Durham County Slayer is Held Without Bond

Durham, Aug. 26.—(AP)—F. H. Page today was held in jail without privilege of bond, pending a preliminary hearing, while his father, Leroy H. Page, whom he killed yesterday, was borne to his grave near here.

It was stated that the younger Page probably would be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow. He beat his father to death yesterday after the two had had an altercation over family affairs.

He then sent his brother-in-law for the sheriff and surrendered when that official appeared. A coincident of the killing of yesterday was that 52 years ago the father of yesterday's victim was done to death by his son, Alonzo Page after a family quarrel.

TODAY

Have You Heard of Heinecken? Why Not Our Courts? Ford, Hemp and Sloan. Mourning for Valentino. By ARTHUR BRISBANE

YOUNG KRISHNAMURTI from India arrives today and comes to free us from our "materialism." He will be as welcome as Hercules in the Aegean stables.

This earnest, sincere youth is among other things an excellent horseman, a good sportsman, and was an infant prodigy. He was carried each night to a tent in his sleep. As he dreamt, so his friends say, "The Master" appeared and gave him instructions. At the age of twelve, he wrote his book "At the Feet of the Master."

That does not necessarily mean Divine inspiration. Consider little Christian Heinrich Heinecken, who died in 1725, "before he was five years of age." He was able to converse plainly at ten months. When one year old knee by knee the most important parts of the Pentateuch. At two years of age he had mastered sacred history, at three he was thoroughly acquainted with history and geography, ancient and modern, French and Latin. He devoted himself to religious study in his fourth year, and to church his fifth. And this is no "yarn" but historical facts. Crowds flocked to Lubek to see him, and a year before he died, he was taken to see the King of Denmark at Copenhagen.

His death before the age of five, should warn parents not to drive talented children.

RADIO DEALERS ENJOY RUSH AS FANS BEGIN PREPARING FOR SERIES

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 26.—(INS)—Des Moines dealers in radio batteries do not need the sport scribbles to tell them that a world series is coming. FIRE LOSSES IN NORTH CAROLINA ARE ON DECREASE

Commission Report for July Shows the Smallest Loss for Any Month on Record

Raleigh, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The fire loss in North Carolina was less in July than in any other month since the State Insurance department began keeping detailed statistics of the monthly losses, it is shown in figures released here today by Commissioner Stacey Wade.

The total loss for last month was $170,150. During the same period last year the figure was $620,693. The lowest loss for any previous month had been $202,890, for June 1925. There were 139 fires last month, the commissioner's report shows, while for July 1925, there were 218. Only 10 of the fires last month reaped losses of $5,000 or more.

MARKET PREPARED FOR BEST SEASON IN ITS HISTORY

Greenville Tobacco Market Equipped to Offer Every Advantage to Growers

The Greenville tobacco market is on the eve of what is bound to prove the greatest season in its history. While from its initial year thirty-five years ago, Greenville as a tobacco market has advanced as rapidly if not more so than any other market of this particular belt, the various improvements that have been added since the close of the season of 1925-26, assures local tobacco interests that September 7 is the beginning of the greatest period since the first pile of the golden weed was offered in Greenville at auction.

The Greenville market for several years has gained recognition not only from the daily press of several states but the tobacco journals of the entire nation have been proud to give the local market considerable space editorially and otherwise because of its unusual growth over but a few years ago. The improvements made on the local market for the advantage of the growers of Pitt county and the other more than twenty counties who patronize the Greenville warehouses, include two additional sales houses which makes a total of eight, this being the greatest number of auction houses of any other market of this belt; eight acres of floor space; and four sets of buyers representing every tobacco interest both large and small of the nation, together with a large number of independent buyers.

Democrats Say Policy of "Constructive Economy" Stays at the Spigot and Wastes at the Bung Hole

Washington, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Differences of opinion about government economy and other political topics were brought into contrast today with the publication of views expressed by the Democratic National Committee and by chairman Madden, of the House Appropriations Committee and Representative Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Citing figures to show that comparable peace time appropriations were greater under the Coolidge than under the Wilson Administration, the Democratic committee concluded that "constructive economy is evidently the thought that stays at the spigot and wastes at the bung hole."

Chairman Madden, in predicting a heavy decrease in 1928 appropriations attributed about $300,000,000 of this year's burden to the postal pay increase, soldiers' bonus, and special items which either will cause a smaller drain on the treasury next year, or will be eliminated altogether.

Now that the season for swimming the English Channel is about over we are wondering what the fad will be until weather conditions are favorable for another season of what seems to be the international sport.

Skirts to end above the knees says Paris. At least the fashion designers appear to be making a desperate effort to make both ends meet.

If jurists throughout the state would take the same attitude toward the drunken driver as set forth by Judge Schenck in his charge to the Gaston county grand jury, the time would soon come when there would be a considerable decrease in this evil. A man convicted of driving an automobile while he is drunk will not drive for another twelve months if convicted in his court, declares Judge Schenck.

The drunken driver is a menace to society and a would-be murderer and not until jail sentences are handed out to offenders can we hope to rid the state of such criminals. In declaring that he will deal out such punishment, the judge is setting an example that his fellow judges would do well to emulate.

While the reported excessive supply of whiskey in evidence in Hickory during the American Legion convention, recently held, is deplored by Legionnaires throughout the state, it is gratifying to learn from the statement yesterday by Mayor Whitener that the major part of the drinking was done by citizens of Hickory and not the veterans gathered there.

There are those in every community who feel it their bounden duty to "tank up" whenever there is a public gathering in their city and it is that type of citizen that Mayor Whitener holds responsible for the drinking.

So long as citizens of any community maintain the idea that they must get drunk and make it easy for visitors in their city to get drunk, just so long will all conventions be more or less a disgrace to the order represented by the gathering. There was a day, in years gone by probably, when no gathering was complete without the bottle of joy, but that day has long since passed into oblivion and the good citizens of this state will not tolerate whole sale drunkenness. While every city wishes to extend all possible courtesies to visitors gathered there in convention, this extension of hospitality should not include license to violate the laws of our government and convention or no convention authorities should see to it that this wholesale violation of the prohibition law either by visitors or citizens should cease.

PRESS COMMENT

The following editorial comment on the power situation in Wilson will be of interest to our readers in that in the near future Greenville citizens will more than likely be confronted by a similar condition.

STAND BY OUR UTILITIES
Do not be fooled by the representation of the power companies that they can sell power cheaper to our industries than the local plant. They cannot produce power more cheaply than the municipal plants. Between periods of high water and low water they are operating their steam plants over the country and they lose a great deal by transmission.

If our board of aldermen will see to it that our local plants meet competition with the power companies, there will be no excuse for our people buying from the foreign companies.

The small consumer of both power and lights is buying these necessities at a lower rate than the power companies will sell them, and the only ones buying at a lower rate are the big plants much larger than Wilson. Our people simply want the right service and they will be satisfied. —Wilson Times.

WILSON (N. C.) TIMES SKIDS A BIT

The Wilson (N. C.) Times continues hammering away at city council to do something to save the Wilson municipal plant.

"The city and its utilities are approaching a most crucial period in its history," says the Times and begs the people to "stand by the Wilson plant before the foreign companies make inroads into its business and eventually destroy it."

But the people of Wilson deserve a somewhat better brand of argument than the Times gives them in the following:

"They (the private power companies) will soon offer power at a lower rate just to get in, and will get in, and get the customers away from our plant, and then later than can pop up the prices as high as they desire."

Does the Times know that the Corporation Commission of North Carolina fixes power rates?

Does the Times know that instead of increases in rates to the individual power consumer, there have been consistent decreases?

Does the Times know of any city in which the power companies have proceeded in the manner it outlines?

Just a few months ago the Carolina Power and Light Company reduced its rates on electricity to the amount of $130,000 in annual revenue. The reduction was made voluntarily and sanctioned by the Corporation Commission.

A few months ago the Southern Power Company—another big power producing company of North Carolina—made drastic cuts in its rates.

Those reductions were made possible by the increasing business done by the companies, by constantly improving methods and the lessening of overhead. The benefits of those economies were passed on to the consumers.

The history of power development and rates in North Carolina does not support the Times' statements.—Public Service.

In our effort to get our city fathers to control the Wilson power plant in order to build the industries of the city and at the same time prevent the building of sentiment in favor of foreign power companies coming into Wilson, the "Public Service," a paper published in the interest of the power companies of the state, has endeavored to make it appear that we are admitting that a municipal plant cannot produce and sell power as cheaply as a foreign company. This was not our purpose. The municipal plant can produce it as cheaply. We were merely appealing to our people and to our city fathers to stand by our plant and not let the foreign companies come into Wilson and cut the earth out from under our city plant which the people of Wilson own, by giving our folks the best of service, the lowest competitive rate and keeping them friends of the municipal ownership, which, if rightly directed, is a thousand times better in every way than the domination of foreign power companies as we have endeavored to show.

"Public Service" says that the Corporation Commission allowed the power companies to reduce its rates. How about when it raised them? The city of High Point had a contract with the Southern Power Company to furnish that city with power in bulk and the city was selling it to its customers. The power company went to the Corporation Commission and explained that it could not make any money at the rate and was allowed to increase its rate to High Point.

Is there any guarantee that the Carolina Power Company, even if it made a contract with the city of Wilson to supply it with surplus power would stand by its contract? It might do it until it had secured all the traffic from the local plant and the machinery had rotted and fallen into disuse and then it would go to the Commission and ask for an increase and it would be granted. We have never seen the Corporation Commission refuse the corporations anything yet that we recall.

We are making $160,000 on our utilities and keeping the foreign power companies from interfering without city government. Why not keep them out of the treasury and also out of our politics?—Wilson Times.

OPEN FORUM

THE LIFE OF JESUS CHRIST

Jesus Christ lived the life and set the example we should all try to follow. Christ's life was a beautiful one, a life of service, a life that was a help to the poor and needy. Ever ready to administer to the sick and afflicted, never counting the cost. A life of love and righteousness. He taught us to offend or mistreat anyone, but to love each other with brotherly love. Teaching us to be charitable at all times, even taught us to pray for and love our enemies. He has taught us what to do to inherit eternal life. If we read the tenth chapter of St. Luke, we will find our neighbor is: "And He answered and said thou shall love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and they neighbor as thy self." —JOAB T. MR. AND MRS. TUCKER MILLS ENJOY UNUSUAL FISHING TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker Mills, who reside near this city, went to Blount's Creek on a fishing trip last Tuesday. Had fishing been better that day they might have caught some fish, and had it been worse the fish might have caught them. In fact, according to the story, the latter came near being the case. As the report of the trip goes, the fishers were heading up the creek in a row boat, when upon rounding a bend in the creek, six large fish jumped out of the water just ahead and attacked the craft. The first leap of one of the monsters of the deep landed him in the boat, and a battle with Mr. Mills followed. With some difficulty Mills overcame and captured his opponent and found it to be a four-pound mullet. This was considered the prize catch of the day and added much to the string of small perch landed by the hook and line method.

"HE'S A PRINCE" HAS GREAT CAST—BIG SCENES

Raymond Griffith, he of the million dollar personality and shiny "topper," has been elevated to stardom by the folks who turn over their hard-earned money at the box office, and he's sure to vindicate the confidence the fans have in him with his first comedy as a full-fledged Paramount star—"He's a Prince," portraying the life of a young European Prince during his working hours. What with reviewing parades, laying corner stones, christening ships, judging baby contests and a hundred and one other equally silly things, a son of royalty, contrary to the general belief, is not a gentleman of leisure. Actually he is a young man, leading a mighty hectic life. But you can bet your life that Griffith manages to get a lot of fun out of it in his new picture, which will be shown at White's Theatre tonight.

MRS. TOLAR ENTERTAINS IN HONOR OF MRS. MOORE

Mrs. C. M. Tolar attractively entertained at three tables of bridge Tuesday evening at her home on Eighth street. Mrs. E. A. Moore, of Grifton, was honored. Quantities of flowers were used as decorations. Mrs. D. E. Taylor, making the top score, was awarded a hand-painted picture "Innocence." Low score was made by Mrs. C. H. Edwards, who was given a hand-painted marmalade jar. Mrs. Moore, the honored, was remembered with a deck of cards. A tempting ice course was served.

DISCOVERY OF OIL EXCITES ILL. TOWN

Jacksonville, Ill., Aug. 26.—(INS)—Oil! This magic word is on the lips of every man in Morgan county, following the successful bringing in of a well north of this city. The well is located on the farm of O. F. Conklin. Paul C. Irwin, veteran oil man, is the prime mover back of the project and he stuck to his well despite the discouragement of business men of this county.

Recently natural gas in tremendous quantities was found near this city, the two forming links in what may prove a broad field for oil and gas operations.

The well, it is estimated, will produce 25 barrels of oil per day. Some estimate that the output will be double this figure.

The man who advised reading the papers fifteen minutes had no idea how long it takes to keep up with the murder mysteries.—Nashville Banner.

BRITISH WEATHER MAN FORECASTS WHOLE YEAR

London, Aug. 26.—(INS)—The ability to make accurate weather predictions a year in advance is claimed by Ernest Huggott of Beaconsfield.

Huggott says that the weather on the earth is governed entirely by the action of other planets. By observing the movements of these he is able to predict the weather for any given date or period.

Each planet as it circles throws a ring on the earth, says Huggott. It is the intersection of these rings which are responsible for weather changes.

Government meteorological authorities have been asked to investigate Huggott's system with a view to adopting it for the official forecasts.

Daily News Letter

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population.

Hollywood, Aug. 26.—(INS)—Members of the University of Southern California football squad are getting some good off-season practice these days. The players line up on opposing teams as part of the filming of "The Collegians," a Universal series. Although the Trojan grid stars are paid for playing football, their amateur standing is not involved.

Gov. J. C. Scruggam of Nevada and Senator Reed Smoot of Utah were recent visitors on the Sam Goldenwyn company, headed by Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, its filming Harold Bell Wright's "The Winning of Barbara Wright." The governor and the senator were intensely interested in the irrigation and reclamation activities which are recorded in the film. They also assisted Director King in checking the authenticity of several scenes.

Leading men are getting scarcer every year, Marshall Neilan, film director declared today. As soon as they become the vogue they are put into the star class and then we can't get them to support any of our feminine stars. It's about time to make a new crop of leading men. The business of casting a picture these days is getting harder and harder because of the lack of them, he declared. Neilan just now wants a leading man for Betty Bronson. The line forms on the left.

The unbobbed hair of Priscilla Donner resulted in her selection by Harry Langdon. First National comedian, as his leading woman in "The Strong Man," now in production.

I want a leading woman with long hair, Harry declared. Few such were found in Hollywood. Miss Monner, however, applied and was accepted.

Long hair has a certain charm, an old-fashioned femininity which bobbed hair hasn't. I like long-haired women, he said.

Gloria Swanson, it was learned today, has acquired the film right to "The Battalion of Death," a story of the Russian woman who fought side by side with the men during the late war.

In the film, Miss Swanson will portray a soviet Joan of Arc—a Russian princess who organizes a battalion of women to drive the cowardly soldiers back to the trenches to repel the attacks of the enemy.

The phenomenal success of "The Cohens and the Kellys" and the stage play "Able's Irish Rose" has prompted another picture with a somewhat similar theme. The picture is "Private Izzy Murphy," with George Jessel, New York musical comedy star, in the leading role. Upon the completion of the picture, Jessel will leave for Boston to open an engagement of his play, "The Jazz Singer."

Edmund Lowe, Fox star, and Lilian Tushman, his actress-wife are enroute to England on a long-deferred honeymoon.

The honeymoon was postponed a year on account of movie engagements. But even this trip is a combination of business and pleasure for Lowe will play opposite Lila Lee in "One Increasing Purpose," which will be filmed in the British Isles under the personal direction of A. S. M. Hutchinson, the author. Mae Allison has also been signed for a part in this picture.

inary Chapel. One hundred, nearly all women, were injured. No death since that of Lincoln has caused the public excitement produced by the death of this great film star.
When his death was announced, women in tears crowded around newsstands to buy the latest editions.

Some profess amazement at this interest; even Cyrus H. K. Curtis' newspaper says that the interest in Valentino's death "gives the observer an uneasy sense of unfamiliarity with American values."
Mr. Curtis should be the last one to say that. One of the greatest of American values is PUBLICITY. In this country one hundred and thirty millions every week pay for admission to moving picture theatres, and tens of millions feel that in Valentino they have lost a friend.

Two new ideas in prohibition enforcement, "shoot to kill" orders are sent to prohibition officers, particularly to a squad of forty customs men recently appointed for special bootleg work. If the bootleggers run away they are to be shot—dead if possible.

Also the government will divide the receipts from fines imposed on bootleggers. The informer will get one-quarter of what the government gets.

This shows energy, but will it discourage men that can change one dollar's worth of corn into fifty dollars' worth of bootleg whiskey?

Nothing new from Mexico except that there is no agreement between the Catholic church and the Mexican government. The Vatican issues through the Papal Secretary of State an official statement, warning the public against inaccurate news concerning the Mexican controversy.

Crowds visiting the great cathedral from which priests are absent say they have seen what they call "the ghosts of bishops flitting about" and believe that they have returned to protect the church treasures.

Great Damage By Forest Fires Thruout South

Raleigh, Aug. 26.—(AP)—One out of every four long-leaf pines and one out of every nine short-leaf, in the virgin forests of the South bear visible fire scars, according to a statement just released here by the United States Department of Agriculture. Proof of these ratios is found in figures compiled by E. L. Demmon of the Southern Forest Experiment Station at New Orleans.

The experiment station recently undertook a study of the amount and extent of fire damage timber of the South and it was found that 75.5 per cent of the total fire loss in the United States occurred in Southern forests.

In compiling this data on South fire losses by fire, Mr. Demmon surveyed Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi. In these forests it was found that the damage to longleaf pine was "more than twice as great as that to shortleaf pine." This, Mr. Demmon found, was accounted for partly by the fact that the biggest fires were in the more southerly pine woods' region, where longleaf pine predominates, and partly because of the greater richness of the longleaf pine. The percentage of trees damaged increased with their size. Over 50 per cent of the largest trees of both species were scarred. Many of the fire wounds in the smaller trees were healing over, it was found, so that finally no scar may be visible until the tree is cut down.

Western Farmers Urged to Fight to Kill Prairie Dogs

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 26.—(INS)—Millions of prairie dogs are destroying wide acres of pasture land in western Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and other sections of the southwest. Twenty years ago the farmers and cattle men of western Kansas waged a fairly successful war on this pest. Poisoned oats were poured into the holes they dug and that led down to their homes in the ground. Nothing more was done to exterminate the dogs, and in twenty years they have again become a menace to grazing lands of the southwest.

In these prairie dog "towns" much grass is covered with the soil of their mounds, built up as a sentinel post that the dogs may observe intruders into their territory. Dr. G. E. Johnson, mammalogist of the State Agricultural College, reminds the farmers of Kansas and the southwest that "the grass destroyed or eaten by the prairie dog produces no milk or no beef." It is estimated that 265 prairie dogs use as much grass as one cow.

Thousands of farmers have neglected to follow up the plan of poisoning the prairie dogs, and the colonies or "towns" have increased greatly.

In the new campaign launched against prairie dogs in the southwest, every township trustee and every land owner or tenant are urged to carry on till the last dog is killed. Each adult pair of prairie dogs raises a litter of three or four young dogs every year.
