ARMY ENGINEERS RECOMMEND CANAL FROM BEAUFORT

Governor and Council of State in Favor of Borrowing Sum of $10,300,000

Raleigh, June 19.—(AP)—The Governor and Council of State today adopted a resolution approving the action of the Governor and Treasurer Lacy in borrowing $10,300,000 in New York.

The funds were borrowed for a period of six months at 3 3/4 per cent. This completes the amount which the 1925 General Assembly authorized the state to borrow.

$5,000,000 of the amount borrowed is for highways, $5,000,000 for the special school building fund, and $300,000 for the Chowan River bridge.

However $2,500,000 of the amount borrowed for schools was to take up notes previously given for this purpose and the same is true of the $300,000 for the Chowan bridge, so that amount of additional debt incurred is $7,500,000. Mr. Lacy remained in New York to sign and deliver the notes.

The council met at the residence of Secretary of State Everett, as Mr. Everett is still confined to his home by the recent heart attack from which he is recovering.

TODAY

(Copyright 1926) Fish Or Worms. What Mothers Don't Know. Lo, the Poor Farmer. By ARTHUR BRIBBANE

F. B. Huff, dead at sea, was thrown overboard. Sailors think it "bad luck" to carry a live clergyman, and a corpse. They would rather carry a live clergyman, although they consider clergymen also "unlucky."

The relatives of the man buried at sea demand ten thousand dollars damage each, presumably for injury to their feelings.

It is wrong to hurt the feelings of anybody, but there seems little to choose between being quickly eaten by fishes in the ocean, or slowly eaten by worms in the grave. One other choice is to be swiftly burned, sent up into the air through the chimney, a few ashes left on the earth.

Death is unpleasant at best.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, earnest and energetic, attacks the bill to extend federal maternity aid to the states for another year. Mr. Reed objects to what he calls "a bunch of unmarried women going about the country trying to tell real mothers how to raise their babies."

The good senator calls it "interference with American motherhood."

If Senator Reed went to a well managed lying-in hospital, he would find many unmarried women trained nurses, helping mothers to have their babies. And he would not find the mothers dying like flies, as they do throughout the country, tens of thousands of mothers dying in childbirth every year, because they lack knowledge and intelligent care. Merely having a baby doesn't make a mother know how to take care of a baby.

Senator Reed's complaint is something like that of an earnest mother of the slums, much annoyed by the visit of a young, unmarried, trained nurse that wanted to help her. "You telling me how to bring up children, is it? Me that's buried seven."

This Government spends millions teaching farmers to take care of new-born pigs, calves and other animals. It ought to spend a little money also to help human mothers with their children. And when Senator Reed thinks it over he will agree with that.

Miss Bustard, who was head of that great lying-in hospital that J. Pierpont Morgan built in New York, never had a baby. But she knew more about taking care of babies and their mothers than any ten thousand "natural born mothers."

Obstetrics is a science, not guess work.

Financial newspapers worry about any effort to help the farmers, fearing it may be a "tax on food."

Thirty-five million Americans in all live by farming and stock raising. Eighty million Americans live otherwise. It seems wrong to tax eighty millions for the benefit of thirty-five millions.

That is convincing, when your sympathies happen to be on that side. What about heavy duties, taxes that one hundred and fifteen millions of people pay, to protect a few dozens or hundreds of manufacturers? It is all right to tax all the people to protect the "right sort of people," but all wrong to tax anybody to protect thirty-five million people, working on the farms.

In this Christian age not all Christians are safe. Nine distinguished cardinals left New York for Chicago yesterday on a special train of seven cars, painted red, as nearly as possible the cardinal's colors. Hundreds were on their knees in the railroad station as the train pulled out, eagerly struggling to kiss the ring of some one of the distinguished ecclesiastics. The authorities announced that the train was guarded against attack or malicious interference with greater care than had ever been used in the case of any presidential train.

And yesterday, when three Yugoslav Roman Catholic bishops arrived in Rome, they were met by a crowd of thousands. (Continued on page four)

LONG DRY SPELL BROKEN BY RAIN IN ALL SECTIONS

Drought Still Prevails in South Carolina, and No Hope of Rain in Sight

The long dry period has been generally broken in North Carolina today with rain reported from practically every section of the state. Farmers welcomed the steady drizzle renewing hope that crops would gain new life and fully mature. Across the line to the South however, the drought still prevails and at Chester, S. C., there were heavy clouds this morning, but no rains had fallen. Although Saturday there is usually an exceptionally busy day citizens stopped this morning for an hour prayer service for rain. Another will be held this afternoon. At Gastonia, N. C., rain had fallen last night and today.

"Heavy and steady rain since four A. M." was the word from High Point. Further up the state and in the Eastern Tobacco section where the drought had not let up for weeks, there was reported rain from Raleigh and Winston-Salem and at nearby counties rain also was reported. Charlotte, Salisbury and Greensboro experienced a steady rain for hours this morning.

Asheville did not report any rain today, but that section of the state is said not to be suffering as seriously as others, the drought having been broken earlier in the week.

Simmons Hopeful for Waterway Fund

Raleigh, June 19.—(AP)—Senator Simmons is very hopeful that an appropriation for an inland waterway from Beaufort to Wilmington will be included in the rivers and harbors bill now in the hands of the committee. This was the statement today of Governor McLean after a conversation with the Senator at Washington yesterday.

The bill will be reported by the committee very shortly, Senator Simmons told the Governor. The completion of this inland waterway would be of tremendous value to all Eastern North Carolina and particularly to Wilmington and South Port, the Governor declared.

QUEEN OLGA OF GREECE IS DEAD IN ETERNAL CITY

Great Sorrow Caused by Passing of Aged Member of Europe's Royalty

Rome, June 19.—(AP)—The former Dowager Queen Olga of Greece, grandmother of the late King Alexander and widow of King George the First, died here today at the age of 75.

Members of the family were at the bedside. The Queen's illness seemed slight when it began several days ago, but the age of the patient went against her with fatal results. The news caused great sorrow in aristocratic circles and scores of exiled Russian and Greek nobles hastened to the villa to pay their respects.

MEEKINS TO SIGN CO-OP RECEIVERSHIP

Elizabeth City, June 19.—(AP)—Federal Judge I. M. Meekins announced in Federal Court here today that he would sign an order this afternoon (through the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association) into a receivership. Three receivers will be named this afternoon, he said.

Fifteen Lives Lost in Train Wreck

PITT CONVICT CAMP HAS BECOME AN INSTITUTION; IT IS A TOWN IN ITSELF

Camp Located Ten Miles From Greenville Has Shower Bath, Portable Houses, Splendid Culinary Service; Considered One of the Most Sanitary and Up-to-Date Camps in the State

It would be difficult for the average mind to visualize a convict camp where cleanliness and sanitation prevailed day in and day out with consistent regularity, for these two things are foreign to the majority of camps.

But in Pitt county things are different. The convict camp is no longer a place where mortal souls are sent to pass through long months and years of purgatorial blackness and darkness, wherein God cleanses the sins of the sinner as by fire.

The Pitt county convict camp today is an institution.

It is an institution, operated on business principles. It is a place where happiness and good-will prevails among 42 prisoners who are now serving sentences.

In fact, it is a veritable little town in itself—a habitation of portable houses, shower baths, distinctive culinary service, comfortable stables for stock. It is a place where the criminal element of the county is not allowed to forget the debt he owes to civilization; where he is treated kindly and considerately, and where he learns the meaning of personal service.

The convict camp is located on the Cox's Mill road, ten miles southeast of Greenville. It was established there sometime last December. The superintendent is C. B. Francher. He has engaged in work of this kind long enough to know men and what may be expected of them. He expects them to work certain hours every day. Each man is assigned some particular task and the end of a day finds his work well done.

When visited by a reporter of the Daily Reflector yesterday afternoon, the camp was in its usual every-day order. No one knew we were coming. We stepped in, uninvited. What we saw impressed us. It will remain in our memory long years to come. The first place visited was the kitchen. The hour was five o'clock. That versatile representative of the negro race, Nelson Hopkins, presided over the department. He is from Farmville where he used to operate a cafe and moving picture show. He is serving one year for becoming too familiar with the illicit liquor and the aroma of browning potatoes and meat sizzling on the stove. We got a pretty fine impression of the kitchen environment. The department was well screened. The floor had been scrubbed so clean that the cook might have used it for a mirror in case of exigency. And the utensils and other things which go to make up a kitchen, shone bright and clean. We liked the cook and the way he did things. But more than all, we particularly fancied the appetizing odor rising from the stove. Nelson invited us to stay for supper. He gave the invitation with a smile. And again we had the impression that the spirit of that smile pervaded the entire outfit.

The cages where the prisoners sleep are clean and comfortable, insofar as such is possible. The sides of the wagons exposed to the sun are well screened. There was one cage for whites, and three for the colored. From there we went to the private shower bath. And right there is where the camp shines. There is only one other convict camp in the state with a shower bath. That is in Wake county. The bath has five individual showers. The men are permitted to take advantage of it Wednesday and Saturday. They receive a complete change of clothing at the time. The bath is furnished water from a power pump connected with the main well. It is an innovation in the history of convict camps, and one Pitt county criminals enjoy.

The stables where the stock is kept would do credit to such a place located in the heart of a city. There is no filth, no stench, as is customary around such a place. It is a place where animals may revel in the joy of animal life; where they are relieved of everything annoying to a good horse or mule. And they are good horses and mules. We have not seen their superior in many a day. All of them were sleek and plump. They work from five o'clock in the morning until six o'clock in the afternoon. The men do the same. But it troubles neither. All are well fed and well provided for. Consequently, they are not adverse to the arduous duties incurred from day to day.

SHORT RECESS IS TAKEN IN HEARING OF BANK CASHIER

Cashier of Defunct Henderson Bank Declares Wrong Evidence Introduced

Henderson, June 19.—(AP)—A three-hour recess was taken in Vance county Superior Court shortly after noon today in the case of R. B. Crowder former cashier of the defunct Farmers and Merchants Bank of Henderson, who is charged with embezzling more than $50,000 of the bank's funds.

The recess was taken in order of the court when Crowder protested that matter was being introduced into the trial of which he had no previous knowledge and that it would be necessary for him to look through his personal records in order to answer this line of testimony.

During the morning cross examination by Solicitor Parker, Crowder admitted swearing to a federal income tax report for the bank in which he charged off $10,175 in notes as worthless. He admitted that these notes had been turned over to the receiver of the bank after it had been closed as assets. He admitted that with these notes out of the bank there was a shortage and he was unable to show any place in the books record where the notes had been reintroduced as assets after being charged off as losses.

The defendant said that the notes were reintroduced as assets in December 1923 to permit payment of dividend when the bank was losing money and was not in a position to pay a dividend. He said the directors knew about the transaction at the time it took place.

Just before going through cross examination Crowder declared that he had not profited personally by any of the manipulations of the bank's affairs.

A demand note of $280 was produced in court and shown to the defendant. This note had been credited to his account in the bank and Crowder was unable to hand to show where it had been charged against him on the bank books. Another note for $2000 was produced and it was alleged this involved an automobile purchased by Crowder in July 1920, but which was not shown on the bank's books as charged against Crowder. It was at this point that the defendant protested he had had no advance notice of these items and would have to look through his personal records in order to answer questions concerning them. Judge Cranmer then ordered a three-hour recess.

APPROVE ACTION TO BORROW HUGE SUM IN NEW YORK

Congress Asked for $3,200,000 for Waterway From Beaufort to Cape Fear

Washington, June 19.—(AP)—Expenditure of $3,200,000 for an intercoastal waterway from Beaufort, N. C., to the Cape Fear River was recommended to Congress today by Army engineers. The proposed intercoastal canal would be eight feet deep and 60 feet wide. Provision would be made for a tidal lock near the Cape Fear end and a highway bridge in its vicinity. An initial appropriation of $950,000 was recommended for the first year, $900,000 for the second, and $500,000 for the third and fourth years, and $350,000 for the fifth years. An appropriation of $100,000 annually was recommended for maintenance.

Local interest would be required to furnish without cost to the government, a right of way 1,000 feet wide and give satisfactory assurances to the Secretary of War that they would take over the highway bridge on its completion, and maintain and operate it in perpetuity.

COMMITTEE WILL RESUME INQUIRY MONDAY MORN

Senate Campaign Committee Suddenly Calls Off Today's Session

Washington, June 19.—(AP)—The Senate campaign funds committee called off today's session of its hearings and announced it would resume the inquiry Monday morning with Wayne B. Wheeler of the anti-saloon league, on the stand.

Chairman Reed had altered the program of the committee yesterday so that they would not appear on the stand to testify on his charges that large sums of money had been expended by liquor interests in the recent $3,000,000 Republican primary. Mr. Wheeler had been instructed to be on hand today, but the committee this morning changed its plans.

Late yesterday after six hours of probing into the financial aspects of the primary, the committee announced itself ready to go further into the political activities of the anti-saloon league.

The latest testimony from Mr. Wheeler was to the effect the league had been paying expenses and sometime an "honorarium" to members of Congress for prohibition speeches. Chairman Reed drew from Wheeler the names of four Senators and four Representatives in connection with this practice. Since then five of those named have made reply of varying nature.

In addition to Senator Willis, Republican of Ohio, who asserted he had never been on the league payroll, and Representative Lowry, Democrat of Missouri, "who had no apology to make," Representative Upshaw, Democrat of Georgia, and Barkley, Democrat of Kentucky, the two credited by Wheeler with making the greatest number of prohibition speeches and Representative Cooper, of Ohio, made public their views last night.

Barkley declared he had never received pay from the anti-saloon league for any speeches, although local organizations arranging them sometime had reimbursed him for his expenses and occasionally had added a modest amount as an expression of their appreciation.

Upshaw "confessed" to accepting "a modest honorarium" and countered with a challenge to Reed to "please enlighten the public how many thousands of dollars he has made trying famous cases since he became a Senator." Barkley likewise said he received "modest honorariums" from "local organizations and churches" and described as being as far fetched as its contestable "Reed's insinuations that Senators and members of Congress have been influenced to support the dry cause because of any speech fees."

Chairman Reed's efforts to uncover further financial facts about the campaign meanwhile has added about $175,000 to the committee's total for the Pepper-Fisher coalition organization, but this left it still several hundred thousand dollars below the total of returns filed by campaign committees with the state authorities at Harrisburg, totaled close to $3,000,000.

Eight Youths In Charlotte Court

Charlotte, June 19.—(AP)—Eight youthful members of the younger set appeared in court here today to answer speeding charges against them last night as they hurriedly made their way to a dance. The boys half serious and half laughing stood before Squire J. W. Cobb to hear their sentences. "Thirty days, next case" the court snapped. The laughing disappeared. The defendants exchanged startled glances and moved uneasily. Then the court spoke again. "Oh, you have learned your lesson. Each of you pay $5 and then go home."

M'Lendon Holds Prayer Services for Federation

Noted Evangelist Will Speak at Baptist Church and Union Services

Rev. B. F. McLendon, more generally known as "Cyclone Mack" has arrived in Greenville where he will spend several days at the home of Gus Forbes, four miles west of Greenville.

This morning he conducted the Men's Federation prayer meeting. He has been extended an invitation to conduct the Federation meeting tonight.

Tomorrow morning he will fill the pulpit at the Memorial Baptist church. Tomorrow evening, at eight o'clock, he will speak at a union service on the court house lawn. All churches of the city will join these services.

Mr. McLendon spoke to the Men's Federation on the subject of "Duties of a Christian." He enumerated the various duties which every man owes to his community. He discussed in an interesting way the phases of work open to the intelligent man in all walks of life, and said none of them should be shirked.

In discussing the prohibition question, he declared there is no reason in the world why prohibition should not be enforced. He cited many instances where it is being enforced. He said the officers in these communities were men who realized the responsibility placed upon them. They are living up to the faith reposed in them by the public. Justice always must be meted out by those with faith in themselves and the communities they serve, he said.

Since his campaign in this city five years ago, this noted evangelist has traveled from coast to coast from the Gulf to the Great Lakes. In all cities where he preached he was greeted by large crowds.

After the Federation services this morning, the congregation joined in something like a reunion. Many of the Federation members were McLendon converts. A spirit of brotherhood and good-will prevailed. It cheered the minister and it also cheered the hearts of the men who are endeavoring to make the prayer services count for the city's good.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT MEDITATION

"PILATE'S WIFE"

S. Matthew 27:19:—"When he was set down on the judgment seat his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of Him."

When a man is yielding to his lower nature, and when his character is crumbling into ruin, there are always hands to hurry on the work—just as there are others to retard it.

"No man liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself." No man conquers and no man falls alone. Influences stream in upon the individual from the social life of which he forms a part; and of these influences some are always bad and make it easier to reach the shadows, while others are the ministering angels pleading for what it manliest and best.

Now, in the tragical history of Pilate we see these diversified forces very clearly. When Pilate comes upon the page of Scripture the shadows round him are deepening into night. He held a lonely post—that of Roman Governor in an obscure province. He was far away from his kindred and his home. He was set down among an alien people—alien in speech and alien in religion. It was not for him to be easy with his subjects or to draw toward them in familiar intercourse. Like the imperial eagle on his standard, he had his dwelling in a loftier air. That isolation was felt by every procurator, and you can recognize it in Pilate. Between him and those he had to govern there was a gulf that was impassable. And yet, as Pilate drifted to his shipwreck, as he stumbled forward to his night of weeping, hands were stretched out to push him on, and one at least to hold him back. It was a woman's hand. It was his wife's hand. It was the hand that had made him happy once. Now in his weakness it was grasping at him as if to pluck him back from death and hell; and doing it, mark you, with a certain daring, with a certain disregard of consequence, for to get at the ear of a judge upon the bench was in the law of Rome no trifling crime.

1. We know practically nothing of Pilate's wife save what is told us in this one verse of St. Matthew's Gospel. Tradition, of course, has been very busy with her. Even from the earliest times some name had to be found for her, and she was given the gentle one of Claudia. It was said that she was attracted by the religion of the Jews, and afterwards became a Christian. In the Greek church—the church of Russia—she is canonized as a saint.

Of her history, however, we know nothing surely. But the presence with her husband in Judea tells us something. For the Roman government did not encourage wives accompanying their husbands to distant provinces.

Tactius tells us that they endeavored to legislate along these lines, but had not succeeded. If they had no such law, all the authority of Caesar, and all the feeling of official Rome, was to keep the wives at home. The government thought, I suppose, it were better for a man to be alone, to do his duty with undivided heart.

But this woman braved the censure of all her set when she decided to accompany her husband on his mission to Judea. Silencing the pleadings of her friends she turned her back upon all the gaities of the Imperial City, and elected to go to the insignificant and troublesome province. She was no ordinary woman evidently.

2. We should remember too, that the man to whom she clung was far from being an ideal man. We see Pilate in the Gospels in a single scene in which his weakness and worldliness are plain; but we may be sure it was a gradual decline, and not a sudden lightning-stroke that brought him down. And no one saw his decline more clearly than his wife, for her eyes were the eyes of love.

Josephus tells us some things about Pilate, and the faults which spoiled his public life were just the kind men reveal at home. Without tact, with no consideration for others, cursed with an ungovernable temper, and at heart a cruel man; he could not hide these from his wife.

But, though disillusioned in her man, she clung to him with fidelity, and, we may believe, with the hope that some day she could win him back. There are still some women like that!

3. Pilate's wife must have heard of Jesus: the Roman soldiers knew of Him—one officer's servant had been healed by Him. Perhaps she had seen His gentle face as He passed thru the crowded streets of the city on His missions of healing; and that glance had powerfully impressed her. "Have nothing to do with this man," she advised her husband. She did not doubt His innocency. He was more than innocent—He was "just"; He was righteous; He was God. There was something about Him that made her tremble for her husband. To others it was Christ before Pilate. To her it was Pilate before Christ; and the strange thing is that history has proven that she was right!

Oldsmobile Six has answered the demand for a true Multi-Purpose Coupe... a business car, a personal car, in one!

The body by Fisher combines smartness with elegance, dash with dignity. On the Oldsmobile chassis it offers flashing performance, extraordinary handling ease, and the downright dependability of thorough quality.

Business or professional men find at their command quick getaway, easy parking, readiness for every emergency. On long, grueling drives that business so often demands—it asks no favors, and fears no road. Women welcome also its quick response to wheel and positive brakes and that striking beauty which makes it a distinctive car for social jaunts and shopping.

Here is an intimate personal car... a car you can depend on and respect... a partner in your work... a comrade in your play.

That is why the Multi-Purpose Coupe has been a substantial factor in the public preference for Oldsmobile.

THE BIRTH OF THE TITLE "HOT WATER"

The way of a title is long and devious. Especially those titles that are selected for original stories. Of course, it is different with titles of stage plays and books. They have a certain commercial value and to change them would be ridiculous although it is a frequent occurrence in the motion picture industry. For his new picture, which he has called "Hot Water," Lloyd waded through nearly five hundred suggestions, out of this mass he first picked the title, "Hubby" which remained virtually throughout the production of the picture. In fact, two previews were told under that name. Then one day, John Grey, of the Lloyd scenario staff, and one of the best title writers in the country, hit upon "Hot Water." He asked Haro'd what he thought of it and it was immediately agreed that the title of the new production was to be "Hot Water." And thus was born another new and appealing Lloyd title. This picture comes to White's Theatre Tuesday.

REV. A. R. H. MILLER FLAX RAISING TO PREACH FINAL SERMON SUNDAY

Department of Agriculture Thinks It Would Prove Profitable If We Had Mills

Raleigh, June 18.—(INS)—Flax-raising to supply mills which could be established in North Carolina would be profitable, it was suggested today by the State Department of Agriculture, thru a news letter issued by the marketing division. It was pointed out, in this connection, that cotton mills have sprung up all over the state to manufacture raw cotton produced on surrounding farms. "Coupled with water power possibilities of this section" is stated, "factories for the manufacture of flax could be organized which would handle the material from the farms and turn out a finished product without the cost of transporting it into the state." Flax does not impoverish the soil, the Department says, adding: "In general, soils which produce a good crop of corn or a good crop of barley will produce a satisfactory flax crop. Flax is not a crop for poor land and, while it does not require excessively fertile soil, yet reasonably good soil is necessary. Fairly heavy clay and silt loams are the best. Sandy soil is not suitable. Poorly drained soils are very objectionable." "There is a ready market for flax. Only about ninety-five days are required to mature the crop and, consequently, it is ready to harvest before any danger of fall frosts, even in the mountain districts." "There is no better nurse crop than flax. The plants are slender the leaves are narrow and small, and the branches are few and short. They shade the ground very little so that the sunlight and air circulate freely. Hence, clovers, alfalfa, and timothy can be seeded with flax to good advantage. Although it is grown for fiber, it has many more uses, including its manufacture into feed and oil."

Pitt County Convict Camp Is a Small Town Itself

are four of them. They are small, but comfortable and clean. They impress the visitor with the effort these men and their wives are making to keep in close personal touch with civilization. In truth, they have accomplished their work well. They have a little civilization of their own. It is one in which every citizen of the county should be interested. It is these men and women who are watching over the destiny of the criminally inclined. They are endeavoring to teach the prisoners the spirit of real men and women. They are accomplishing their mission.
At supper, both whites and blacks conversed jovially. They had the appearance of men at the end of a day's work. None were blue and dejected. They accepted their fate with resignation, believing no doubt that experience would prove a stepping-stone to the future.

Pitt county people should visit the camp. We have made no effort to exaggerate. Exaggeration would be impossible in a case like this. We believe the camp is equal to anything in the state. We always will believe it until convinced we are wrong.

TODAY

rived on the Olympic, the state department requested the "bomb squad" of New York's police to be on hand to protect them from danger.

Christianity, evidently, still has a great work to do.
Mr. Arthur Curtis James, said to be the largest owner of railroad stocks in the United States, is certainly entitled to respect. A coast guard rum patrol fired a cannonade at his yacht. It was a fine, fast yacht, and the hunters of bootleggers concluded it must be a bootleg yacht.

Mr. James, hurrying to Newport to be polite to the Crown Prince of Sweden, is naturally annoyed. You can't have prohibition without hunting bootleggers. And many things must be "put up with" in the good cause.

Having seen the difficulty experienced by the Democrats in beating them, the Republicans apparently have decided to beat themselves.—Durham Sun.

CABLE LETTER

London, June 19.—(AP)—A smoking room all to herself is to be assigned to Miss Susan Lawrence, one of the four women members of Parliament. Lady Astor and the three other commoners do not smoke but the Laborite member for Eastham greatly enjoys the nicotine solace.

Miss Lawrence after some persuasion finally convinced the male parliamentarians that even the Lady Astor and the other women frowned upon cigarette smoking by women she at least was entitled to a sequestered place in which to have a quiet puff.

Miss Lawrence comes of a family of barristers. She has a deep resonant voice which is heard easily throughout the chamber. She began her public career on the London school board. She served as a member of the house in 1923-24 and was re-elected in the labor landslide in Eastham in April.

Prohibition agencies have lost their fight to keep liquor advertisements out of the post office and the government owned telephone booths. The post master general has announced that a firm of advertisers has been authorized to accept advertisements of alcoholic beverages for display in all post offices as well as public telephone cabinets throughout the country.

Heretofore this class of advertisement was prohibited, much to the gratification of prohibitionists who urged the government to continue the ban despite the realiment created in the liquor trading circles. Dealers in alcoholic beverages long ago protested that the order prohibiting their advertisements to appear in the post offices and telephone booths was an act of discriminating against their interests.

Berlin, June 19.—(AP)—From canary birds to thoroughbred race horses may seem a wide stride in commerce. Nevertheless the Harse Mountain people are about to add horses to the large numbers of canaries and German Police dogs they are sending to the United States.
Fourteen Yearlings from the Harseburg breeding farm of Baron von Lyncker have been selected for shipment to the United States will be auctioned during the August race meeting at Saratoga, N. Y. This farm has been supplying the German turf with thoroughbred animals for more than 75 years.

Those of the 2,000,000 persons who signed a petition demanding local option in Germany and presented it to Paul Loeb, president of the Reichstag are disappointed at its reception. The government has decided, instead of trying to make the country dry to come up to the aid of the distressed wine growers. Following the abolition of the federal excess tax on wine several months ago, money from the public exchequer now is to be devoted to nationwide "wine propaganda." There will be a prize competition for the best collections of stories, sayings, anecdotes and aphorisms considered beneficial to the wine trade. The competition will be conducted by the federal ministry of agriculture in co-operation with an organization of wine growers and wine purveyors known as the national committee for wine propaganda.

Paris, June 19.—(AP)—After Sunday the true Parisian will feel mortified to be found in Paris. The capital will be then added to tourists and provincials.
On Sunday begins "grand week" and the closing of the 1926 season and an exodus of people to their country homes at Deauville and other resorts.

Four big races will mark the "grand week" three at the Autuel track—the grand steeplechase on Sunday the grand hurdles on Wednesday and the Drags Prize Friday. Then comes another great feature—the grand prix de Paris—at Long Champs Sunday, June 27.

Two of these racing events have lost some of their prestige of recent years. The grand prix no longer is the big fashion show of the year and last year only three persons showed the ability to handle a coach and six horses in driving to Autuel in the traditional manner which gave the name of "drags" or tally-ho coach day.

A female Fagin is being sought by the police. She is declared by authorities to be the counterpart of the Dickens Fagin and the "artful dodger" who taught young Oliver Twist all he knew of light fingered art. Only instead of imparting instructions to the youths she specializes in teaching young girls.

Two young women caught picking pockets of shoppers in the Rue Montfard, a market place, confessed they were pupils of Amanda Godart, a Belgian woman, who ran a thriving "pick-pocket school" at Bicetre, a suburb of the metropolis. Pupils, the prisoners asserted, were assigned regular "beats" according to their skill. They charged that Godart woman personally made tours of inspection to assure herself that her pupils were keeping active and profitably employed.

Your Biggest Task is Cooking
But it is different today in the modern home. Electric cookery has made it easier for the housewife. She does not have to stand over a hot stove all day—she is free from worry, care and constant attention. It is no longer a task but a pleasure to cook; so quickly, so easily, and so well can it be done. Think what it will mean to cook in a cool kitchen with no soot, smoke or dirt; free from uncertain heat which cannot be regulated; with your heat immediately and constantly obedient to you.

UNIVERSAL
Automatic Heat Control keeps the oven at an unvaried and even heat, making it always possible to maintain the exact heat desired in the oven, so previous cooking results can be easily duplicated.

The UNIVERSAL Oven Heat Control will automatically watch over the entire cooking operation. Your personal attention is not required and this permits you to hours of leisure every day.
