PLANS TO ENLARGE TOBACCO MARKET FOR NEXT SEASON

Larger Redrying Facilities and Four Sets of Buyers Discussed at Tobacco Men's Banquet

Increased redrying and handling facilities and four sets of buyers with the goal of the Greenville Tobacco Market set for not less than seventy million pounds for next year were the main topics of discussion at the annual banquet of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade held in the Rotary building last night.

With another week of the present season remaining the Greenville market this year has already surpassed all former years and broken all records for the number of pounds of tobacco sold. During the present week the market has sold 491,932 pounds for $96,721.60, averaging $19.66 per hundred pounds. This week's sales bring the season's total to 45,760,586 pounds, sold for an average of $20.11, bringing a total of $1,149,324.83.

Last night's banquet was presided over by Mr. E. M. Garrett, president of the Tobacco Board of Trade and there were several short addresses by members and friends present. Each of the talks were full of praise for the hearty co-operation shown this year between warehousemen and buyers and others, connected with the tobacco market and all urged even greater co-operation during the next year in the efforts to reach the desired goal.

A table of figures compiled by Mr. K. W. Cobb, Secretary of the Tobacco Board of Trade, showed that during the season, now nearly its end, the Greenville market had handled more tobacco per buyer than ever before and more than the amount handled per buyer on any other market. Everyone seemed well pleased with the record that the Greenville market has made this year and all are enthusiastic over the prospects for next season.

BRIEF BUSINESS PROPERTY TRADE IS EXPERIENCED

(Asheville Citizen) Trading in Asheville business property is becoming so brisk that the option, time honored instrument of the speculative juggler of realty is becoming passé.

At least this was what local realtors thought about it yesterday, when discussing the rush of business seen here during the last three weeks. The buying and selling of options is too slow, it was explained, and inasmuch as it is protection only to the prospective purchaser, property owners find the demand sufficiently heavy to insist upon outright sales on 30 and 60-day bidders, collecting neat sums as first payments for their own protection.

While realty transfers in the city and county, as recorded in the office of the register of deeds, average a quarter of a million dollars daily, actual transactions in real estate, made on these time contracts, of binders, are averaging something more than a half million dollars a day, it was declared. A piece of property worth $100,000 will be recorded as sold in the register's office, it was explained, only when it is paid for or when definite and final contract of sale has been made. Before the deed is ever legally transferred, however, the property may have changed ownership a half dozen times on short-time binders, the theoretical turnover all told involving $600,000.

The greatest activity in past weeks has been in business property. Last week, according to one reporter, the hum of trading was heard loudest on Broadway. Broadway business property apparently was at a premium. The week before honors were claimed by retail premises on Patton avenue. Each street, each section, it was declared, has had its high spots in turn. Montclair and Clingman avenue each had its share of fast swapping. Bitmore avenue was among the first to win favor in the eyes of the speculators.

That the rapid development of the section as a resort center should beswiftly in the value of business property in the city and in the demand for it is a natural law, real estate men here believe.

Last week the owners of Carolina's Hollywood sold Mr. Rhodes of Lakeland, Fla., 40 lots. This brings the total of lots sold in Hollywood for the past ten weeks to over a half million dollars.

EAST CAROLINA GOLF ASS'N. HAS BEEN DISSOLVED

Steps Launched for Two New Associations in Territory East of Raleigh

Rocky Mount, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Eastern Carolina Golf Association, composed of eleven cities of the section, became extinct yesterday afternoon when its board of directors in session at the Country Club here, dissolved the association and launched steps for two new associations in the territory East of Raleigh.

Raleigh, Wilmington, Fayetteville and Henderson were grouped in one association which named Henry Temberton, of Fayetteville as its president. Representatives of this group are to meet in the near future, decide upon a name and draft a schedule of intercity plays.

The second group is composed of Rocky Mount, Kingston, Greenville, Tarboro, Wilson and probably New Bern. This group is to be known as the East Carolina Golf Association. P. K. Gravey and R. L. Arrington, both of this city were elected president and secretary, respectively. Another meeting, which is scheduled, will be drafted, plans for a tournament worked out, will be held as soon as it is definitely learned whether or not New Bern will be in the organization.

At the conclusion of play in the two associations, the respective winners will meet to determine the Eastern Carolina Golf title, under plans worked out yesterday. Prior to their business session, the directors were tendered a luncheon at the country club.

ASSERTS BOWMAN CLEARED HIMSELF CRIMINAL CHARGE

Newton, N. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A full day of arguments was expected to come before there is any light on the probable fate of Wade W. Bowman on trial here for an alleged attack on a 12 year old girl last July in Hickory. William A. Self, counsel for the defense, opened this morning. Yesterday was ended after Louis Whitener had spoken for the state and from Judge W. B. Council for the defense. After Mr. Self there were four lawyers to address the jury before Judge James L. Webb's charge.

Mr. Self argued along the lines of advantage gained by the defense yesterday when Bowman went on the stand and admitted certain indecent relations with the little girl, but, said the lawyer, "clears himself positively of any element of the criminal assault which the state would nail to him."

Mr. Self began speaking at nine o'clock and he was going strong as noon approached.

With a half hour adjournment for luncheon after which arguments for the defense was resumed, indications were this afternoon that the case against Bowman would reach the jury tonight.

The defense contended in its argument today that the former army major has convicted himself of the minor offense by admitting to certain indecencies with the girl, but has cleared himself of the charge which threatened to send him to the electric chair. The state, on the other hand, contends that Bowman's admission on the stand was sufficient to establish a complete corroboration of the child's testimony and to warrant a first degree sentence.

ARTHUR BRISBANE

Mr. Madden of Illinois, chairman of the House Appropriation Committee, announces that fifty million dollars will be used to develop inland waterways this coming year. The amount was increased ten millions by President Coolidge's recommendation.

That is a start, although small. A complete plan should be mapped out and put through as fast as engineers, men and machinery can be found to do it, no matter what it costs.

Anation that could oblige its neighbors in Europe with ten thousand million dollars in a hurry to finance their job of cutting each others' throats, and steal each others' land, should find money to develop its own nation and its own resources.

President Coolidge asks the people to remember as they read speeches made in Congress that some speeches are for political effect. That is reasonable. Statesmen often talk with another election in view.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, highly indignant, denounces the President for a statement unworthy of a President of the United States. That is less reasonable. Free speech is part of our government doctrine although our patriots, did suppress it for a while in war time. The Senators may say what they think in the senate and start their campaigns there. It is the right and duty of the President to say what he thinks and knows.

It is natural and proper that the President should talk and talk frankly. In 1928 he will be elected President again. FOR THE SECOND TIME.

That being so the people want all possible information about his mental operations.

Mr. Volstead now legal adviser of prohibition, has a plan to wipe out all legalized production of alcohol. He demands an end of alcoholic preparations for rubbing the body, hair, etc., taking the moral ground that alcohol through the pores is almost as bad as alcohol through the mouth.

This, say the "body rub" manufacturers, would be confiscation of property worth millions of dollars. However, prohibition confiscated property of brewers' worth hundreds of millions and at the same time made bootleg whiskey the national drink. It has been settled that the people have a right to confiscate property where alcohol is concerned.

Objection to the "body rub" is based on the fact that thirsty men drink the "rub." Some do worse. In one great steel manufacturing city a local rule forbids selling alcohol made into solid cakes for burning in alcohol lamps. It was discovered that some men ate those cakes. Changing old habits is slow work.

King George and Queen Mary opened parliament sitting in blazing glory in the House of Lords with peers and peeresses around them. Correspondents describe the display of diamonds and pearls as unusually brilliant. The court is in mourning for Queen Alexandra, mother of King George, and black dresses made the diamonds seem more brilliant. Queen Mary wore a huge stonacher of diamonds, pearl and diamond collar and a diamond crown of maltese crosses made of enormous diamonds. Princesses and peeresses all did their best.

Diamonds that the Romanoffs, cousins of British royalty used to wear, are now sold by the Bolsheviks, the money used to buy American plows for Russian peasants. But this doesn't worry King George. Wiser than the Czars, British royalty follows where the people lead, in a country where the right to think, say and write what you please is still taken seriously. That makes it a safe country, even for kings and their diamonds.

ANDREWS DRAFTS SERIES CHANGES VOLSTEAD ACT

Character of Changes Desired Not Disclosed at Treasury Today; Assumed They Will Be Backed By Administration

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Treasury has drafted recommendations for a series of changes in the Volstead act and other statutes having to do with enforcement of prohibition in order to meet new conditions.

The proposed changes were drafted by Assistant Secretary Andrews in the light of his experiences as chief enforcement officer, and have been approved by Secretary Mellon. They will be submitted to Congress immediately. The character of the changes desired was not disclosed at the Treasury today but there are indications that the program included application of graduated scale of penalties to differentiate between wholesale violation and hip pocket offenses.

The Treasury's decision to seek amendment of the dry law coincides with the renewed drive in and out of Congress for legalization of light wine and beer, but there was no indication that any step in the direction of such legislation was contemplated in the Treasury program.

The wine and beer drive recently given endorsement of the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church is expected to take organization from which a rally can be held here on Washington's birthday under the auspices of an association against the prohibition amendment.

Many bills for changes in the Volstead Act are pending in Congress, but the committees having jurisdiction have shown no indication to consider them. Bills to authorize the making of beer and wine predominate among these are re-assessed.

Sometime ago District Attorney Buckner, of New York, announced a policy of concentrating on bootleggers and rum runners in preference to lesser offenders and afterwards was disclosed at the White House that while President Coolidge stood for full-enforcement of the law he recognized that present enforcement machinery would not permit prohibition agents to give hip pocket violators the same attention as bootleggers.

It is assumed that the new legislation drafted at the Treasury will have the full backing of the administration when it is submitted to Congress, but the White House declined today to make any comments.

Several changes in the present prohibition regime including a proposal to create a new and separate prohibition bureau were sponsored in Congress by the administration today.

The bill for a prohibition bureau, ranking with other bureaus in the Treasury Department, was introduced by Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance Committee with the backing of Treasury officials. At present the prohibition forces are under the jurisdiction of the bureau of internal revenue.

DOUBLE HEADER BASKET BALL GAME RESULTS IN VICTORIES FOR LOCAL TEAMS

High School Boys Defeat Wake Forest Team By A One-Sided Score of 49 To 3 in Seventh Game Of The Season.

The Greenville High School basketball team captured a double header on the local basketball court last night when the girls' team defeated the Rocky Mount girls' 27 to 17, and the boys' quint completely swamped the Wake Forest High 49 to 3.

The boys' game was one of the most one-sided affairs ever witnessed on the local court and but for a tiny bit of luck Wake Forest would have been blanked. The one-field shot made by Jones who was also responsible for the third and last counter of the visitors, was from the center of the court and was a toss that would land safely possibly once in a thousand attempts. The visitors possessed a sufficient amount of willingness to score but they were unable to find the way as the guarding of the Greenville boys made it impossible for them to get within throwing distance of the hoops.

Billy Brown fully demonstrated what he is capable of doing even though the occasion did not demand it, when he checked up with eleven safe ones from the court, a perfect score from the foul line for a total of 2 points. Fred Forbes played his usual good game with a total of 13 points. West has always featured in previous games contributing a large part in the outcome notwithstanding the fact that he was physically unfit to enter the contest, his scoring amounting to 8 points. The work of Curry, the local's right forward and Bob Forbes in the left position could not have been improved upon, they both having a perfect night with their superb guarding making it impossible for the Wake Forest boys to even reach the area of close proximity of their basket.

The speed with which the Greenville quint handled themselves is seldom seen even in college basketball, and this one feature knocked the visitors off of their base from the start on which they were never able to gain a foothold sufficient to solve the problem of how it was being done. In the last quarter Coach Crater entered practically his entire second team.

The line-up and score was as follows:
Greenville
West, R.F., 8; F. Forbes, L.F., 13; Brown, C., 23; Curry R.F., 4; B. Forbes, L.F., 0.

Wake Forest:
Holding, R.F., 0; Mull, L.F., 0; Jones, C., 3; Brown, R.F., 0; Kitchen, L.F., 0.

Greenville High School Girls Defeat Rocky Mount Team By A Score Of 27 To 17 In Interesting Game.

The Greenville girls added a notable victory to their list last night, when they played Rocky Mount. Greenville threw the first goal just after the first quarter was called and the fight began.

During the first quarter Greenville kept the ball on their side continuously and the guards had a cool time. At the end of the first half the score registered 10-19. Goals were thrown by Stancil, Ogletree and Hart.

Rocky Mount played hardest during the last half and the game was at the height of excitement during this period. Lucas starred for Rocky Mount.

The team showed good co-operation and played hard. The line-up was—Forwards, Stancil, Ogletree and Hart. Guards, Dickenson, Hardee and Ward.

This is the seventh game of the season and Greenville has been defeated only twice thus far. Mr. J. H. Rose, of the city school's, on his last visit, stated that during the last three years the girls' team had shown a decided improvement.

(By LUCY CHERRY CRISP) There are citizens in Eastern Carolina who have for some time realized the truth of these statements recently made by Dr. White and these men have already been giving their attention and vision to the working out of the rural electrification problem in their own section of the State.

These are the citizens who have planned and are organizing the Eastern Carolina League of Towns, an organization whose duty and privilege it shall be to furnish the channel through which may flow the vision, hope, and hard work which, in the opinion of Dr. White, are necessary for the successful solution of the electric problem existing today in Eastern Carolina.

Statements made by these men who have studied the situation and the possibilities of the League is the real problem of how to secure maximum results at minimum expense. It is a major plan that may solve the electric problem for Eastern North Carolina.

"I think that any city that sells its public utilities is making a very grave mistake," says F. G. Godfrey, superintendent of New Bern's water and light department. "hope, and hard work will be necessary."

DISMISSES SUIT AGAINST CO-OPS LACK EVIDENCE

Person Appeals With Hope of Getting His Case Before Highest Tribunal During the Present Term

Raleigh, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Hope of W. M. Person and other complainants against the Tri-State Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, for a court order putting that body into receivership, now rests with the Supreme Court.

Mr. Person gave notice of the appeal last night after Judge T. H. Calvert, in Wake County Superior Court, had dismissed his suit against the association for lack of evidence. The plaintiff, who conducted his own case in court, said he hoped to get the case before the highest tribunal during the present term, which began this week.

In dismissing the suit, Judge Calvert did not pass upon the intrinsic merits or demerits of the two principal items of complaint, those alleging extravagance in management and exorbitant charges in redrying tobacco. Regarding complaint of extravagance the judge said that there was an item of concern solely to members of the association. While some hardships might have resulted to members from the redrying tactics, he added, the practice was not more impulsive upon members and therefore could not come within the jurisdiction of the court. The hearing lasted nearly six hours, five of which were occupied with testimony of both sides and speeches by the plaintiffs.

Whit's Aaron Sapiro was denied the courtesy of the court his failure to speak did no more than disappoint many spectators, for the defense rested the case with giving its testimony and offered no speeches in summing up the case.

Mr. Sapiro was denied the courtesy of the court when W. M. Person protested that his position as an employee of the defendant who had received excessive fees made his presence in court improper.

Fayetteville, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The prohibition enforcement unit of the Eastern North Carolina District under the direction of A. G. McDuffin, whose office is located here, has been cut by light men, it was announced here today.

Among the men dropped are J. J. Fatten, of Salthfield, L. B. Grandy, of Greenville and Floyd Gray, of Rocky Mount.

The forces will now number nine men in the Eastern District.

DEVELOPMENTS POSSIBLE SHOULD LEAGUE OF TOWNS BE PUT INTO OPERATION

The article entitled "Electric farming on the increase," which appeared in the Literary Digest for January 30th, was of interest to many citizens of Eastern Carolina, for in this article, Dr. E. A. White, director of the National Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture, made the following comments that threw valuable light on the national as well as on the local aspect of a thing that is frequently up for discussion in Eastern Carolina today; that is, the use of electricity on the farm.

According to the Digest, Dr. White says:
"In fact, we already have rural electric service, and every month sees more rural lines built. It is no longer a question of whether this thing should be or not; it is the real problem of how to secure maximum results at minimum expense. It is a major plan that may solve the electric problem for Eastern North Carolina."

"I think that any city that sells its public utilities is making a very grave mistake," says F. G. Godfrey, superintendent of New Bern's water and light department. "hope, and hard work will be necessary."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT MEDITATION

"The Gospel of Thought-Control"

Philippians 4:8—"Think on these things."

One of the hardest things to do is to concentrate the mind upon one subject of contemplation, or to compel one's thoughts to flow in an orderly sequence.

An air-bubble in a spirit-level is a parable of unstable equilibrium. It is a prisoner, yet it is surprisingly free.

The mind, also, has its sensitive spot which is always moving about. It is called the "attention," and it can move in any direction at any moment, according to the latest claim from the region of sight or sound or inward motive. It is more difficult to keep it directed towards one object than it is to keep the air-bubble of the spirit-level in one place.

One of Mrs. Meynell's loveliest poems tells of a lady and her thoughts—

"She holds her little thoughts in sight, Though they run and leap,

She is so circumspect and right: She has her soul to keep, She walks—the lady of my delight, A shepherdness of sheep."

It is a glimpse of an intellectual life as well-ordered as it is pure and peaceful. Yet the thoughts of most minds are scarcely so disciplined as a flock.

Anyone will know this who tries to fasten his thoughts on one theme for five minutes, or to keep them moving in a straight track for half an hour.

Yet, by care and patience thought-control is made possible, and out of it may come dignity, strength and moral achievement. St. Paul is not wasting words when he says: "Whatever things are true, whatsoever things are lovely, think on these things."

Many voices in our own time are preaching this gospel. The Orient has always taught the necessity of contemplation, and that men should cultivate quiet, controlled, concentrated thought if they would obtain the best out of life.

Theosophy, Christian Science and New Thought are varying forms of the same truth. We meet with it in many aspects, from counsels of resplendent spirituality to cults which if a man ask them, "What must I do to be saved?" tell him he had better begin with a set of breathing lessons.

The central idea of all this way of thinking is that our thoughts can be mastered and directed with great results in the direction of health, vision and peace.

From Mrs. Besant to Cone the mechanism is the same, namely, that of auto-suggestion and self-hypnotisation. By brooding upon, and repeating, some inspiring thought other and more mischievous thoughts will be excluded.

In the light of this teaching how important it is for the Christian to practice the daily reading of God's Word, and to daily engage in private prayer. If he will guard the quiet moments against the intrusion of the cares of the world, and concentrate only on the Word, he will find it endlessly worthwhile. This is more than auto-suggestion; it is the suggestion and guidance of the Father.

No Eastern prophet of thought-control can teach men any secret more illuminating or strengthening than this. The New Testament is full of shining words which when received, believed, assimilated, can fill the darkest days with sunshine.

"My God shall supply all your needs according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." THERE is the mental attitude of happiness, not assumed as a pose, but springing out of a heart's deep trust. Recite it every morning, and you will soon find yourself separated from the whiners and mopers of life by a cheerful and optimistic faith. It is worth a trial. "Think on these things."

PARENTS LEARN SCHOOL'S VALUE BY SAMPLE DAY

Chicago, Feb. 6.—(I. N. S.)—Chicago parents now have the opportunity to learn in a decisive manner just what pupils in the public schools are taught.

"Citizens' Sampling Day," just inaugurated under the auspices of the school board, will be continued, it is announced, despite the poor showing made on its initial presentation.

Thirty eighth grade pupils, chosen at random throughout the city, staged it from behind the footlights of a local theatre. They were asked questions and answered them both orally and in writing. Some of the replies were provocative of laughter.

"Be good to your aldermen," was one of the duties of a good citizen suggested.

Summing up the results, Superintendent William McAndrew said the children had learned little about personal hygiene; that most of them failed to add correctly a bank deposit slip; that they "chose a miserable piece of doggerel" as an example of good poetry; that they showed no aptitude at finding words in a dictionary or spelling; that they were fair at drawing good at tying up packages, did well in reading simple music and were strong on safety first principles.

Lack of concentration and understanding was demonstrated in a startling manner. A short speech was delivered which the pupils were asked to heed closely with the idea of telling afterwards what had impressed them most.

Not a pupil mentioned a single thing touched upon in the speech. A little negro girl performed an introduction properly after a white boy had failed.

Girls scored heavily in sewing and the boys in repairing a screen and similar work.

JOHNNY DUNDEE STILL FIGHTING DESPITE OLD AGE

Says As long as the Fighters of Today Are No Better, He Might As Well Keep On Fighting; Not As Fast As He Once Was

By DAVIS J. WALSH, I. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Feb. 6.—The boys, humane as always, are trying to talk Johnny Dundee into retirement before he takes on one more fight than his durable system was intended to withstand. They seem to fear that John may impair his health permanently. Of course, it's the man's own health, at that, but it appears to be everybody's business nowadays when a citizen persists in wasting it.

John is like many another boxer before him. He will not quit when he finds the younger generation is making him like it. Neither would Ad Wolgast, although, John and Ad afford little in the way of a parallel.

John is no man's sap; yet he continues to fight at a time when he is long past his prime and the wolf at the door is a total stranger. The young man is rich in his own right. In fact, the case is simply one in which a gent enjoys his work and sees no reason to forfeit the privilege, even though the pleasure may be all the other fellow's.

He doesn't seem to mind the fact that he is being hit often by second-rates, where formerly he made the champions miss. He is being well paid for something he likes to do and that closes the argument, as far as he is concerned.

Johnny, of course, still can "take it." But why take anything that one doesn't need? A glove in the hand is worth two in the nose any day. He is ever so well protected, your frontal maxillary is good for just so many shocks and Johnny has had his share of them during fifteen years of campaigning through something like 343 bouts.

He made his last good fight on July 26, 1923, when he took the featherweight title from Eugene Criqui, almost three years ago. He was wonderful that night, but it seemed to be his final gesture. Since then, he hasn't been able to fight fast enough to keep warm.

After losing every step of the way to Sid Terris last summer Dundee is alleged to have been admonished by the New York State Athletic Commission that he might do well to refrain from dallying with the good ones. His reply was to take on Joe Gluck, who is one of the best.

From this, it may be gathered that John is an incurable optimist. "I know I'm not as good as I used to be," he told a friend before the Gluck fight. "But look at the men they ask me to meet? In my present condition, I wouldn't have dared to stick five years ago. But as long as the boys are no better than they are today, I might as well keep on fighting."

ART DIRECTOR WROTE SONGS FOR MONTMARTE CABARET

Paris, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Mausice Couvba, who has been appointed director of the State School of Decorative Arts, once wrote songs for the celebrated Montmartre cabaret, the "Chat Noir," and occasionally sang them there himself.

He signed them "Boukay." He has published several books of verse. One of his songs, "Stanzas to Manon," has been sung the world over.

FRANCET POLAND CLAIM CURIE'S CITIZENSHIP

Paris, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Two countries, France and Poland, contend for the allegiance of Marie Sklodowska Curie, known to all the world as Madame Pierre Curie, to discover with her husband one of the most treasured of science's secrets—radium.

But Madame Curie herself, although a little touch of homesickness harks her back to Warsaw each summer, received French citizenship when she married Pierre Curie in 1895 and feels that she belongs to the land that holds her "resting grave."

Since she has chosen French nationality there is not a Frenchman alive who would refuse her the title of "the most notable woman in France."

Madame Curie works and lives in the street which the city of Paris has named after her husband. Number One Pierre Curie Street, is one of the newer buildings belonging to the scientific schools of the University of Paris. It is a raw-colored, ugly building surrounded by half-finished laboratories and muddy excavations.

Mme. Curie came into a small waiting room from her laboratory, quietly and unobtrusively slipping through a partly opened door.

"Mme. Curie?"

"I am Mme. Curie."

She sat down in one of the little chairs, her interviewer taking one directly opposite. Folding her hands she waited, face expressionless, but with a gleam in the eyes that seemed to say:

"Now, young man, no nonsense. Keep to the point and we'll get this over with."

A minute passed while she stared the interviewer out of countenance, and into forgetting what he had come for. Her eyes shone steadily, unblinkingly through her spectacles. The straight, severely-cut black dress seemed to disappear into the background, the odd, old-fashioned shoes were forgotten; Mme. Curie has a pair of keen eyes gleaming like radium in the dark. The rest of her body was dead, but life glowed like a white-hot flame in her brain.

"What do you want to see me for?"

Mme. Curie seemed to have startled herself in speaking so suddenly.

"It is considered that you are the most distinguished woman in France, Mme. Curie. We are collecting a series of articles on the most notable women of all countries."

Mme. Curie was wholly unmoved.

"Yes?"

"Were you interested in the study of radium's properties before you met your husband, Mme. Curie?"

"I think that is not a good question that you ask me. I think it is improper I should speak of those things, because my husband is no more alive now. I never talk so about myself, but only give consultations on scientific things. At this hour now I give information of that kind. There is something written about my work and I will give such things to you. It is all I can do."

"This tells about my going to America. And here is about the meeting at the opera before I went away, with what the people said. And this is all I will tell you about myself. Oh, Oh! you may say that my eldest daughter, Irene, is working in my laboratory with me and that Eve, my younger, is a pianiste—you know—with a hesitant side glance—she plays the piano. And soon she is giving a concert in Paris."

Nearly forty years of scientific research have worn away her body, but her mind seems only the stronger for it. They must have been lonely years, too, since she had to carry on the work for two after Pierre Curie was run over by a truck in 1906.

Teaching constantly, advising other scientists, experimenting, organizing a radium treatment hospital during the world war, winning a Nobel Prize for chemistry—these have been the labors and the fruits growing out of the first work with Pierre Curie in the little, inadequate laboratory when both were poor and only the faithful friends supplied the money and the materials necessary for experiments. These things Mme. Curie does not wish to speak of; but they are known everywhere.

Professional Lawn Tennis Looming

By DAVIS J. WALSH, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

New York, Feb. 5.—We have professional football, golf, hockey, squash, basketball and kindred ailments. As for baseball and boxing, the amateur side of the proposition doesn't amount to an eyelash in the Atlantic. Then why not professional tennis?

They tell us it can't be done and prove their case by pointing to the fact that Siberia has no bananas. In other words, so is your Nacel Abner.

There are, as a matter of fact, some early signs that seem to indicate that professional tennis may not be so far away as the volunteer pall-bearers would have us believe. For one thing, several players of international reputation have joined the professional ranks within recent months. Professional promoters have begun to take an academic interest in the gate receipts of tennis matches, for another.

One of the first ranking Americans to discard his amateur connections was Harvey Snodgrass, the Californian. He was one of the most promising members of the younger school and climbed as high as No. 7 in the national ranking for 1924. Snodgrass, as an amateur, was nobody's push-over.

He was followed into the professional field only a few weeks ago by A. Von Braun, of Sweden. The latter is neither the best nor the worst in the world. But he was good enough to represent Sweden in the 1920 Olympic games at Antwerp and in the Davis Cup elimination rounds last year.

If there was such a thing as competitive professional tennis, Von Braun would be a very acceptable addition to the field.

However, most of the professionals now engaged by clubs as instructors and what not are superior to the type of player Von Braun represents. For example, there is Karl Kozuloh, of Czechoslovak, who is said to be the nearest thing to Tilden in the game. He has beaten some of Europe's leading amateurs with ease.

Another good one is George Agut, professional at West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills. He also has been called the Tilden of the professional ranks and may or may

SCHOOL DAYS By DWIG

CABLE LETTER

London, Feb. 6.—(AP)—By all means let the Prince of Wales continue his hunting, but also let him deny himself the thrill of very dangerous jumps—in this effect, is the consensus of opinion expressed in the British press since the heir to the throne was laid up with a broken collar-bone.

The case of one prominent British hunter who says he has broken nearly every bone in his body is advanced to show that the Prince after all has not suffered many accidents and still has a lot of falls ahead of him before he becomes a veteran hunter. Thus far, he has broken only his right and left collar bones.

Commander Louis Greig, offers an interesting explanation of the Prince's method of riding and his ability to "fall soft." Commander Greig says there are two schools of riding in England. The old "grip" school is confined chiefly to the army, and riders of this type must practice bare-back without stirrups for six months to enable them to stick to any horse under all conditions. The commander says this style of riding endangers the rider's neck in case of a fall, since he sticks so close to his horse that he is likely to be crushed. The Prince of Wales belongs to a new school which believes in balance without grip. Riders of this type lose their seats often than those of the "grip" school but they fall easily and away from the horses. Consequently they are less in danger of serious injury.

The newspapers agree that the Prince must have recreation and exercise, which riding alone gives him away from the inquisitive and curious crowds which follow him at golf and tennis. They express admiration for his pluck and courage, but generally agree that he has demonstrated his prowess sufficiently and should now take fewer risks.

The old home of Mary, Queen of Scots, has been modernized. Holyrood Palace, near Edinburgh, one of the state apartments, not only has been equipped with modern heating arrangements, cooking ranges and bath tubs, but also an elevator and an up-to-date receiving set.

The present Queen Mary herself has taken great interest in the introduction of modern improvements at the ancient palace, and she and King George will pay a visit there as soon as the innovations have been installed.

Queen Mary also has purchased much antique furniture and many curios for Holyrood to add to the attractiveness of the state apartments and to help fill the space from which an ancient stairway was removed to make way for an American-made elevator.

How long should a stage kiss last? is a question which has been agitating the London theatrical profession. The matter was brought to a head by several actresses who are decidedly opposed to realistic embraces on the stage and who, when kisses are to be given, insist on only those of the "peck" variety. These actresses have encountered opposition, however, not only from other actresses, but from producers and directors who insist on realism.

One producer contended that a kissing scene in his play should continue at least 65 seconds, and during rehearsals he held a stopwatch on the two persons to make certain that his order was carried out.

Stammerers do not need doctors, they need dancing teachers. This is the opinion of St. John Rumsey, head of the speech clinic at Guy's hospital. He says stammerers are generally non-musical and suffer from a lack of rhythm.

A girl of 20 recently applied to Mr. Rumsey for treatment for stammering. She was absolutely non-musical and had little sense of time. After a few dancing lessons, Mr. Rumsey says, she began to speak better. In a few weeks she acquired such a sense of rhythm that she could not only follow well in dancing but also could lead with precision. Meantime her speech became normal and her control of her vocal organs, perfect. Mr. Rumsey says this case is typical of scores that have been treated in his clinic.

Paris, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Jules Jusserand, who ended 20 years of service as French ambassador to the United States last year, since his retirement has been engaged in revising his three volume "Literary History of the English Peoples," and has nearly completed this task. The third volume will be issued in May.

Meanwhile, the former ambassador has found time to mix widely in French society, especially among the leaders of conservative politics. The government has authorized him to retain for life the title of ambassador. The French Institute, which is composed of five academies, has chosen him one of its two representatives to the meeting of the International Union of Academies in Brussels next June.

M. Jusserand is delivering numerous addresses on American subjects not only in Paris but also in various provincial cities. His next important engagement is to speak at Lyons, his home city, on February 20, when his subject will be the American people before their entry into the World War and after the peace.

The remarkable collection of American souvenirs which the ambassador brought back with him has compelled him to take a larger apartment in the Avenue Montaigne, where they occupy a room nearly as large as that occupied by his extensive library.

The Paris milliners never rest in their quest for new designs and the aim of many of them seems to be a hat a week, even in dull seasons, or 32 models a year. The rate of production is greater at the beginning of each season but new ideas are produced throughout the year and new hats spring up like gaudy mushrooms on the Paris boulevards.

The spring models already are appearing, to meet the longing for new headwear which every woman seems to feel at the first faint indication of winter's breaking. The choice is wide enough. There are beets, turbans, hats with pokes in front and dips at the sides, cloches, toques, hats with twisted brims or folded crowns.

Green and many shades of red

seen to be the predominant color. Simplicity is the prevailing characteristic although there is much use of ribbon trimming.

Laces, for some years neglected by French modists as trimmings for women's lingerie, except for women visitors from countries enjoying high exchanges as against the franc, has come into its own again, because of lower prices.

Full Valenciennes and the more gorgeous Bruges, Malines, and Flanders, point again figure prominent on frocks and lingerie. Even in these days when fashion has decreed that manufactured laces are a legitimate wear for afternoon and evening gowns and no longer a heresy, the fashionable woman chooses only real lace. The heavier Flanders point is a favorite for sleeveless empire style evening gowns with the new, exceeding low décollete.

Not a thread of wool enters the fabric of gowns made by one prominent boulevard dress-maker. All frocks made there are of crepe-de-chine, linen or crepe-georgette. One lace-trimmed cream-colored Riviera gown of batiste affluter with the new low flounce, characterizes the idea for spring and summer wear.

Berlin, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Magistrates and prosecutors in Silesia who have been punishing violators of traffic laws are learning to drive automobiles themselves in order to discover how easily traffic rules can be broken. Unlike their brethren of the United States, few German officials are wealthy enough to afford motor cars and are taking their lessons on police direction.

For the first lesson 20 judges and prosecutors drove automobiles or motorcycles through heavy city traffic and along country roads. The police instructors showed them that their worst offense was failure to heed the signals of traffic policemen.

Motorists of the region acclaim this innovation because they believe it will make magistrates more lenient in their enforcement of traffic legislation.

SUNSHINE GIRLS HAVE ENJOYABLE MEETING

On Friday evening, Feb. 5th, Misses Louise Dickinson, Eveyn Short and Alice Foley were hostesses to the "Sunshine Girls" class 13-A. of the Methodist Sunday School.

A short devotional service was held, after which there were several attractive games and contests. Each guest was given a puzzle which, when put together, made a heart. Mrs. J. B. James and Miss Elsie Zanheiser finished their puzzles first and were presented with a stock of chewing gum, well wrapped and packed in a shoe box. Among the other games was one in which a quart bottle filled with peanuts was brought out and everyone allowed to guess the number of peanuts in the bottle. Gertrude Oakley guessed the exact number and was awarded the prize. Two other games were played. There was also a Valentine hunt.

After a while of merriment, the hostesses served a delicious salad, and candy in the shape of hearts.

Those members of the class present were: Mrs. J. B. James, teacher, and Misses Margaret May Olivia Forbes, Elizabeth Austin, Rowena Wood, Mildred Hester, Novella Jones, Hattie Powell, Elsie Zanheiser, Gertrude Oakley, Cleo Powell, Rosa Lee Powell, Willie Mae Ho'ton, Mamie Ruth Fleming, Blanche Clark, Oliver Clark, Elizabeth Edwards, Elizabeth Colville, Marie Cashwell, Louise Dickinson, Evelyn Short and Alice Foley.

MISS DANSEDEL ADDRESSES PARENT-TEACHERS ASS'N.

The Parent-Teachers Association of West Greenville School, met Friday afternoon in the school auditorium.

A very delightful program consisting of several Valentine and patriotic selections, was given by Miss Powers' third grade.

The association was very fortunate in having to speak Miss Dansdel, director of the Health program in the schools of North Carolina.

Miss Dansdel's message on the health of a child and its importance was very interesting as well as helpful to all present.

Mesdames Marvin Blount, K. T. Futrell, Milton White and Jake Higgs as hostesses. Please note the change of the date.

PARENT-TEACHERS ASS'N. MODEL SCHOOL MEETS

The Parent-Teachers Association of the Model School, held a most interesting meeting Wednesday afternoon. In spite of the rainy weather, a large number of parents were present.

The fourth grade gave an excellent health play. Following this play Miss Townsend gave a reading "A Heap O' Livin'."

Rev. H. F. Jones, of the Memorial Baptist Church, was the speaker for the afternoon. His address was both helpful and inspiring. His theme was the influence of parents in the home. He emphasized the importance of building the right kind of home. Miss Coates' first grade won the first attendance prize. The third grade won second prize.

LETTER CONCERNING RECORD 'NAOMI WISE'

Wilkerson & Williams, Greenville, N. C. Dear Folks:

In reply to your request for the story of Naomi Wise I am sending you a clipping from the Greenville Daily News which tells the story just as I have heard it all my life. There has been many other ballads written about the tragedy. These my mother used to sing to me when I was just a child. My home is about 17-2 miles from the spring house and it has always been my pleasure to tell to outsiders the tragic story of Naomi Wise. One end of our town is called "Naomi." Also a bridge, a mill and a dam in that end of town are referred to as "Naomi Bridge," "Naomi Mill," and "Naomi Dam." I think you will find the clipping very interesting and I am sure you will enjoy the record more. I heard it in Greensboro last night and enjoyed it so much. Evidently others liked it too, as they kept going the entire time I was there. Hoping that this information is just what you want and with very best wishes for you both, I am

Very sincerely yours,
ROUSE HAYES STEELE.
Wilkerson & Williams will furnish this paper with the story of "Naomi Wise" Monday. Watch for the story and read it.

"The City Inevitable" at the Midway Point Between

Asheville and Chimney Rock—Lake Lure

North Carolina

ASHEVILLE and Western North Carolina have gained world-wide fame as a summer resort—and with the moderating winters, it is fastly shaping itself into an all year-round playground. Each year, each month in the year, shows an increased population over the preceding month and year. With increased population, naturally comes increased property values. Both are now attracting the attention of the entire Southeast—while the financial eye of the North and West is beginning to cast wistful glances over her possibilities.

Carolina's

is in the making. It is the beginning of the greatest and most attractive suburban residential development in all Western North Carolina. It will be a city of many distinctive advantages—nested, as it is, amid the rolling knolls that form the foothills—a plateau of Little Pisgah, overlooking the famous Fairview Valley.

Through its present publicity plan, offers an unusual opportunity to those fortunate enough to obtain a priority selection of a homesite. For Hollywood—in the Mountains, is playing an important part in creating real estate values—by breaking all previous records in the sale of homesites—on the opening day—week and month.

TO BE A MODEL MODERN CITY

In developing Carolina's Hollywood, in the Land of the Sky, it is the plan of the developers to make it a model modern city. Wide winding boulevards, sidewalks, lights, water and sewerage are among the improvements—while Lakes, Golf Course, Parks and Playgrounds will be added features.

HAMILTON BARRETT
SYNDICATE INC.
NEW PIEDMONT BUILDING
ASHEVILLE NORTH CAROLINA
R. T. HAMILTON, Pres. J. O. BARRETT, Sec.-Treas.

Our architect has prepared plans for a very attractive administration building, which will be constructed on Lake Shore Boulevard overlooking Lake Mary Alice. He is also preparing tentative plans for a Hotel of approximately 200 rooms at a cost of not less than $750,000.00, and we hope to have the hotel well under construction before opening date.

Positively on the date of our formal opening which is scheduled for May 15, all lots will advance in price, and no lot owned by the company will be sold for less than $2,100.00, and will range upward to $7,000.00.

Pre-developed prices—excluding Lake Shore and Golf Course Lots are $1595.00—$398.75 1st payment. Balance 1-2-3 years.

DEVELOPMENT POSSIBLE SHOULD LEAGUE TOWNS BE PUT INTO OPERATION

ment, as he summons a formidable line of argument in favor of the League plan. "The question of incorporation vs. municipal ownership is a rapidly developing one," Mr. Godfrey continues, "and unless the answer is soon found, the municipal plants that are now making money are going to be lost to the towns and cities of the state. Here in New Bern, we are making a nice profit, by means of which we are helping keep down taxes, building up the plant, and helping develop the surrounding territory. We supply the following territory: James City, Greenville, Granthams, Pollockville, Mayville, Jacksonville, Trenton, and Bridgeton. With a municipal plant, we are able to keep most of our money at home, as most of it is paid out to local people for labor and supplies. We even buy savings from four local planing mills and keep this additional money, which might be sent away for coal, in our own town. One argument advanced against the municipal plants is that they do not pay any taxes into the city treasuries. This is true, but it is also true that few corporations can be found who pay into city treasuries the amount of taxes that well-managed municipal plants can earn for the city in one year."

R. G. Grantham, of Wilson, is another supporter of the plan for a League of Towns. "We have approximately 58 miles of rural lines running out from our Wilson plant," Mr. Grantham says, "and we are serving seven towns: Stantonsburg, Elm City, Black Creek, Lucama, Simms, Bailey, and Middlesex. We also have another nine-mile line running north, serving the territory in that direction."

"Our plant is so designed that we could add additional boiler and generator capacity without a large expenditure, doubling the plant's capacity on short notice."

One of the best features of the League plan, in the opinion of Mr. Grantham, is that with such a plan in operation, the control of power rates would lie in the hands of the towns themselves rather than with a corporation commission.

"Should the various towns link their plants together, with the idea of working out the present plants and getting all the good out of them and then build a super power plant to handle the whole situation, it seems to me that it would be an ideal situation," continues Mr. Grantham, in expressing his approval of the League of Towns plan.

J. C. Martin, superintendent of Tarboro's public utilities, adds his support to that of Mr. Grantham and Mr. Godfrey. Tarboro has 31 miles of extension lines, serving Pinetops, Conotoe, Macclesfield, Crisp, Legrets, and Mildred, with service for farmers in between. "I believe the League plan to be the most practical from the standpoint of serving rural communities," says Mr. Martin. "I know that with the League in operation the expense of lines and maintenance can be borne by the League as a whole or by individual towns without having to tax the small country lines at such a rate as to make electric service for farmers prohibitive, as is often the case when farmers try to secure service from large power companies."

That this interconnection would also work to great advantage in that towns would not have to carry duplicate equipment to take care of emergencies, Mr. Martin also believes, for it is his opinion that the towns considering the League connection, taken all together already have enough equipment to take care of demands for ten years to come.

"We do not want to sell our plant," says Mr. Tucker, of Greenville's Water and Light Commission, in discussing the League plan. And Mr. Tucker is supported by Superintendent Schwartz and other interested citizens of Greenville, who believe that the League can profitably connect the several municipal plants in such a way as to provide unlimited power in and between the towns at a minimum cost, with benefit to all concerned. With expressions like these coming from the spokesmen of the Towns that shall make up the League, it is but the part of wisdom to anticipate within the near future, almost successful and happy solution of the problem of electric power supply for Eastern Carolina and Eastern Carolina in that day may realize with pardonable pride that within her own borders were citizens who were not only able but willing to contribute the vision and hope and hard work necessary in the working out of such a solution.

"ACHED & ACHED"

Lady Says Her Back "Hurt Night and Day"—Least Noise Upset Her. Better After Taking Cardui.

Winfield, Texas.—"My back hurt night and day," says Mrs. C. L. Mason, of R. F. D. 1, this place. "I ached and ached until I could hardly go. I felt weak and did not feel like doing anything. My work was a great burden to me. I just hated to do up the dishes, even. I was no-account and extremely nervous."

"My mother had taken Cardui and she thought it would do me good, so she told me to take it. My husband got me a bottle and I began on it. I began to improve at once. It was such a help that I continued it until after the baby's birth."

"I took eight bottles and I can certainly say that it helped me. It is a fine tonic. It built me up and seemed to strengthen me. I grew less nervous and began to sleep better."

"I can certainly recommend Cardui to expectant mothers, for to me it was a wonderful help. In every way I felt better after taking it and I think it is a splendid medicine."

Cardui is purely vegetable, and contains no harmful drugs. For sale everywhere. NC-162

CARDUI
THE WOMAN'S TONIC

Daily News Letter

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population.

By H. K. REYNOLDS, I. N. Staff Correspondent.

London, Feb. 5.—The Royal Coal Commission is rapidly completing its examination of the state of the mining industry, and it is expected that its report, upon which may depend either industrial war or peace, will soon be ready for publication.

Houlaha Hazrat Mohani, president of the first Indian Communist Conference, has brought out a new proposal for the advanced wing of the Indian Nationalists, says a dispatch from Cawpore. Houlaha wants to start a new organization for the developing of political consciousness and is advocating the formation of a "Republican Party of India," in order to meet the difficulty of the Government's "unreasonable opposition" to all communist propaganda.

Moulaha is demanding an absolute democratic form of government for India with no intermediate stages.

There is much speculation as to the probable recommendations of the Commission, which has been studying the coal problem since the Government found it necessary to subsidize the industry to forestall a complete stoppage of production. The Government wants to discontinue the subsidy at the first opportunity, but is generally agreed that before this can be accomplished a way must be found for operating the industry at a profit while, at the same time, complying as far as possible, with the wage and other demands of the miners' unions.

The problem which the Coal Commission has to solve consists in drafting recommendations which can be accepted by both the miners and operators so that the mines can continue to operate while further points of disagreement are in a process of adjustment.

Nationalization of the mines and Government operation has been urged in responsible labor quarters, chiefly by A. J. Cook, the leader of the miners, but it is doubtful if the Commission will be prepared to make a recommendation so far-reaching.

The Publicity Problem Set Aside Until Monday

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—For the third successive session the Senate agreed today to postpone a decision on the proposal in the tax reduction bill repealing the law allowing publication of income payments. Both advocates and opponents of the repeal provision asked further time for debate after the presentation of the minority report from the special Senate Committee, which investigated the internal revenue bureau.

Agreeing to set aside the publicity problem until Monday, Senator Smoot, in charge of the bill, demanded that other unapproved sections be taken up.

Scrawny Women Much More Likely to Reach Old Age

Chicago, Feb. 5.—(I. N. S.)—Middle-aged women who worry about being thin are more fortunate than they think. They have a much better chance of living to a ripe old age than their more obese sisters, according to Mrs. J. J. Maurer, beauty expert, in an address here.

"Schawinness is really an aid to longevity," she said. "Medical statistics show that persons of middle age weighing from five to ten pounds below the average avoirdupois for their height are the most healthy. Extreme degrees of underweight, however, are dangerous and in such cases efforts should be made to increase the poundage and thus improve the body's disease-resisting properties."

"While fat women are frequently of a joyful, happy disposition and radiate an appearance of vigorous health, they are in actuality an easy prey to disease. They enjoy their food more and curbing their appetites to reduce weight is an almost unbearable burden."

"If thin women feel their underweight as a beauty drawback they can easily cosmetize themselves into an appearance of plumpness. Rouge and lipstick skillfully applied will create the illusion of a well-rounded face, and the thin woman can rejoice in her healthfulness with the assurance of always being attractive."

S. C. Farmers Desire Larger Mkt. Period

Moultrie, Ga., Feb. 6.—(I. N. S.)—Tobacco growers of south Georgia will make a concerted effort to keep the tobacco markets open for a longer period this fall. The present marketing period of from eight to ten weeks is deemed by them to be insufficient. A marketing period of from twelve to fourteen weeks will be requested.

An effort also will be made to secure greater accuracy in the reporting of sales and prices paid by trade journal representatives. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed over the tendency to "boost" prices and sales of tobacco from different sections of the state.

A meeting of warehousemen and newspaper correspondents will be held prior to the opening of the market, it was said, and steps taken to correct this testimony.

A survey by demonstrators and fertilizer men indicates that the 1926 crop in Georgia will prove to be one of her "best bets" insofar as acreage and actual value are concerned.

JUVENILE COURTS ARE ASKED FOR MEXICO

Mexico City, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Juvenile Courts for Mexico are urged by the Society for the Protection of Children of this country.

The Society has petitioned President Calles to issue a decree under the "extraordinary authority" given him by Congress, for immediate creation of these courts—and if the President thinks he has not this authority the Society will submit a bill to the next session of Congress.
