brains they picked up my gun, and shortly afterwards struck the brook which was my guide. So, with many a frightened backward glance, I made for home.

And suddenly there came something to remind me of my absent companions. In the clear, still morning air there sounded far away the sharp, hard note of a single rifle-shot. I paused and listened, but there was nothing more. For a moment I was shocked at the thought that some sudden danger might have befallen them. But then a simpler and more natural explanation came to my mind. It was now broad daylight. No doubt my absence had been noticed. They had imagined that I was lost in the woods, and had fired this shot to guide me home. It is true that we had made a strict resolution against firing, but if it seemed to them that I might be in danger they would not hesitate. It was for me now to hurry on as fast as possible, and so to reassure them.

I was weary and spent, so my progress was not so fast as I wished; but at last I came into regions which I knew. There was the swamp of the pterodactyls upon my left; there in front of me was the glade of the Iguanodons. Now I was in the last belt of trees which separated me from Post Challenger. I raised my voice in a cheery shout to allay their fears. No answering greeting came back to me. My heart sank at that ominous stillness. I quickened my pace into a run. The zarpa rose before me, even as I had left it, but the gate was open. I rushed in. In the cold, morning light it was a fearful sight which met my eyes. Our effects were scattered in wild confusion over the ground; my comrades had disappeared, and close to the smouldering ashes of our fire the grass was stained crimson with a hideous pool of blood.

WHITE'S THEATRE WEDNESDAY

Corinne Griffith in 'DeLasse'

A narrow street, only twenty feet wide, furnishes the basis for Warner Bros. motion picture of the same name, that promises to delight the patrons of White's Theatre Wednesday.

Being the screen version of the novel by Edwin Bateman Morris, "The Narrow Street," presents a story as interesting and surprising as those crooked little alleys that twist and turn their way across crowded cities.

To outward appearances, Simon Haldane, played by Matt Moore, is as unobtrusive and retiring as the narrow street he lives on, until one stormy night, he finds his bachelor quarters invaded by a nameless girl, who asks for refuge from the inclement weather and the police.

Dorothy Devore, vivacious comedy star, characterizes the intruding Doris with all the charm of a beautiful and cultured girl in straightened

Many embarrassing situations are cleverly evaded by the quick-thinking Doris, whose mysterious presence introduces the staid bachelor to a new vista of things as they might be, if William Beaudine is responsible for the direction of "The Narrow Street," which was adapted for the screen by Julien Josephson. It is the same in every department of this company. At every stage in the refining, shipping and marketing of our products you will find that the men in important positions have had life-long experience in the oil industry to fit them for their work.
