SIXTEEN HURT IN BLOODY BATTLE IN ALABAMA PRISON

Five Hundred Convicts Mutinied as Protest Against New Regulations

Montgomery, Ala., March 14.—(AP)—A bloody battle was waged in Kilby prison last night by 500 prisoners who chose the supper hour to rebel against a tightening of their privileges. None escaped but, 16 were sent to the hospital.

Warden Shirley, that fire arms narcotics and whiskey were being smuggled to prisoners, had ordered visitors barred from the prison enclosure and restricted to reception rooms.

Prisoner Joe D. Lewis submitted to search after a visit from three women. A knife was taken from him.

Mumblings swelled to loud talking and burst into disorder as guards approached the prisoners to escort them from the corridor to their cells.

Among the convicts were several transferred recently from coal mines where prior to the last session of the state legislature they worked under the lease system.

A prisoner shouted to guards from the milling crowd that the men would not return to cells or work again until the warden rescinded his order regarding restrictions on visitors.

Hurling furniture torn from the dining hall, Sunday school books obtained from rooms off the corridor, and fighting hand to hand wave after wave, the snarling prisoners forced guards to retreat.

Other guards, armed with shot guns and tear bombs, appeared before the prisoners could force their way through the long corridor.

Commands to surrender were met with a barrage of chair legs, stools and books. Warden Shirley skirting the corridor, came in with guards through a side door, only to fall back under the bombardment.

Guards then cut loose with shot guns and tear bombs.

Frank Bowen, Frank McDougal, Melvin Tyus and A. P. Lee fell wounded. The four were regarded as among the leaders.

Battling prisoners cowed under the reeking fumes of tear gas, clawed each other in the confusion.

The infuriated kicked out windows. Walter Smith was sent to the hospital with leg arteries severed by broken glass. Eleven others suffered cuts and bruises.

When quiet had been restored guards rounding up ten men suspected of having aided the demonstration and put them in solitary confinement pending investigation. The men serving terms for offenses varying from robbery to murder, were Tom Wilson, Fred Reynolds, Fred Lynn, Charlie Monney, Guy Cobb, Ed. White, Clarence Shirley, Ed. Godfrey, Walter Babb and Cliff Helton.

Governor Bibb Graves who in his campaign for election pledged the removal of convicts from mines in the state, declined to comment.

The Prison normally houses about 1,000 inmates.

Announce Buyers for Newly Formed Tobacco Company

Secretary K. W. Cobb, of Tobacco Board of Trade has just received a letter from the head of the recently formed Greenville Tobacco Company, Incorporated, in which the buyers who will represent the concern or in the market here this year were announced.

According to the report the buyers will be Walter C. Jones, of Farmville; W. W. Phobe and H. G. Jeff, of this city and Florence Bowles, of Danville. Mr. Charles W. Howard, of Klinton, is general manager of the new concern and will be supervisor of the buyers.

The concern recently organized under Virginia charter has purchased the plant and property of the American Tobacco Company of this city and will operate here on a large scale.

DECLARE BRITISH MADE MILLIONS ON OUR COTTON

Sapiro Says British Spinners Have Bought Two Years Supply at Low Prices

Chicago, March 14.—(AP)—The Daily News says today that British textile industries have reaped a harvest of profits, estimated by Aaron Sapiro, general counsel for some of the principal cooperative Marketing Associations of the country, at more than $50,000,000.

When American cotton growers dumped their product on the market and the price tumbled the British interests quietly bought in on an unprecedented scale, the newspaper states.

The buyers, according to the News, had watched the market closely and warily prepared for the crash, when their undercover operations enabled them to absorb a large part of the surplus at a very low price.

Estimates of the amount of cotton bought by England vary, but the News says it is known that the total reached several million bales which the paper "deems sufficient to meet the needs of the British spinners and weavers for this year as well as part of 1928."

The News points out that the British coup is regarded by those familiar with the market as due to the influence of John Maynard Keynes, economist, who a few years ago criticized the spinners for what he termed many of their "Bad Practices".

A deligation of master spinners met with him at that time and it is reported that under his direction organized a trust or corporation monopoly.

One of Keynes proposals was said to have been a central buying and selling organization, but whether this was formed is not known.

Whether it was known whether the recent coup in cotton was engineered by such an agency, said the News, but if the purchases were not made through one organization English buyers were at last in agreement.

Revenue Officials Today Declare No General Time Extension Will be Granted

Raleigh, N. C., March 14.—(AP)—Last chance

Warnings were issued today from both State and Federal revenue headquarters that tomorrow at midnight all income tax returns must be in or delinquents would have to face the consequences.

The fact that office staffs in both camps are swamped with belated returns at present is basis for no time extension, officials said.

"The returns must be in within the time allotted by law—midnight, March 15," chorused Gilliam Grieson head of the Federal tax collectors, and R. A. Doughton, generalissimo of the State money gatherers.

Commissioner Doughton stressed the fact that the State exemptions were not as high as the Federal scale, but said enough publicity had been given the fact to eliminate most of the confusion on that point.

Under the State law every single person with an income of $1,000 last year must file a return. For a married person the exemption runs up to $2,000.

The Federal law exempts single persons whose 1926 income did not exceed $1,500 and married persons whose total earnings failed to touch the $3,500 mark.

Penalty is provided for failure to file within the legal time limit.

Shanghai, March 14.—(AP)—The body of Sergeant James B. Montague, United States Marine Corps, was found today in the Whangpoo River. Police believe he was murdered.

Washington, March 14.—(AP)—Sergeant Montague's sister his next of kin, is Mrs. Joseph W. Blanton, Jr., 2711 Grove Avenue, Richmond, Va.

Montague enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1902 and went to China on the transport Chaumont as a member of the fourth regiment.

ANOTHER VICTIM IN GANG WARFARE SHOT LAST NIGHT

War Between Rival Bootleggers Has Caused Four Deaths in Two Days

Chicago, March 14.—(AP)—Gangland's mysterious vengeance, striking swiftly for the fourth time within 48 hours has overtaken another chief of the notorious and once powerful Genna liquor band.

Alfonzo Fiori, reputed bootlegger, blackhand extortionist and gun-point collector for the Gennas was found yesterday riddled with bullets in a passageway beside an inn on the west side.

Detectives trying to run down the assassin of Lefty Koncil and Charles (Big Hayes) Hubacek shot to death Friday midnight were hastily diverted to the new investigation. Police also announced they had no clue yet to the slayer of Benjamin Schneider, shot to death in front of his North Side home a few hours before the bodies of Koncil and Hubacek were found. They were searching for some possible link between the four slayings, the first in ranks of gangland since a peace pact was agreed to last fall.

The ominous silence of gangland surrounded the Fiori slaying.

"We probably never will know who did this," said Sergeant Edward Collopy, leading the investigation.

"He has slumly met the fate of all gangsters."

A search for Dominick Sacca, road house owner near whose place the body was found, was begun after the police found signs of a struggle within the roadhouse, as a most likely lead.

Fiori was accused of having killed Nicholas Augustino, now serving a sentence in New York for murder, to kill a man in White Plains, New York. The latest gang victim was married and the father of nine children.

Joe Sallis today said he thought his henchmen were victims of a new gang which had been out to get him rather than his lieutenants. He posted a $5,000 reward for the capture of the slayers.

The police, however, continued to connect the recent killings with a raid on a government liquor warehouse here last week when they captured four other gangsters who were siphoning liquor. Reprisals were hinted at that time.

HEARINGS BEGIN IN MILLION DOLLAR FORD LIBEL SUIT

Motion of Sapiro to Include New Paragraph in Complaint Denied Today

Detroit, March 14.—(AP)—A request by counsel for Aaron Sapiro to be permitted to inject a new paragraph in Sapiro's declaration in his $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford was denied by Judge M. Raymond in United States district court here today.

William Henry Gallagher, counsel for Sapiro, said the new paragraph set forth the because of previous publications of the Dearborn Independent, the term "Jew" as used in 20 articles alleged to contain libel, was a term of scorn.

Judge Raymond held the paragraph brought no new charge of libel but was intended to widen the scope of evidence which will be admitted.

For the second time in his career, Henry Ford figures in a $1,000,000 libel suit. The suit filed by Aaron Sapiro, Chicago lawyer and farmers cooperative organizer, that began in federal court here tomorrow, however finds the motor king in the role of defendant.

Eight years ago at Mount Clemens, Mr. Ford was plaintiff in a suit against the Chicago Tribune. He was awarded a verdict of six cents. The Chicago Tribune suit was based on a charge that it had termed Ford an anarchist.

In the suit to begin tomorrow Sapiro charges Ford and the Dearborn Independent libeled him in a series of articles that charged a Jewish conspiracy to control agriculture and also that Sapiro sought to utilize the farmers cooperative organizations for his private gain.

Whether Mr. Ford will appear personally in the suit is disputed by attorneys on both sides. C. B. Longley of counsel for the automobile maker, asserted today that Mr. Ford had not been subpoenaed.

To this William Henry Gallagher for Sapiro answers:

"A subpoena was tossed into Mr. Ford's lap several months ago. I am confident he will not make it necessary for us to ask the court to have him brought in."

Just what testimony plaintiff's counsel plans to get from Henry Ford, the witness, against Henry Ford the defendant, was not revealed.

While the defense plans to summon about 150 witnesses, the plaintiff's counsel has named only Mr. Ford.

Mr. Ford's side of the counsel table will be in charge of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri. Associated with him will be Richard J. Higgins, his law partner in Kansas City, Raymond E. Watson, also of Kansas City, Longley, Stewart Stanley and Ward N. Choate. Mr. Longley is general counsel for the Ford Motor Company.

Sapiro's interest will be in charge of Mr. Gallagher and Walter F. Lynch of Chicago, a law partner.

Bowie and Sink May Be Judges

Raleigh, N. C., March 14.—(AP)—Political gossipers about the capital persisted today in connecting the names of Hoyle Sink, pardon commissioner, and T. C. Bowie, Ashe County, former speaker of the House of Representatives, with the two new superior judgeships, but Governor McLean, resting at Pinehurst, had made no official announcement on the matter, his secretary here said.

Since N. A. Townsend and Clayton Moore, outstanding members of the last General Assembly, were named to fill two of the newly created judgeships, speculation has centered on Sink and Bowie for the other two.

Both Townsend and Moore are from the Eastern District. The two judgeships to be filled are for the Western Division, in which both Bowie and Sink reside.

A number of other candidates have been recommended to the Governor for the Western vacancies, but State officers close to the executive say he is most likely to name the present pardon commissioner and the Ashe county statesman to the positions.

Mr. Bowie, it will be remembered, was the paid attorney of the North Carolina Bible League in its unsuccessful battle to have anti-union laws passed at the last General Assembly.

There are 4,500 miles of streets in New York City. The water front totals 378 miles.

Refuse Permit Senator King to Visit Haiti

Washington, March 14.—(AP)—Back at his desk today from a golfing trip in South Carolina, Secretary Kellogg found a tentative engagement to confer early during the week with Hannibal Prince, Haitian minister, over the exclusion of Senator William H. King of Utah, from Haiti as an "undesirable."

While the State Department is at a loss about what it can do in the matter, the visit of the minister will give the secretary opportunity to personally go over the position. John Russell, American high commissioner in Haiti, already has represented to President Borno of that country.

The Haitian President, who has denied admission to the Senator on ground that he has attacked the policy of the American government toward the island republic, is entirely within his right and no diplomatic channels are open to the department to change his decision.

The visit of the Haitian minister is to present formally to Mr. Kellogg a telegram from Foreign Minister Leon reiterating the refusal to permit the Senator to enter Haiti, even though Mr. Russell suggested it would be better to permit the senator to see Haitian conditions for himself.

THREE FLORIDA BANKS FAILED TO OPEN TODAY

Citizens Bank of West Palm Beach Has Withstood Heavy Runs

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Three Palm Beach County banks failed to open their doors today, while another local financial institution sought to stave off a severe run.

The Farmers Bank and Trust Company of West Palm Beach, one of the largest banks in this section, failed to open after a midnight announcement by T. P. Reese, its president, that the closing of two local banks and a Palm Beach Bank last Tuesday had precipitated the action.

Simultaneously the First National Bank of Lake Worth and the Ocean City Bank of Delray did not open for business this morning. No reason for their separate actions was made public. T. C. Hawkins, State bank examiner, immediately resumed charge of the Delray institution. The closing at Lake Worth left that city without a bank.

The Delray bank was capitalized at $25,000.

West Palm Beach's three remaining financial institutions—the Citizens Bank, the Central Farmers' Trust Company, and the National Bank of West Palm Beach—opened as usual today with mild excitement prevailing, following the closing of the Farmers' Bank and Trust Company which was announced last night.

Officials and members of the directorate of the Citizens Bank, which together with the Farmers' Bank weathered the runs last Tuesday in the closing of two local banks and one Palm Beach bank, gave out the following statement after an all-night session behind closed doors.

"Citizens Bank is not going to be now nor hereafter.

"We have today arranged for immediate sufficient cash to pay off every cent of deposits in the Citizens Bank. We appreciate that in the present state of unrest there will be withdrawal by some of our depositors, but we pledge our word that every depositor of this bank can be paid immediately in cash.

"We believe that our successful withstanding of the ordeal through which West Palm Beach has gone will be a factor in an early re-establishment of confidence."

ITS PROPER PLACE

At some date in the near future the work of building a new bridge across Tar River will get under way but unless citizens of our town get busy the bridge will not be put at its proper place, the northern end of Evans street.

Many years ago when the present river bridge was built a movement to have the bridge placed at foot of Evans, failed because those in charge of the work stated that all arrangements for placing the bridge at another location had been completed. The material purchased, and to make the change in location would entail an extra cost of between $75,000 and $100,000.

The present project is that of the state highway commission to bridge the river here but the bridge will not be placed upon the site of the old bridge as it is desired to continue to use the old bridge until the new one is completed. The proper place for this bridge is at the foot of Evans street but it is entirely up to the citizens of the State Highway Commission to place the bridge at the foot of Greene street and that where it will be placed is the time to act. It is the time to act. It is the time to act. It is the time to act.

When a man goes into business he selects a stand on the city's busiest thoroughfare because that is where the people pass. He would not think of going two blocks from the business section to erect a store building. What is true in that case should be the same in the case of placing the bridge. There are thousands of people who pass through our city daily over the route that leads to and from the river bridge and now that the business men of the city have opportunity to bring these people to their place of business, it is in deed lack of good sound business judgment not to make an effort to do so.

Not only will the placing of the bridge at the foot of Evans street be a decided advantage to the business houses of the city but it will be an advantage to the travelers as well, in that it will furnish the closest route from the north side of the river for traffic going east on highway 91 which crosses Five Points and will be no further than at present for westbound traffic on that highway. It would likewise give the traveler opportunity to pay a desired visit to the shopping center of the town without going out of his way or getting off the highway, which is not possible if the bridge is placed at the foot of some streets other than Evans. Another reason for the placing of the bridge at the foot of Evans street is that all adjacent property at that site belongs to the city and same could be easily created into public park affording a beautiful approach to the city and one that is impossible without great expense if the bridge is placed according to present plans.

As we understand it, the placing of the new bridge at the foot of Evans street will cost the state but very little if any more than to place it at the end of Greene street provided the change is made before the present plans have been perfected and gone too far. If the citizens of Greenville want the bridge at the foot of Evans street it is up to them now to let their wants be known. Once it is placed there will be no other bridge built during this generation. Now is the time to see to it that it is placed in its proper place. Merchants' organizations, women's clubs and other civic organizations can have the bridge placed at the foot of Evans street if they will make an effort. It is a duty you owe your city. Act now don't delay.

When Are We Dead? Stricken Man's Fight Raises Question

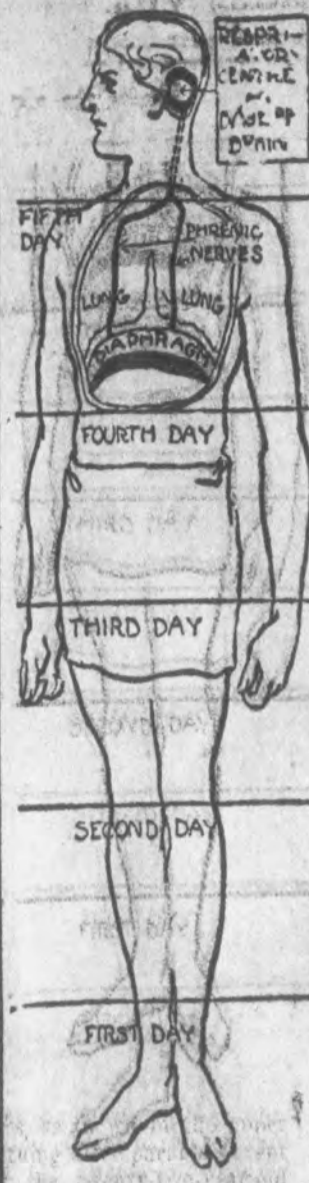

Death Has Lost Many Skirmishes, History of Cases Shows.

THE death of Alfred Frick at Evanston, Ill., after he had been kept alive 108 hours by heroic measures of artificial respiration, raises the question: Can life be continued after vital organs have once failed? Scientists have reported revival of dogs—dead dogs—whose hearts had ceased to beat and whose brains had been paralyzed by "death." In those cases, they reported, the dogs regained their muscular functions, but had forever lost power of self-direction. They could walk, but could not direct their steps.

Robert Ames, a Chicago chauffeur, "died" twice. According to his own story, he twice joined and rejoined the pilgrimage of souls in the valley of death, talked with his sojourners toward an unknown end and came back to dress and run away from surgeons who wanted to operate on him. He had been on a slab in the New Orleans morgue, cold water trickling over his stilled body, for hours. He revived as his coffin was brought in. He had been caught under the ruins of a building blown down in the destructive hurricane of September, 1915. His side was caved in, five broken ribs pressing on his heart, which stopped.

Joseph Staub "died" on a train to Atlantic City in January, 1921, as the train passed Elizabeth, N. J. His body was removed to the baggage car. At Atlantic City a hearse awaited. But Staub had come back to life at Trenton, so his family got a cab for him at Atlantic City. Adrenalin, a heart stimulant, is carried by every ambulance surgeon, and has brought back life in thousands of cases where the heart had been stilled for many minutes. It is injected right into the heart.

Field Marshal Terauchi, a very old man, "died" in Tokyo in 1919, and the world was officially notified of his passing. New official notices had to be issued when he had come back to life under administration of camphor. Theodore P. Bailey, of the General Electric Company, had the best medical attendance. He was declared dead, in Philadelphia in 1916, but he talked first in whispers and later by a deaf mute alphabet with his family for twenty-seven minutes after his heart had ceased to beat. His physician, amazed, held a watch to learn exactly how long

Friends, using their hands as bellows, as shown in the upper right picture, kept Alfred Frick breathing after paralysis crept through the abdominal muscles of the twenty-two-year-old Evanston, Ill., youth. For 108 hours they labored, then death came. The diagram at the right shows how the paralysis moved. A blood clot on the base of the brain caused the affliction, coming to a climax when it paralyzed the action of the phrenic nerves, which control the diaphragm.

His patient could talk after death. Miss Florence Woodman was kept alive in Chicago in 1913 for twenty-nine hours after her "death" by artificial respiration, for which a vacuum cleaner supplied the motive power. In Catania, Italy, there is filed the mortuary certificate of Rocco Cesario, who died in 1922 from bronchitis, which bears notation of his death on one day and for the following day reads, "Risen from the dead." The child re-

Heroic Uruguayan Fliers Land in Ocean; Swim Ashore; Become 'Guests' of Roving Moors of the African Wastes

Major Larre-Borges and his companions in the Uruguayan trans-Atlantic flight, fell into the hands of wandering Moors after their plane crashed near Cape Jube, Africa, and they swam ashore. The Moors were friendly, and although they were expected to demand a "reward," they marched them to civilization. The map shows Cape Ghir, where white searchers started their hunt for the heroic adventurers, and Cape Jube, near where their plane fell. Above is shown a typical Moorish chieftain, such as became host to the fliers, and a typical Moorish camp, similar to the ones in which the men were quartered on their march to civilization.

PARENT-TEACHERS HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE TO MISS FANNIE McCLELLAND

A most impressive service was held Wednesday afternoon by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Model School in memory of Miss Fannie McClelland. Several beautiful tributes were paid to her memory. Jim Stay and E. C. Holt, Jr., who were pupils of Miss McClelland's, in their boylike manner, told what she meant to them. The grade then sang a song which Miss McClelland had taught. This song expressed the optimistic view of life that she always held before her pupils. Marian Wilson and Margaret Eakes read poems which told of the love that the pupils of the school had for their principal. Mrs. Winslow, representing the parents of the school, paid a beautiful tribute to Miss McClelland when she spoke of the firmness, honesty, and frankness that the parents always found when dealing with her. Mr. Hardin spoke of her religious life. These words, quoted by him, expressed the earnestness and forcefulness of her Christian character: "many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all." Mr. Wright spoke of the valuable service Miss McClelland had rendered as a teacher of the college. A letter was read by a member of the Holywood Sunday School expressing the love and esteem which the people of that church have for her. Perhaps the most beautiful tribute was the following one by Mr. Rose:

Tribute to Fannie McClelland
On the high bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River above Memphis, loved ones are now erecting a marble slab as a monument to Fannie McClelland. When Fannie McClelland died in Greenville she had already with her own hands erected a monument to herself. I have not seen the one in Tennessee nor do I know of its design, but this I know, that whatever its character-changes that have come over the youth whom she taught, with rare courage she experimented with the new and as she experimented weighed it carefully and passed judgment on its merits or deficiencies. There was an open-mindedness about her that made this possible. And while open-minded, at the same time she could and did fight for those things which in her judgment were proved and worthwhile.

As principal of this school, she had a most difficult task, not difficult from the standpoint of you parents because you people stood by her in such a fine fashion, but difficult because of the duties laid upon her as principal of this Demonstration School. In addition to being a critic teacher of rare worth, she had to think about this school from the standpoint of the college administration at all times. Then she had to look to the city schools and its administration. Therefore, one realizes the four-fold task which was laid upon her; as classroom teacher of thirty children, critic teacher or trainer of future teachers, the head of the school from the college standpoint, and the head of this school from the standpoint of the city schools. All of these tasks require different abilities and she met them all and was usually the first to report. (I knew her to be loyal to all of those with whom she worked. She did agree with everything, she had too much sense for that, but when a policy was once shaped and adopted she was loyal to the finish.

And what did she do besides train the intellect? She believed and taught that the trained mind without a sense of moral and spiritual values was worthless and more than that, dangerous. Therefore, in the classroom, on the playground, and in the chapel programs she seized upon every opportunity to drive home the great truths which should be a guide to conduct in the present-day life of the child. This chapel in the minds of the children of this school is a place where God, the highest and the best reside; they did and now they continue to begin their chapel programs by reciting in unison, "The Lord is in His holy temple," followed by "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving." She it was, I think, who compiled a set of lip-lessons, one for each letter of the alphabet.

And another evidence of her work in this field is to be seen when I tell you of what happened over here one morning in chapel since Miss McClelland's death. It was about one week after my return from Memphis and I came over to tell the children about my mission and its fulfilling. Not wishing to make sad the hearts of the children, I talked to them about the life that Miss McClelland had led and then told them that the best thing in the way of remembrance of her would be for them to keep in their minds some of the things for which Miss McClelland stood. I then asked the children to tell me any of the things for which she stood. Hands went up all over this place and one after another stood up and said, "Good, Honesty, Good Humor, Fair Play, to go to Sunday School, etc."

Another evidence of her character training was seen in her own school room. This group of children was so organized, and such a sense of their obligation to the school and to one another that it made little difference to them whether there was a teacher around or not. If their work was mapped out, they went right ahead.

As a citizen she felt very keenly the call to service. As a member of the Presbyterian Church, she also felt the call to labor for that organization.

In the town church, in the small rural Sunday school that meets in a school house, she was effectively at work. Her Sunday afternoons were given over to work and beyond the call of duty. Duties to her were usually thought of as privileges for service.

Her work, to her, was sacred and in closing I want to quote a poem of Van Dyke. This poem to me, more than any other expression in the beautiful way that I think was in the mind and heart of our principal, teacher and friend.

Let me but do my work from day to day
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring market or tranquil room,
Let me but find it in my heart to say,
When vacant wishes beckon me astray,
This is my blessing, my joy, my doom:
Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work can best be done in the right way.

Then shall I see it not too great,
My small.

To still my spirit and to prove my powers,
Then shall I cheerfully greet the laboring hours,
And cheerfully turn, when the long shadows fall
At evening, to play and love and rest,
Because I know, for me, my work is best.

He should not judge the flying of other nations by our own.

From Bolivia comes gambling news that is really new. Nester Villegas, Simon Cheque and two Jaurequi brothers murdered Jose Manuel Pando, former Bolivian President, and the Judge decided that one life for one murder was sufficient.

The four men convicted must cast lots, and the loser will be executed. The other three going to prison for Ten years. Leonard who liked to study faces under strong emotion, could make an interesting picture of those gambling for death.

Mussolini's cabinet council has established an aerial police force to regulate flying, up where it is done, and pursue criminals that escape in flying machines. That also is a new piece of news. It begins what in years to come will be the worlds really important police force. Criminals know what this government does not yet know that flying is a practical reality.

Mayor Walker of New York sets a good example proposing to cut taxes on poor peoples dwellings. This should apply to any moderate price house in which a father and mother bring up children. When they are poor, actually, the city state and nation should help in stead of taxing them, since they are providing human working machinery for the next generation.

Mother Walks Streets to Bring Slayer to Justice

Section Stirred by Lone Fight for Vengeance for Her Boy.

A mother's plea for justice for her dead boy, spread on a homely sign she bore like a sandwichman, is stirring the people of upper Manhattan island to a crusade for vengeance upon his heartless killer.

Every day—rain, snow or sunny—she parades about the scene of his death.

There Charles Spetko, ten years old, was knocked down and run over by a motor truck whose driver stopped and taking the child—crushed and senseless from those who had hurried to his aid—said he would run the maimed lad to a hospital.

Little Charles was found some time later, in an alleyway, senseless, where the truck driver had evidently dropped his body and sped away seeking his own safety.

The boy's leg was amputated, but blood poison developed and he died February 23, seven weeks later.

Meantime, those who witnessed the affair, saw the driver and perhaps took the license number of his truck may have forgotten about it.

Mrs. Anna Spetko, the mother, put on the black clothing of grief and set out to remind other mothers and all people who love and protect children of what had been cruelly done to her little lad.

She is daily followed by men and women who take her name and address from the silent appeal she carries and thousands are enlisting themselves in the army which is seeking to bring the killer of her child to justice.

AN APPEAL TO NEIGHBORHOOD PUBLIC

If the mother of a boy age 10 years who was run over on this corner the afternoon of Jan. 3rd between 2 and 3 o'clock by an auto-truck, when a crowd gathered the truck driver said he would take the child to the hospital and instead he drove away with the boy and threw him away on Park Ave. 103rd Street—where children coming from school saw him lying on street—with his leg bleeding where upon they took him to a DRUG STORE and from there he was taken to a hospital where blood poison set in the next day, his leg had to be taken off—and after suffering in hospital for eight weeks—The Boy Died—A horrible death.

If any mother—father of children here suffering about this accident, would help to see their child and child's family the same fate as my boy did—Thank You!

Mrs. Anna Spetko

jects captured on board a Russian ship and accused of propagandism long and no repetition of the Russian-Japanese war, the Czar and the Grand Dukes being replaced by capable thinking Russians. Russia, not backward like this notion, would soon have hundreds of fighting planes above China's cities and they would not fall down.

But how would you conquer, all at once, Chinas 400,000,000 savage Asiaties have done it, by settling among the Chinese, and rolling by terror.

But the system has gone by. To fight China or Russia, would be like smothering yourself in a huge feather bed, as one of the German experts said.
