FIRST SESSION 69TH CONGRESS CLOSED TODAY

With a Record of Many Things Done As Well as Many Undone, Gavel Fell at 3 O'clock.

Washington, July 3.—(AP)—Congress fixed three o'clock this afternoon as the hour for final adjournment for the summer.

A House resolution setting the time for disbanding the session was adopted by the Senate without a record vote.

With the final bang of the gavel in the House and the Senate there comes to the end of a seven-month session, during which grappled among outstanding issues with taxation, the World Court question, foreign debt, prohibition farm relief and the railroad labor problems.

Leaving behind a record of many things done as well as many things undone, its members are able to point to passage of a revenue bill estimated to have relieved the nation's tax burden by $350,000,000 to approval by the Senate of a resolution providing for America's adherence to the World Court protocol; ratification of a number of War debt settlements, chief among them being that of Italy, and to enactment of a measure designed to promote peace in the railroad industry.

As for farm relief, which stirred up strife during most of the session, only one proposal, a cooperative marketing bill, sponsored by the administration, reached the White House.

Along with a number of relief measures the Senate rejected one endorsed by President Coolidge providing for loans to farmers cooperative and both the House and Senate turned down the corn belt plan with its equalization fee feature.

Prohibition bobbed into the debate in both Houses at frequent intervals but administration bills to tighten up the Volstead Law for the most part, went by the board along with modification proposals.

In the dying hours of the session Senator Neely, Democrat of West Virginia, was blocked today by Senator Blease, Democrat of South Carolina, when he tried to get action on his resolution limiting Senatorial campaign expenditures.

ENGLISH NOVELS DO NOT TELL STORIES - PEMBERTON

London, July 3.—(AP)—Max Pemberton says the trouble with modern English novels is that they do not tell a story.

Conan Doyle, Stevenson and Rider Haggard won a great following because they told stories and the public would instantly respond today to novelists who invent and have the necessary technique to carry invention through so Mr. Pemberton believes.

"The public is tired of sheiks and hysterical women, veiled obscenity and all the nastiness and poverty of the modern novel as it now being written. The story is the thing the public wants."

DR. EMILE COUE DIED YESTERDAY NANCY, FRANCE

World Famous Advocate of Auto-Suggestion Healing Succumbs to Fatigue From Overwork.

Nancy, France, July 3.—(AP)—Philip Emile Coue, the little man who made famous the phrase "every day in every way, I am getting better and better," is dead.

The noted advocate of auto-suggestion and the treatment of illness died yesterday at his home here from general fatigue, due to overwork in countless lectures and healing sessions. He had been ill for several weeks.

Professor Coue, as he preferred to be addressed, at first was a druggist but later took up the teaching and preaching of his simple recipe for health and happiness. He lectured upon his ideas to the United States, France, England, Spain and other countries.

Speedway Official Dies Suddenly Today

Charlotte, July 3.—(AP)—Caleb L. Etheridge, one of the promoters of the Charlotte speedway, died suddenly at his home here early today. Death was attributed to heart trouble.

Mr. Etheridge was president of the Etheridge Motor Company and also was the head of several other automobile concerns. He was 36 years of age.

Russell Scott To Hang, October 15

Chicago, July 3.—(AP)—Russell Scott, who escaped the gallows almost by minutes several times, today was sentenced to be hanged on October 15.

Superior Judge Kavanaugh sentenced Scott after first overruling his motion for a new trial.

Scott was convicted of the murder of a drug clerk in the City Hall Pharmacy, who was shot and killed in what the prosecution charge was a hold-up, engineered by Scott and his brother, Robert. Robert Scott's charge on the murder trial is set for July 9.

MEMBERS OF CREW OF RUM RUNNER ARE BOUND OVER

Fourteen Members of Elma Crew Held For Fall Term Court Under $10,000 Bond Each.

Wilmington, July 3.—(AP)—Each of the fourteen members of the crew of the steamer Elma, which was towed into port a week ago by the United States Coast Guard Cutter, Manning, with 1,426 cases of assorted liquors aboard, was bound over to the Fall term of United States Court for the Eastern District of North Carolina, when given a hearing before Commissioner Goodman, in the Federal court room here this morning. Bond was fixed at $10,000 for each defendant, and the cook for the crew, a state witness, was not put on the stand.

The testimony of three state witnesses tended to show that the Elma put into Morehead City on Friday, June 11, for supplies and water. One of the witnesses, R. H. Hill, of Morehead City, said he was approached on that day by three men, and asked to supply a pilot and stores for the Elma. He secured the pilot for them, he testified, and on Saturday carried the stores on board. He was directed to one member of the crew, who was said to be the captain, to receive his pay.

Mr. Hill identified this man as one of the prisoners and Joe Hansen, and stated that Hansen took him to the pilot house and paid him for the supplies.

Papers found on the Elma by the boarding party from the Manning, showed that the ship was registered on June 3 in Boston just before it left as belonging to George H. Hays, of Chicago, and that the master was Hu go Schaefer. Other papers gave measurements and descriptions of the ship, which check up with the captured vessel.

Sneak Thief Enters The Home Of Mr. R. D. Harrington

During last night a sneak thief entered the home of R. D. Harrington, here and made a getaway with one hundred and eight dollars. The robbery was not discovered until this morning and so far the thief has not been apprehended.

The money was taken from Mr. Harrington's trousers which were placed upon a chair beside his bed while he slept. Investigation this morning revealed that the thief had entered by the back way, made his way upstairs to the bed room, effected the robbery and made his exit through the dining room. Apparently the money was all that the thief sought as valuable jewelry on the bureau in the room where the robbery was committed were undisturbed and a check up this morning revealed nothing else about the house missing.

Mr. Harrington had drawn the money to pay off farm hands this morning and had carried it home with him last night.

FRENCHMEN NOW PAYING MORE FOR THEIR SUITS

Paris, July 3.—(AP)—Not only does the high cost of living in France include foodstuffs, but men's suits have taken a jump in price in recent months.

Before the war the best tailored suit in France cost in the neighborhood of $25 but now the same suit will cost from $50 to $70.

Those who claim to have investigated the clothing business declare that many woolen mills in France manufacture for English firms. The cloth is shipped to England and then back to France the duty and shipment cost coming out of the pocket of the man who buys the suit.

The thieves who stole woollens worth $10,000 have evidently been taking prediction of a cold summer mightily seriously.—Nashville Banner.

(Copyright 1926) A Wise Priest. Boston-New York, 21-2 Hrs. Courteous Japan. Many Are Called. By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE Rev. John Brady, of the Catholic Church of Meyerdale, Pa., will deliver the Independence Day address before the Somerset county Ku Klux Klan on July 5.

The invitation to Father Brady is looked upon as proof of the esteem with which everybody in the county has for him. His prompt acceptance shows wisdom.

If Americans of all kinds could get closer together, talk to each other, know each other, there would be less hatred, less race and religious prejudice and bigotry.

Americans should work, united for the greater glory and prosperity of the country, each allowing the other, without interference, to believe as he choose about what happens after we leave this earth.

An air mail line was opened between New York and Boston yesterday, the trip being made in two and a half hours. The air mail, leaving Boston at six in the evening, will reach New York's ten o'clock mail airplane to Chicago, arriving there the next morning.

One hundred years ago letters between Boston and New York were carried on horseback. A little later stage coaches lumbered over the road. Now it is 100 miles an hour through the air.

The people appreciate the energy shown by President Coolidge and Postmaster-General New in air mail development.

The Japanese can teach courtesy to the whole world. Daisuke Namba, a misguided young Japanese, attempted to kill the Prince Regent Hirohito and was hanged. Immediately his entire family went into a "humiliation retirement" to atone for their kinsman's dreadful act.

Now Prince Hirohito, most politely, orders them to withdraw from the "humiliation retirement" and take their places again in the world.

The Namba family has opened the great, tightly locked gates of the ancestral home, raised the blinds, and has changed its name to Kurokawa. But the young murderer's father, a distinguished Japanese, died of grief within his locked gates.

A prosperous oil man says in a law suit that he bought real estate from "society people" for a good price, and in return he was also to be made a society person. But society people didn't keep their word.

That's sad. The oil man should read about Voltaire's quarrel with Frederick the Great. Voltaire, fleeing from the angry Prussian king, could not resist saying to the king's sister, "It is not my fault if nobody on earth can teach your brother to pronounce French correctly."

Emil Glatt owns a poultry farm in Nebraska and wants the owners of a nearby flying school not to fly over his hen yard. Flying machines make his hens nervous, and cut down their laying 25 per cent.

Mr. Glatt also wants $10,000 damages.

It is not for human birds to despise a hen because airplanes disturb her nerves, and agitate her mind.

When locomotives came, human beings made complete idiots of themselves about it, scientists said the terrific speed of twenty-five miles an hour would cause death.

The chief difference between men and hens is that men learn.

Ragibka, a Bosnian, bought the automobile in which the Austrian Arch-Duke was murdered at Serajevo. It was sold for very little, the superstitious people believing that the automobile has been haunted ever since the Arch-Duke was shot dead. SECOND PRIMARIES HELD THROUGHOUT THE STATE TODAY

List of Democratic Nominees Will Have Been Completed When Polls Close at 7:35

Raleigh, July 3.—(AP)—In 46 of North Carolina's 100 counties Democratic voters were going to the polls today to complete the party's list of nominees to stand in the general election next November.

The second, or "run off" primary was made necessary in races where more than two candidates were contestants a month ago, and no one received a clear majority.

When the polls close at sunset—7:35 o'clock—the Democrats will have named candidates for the Superior Court Judgeship in the 7th and 20th districts; for Solicitor in the 5th, 6th and 16th; for State Senator in the 7th, 16th and 18th Senatorial districts.

Candidates for the nomination for the House of Representatives were also being chosen in Columbus, Mecklenburg, Pamlico, Scotland, Union and Warren counties.

In addition there are contests for other county officers in a few township offices which will have been decided when the ballot boxes have been closed tonight. The weather will have been generally fair and warm with a few scattered showers.

Norris Resigns From The Senate Agricul. Committee

Washington, July 3.—(AP)—Senator George Norris, the insurgent Republican from Nebraska, who on many occasions, has found himself at odds with the Coolidge administration, resigned today as chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee.

As soon as it met today the Senate accepted the resignation without debate.

The retirement of Norris leaves as a ranking Republican on the committee another Senator who had disagreed with the President on farm relief legislation, McNary, of Oregon. He was the author of the McNary farm equalization fee bill voted down by a margin of six votes with the help of administration Senators.

Senator Norris said he was retiring from the chairmanship in order to have time to investigate important legislative questions which the routine work of the committee now presents.

Coolidge Signs Deficiency Bill

Washington, July 3.—(AP)—The deficiency bill, appropriating $51,000,000 to begin work this summer on federal buildings in various cities to expand prohibition enforcement facilities, and for many other purposes, was signed today by President Coolidge.

Two Florida Banks Close Doors Today

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., July 3.—(AP)—The City Bank failed to open its doors for business here this morning following an order issued by the board of directors placing the bank in the hands of the State Bank Department.

The other two banks in the city opened as usual and depositors were assured there was no cause for alarm.

Homestead, Fla., July 3.—(AP)—Heavy withdrawals by depositors in the Citizens Bank of Homestead, caused the institution to close its doors today pending a settlement. Officers of the bank said they expected to reopen on Tuesday.

HERRING WINNER

PRESIDENT'S CUP

Mr. Luther Herring yesterday became the third winner of the president's cup in the annual golf tournament of the local country club, by defeating Mr. S. T. Whiff in the final matches of the tournament.

Play in this year's tournament was begun on Tuesday of last week with close to forty entries and as play continued, the contestants narrow down to the above for the final play. Throughout the entire tournament, Mr. Herring has played consistent golf which was responsible for his victory.

The cup, the gift of Mr. H. A. White, president of the club, was first offered two years ago and yesterday changed hands for the third time. In 1924 the cup was won by Mr. J. S. Ficklen, last year by Mr. W. W. Lee and is now in possession of Mr. Herring. Possession of the cup for twelve months is the reward for the winner in each annual tournament and not until one player has won the cup three times does it become his property.

NOTED CHINESE PLEASES CROWD AT CHAUTAUQUA

Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, "Teddy Roosevelt of China" Holds Interest of Audience Last Night.

Featuring the Chautauqua program here last evening, Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, distinguished Chinese statesman and one of the lecturers at the Williamstown Institute of Politics, who frequently is referred to as "The Teddy Roosevelt of China," by the newspapers of this country, kept a large audience interested from his opening remark, until he concluded.

Dr. Hsieh in no way fell short of his advance reputation and the fact that he moved easily from the brilliant profound to the lightly facetious added interest to his lecture. He combined qualities that rarely are found in a public lecturer, deep learning, culture, intellectuality and pleasing humor. At one moment the speaker was explaining world politics, at the next he was making a joke on "the American language."

Dr. Hsieh explained briefly some of the troubles that the average Chinese had with the English language and said that, despite its several thousand characters an Englishman or American could not possibly experience as much trouble mastering the Chinese language as a Chinese would in attempting to learn the English language.

The speaker told of the almost limitless possibilities for the development of his country, spoke of the wonderful work already accomplished by Americans in the advancement of China, declared that most of the Chinese leaders of the present time had received American educations and briefly outlined the kind of service that Americans could render China in its hour of awakening.

"Just now China is suffering from a complexity of 'isms' he said, "capitalism, industrialism, bolshevism, pseudo-militarism, socialism and flapperism. Some of these 'isms' are responsible for taking China out of the old rut," he declared, "and one that has played no small part is flapperism. The women of China have formed this strongest organization yet for the emancipation of women; they have gained their political freedom in 14 provinces; they have forced through anti-child labor laws and it now is unlawful to employ children in China under the age of 14 years; they have formed and managed their own banks with which no man is connected and are becoming more and more a factor in civic life of China. Theirs is a wonderful influence. Garibaldi said 'give me the mothers to educate and you can do what you like with the sons.' I agree with that; a man counts only as one, a woman as a whole family," the speaker asserted.

As an instance of the emancipation of China, Dr. Hsieh said that there now is no foot-binding in China. It never was universally done, he said, but was confined largely to the northern provinces and he added "when on my last trip to China I spent several hours searching stores for footbindings and the nearest thing to it I could find was a pair of pinched in French heel slippers manufactured in Richmond, Va. Dr. Hsieh displayed the Chinese flag and interpreted its colors by saying that the red represented China proper, the yellow, China's Manchuria; the blue, Mongolia; the white, Chinese Turkestan; and the black, Tibet. He also gave a brief and highly amusing outline of the Conference on Limitations of Armament in Washington, to which he was an advisor.

In conclusion he appealed for an awakened interest on the part of the American people in China and Chinese affairs. He asked especially for newspaper support in bringing to the public China's hopes, aspirations, ideals, attitude and sentiment and said: "We must all do all we can to help to awaken China, for when she is awakened she will do all within her power to help America to save the world. To awaken China is indeed a great work, but to help Chinese to awake themselves is still greater."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT MEDITATION

THE FOURTH OF JULY

Exodus 15:13: "Thou in Thy mercy hast led forth the people which Thou hast redeemed: Thou hast guided them in Thy strength unto Thy holy habitation."

There are many ways of studying History. We can take single events and explain them, as, for example, "The Voyage of the Mayflower," or "The Battle of Saratoga," which Creasy says was one of the "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the world."

Or, we may take some prominent personality, and group around him the events and actions in which he took part; as Carlyle did in his "Frederick the Great," and Voltaire in his "History of Charles XII." History then becomes largely the biographies of generals and kings.

Or, we may take the occurrences of a special, limited period, or of some distinct and separate nation, as Motley's "Rise of the Dutch Republic," or Finlay's "History of Greece."

We may then try to unify all our findings under some general philosophic principle, as the "Materialistic Conception of History" or as Brunson did in his famous phrase, "God in History."

It is this latter religious interpretation of History which stamps the Hebrew writings with unique significance, and places them in a class which we call "sacred" and "inspired."

If the statement made by Moses in our text is true, (and no truer explanation of the rise of the Hebrews has ever been offered); if God really led forth His people and guided them in His strength as they came out of Egypt to the Promised Land—it is equally true that He led forth the Pilgrim Fathers as they sailed from Holland to find freedom to worship God as their consciences dictated, and liberty for the higher expressions of their life.

The parallelism between the two deliverances is so marked that one is disposed to say "History repeats itself."

1. In both cases, for the Hebrews, and for the Colonists, it was God's mercy that led them out, and God's strength that established their coming-in.

The Independence of our country was not made by any Declaration; the Declaration came from the hearts and minds of men who were already independent in themselves. And even they were reluctant to resort to this final move to obtain political and religious justice.

A year before the first Fourth of July, George Washington had taken command of the American Army on Cambridge Common. Independence was "in the air," but it was not yet the issue. They were fighting for their rights as British citizens. Discussion and debate among the political leaders were going on at the same time as the military activities; and it was a time of doubt and darkness, bordering often on despair.

On July 4, 1776 the Declaration was adopted by Twelve Colonies. On July 5, the President and the Secretary of the Congress signed the document, and next day it was published in the Philadelphia "Evening Post." On July 9, Congress ordered it engrossed, but it was not fully signed by all the names that it now has until August 2; and even then for six months the names of the signers were kept secret, for they had performed an act of high treason, and, as Franklin said, "Unless we hang together, we shall hang separately."

The Declaration did not give independence. For thirteen weary years the Colonies struggled to possess the liberty they claimed as their right. They staked their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor, and many made the supreme sacrifice in the unequal strife.

By all the known laws of warfare they should have lost. In numbers, wealth, equipment and training the Colonials were far out-classed. And when on October 19, 1781, Lord Cornwallis surrendered, and the war of Independence was won, it was not by the might of the American army, nor by the skill of its commander-in-chief, great as he was. It was because "God in His mercy led forth the people and guided them in His strength."

2. In both cases, for the Hebrews and for the Colonists, God's purpose was made plain. He wanted to bring them into "His holy habitation"; that is, into communion with Him; into right relationships with Him; into the place where His honor dwelleth, and His will is made known. Our national leaders in 1776 realized this, at least in part, for while "in Congress assembled" in Philadelphia, they held "that all men are endowed by their Creator" with certain inalienable rights, that "to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men," and they appealed to "the Supreme Judge of the world" to guide them in His strength. God needed the Jews, and God needs the United States, to be the agents of His will!

Let us never forget that we can not be worthy successors of these honored sires, deserving of the liberties they handed down, unless we see to it that the freedom they fought for is passed down to the next generation enlarged, and secured. If we let Liberty become license; if, unlike the Pilgrim Fathers, we are not ready to "promise all due submission and obedi-

Jazz Used To Pacify Wild Amazonian Indians

London, July 3.—(AP)—Jazz was used to pacify upper Amazon jungle tribesmen, who had never seen a white man, by Dr. William M. McGovern, explorer and anthropologist, who has returned to London after spending more than a year among South American Indians.

Dr. McGovern estimates that in the great northwest country forming the tributaries to the Amazon, much of which has never been explored, there are from 300,000 to 500,000 Indians. Soft, soothing music was played on a gramophone without any particular effect upon the natives but the rhythm of jazz caught their ears every time, and gained for the scientist almost anything that he might desire which the chiefs had the power of granting.

These natives, Dr. McGovern concluded, are first cousins of the North American Indians, with a mixture of the Mongolian, thrown in.

The Missionary Society of the Christian church will meet Monday afternoon at four o'clock with Mrs. J. W. Johnson, at the home of Mrs. R. L. Smith.

CARD OF THANKS

To our sympathizing friends: Please know that Mrs. Wooten, "Bill" and I are depressed by our little son Wad's death; yet we are consoled by your tender expressions of sympathy as far as consolation is possible. We know that we must endure the visitation; we are more grateful to you for sharing it with us your visits and tokens.

This public expression seems impersonal, we know, yet it is the best way to have you know that the expressions from your hearts have reached our hearts.

Sincerely,
Frank M. Wooten

COTTON BLOSSOM BROUGHT IN TODAY

C. R. Mills, who lives on the E. A. Tripp farm two miles from this city on the Stanton road today presented the Reflector the second cotton blossom of the season.

The blossom brought in was a white one, but Mr. Mills stated that a red one was found in his field yesterday. This is the second blossom that has been brought in this season, the first being a few days ago.

MEN'S FEDERATION CONTINUES ACTIVITY

Regular prayer meeting of the Men's Christian Federation will be held in the Woodmen's Hall tonight at eight o'clock. The services will be conducted by Hon. F. C. Harding and the public is cordially invited to attend.

On Monday morning, following the regular devotional exercises, the annual election of officers will be held. On next Thursday evening at eight o'clock, Group A of the Federation will conduct prayer services at the home of Mr. Archie Stocks, on the White or Marle road. W. L. Best will be leader of the services.

These neighborhood prayer meetings are becoming more and more popular and enjoyable, and the one held last Tuesday night at the home of Mr. Charlie Harris was attended by close to a hundred people.

NORMA TALMADGE IN SURPRISE ROLE

White's Theatre's next attraction will give photoplaygoers what is predicted as the biggest surprise of the year. Screen-dom's most famous dramatic actress has turned comedienne and will open a 2 day engagement Monday and Tuesday.

Norma Talmadge is the star, and her latest picture is "Kiki" an elaborate cinema version of the David Belasco stage success. Entirely different from any role she ever portrayed on the screen during her long career, the picture is said to afford Miss Talmadge an ideal vehicle.

unhappy wives, have a special charm for American visitors. Like all Latins, Roumanians, are a care-free, pleasure loving people, and so Bucharest and all the largest cities have an abundance of cabarets, restaurants, dance-halls and theatres. The theatres and cabarets draw the best talent from Hungary, Germany, Italy and France. Gypsy orchestras and French jazz-bands with the American names furnish an endless variety of music.

STAINLESS POTS AND PANS

Manchester, July 3.—(AP)—A kitchen boon to housewives is promised in announcement that stainless pots and pans soon will be on the market.

News regarding possibilities of stainless iron for numerous articles was made by Dr. J. Barclay, of Manchester, at a conference of the Institute of Water Engineers here. In his opinion stainless iron will prove to be one of the greatest discoveries since iron itself.

The Old Vic, with its never-ending season of Shakespeare, and the Shakespearean Theatre at Stratford afford visitors an opportunity to see the plays of the Bard of Avon in case the theatres in the heart of London are not offering Shakespeare.

Tallyho and old inn—In fact, anything which reproduces the atmosphere of old English prints—have a great attraction for the American visitors. Warwick Castle, so the tourist agents say, comes nearer, perhaps, than any other to filling the eye of Americans in search of a real castle, with walls and moats and draw-bridges and armor and a banquet hall in which the Knights of the Round Table might be sitting.

There is a considerable Dickens cult among the American visitors and many of them are eager to visit the home of Burns and the haunts of Wordsworth and other poets in the English Lake district. University folks generally want to visit Oxford and Cambridge.

But the majority of American visitors give most of their time to London and points within easy reach of the British capital.

Brightness and Gaiety Return to Bucharest

Bucharest, July 3.—(AP)—Bucharest has regained all its former gaiety and brightness. Its title being the "Paris of the Balkans" is well sustained.

Nowhere in the world do people make so much of dress and finery as in Bucharest. The daily fashion parade on the Calea Victoriei—the Fifth Avenue of Bucharest—is one of the sights of the Balkans.

Stunning women in the latest Parisian frocks, smart-looking men in faultlessly tailored suits, spats and gold-headed canes, together with dashing army officers in vivid uniforms of blue and gold, bemedaled, spurred and monocled, make up a colorful and animated picture.

Roumanians have a passionate fondness for perfumes, and their men as well as women, are always "scented." Every second Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population.

Los Angeles, July 3.—(INS)—“One of the most successful methods of comedy direction is to keep your players on the fine dividing line between laughter and tears.” F. Richard Jones, managing director of the Hal Roach studios, declared in an interview today. “Few people indeed realize the close correlation of pain and pleasure, laughter and tears. Jones explained his theory by using a well-known ‘gag’ as an example.

“For instance,” he said, “if a man is topling upon the edge of a roof, high above the ground, he may cavort about and have many narrow escapes, even falling in such a way as to provoke merriment. With a little variation, the same scene may register tragedy instead of fun. By maintaining as close a level as possible to the invisible line between, the most successful comedy effect may be obtained.”

When asked whether he believed in surprise climaxes in comedies, Jones declared himself as against such methods.

“I do not like to surprise the audience,” he asserted, “I believe in letting them in on whatever is about to happen. They then have a practical grasp of the situation and are more anticipating the actual event, so that they are in a more receptive and at the same time more relaxed state of mind.”

The Quest of the Holy Grail was an indoor sport compared to the ceaseless and unflagging search by movie men for a good gag, Jones declared. “Many men in Hollywood devote practically all their time to the more or less nerve-racking chase of the wisp of the wisp called laughter.” Jones revealed that he himself spends hours in crowded theatres studying and analyzing the reaction of the audiences to the comedies or to comic bits in features.

One of the most productive sources of screen synopses is the San Quentin state penitentiary, Edward J. Montague, Universal editor-in-chief, declared today. Many of them, he added, are surprisingly good for convict labor or for a rule are too morose or fatalistic to have a popular appeal.

Marion Davies, beautiful screen star, will have one of the most famous stage roles in many seasons as a screen vehicle, it was learned when the announcement was made that Miss Davies will play the lead in Polly Preferred. The Cosmopolitan star is at present working upon The Red Mill, based on this stage offering of the same name.

Gaby Arnold, well known stage producer of dancing spectacles, has been engaged to manage the dance revel in an Argentine cafe, incidental to the filming of the new Cosmopolitan production of Vicente Blasco Ibanez' The Tempress.

What do you call a feminine-gizman? That question is puzzling the personnel of the Universal studio since the recent signing of Miss Frances Hyland as a member of the scenario staff of a comedy unit. A gagman is the technical designation for the workers who write humorous titles for pictures. Miss Hyland is the first woman to take up this type of work.

(Continued from page 1) franc yesterday slid to a new low record. Before the war you could buy five francs for one dollar. Yesterday you could buy 36.90 franc for a dollar. War does not pay, even if you win. France carried the heaviest load held of the Germans while England was getting ready. That does not help the French franc now.

Last night at a patriotic “Uncle Sam night” it was arranged to have “the Star Spangled Banner,” with music only, no words.

The words are to be left out because they are unkind to England, and we love England so much that we don't want to sing such words. The tune, yes, the words, no.

The British continue to sing about “Britannia Ruling the Waves.” They sing the words as well as the tune, and they mean both.

SCHOOL DAYS

CABLE LETTER

London, July 3.—(AP)—Mosquitoes, spreaders of many deadly diseases, will be imported into England to sting patients under treatment for General Paralysis. Only female, malaria-infected mosquitoes will be imported and they will be dieted scientifically as they will always have been appetites to do their best work. The plans to import the insects became known when Hull hospital committee approved the medical officers' proposal to bring the “buzzing doctors” from the tropical countries, where they will be collected by the various tropical schools of medicine. It has been found, it was said, that beneficial results were obtained by permitting malarial mosquitoes to sting general paralysis patients.

The number of Joneses in the world was forcibly demonstrated to public officials recently when Miss Clara Alice Jones, an aged recluse died leaving a quarter million dollar estate. Joneses from all quarters of the globe tried to establish their right to the fortune. Before the matter finally was settled, the number of claimants totalled more than 1,000. Their claims to kinship to the aged woman failed, however, and her brothers established their right to the fortune.

Thomas A. Edison's love of machinery is displayed even in his attitude toward pictures of himself. Sir John Lavery, noted English portrait painter, who spent several weeks in the United States painting Pittsburgh millionaires and other notables, has told of how he tried to persuade the famous inventor to pose for a portrait after the artist had painted one of Mrs. Edison. Sir John said Mr. Edison refused asserting he was opposed to painted portraits because they were made without the aid of mechanism and therefore could not be “really very good.”

“Everything in this world should be done by machinery and measurements,” Sir John quoted the electrical wizard as saying.

King George shuns tips from the Prince of Wales on horse races but he is not averse to taking his advice on matters of entertainment. The prince's recommendation resulted in the recent “command performance” by Miss Ruth Draper, American actress before the King and Queen and their guests at Windsor castle.

This was the first command appearance at the castle since 1914 when Sir Gerald de Maulever and his company played “diplomacy” for the royal audience. The command for Miss Draper's appearance came the day after the Prince of Wales had attended her evening performance at the Garrick Theatre.

Beauty experts are finding business lighter and American and British debutantes are enjoying place, but neither has yet shown relaxation after the strict “training” which they underwent in preparation for being presented at court. Eating on diet, attending beauty parlor scenes and then home early to bed was the strict regime of most of those lucky enough to be included for presentation at the first court. Now the second group of debutantes is undergoing similar training for their “bow” to the king and queen this month.

British fruit dealers who started an “eat more fruit” campaign have found that their drive has benefited the United States dollars more than it has the British. The imperial economic committee report shows, however, that the three-word slogan has resulted in the British public's eating three times more fruit than before the war. Apples, oranges, and bananas showed the greatest increase, with 38 out of every 100 apples being provided by the United States.

As to the bananas the committee said in its report “an American banana monopoly controls the sales of 23 out of every 30 bananas consumed in this country.”

It pointed out that the British payments on account of debt to the United States amount to $35,000,000 a year, while the payments made to America for fruit alone in 1924 totalled $11,000,000 not including $23,500,000 for bananas imported under American control.

Errors may sometimes be financially valuable. A typographical mishap in the printing of an Argentine stamp of 1899 resulted in the five peses black and orange specimen realizing $500 at a recent sale of rare stamps. The center of the stamp had been inverted.

Paris, July 3.—(AP)—Weary telephone operators in Paris have obtained relief through the phonograph. When a person calls a number that has been changed, the phonograph automatically speaks “this number changed—consult number directory.” Occasionally callers are given the wrong numbers by the girl operators and complaints have been made by persons who find at the phonograph with its one answer, gives them the wrong information.

The fact that France's birthday as a republic is only ten days later than America's independence day is not being dwelt upon, as it has been in previous years, in making preparations for the coming celebration.

The nearness of the dates have in previous independence day celebrations been cited as a connecting link between the two republics. The change is attributed to French opinion concerning America's attitude toward France obligations. The most frequent question now asked by Americans arriving in France is: “How does France feel toward the United States?”

Deauville's sovereignty as queen of seaside resorts is being challenged this year as a result of the death of the premier resort's great organizer, Cornuiche. Paris-placé, near Boulogne, in South Brittany, are both striving keenly to take Deauville's place, but neither has yet shown signs of finding its cornuiche.

Opening of the season in Riviera last week showed that Riviera fans have gone up from 20 to 50 per cent over last year. Deauville which had some rooms at a hundred francs per day last season has rates beginning at 150 francs. Efforts to make the Riviera a summer resort seems to have met with such great success that higher prices can be demanded. At Nice for example, where last year room and board was obtainable during the summer months for between 15 and 18 francs daily, the lowest rate now is 40 francs. These prices were fixed when the dollar was quoted at 30 francs.

M. Gaston Doumergue, president of the French republic, came near being run down by a taxicab only a few days ago, and then was almost arrested before a traffic policeman who witnessed the incident, recognized the pedestrian as the nation's chief executive.

Disregarding the ordinary crossing for pedestrians M. Doumergue started to cross the avenue Des Camps-Elysees, when a taxi came down from the Etoile. The driver applied his brakes, skidded and smashed into a lamp post, which was wrecked. The cab was partly wrecked.

The traffic policeman who was only a few yards away walked toward the pedestrian, reached his hand into his pocket for the inevitable notebook—then noticed it was the president of the French republic. He snapped his hand to his cap in a formal salute, turned about and headed to the taxidriver, who got a stern lecture instead.

The department of southern France has decided to bring a few million “gambusia patricis” a tiny fish, from Hawaii, in an effort to exterminate the mosquitoes. An attempt to breed these small fishes in France will be made and if the venture proves successful they will be placed in all the ponds and water pools on the Riviera. They eat the Indian mosquitoes larvae with avidity. Two barrels of the fishes would be enough to kill all the mosquitoes in southern France, the officials say. They decided to try the plan after reading an American health department report in which it was claimed that the “gambusia” taken to the Hawaiian Islands in 1904, succeeded in exterminating the mosquitoes within 22 years.

A formal application has been made to the minister of publication, who is also the head of the fine arts department to allow Leonard da Vinci's celebrated picture “Mona Lisa” to be sent to Philadelphia to be shown at the sesqui-centennial exhibition. The request was refused by the minister, although several influential Parisians had supported it strongly.

The high authorities that control the Louvre Museum, remembering that the smiling face of Mona Lisa once was stolen from its galleries seem determined to take no risks. It is just possible that a little slip made in the request sent to the minister did not help towards acceptance. One of the arguments used was that the picture was to be exhibited as “the famous masterpiece of French art.” Leonardo Da Vinci certainly died in France but he had only spent a few years in the country, not enough to make his native land of Italy surrender its claim to him as a matter of Italian art.

Berlin, July 3.—(AP)—The former kaiser, as seen by himself, will be revealed in a second volume of his memoirs to be published soon with many photographs of himself as a youth.

While exposing many of the intricacies of that period of his life, together with such intimate details as he recalls, he has jealously guarded the work prior to its general release. Not even his wife, or the former Crown Prince have been permitted to glimpse it, the manuscript being kept locked up when he was not working.

Among the portraits as an aquarelle by Queen Victoria for which he posed when about two years old. It is signed by her and dated March 27, 1861.

Classic done into jazz and rendered by an orchestra of 300 mouth organs exclusively is the latest German contribution to jazz. The program of this unique group inaugurated at Hamburg found a good response when played at a fashionable charity festival.

Pal Hindenburg Marek, ninth son in a family which includes no girls, became the God-son of his illustrious namesake, the president of the German republic.

In accepting the honor, President Hindenburg added a typical substantial German touch by opening a savings account for the infant.

“The daily dozen” has become an official fact among the letter carriers of Germany. Fifteen minutes a day are devoted to gymnastic drill and it is reported that the participants no longer as sluggish or worn out, but wide awake and full of pep.

The announcement of the success of the system intimated that it may be extended throughout the country.

A “fakir with a new trick has excited comment by permitting silver nails to be driven into his hands and feet without showing loss of blood, and but slight trace in all the ponds and water pools on the Riviera. They eat the Indian name Talma. At his demonstration before the newspaper reporters many of the reporters withdrew while others fainted, the women representatives crowded about eagerly without showing any traces of perturbation.

A drug ring of unusual proportions, centered at Hamburg has used the opening of a special narcotic court there. James Dolan of Boston recently was fined 5,000 marks for attempting to smuggle narcotics as a member of the ring.

An investigation showed that the ring operated in many European countries selling drugs at fifty cents a dram which yielded an enormous profit. The smuggling of as much as eighty kilograms at one time was reported as a common occurrence.

Provincial ministers at deachers seriously the German movie industry to the Berlin Zwölf Uhr Blatt mouthpiece of film producers.

Germany like other countries has movie censorship. While citizens of various walks of life in the large cities usually evince a broad minded attitude toward motion pictures, ministers and school teachers, who make up a majority of the censorship boards in the provinces are so narrow in their interpretations of what is immoral and what is not, the newspaper said, as to constitute a menace to the industry.

Hans Albert Brandt, chief of the Koenigsberg, East Prussia, police has been appointed by the Prussian minister of the interior to represent the Prussian police at the Philadelphia sesqui-centennial. While in the United States, Brandt will lecture on German police methods. He also will address societies whose members are of German descent on the “new Germany.”

NEW STEEL ALLOY

Sheffield, England, July 3.—(AP)—Discovery of a new steel alloy is announced by Sir Robert Hadfield, head of Hadfields, Ltd. steelmakers.

So high a temperature will it withstand that a gas turbine has been constructed to run at the speed of 55,000 revolutions a minute at a working temperature of 1,650 degrees F. Machines made of this steel, it is stated, can be worked at a bright red heat.
