DRY AGENTS STAGE WHOLESALE RAIDS NEAR CHARLESTON

Officers Arrest Thirty Three Violators, Take 17 Still and 875 Gallons Liquor

Charleston, Sept. 6.—(AP)—33 alleged violators of the liquor laws and 17 stills, 34,400 gallons of beer, 865 gallons of whiskey and five automobiles were taken in a series of raids on the Hell Hole (strict of South Carolina Saturday night and Sunday by Federal agents.

Included among the men arrested were federal prohibition agents, state and local officers, rum runners, bootleggers and distillers. Officers from South Carolina, Georgia and Florida took part in the raid. Officers stated this morning that they expected to serve at least 29 additional warrants today on men engaged in manufacture and sale of liquor in the county. The raids will continue until Berkeley county is dry. Mr. M. O. Dunning, personal representative of General Andrews, said.

Included among the prisoners taken into custody by federal agents during their first 24 hours of operations were federal, state and local officers who are now facing charges of bribery for protecting rum runners and distillers or for conspiracy in violating the prohibition act by either selling or manufacturing liquor themselves. The region in which they have been operating in Berkeley county is sparsely settled and known as Hell Hole, a vast lowland of dense forest growth interspersed by black swamp. So extensive have been their operations that the law abiding citizens of Monck's Corner, the county seat of Berkeley, became alarmed at the desperadoes, who invested the outskirts of their city and plied over the country roads in transporting liquor.

They sent for coordinator Dunning of the South Eastern section and a conference in Charleston several months ago resulted in mapping out the wholesale raid plan. Dozens of undercover men in the employ of Mr. Dunning were sent to the Hell Hole region to observe liquor traffic operations and to set traps for the ring leaders. As soon as the traps were laid, warrants were issued and the trigger was sprung Saturday night.

The coup was engineered by Coordinator Dunning of the South Eastern Division, who with dozens of prohibition agents swooped down on the Charleston and Berkeley county flats without firing a shot.

Yesterday churches in the vicinity offered up thanksgiving at their services where news of the cleaning out of the illicit liquor traffic spread.

Today the prohibition agents and the state and local officers caught in the net will face charges of bribery, protection of rum runners, and conspiracy to violate the prohibition act. Officers said early today that at least 20 additional warrants would be served on men engaged in the manufacture and sale of liquor in this section. The raid will continue until Berkeley County is dry, Mr. Dunning said.

A cordial invitation has been extended to people throughout the county to attend these services.

STAGE ALL SET FOR OPENING OF TOBACCO MARKET

Early Arrival of "Week" Indicates Largest Opening Sale; Cour Sets of Buyers Be in Action

With the local tobacco warehouses a bee hive of activity today, the finishing touches are being applied to arrangements for the opening of the tobacco market here at nine o'clock tomorrow morning. For more than forty-eight hours tobacco to be offered on tomorrow's sales has been coming into the city and indications are that tomorrow will set a new record for the number of pounds on the opening day. With eight large warehouses and increased redrying facilities, tobaccoists are expecting to eclipse all former seasons in the history of the market. Those who visit the market tomorrow will see four regular sets of buyers in action on the local market for the first time and this added feature alone assures earlier sales each day, hence a better market.

Early tomorrow morning all board of trade officials, buyers, and others connected with the industry, will gather at the warehouse of Johnston-McKowan and Company, where at nine o'clock, after prayer by R. C. Flanagan, of this city, and brief words by officials, the voice of the auctioneer will cry the first bid of the season. Immediately afterwards the other three sets of buyers, will go to Gorman's, Joyner's and the Star warehouses where, the other three sales will begin and the season will be under way in earnest.

Each year the Greenville Tobacco Market serves a wider territory, and indications today are that the largest crowd ever attending an opening sale, will be present here.

TODAY

(Copyright 1926)
Good, Bad, Dull, Queer.
Everything Is in the News.
A Wise Child.
A Dead Hand.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

How would you divide news? good and bad, interesting and dull, trifling and serious, commonplace and queer, or how?

At Geneva the World Court is planning to swallow Uncle Sam, including his reservations. Prince Arfa Ed Dowlen of Persia told the World Court conference, "If a thing is worth while, don't fear to do it."

Uncle Sam will be taken in, if he is fool enough to go.

That is dull news.

The King of England has changed his mind and has his trousers pressed with the creases running up and down the front. For years, like his father, King Edward, he wore trousers creased at the side.

He has a fierce dragon with red eyes tattooed on his arm, a reminder of the days when he was a sailor, with an older brother and didn't expect to be king.

Tattooing is now fashionable in London.

That's important news.

Mussolini means to bring Italian currency back to life and if possible to par. He 'defaites' Italian currency, a painful financial process that involves redeeming and retiring hundreds of millions of paper lire a year.

It will mean business depression, 500,000 or 1,000,000 men out of work. That is interesting news, and proves again that nobody really understands finance.

A man working, producing wealth is like a hen laying eggs. If a hen expert had a plan to keep a million hens from laying, you wouldn't think much of him.

But, Mussolini's plan may be the right plan. At least he isn't afraid to try it. And courage is the thing after a disaster.

Germany tells the Allies she will pay off 300,000,000 extra gold marks next year, thus saving 200,000,000 gold marks on later payments. That is serious news. It indicates that German prosperity is real. It isn't always the winner of a war that comes out ahead.

With the aid of science any child may know its own father. A high court in Vienna decides that blood resemblance between the father and child shown under the microscope is absolute proof and compels the man to support the mother of the child.

That is queer news.

Napoleon made it illegal for a woman to try to prove an illegitimate child's paternity. He needed soldiers and wanted to encourage childbirth by making it easy for the fathers.

Very respectable newspapers are agitated because young La Follette, with the consent and approval of voters, fills the senate seat and carries on the work of his father.

They talk about 'Mort Main' in Wisconsin, wag their heavy heads, and worry about the 'dead hand of the elder La Follette,' ruling through his son.

They don't say anything about 'Mort Main' when Theodore Roosevelt, the second, runs for Governor of New York and is beaten by Al Smith through the sidewalks of New York.

They do not wag their heavy heads in grief because the heir to millions exercises the power of inherited money, which includes more than one vote in the senate.

'La Follette isn't ruling by any dead hand. When he was alive he kicked Plutocratic dishonesty. Plutocracy felt the kicks, and whined, through its paid, official whiners.

A young man arrested for robbing the house of Cardinal Dougherty of cash and bonds told the police:

"I didn't dare take the Cardinal's diamond studded gold cross worth $25,000. I was afraid it might fix me. I also left a gold cup, something told me they used

CLOUDBURST WIPES OUT AUSTRIAN TOWN

Vienna, Sept. 6.—(INS)—A cloudburst lasting only an hour has almost wiped out the town of Velden, in the Austria, Capathians. In a few minutes the rain swelled the small rivers which flowed through the town and inundated all the houses and stores. Scores of animals were drowned as the water rushed down the mountains.

In the neighboring village of Chorán, the forceful water swept through the little cemetery washing out all the graves and exposing the coffins.

FORTY STATE WAR EXISTS IN SPAIN

London, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A state of war exists throughout Spain. ## Big Air Exhibition to Aid War Widows

Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., Sept. 6.—(INS)—One of the most notable exhibitions in the annals of American aviation will be staged here September 18 by the First Pursuit Group for the benefit of the Army Relief Association.

The association supports the widows and children of officers killed in the line of duty. It has been the custom of one of the air service posts, annually to hold a show to raise funds for this cause and it is the turn of the Selfridge men this year.

"I expect a total of 75 craft on the field," says Major Thomas G. Lamphier, post commandant. "Besides army planes from a half dozen posts, I am inviting the Detroit commercial aircraft manufacturers to bring out their machines, for which hangar space will be made available.

"If it is desired we will make room on the programs for these commercial machines to be flown I am also asking the manufacturers of aircraft motors to place their engines on exhibition.

"The flying programme itself will be the best I and my men are capable of presenting and we have some new combat maneuvers that are acknowledged to be about the most intricate ever attempted by an American fighting unit.

"I am asking the commandant of Scott Field, at Belleville, Ill., to send up the latest airship they have, the T. C. 2, a semi-rigid blimp. We will have sky writing and smoke screen craft. There also will be an abundance of parachute jumping.

Sharpe Declares Dunning Deserves Congratulations

"Better than I could ever do, he added, when told that the southern co-ordinator had gathered the 100 men to assist him in the raid.

Many Young People Trampled to Death in Frenzied Struggle to Escape From Improvised Theatre

Limerick Island, Sept. 6.—(AP)—40 persons are dead and ten seriously injured as the result of a fire which destroyed an improvised motion picture theatre in a wooden building at Drum Colliery near here.

A majority of the victims were young people. The film showing was being given in an up stairs hall. It is alleged that there was no protective screen around the projecting apparatus and when this caught fire it caused a partial blocking of the door which was the only means of exit. Many persons were trampled in the frenzied struggle to escape while others were caught in the blazing hall and burned to death.

The disaster occurred last night. After the outbreak the flames spread rapidly and it was not more than ten minutes before a portion of the floor collapsed, carrying with it a number of girls who failed to reach the exit. Some of the audience escaped by climbing through a skylight and one girl jumped from the roof.

Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Dispatches received here say 49 persons were burned to death, 7 seriously injured and many others slightly injured in the motion picture disaster at Drum Colliery.

The affair was given to the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

PLAY SAFE
 The wise farmer who sends his tobacco to market at night by animal drawn vehicles will equip such vehicles with lights as a protection to his team and driver as well as the automobile driver. An unlighted vehicle at night is indeed a danger to everyone on the road and only by lighting such vehicles can the danger be removed. It is to be hoped that the farmers will adopt the practice of lighting their wagons when they send them out at night.

"YOURS IF YOU COME"
 Visitors to the Greenville tobacco market at tomorrow's opening and throughout the fall will be assured that Greenville is living up to its slogan of "Our Greenville, Yours If You Come." A cordial welcome awaits the visitors to this city and business houses as well as tobacco interests extend an invitation to the visitors to make themselves at home here. With the prospects of one of the greatest seasons in history ahead, local establishments have filled their shelves with stocks of goods that will appeal to the thousands who will do their shopping here, and every courtesy and attention is assured the visitors. Shoppers will find here the things they need for the whole family and in addition to the goods they will receive "service with a smile." Growers who want the most for their crops, and at the same time desire the best market place to supply their family needs should SELL THEIR TOBACCO AND DO THEIR TRADING IN GREENVILLE.

LEAVE YOUR AUTO HOME
 Again we urge citizens of Greenville to leave their automobiles at home tomorrow in order that there may be parking space about our city for the cars of the thousands of visitors who will attend the opening of the tobacco market here. At best our streets are not wide enough to handle the traffic and unless citizens cooperate tomorrow by using their cars as little as possible, we cannot hope to avoid serious traffic congestion.

PRESS COMMENT
 FOR SAFER HIGHWAYS
 Our roads are better located and better engineered than I have seen in any of the states from Carolina to Canada, and in that respect I believe that we lead the world. But Pennsylvania and New York set us an example in safety brought about by good laws, rigidly enforced by capable police, which we can follow to great benefit. A Pennsylvania man tells me that it is cheaper to hire police than to pay hospital and funeral bills, and a New York man says police are also cheaper than automobile repair bills. North Carolina is so keen in seeing that a bad road is too great an expense to tolerate that I have hopes that our state will also see that reckless and lawless driving is also too expensive.

 A highway police for North Carolina will be not only a great step forward in making our highways safe, but it will next to the good roads themselves, be the greatest money saver of any new thing recently established, for state police will cut down by hundreds of thousands of dollars the present great outlay for funeral bills, hospital bills, and repair bills, a thing few have thought about. Automobile accidents form one of the big costs of automobile operation. A good state police system will cut that cost by hundreds of thousands of dollars besides saving many lives and thousands of serious injuries.
 I am confident we have the best system of roads in the Union. But I fear we have one of the worst systems of operating them. And after seeing the methods followed in Pennsylvania and New York, I can imagine no reason why in our state we should tolerate our present inefficient, murderous system any longer. The next legislature ought to provide a really efficient state police, one that will enforce good road laws, stop the slaughter on the roads and the destruction of cars, and make travel more of a pleasure and less of a danger and a dread.—The Pilot.

Fight on Evolution and Blues Again in North Carolina

Raleigh, Sept. 6.—(INS)—While North Carolina's "monkey" fight never quite reached the size of Tennessee's, its going to be done all over again. The evolutionist-fundamentalist controversy will break its fury on the 1927 Legislature, which will convene in January.

That is, unless what political prognosticators miss their guess. These wise guys say that certain solons are uniting for the expressed purpose of bringing the evolution question to the fore again.

D. Scott Poole, better known as "The Gentleman from Polk," has announced his intention of re-introducing his measure, which would bar the teaching of evolution in North Carolina public schools. The bill was defeated in the last Legislature.

Fundamentalists just now are rather stirred up over the invasion of the Association Opposed to the Blue Laws into the Old North State.

The A. O. B. L. is mobilizing forces in North Carolina for one of the most determined legal battles in court records, to rid the State of laws prohibiting Sunday amusements and baseball. The association also will fight enactment of any laws tending to unite the State and Church, and laws establishing censorship of art, literature or theatrical entertainments.

According to Linn A. E. Gale, secretary and treasurer of the A. O. B. L., who is in North Carolina in the interest of the campaign, a "last" game of baseball will be played at Asheville, the popular summer resort, in the next few weeks.

"So cordial and friendly has been the reception we have generally received in North Carolina," Gale said, "we need neither the zeal of Peter the Hermit nor the courage of Richard the Lion-Hearted; rather, in North Carolina, we have found less antagonism and more agreement than in many other states."

Denying press reports that the test baseball game had been called off here, Gale declared: "The fight will not be abandoned in any state; it will go on until the laws, legalized intolerance and legislative bigotry are no more in the United States."

Daily News Letter

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population.

Raleigh, Sept. 6.—(INS)—Is the old South, writhing in fearful self-pity over its embittered sectionalism, facing a renaissance in letters.

The Little Theatre movement, the spread overnight of the Sunday literary page and supplement in Southern newspapers, the widespread establishment of bookshops over the South, and publishing houses at its leading universities, and a new interest in the negro, his life, destiny, social and ethnic traits are the ground on which he places this contention.

A pitiful and unjustified faith in the South's literary patriotism and the fact that Southerners are not a reading people, are the primary reasons for the failure of countless southern magazines which have been launched with high hopes in the past quarter of a century, in Henderson's opinion.

These periodicals failed, he declared, because they were built around the idea that the South would support a magazine merely because it was Southern and of Southern literature—literature of and about the South, and produced by Southerners—was sufficient to virilize and universal to float a magazine which by reason of fierce competition must constantly maintain a circulation.

However, despite all this, Henderson sees a ray of hope on the horizon. The South is contributing its share to letters today, and Henderson gave this galaxy of stars to substantiate his contention: Wilbur Daniel Steele, Ellen Glasgow, Willa Cather, Mary Johnston, Walter Hines Page, Edwin Alderman, William P. Trent, James Brander Matthews, H. L. Menckon, Gerald W. Johnson, James Branch Cabell, William Edward Dodd, John Spencer Bassett, Ulrich Bonnell Phillips, DuBose Heyward, Hervey Allen, Julia Peterkin, William Alexander Percy, John Crowe Ransom, John V. A. Weaver, Nell Battle Lewis and others.

John Hopkins, 80-year-old Confederate veteran of Madison, N. C., announces that he intends to file a claim for a part of the $300,000.00 Mark Hopkins estate, for which 200 North Carolina heirs have started court action to obtain a redistribution of the vast California land holdings.

Hopkins bases his claim on the fact that a great uncle of his by the name of Hopkins once stole a horse, left the country and was never heard from since. He does not know the Christian name of the uncle.

According to this Hopkins, Mark Hopkins was credited in newspaper reports with stealing a horse before he left Madison back in 1850. In view of this, John Hopkins believes his uncle and Mark Hopkins were one and the same man.

A memorial to the founders of aviation—Wilbur and Orville Wright—who made their first successful attempt at flying on the North Carolina coast in 1903, will be sought in the next session of Congress.

Representative Lindsay Warren, of North Carolina, already has announced his intention of asking for an appropriation of $100,000 to erect a memorial in Dare County.

A movement is now under way in Dare County to hold a gigantic celebration at Kill Devil Hill in 1928 to mark the 25th anniversary of the first airplane flight.

State Prison Has Efficient System of Spreading News

Raleigh, Sept. 6.—(AP)—"That man over there," exclaimed Geo. Ross Pou, Superintendent of the State Prison, "knows more about what's going on inside this prison than the clerk who stays in my office every day."

Mr. Pou was referring to a laborer unmistakably fitted out in stripes, at work in the prison concrete culvert factory. The man didn't look like any modern Socrates or strayed Houdini, and the prison superintendent's auditors were frank in expressing their doubt.

"Oh, not just him, any of them," answered Mr. Pou. "Then he proceeded to explain the prison 'grapevine' news system.

"It's not only here, but in any prison in the country. Put a man in a dungeon, in solitary confinement, anywhere, and he'll know everything that goes on if he can read and write and sometimes if he can't."

"I'm not saying they'll tell you all about it if you ask them, but they know it just the same. "Not so long ago we had to put a new-comer into the prison into solitary confinement. He did not know the system then, but he soon got on to it, and later he told me about it."

"From his story he hadn't been in his cell but a few minutes before he heard something whizz by the outside grating. In a few seconds it came whizzing back. Then something else shot by in front of his cell. He became curious and watched closely. It was not long before a missile had dropped in front of his barred door.

"He drew it through the bars and found it to be a note, rolled inside of the cardboard core that comes inside the roll of paper placed in every cell. A length of cloth, torn from a piece of bed clothing was tied to the paper core."

"The message hadn't been in his possession long when he heard a voice in another cell telling him to pass it along, as it wasn't for him. As there is no way to communicate between cells except by way of the outside corridor, the voice gave him directions for sending it along."

"He followed the directions. Grasped the cord by the end, extended his arm through the grating, twirled the core at the end until it gained good speed and then released it in the direction of the voice. Soon it came back for the new-comer's contribution to the day's news, and it was not long before every occupant of the cell row knew who he was and all about him."

"He had become a part of the grape vine news system. "Not's and all manner of information are passed about by this method when the men can't get together and talk," Mr. Pou declared. "One finds out something, or a new man comes in, and soon they all know about it."

"How do they get writing materials and other stuff for their grapevine?" someone asked.

"You can't keep stuff from a prisoner," Mr. Pou laughed, "there's no telling how they get it, but they do, and all having a common cause they usually start immediately to share anything they get with as many more fellow prisoners as possible."

There's real friendship among the inmates of the state's prison, Mr. Pou declared, and the observer noted that he did not regard the grapevine news system as a menace to the prison welfare, or perhaps just as he said, "you can't keep them from it, so why worry about trying?"

LONDON FASHION NOTES

London, Sept. 6.—(INS)—Meet the "spattee." It is the latest fashion in footwear and at present the most serious rival to the Russian boot, last year's feminine footwear craze here.

Whereas the Russian boot is of leather, has a tendency to crease at the ankle, and worst of all, will destroy the outline of a shapey ankle, the spattee is woolen, fits close around the calf and has an elegant turn over like a man's golfing stocking.

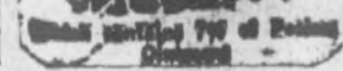

At the other extremity it is finished like a spat and caught under the instep with a strap. The effect of the spattee as seen at a recent mannequin parade here was as if the wearer had adopted the American fashion of rolling her stocking below the knee, leaving that joint exposed. There are beige spattees with brown dice like dots, brown ones relieved with dashes of orange, gray and white flecked ones with large lozenge shaped markings in blue, as well as less striking examples in plain blues and grays and beige shades.

Many American women of fashion will be taking back the wrist muff to the States this year. The wrist muff is one of the best sellers of fashionable London and Paris at the present time, and is enjoying quite a vogue.

Borger, Tex., "Worst Town On Earth," Starts Move to Become Sober City

Amarillo, Texas, Sept. 4.—(INS)—Borger, 'Booger Town,' the wildest, wooliest, wickedest city in the New Texas Panhandle oil fields, is cleaning up.

Tired of its reputation as 'the worst town on earth,' the six months old oil boom city is launching a drive to rid itself of the gamblers, bootleggers, hi-jackers, oil field women and other characters responsible for the weird publicity, and make a sober city of itself.

Texas rangers, Hutchinson and Potter county sheriff's forces, the two-gun police force of the town and the better element of the Borger citizenry, now considerably in the majority, are aiding in the drive.

Since the drive started, literally hundreds of undesirables have emigrated from Borger Town, to settle in other boom camps in the great oil field, or to leave the section entirely.

Oil field trucks, a posse of heavily armed officers and citizens and a whole corps of Borger business men were used in one recent foray in which more than 100 women were forcibly seized, placed on the trucks and deported from the city.

More than 500 women alone have been unceremoniously removed from the city since the clean up started. It is estimated. The reform move also has worked inroads on the flourishing bootlegging business, while the gambling profession decidedly isn't what it used to be, the remaining professors of chance in the town admit sadly.

As the campaign proceeds, the wide open, blood red reputation of Borger Town is fading to a pale pink, hardly a ghost of its former lurid glory.

While it lasted there was plenty of excitement for the sensation seeker in Borger Town. All the sweepings of Crawford, Ranger, Smackover, Powell, half a score other former wild and woolly oil towns were there to help things along.

It was possible to buy any species of liquor, particularly the savage varieties. Corn whiskey, 'choc' beer and 'pake' (jamaica ginger) were the favorites in the hard refreshment line, most of the supply being made right in the town or in the adjacent country. Although any form of gambling with cards is strictly forbidden in Texas, the Borger Town visitor never was troubled in his search for poker or monte excitement, provided of course he had the necessary cash to make himself interesting.

Crownwell Inn, Smackover Sal, 'Dad' and 'Ma' Murphy, the dance hall habitués, and red ladies of virtually every oil camp in America were among those present.

The town was—and is for that matter—policed by two gun men with unholy reputations for being quick on the trigger, hired by the townsite company and instructed to 'keep 'em oil-field-good.'

Oil-field is about all that could be expected but quite some distance from good, by the way. There was no jail, no water, no chamber of commerce, no churches, no minister, no paving, 'no nothing.'

The townsite situation alone was a problem calling almost for international diplomatic methods. Borger is the oldest town. Hard against it on the south is Isom, an entirely separate town although the two business sections are warring, while equally close on the north are Dixon Creek, Whittenberg and Phillips, also separate towns.

Each town had—and has — its constables, 'law force' and peace department—all—separate — and for a time this spring it appeared that a delightful war would break out any moment from the custom of the constabulary of one town of arresting the officers from the next town when they happened over the line—for carrying a gun, impersonating an officer or some similar crime.

The three interior towns, Borger, Dixon Creek and Whittenberg all were laid out in rapid succession by different townsite promotion companies, so close together mainly because the site is the heart of the field and land could be obtained there.

Water is a refreshing drink. But it's too expensive—Durham Sun.

Making a fool out of someone is the simplest thing on earth. And that someone is you.—Danville Bee.
