First on the welcoming program was the meeting of the Inner Berengeria with Miss Ederle aboard at Quarantine, by the steamboat Macon, carrying the Mayor's committee and Miss Ederle's mother, arrangements were made for the transfer of Miss Ederle and her father to the Macon and for them to proceed to the battery amid cheers, music and signs of harbor craft.

Seek Re-hearing of Newton Road Case

Raleigh, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Possibility that the celebrated Newton road case may again be aired in Supreme Court was seen here today in a petition placed before Justice Brogden by the State Highway Commission for a re-hearing. The Commission had the case before the Supreme Court last spring by a 3 to 2 vote.

Justice Brogden has 30 days in which to make up his mind on the matter. The fall term of the court opens next week and it is anticipated that he will announce his decision shortly thereafter.

The Newton road case came before the Supreme Court on appeal by the town of Newton, which objected to the Highway Commission's decision to run the concrete highway through Catawba county without passing by the court house. The court house is in the center of the town and the proposed road would have skirted by the town. Town officials in their case stated that the law provided for all highways to connect county seats and that the decision of the Highway Commission violated the law.

TROPICAL STORM TAKES HEAVY TOLL OF LIFE, PROPERTY

Five Persons Killed, Many Missing and Property Damage Five to Ten Millions

New Orleans, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Five persons were known to be dead, several others were missing and estimates of damage wrought by the tropical hurricane which swept through South Louisiana Wednesday night and yesterday, ranged between five and ten million dollars as new reports of storm damage reached here today.

A widespread search was renewed for 13 fishermen who had been missing more than 36 hours from their homes in the section near Barataria Bay, 65 miles below New Orleans.

Sugar cane, corn, cotton and rice crops were ruined in several southern Louisiana parishes by winds which attained a velocity of more than 100 miles an hour in some sections. Many pecan trees were uprooted, as were large pines and oaks.

Morgan City, where the damage is estimated at a million dollars, was hit harder than any town in the state. Damage in New Orleans will probably run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

TODAY

(Copyright 1926) One Man Enough? Welcome, the Voice. The State Kills Also. Safety in Fear. By ARTHUR BRISBANE

"Mussolini will appoint rulers in each Italian city and town. That is the latest. A Fascist decree is expected, forbidding elections that are pending, putting an end to woman suffrage, and establishing ONE man government—the man being Mussolini."

In America, we cling to the theory that men can govern themselves, with national congress, state legislature, boards of aldermen, etc. and the citizens voting—although it must be admitted that many of the poor things don't know why they are voting or what for.

Are we right? Is Mussolini right? Who knows? You remember, in Darwin's voyage of the Beagle, his description of the miserable Fuegians, shivering in the cold near the straits of Magellan. Their trouble, according to Darwin, was that they had an absolute republic: No man was boss, no man ruled. And they all stayed in the degradation of flat equality.

They lived under communism, by the way, and when one got a piece of cloth, his companion tore it into shreds, each took a tiny piece and the cloth was worthless to anybody.

Whatever our defects may be in the United States, we cannot be accused of dividing things up. When an American gets a big piece of anything, he keeps it and adds to it.

Krishnamurti is here, with "the voice of the Messiah," and walks ashore hoping to revitalize faith in the United States.

There was talk, which fortunately came to nothing, about holding up the young Hindu on grounds of moral turpitude. Aged thirty, weighing only 100 pounds, he is as far from the average idea of turpitude as a new bloom buttercup.

Coming from India gives him special rights. The greatest Indian Prince, the grand Nawab, has three hundred wives in his zenana, and considers himself indeterminate—his father had seven hundred. If he came, we wouldn't keep him out, turpitude or no turpitude. Explain that, and we tried to keep out lady Calhoun, with no zenana at all.

Emanuel Silberstein, a neurotic youth, aged nineteen, killed his tutor, aged sixty-three, beating him on the head with a hammer, and smiled as he told the Judge, "I think it was funny to kill this fellow."

The boy, smiling, after committing murder, was once a youthful prodigy, having made effective liberty bond speeches at the age of ten.

Alienists will examine him. Suppose they declare him sane, what will the state do.

The youth calls it "funny" to kill a man. The state calls it "just and necessary" to kill a murderer. One statement is as preposterous and insane as the other. The state, to discourage proceeds to kill.

Charles Collins Barley, presumably insane, killed himself and a bank official injured 120 in a Pittsburgh bank, by deliberately exploding a bomb with his foot. The bank officials had refused to give him $2,000.

Business men, worried, ask: How can we protect ourselves against such a threat as Barley made? The answer is: Nature protects you, exceptions occur, but generally you need not worry.

Three passions rule the human race. First, and strongest, self-preservation; second, reproduction; the family instinct; third, ambition, which moves the whole human family forward.

Men ordinarily will not kick explosive bombs when they cannot get $2,000, because they don't want to kick themselves out of life. Life is not too pleasant, when you need $2,000. But nature's powerful instinct makes you stay and struggle.

Take away the instinct of self-preservation and all life and civilization would be destroyed.

EXPLOSION TAKES LIVES OF FORTY FOUR COAL MINERS

Relatives Wait at the Mouth of Tunnel for Loved Ones to Be Brought to Surface

Clymer, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The explosion which occurred at the Clymer Mine of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation yesterday apparently crushed the lives of 44 men. With 32 bodies recovered at 6:30 this morning, mine officials expressed the belief that 12 others unaccounted for were dead in the ruins of the mine.

Figures given out early today by A. J. Musser, vice-president and general manager of the corporation revealed that 58 miners were trapped by the explosion which occurred Thursday afternoon. Ten miners escaped with their lives and four others are in a hospital suffering from gas and shock. None of the bodies had been identified at the improvised morgue in a machine shop one mile from the scene of the blast.

Late last night many of the wives and children of the entombed men left the mine mouth after a vigil of ten hours. At dawn they returned to the ill-fated pit, but were ignorant of the fact that 32 bodies had been brought out and removed to the temporary morgue. A corps of Salvation Army Lasses labored all night without sleep preparing the bodies so that later in the day the stricken villagers might be summoned to identify them.

Black damp, the great menace, which follows mine explosions took the lives of the first four men brought up. Their bodies were unmarked. The others however were burned badly, some beyond recognition. Rescuers worked feverishly today in their efforts to recover the bodies of the missing men.

PREDICTS FEWER BANK FAILURES IN THIS STATE

Bailey Will Urge Passage of Reform Measures by Next General Assembly

Raleigh, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Failures of banks, frequent in North Carolina during the past five years, should decline in the future because of the growing industrialization of the state and because of regulating the establishment of state banks given the Corporation Commission by the 1921 General Assembly, in the opinion of I. M. Bailey, attorney for the commission.

Many of the 57 state banks which failed in the state during the past five years probably would not be allowed to open under the present regulations of the Corporation Commission, says Mr. Bailey. There were bank openings before the General Assembly passed measures giving the commission the power to regulate their establishment. Before regulatory power was accorded the commission, points out Mr. Bailey, banks were allowed to open almost promiscuously in towns where there were no further demands for banking facilities. After struggling along for a year or so, the attorney declares, they then closed their doors with ultimate losses to depositors.

This loss in bank deposits in North Carolina during the past five years, as shown in a recent issue of the University of North Carolina News Letter, points out Mr. Bailey, was more than $12,500,000, an amount arrived at on the presumption of an average loss of 75 per cent of the total liabilities of the defunct banks.

The Corporation Commission has no control of receiverships and liquidations of banks, except the mere examination, says Mr. Bailey. It has no figures available upon which to base an exact, or even an approximate estimate of the losses sustained in North Carolina during the past five years through the failure of banks, he says, adding that the figures compiled by the News Letter are therefore estimated.

In the opinion of Mr. Bailey, the State Corporation should have more control of the affairs of defunct banks, rather than allow liquidations through the present receivership channels. He advocates the passage of a law providing for this, believing that through this method fifteen or twenty per cent of the assets of the defunct banks in the future, can be saved to unfortunate depositors.

As an example of the manner in which the system he proposes works, Mr. Bailey cites the control of national banks by the Comptroller of Currency. Under this system a national bank, whenever it goes under, until all assets are liquidated, has its affairs controlled by the men whose business is the liquidation of banks. The cost of this method, he declares, is approximately 5 per cent of the assets, representing a distinct saving over the state's present system.

For under the usual receivership process, as practiced in this state, says Mr. Bailey, the cost frequently amounts to as much as 25 per cent of the assets, and the assets themselves often remain tied up in the receiverships for years.

Were the Corporation Commission to control the affairs of the defunct banks until the assets were liquidated, he concludes, hundreds of thousands of dollars might be annually saved to the depositors.

Mr. Bailey expects to interest the next General Assembly in the reform which he advocates.

RECOMMEND ENLARGING TEACHERS COLLEGE TAKE CARE 300 MORE STUDENTS

(By M. L. Wright) The board of trustees of East Carolina Teachers College held its regular meeting in the president's office yesterday. The following members were present: J. S. Hargett, Wayne A. Mitchell, Mrs. H. C. Connor, Jr., James L. Griffin, F. C. Harding and A. T. Allen.

The committee on buildings, salaries and policies made reports. The building committee reported the needs of the college and recommended to the board that it ask the next General Assembly for appropriations to increase the buildings and equipment so as to accommodate 300 more students than the college can now accommodate.

The committee on salaries and institutional policies recommended salaries for the teachers and officers for the ensuing year according to the salary schedule adopted at the last meeting of the board.

President Wright made his biennial report to the board of trustees in which he discussed the functions of the college, its growth and future policies. Among other things, President Wright said: "During the past two years we have had 2,712 students enrolled this is an increase of 875 over the previous biennium. We have graduated from the two year normal course 402. This is an increase of 159 over the previous biennium. During the biennium the per capita cost to the state to keep a student in college has been as follows: '20-24, $164.63; for 1925-26, $162.49; for biennium, $163.56."

"This college has been in operation for 17 years. Since students go out of the normal course at the end of two years, we have been sending out teachers for fifteen years. During this period we have given the two year diploma to 1,063. During the past year we sent a questionnaire card to these people, and we got reports from 694. The information thus received is quite interesting. It shows that each graduating class from 1911 to 1925 has some one still teaching. It also shows that 457 out of the 694 reporting taught school last year. Of these 21 are doing high school work and the others are teaching in the grades. Estimating the annual income at $900 each, and it will average more than this amount, the earning capacity last year would be $411,300. These 694 graduates have taught a total of 2,486 year. If the average salary was only $900, their total earnings would amount to $2,237,400. During this same period, counting by years, the college has enrolled 11,033 students. As many of these drop out at the end of the first year, and a some stay in college three or four year, I estimate that we have enrolled at least 5,500 individuals. Therefore, the earning of all whom we taught must be at least five times as much as for those about whom we have accurate data. If this be true, then the total earnings of all who have attended this college up to 1925, will be $11,187,000. This is a greater sum than the state appropriation for maintenance and for permanent improvements by $7,746,303. This means that, as a business proposition, measured in the non-lucrative business of teaching, it has paid the state. But the real value of the college can never be measured by the dollar mark. The chief returns to the state from a teachers college are to be found in an improved citizenship brought about by efficient teaching in the public schools of our state.

"Already we have refused 722 applicants for the college of 1926-27. This college is North Carolina's training school for the training of teachers—those who are to lead the youth of today safely into mature lives. Shall the college be made large enough (Continued on Page 6)

NO DECISION YET REACHED IN SCHOOL BOOK PRICE FIGHT

Board of Education and Book Publishers Apparently Deadlocked at Noon Today

Raleigh, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Following a meeting today between the State Board of Education and representatives of school book publishers supplying North Carolina elementary schools with text books, four lines of action were left open in the controversy having its origin in the difference in school book prices in North Carolina and Tennessee.

These lines of action are: Adoption by North Carolina of the Tennessee system of distribution. Suit by the Board of Education to compel the publishers to give North Carolina a retail price on text books equal to the alleged retail price offered in Tennessee.

A compromise which will lower the price of school books to North Carolina school children, and at the same time not reduce the efficiency of North Carolina's present satisfactory system of distribution.

Abandonment of the Board of Education of the whole proceedings and admission that North Carolina school children pay slightly more for books than Tennessee children the system of distribution is much more efficient.

Of these possible courses of action the suit looms as the most probable when the conference adjourned shortly before lunch to meet again shortly before three o'clock.

Although both sides of the other was admitted by both sides a deadlock appeared to have been reached.

Single Chauffeur Will Drive Four Cars At One Time

Something new in the way of automobile driving will be demonstrated to the people of Greenville tomorrow when a representative of the Westbrook Motor Company of this city, will drive four automobiles about the city streets at one time. This is a feat that has never before been shown in this section so far as could be learned here today and announcement of tomorrow's demonstration is attracting much attention.

Mr. Jack Westbrook, head of the motor company, announced this afternoon that the four cars used in the demonstration would be the new Chrysler "50," "60," "70" and "80." While the feat will be accomplished by mechanical devices controlled by the pilot car, it is indeed something new and the demonstration will prove interesting.

ROTARY MEET IN HIGH POINT ENDS

Crazed Man Runs Amuck, One Killed and Three Injured

Chicago, Aug. 27.—(AP)—An immigrant railroad laborer, armed with a shotgun, for which he had reserve ammunition, crammed in a knife dangling from about his throat, last night killed one man, wounded three others and kept the Illinois Central Railroad Terminal in an uproar fifteen minutes before he in turn was killed.

The slow action of his old model single barreled gun played a major part in the termination of the madman's follies before they found other victims. The time required for his last reloading gave an ex-serviceman a moment's advantage. In that instance, Charles Danloff, a barber opened fire and killed the laborer instantly after he had escaped the fir of a policeman as he charged through the station.

POSSE WITH DOGS SEARCH FOR NEGRO WHO KILLED CHILD

Feeling High Toward Negro Who Ran Down and Killed Year Old Boy On Highway

Black Mountain, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A large excited crowd, aided by bloodhounds, was searching for George Mills, negro, who is alleged to have run down and killed one-year-old Clarence Melton on the highway between Black Mountain and Montreat, early last night. The people of Montreat were reported angry and bent on capturing the negro who escaped shortly after the accident.

According to local police, the negro was not have fled to the mountains but may be hiding now somewhere in Montreat. The officers reported this morning that two persons had given the names as eye witnesses to the killing, and they sustained Mrs. Melton's story that the negro had not even slowed up after hitting the boy.

Mrs. Melton had been teaching the child to walk. She was leading him down the left side of the road when Mills, driving a coupe, struck the child squarely, knocking it 20 feet and causing instant death. Mills is then said to have proceeded to the Montreat entrance where he was stopped by officers who cautioned him not to drive without lights. While they were talking to him he slammed the door and dashed away and later left his automobile at his home and disappeared up the mountain side.

"MA" AND MOODY GO TO POLLS IN TEXAS TOMORROW

Stage All Set for Run-Off Primary to Decide Between Mrs. Florence Ferguson and Moody for Governor

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The second Texas primary campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination closed today with Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and Attorney General Dan Moody using the "Ku Klux Klan and Fergusonism" issues respectively as whips to keep their supporters in line for the run-off balloting tomorrow. They will face the barrier with Moody's backers claiming the inside track by virtue of his 120,000 vote lead over the woman governor in the five cornered July primary race.

Moody has carried his slogan "Down with Fergusonism" to all parts of the state in an intensive speaking tour. He has made from two to five addresses each day. James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, has been active in the field with daily speeches charging Moody is supported by the Klan and the oil interests.

Mrs. Ferguson has made but one speech but has issued frequent statements stressing the issues put forth by her husband.

BOUNCED BRICK OFF THE MAYOR'S SILK HAT, SAILOR IS SENTENCED TO CRUISE

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—(1926)—Edward Long, the man with the brick, is in again.

Several months ago he bounced a brick off Mayor Rolph's silk hat claiming that the mayor's car had nearly run him down. He was freed when the mayor refused to prosecute him. He was also advised to take a long ocean voyage to take a long ocean voyage to the Judge, who was aware that Long was a sailor.

If Long took the voyage he did not make it long enough, for he was arrested for creating a disturbance on the Embarcadero and will be a guest of the city prison for thirty days.

WORLD'S YOUNGEST QUEEN, LONELY, AND MELANCHOLY DEVOTES HERSELF TO SON

Belgrade, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, daughter of Queen Marie of Roumania and youngest reigning woman sovereign in the world, is a timid and melancholy young woman. At the age of twenty-five she finds herself the ruler of 10,000,000 persons, but separated from them by her ignorance of the language. From the time she was sixteen, her mother trained her in all modern queenly duties, but she could not teach her daughter to overcome the characteristics which now appear to make her lonely and isolated. With her husband, King Alexander, son of old King Peter of Serbia, Marie occupies a $3,000,000 palace in Belgrade. But she has extremely simple and democratic tastes, and her friends say she would prefer to live in a small cottage in the country, where she could devote all her time to the care and rearing of her 3-year-old son, Crown Prince Peter II. Marie finds the business of maintaining a court irksome and tedious, her friends say, and she therefore seldom entertains or gives receptions. Her one and only interest in life, they declare, is her baby, a handsome, brown-eyed, lively boy, who has an English nurse and American picture books and toys. English is the only language he knows. The Queen invited the correspondent to tea at the Palace in Belgrade and chatted with him pleasantly about her adopted country and her duties as Queen. The scene in the Palace when the correspondent entered was anything but regal. A dressmaker's papermache form of a female figure, covered with a white bodice, appeared in a corner, several trunks remained open, and personal clothing hung in disarray about the room. Her Majesty apologized for the appearance of the place, saying she and the king had just returned from a long trip into the interior. A colored handkerchief was worn around her head to conceal her bobbed hair, which she feels does not quite become a Queen. The three-year-old Crown Prince played with a coal-scuttle near the fire, and managed to make himself look like a chimney-sweep. "He won't even look at his regular toys," said the Queen. "But insists on playing with coal mud, paint and everything else he ought not to play with. In that respect I suppose he's like any ordinary boy." When the correspondent suggested that American readers would like to know from her how it felt to be Queen, Her Majesty laughingly said: "Well, I can tell you there isn't much fun in it. It's sometimes more difficult to be a mother than a Queen. This baby takes almost all my time, and I have scarcely an hour to devote to court duties, social activities or anything else. In my girlhood, I thought I'd be content with just being a Princess, but then Fate always spoils most of one's dreams. "Like my mother, I try to give as much time to charitable and hospital work as I can; but you have no idea how many other things a Queen is called upon to do." The Queen said one of her greatest problems was to acquire the Serbian language and be able to converse with the peasantry in their own tongue. "Serbian, like all Slav languages is incredibly difficult. Only now, after two years' effort, I am beginning to understand the language when I hear it spoken, but I cannot yet speak it with any facility, and of course I cannot read or write it." Queen Marie is no longer the buoyant, vivacious, youthful girl one knew in Bucharest five years ago. She is now essentially the mature mother, with a more serious outlook in life. Her former girlish bloom, graceful figure, and adolescent features have given way to a full, rotund face, that suggests the Teutonic type, a figure that is almost obese, and eyes that convey melancholy and introspection. But the Queen of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes has the same personal charm as of old. Summer School University Will Close Tonight

Chapel Hill, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The University of North Carolina will hold its second commencement for the year 1926 tonight. Fifty-five students who have completed the work required for the various degrees during the summer, will participate in the exercises, at which President Case is expected to be the principal speaker.

The exercises will be held under the auspices of the University of North Carolina.

The graduates include one applicant for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy; two for the Master of Science degree; 18 for the Master of Arts; one for Bachelor of Laws; one for degree of Pharmaceutical Chemistry; 16 for the Bachelor of Arts degree; 11 for the Bachelor of Arts in Education; and four for the Bachelor of Science in Commerce.

Dougherty Gives Crime Wave Cure

New York, Aug. 27.—(INS)—Public hanging of automobile bandits, and deportation of confirmed criminals to a penal settlement were among the drastic methods of dealing with the American crime wave suggested by George S. Dougherty, former chief of the detective force in New York, in an interview given in London.

"I believe in the horrible example system which was in force in England a century or so ago, when people were hanged at the cross roads," Dougherty said. "In 95 cases of out of 100 today when a holdup robbery takes place, the resistor is either killed or wounded. The bandit has a revolver with him and he intends to use it to kill if necessary. Therefore, I say that if he is caught he should be at once strung up by his friends of the people who have been killed. Confirmed criminals, if of American birth, should be sent to a penal settlement and there sterilized, so that they can have no children to follow them. If they are of alien birth they should be deported to their country of origin. That will be a big punishment for them, for the money an alien carpenter or bricklayer earns in New York in a day would probably not be earned in a month in his country of origin. The chief causes of the crime wave in the United States, in my opinion, are the revolver, the stolen automobile, narcotics, bootleg whiskey and the absolute disrespect for the law on account of prohibition. I am convinced that a removal of the ban on light wines and spirits in the United States would go far towards putting an end to the crime wave America is now experiencing."

N. Y. Republicans In Big Split Over Wet, Dry Issue

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(INS)—Prohibition threatens to split the Republican party in New York State wide open.

Two factions, wet and dry, are fast coming into existence in the G. O. P. party. Leading the wet faction is United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., the man who was recognized as the leader of the Republican party following the state convention on two years ago. The dry faction is rallying behind State Chairman George K. Morris, of Amsterdam.

Some Republican leaders have admitted they are afraid that the present dispute within the party over whether or not a wet candidate should be nominated for Governor may grow to such proportions by election day that it will endanger the success of the entire state ticket. If Senator Wadsworth has his way at the convention, which meets at Madison Square Garden September 27 and 28, a "dripping wet" will be nominated for the office of Governor. Just now the Senator is said to look with much favor on Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University.

State Chairman Morris, for the last few weeks, has been bending every effort to arouse sentiment in the dry upstate counties for Supreme Court Justice James C. Crosey of Brooklyn, for Governor.

minds. These forces have done away with her.

"Granting exceptions that prove the rule, that homely girl has mysteriously disappeared. And who is responsible for having made away with her?"

"There is a grand competitive chorus of doctors, dietitians, dress makers, dancing teachers, beauticians and cosmetologists shouting in unison 'I am!' But the beauticians and cosmetologists are entitled to loudest of all from the myriad of beauty parlors scattered to the far corners of the United States."

Mrs. Maurer, launched a war against the boyish bob, mannish clothes and rolled stockings. Women have become so masculine in appearance during the last seven years that they have robbed themselves of all feminine charms, she charged.

"If a young man's style does not cease to exist soon, we are in great danger of adopting a standardization of women's garb like that of men."

"They may think they are pleasing men. But they are doing just the opposite. No man wishes to see his sweetheart, wife or sister resemble a pocket edition of himself. Now that women have acquired beauty they must cultivate feminine charm."

British Unions Ask To Have A Voice In Settling Strikes

London, Aug. 27.—(INS)—"A General Council of the Trades Union Congress as representing body of English trades unionism, movement, considers it should be entitled to a voice in any strike negotiations, and a hand in the directions of a strike."

This, in effect is the reply of the Trades Union Council, ruling body of English trades unionism, to the legislative proposals which the Baldwin Government have decided to adopt to curtail the activities of trade unions in the event of another general strike.

The main heads of these proposals are: Breach of contract cases are to be heard in police courts. Trade union benefit funds are to be separated from strike funds. Contracts between miners and employers are to be enforceable by law. Peaceful picketing is to be further restricted. Enforcement of secret balloting before strike action is taken.

"It is the natural evolution of Union policy that authority to call a strike should be vested in a governing body," runs the T. U. C. statement, "and corresponds to the concentration of the employers into groups and associations. We shall go forward to try to secure this authority from the trade unions at the annual Congress at Bournemouth in September, irrespective of any attacks which the Government may have in contemplation."

"We knew the attack was coming, and there is to be combined resistance from the political and industrial labor bodies. Emergency resolutions dealing with the matter will be introduced at the Bournemouth conference and at the Labor Party meeting in October."

At present the General Council has no authority to call a strike; nor can that authority be vested in the Council by the annual Congress unless there is a change in the constitutions of all the affiliated unions. Several attempts have been made to secure dictatorial powers for the Council, but the opposition from within in the trade union movement has always been too great.

Prosperity Such As U. S. Enjoys, Bad For Germany

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—(INS)—Prosperity is like your forbidden liquor; a little is alright, but too much is bad. Thus did Dr. Ernest W. Jungst, expert economist of Westphalia, Germany, reply to interviewers here when asked if he would like to see his native country as prosperous as he found the United States.

Dr. Jungst called attention to the fact that over-prosperity and attending loose morals and wanton pleasures engineered the downfall of ancient Rome. The Essen economist's visit to America was for the purpose of studying social and economic conditions of coal miners here that he might strike a comparison with those of his own land in a book he is writing on the subject.

Prof. Dr. Fritz Herbst, director of the Essen mining school, and Carl Jungst, head of the mining units of the famous Krupp interests, accompanied Dr. Jungst. They are touring the East, making stops at mining and ore producing centers.

Germany would not profit by the social and economic conditions of America, Dr. Jungst said. In your mines I have found better roofs, cleaner coal and better working conditions, yet you still

"NEWS and PROGRESS" No. 6

ECONOMIC SIGNIFICANCE AND SERVICE OF THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER AND NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING—From latest volume in Manhattan Library of Popular Economics, republished in serial form through courtesy of Bank of the Manhattan Company, New York.

NE cannot travel about the country without being struck by the great individuality of its cities, big and little. If there is anything which distinguishes the average American, it is his aggressive loyalty to his own home town.

Therefore, it is not astonishing to find that every community, save the very smallest, has at least one voice—the voice of its newspaper. There are nearly 14,000 such voices in 10,000 different communities, and in their printed columns the spirit of each place is expressed. These columns focus what may be called the accumulated town purpose in realizing local ambitions. Whatever they may be, it is through the newspaper that knowledge of community purposes is disseminated and ideas are unified.

Thus, while most vocations are more or less private, newspaper publishing is necessarily charged with a public interest. This has been true from the earliest days. When one of the first papers in the then (1804) wilderness of Indiana made its bow, the editor stated its object to be "to collect and publish such information as will give a correct account of the production and natural advantages of the territory." In other words, he proudly proclaimed himself a "booster," although the word had not yet come into vogue. This ideal persists today; it expresses itself in making the paper not merely a chronicle of the news, but also a leader in organized movements for community betterment.

For example, in one town a public-spirited editor labored for years to awaken his city from the spirit of apathy that checked all progress. This town was lagging far behind in civic advancement, its roads were poor, its schools antiquated, its business section woefully behind the times, and its parks and public buildings shabby. Worst of all, its affairs were in the hands of those who seemed entirely lacking in desire for improvement.

Conditions like these might have daunted the bravest. But an editor is not just one man; he speaks through his newspaper. When the proper spirit animates it, a newspaper is a host of men, for it mobilizes the best citizens of the community into a force for progress. So in issue after issue, year after year, this newspaper consistently and constantly centered its efforts to awaken the whole community to its shortcomings and its opportunities.

At last it won. Today the old stagnation has been transformed into a wave of prosperity. New schools, new stores and factories, new homes, new streets and parks and the innumerable other improvements that reflect an American community at its best, all attest the power of newspaper leadership.

Again, the publisher of a large city newspaper in the heart of the Great West have relatively far more accidents than we do. At that your output per man and per shift is greater than our, he continued.

He explained that Germany has not yet returned to the pre-war standard. Many industries there are idle, but he said the output per man is increasing.

White Sox Struggle for First Division Place; Hard Going

Chicago, Aug. 27.—(INS)—Gripped and disappointed that far from discouraged, Eddie Collins and his White Sox have resigned themselves to one last supreme effort in the American League pennant chase.

There's no use to hope for a pennant, but there is a very good chance to achieve second rating and even whittle the Yankee's commanding lead to a respectable margin, Collins to the International News. With the newspapers already heralding "the last series of the season with this team and that team," and the league leaders traveling at a merry clip then games in advance of the field, there never remains much more than the awarding of honors, Eddie explained, and after competing in twenty league races, his opinion goes unchallenged, at least as far as we are concerned.

Collins chatters in a mournful monotone while discussing his ball club these days. Reasons for this are plentiful, considering that the White Sox's breaks have been bad. Misfortune has held a regular place on the Sox roster since early spring.

While there now seems to little doubt that the next General Assembly of North Carolina will enact legislation requiring the lighting of every vehicle, regardless of type, that travels the public highways after dark...

which we are now so frequently regarded."

This is the declaration of Mrs. Alfred Brousseau, president general of the D. A. R., in her address before the meeting of the D. A. R. convention in Rocky Mount this week.

In North Carolina it has been found that women are not bringing to bear on the issue, of politics and government the same intelligence and perspicacity they show in all other pursuits of life.

Of course, the weight of woman's influence will be found in general cast on the side of morality and the defense of the home.

But because they do not vote a hundred per cent and because they sometimes disappoint in the treatment of their political rights...

Mrs. Brousseau stated the need clearly. It isn't enough for women to have the ballot. It isn't enough for them to vote.

That applies to women. Does it not also apply to men? Could Pennsylvania now be corrupt and content if both men and women applied their full intelligence to the business of voting?

A democratic system of government is absolutely dependent on a free, untrammelled, informed electorate. The qualifications of the voter is a matter of individual responsibility.

In North Carolina, as in other states where the primary has been misused the need is for a strengthened primary, a secret ballot and a full vote.

Frontier Baseball League Haven for Famous Outlaws

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.—(INS)—Merrie olde Sherwood Forest, the haven of Robin Hood, Friar Tuck, Little John, and other famous outlaws, has a modern counterpart in the Frontier League of the great southwest.

The prescribed gentry of the present day, however, aren't fugitives from the sheriff; they are players banned from organized baseball for real and alleged offenses.

Hall Chase, Jimmy O'Connell, Williams, Tom Sexton, Hap Plesch, Chick Gandil, Buck Weaver, Lefty and Swede Risberg are names almost as familiar to the baseball fans as Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby and Dazzy Vance.

Jimmy O'Connell, the Giants' $75,000 beauty, who was banned by Kenesaw Mountain Landis for mistaking Heinie Sand for 'one of the boys,' packing the denizens of the alkali wastes into the stands by passing the ball for a batting average of .500.

Hal Chase, although over 40, rises to difficult plays like the 'Peerless Hal' of twenty years ago. Chase is first baseman for Douglas, Ariz.

Chick Gandil and Buck Weaver, who figured in the White Sox scandal of several years ago, are both hitting around .400. Gandil is manager of the Fort Laird, N. M. team.

Lefty Williams, another White Sox player up to the time of the 1919 scandal, had some trouble with his throwing arm early this season, but has rounded into shape and has pitched good ball of late.

IOWA VOTERS TO SELECT SENATOR NEXT NOVEMBER

Having Had Four Members in Upper House This Year May Pick Fifth; Death of Cummins Stir Unusual Contest Among Candidates

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 21.—(INS)—Having established what is believed to be the unique record of being served by four United States senators within a year, Iowa voters will go to the polls this fall to select perhaps still another.

The past year has been a marked one for this state in the matter of national representatives. First, Smith W. Brookhart, after a long contest was unseated this spring in favor of his Democratic opponent, Daniel Steck.

Then came the sudden death of the venerable senator Albert B. Cummins, leading light in Hawkeye state politics for more than a quarter of a century.

Staunch friends of the late senator were open in their declarations that only a man imbued with the ideals of Cummins should be named to succeed him.

LOCAL CONCERN HAS WINDOW DISPLAY REPRESENTING $15,000,000

Renfrew Printing Co., Has Distinction of Being First Institution of Its Kind to Present Exhibit From So Large Volume of Business

A display window representing more than $15,000,000 is a very unusual exhibit for any city, even the metropolis of the nation, and to say that Greenville has such without giving further facts little credence would be given to the story.

The Renfrew Printing Co., local printers and stationers have on display in their windows what is believed to be the largest amount of printed matter ever manufactured and ready for delivery at one time by any printing concern of Eastern North Carolina. The bulk of this work is checks, and supplies for the Greenville Tobacco market which will open on September 7th, and represents 90 per cent of all the printed matter used by the entire market. This display does not include a large amount of advertising material already delivered by this institution to the warehousemen for distribution throughout the more than twenty counties, from which the local market draws patronage.

This speaks well for this concern, and for Greenville to have a printing plant with equipment sufficient to handle this large volume of business, which is not only a great convenience for those engaged in the tobacco industry, but it places the firm in a position to serve the general business interests of Greenville and Eastern Carolina.

H. W. Renfrew, sole owner and manager of the Renfrew Printing Company, who is a practical printer and a man of executive ability is a Greenville boy and received his first experience in the printing game with The Daily Reflector, at which time the publication was issued from a small building on the site where the Sumrell Motor Company now stands.

In discussing the history of his institution and things in general in which he and his organization are interested, Mr. Renfrew said: "Yes, I first began work in Greenville, and although I have worked in several cities, both large and small, and in some of the largest printing plants in the country, it was all just a means to an end. From the very first I have always intended to have a printing business of my own, and to have it in Greenville, the best town in the best state in the Union.

"Since I established my plant in Greenville in 1913, there hasn't always been easy sailing, because our institution has carried its part of the burdens brought about by depressed business conditions which all businesses have experienced at times during that period. But with a determination to win and not allowing myself to become discouraged, I have seen my business grow from a very small beginning to its present size, and with the addition of a Model 8 Linotype machine already purchased, which will be installed within a month and an automatic press which is to be installed during October, we will have the best equipped printing establishment in Eastern Carolina.

"It has always been my desire to please my patrons and give them the very best of service and workmanship, and the fact that I have customers who have been buying from me for the past 14 years is evidence of how well I have succeeded in my efforts in this respect.

"I have always had great faith in Greenville and have seen it grow from just a small village to a thriving city. In my opinion, and I believe I express the sentiments of every one familiar with the city, Greenville is today the best city in our state for various reasons. Our school system will equal that of even the largest cities, and the East Carolina Teachers College, which is one of the greatest institutions of its kind in the south, is located here. We are proud of the fact that we have the best tobacco market in the state, and with the continued progress made within the past few years, the time is not far distant when we will have the largest loose leaf market in the world.

We are the hub of the greatest highway system of the entire nation with hard surfaced roads leading in every direction. Health conditions are exceptionally good, and our people are the cream of the earth.

"Yes, I am proud I live in Greenville, and I have strived to have my business grow with the other business enterprises who, too, have survived the commercial storms of the past years. Through cooperation and support of the business concerns of our city I have been able to build up my business to its present size, and I want to thank the business interests for their support and I shall at all times try to merit their continued patronage by the quality of my work and the service I give. We are now in a position to handle the printing needs of the city promptly and at prices that will compare favorably with those of any reliable printing concern of this or other states.

"I feel that my faith in Greenville and her people has been justified and I am glad 'I pitched my tent' in Greenville. Because any man with pluck, possessing a progressive spirit can succeed in Greenville. God bless Our Greenville. Yours If You Come."

Moscow, Aug. 27.—(INS)—Leon Trotsky is on the war-path again, this time against bureaucracy and red tape. He had abandoned the campaign for some time, in favor of contemplating party politics, but when the following example was called to his notice, he re-entered the fray with vigor.

"A twenty kopeck silver coin of the Czar's regime was found in a bag of silver Soviet coins in the Department of Finance of Voronezh," relates Trotsky. The coin is worth only six kopecks. (The equivalent of three cents.)

The wise Voronezh financial folks decided to isolate this czaristic coin. The Department held a conference of four responsible officials and determination on the proper procedure.

Then they ordered a secretary to fold up the coin in a clean piece of cloth. An old woman courier secretary tied it well with a string. A third employee wrote upon the cloth the address of the Financial Commissariat in Moscow, and stamped it with 23 kopecks worth of stamps.

Meanwhile, a stenographer was making out the necessary records with three copies. Three responsible workers signed the documents and they were forwarded to Moscow along with the coin.

Only wise men can do such things, exclaimed Trotsky.

One of the last acts of the late Djerjinsky, in his capacity of chairman of the Supreme Economic Council, was to order the multitudinous committees which hitherto have directed affairs in all departments of the Soviet economy, to elect one man to do their work. Djerjinsky blamed the paralyzing red tape and procrastination of the Soviet apparatus on the committee system: If his one-man responsibility order is carried out it will mean a revolutionary change in the Soviet system. The order is greeted enthusiastically by many who have long realized that the committee system of management wasted years of time in talk.

Other sorts of mismanagement are also occupying the attention of Soviet leaders. The Soviet moving picture industry has long been a sore point. Between the Ukrainian Moving Picture Trust, and the Russian Moving Picture Trust, —both, of course, parts of the Soviet Union organization,— there is reigning a hostility which has now broken out in open scandal.

The Soviet's most famous movie of recent years, "The Warship Potemkin," a tale of a mutiny on a Czarist battleship based on an actual incident in the revolution of 1905, has been shown in many of the principal countries of the European, but is still unknown to the Ukraine, one of the most populous parts of the Soviet Union. The picture was one of the hits of the season in Germany, in spite of, or because of the hot controversy which arose over the question of its effect upon military discipline, and the many moves made to suppress it.

But because of the conflict between the Ukrainian and Russian movie organizations, the film has not even been shown in Sebastopol, the scene of its action. America is scheduled to receive the film in the near future. It is one of the very few Soviet films which do credit to the Russians' reputation or theatrical art.

lized government would be impossible. We should be like wild beasts, hiding from each other.

Professor William C. Ripley, of Harvard, wants big corporation, with their hundreds of thousands of millions of property, to tell the public exactly what they have, what they own, how much it is worth.

Professor Ripley, if he could make corporations tell all they know, could be a rich professor in a short time. Some stocks selling for a few dollars are actually worth forty times the market price. Of some stocks it is impossible to estimate the value. How could you estimate the wealth that Standard Oil owns below the ground in California, for instance, or how could you estimate the wealth in such a brain as that of Henry Ford?

Net earnings of the Union Pacific Railway are up 33 per cent for July. Other railroads report equally pleasing figures.

The United States Government has found it possible to do for farmers, namely, to insure them profits by making the people pay more when necessary.

Perhaps the railroads will feel, if profits continue to increase, that they can afford to pay their workmen a little more. The railroad workers deserve it and need it.

Prince Chichibu, second son of the Emperor of Japan, amused himself and proved his prowess recently by climbing two great peaks in the Alps in one day—the Finsterarhorn and the Schreckhorn, 14,000 and 13,900 feet high. A guide went with him.

When a Japanese Mikado trains his boys in that fashion, you can imagine how the average non-royal Japanese is trained. It is a great nation and we are glad to be friendly with it.

Carolina College Will Not Operate During This Fall

Maxton, N. C., Aug. 27.—(AP) Carolina College, Methodist institution, will not be operated during the 1927-28 term but will open again in the fall of 1927, the board of trustees have announced in a recent statement.

At the regular annual meeting of the trustees of the college, says the statement, E. J. Green, president for the past four years, was authorized to arrange for the faculty, student body, and to complete all plans for the opening of the institution this fall.

Recently, without warning the board, Mr. Green resigned and an investigation, it was found he had made no plan for the opening of the college this fall.

The board of trustees secured another president, Dr. J. Allen Hunter, of Durham. He telegraphed his resignation a few days before he was to have assumed the reins of the institution.

Following this second resignation the executive committee of the college attempted to secure another president but it was found to be too late in the year to locate a man competent to fill the position. The board of trustees therefore have voted unanimously to postpone the opening of the school until the fall of next year. In the meantime trustees of the institution expect to secure a man who will not resign before he assumes active control of the institution.
