NATIONAL CAPITAL MECCA FOR KU KLUX KLANSMEN TODAY

Parade in Which More Than 50,000 Will Participate Was Staged This Afternoon

Washington, Aug. 8.—The national capital was a mecca for Ku Klux Klansmen today as Pennsylvania Avenue was roped off for a procession of robed ranks in which Klan leaders believed 50,000 of their number would march along the route from the capital to the White House.

Beginning in the early hours of the day, special trains rolled in from wide spread sections. Sections of the east added thousands to the influx which set in yesterday.

The capitol police on duty in full force were under orders to clear Pennsylvania Avenue of all traffic thirty minutes before the scheduled start of the parade at three o'clock.

White robed women and children, the families of visiting Klansmen, will be with their men folk in the procession with a flank and rear guard of police keeping step. No masks will be worn by the paraders.

Keep the eyes on the person in front of you" were final instructions to the members by Klan officials today in co-operating with the police against any chance of disorder getting a start in the proceedings.

Leaders among the large negro element in Washington have given assurance to police inspection guard that members of the race have been cautioned against any possible disorder; and the pastors have added a word of caution in their sermons.

Breaking ranks after the parade, which if the predicted members materialize will continue well into the night, and the visitors will gather in the Sylvian Theatre in the hall to hear addresses by Klan leaders.

Klan officers were unsuccessful in their efforts to obtain the services of the negro band to swell the chorus of their own band in the parade, the band master of the local negro band declining the invitation.

Pres. Holds Industry Should Settle Its Own Labor Problems

Swampscott, Mass., Aug. 8.—President Coolidge holds to the view that industry including the coal business, should settle its own labor problems, and he is hopeful that all industries will find their own solution.

Secretary Hoover made this statement today after he had discussed the anthracite situation with the president. It gave added weight to the opinion that the administration had no intention of interfering in the wage scale dispute between hard coal operators and miners.

BY-PRODUCT OF PULP MILLS USED TO SURFACE STREETS

Stockholm.—Though the use of an industrial by-product which has hitherto been wasted, Stockholm is henceforth to be made a dust-free city.

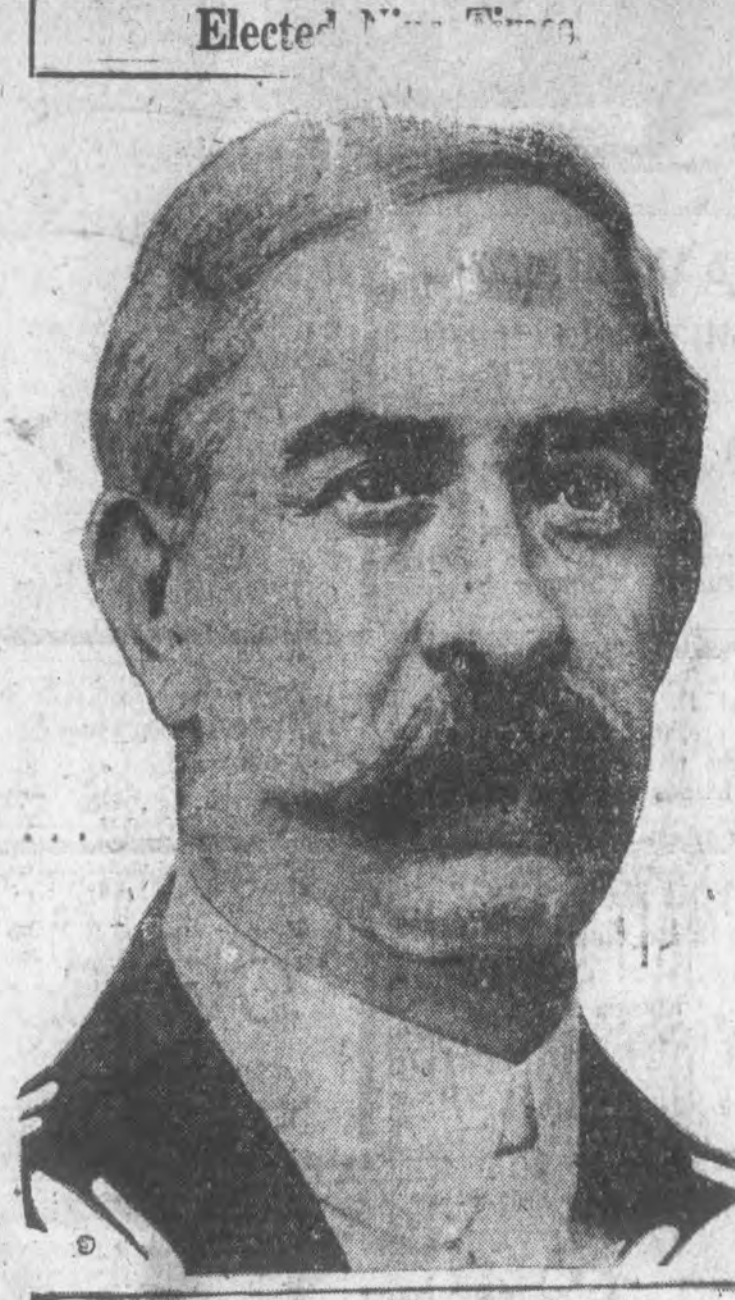

After conclusive tests the authorities have discovered that by sprinkling streets or roadways that are either macadamized or unpaved with the lye in which woodpulp has been dissolved, they become coated with a resilient substance which holds the dust down even in heavy traffic.

At first the streets (so treated are a bit sticky, but as soon as the liquid has evaporated the residue forms a brown coating that in many respects excels crude oil or any tar-like substance.

The slight odor also disappears very quickly. In the past the pulp mills have been in the habit of pouring this chemical laden liquor away.

INVESTIGATING THE ADOPTION OF MARY BROWNING

Resenting Unpleasant Remarks About Her Adoption by Wealthy Man Girl Drinks Poison

New York, Aug. 8.—Mary Louise Browning newly adopted daughter of Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate operator, admitted today that she drank poison this morning because of the "nasty things" which had been said about Mr. Browning adopting her.

In the meantime Queen's county authority began investigating to learn the girl's age. They were told by her mother that the daughter was 21 years old and this would make her adoption null and void under the law. "Mary was 21 years old on July 31," Mrs. Mary Spas, the mother, said. "I am sick in the head about the whole thing."

"I want my daughter back," the girl's father said today. "Mary's place is right here in this house and I am going to see that she comes back. I never wanted her to go." The Ellis Island authorities were asked to look over the records of the arrival of the Spas family from Bohemia to establish definitely the girl's age. A cablegram from Prague, already has announced that no birth records of the Spas girl could be found.

A doctor was called to attend the girl, but when he arrived the girl already had vomited the poison. "Why did you do it?" she was asked. "I did it because I was hysterical, and did not know what I was doing, and because of the nasty things Mr. Colla has been saying about Mr. Browning," she said.

Mr. Colla is commissioner of the Department of public welfare, who has been conducting an investigation into the circumstances surrounding her adoption, and described it as the most "immoral thing" he had ever encountered.

WILL ASK SPECIAL SESSION OF COURT TRY B. L. BROOKS

Brooks Being Held on Charge of Murder in Connection With Slaying of Sam Y. Bryson

Hendersonville, Aug. 8.—Governor McLean will be asked to call a special session of the Hendersonville county superior court to try the case of Bonnie L. Brooks, barber of this city, held on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of ex-mayor Sam Y. Bryson, in a sensational gun battle.

This information was given out by Solicitor Pless today, who pointed out that there was already one murder case on the docket for trial, and that the addition of the case against Brooks would congest the docket the regular session.

Although the authorities today continued to gather evidence, the story of the pistol duel between Brooks and Bryson, in which the young son of Brooks is alleged to have been a participant, had not yet become a matter of court record. Preliminary hearing was waived yesterday by Brooks and he was remanded to jail on a charge of murder. Murray Brooks, his twelve year old son, was placed under a $3,000 bond to answer charges of being an accomplice in the slaying.

JOHN T. GRAVES DIED EARLY TODAY IN WASHINGTON

Graduating from the University of Georgia in 1875 after winning a college reputation as a debater, his inclination for oratory continued and he became known throughout the nation as a speaker of the first rank, a writer and editor. In 1905 Colonel Graves entered the campaign for United States Senator from Georgia, but withdrew on account of ill health. He was candidate of the National Independent party for vice president in 1908.

The price has been from six pence up to three and four shillings, according to size. ### WHAT HAS BECOME OF CURB MARKET?

There has been an effort this summer to re-establish a curb market here and a few weeks ago a location for the market was secured. It was announced at that time that the sheds from the former site would be moved to the new location immediately and the market opened. This was sometime ago but up to the present time there has been nothing else done toward the opening of the curb market so far as can be learned. We are informed that the County Farm Demonstrator and the Home Demonstration Agent are enthusiastic over a curb market for Greenville and waiting only for the place for the market to be arranged. While it is now late in the season there is still time for the curb market this season to be of some benefit to both consumers and producers and the beginning now will mean a bigger and better curb market next season. It is to be hoped that those in charge of completion of arrangements for the opening of the curb market will take immediate steps to put the project over.

WISE ACTION

The City Board of Aldermen is to be congratulated upon its action Thursday night in appropriating funds to assist the local Rotary Club in taking an official census of Greenville and in enacting an ordinance which requires all dog owners to have their dogs inoculated as a prevention against rabies.

Greenville's present population is far above the 5,772 as shown by the government census of 1920 and Thursday night's action by the Board makes it possible to take the proposed census under the supervision and direction of a government expert which will mean that the government's stamp of approval will be placed upon it and this will mean much to the city.

The dog inoculation ordinance means the safeguarding of the lives of the citizens of our community and the cost is trivial in comparison to this safety which the new ruling affords.

Declares the Church Practically Eclipsed By Public Education

Lake Junaluska, Aug. 7. — The Church, which for many centuries dominated the field of education, both as regards religious and moral instruction as well as secular, has been practically eclipsed by public education supported by taxation, Dr. Robert L. Calhoun, of Yale University, declared here. The address featured the second of a series on "The Meaning of the Present Movement in Religious Education," under the auspices of the Sunday School Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

"This divorce of public education from religion," he continued, "was brought about not on account of any hostility on the part of the civil authorities to religious training, but because of the diversity of religion among the churches themselves, and as long as religion is identified with denominationalism, so long will it be excluded from the public educational system, which cannot discriminate in favor of any sect."

"Public education has outstripped education by denominational agencies both from the quantitative and qualitative standpoint. In 1819 twenty million pupils were attending elementary schools on an average of 32 school weeks. In 1890 the cost per capita was seven dollars, against $64 for each pupil in 1920, indicating growth and improvement. High schools have shown a corresponding growth. In 1925 there were 16,000 public high schools with an enrollment of two million."

"During the first hundred years of American education," said Dr. Calhoun, "a wide chasm has developed between public, secular education and religious education in the matter of relative effectiveness. Secular education is provided free of tuition charges in a great and rapidly growing system of public schools, elementary, secondary and collegiate general and technical, with special provision for the training of teachers and for research into the problems of providing still better education on the secular side."

"Religious education, on the other hand, was being provided fifteen years ago by a number of isolated agencies, reaching only a minority of American children and young people, and providing, even for them an education very far inferior in excellence to that provided by the public schools. With poor equipment, untrained teachers, unsystematic administration, lack of an intelligent, co-ordinated program with unified support from the churches, religious education was most inadequately served."

Dr. Calhoun declared that it was out of such a system that the present movement in behalf of religious education has sprung.

bridge across the Cape Fear river have begun. These preliminaries are expected to require about 30 days.

The firm employing only one or two girls is not so well placed and it is for these employees that a new club has been opened in the heart of the city.

The girl members will be able to eat there at a reasonable cost as well as use the club as a social center to prepare for sports or evening engagements without first having to rush home to the suburbs.

COLMAN SCORES NEW PICTURE TRIUMPH

Young English Actor Co-Featured With Doris Kenyon and Aileen Pringle.

Ronald Colman, the brilliant young English actor who has achieved such meteoric success in American motion pictures recently, was among the first of the British troops to go to the front during the World War. He was wounded during the first battle of Ypres, in 1911, a slug of shrapnel shattering his ankle. For a time it appeared that Colman would lose his foot, and his career on the London stage, which had already gained spectacular headway, would be at an end. Expert surgery, however, saved the member and, after long months in hospitals, subsequently all vestiges of the wound left him. His reappearance on the stage was a triumph, many of his former "buddies" occupying boxes to greet him.

Colman came to this country only a few years ago, but his first American picture appearance established him on the screen. Since then he has appeared in many First National pictures, co-starring with some of the greatest of American screen actresses, and recently Samuel Goldwyn signed him up for a five-year contract in independent productions.

His most recent appearance is in the Goldwyn-Fitzmaurice production "A Thief in Paradise," in which he is co-featured with Doris Kenyon and Aileen Pringle. This picture, an adaptation from Leonard Merrick's novel, "The Worldlings," will be first National's offering at White's Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.
