FARM EXHIBITS ARE FEATURED AT PITT FAIR

Showing of Farm, Home and Schools Attract Considerable Interest From Hundreds Visiting Fair Grounds Daily

The third day of the Pitt County Fair got under way at the usual hour this morning. Despite the prospect of inclement weather, indications were that attendance would be as great if not greater than the two preceding days.

The attraction this year is better than it ever has been before. Considerable favorable comment has been received by fair officials regarding the extensiveness of the exhibits. The resources, and possibilities of Pitt county are set forth upon a greater scale than ever before. Particularly is this so in the case of agricultural exhibits. Product of the home and farm are by far superior to anything exhibited in North Carolina during the present year.

In the words of J. E. Fletcher of State College and the North Carolina Extension Service, who acted as judge of the farm exhibits, "The exhibits of Pitt county fair are by far the best in the state." And they were not idle words. Mr. Fletcher has acted as judge of agricultural exhibits at virtually all county fairs in North Carolina this year, and is considered an authority upon such matters.

A special building was constructed during the summer to house the agricultural offerings this year. It is by far one of the most popular places on the fair grounds. This department, in connection with the livestock department, is under the direction of J. L. Wooten and County Farm Demonstration Agent Reeves.

While the agricultural department is one of the outstanding attractions of the fair, it is not the whole fair by any means. There are the school and home demonstration departments. These departments cover an entire building by themselves. Nine county schools are represented in general exhibits, while many other institutions show their progress through individual offerings of a most superior nature.

The Home Department, setting forth what is being accomplished by club girls throughout the various parts of the county, is under the supervision of Miss Bertha Lee Ferguson, demonstration agent. Miss Ferguson has provided an unusual array of suggestions to the thrifty housewife, especially the farm housewife, showing the various ways by which farm life may be modernized and simplified.

School exhibits, under the direction of the county school officials, are not only a credit to the institutions, but also a credit to the great section which they represent. They cover many branches of school work and are convincing reminders that small town schools and consolidated schools are making rapid strides in many departments of work.

There are hogs and hogs in Pitt county, but some of the finest specimens ever exhibited at this fair are here this year. Mr. Hog is represented in all his glory. From little hog to big hog, they are all there. And they are furnishing a brand of music extremely different from that rendered by the various kinds of musical devices along the midway. The grunts of Pitt county pig, however is a long way more melodious to the throngs visiting the fair daily than are the sounds emanating from other sources. These grunts represent something new to the county farmer—they represent money.

The racing card each day is one of the features of the fair. Some of the fastest horses in the country may be seen in action from day to day. A balloon ascension, several free acts and an elaborate fireworks program at night have added much to the pleasure of throngs along the midway.

Never has there been such a display of farm commodities, garden and orchard crops as well as home economics which has

Happiest Homes Where Husband Wipes Dishes

Atlantic City, Oct. 14, (AP)—The happiest homes in America are manned by husbands, who occasionally wipe dishes, said Mrs. Cecil G. Harvey, home service director for the Westchester Lighting Company, Yonkers, N. Y., in an address today before the American Gas Association.

I make this statement in refutation of the accusation that dish-wiping now and then tends to degrade or cultivate an inferiority complex in married men," she explained. "The most companionable and efficiently-equipped homes in the land have been made so by men who know home-living conditions by personal experience, and who insist that their homes be as efficiently operated as their offices."

No more alarming combination could be imagined than a dominating personality driving a five-ton truck.

Treasury Secretary Declares There Will Be No Difficulty So Far As Credit is Concerned

Washington, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Solution of the cotton price problem is believed by Secretary Mellon to be assured in the aggressive attitude of southern business leaders.

It was reiterated at the treasury today that there will be no difficulty so far as credit is concerned for the orderly marketing of the record crop.

Federal Reserve banks in the south were said to be in excellent condition and the intermediate credit banks were reported ready to meet demands.

Warehouse, and other storage facilities and other requirements for marketing are the immediate demand and in this respect the secretary understands the conditions are much better than in 1921.

Astronomers Shining Up Their Lenses to Study Mars

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(INS)—Again the bearded savants of astronomy are shining up their lenses with channels in renewed attempts to solve the age-old question 'Is Mars inhabited?'

Ever since Galileo constructed the first rudimentary form of telescopes, astronomers have trained the glasses upon our nearest celestial neighbor in an effort to decipher the peculiar markings of the brilliant 'magenta-colored planet. Mars approaches the earth within the comparatively short astronomical distance of 42,600,000 miles on October 27, when reflecting telescopes, massive radio receiving stations, and spectrometers will be trained upon the war planet. This is the closest it will come to the earth this year, although it was even 7,900,000 miles nearer the last year.

Life upon Mars has been a conjecture for years. Scientists with the aid of spectrometers, have discovered the nature of gases surrounding the planet, the density in volume, and the relative temperatures.

The great news has come—millions of girls will now dream about something else. The Prince of Wales' wife has been selected. She is the Infanta Beatrice, daughter of the Spanish King and Noto, a distant cousin of the Prince, her mother being King George's first cousin.

A high-spirited young American woman, told of the coming royal marriage, explained: "What! That homely thing? But that was jealousy. She was one of many young Americans that had dreamed dreams and seen visions, with the Prince in the middle of each.

We used to wonder at Chinese Tong, their murderous feuds, their unwillingness to enter the courts their Chinese home made 'justice,' in this land.

Now the Chinese wonder at us, our bootleggers—Chicago holding the championship—show how a Tong should be run, for efficiency.

In the latest alcoholic Tong exploit there figured two machine guns, public streets swept with bullets two killed, three wounded. More killing will come within a week, the police say, for the O'Banion gang having lost two men, will demand double blood pay.

While the bootleg Tong fight it out police cars dash through the streets, catching nobody. No fault of the police. They cannot guess what bootlegger is preparing his machine gun for his enemies.

The bootlegger was laid down directly in front of the Holy Name Cathedral, and close to the home of Mr. Rockefeller's daughter—nothing jacking in romance or audacity.

Columbus Day is over, and you could probably count on your fingers those in your circle that thought as much as two minutes about Columbus.

His achievement can be summed up in few words: 'He did not believe those that said it could not be done.'

He ran the usual course, rendered service to the world was put in jail for his pains, and as much as possible of the credit was taken by Isabella and others that deserved NO credit. This continent was not even named for its discoverer.

Yes others came here before Columbus, but that means nothing. A steam engine was exhibited more than two thousand years ago in the Serapion at Alexandria. That does not hurt the inventors that makes the practical success.

Columbus was followed by practical success. Look at Chicago, Seattle, New York, Boston, San Diego, and respect Columbus.

In the best known Japanese suicide the gentleman opening the walls of his abdomen, with a sharp knife, disembowels himself, showing no sign of pain. That takes courage.

Citich Gitawaza, of Tokio, disappointed in love, tried a new way, and ate himself to death. With his hard-hearted one across the table from him he deliberately stuffed himself with rice, curry, eggs, pouring down whiskey and a worse drink sake. Soon he was unconscious and in a few hours, died.

Let us remember, for our good, that Mr. Gitawaza did in a few hours, what nine-tenths of us do in about half a normal lifetime. Too much eating or wrong eating or both kill the great majority. Senator Copeland, who is also a doctor, says 'half of what we eat keeps us alive, the other half keeps the doctors alive.'

ADOPT PLAN FOR MEETING COTTON PRICE EMERGENCY

Memphis Conference Says Retirement of 4,000,000 Bales of Present Crop Only Salvation

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A plan for meeting the cotton price emergency was adopted here early today by the conference of representatives from cotton growing states, which then adjourned leaving the execution of the program to advisory council and general committees in each state.

Action of the conference, which was made up of 500 bankers, merchants, and planters of the South, was embodied in resolutions which were formulated after many hours of deliberation and spirited debate. The approved plan calls for the retirement of 4,000,000 bales of the current crop as the only practical means of handling this year's surplus. This withdrawal must be accompanied by a 'reasonable reduction' in the crop for 1927, the conference declared.

Co-operative marketing associations were called upon to form long time pools for the growers who desire to withdraw their cotton from the market.

Financial institutions, both governmental and private, were invited to use every legitimate means in co-operation with cotton producers to effect a reduction next year of 25 per cent in acreage.

The convention subscribed a fund of approximately $8,000 to pay the cost of preliminary work in setting the withdrawal movement into action and for organizing the credit resources of the South for handling the surplus cotton. Declining to take positive action toward legislative enactment to insure reduced production, the conference referred this matter to the governors of the various states.

For complete execution of the plan an executive committee was named to follow up the movement. It was composed of Dr. Tait Butler of Memphis, chairman; B. W. Kilgore, of Raleigh, and J. W. Fox, of Mississippi.

Slight Increase In Use of Cotton

WASTE IN INDUSTRY COSTS U. S. BILLIONS

San Francisco, Oct. 14.—(INS)—American industry wastes, almost thirty billion dollars a year through faulty production according to Ray M. Hudson, chief of the division of simplified practice of the United States Department of Commerce, who spoke here recently at a meeting of the San Francisco Foreign Trade Club.

"All of this waste is not avoidable," Hudson said, "but experience has shown that much of it can be reduced on the part of the manufacturer by more economical manufacture, through less idle equipment and on the part of the distributor through increased turnover and less overhead expense."

The six chief industries of the United States, show the following percentages of waste in production, according to Hudson: Metal trades, 29 per cent; boot and shoe manufacturing, 41 per cent; textile manufacturing, 49 per cent; building, 53 per cent; printing, 58 per cent; and men's clothing, 64 per cent.

NORTH CAROLINA FINDS NEW WAYS PAY BEST

"Weakness of the Aristocratic Tradition" is Put Forward to Explain the State's Lead Over Her Neighbors in Industrial Development

(New York Times)

North Carolina, with the idea of presenting a statistical summary of his State's growth, sat himself down to a personal of United States Government reports, and this is the statement he gave out: "North Carolina suffered actual loss for a generation from the paralysis produced by the wiping out of values consequent upon the Civil War. A few comparative figures will show the rapidity of economic recovery, once it began."

In 1900 the true value of property in the State was $682,000,000; in 1924 it had risen to $4,500,000,000.

In 1900 the total value of manufactures was $85,000,000; in 1923 census figures placed it at $950,000,000.

In 1900 crop values were $65,000,000; in 1923 they were $435,000,000.

Bank resources, less than $15,000,000 in 1900, are $500,000,000 today.

In 1900 the State was spending one million a year on its public schools; in 1924-25 the total school expenditures exceeded $33,000,000.

Three months ago Herbert Hoover made this statement in Washington: "North Carolina has made a greater economic advance in every phase of life in the last fifteen years than any other State in the Union."

Reasons for the Boom

Now, to anybody who has read of this advance or who has observed it at first hand the question occurs: Why? Why should North Carolina have gone ahead so many fields of human endeavor more rapidly than other States in the South?

There are various answers. The ardent Tar Heel comes forward immediately with the story of soil and climate. He, Governor McLean again, "North Carolina has probably a greater range of soil, climate and a tide than any other American State. Its geography includes a wonderful system of inland sounds and tidal rivers, a great coastal plain, a Piedmont plateau and a remarkable mountain region. In these limits can be grown successfully every crop known to the United States except those which are subtropical. The climate generally is mild. Winter and Summer such and each a year than any other Southern States. And to the doubter, if doubter there be, will be cited the volume page trees on the coast to the firs of the interior, or the Di-tural resources are of infinite variety. They are being developed more rapidly as the good roads ever official it is who has published the data.

Now, this sounds well, and not long ago the Governor of, there is something in it, but it is not altogether satisfying as an explanation of the State's amazing progress. In fact, the lack of certain valuable natural advantages would seem to make North Carolina's forward march all the more astonishing. Comparatively speaking, the State's mineral wealth is practically negligible. It has no coal and no iron worth mentioning. And it lacks another resource which one might think would be essential to the building of a great commerce—it has no first class port.

There is one explanation of North Carolina progress that has commended itself to many thoughtful observers. This has been called "the weakness of the aristocratic tradition." There are Bourbon; a plenty in North Carolina, but the Bourbon attitude has not been so dominant there as it has been in, say, Virginia. Nov, it can hardly be questioned that in some aspects of life the aristocratic tradition has its advantages. Probably its greater strength in Virginia accounts for the fact that Commonwealth has a more urbane and polished society than has North Carolina. That Virginia has, its more creditable achievements in literature are fairly convincing evidence.

But the present discussion is of progress in the more material and obvious sense of that word; and where that kind of progress is concerned, the aristocratic tradition is a handicap.

The Bourbon yields to modern ideas—but he yields twenty-five years after his neighbor with less "background" has embraced them and begun to turn to ideas that are still newer.

No Proletarian Gods

If North Carolina has declined to cringe herself by allegiance to tradition, some of her admirers say that, at the other end of the scale, she has shown no disposition to worship the proletarian gods. A man like Blessé of S. C. has never gained a considerable following in North Carolina. Indeed, the history of the State has been notably free from even attempts at control by men of that sort. By the absence of such leadership, or attempted leadership, the people may have lost in excitement but they have gained in comfort.

The Ku Klux Klan, which raised a storm in Georgia shortly after the World War, was able to stir hardly more than a ripple in North Carolina. The most heroic efforts were made to recruit a large membership there, but the Klan has never become an important factor.

Orators on patriotic occasions are ready enough to declare that the State's progress has been due to the rare courage, will and intelligence of the people, but it would be fanciful to assume that the mass of the population here is superior to the mass in a neighboring region. The truth is that until recently the percentage of illiterates was extremely high and is still much higher than it should be. It is a reasonable conjecture, however, that the people who represent potent public opinion—numbering, at a guess, 100,000 out of a total of 2,500,000—have a bent of mind which makes them more friendly to progress than is the corresponding class in other States nearby—enough more friendly to turn the balance when a decision has to be made between standing still and going ahead.

An eminent educator who has had dealings with educational boards and committees in the South said to a friend recently, "In other States I have had suggestions turned down not because of any real objection against them but simply because they involved a change from established practice. In North Carolina they might be adopted because of incomplete understanding or unfamiliarity with the subject but never, as far as I could see, because of their newness. The people there do not seem to have any prejudice against change merely because it is change."

Influence of the University

"Lucky in leadership" is the phrase with which more than one student of North Carolina's economic and educational progress have summoned up the cause thereof. About a quarter of a century ago there was launched in the State an educational crusade. Charles D. McIver, Edwin A. Alderman and others had been spreading the gospel of more liberal support for schools and colleges, and Charles B. Aycock, the Governor translated their zeal and their aspiration into political action. This far-seeing man, a statesman of whom now stands in Capital Square in Raleigh, made a wide breach in the ramparts of ignorance and indifference, and the attack was carried steadily on. The University of North Carolina under the successive administration of E. P. Venable, the late Edward K. Graham and H. W. Chase, has had an important part in the campaign of enlightenment, maintaining a close contact with the life of the State and exerting a powerful influence through its groups of alumni as well as through its publications, its extension teaching and the utterances of its Faculty.

If the State's advance is the consequence of fortunate education, and political leadership, the Legislatures of recent years are surely deserving of a good share of the credit. No Gladstones, Brights or Cobdens have arisen in Raleigh to startle the world; but year after year the votes of the two houses of the General Assembly on measures involving appropriations have apparently reflected a high degree of alertness and commonsense. Many faults of omission can be, and frequently are, charged against the legislators. As for example, when they squelched ballot reform and when they displayed a lack of enthusiasm for financing a survey of women in industry. But, relatively speaking—that is, "as Legislatures go"—their record is regarded as commendable.

In the early part of 1921 the legislators voted $50,000,000 in highway bonds and some six or eight millions for the expansion of State institutions; in 1923 and again, in 1925 they added to the bond issues.

In 1925 they promptly voted down the anti-evolution bill, and it is generally agreed that the anti-evolutionists who put thru their measure in Tennessee and Mississippi have given up hope of having their way in North Carolina. A Texas evangelist active in the anti-evolution campaign in the South said a year or so ago that North Carolina was "the only country—a descriptior which the greater proportion of the State's citizens seem quite satisfied to accept.

While the work went on in the field of education, alert men of business were building cotton factories, tobacco factories, furniture factories. How James B. Duke developed hitherto wasted water power on a vast scale is now a familiar story—a story that was told all over the world when he found two years ago the university which bears his name. EPISCOPALIANS TO MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO OLD ST. THOMAS CHURCH, BATH

November 2nd will be the date of the annual pilgrimage of Episcopals to St. Thomas' church, Bath. The Rt. Rev. T. C. Darst, D.D., and the Rt. Rev. J. B. Cheshire, D.D., will officiate with a number of other clergy taking part in the service. Bishop Cheshire will deliver the address. The service will be at 11 a. m., followed by a picnic lunch, visitors providing their own baskets. Immediately after lunch there will be a meeting of the Association for the Restoration and Preservation of St. Thomas church.

Last year about three hundred people made the pilgrimage to this ancient church despite the fact that construction work handicapped travel. It was an inspiring service and would have been a great day for all had not the winter interfered.

The vestry of this congregation was first organized in 1701. The parish was established by act of the "Assembly" in 1715. The present building was erected in 1734. The great number of tourists visiting Bath and the church has steadily grown the last few years until the number has reached far into the thousands. Episcopals far and near are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to worship in this old church.

RED CROSS TO CONDUCT CLASS IN NURSING

Classes in home nursing and first aid will be held in the schools of Greenville, Winterville and Farmville for the next three weeks under the auspices of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Miss Clark, a graduate nurse, of Wilmington, will conduct the classes. She has arrived and her first class was held in the Greenville schools today.

Although the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross is not before the public much, it is not a dead issue, and this work should be a great benefit in the schools, where it will be held.

BRYSON APPOINTED DELEGATE BITUMINUS COAL CONFERENCE

Raleigh, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Governor McLean has appointed H. J. Bryson, of the State Department of Conservation and Development as a delegate to represent North Carolina at the International Conference of Bituminous coal, to be held at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa., November 15 to 18.

MORRISON TO TOUR STATE IN BEHALF OF DEMOCRATS

Former Governor to Officially Enter the Campaign on Next Saturday

Raleigh, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Former Governor Cameron Morrison is slated to enter officially into the Democratic campaign in North Carolina next Saturday for a two-weeks speaking tour that will carry him from Smithfield in the East to Sylva, across the Blue Ridge. His entry brings the only two men living who have worn the title of governor in North Carolina. The former governor's itinerary carries him from east to west while that of Governor McLean, recently announced at State Democratic headquarters, here, brings him from west to east. Johnston county, once a Democratic banner province, but which leaned over to the G. O. P. in 1924 is the main citadel for the assault of both governors. Morrison will begin his verbal campaign and McLean will end his there. From Johnston the former governor will swing to Durham for a speech on Monday, October 18, continuing on successive days to Lenoirville-Spry, Yanceyville, Burlington, Sanford and concluding the week on Saturday, October 23, at Greensboro.

Then following a week-end at his home in Charlotte, he is scheduled to resume the trail at Albemarle, continuing to Monroe, Gastonia, Rutherfordton, Hendersonville and ending the second week at Sylva, in Jackson county, in the extreme western part of the state.

He will conclude his speaking tour on Monday at Newton, Catawba county, where he recently achieved fame for an extended litigation over highway locations.

Although upwards of half a hundred prominent Democrats have offered themselves as speakers, public demand has centered chiefly upon Governor McLean, former Governor Morrison, and then Max Gardner, generally regarded as the governor-elect. Consequently the problem has been to route the speakers most in demand to cover as much territory as possible.

Another interesting situation relative to the race of Senator Overman, who is opposed by Johnson W. Hayes, the Republican candidate, is that Robert R. Reynolds, of Asheville, is working actively for Senator Overman, who overwhelmed defeated him in the June primary.

The Republicans' leg by State chairman Brownlow Jackson and the senatorial candidate, Johnson Hayes, have been conducting a spirited campaign in the piedmont and Western part of the state since August and are claiming that the Democrats will lose considerable ground at the polls at the November election.

Then tentative itinerary announced for Governor McLean is as follows: October 16, Lexington;

October 18, Hickory; October 19, Burnsville; also on the 19th at Asheville before the Morris Plan Bankers' Association; October 20, Lenoir; October 21, Lincolnton; October 22, Albemarle; October 23, Asheville; October 25, Troy; October 26, Lillington; and Johnston county on Saturday, October 30, and Monday, November 1.

Pageant for Ghosts of 'Stone Age' Race

Casa Grande, Ariz., Oct. 18, (AP)—Ghosts from an unrecorded past will rise from their ashes to play on a thousand-year-old stage a pageant of their vanished race of the "stone age" near here next month.

It will be a story of Indian aborigines—the "Ho-Ho-kams" or those who have gone before; of the Seven Cities of Cibola, Indian communities whose golden streets and jeweled houses existed only in the imagination of a negro scout and an enthusiastic Franciscan; of the conquest of Coronado, the coming of the missionary and the final supremacy of General Kearney in 1846.

Covers 800 Years

The pageant covers a minimum period of 800 years. On the island of Crete in the Mediterranean sea there was found recently a 2,000 year old coin, bearing an intricate circular design. That design with the same number sequence has been found in only one other place in the world—on the walls of a 4 story Indian "apartment house" in the Casa Grande ruins, which has an estimated age of from 800 to 1,200 years.

The estimated 50,000 aborigines who once built their apartment houses in the Casa Grande valley—more persons than now inhabit the region—were a progressive lot. These unnamed Indians built irrigation canals, many sections of which went through solid rock. They raised cotton and corn and the probabilities are that they also raised beans, squash, pumpkins and gourds.

"Apartments" of 1000 B. C. "Compound A," the best preserved specimen of pre-historic Indian architecture, is estimated to be from 800 to 1,200 years old. A recent excavation uncovered a ruin which is believed to have been built in the year 100 B. C. Under a second compound further excavation has disclosed an Indian apartment which points to having been built in the year of 1,000 B. C.

Compound A spells defense throughout its construction. 15 hundred man loads of specially prepared mud—an earthy limestone—were required to raise the walls of the home and fort one foot. Walls were laid in monolithic course, from two to four feet thick. Each floor cleared the one below by seven feet. Of the four stories in compound A the first was filled in by the builder as a foundation. Trudging from 60 to 80 miles up the Gila river, the aborigines cut cedars and floated them down to reinforce their dwelling.

Some Pima Indians as well as Apaches, Navajos, Papagos and Hopis will take part in the pageant.

A majority of Christians in Syria believe the end of the world is coming and that the final battle will be fought in the plains of Esdracón, Damascus, in the year 1934.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Create Trial Courts Japanese Royalty

Tokyo, Oct. 13, (AP)—Japanese princes of the Imperial blood never have had occasion to sue each other in courts of law. Dispute has always been settled personally by the Emperor himself. The Privy Council, however, feeling that legal redress should be given such members who might wish it, has adopted new regulations governing such proceedings. Under the ruling any princely lawsuit would be tried by special judges appointed by the Imperial Household Department under Imperial sanction. Members of the Imperial Family would not be required personally to attend the trials, but need only be represented by their attorneys. The regulations also provide that no Prince or Princess may be summoned before a police court.

He stressed the veterans right to more consideration in view of the fact that the state furnished 127,000 Confederate soldiers and suffered a death toll of 49,375, more than double that of any other southern state.

The surest protection against failure is never to do anything.

THE WRONG WAY

Some of Mississippi's farmers petitioned the Memphis conference to urge the various state legislatures in the cotton growing sections of the country to enact legislation levying a special tax on all over a certain percentage of cultivated lands planted in cotton in the future. While the intent of this petition is good in that it is the desire of these farmers to see to it that next year's crop is considerably cut down the method they would adopt is wrong in principle and will not have the desired effect. While the farmers are urged to cut down their cotton acreage, this cannot be done by legislation. The work of the Memphis gathering is to adopt some plan by which a portion of the present crop can be kept off the market, and in this way to hold up the price on the marketed product.

Should the Memphis conference be successful to this extent then the balance is up to the farmers. So long as the supply is greater than the demand just so long will the price remain low and the farmer suffer. While federal aid in the way of credit extension is needed to bridge the present gap, legislation to govern the future production of cotton would accomplish no good ends.

The farmers salvation is in their own hands and if in the future he insists on increasing instead of reducing his cotton acreage then low prices that will surely follow will be the result of his action and no one else will be to blame and neither the state nor the federal government should be called upon for help.

NO MILLSTONES FOR HIS OWN NECK

(Memphis Commercial Appeal) It is announced from Washington that President Coolidge will take no part in the approaching congressional elections. He will not urge the choice of any particular members of Congress, neither will he issue a blanket appeal to the nation to return a Congress that will co-operate with him in the enactment of his policies. He will not even go into his own state of Massachusetts to plead for his former campaign manager, Senator Butler, who is engaged in a desperate struggle with former Senator David Walsh. "Silent Cal" is to remain just as silent as ever.

By the correspondents who tell us this bit of information it is stated that the motive governing the President in his desire to avoid the mistake made by the late President Wilson, when the latter pleaded for a Democratic Congress in 1918. But there are other considerations that appeal to the observers of political affairs throughout the country. As head of a nation, President Coolidge could hardly ask for the election of Congressman Vane after the orgy of reckless expenditures and corruption in the primary by which he was nominated for the United States Senate. Neither could the president, with any show of grace, appeal for the triumph of Senatorial nominee Frank Smith of Illinois, considering the position into which that nominee has thrust himself by the acceptance of corporation contributions. And it would be dangerous for even the chief executive of the nation to endorse Senator Watson of Indiana should the scandal threatened in that state break around the senator's head.

The silence that will in all probability be the course of the nation's executive will not appear from the facts above mentioned as being entirely caution. Obviously there must stand out therein a bit of selfishness. If President Coolidge were to urge those whom the country has branded as unworthy he would incur a heavy liability on his own part. And it is not the fashion in this day for even a President to fasten a series of millstones around his neck before plunging into the sea of popular favor.

Kissing Justice Smacks 10,000 Brides; He Lives

Cleveland, O., Oct. 14.—(INS)—Kissing may be unhygienic but before eschewing this delectable exercise altogether one should gaze analytically upon the records of Justice William Zou who today kissed his 10,000th woman here—legitimately—and lives to tell the tale.

The justice set a new record this week when his records showed that he had amalgamated 70,000 souls in wedlock. It naturally follows that the official has developed more than a modicum of technique in kissing during these 35,000 orials.

But by kissing only 10,000 out of 35,000 demure or otherwise brides who have faced him one wonders whether the justice was of a discriminating nature or just bashful in exercising the parson's prerogative.

EGAN SAYS AGE NO HINDRANCE PLAYING GOLF

Medford, Ore., Oct. 13, (AP)—Business men, whose one-a-week struggles on the golf course often bring about a dour disposition instead of the eagerly sought lower score, can take heart from a page of the colorful link story of H. Chandler Egan, Medford peer grower.

Despite his 43rd year, Egan, sailed forth last month to capture the California amateur title from a high class field of younger and more active players.

Champion 22 Years Ago—Twenty-two years ago, Egan waded through the pick of the country to win the amateur national championship. This feat was accomplished at Baltusrol—the difficult course where Geo. Von Elm of Los Angeles conquered Bobby Jones this year for the identical title. In the following year, 1905, Egan again stroked his way to the highest pinnacle amateur golfdom offers, while in 1909 he was a runner-up for the crown.

After that year, the Oregonian concluded operating a 170-acre ranch and engaging in outstanding competitive golf were enterprises that did not mix to advantage. So five years passed in which he played no championship golf. Then in 1915, he polished up his clubs and proceeded to annex the Pacific Northwest title. Ever so often he drops his work long enough to disprove the old adage, "Youth must be served."

His Game Better At 43—Egan believes that his own game is better today than it was at 21. That is because he learned it in the old school where three clubs—cleek, midiron and mashie—furnished most of the shots. And at the same time, he is equally certain that the business man who golfs can improve his game.

On one of the rare occasions in which he has given an interview, he said:

"You business men golfers, through you play but once a week, can go on improving just as long as you have your health. You can cut strokes from your game as you add years to your life. That is true whether you are 15 or 50."

Where Youth A Handicap—To accomplish what seems to many a hopeless task, Egan has this formula:

"Use your head."

After declaring that is the "trifling" for successful golf, he went on to say: "The youngsters who compete in championships almost invariably use a hook shot. No question but what that will get them maximum distance. But it is treacherous. It is not half as reliable for the average golfer as the faded shot. This is but one instance where headwork would enable young golfers who have all the requisites of champions to reach their objectives sooner.

Today golfers use the same machine-like swing on every shot. Their irons, from 1 to 16, will give them all the variations they require.

Old School Hardest—Twenty-five years ago we had only a cleek, midiron and mashie. The intermediate shots had to be made by the players own ingenuity in changing stance and take. This was a hard school, but I believe it had the compensation of developing more thorough shot-maker, than the general run today."

The Egan style of golf is marked by exceptional smoothness and balance while the swing tends more to the upright than to the flat. While not particularly outstanding in his work on the tee, Egan is a master at the full and three-quarter iron shots. His stance on all irons is considerable open. The possible handicap of a pair of slender wrists is overcome by their flexibility and an exceptionally fast downswing of which produces tremendous power. On the greens he is noted for his long and spectacular rain-bow putts.

Egan came into prominence in 1902 when he captured the intercollegiate championship for Harvard University. In addition to his national title, he four times was Western amateur champion.

He started the game at the age of 15 and by way of diversion designed a links on his father's cow-pasture in the suburb of Chicago. He since has designed the Lake Oswego and Waverly course in Portland.

Supplies Movies With Reptiles and Vermin

Hollywood, Oct. 14, (AP)—Lizards or snakes from the parched desert sands, pythons from the jungles of South America, and all manner of insects and vermin that infest the woods are not uncommon in the supporting cast of modern movies.

Jack Allman, reptile curator extraordinary, furnishes the usual or the unusual in these lines on short notice from the studio managers. Whether it be the elusive cockroach, needed to complete a scene in a lunch room, or a 30-foot alligator as a background for a jungle picture, Allman takes from his stock or makes use of his 30 years experience as a student of the wild to go out into the desert or mountains to get them.

List of "Props"—Included in the weird list of crawling or flying things which the curator supplies the studios are lice, graybacks, ants, wood-ticks, centipedes, bats, turtles, tarantulas, frogs, lizards, horned toads, grave robbers, Chinese dragons, Gila Monsters, iguanas and dozens of different kinds of snakes.

Allman's specialty, however, is rattlesnakes. When he receives a rush order from a studio for a certain type of rattler with a certain number of rattles, he looks over his troupe and if none fits the order, he proceeds to make one up.

Making Up a Rattler—For instance, a studio manager ordered a thirteen-rattled rattler. It was needed in a picture built around the so-called unlucky number 13. The nearest Allman could come to, it was a seven-rattler. So he got out his supply of extra rattles and soaked them in warm water to soften them. After the seventh rattle on the snake's tail had likewise been softened, he slipped on the extra six rattles and delivered the thirteen-rattler on time.

In case the deserts or mountains of California do not provide the kind of specimens wanted, Allman gets them from the zoo, or from importers.

Murderess Does Not Believe State Will Take Her Life

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 14, (INS)—"I don't believe they will electrocute a woman."

Although she has been convicted and sentenced to die for her implication in the murder of her husband, Mrs. Bertha Hall, middle-aged woman, doesn't believe the state will take her life. "The case still has not been to the supreme court. I should serve a life sentence, I guess, but don't think they should take my life," says Mrs. Hall from her cell.

Mrs. Hall and Gordon Denmark little more than a boy, have been given the extreme penalty for the murder of Mrs. Hall's husband. They were sentenced on Saturday at the close of one of the most dramatic murder trials in the history of Jacksonville.

Mrs. Hall is the first woman in the history of Florida to be sentenced to die. If she is electrocuted she will be the first woman whose life the state ever took in this state.

The state's contention through out the trial was that Mrs. Hall and her husband were on bad terms. She then lured young Denmark to, shoot her husband to death as the latter lay helplessly drunk in front of his store.

Denmark would not lay the responsibility on Mrs. Hall. He admitted the murder but laid the blame on moonshine liquor. "I, too, was drunk," he says.

But the state proved their mophilosophically: "I don't want to die, of course. But if I have to die, why that's just all there is to it. I shot the man, I am sorry I did it. But that doesn't do any good now. I guess I must pay the penalty."

Mrs. Hall and Denmark are confined on different floors of the jail awaiting for their case to be reviewed by the supreme court. Neither wants to see the other, neither has inquired about the other.

It would be a "dull old world indeed" if election dope never got upset.—Nashville Banner.

Poi, Salmon Is Hawaiian's Best Dish

Honolulu, Oct. 14, (AP)—The trouble with serving the Hawaiian national dishes—poi and omolomi salmon—in other parts of the world is that few persons born outside the Hawaiian islands like poi.

Poi, however, is the Hawaiian staff of life. Everything the old time Hawaiian eat is served as a side dish to poi. It is a gray, paste like material, made by the pounding of the root of the taro plant. It is eaten with the fingers, and choice determines its thickness. It may be of one-finger, two-finger or three-finger consistency.

The preparation of lomlomi salmon is simple. Uncooked salt salmon is picked into small bits. Chopped tomatoes and onions are added.

By no means are poi and lomlomi salmon mixed. It is culinary sacrilege in Hawaii to take poi other than straight.

Hungary cannot long endure in its dismembered state, said Count Stephen Biehean, Prime Minister.

HENDERSON COUNTY TO SEEK SPECIAL TERM OF COURT

Hendersonville, Oct. 14, (INS)—Gov. McLean, upon his return from the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, will be asked to call a special term of court for Henderson County.

The special term would be for the purpose of disposing of 150 criminal cases left on the docket when the October term of Superior Court here adjourned. The criminal cases include five trials for murder.

San Francisco, Oct. 14, (INS)—From now on its going to be a five year's grind for all dental students in the San Francisco College of Physicians and Surgeons. The faculty has just decided that to keep up with modern progress it is going to spend five years on the tasks of making dentists, instead of four years, as in the past.

To compensate the students for the extra year, however, it was also decided to confer upon him the degree of Bachelor of Arts in addition to his Doctor of Dental Surgeon diploma.

Sixty-one students, an increase of ten per cent over last year's freshman class, have been enrolled in the new five year course, it was announced by Dr. Arthur E. McDowell, dean of the college.

Otto H. Kahn, nationally known financier, is strong for art. Art, he says, is virtual panacea for social and economic ills art is wealth; it is a preventer of crime and a mighty influence in effecting better international relations.

The praises were sounded by Mr. Kahn here the other day when he gave a little talk before the Commonwealth Club on the "Commercial Value of Culture."

From a commercial viewpoint, Kahn pointed out art's value may be clearly seen in France, which has realized millions through its predominance in the artistic world.

Parents are blamed for their children's delinquency in the annual report just submitted to the Berkeley police department by Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, only policewoman on the staff.

"Parents are fostering juvenile delinquency because they are too occupied with the thrills of a jazz life to teach their children the lessons of morality they were taught by their parents." Mrs. Anderson says. She goes on: "Broken homes, bad environment, mentality lower than normal, mother employed, emotional instability, lack of proper home discipline, misunderstanding and bad companionship are the main cause of youths' revolt."

Modern medical science may have to retrace its steps into ancient Egypt if it is to solve the riddle of cancer, according to Dr. Robert V. Dolbey, professor of surgery in the University of Calro, member of the staff of Kasrel Doubara hospital, and a guest at the university of California.

Twentieth century civilization is held responsible by Dr. Dolbey for the ravages of cancer.

In Egypt, he said cancer of the gastro-intestinal tract is virtually unknown among the peasantry—that is, so long as the peasant is content to live in the same house and yartake of the same food eaten by the peasant of Ramses' time.

been stressed very much by Miss Ferguson, Home Demonstration Agent.

This has also been stressed to a very great extent by the live-at-home exhibits, where again the keenest competition ever thrown in the face of the judges was shown. The following were placed first, scoring out of a possible one hundred points, first going to R. E. Corbett, total 94 points; Second, Mrs. Carl Langley, total 92 points; Mrs. F. E. Rando, 89 points; Mrs. E. W. Smith, scoring 88 points. These exhibits show what can be done by applying the scientific method of farming which is advocated by the State College Extension Service. The farmers of Pitt county should be commended very highly on all exhibits which only a few can be mentioned as being the outstanding and attracting more attention and talk from the public.

The bushel of Irish cobbles was shown by Mrs. J. P. Davenport and the bushel of Red Bliss shown by Mr. R. E. Corbett were the two outstanding bushels of Irish potatoes.

In the agricultural building has never been such a display of sweet potatoes. Mr. William McArthur showing the outstanding bushel of Porto Rico which won first prize in sweet potatoes. Again the judge was thrown against twelve bushels of the keenest competition he ever faced in a potato show which shows the possibility of Pitt county being the outstanding county in the production of sweet potatoes.

The farmers of Pitt county have also been shown that hay in abundance can be raised on our home soils which was stressed by Mr. R. E. Corbett displaying 21 different varieties of hay which was raised on his farm.

Judging from the splendid show of corn, oats, wheat and rye shows that Pitt county is capable of raising the necessary grains. On the corn show, the ten ears entered by J. B. Tucker was in the judge's opinion, the nearest perfect ten ears of corn ever shown at the fair. This shows that Cocks' Prolific is the outstanding variety of corn for the farmers of Pitt county to grow. The entries in this variety show it is adapted to the climate and soil conditions of this county.

The public seems to be very much interested and pleased with the four booths put on by the State Department of Agriculture.

The poultry exhibit stresses the grading and culling of eggs which was shown by F. W. Richer.

The Department of Plant Pathology stresses the diseases and control of diseases which was shown and explained by Mr. G. W. Fant.

The Department of Agronomy exhibited by Mrs. J. E. Fletcher of State College, showing the proper fertilization of cotton, the value of legumes as a soil builder, the effect of inoculation of soil with the proper bacteria before growing legumes, the pasture and hay crops and late varieties of soy beans, stressing the Jaredo as a wild resistant variety.

Mr. R. W. Gaeber, from Extension Forest Agriculture Extension Service, State College, shows a wonderful display of forest and value of timber in North Carolina. The purpose of this exhibit is to interest the farmers in growing timber and in the exhibit we try to show that timber needs management such as thinning just as well as any other farm crop, and we consider timber the biggest and most important crop in North Carolina. There is approximately ten million acres of farm timber land in comparison with six and a half million acres of other crop land.

versations, not merely 'one of the world's most vigorous personalities,' but a sound organization builder. Mr. Mellon has proved that he knows something about organization. Ask his business competitors.

He said 'Mussolini's organization is sound and there should be time enough for him to build strongly. He is a young man yet.

Mr. Mellon added a parenthesis, that is, of course, if they stop throwing bombs at him.

That is the big IF, but courage counts, even against bombs, it discourages and intimidates the bomb thrower, and prolongs life. Mussolini has courage.

Thinking does make it so, sometimes. Mrs. Victoria Irsyebisk, thirty, of Detroit, consulted a fortune teller, who said, 'You will die of a suicide.' The woman, brooding over the prediction, killed herself with poison. The fortune teller will go to prison, if caught.

The unhappy woman's fate, fortunately rare, reminds you that thousand live, and fall victims of some harmful suggestion.

Let a man get it into his head that he amounts to nothing and he will amount to nothing, usually. Conceit is bad, often destructive, but absence of all confidence in yourself is fatal.

It's the old golden mean, not too much self confidence, not too little.

If Faust were written now, Margaret would have black hair, according to Berlin hair dressers. Yellow hair is going out. When German girls dye their hair, they dye it black. American movies are held responsible, many stars having dark hair, and, according to experts, a black bob looks better than a blond bob.

Nevertheless the races with light hair and blue eyes will continue to rule the world in future, as in the past, for the reason, distasteful to many, that blue or gray eyes go with a thinking mind.

Make a list of the fifty greatest men in history and you will find that forty-eight, possibly all fifty of them, had gray or blue eyes. Light hazel eyes are about the same as a blue or gray eye.

Panhandle Turning to New Wheat Boom

Amarillo, Texas, Oct. 14.—(INS)—To hell with oil so long as we can make the wheat crop pay.

This section of the south, famous throughout the country for its oil producing activities, and the constant opening of new fields, has turned its back on petroleum, and faced toward agriculture.

A short time ago the Panhandle was a sparsely settled part of the state, with some farming, and some cattle raising.

At the magic voice of oil it awakened, and in a short time derricks were dotting the plains. Tardly a farmer who has not received rich rewards from oil royalties, yet agriculture has usurped the place of petroleum.

That is the attitude of farmers.

business men, and bankers throughout the country that has sprung life with mushroom rapidity, and become one of the agricultural frontiers of the United States. The Panhandle is booming.

Industrial plants throughout the region are throbbing with activity, residence buildings are going up all over the district, farm houses, giant barns, granaries.

The average yield throughout the territory last year has been forty bushels to the acre, and oil is playing a soft obligato on second fiddle to agriculture.

A program of diversified agriculture is under way throughout the district, and vast fields of sorghums and other feed crops attest the fact that plain farmers are not carrying all their eggs in one basket.

Hundreds of thousands of acres are now being turned under by plows, and the next season promises to witness crops that put oil profits to shame.
