DEFENSE SCORES TWO VICTORIES IN MITCHELL TRIAL

Court Refuses to Receive Foley's Testimony and Also to Throw Out Testimony of Mrs. Lansdowne

Washington, Nov. 13. (AP)—The court martial trying Colonel William Mitchell refused this afternoon to receive at this time the testimony of Captain Paul Foley, Judge Advocate of the Shenandoah Naval Court, who was named yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne as the officer who had sent her a statement outlining her attitude.

Captain Foley appeared at the opening of the afternoon session of the court martial and Colonel Moreland, trial Judge Advocate, asked that he be placed on the stand. Defense counsel immediately objected that the time was not appropriate and the court declined to hear him. As Captain Foley left the court he declared he would request the Naval Board when it meets Monday to excuse him temporarily as its Judge Advocate. If his request is approved he will be asked to appear before that body as a witness.

It is Captain Foley's intention to tell the Naval Inquiry his story in connection with the charges Mrs. Lansdowne made yesterday before the Mitchell Court and in which the widow of the Shenandoah Commander asserted he sent her a memorandum falsely describing her attitude.

Washington, Nov. 13. (AP)—The prosecution in the Mitchell court martial failed today in an effort to throw out of court testimony given yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne. After hearing arguments by opposing counsel the court overruled the motion made by the prosecution to throw the testimony out as irrelevant to the case.

Mrs. Lansdowne's testimony included the statement that Captain Paul Foley, Judge Advocate of the Navy's Shenandoah Court of Inquiry, sent her a memorandum in advance of her appearance before that board "falsely" describing her attitude, and the court today in secret session ruled that it should be made a part of the record. After disposal of this question, John Ed Cassidy, a Colonel in the chemical war fare service reserve, was called.

MRS. S. A. STOCKS DIED YESTERDAY AT HOME IN CHICOD

Funeral Services Conducted This Afternoon by Elder W. H. Laughinghouse; Interment in Williams Burying Grounds

Mrs. Shade Allen Stocks, 57, died at her home in Chicod Township yesterday afternoon following a short illness. Funeral services were conducted from her late home this afternoon at 1 o'clock by Elder W. H. Laughinghouse. Interment followed in the Williams burying ground.

Mrs. Stocks was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McLawhorne and the widow of the late Mrs. S. A. Stocks, county commissioner. She was beloved by a host of friends for her lovely christian character and her unselfish disposition. Mrs. Stocks was a member of the Free Will Baptist church, Black Jack, and was one of its most loyal members. She will be greatly missed, not only by her own loved ones, but by friends throughout Chicod Township.

The deceased is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Cora L. McCoy, Mrs. Vernice Adams, and Mrs. Stanley Squires. Three sons, Messrs. L. A. Stocks, a former county commissioner, L. E. Stocks and J. A. Stocks.

NORTH CAROLINA GIRL FOUND DEAD AT SMITH COLLEGE

The Death of Miss Jeanne M. Roberson, of Elizabethtown, Believed to Have Been Due to Accidental Asphyxiation

North Hampton, Mass., Nov. 13. (AP)—Miss Jeanne M. Roberson, of Elizabethtown, N. C., Senior at Smith College, was found dead today in the kitchenette of her dormitory. Death was due to accidental asphyxiation, according to the medical examiner, who was called by the dormitory matron. Miss Roberson, was the daughter of Dr. John A. Roberson. She had planned to attend the Yale Princeton football game tomorrow and went into the kitchenette last night to press some clothes in preparation for her trip to New Haven. It was believed she turned on the gas and then fainted before she put a match to the jet and remained there during the night.

PILGRIMAGE MADE BY EPISCOPALIANS HISTORIC CHURCH

St. Thomas Church, Bath, Visited By Episcopalians of Three Dioceses of State; Event Proves Enjoyable

Yesterday the first of what is expected to be an annual pilgrimage to the old Bath Church, was made by Episcopalians of the three Dioceses in the State. Rocky Mount and Tarboro, both sent a large delegation, and one came as far as from Florida.

The little church was crowded for the eleven o'clock service, and many could not get in. The Rev. J. N. Bynum, Rector of St. Thomas, welcomed the visitors. The Rt. Rev. Joseph Blount, Bishop of North Carolina, made an interesting historical talk. The address of the day was delivered by the Hon. H. S. Ward, of Washington, N. C., who eloquently described the early beginning of the church on our eastern coasts as the work of the Society for the Propagation of the gospel in Foreign Parts. Mr. Ward was given a hearty vote of thanks for his effort.

The Rt. Rev. Thos. C. Darst, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese of East Carolina, also spoke, and administered the Holy Communion assisted by the Rev. Robert B. Drane, D. D., of Edenton, N. C., and Bishop of North Carolina. Among the clergy present were the Revs. James E. W. Cook, Greenville; George F. Cameron, Ayden; Bertram E. Brown, Tarboro; Clarence O. Pardo, Williamston; Walter R. Nor, Wilmington, N. C.; Theodore Partrick, Jr., Plymouth; Joseph M. Taylor, Vanceboro.

The Rev. Stephen Gardner, of Washington, N. C., presided at the organ. At the close of the service the St. Thomas's Association was formed for the object of restoring and preserving this historic building, which is the oldest church in the state. The dues were placed at $1 a year, and a large number enrolled in the Association. The chairman of the association is Mr. John B. Bragg, Jr., of Washington, vice-chairman, Rev. H. O. Nash, of Tarboro. Mrs. James first station of Williamston was elected as the woman's representative of East Carolina on the executive committee.

The rain—which spoiled the arrangements for the open-air dinner, did not dampen the enthusiasm of those who were present, and who had to lunch al fresco on porches and in their cars.

Among the Greenville folk present we noticed Mrs. James E. W. Cook, Miss Margaret Cook, Mrs. Earl L. Johnson (Atlantic City), Mrs. W. A. Darden; Senator F. C. Harding, Mrs. F. C. Harding, Miss Hary Harding, Mrs. Richard Williams, Miss Betsy Greene, and Mrs. L. Griffin, Col. R. R. Cotten, Cottontale.

DR. BLAZER CLEARED REV. JOHN COWELL TO OF MURDER CHARGE PREACH HERE ON SUN.

Justice and Mercy Combine in Forming the Finale of Trial After Jury Fails to Arrive at Verdict

Littleton, Colorado, Nov. 13. (AP)—Justice and mercy seemed to combine in forming the finale of the trial here of Dr. Howard E. Blazer when by order of the court the aged physician was freed late yesterday of the charge of murdering his 34 year old daughter Hazel, a hopelessly crippled "child woman," after a jury had been discharged in the case when it failed to arrive at a verdict.

The dismissal of the charge of murder against the country physician, who killed his daughter as an "act of love," came one hour after the jury had been discharged. Only the leading attorneys in the case, Dr. Blazer, and half a dozen newspaper men were present when the final scene of the case was enacted. Prosecuting Attorney Joel Stone quietly submitted to Judge Johnson a motion for dismissal of the murder accusation and with a few words stressing the fact that insanity was proved "beyond a doubt" Judge John Stone sustained the motion and ended the case.

Agreement With Italy Gives France Hopes for Better Terms

Paris, Nov. 13. (AP)—Hopes that France may obtain far better terms than the American Debt Funding Commission was willing to give M. Caillaux, have been raised by the Italian Debt Settlement with America.

French official circles say that the American Commission has modified the rigidity of its attitude since the collapse of the French negotiations six weeks ago and the failure at that time, they believe, may be one of the reasons for the easy terms granted Italy.

FIVE WITNESSES TESTIFY IN TRIAL OF JESSE WYATT

Say Bullet Which Killed Stephen Holt Was Fired into Car After Car Had Passed Police Officer; Testimony Substantiated by Physician

Raleigh, Nov. 13. (AP)—Five witnesses were introduced by the court today in the trial of Jesse Wyatt, former police officer charged with the murder of Stephen S. Holt, of Smithfield, in Superior Court. The witnesses testified to the effect that the bullet which killed Holt was fired on a direct line into the car, in which Holt was riding after the motor in the car had passed the police officer who claimed to have halted them. This testimony was substantiated by the physician who examined Holt's body.

He said that the bullet entered the neck and ran directly through the neck, coming out at the front teeth, and on a straight line. The contention of the defense as outlined before the trial was that death was caused when the bullet accidentally ricocheted from the concrete paving of the road. The men who testified today were members of the party of attorneys and others who were returning with Holt to Smithfield on the afternoon of June 1, after attending Federal Court in Raleigh. They testified that they were riding in two automobiles and had arranged to meet one another at a point outside of Raleigh and proceed together to Smithfield. It was after they had met and started on that Wyatt, who was standing by the side of the road and was not in uniform, fired the fatal shot which killed Holt.

The state was expected to continue its testimony at the afternoon session of court. A notable array of prominent lawyers of the state was present at the opening of the trial today and the jury was composed of men drawn from Durham county.

SUBMARINE M-1 IS LOCATED TODAY NEAR DEVONSHIRE

Believe Men on Board, if Alive, Face a Lingering Death as Boat is Lying in Too Deep Water to Permit Raising Her

Plymouth, Eng., Nov. 13. (AP)—The Monitor submarine M1 may have become fowled in the wreck of one of the many vessels sent to the bottom of the English Channel by German submarines during the world war. This theory was advanced in Naval circles today. Naval men believed it possible the crew of the M1 might exist under water for perhaps 48 hours, provided the vessel has not become filled with water as she was equipped with all the most modern compressed air machinery.

Plymouth, Eng., Nov. 13. (AP)—The submarine M1 was located today on the bed of the sea twelve miles south west of Start Point, at Devonshire. There is a slight chance that members of the crew of 68 are still alive.

London, Nov. 13. (AP)—No trace has been discovered of the British Monitor submarine M1 which submerged during maneuvers in the English Channel Thursday morning and did not again come to the surface with her complement of four officers and 64 enlisted men. All through yesterday and the early hours of today rescue boats searched the waters where the submarine was last seen, to look out for wreckage or other possible signs of the missing boat. The Admiralty has not yet committed itself to definite statement that the submarine is lost, but pessimism prevailed with the last statement that the craft had been lost with all hands and by the fact that later it made public the names of all the men on board.

It is presumed that the M1 is lying in about 180 feet of water and it is assumed that this is too deep for rescue work and that the M1 must be left lying where she now rests with its crew entombed inside her.

The K class, to which the M1 belonged, has been generally unlucky. Three of them were sunk with the loss of all hands and three others also went to the bottom. Many sailors dislike serving on board these boats, believing them unseaworthy, and considering them difficult to handle.

London, Nov. 13. (AP)—A radio receipt at Portland from the searching ship indicator, the Evening Star, says, that the missing submarine M1 has been located twelve miles off Start Point, Devonshire, at a depth which will make diving operations impossible and render it impossible to raise her.

Plymouth, Eng., Nov. 13. (AP)—The naval ships which are engaged in the maneuvers reported that the M1 had not suffered from any collision and for this reason it is thought the men on board are still alive. If that is true, experts say they face a terrible lingering death as the boat is of too great a size and lying in too deep water to permit raising her.

Mummy of King Tut Disclosed at Last

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 13. (AP)—The mummy of King Tut with the hands clasped on the breast and a tall golden crown on the head has been disclosed at last, says a message from Luxor today. The experts examination established that the Pharaoh died when only 15 years of age. On the breast were found two large gold scarabs and strapped to the sides two gold hilted swords, and two gold handled knives. The mummy was enclosed in a solid gold coffin.

Appearing in the different sessions of the convention will be D. W. Sims, Raleigh, General Superintendent of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, Miss Daisy Hagee, Children's Division Superintendent, and Miss Flora Davis, Associate Superintendent of the same organization.

On Thursday afternoon, December 3, at 3:30 o'clock there will be a conference for all workers with children in the Sunday School and all others who are interested in the religious education of the children.

All Sunday school workers of all denominations in the city are being invited to attend the sessions of the convention. It is expected that practically every Sunday school in Greenville township will be represented.

Infant Daughter of Mr. Mrs. J. C. Mills Died Thurs. Morning

Polly Ann Mills, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mills, of Chicod Township, died Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock after a short illness. Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock, with interment following in the family burying ground.

The little girl, aged five months, had during her short stay on earth, endeared herself to the entire neighborhood. She was the second child to die in the home in the past two years. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of a host of friends.

Plans Underway for 1926 State Sunday School Convention

Raleigh, Nov. 13. (AP)—Plans are underway for the 1926 State Sunday School convention are being perfected, it is announced. The convention is to be held in two sections. The western section will meet at Hickory on May 3, 4, and 5, and the eastern section of the convention will be held at New Bern May 7, 8, and 9.

Greenville Drug Co. Puts in New Fountain

The Greenville Drug Company has recently installed a new and up to date soda fountain which is the first of its kind ever put into operation in this section of the state. The new fountain is equipped with the Frigidaire electric refrigerating plant which eliminates the use of ice for cooling the fountain or keeping the ice cream. After several days of operation Mr. J. K. Brown, proprietor of the drug store declared he was highly pleased with this new type of fountain.

PRECOCIOUS FEMININITY

For the first time in the history of college football women participated in the "snake dance" of victory on the gridiron of an eastern university this season. In England a girl recently rode a race horse to victory in a famous race. Still fresh in the public mind are the heroic attempts made by women in the early fall to swim the turbulent English channel. The college girl is taking up every sport, no matter how strenuous, known to her college brothers. Everywhere the public interest in the professional and amateur golf and tennis tournaments for women approximates that in similar matches for men. Everywhere one encounters women at the wheel of the automobile.

The inevitable result of this feminine influx into the field of athletics must be a womanhood stronger physically, more alert and vigorous mentally and less dependent upon the male sex. If the pendulum does not soon swing back, restoring womanhood to her former sedentary existence, the time will come when "the weaker sex" will no longer apply to femininity.

Does the trend toward greater feminine independence constitute a threat to masculinity? There are reasons why the change should be welcome to man in general. The male of the species, thus far, has suffered little from feminine competition in labor and politics. It has benefited greatly from the increasing independence of womanhood. Many thousands of women are contributing to the purchase, furnishing and maintaining of homes and each year finds more self-supporting unmarried and widowed women. The future promises a hardier race.

A PROBLEM AGES OLD

Public opinion in America is not averse to being divided. In fact, there is no subject on which it is wholly in accord. Excepting perhaps politics and theology, it is never quicker to disagree than when there arises some such incident as the Colorado physician's slaying of his imbecile daughter.

Many condemn the physician-father's act, while probably as many others would acquit him of the murder charge which he now faces. Here is a social problem to the solution of which civilization is probably no nearer today than it was a century ago, although the civilized world has given serious thought to it for centuries.

Dr. William D. Cutter, dean of the Post-Graduate Medical School, of New York, believes to absolve the Colorado physician would be subversive to the nation's social and moral fabric. He explains his position with the statement that, "Whether such a crime, at once compassionate and premeditated, is justifiable depends largely on the moral status of the community in which it is committed. The answer would be simpler in a primitive land than in our highly complex civilization."

The other side of the story is told by the doctor's own court defense. Dismissal of the murder charge was asked on the ground that the "victim" was not a human being. The daughter was an imbecile, she had neither arms nor legs, and she was deaf and dumb. Her father, knowing his own days numbered, chose to kill her rather than leave her alone in the world.

Is it not the right, even the duty, of society to quench such blighted existences and to put to a merciful end such misery? Or is life—even when so deformed—too sacred a thing to snuff out before its natural time?

FARMERS APPEAL

By O. L. JOYNER

FARMERS SHOULD MARKET TOBACCO MORE SLOWLY

If this crop of tobacco had been sold over a period of five or even six months, the farmers would in all probability have received several hundred thousand dollars more for it than they will have received in the way they are selling it. They cannot be justly criticized for selling when it is selling well, because they have been advised so often, not to sell, only to find that when they held it they took a lower price, yet the fact remains, that when the crop is thrown on the market faster than the re-drying plants can properly handle it, the price is certain to suffer.

A more uniform and orderly system of selling the crop should certainly be adopted, and it can easily be done if the growers, aided by the tobacco warehousemen and the farmers' creditors order it. One of the reasons, and probably the principle one for selling the crop in two or three months, instead of four or five, is the early maturing of the farmers' obligations, and the pressure brought to bear by the creditors in making early collections. If the obligations could be made to mature during a marketing season from September to January 1, instead of during these months this would help wonderfully, provided the creditors would co-operate, and no doubt they would for they are equally interested with the farmers in maintaining a good and steady market. Their chief concern and interest is in making sure of the collections, not particularly in doing the collecting in a short marketing period. The warehousemen would surely co-operate, for it is decidedly to their advantage to have a more uniform and steady market. The buying interests have nothing to lose by a better system of marketing and would willingly meet any necessary contingency that would arise so by all means let us get together and make a better marketing system before another year.

THE GREENVILLE TOBACCO MARKET REPORT.

For more than ten days there has been a continuous block of the market, only the houses having first sales finishing each day, and yet prices have remained comparatively strong on all grades with practically very little fluctuation during this entire period. Without any question on doubt this is unprecedented. In all my experience of the past thirty years in selling tobacco I have never known prices to remain as near the same average for so long a time of market congestion as has been maintained on the Greenville Market during the past two weeks. During this period, weather conditions have been bad. It has been very warm and a good deal of the time it has been cloudy and many rainy days, with very few cool, clear days, really ideal for marketing conditions. The fact that the market has remained firm and even strong under such conditions is really remarkable, and is a wonderful tribute to all the interests represented on the market.

The warehousemen have had their troubles in trying to take proper care of their trade, and with the office forces working almost day and night continuously a good part of the time to keep up with the work, it has been a burdensome and difficult job. But the business has been handled with extraordinary efficiency under the circumstances, and never have buyers shown a more willing disposition to support the market during such a period of congestion even to the point of generous liberality as have the buyers on the Greenville market shown during these past two weeks. There has been a general disposition on the part everyone interested in the market to co-operate and pull together for the benefit of all, and the result is that the Greenville market has attracted more outside trade than ever before in its entire history. More tobacco has been sold in Greenville during the past three weeks, from a long distance than ever before and the best of it all is that those who have sold on this market have gone away well pleased and with a good impression of the Greenville market.

This is written in no spirit of fulsome praise of those interested in the Greenville Tobacco Market but simply a plain statement of actual facts, covering a period of unusual market conditions during which advantage could have been taken of the opportunity to depress prices, but which has not been done, and in fairness and justice to all, it is a real and genuine pleasure to record the fact.

As to conditions on the other eastern markets, I have no information, except block sales have been reported on all the larger markets, and the fact that more tobacco has been sold in Greenville during this time from the territory contiguous to other markets would seem to indicate that the Greenville market offered superior inducements.

MR. REYNOLDS VIEWS OF THE EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA TOBACCO CROP.

The following appeared in the Southern Tobacco Journal in its November 3 issue: "W. N. Reynolds, of the Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, when questioned in regard to the tobacco crop in Eastern Carolina, said: "It is the most useful crop of tobacco ever raised in this section of the country. There is more body to the leaf and it is better for manufacturing purposes." Mr. Reynolds has been in Wilson attending some business and the horse races at the fair, where he has his "Crawford" 1925 mile track trotting champion, entered in some of the races."

This writer expressed the same views two months ago, on this page, but there were very few tobaccoists in Eastern North Carolina who agreed with the views at that time. I expressed the opinion then that this was the best crop of tobacco that had been produced in Eastern North Carolina in many years, and although tobacco at that time was averaging only about 15 cents on the eastern markets, I said the crop would sell for more per pound than any crop since 1919.

THRILLS GAROLE IN VIGNOLA FILM

The frenzied search of a debutante flapper for a new thrill and the adventures, dramatic and comic, which befall her, is the basis of Robert G. Vignola's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Way of a Girl," at White's Theatre today.

The story is adapted from the novel, "The Summons," by Katherine Newlin Burt, and has been told by its director and the players so as to feature the humorous side.

Eleanor Boardman, who has appeared lately in "Wife of the Centaur," "So This is Marriage" and "Sinners in Silk," plays the leading role, her first attempt at light comedy on the screen.

She is supported by Matt Moore as her conservative suitor, William Russell in an unusual good-bad man role, and Mathew Betz, the latter a new addition to screen villainy.

The central character of the story races from prize fights to jails, to artists balls and fast automobiles for her desired thrills, and the dramatic climax of the story provides her more of a thrill than she had sought White's today.

Is Holding His Own

Ten years ago I received such wonderful help from your medicine for my stomach trouble that I have recommended it to hundreds of other sufferers. Recently a friend of mine whose brother in a distant city was stricken with acute indigestion and was not expected to live, got his brother to take a bottle on my advice. I have just received word that his brother was holding his own, and I am confident that May's Wonderful Remedy will entirely restore him." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis (one dose will convince or money refunded).

STATE SUPT. ALLEN CALLS FOUNTAIN A "FOUNTAIN OF KNOWLEDGE"

When results were checked at the close of last school year Fountain led all of the other schools of the county school system from the standpoint of the quality of instruction. Standardized tests were given in the larger type schools in Reading, Arithmetic, and Spelling in order that a scientific comparison of teaching results might be secured. State Supt. Allen in seeing the standing of each of the classified schools said that Fountain could justly be called a Pyrenean Spring or a "Fountain of Knowledge."

This same school bids fair to produce at the end of this school year the same degree of excellence in teaching results. The Parent-Teacher's Association, being advised by the principal, teachers, and superior of the school is ready to give an order for seven sets of supplementary readers, twenty in a set. Nothing was done at the school where the children, the teacher, and the parent are at work for the betterment of its teaching. The child, the teacher, and the parent are at work in Fountain but the greatest of these three is the parent.

JEROME SWINFORD SINGS IN ENGLISH BEFORE AN AMERICAN AUDIENCE.

The use of the English language is one of the hobbies of Jerome Swinford, the American baritone, who will sing here on tonight at E. C. T. College. In the face of this country's abhorrence and glorification of foreign things—its worship of all matters European from Russian Grand Duke to Paris hats—this young singer states that he believes in singing in English before American audiences. The reason for his belief is that the use of clear diction in a known tongue reveal with great er certainty the meaning and beauty of a song. The business of concert-singing being primarily to tell stories in song, anything which contributes to the clarity and understanding of the tale, makes for better singing, in Mr. Swinford's opinion. The German lieder, the French chansons, the Italian opera arias in the originals are directly and completely intelligible only to German—or French—or Italian-speaking people. The average American audience, taken as a whole, the baritone believes, has not a sufficient interest in European languages to really comprehend their songs. It will take infinite pleasure in the music itself and may even deduce from the melody and the manner of interpretation what the song is about and yet it will not be able to absorb the whole beauty and significance of the work, unless it knows, for certain, the exact shades of meaning of the words.

CALIFORNIA "FARM" IS KNOWN BEST FREAK ESTABLISHMENT

Los Angeles.—In the language of Southern California, "farm" is the word commonly used to describe a freak establishment, like the alligator nursery. If it is a place where one raises oranges or lemons, it is a grove. Cattle, hogs, beans, beets or kindred product come from a ranch. Freak farms are on the increase in this section, and the increase is not altogether welcome. The Chamber of Commerce here issued a friendly warning to new settlers that here really is no room for more fur-bearing rabbit farms and that "the individual investor who enters the rabbit-breeding industry for the purpose of selling furs will find himself disappointed."

So far, however, the alligator farm sphere does not seem to be overcrowded; and there are at east two prosperous ostrich farms, a goldfish farm, a lion farm, two butterfly farms, a frog farm, several silver fox farms and a number of pigeon farms.

There used to be two frog farms, but the owner of one, who ambitiously stocked his lake with Louisiana frogs, quit because they were too clever for him. He couldn't catch enough to make a living. Another man, however, finds his frog farm in the San Fernando valley

Books Children Will Like.

It is depressing but true, that we who are parents have frequent occasion to discover the utter lack of weight our opinions about books have in the eyes of the young reader.

We have found certain books delightful because we can read so rapidly that for us the story is not held up too long by the long descriptions. Boys and girls, however, can not read so rapidly and they frequently find our kind of literature slow and boring.

Boys and girls at this age are very active physically. Their minds follow the same channel of growth and they are most pleased with books which have this same constant, vigorous action, adventure and thrill.

The vigorous books what are worth while are pushed aside for the frothy delight of Tom Swift and the Motor Boys.

What are we going to do about it? There are certainly books, which are positively worth while as well as merely entertaining. A certain school in Boston has been receiving its reading list, trying to bring its reading list into greater harmony with the real interests of children without lowering its standards.

For young children, from seven to eleven, they recommend as tremendously popular among girls, "Alice in Wonderland." Black Beauty is a great favorite at ten or eleven. Little Lord Fauntleroy please girls from nine to eleven, and the Secret Garden from nine to eleven. The story of Doctor Do Little is even slightly more popular today than Alice in Wonderland, suiting boys and girls from eight to eleven. Still others such as the Burgess Animal Book, The Twin Series by Lucy Fitch Perkins, Pinocchio, Swiss Family Robinson, etc., are well recommended by schools.

For the ages between ten or eleven, and fourteen or fifteen, the books of real popularity and positive value include: The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, the Black Arrow, Bob, Son of Battle, Captains Courageous, A Christmas Carol, Kidnapped, The Last of the Mohicans, Little Men, Men of Iron, Mysterious Island, Otto of the Silver Hand, The Prince and the Pauper, Robinson Crusoe and others.

For young people of the late teens, the following are recommended.

David Copperfield, Jane Eyre, Kin, The Little Minister, Oliver Twist, Quentin Durwood, Ramona, Silas Marner, Tale of Two Cities, To Have and to Hold, the Virginian and others.

Let us remember that we adults read very little that does not hold our involuntary interest, and that we have no right to demand of youngsters with surging imaginations and insistent motor impulses, that they read what we have labeled the master pieces of literature, until they are old enough to enjoy them as we do.

International Friendship Through Children's Books.

Many different groups of people have tried to develop a pleasant and congenial international atmosphere. This has not been done very successfully. Most great movements must begin by teaching the children the right way then when they are grown and take on the responsibility of life the way is clear and plain. Every story book read by the children, even though it contains no allusion to world friendship, which pictures so captivatingly children of other countries draws these distant children so near that they feel like friends. "Heidi is our classic example, but we have also Katrinka, the little Russian girl and Genevieve, the French child and little Mexican Parfiria of the Village Shield, and Peep-in-the-World, of Germany."

"If we could supply plenty of stories like The Adventures of Piang and My Kalu'a and Captain Kituk and The Dragon and the Cross, it would be hard for any propagandist to make boy readers look with contempt upon a dark-skinned jungle boy, a "Greasy Eskimo," a youth whose father wore a pig tail."

One might think the school text books could give the child enough knowledge along this line but the realistic story books, (of course of the right kind), read by children from ten to fifteen have a far stronger influence than text books exert.

Many Americans have grown up with a bitter feeling against England because they had been taught to hate England as the cause of the American War for Independence. Children did not know that this was one fight in the long Anglo-Saxon struggle for government by consent of the governed. They did not know that there were fine English statesmen who used all their eloquence in defense of the colonies.

Even in our own country our children have some very provincial ideas about their part of the United States which can be changed by the right sort of reading.

How easy it is to put ideas into youngster's heads and how hard to eradicate them!

Now comes the question of the right kind of books. In any country where a literary genius has made worthy contributions which makes a strong appeal to children, as choice fairy tales, folk-lore and true stories of that particular country, children would feel at home and regard these foreign children as brothers. Not in books and pictures which display ridicule, cruelty, rudeness, disrespect for authority nor caricature but which makes foreign lands wonderfully interesting and see justice, tolerance, kindness and chivalry.

Developing American children along this line is only one step. The children of other countries must be made to feel likewise or "the will to friendliness on the part of American children will not be enough to prevent war."

ATTRIBUTE CHANGING CLIMATE TO REMOVAL OF DENSE TIMBER

Tacoma, Wash.—Old residents of that part of Washington and Oregon lying between the Cascade mountains and the Pacific ocean long have been deploring that cutting the dense timber that once covered the region is gradually changing the climate.

"It doesn't rain like it used to," the old-timers remark, recalling the days when they referred to one another as "webb-footers" and "moss backs."

And now comes L. C. Cover, government weather observer here, with figures that partly corroborate the old settlers.

His figures show that there has been a steady decline in rainfall here during five-year periods since 1895. The average annual rainfall from 1895 to 1900 was 45.99 inches. From 1920 to 1925 it had fallen to 33.96.

section. The power men addressed the gathering at a luncheon in the rooms of the local Chamber of Commerce, pledging sufficient current for the industrial development of Eastern Carolina. The meeting's business leaders said, presages an "industrial boom."

J. V. Strange, operating manager, represented the Carolina Power and Light Co.; J. T. Chase, Carolina manager, The Virginia Railway and Power Co.; F. A. Matthis, vice president, The Tidewater Power Company and R. Blackwood, president, the Kinston Gas Company and allied interests.

Municipal officials, business leaders and civic club officers were present from Tarboro, Ayden, Washington, Angier, Greenville, Clayton, Wilsonton, Snow Hill, New Bern, Pink Hill, LaGrange Rocky Mount, Kinston and other places. John W. Holmes, of Farmville, head of the sectional commercial body, presided. Wayne Mitchell, mayor of Kinston welcomed the gathering and J. R. Turnage, of Ayden, responded. Messrs. Strange, Felix Harvey, Sr., Chase, Matthis, Blackwood and others made talks.

The power men predicted marked industrial expansion in Eastern Carolina during the next few years and declared cheap electricity would be an important factor. One of them told how a five cent current rate had driven a factory site secker away from the territory recently.

The concerns stand ready to give all possible aid to the electrification of the section, and are even now beginning to branch out in the Coastal Plain country. Mr. Harvey, prominent local business man, told how the electric developments in New England had impressed him on a recent tour of those states.

A report said that at a closed session of Chamber of Commerce officials and power company agents in the forenoon the latter tentatively pledged active support to the former's plans to sell Eastern Carolina to the world.
