DRY ENFORCEMENT TAKEN OUT OF THE HANDS OF HAYNES

After September 1, Haynes Will Act Only in an Advisory Capacity to Assistant Secretary Andrews

Washington, Aug. 3.—Dry enforcement today was ordered to be taken definitely out of the hands of Prohibition Commissioner Ray A. Haynes, who after September 1, will act only in an advisory capacity to assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury.

Commissioner Blair of the Internal Revenue Bureau, who has jurisdiction over prohibition units signed the decree which stripped the present enforcement headquarters of its major process. The order, which had been forecast, will carry out the treasury plan for a new line up when the prohibition reorganization plans go into effect, the first of next month.

Nearly all the duties of Mr. Haynes' office will devolve upon the 22 prohibition administrators to be appointed and who will have headquarters in various sections of the country. At the prohibition officers here, it was said, Mr. Haynes would find plenty of work to occupy his time. The nature of the work was not disclosed.

The prohibition commissioner was absent from Washington today. It was said, however, that he would continue for the present to occupy the office and to co-operate with Mr. Andrews. He is expected however to enter the gubernatorial contest in Ohio as a candidate for the Republican nomination.

An order relieving prohibition Commissioner Haynes of authority with respect to the suspension of the question of intoxicating liquors was made public today at the Treasury in connection with the reorganization of the prohibition unit effective on September 1.

The order signed by Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair is addressed to the Prohibition Commissioner and the Prohibition directors. It provides that where any authority now is delegated to, or the performances of any duty is required of the prohibition commissioner, or of prohibition directors, relating to intoxicating liquors such authority shall be vested, and the duty shall be performed by the prohibition administrators, who are to be appointed for the 22 districts into which the country will be divided for administrative purposes.

Where authority is required to be exercised where duty performed by the prohibition director with the advice, concurrent, or approval of the prohibition commissioner such advice concurrent or approval will not be required in the future.

Says Farmers' Success Depends on Individual Agriculturists

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—The success of 1,784,000 American farmers representing products worth $2,500,000,000 annually depends in large measure on the individual agriculturists, Lloyd S. Tenney, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Agriculture economics of the Department of Agriculture stated to members of the American Institution of Co-operation here today.

"The great pyramid of co-operation is built with more than a million and a half blocks, each one of them representing an American farmer," he said. "Any one of these blocks is the key stone of the pyramid. If one of the blocks falls to do its part the structure as a whole will not be perfect." Frank F. Burchard said that proper management was one of the vital factors in the success of co-operative work.

FAMOUS OLD WESTERN CEMETERY CLOSED BY MARCH OF PROGRESS

Los Angeles.—Latest of the famous landmarks of the Southwest to be mowed down by the sickle of progress is the old Calvary cemetery here which played a part in the early history of the region. Not since 1896 has a funeral cortege passed through the cemetery's gates.

KLANSMEN AND ANTI-SYMPATHIZERS IN PITCHED BATTLE

Klan's Meeting in Field Ends in Riot Which Police of Three Towns Are Unable to Squash

Westwood, Mass., Aug. 3.—Injury to a dozen or more persons, the wrecking of a farm house here, and the arrest of three men for carrying concealed weapons with the aftermath of the Ku Klux Klan's first attempt to hold a meeting in this district since the state police stopped supplying guards for Klan gatherings.

The meeting held in a field just off the Boston-Providence highway here yesterday ended in a riot which the police of three towns were unable to quell. A mob of 500 anti-Klan sympathizers and three score Klansmen staged a pitched battle with sticks, rocks, and bricks. Although fire arms were in evidence no shots were fired.

Most of the Klansmen escaped in their cars, but a few were bottled up in the house of Stephen Blakey where they huddled in the cellar while several windows were smashed and much of the furniture was demolished under a hail of rocks from the outside. Appeal by Westwood town officers finally brought four state troopers, who dispersed the crowd escorted the bereaved Klansmen to safety. They arrested three men said to be Klansmen on charges of carrying concealed weapons.

DECLARES CHARRED BODY NOT SCHWARTZ

Vice-President and General Manager Pacific Cellulose Supposed to Be Victims of Explosion

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—Henry Schwartz, vice president and general manager of the Pacific Cellulose Company, who was supposed to have met death in his own laboratory at Walnut Creek last Thursday by an explosion, was sought by Sheriff Robert R. Veale today.

Arthur J. Nielson, a dental expert declared, after a minute examination of the charred body found in Schwartz's laboratory, that "this dead man is not Schwartz. The teeth vary widely from Schwartz's teeth."

Schwartz carried $180,000 in life insurance. Joe Rodriguez, a laborer, has been missing since the explosion. District Attorney Tinning announced today that he had withdrawn permission to Mrs. Schwartz yesterday to proceed with the funeral of the body which she insists is her husband's.

You can announce that Schwartz in wanted for murder, the San Francisco examiner quotes Tinning as saying. "This body is positively not Schwartz's."

Rough Water Causes Miss Ederle Postpone Swimming Channel

Boulogne, France, Aug. 3.—Rough water has compelled Miss Gertrude Ederle, the American swimmer, to postpone her attempt to swim the English Channel. She was to have started early this morning. Miss Ederle's attempt probably will be made next Saturday or Monday, when conditions are expected to be more favorable.

A BEAUTIFUL INNOVATION

St. Paul's Congregation Sends Sympathetic Message to Mrs. William Jennings Bryan

A rather unusual occurrence for an Episcopal Church service took place at St. Paul's, in this city yesterday morning.

After making the announcements for the week, the Rector, the Rev. James E. W. Cook, proposed the following resolution:

"WHEREAS, in the inscrutable wisdom of God, one of our national leaders, William Jennings Bryan, has been called to pass through the veil which divides the here from the hereafter;

And WHEREAS, we recognize in him and in his life's story one of the most remarkable characters of our age;—A peerless leader, of whom it could never be said, as was said of Edmund Burke,

"Who meant for the universe, narrowed his mind,

"And to party gave up what was meant for mankind;"

A man who might have boasted with Sir Galahad of old,

"My strength is as the strength of ten, Because my heart is pure;"

A fearless and chivalrous Knight, whose lance was ever uplifted in the cause of the common people; a staunch defender of the Faith against foes, real or imagined; a lowly lover of God and His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord; a reverent believer in the revelation of the Holy Scriptures, and in the personal and present guidance of the Holy Ghost;

And WHEREAS, we believe he has entered into the realm in which Science and Revelation are united in the fuller knowledge of God's plans and purposes; where no strife, or division, or ignorance, caused by sin, can mar the harmonious blending of all Truth;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that we extend to Mrs. Bryan and the family of our sincere condolences in their personal loss, with the assurance of our prayers that they may be comforted by the God of all comfort, and "sorrow not as others who have no hope"; believing that after their steps have trod the "narrow, star-lit strip between the companionship of yesterday and the re-union of tomorrow," it will be to meet their loved one again in the glorious presence of our Lord."

Signifying their unanimous adoption of this tribute to the living and the dead, the congregation arose, and while standing, sang the well-known hymn:

"For all the Saints, who from their labors rest, Who Thee by Faith before the world confessed, Thy Name, O Jesus, be for ever blessed, Alleluia, Alleluia!"

It was, as we have said, an innovation for the Episcopal Church as far as our experience goes; but it was the most beautiful and appropriate recognition of the death of a National Statesman that we have ever witnessed.

418 Killed in Auto Accidents In Four Weeks

Washington, Aug. 3.—The number of deaths, caused by automobiles in 67 American cities from which statistics are being collected by the Commerce Department, totaled 418 during the four weeks ending July 18, as compared with 417 in the previous four weeks ending June 20. Automobile fatalities in the same cities from January 1 to July 18 numbered 2,511 while the total for the year 1924 was 4,392, and for 1923 it was 4,827. The estimated population of the cities for which the figures are given is 36,821,000.

Doughton Declares Auto Department Never in Better Shape

Raleigh, Aug. 3.—Following a conference with Governor McLean, Rufus A. Doughton, Commissioner of Revenue, was expected to issue a statement late today on the state of affairs at the Automobile Department as the result of a story to the effect that there had been duplication of effort there.

Governor McLean indicated that he knew nothing of the situation further than what he had read in some newspapers, but Mr. Doughton had assured him that the affairs of the department were "never in better shape."

Brick Layers Go On Strike Today

New York, Aug. 3.—A new phase in the inter-union conflict between brick layers and plasterers developed today when brick layers employed by George A. Fuller Construction Company went on a strike in all building projects in this city, Washington, D. C., and Florida. Officers of the company said work was halted on approximately $20,000,000 worth of construction.

Auditors Still at Work on Statement Affairs at Prison

Raleigh, Aug. 3.—Governor McLean indicated today that "auditors were still at work" on material which will form the basis of a statement on the affairs at state prison. The executive was unwilling, he said, to accept any statement as final until it had been carefully and accurately prepared and checked.

TILDEN PLEDGES TO OBSERVE RULES LAWN TENNIS ASSN

Adjudged Guilty of Violating Player-Writer Rules Saves Himself From Suspension By Giving Written Promise

New York, Aug. 3.—The executive committee of the United States lawn tennis association holds a written pledge from William T. Tilden, the second, National Champion, signing him to give no more interviews for newspaper syndicate on Tennis Tournaments in which he is a competitor. Adjudged guilty of violating the player-writer rule by the committee yesterday, Tilden saved himself from suspension and disqualification by written promises strictly to observe the rule.

The committee ruled the giving of a daily interview by a player covering the progress of a tournament in which he was a competitor, was in no way different from writing a current article on the same event and that such a player "must be considered to have received pay, or a consideration for the 'interview.'"

Charged with such a violation, although he had previously claimed to be within his rights, Tilden assured the officials that in the future he would not be found guilty of a similar offense.

LABOR FEDERATION TO RETURN TO NON PARTISAN POLICY

Will Not Tie Itself Up to Any Third Party Movement; Will Vote for Their Supporters Regardless of Affiliations

Washington, Aug. 3.—The American Federation of Labor which in 1924 threw its support to the Independent Presidential Candidacy of the late Senator LaFollette, will henceforth return to its non partisan policy in political campaign and tie itself up to no third party movement.

The Federation executive council has emphatically announced its purpose, and the conclusion of its session here developed and mapped out a strenuous non partisan campaign to be waged in behalf of individuals representing the labor endorsement in next year's Congressional election regardless of party affiliations. Such endorsements will be suggested in reports now being prepared for the Federation's National Convention at Atlantic City October, dealing with content.

The counsel made organized labor position clear to leaders in the third party movement with the declaration that "no aid or comfort will be given those seeking to launch such movement. It thus carried further the dictum of the Federation's El Paso Convention that it "must be as free from political party domination now as at any time in its history."

The 1924 campaign, the counsel said, demonstrated that the launching of a third party movement, which generally expired after one election, is "wasted effort and injurious to the desire to elect candidates with favorable records. In calling on State Federations of Labor and Central Laboring bodies to prepare to give active assistance in the forthcoming campaign, the counsel warned them to be on guard particularly against efforts of "political bosses" to defeat a primary system for nominating candidates.

COOLIDGE STARTS ON THIRD YEAR AS HEAD OF NATION

Took Oath as President Just Before Dawn on August 3, 1923; Appears Satisfied Administration's Record

Swampscott, Mass., Aug. 3.—Calvin Coolidge started in today on his third year as President, seemingly satisfied with his administration's record and quietly perfecting plans for legislation and executive action during the remainder of his term.

Two years ago just before dawn on August 3, 1923, in his father's modest home at Plymouth, Vermont, Mr. Coolidge took the oath as President a few hours after the death of Warren G. Harding. Looking back over his White House incumbency, President Coolidge, his friends say, seems satisfied with the turn of events, the election results of last November having increased his confidence that his policies were meeting with approval.

In the isolation of his summer home where since his arrival six weeks ago, the President has been keeping in touch with government activities an from time to time has conferred with those who have a prominent part in the Nation's business. With at least a month more of vacation in prospect, it is expected he will hold conferences in increasing numbers.

Apparently Mr. Coolidge is not disturbed over any of the major issues which remain to be settled. Hopeful that antitrust operators and miners eventually will agree on a new wage scale, he has determined not to interfere with these negotiations. He also believes that an agreement among the powers is near on the vexing Chinese problems, and that the prospects are bright for favorable Senate action on the World Court proposals, and that the way is being cleared for enactment of a satisfactory tax reduction bill.

Today the President turned his attention to politics, the visit the Summer White House of John T. Adams, of Iowa, former chairman of the Republican National Committee affording him an opportunity to obtain information as to conditions and prospects particularly in the north west. Mr. Adams is especially familiar with the political situation in such states as Iowa, Wisconsin, and North and South Dakota, where Senatorial fights are in progress. He is expected to enlighten the President as to the strength of the Republican organization in that section of the country.

SUMMER-TIME RADIO OPERATION

"That hand that twirls the receiver knob is the final link in broadcasting," says Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, Chief Broadcast Engineer, Radio Corporation of America.

"No matter what may be the power of the Broadcasting station; no matter what the atmospheric conditions; no matter how good the radio programs; no matter how excellent the receiving set itself, the final factor—and the one that counts for perhaps as much as all the others combined—is the care exercised by the person at the receiving end. There is nothing complicated about the usual receiving set, but radio will deliver more or less in proportion to how it is played. That is why a little care in operating the receiver goes a long way in radio satisfaction.

"Especially does all this become evident with the warm days of summer. Just as the automobile requires a little more care during freezing weather as compared with its care-free operation in mild weather, so does the radio receiver require just a wee bit more attention in its operation, if the best results are desired."

ADVANTAGE OF SMALL NEWSPAPERS

From an ethical standpoint it can fairly be claimed that the country press and small city dailies have a marked advantage over the big metropolitan newspapers.

The smaller papers are conducted by their owners who are personally known to the people and business men of the community and read in nearly every family.

The owners, editors and publishers are freer to express their honest convictions than the highly commercialized city press, too often run by hired employes, principally to earn dividends.

The small daily or country weekly that lives up to its opportunities represents the stand of personal journalism in behalf of the community.

As long as the small city dailies and country weeklies remain true to their best traditions, with their editorials devoted to constructive policies, their influence in journalism will increase.—The Manufacturer.

Summerlee was hitting up and stuffing some tobacco into his old briar.
"We've got to see them safe," said he. "You've pulled us all out of the jaws of death. My word! it was a good bit of work!"
"Admirable!" cried Challenger. "Admirable! Not only we as individuals, but European science collectively, owe you a deep debt of gratitude for what you have done. I do not hesitate to say that the disappearance of Professor Summerlee and myself would have left an appreciable gap in modern zoological history. Our young friend here and you have done most excellently well."

He beamed at us with the old paternal smile, but European science would have been somewhat amazed could they have seen their chosen child, the hope of the future, with his tangled, unkempt hair, his bare chest, and his tattered clothes. He had one of the meat-tins between his knees, and sat with a large piece of cold Australian mutton between his fingers. The Indian looked up at him, and then, with a little yelp, cringed to the ground and clung to Lord John's leg.
"Don't you be scared, my bonnie boy," said Lord John, patting the matted head in front of him. "He can't stick your appearance, Challenger; and, by George! I don't wonder. All right, little chap, he's only a human, just the same as the rest of us."
"Really, sir!" cried the Professor.

"Well, it's lucky for you, Challenger, that you are a little out of the ordinary. If you hadn't been so like the king—"
"Upon my word, Lord John, you allow yourself great latitude."
"Well, it's a fact."
"I beg, sir, that you will change the subject. Your remarks are irrelevant and unintelligible. The question before us is what are we to do with these Indians? The obvious thing is to escort them home, if we know where their home was."
"There is no difficulty about that," said L. "They live in the caves on the other side of the central lake."
"Our young friend here knows where they live. I gather that it is some distance."
"A good twenty miles," said L. Summerlee gave a groan.
"I, for one, could never get there. Surely I hear those brutes still howling upon our track."
As he spoke, from the dark recesses of the woods we heard far away the jibbering cry of the apemen. The Indians once more set up a feeble wail of fear.
"We must move, and move quick!" said Lord John. "You help Summerlee, young fellow."

"What do you make of them, Challenger?" asked Lord John. "One thing is very clear to me, and that is that the little chap with the front of his head shaved is a chief among them."
It was indeed evident that this man stood apart from the others, and that they never ventured to address him without every sign of deep respect. He seemed to be the youngest of them all, and yet, so proud and high was his spirit that, upon Challenger laying his great hand upon his head, he started like a spurred horse and, with a quick flash of his dark eyes, moved further away from the Professor. Then, placing his hand upon his breast and holding himself with great dignity, he uttered the word "Maretas" several times. The Professor, unabashed, seized the nearest Indian by the shoulder and proceeded to lecture upon him as if he were a potted specimen in a classroom.
"The type of these people," said he in his sonorous fashion, "whether judged by cranial capacity, facial angle, or any other test, cannot be regarded as a low one; on the contrary, we must place it as considerably higher in the scale than many South American tribes which I can mention. On no possible supposition can we explain the evolution of such a race in this place. For that matter, so great a gap separates these apemen from the primitive animals which have survived upon this plateau, that it is inadmissible to think that they could have developed where we find them."

The Professor ... proceeded to lecture upon him as if he were a potted specimen in a classroom.

These Indians will carry stores. Now, then, come along before they can see us."

In less than half-an-hour we had reached our brushwood retreat and concealed ourselves. All day we heard the excited calling of the apemen in the direction of our old camp, but none of them came our way, and the tired fugitives, red and white, had a long, deep sleep. I was dozing myself in the evening when someone plucked my sleeve, and I found Challenger kneeling beside me.
"You keep a diary of these events, and you expect eventually to publish it, Mr. Malone," said he, with solemnity.
"I am only here as a Press reporter," I answered.
"Exactly. You may have heard some rather fatuous remarks of Lord John Roxton's which seemed to imply that there was some—some resemblance—"
"Yes, I heard them."
"I need not say that any publicity given to such an idea—any levity in your narrative of what occurred—would be exceedingly offensive to me."
"I will keep well within the truth."
"Lord John's observations are frequently exceedingly fanciful, and he is capable of attributing the most absurd reasons to the respect which is always shown by the most undeveloped races to dignity and character. You follow my meaning?"

"Entirely."
"I leave the matter to your discretion." Then, after a long pause, he added: "The king of the apemen was really a creature of great distinction—a most remarkably handsome and intelligent personality. Did it not strike you?"
"A most remarkable creature," said L.
And the Professor, much eased in his mind, settled down to his slumber once more.

CHAPTER XIV

"Those Were the Real Conquests"

We had imagined that our pursuers, the apemen, knew nothing of our brushwood hiding-place, but we were soon to find out our mistake. There was no sound in the woods—not a leaf moved upon the trees, and all was peace around us—but we should have been warned by our first experience how cunningly and how patiently these creatures can watch and wait until their chance comes. Whatever fate may be mine through life, I am very sure that I shall never be nearer death than I was that morning. But I will tell you the things in its due order.

We all awoke exhausted after the terrific emotions and scanty food of yesterday. Summerlee was still so weak that it was an effort for him to stand; but the old man was full of a sort of surly courage which would never admit defeat. A council was held, and it was agreed that we should wait quietly for an hour or two where we were, have our much-needed breakfast, and then make our way across the plateau and round the central lake to the caves where my observations had shown that the Indians lived. We relied upon the fact that we could count upon the good word of those whom we had rescued to ensure a warm welcome from their fellows. Then, with our mission accomplished and possessing a fuller knowledge of the secrets of Maple White Land, we should turn our whole thoughts to the vital problem of our escape and return. Even Challenger was ready to admit that we should then have done all for which we had come, and that our first duty from that time onwards was to carry back to civilization the amazing discoveries we had made.

We were able now to take a more leisurely view of the Indians whom we had rescued. They were small men, wiry, active and well-built, with lank black hair tied up in a bunch behind their heads with a leathern thong, and leathern also were their loin-clothes. Their faces were hairless, well-formed, and good-humored. The lobes of their ears, hanging ragged and bloody, showed that they had been pierced for some ornaments, which their captors had torn out. Their speech, though unintelligible to us, was fluent among themselves, and as they pointed to each other and uttered the word "Acala" many times over, we gathered that this was the name of the nation. Occasionally, with faces which were convulsed with fear and hatred, they shook their clenched hands at the woods round and cried "Dodai Dodai!" which was surely their term for their enemies.

"What do you make of them, Challenger?" asked Lord John. "One thing is very clear to me, and that is that the little chap with the front of his head shaved is a chief among them."
It was indeed evident that this man stood apart from the others, and that they never ventured to address him without every sign of deep respect. He seemed to be the youngest of them all, and yet, so proud and high was his spirit that, upon Challenger laying his great hand upon his head, he started like a spurred horse and, with a quick flash of his dark eyes, moved further away from the Professor. Then, placing his hand upon his breast and holding himself with great dignity, he uttered the word "Maretas" several times. The Professor, unabashed, seized the nearest Indian by the shoulder and proceeded to lecture upon him as if he were a potted specimen in a classroom.
"The type of these people," said he in his sonorous fashion, "whether judged by cranial capacity, facial angle, or any other test, cannot be regarded as a low one; on the contrary, we must place it as considerably higher in the scale than many South American tribes which I can mention. On no possible supposition can we explain the evolution of such a race in this place. For that matter, so great a gap separates these apemen from the primitive animals which have survived upon this plateau, that it is inadmissible to think that they could have developed where we find them."

"The Professor ... proceeded to lecture upon him as if he were a potted specimen in a classroom."
These Indians will carry stores. Now, then, come along before they can see us."

In less than half-an-hour we had reached our brushwood retreat and concealed ourselves. All day we heard the excited calling of the apemen in the direction of our old camp, but none of them came our way, and the tired fugitives, red and white, had a long, deep sleep. I was dozing myself in the evening when someone plucked my sleeve, and I found Challenger kneeling beside me.

CARVING MEMORIAL ON CHIMNEY ROCK ATTRACTS ATTENTION

The plan to have Gutzon Borglum,

or some other sculptor carve on the perpendicular wall of Chimney Rock Mountain, in Western North Carolina, an international memorial to Woodrow Wilson, with a League of Nations background has attracted widespread attention. It was at first suggested that it be a Confederate memorial, but that idea was found not feasible and abandoned.

Chimney Rock Mountain is 24 miles Southeast of Asheville. It overlooks and is in full view of motorists traveling state highway No. 20, between Asheville and Charlotte. In the Hickory Nut valley below runs the Rocky Broad river, a turbulent mountain stream now being harnessed for hydro-electric power and creation of the largest pleasure resort lake in the south. It will have a 27 mile shore line scenic highway through the mountains. Just five miles below this point a dam is now being built to form Lake Lure, which is to cover 1500 acres.

The proposed memorial will be nearly a thousand feet above the water level and visible from all parts of the lake. The electricity generated can be used to illuminate the rock at night so that it will be visible for 25 miles. The Chimney Rock section is probably the most popular scenic region in the Appalachian. Here are found a hundred locally famous points and the following which have state, National and even International fame. These are the Devil's Head, The Opera Box, Exclamation Point, (Named by B. C. Forbes), Hickory Nut Gorge, Hickory Nut Gap, Moonshiners Cave, Needle's Eye, Pulpit Rock, Appian Way, Hickory Nut Falls, a sheer 500 drop, and the "Chimney" itself the giant monolith known to all.

The perpendicular wall of granite, as it stands, will permit the carving of a figure 300 feet tall and visible for many miles along state highway No. 20, used by thousands of motorists daily from the North and West to Florida and the South. At night when illuminated by a million incandescent lights it is certain that it can be seen from even a greater distance.

The Paramount picture, "Sackcloth and Scarlet," produced by Henry King, director of "The White Sister," "Romola," etc., and featuring Alice Terry and a prominent cast of players, opens a two days' run today at White's Theatre.

The story was adapted for the screen by Tom Geraghty, Jules Furthman and Julie Herne from the novel by George Gibbs and also ran serially in the Red Book Magazine. It deals with the lives and loves of two girls, sisters, all alone in the world. The younger of the two is of the flighty sort who does her leaping first and thinking afterward. Out in the wild and woolly west in search of adventure she gets into trouble with a handsome young mountain guide and decamps East when he asks her to marry him. Later a baby boy is born in a little French Village where Joan (Alice Terry) takes her sister.

Back in Washington with friends, Joan meets and falls in love with the same fellow who has made good and is now representing his townfolk in Congress. But the other girl comes back from France and all but ruins the happiness of her sister.

Just how everything is straightened out in the end, how Joan, who had willingly given up everything even her good name to protect her sister, finally finds love and happiness is shown in a manner that makes "Sackcloth and Scarlet," as is claimed by its makers, one of the most humanly appealing and real pictures in many seasons.

Dorothy Sebastian, new to the screen, plays Folly, Alice Terry's wayward sister in the production. Orville Caldwell, prominent stage actor, is the man in the case. Other big names appear in support.

WHY IS IT?

—people in swimming pools and at beaches, seem happy; and why does a man sing while bathing?

It's because of the sheer joy and fun of the effect of water on the skin; because it's a powerful gloom chaser.
