

HICKMAN MAY CHANGE PART OF HIS STORY

Counsel, However, to Fight Repudiation of Part of Original Story of Murder.

Los Angeles, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Officials of the county jail where William Edward Hickman is confined, today expressed the belief that the youth desires to repudiate those parts of confessions made by him which relate to his motive in the slaying of little Marian Parker.

This belief was supported by a statement from his Los Angeles attorney, Richard Cantillon.

Cantillon who interviewed his young client at length at the jail yesterday, said at least a part of this questioning related to Hickman's motive in the slaying.

"I begged him to tell me why he did this atrocious thing," Cantillon said. "He told me he did not know, that he had searched his brain and could find no reason or a motive."

In his verbal and written confessions to the officers who returned him to Los Angeles from Pendleton Ore., Hickman had been reported to have narrated in elaborate detail his motive for the crime. In a confession written for a newspaper, the youth said he killed the kidnaped girl because he feared his apartment would be located by the police and searched. Self protection, he declared, moved him to dismember the body in order that he might carry the bundles from his apartment unnoticed. He also said he considered the $1,500 ransom as more important than the life of the child. He told of a "peculiar complex" which he said he had been obsessed with since his high school days.

New Committee To Check U. S. Expenditures

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Every dollar that Congress allows Government to spend will have to take the straight and narrow path hereafter, for a new House committee is going to take a closer check on expenditures than ever before. And unless each dollar reaches the destination set for it by Congress, the expenditures committee will have a lot to say about it.

This new committee results from a consolidation of eleven minor committees on governmental expenditures, and has been clothed with such responsibilities and powers that it is considered destined to play an important part in the House affairs. One of its chief functions is to sit as a board of review to see that the government departments use the money allotted to them for the purpose for which it was specified.

Claremont, Calif., Jan. 7.—The wind bloweth where it listeth, hurricane and earthquakes strike all over the round earth, abnormally high tides in the Thames, water from the river covering streets in the lower part of London, and a heavy wind storm sweeping over England. On Friday, Georgetown University storm sweeping over England. On Friday, Georgetown University's seismograph recorded violent earthquakes, somewhere on earth, about 6,200 miles from Washington, lasting three and a half hours.

Solemn professors study earth movements, knowing that even the big continents move slowly, through the ages, the upper soil and rocks slipping around on the earth's hard core cause violent strain but science sometimes makes mistakes, costly. Berkeley professor, on sound premises, predicted heavy quakes on the Pacific coast to the south, and insurance companies promptly doubled earthquake insurance rates, that the risk might not worry them.

Government should provide earthquake, tornado and bombardment insurance, at low rates, carrying part of the risk itself. Accumulated profits on such insurance would in time provide a sum big enough to provide for any calamity, and the insured would pay fair rates.

That would not favor any particular locality, south, west or anywhere.

TWO HOLD-UP MEN KILLED

Chicago, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two men only 10 days out of prison, found death awaiting them last night when they sought to pick up the thread of crime which prison sentences had cut three years ago.

A police ambush lay concealed in the shadows of the Burlington railroad station at 18th street and Western avenue when the two recent convicts—Valentine Silva and John Bonk ("Jack Rabbit"), each 21 years old—walked E. P. Hulquist, theatre owner, on his way home with his theatre's Sunday receipts.

Eleven bullets entered Bonk's body, and seven Silva's. A third robber who had remained in a waiting motor car, escaped under a rain of fire from police who forced his car into the curb, where it was wrecked. The man leaped clear, climbed a fence and was lost in the darkness of a lumber yard.

A mysterious tip concerning the holdup was given police by Assistant State's Attorney Walker, who had received it from a jilted sweetheart of one of the three men. Walker would not go into detail concerning the source of his information, but said he believed the robber who escaped was known as "Stanley." All three, he added, had come to his attention when he was evolved in federal prohibition work.

Three squads of police officers, 15 men altogether, stationed themselves around the approach to the station an hour before Hulquist, who had not been informed of the attempt that was to be made against him, was due. The officers were so placed that there would be no deadly crossfire which might cost the lives of one or more of their number.

The three bandits arrived shortly before Hulquist. Bonk went to the top of the station stairs, Silva remained in the shadows of the foot, while the third man stayed in the car.

A few moments later Hulquist stepped from a street car and started for the Burlington station. Silva, cap pulled down over his eyes, pointed a pistol at Hulquist and told him to throw up his hands.

That was the police cue. Detective Sergeant Andrew Barry, armed with a shotgun, stepped forward shouting: "Police officers; put 'em up." He opened fire when Silva swung the point of his weapon toward him.

MARINES OFF FOR DUTY IN REBEL AREAS

Reinforcements for Nicaraguan Forces Leaving From Three Ports Today.

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The oft-recurring picture of American marines sailing for duty in foreign lands was afforded at three port cities today as reinforcements for the Nicaraguan campaigners assembled at San Diego, Cal., Norfolk, Va., and Charleston, S. C.

At the head of the marines at Charleston was Major John A. LeJune, commandant of the corps, who is bound for the central American republic to gather first hand information of the strife here involving his marines and the forces of the insurrecto, Augustino Sandino.

In Charleston harbor were the cruisers Trenton, Raleigh and Milwaukee, designated to carry the Paris Island battalion of leathernecks. The Trenton, flagship of the cruiser group, which is commanded by Rear Admiral George C. Day, assigned quarters to General LeJune, while Brig. Gen. Logan Poland, who is to command the augmented marine force in Nicaragua, was arranged for aboard the Raleigh.

The bulk of the marine force from the east was at Hampton Roads, Virginia, where the mine layer Ocea put in to take 430 enlisted men and officers aboard. About the same number of men were assembled at San Diego, with the mine layer Argonne assigned to them as transport.

The Norfolk contingent, comprising nearly half of the hastily formed eleventh regiment, is commanded by Colonel Robert H. Dunlap. Most of the men are veterans, and none is being taken to Nicaragua who has less than six months to serve of his enlistment. Goodbyes, reminiscent of world war days were said at the marine base yesterday as the men and officers equipped themselves for a long campaign.

When the 1,000 marines from the east and west coast unite with their buddies now on the scene, the force in Nicaragua will approximate 2,400. They will devote their activities, General LeJune said before leaving Washington yesterday, to eliminating sandino from the otherwise peaceful Nicaraguan horizon before the August elections.

The general intends merely to inspect his charges in Nicaragua and gather information which probably will be of value to the administration in its study of the situation, which has provoked much criticism in and out of congress. Actual command of the campaign will be left to General Poland. General LeJune as far as Quilich, present center of Sandino's activities, and upon leaving will sail for the west coast of the United States to inspect marine detachments there.

HEAVY LOSS AT LONDON

Damage Wrought by Thames River Increasing as Belated Reports Arrive.

London, Jan. 9.—(AP)—As tides ebbed and flowed without recurrence of disaster, London today dared to hope the anger of the Thames had subsided.

The Army of workmen, who fought to stem the rush of waters after the reign of terror, destruction and death of Saturday, continued on the alert, however. Precautions will be continued until after the high tides of tomorrow.

The air ministry warned of a probable renewal of the gale which brought the abnormal tide and flood of last week. The upper Thames had fallen somewhat today, but was still swollen.

At 3 o'clock this morning the tide came and went without destruction. Thousands of those who dwell by the riverside went to bed then, their vigil against the rush of waters ended for twelve hours more.

No accurate estimate of the damage wrought Saturday was possible today. Reports which were accumulated, however, indicated that it would be appalling. The loss fell with the greatest severity among the dwellers of the poorer districts where much furniture was destroyed, carpets and bedding soaked while the lower rooms were coated with a thick layer of slime and mud.

FOUR MORE BODIES TAKEN FROM S-4

TWO KILLED IN BLAST AT COAL MINES

Twenty-Four are Also Missing at Industrial Mines at Frankfort Ill.

West Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two miners are known to have been killed and 24 are missing, four hours after an explosion today in the Industrial Coal Company's mine No. 18, near here.

The dead are Carl Jones and Avid McFall. Their bodies still were in the mine at noon. Of approximately 100 men in the section of the mine where the explosion occurred, all but 24 had been accounted for.

Fire broke out after the explosion and made rescue work difficult. A rescue team from Benton entered the mine at 10:15 a. m., and a team from Valer entered an hour later.

More than six hundred men were employed in the mine. All made their escape except the 93 who were cut off by smoke and dust. A mine rescue team was summoned from Benton.

The cause of the explosion was not determined. It occurred in the section known as the "First East North," 600 feet below the surface. George Watkins, the first man to make his way to the surface from the explosion area, reported seeing several men apparently dead and other struggling as if they were injured.

Watkins said he crawled on his hands and knees to an air shaft through which he escaped. He said he did not know the cause of the explosion which occurred about one mile from the bottom of the shaft, just after the day shift had gone on duty at 7:30 a. m.

An emergency hospital was established near the mine and doctors and nurses were hastily summoned to give first aid to the injured.

A crowd estimated between 1,000 and 1,500 gathered around the entrance to the mine. These included many anxious relatives of the miners.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Little hope for the rescue alive of twenty-four men caught by the explosion in the Industrial Coal Company's mine No. 18 at West Frankfort, was expressed at the State Department of Mines and Minerals here.

"Bodies of two men have been recovered," the report said, "twenty-four are still in the mine."

Noting more definite concerning the 24 still unaccounted for was offered in the message, but its tone led the department to believe the blast was likely fatal to them.

REMUS JOINS PRISON CHOR

Wife Slayer Becomes Popular With Inmates of Hospital For Insane.

Lima, Ohio, Jan. 9.—(AP)—George Remus, acquitted by a Cincinnati jury of slaying his wife, Imogene, and committed to the state hospital for the insane here has entered into life at the institution as a model inmate and is proving popular with other members of his ward, according to Superintendent W. H. Vorbau.

He joined the choir on his first Sunday there yesterday, and intense interest in the services, asking whispered questions of the man on his right and joining lustily in the singing of hymns. The remainder of the day he spent in reading the Sunday papers.

Remus is quiet, congenial and apparently resigned to his fate, Dr. Vorbau said. All visitors will be denied the privilege of seeing Remus, Superintendent Vorbau said.

It has been indicated by Remus' attorneys, Francis W. Durbin and D. C. Henderson of Lima, that three Lima physicians, in addition to hospital doctors, will likely be chosen to observe Remus.

Charles H. Elston, chief counsel for Remus, and the two Lima attorneys retained, indicated that habeas corpus proceedings will be sought, but would not say when. In the meantime Remus is being put through the regular preliminary proceedings at the hospital. No work has been assigned him as yet and he has expressed no preference. Under ordinary conditions Dr. Vorbau said, it will take several months to determine Remus' sanity.

COLLECTION DEPARTMENT FOR STORES

Merchants Association Announces Establishment of Department for Members.

The Greenville Merchants Association has just closed one of the best years of its operation, and their program for the current year means still another growth in its activities. The local secretary today, in discussing the past achievements of the association, said cooperation of the individual members with the executive offices had brought about benefits that were mutual for the entire membership.

One of the first parts of the year's program is the establishment of a collection department for the exclusive use of the members of the local association, and the services of an assistant secretary to Mr. Rowlett has been added to the office force to assist in this particular department as well as securing proper and correct credit rating of those trading with the Greenville merchants who are members of the local body. One of the features of this department is a list of those designated as "undesirables." Such a list is made from reports furnished the secretary by the membership, and contains the names of those who, through failure to pay their honest obligations after due notice, are classed as "not deserving of credit." The secretary stated that this list was being curtailed through the work of the collection bureau.

There are other features of the year's plans that will be put into practice from time to time which will prove a benefit to the trading public as well as the merchants.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A route along the northern coast of Panama lay before the Lone Eagle today on the leg of his central American good flight which takes him furthest south. Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was 310 miles from his goal by airplane. Since he has asserted that he would make no long flights over water, it was considered probable that he would skirt the Caribbean shore, thus lengthening the actual distance he has to travel to reach Panama.

LINDY WILDLY HERALDED AT PANAMA TODAY

American Flying Ace Completes the Last Lap of Central American Journey.

Panama, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A fine flight from San Jose, Costa Rica, to Panama City, today carried Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to the end of his central American tour. He left San Jose at 9:45 (eastern standard time) and landed safely at Campo Lindbergh, on Panama soil at 1:51 this afternoon.

As the famous aviator came over Balboa and swept swiftly toward the landing place there was a tropical shower and a stiff wind was blowing.

The great crowd had gathered at the flying field including many Americans and Lindbergh and his usual enthusiastic welcome.

President Chiari in greeting him said: "Col. Lindbergh others have secured the liberty of America. You with your ability of shortening distance are establishing a bond of fraternity and are bringing together all the American countries on a basis of real understanding."

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A route along the northern coast of Panama lay before the Lone Eagle today on the leg of his central American good flight which takes him furthest south. Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was 310 miles from his goal by airplane. Since he has asserted that he would make no long flights over water, it was considered probable that he would skirt the Caribbean shore, thus lengthening the actual distance he has to travel to reach Panama.

The flyer doubted whether he would be able to land on the field prepared for him on native soil by Panama. If he should find landing there impracticable, he said he would land on a field on American soil in the Canal Zone.

After a stay of several days in Panama, Lindbergh will start north, having abandoned any intention to go to Colombia and Venezuela at this time. Making one or more stops enroute, he plans to arrive at Havana during the sessions of the pan-American congress, which opened January 16.

Without protest or advance publicity he attended another bull fight Sunday. His attendance at one in Mexico City was in the face of various protests from individuals and organizations. Farm hands were the matadors at the fight staged here. The amateur fighters did their best to emulate the death defying stunts of the professionals and some paid for their audacity by getting tossed. No one was seriously injured.

The airman invaded the realm of soccer, kicking off for a game between a native and a Peruvian team. A crowded program forced him to leave before the Peruvians won 2 to 0.

Lindbergh received a set of books by Costa Rican authors from a native girl chosen queen of a labor "arrival. American residents of Costa Rica also had an opportunity to honor the flyer.

A delegation visited the American embassy and presented him with a desk set made of gold and tortoise shell, a Costa Rican product.

As guest of the Costa Rican Rotary Club, the chamber of commerce and the Masons he received gifts for his mother as well as himself.

Lindbergh said his trip from Managua to San Jose was the best of his central American tour as regards to weather conditions, despite a little rain and some cross winds. The hop from Guatemala City to Belize, British Honduras, he considered the most difficult.

And that's not all, for Granger is cut to burn slower, too; it's Rough Cut. Any dyed-in-the-wool smoker knows what that means—cooler smoking! All the quality where it counts—inside the package; not a penny wasted for show. It's a product we can stand squarely back of—and we do!

TRANS-OCEANIC AIR LINES LOOK TO BUILDERS OF FUTURE

Just as many cities today owe their stature to the airplane, new cities of 1950 may be in debt to the airplane. St. John's, N. F., Valencia, Ireland, and Horta in the Azores, are among budding terminals and junction points of trans-oceanic air lines. At the middle right is the day of St. John's, halfway point on air routes to Africa, and below it is Harbor Grace, N. F., another jumping off place for flyers. The South American youngsters at the left are viewing a plane which is making Girardot, Columbia, a thriving inland town by giving seaplane service up the Magdalena river.

Washington (AP)—The airplane has made heroes and heroines. Will it make cities?

If headlines hint of the future, the faith of St. John's and Harbor Grace, Newfoundland; Horta, in the Azores; Valencia, Ireland; Dakar, Africa; Pernambuco, Brazil; Karachi, India; Port Darwin, Australia, and many similar seacoast towns may well pin their faith on the airplane.

The railway junction of yesterday is the metropolis of today. Perhaps the airports of today will be the great cities of 1950, if the business of aerial travel and transportation continues in its forward strides.

Surest of blessings from aviation, the National Geographic society believes, is St. John's Newfoundland, from which and over which so many famous flights have been made. It was from St. John's that the NC-4 departed on its successful flight to the Azores and Lisbon, and it was to St. John's that Alcock and Brown flew in the same year from Clifden, Ireland.

Although Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd did not stop at St. John's to buy gasoline, it is deemed likely that commercial trans-Atlantic aircraft will use the port as the halfway place on the great circle route between the United States and Europe and even on the Azores route. Columbus pioneered the best European to America route for aircraft. He sailed before the trade wind to the Azores, and commercial airlines will undoubtedly take Columbus' southern route to avoid the vicious westerlies feather north that beat down two planes from Europe in 1927 and forced a German flier back. Favorable winds will be the making of Horta, on the Azorean island of Fayal, as an airport on the Atlantic.

The South Atlantic extends slightly warmer hospitality to the airplane than does the North Atlantic, although the water gap between the continents measures nearly the same—1,300 miles from St. John's to Valencia Island, Ireland, and 1,300 miles from Pernambuco to Dakar.

But Africa wishes the Cape Verde Islands 300 miles off coast to help the airman, and South America reaches out with Fernando Noronha, 200 miles northeast of Pernambuco. Then there is St. Paul Island, a dot of land midway between the continents and a possible future emergency station. So Dakar and Pernambuco are likely to be airports of 1950.

The airplane as a city maker is functioning already in some places. Girardot, Columbia, is a thriving town today because seaplanes serve up the Magdalena river, abbreviating the long racking trip from Barranquilla on the coast to Bogota, the capital, ends at the Girardot hangars.

Boma, near the Congo mouth in Africa, has at airplane future by virtue of a Belgian Colonial service which shortens the tropical journey to Elizabethville a whole month. Yesterday Kisumu was a British outpost of Lake Victoria in mid-Africa. Today it is the terminus of the air service from Khartoum—tomorrow perhaps, the air metropolis of Africa.

Gaza in the Palestine and Baghdad in Mesopotamia see the glory of caravan days returning as the express drops down from the sky. Karachi, already a port and railroad is the natural air gate of India for planes which go up the Indus river to Delhi, down the Ganges to Calcutta and on to Singapore and Australia.

Four flights in recent years have blazed air trails and cities of the future: The Army round-the-world fliers on their jump for Seattle to Tokyo by way of the Aleutian Islands; the flight of six Russian planes from Moscow to Perking; Colonel de Pinedo's daring adventure up the middle of South America and the Hawaiian flights.

ABOUT TOWN

"Opening services at the new Presbyterian church last night were very inspiring this morning declared Rev. H. F. Jones, pastor of Memorial Baptist church.

"The Presbyterians actually have something to be proud of in completion of this new edifice. In my opinion the structure is one of the most imposing in this part of the state and should serve the congregation for some time to come.

"It was appropriate that other churches united in the opening of the new church last night. It went to show that they are intensely interested in what their neighbors are doing and are always ready to help them do it.

"May the services of the men who made the new building possible inspire the congregation to attempt greater and nobler things in the days to come.

"Will you kindly announce that the next Lion's orthopedic clinic will be held at Wilson Friday, January 13th," wrote H. L. Stanton, supervisor of vocational rehabilitation, to members of this staff today.

"Also announce that a similar clinic, sponsored by Rotary, will be held in the Federal building at Washington January 30.

"We are very anxious to get this message before all the indigent cripples of this section so that they may be able to take advantage of the clinic. Experts are at command of those in need of treatment while the clinics are being held and those in need of aid should not fail to take advantage of these clinics."

"We are expecting good attendance at the Fifth District Dental society conference to be held at the East Carolina Teachers' College, January 15," Dr. Paul Jones, of Farmville, secretary, wrote the writer of this column today.

"The program for the affair is probably one of the most complete in years. We were able to get the services of two or three leading members of the profession in the part of the country, and what they have to say should prove of great benefit to our membership.

"One of the outstanding speakers of the conference will be Dr. G. M. Cooper, of Raleigh, representing the State Board of Health. Dr. Cooper is well informed concerning health conditions in all parts of the state and his address should contain much valuable information.

"The first week in January passed off all right in the business field," members of the Merchants association said this morning.

"Virtually the entire week was taken up by reorganization for the New Year. Then there was the important matter of getting books clear. This necessitated collecting, and as everybody knows, collecting is hard work. But for some unexplainable reason it didn't prove so difficult this year. The majority of people paid cheerfully—far more so than expected, and we had gotten straightened out and ready to carry on into the new year before we knew exactly what had happened.

"If you don't believe Greenville is building—and building fast—compare the present size of the town to that of five or six years ago," invited one of the old residents, in a fruitless effort to get up an argument with one of his pessimistic brethren today.

"But somehow no argument developed, and the gentleman had to do all the talking himself.

"Look anywhere you will—in any part of the town—and you will see plenty of buildings that were not there five years ago. You will see new residential subdivisions of the most inviting kind with numbers of wonderful looking houses under construction.

"In the business district a similar situation prevails. Many new firms have come among us, and the majority of them seem to be doing a flourishing business. This little old town certainly is destined to become the leading city in eastern Carolina. The sooner the ambition is realized the better we shall like it."

for greater progress for the county and section.

REMNISCENSES OF PITT COUNTY

(By A. J. MOYE)
 In my former article I wrote of Mr. J. H. Ballard, who was a dried-up, little man who was in many respects, a progressive citizen. He was a pioneer in building good tenement houses. When these houses were finished he imported several families of Swiss, who couldn't speak English. For some reason they soon migrated to other parts and then these houses were occupied by the poorer class of native white people. He was reported to have buried a nice sum of gold and silver when Waterloo's Cavalry and the Yankees were pillaging the country, and lost his memorandum of the location of the money.

The loss of this money was a very severe blow to Mr. Ballard and his good wife—one of the very best. She believed that some of her friends mysteriously became possessed of the memorandum and found the money, but would not divide with her. Ballard's son, Joe, used to make all of the small boys at school envious of him, on account of the sweet potatoes he brought to school in the spring.

Mr. Moses Joyner, who was the next neighbor over Tyer's Bridge, had a small one-room house in which three women lived, Mrs. Denton and son, Alonzo; Mrs. Tutus, Elks, and Miss Denton, an old-maid sister of Mr. Denton. They had three beds in a row which was often in plain view from the road. I, as a boy, never had seen three beds in a row in one house elsewhere. Alonzo Denton is a prominent business man of Greenville. Mr. Denton and Mr. Elks were at this time in the Confederate service.

Mr. Joyner had curly hair, and a disposition to find fault, and latterly, a sneaking fondness for strong drink which was the ruin of him.

Once I saw a wagon load of ripe watermelons on his front porch and in the front yard. There was no sale for watermelons so he gave them to whomsoever visited him. I suppose I went there to see his daughter, Sally, and cat watermelons, where I saw Mrs. Joyner's sister-in-law—Sally Lassiter—so very thin that I could almost see the bones in her hands. She had a terrible cough. She was a beautiful woman and was engaged to Amos Hines. Mr. Hines must have grieved much, as it was twenty years afterwards, when he married a Miss Ashe of Raleigh.

Mr. Henry Joyner and Mrs. Richard Tyson, his cousin, and two young ladies, went to a party over in Greene county, where in all probability, they had a good time, but alas these young bloods had fine, high-strung horses. Probably they were racing, as was the custom of such young men. As they approached Sandy Run bridge, Mr. Tyson's horse began to run and he lost control of him. He ran over I, as a boy, never had seen three

Looking Backward

Items Taken From The Reflector Of Twenty and Thirty Years Ago

January 9, 1908 January 9, 1898

The Acolian Band made its first appearance last night. The boys came out and played on the corner near the opera house before the opening of the performance. Considering they have had less than a month of practice they did remarkably well, and their music was applauded by people gathered on the street.

The Winterville items announced that Roy Kittrell of Greenville, was visiting in that city.

Grifton items announced the fact that on January 1, the dispensary had closed forever.

Oakley items announced that the previous Sunday Miss Fannie Moore of Greenville, spent the day there with Mrs. J. B. Whitehurst.

The local personal column carried the following items: Miss Mrs. Schultz returned to school at Richmond today. W. H. Dail returned from Washington.

Cuy Lanier left for Richmond to attend business college. J. N. Hart went to Lewiston.

ITALY NOTES DECLINE IN COST OF LIVING
 Rome, Italy (AP)—The bugbear of all householders and wage-earners, the cost of living seems to be receding in Italy although prices are still high. According to recent figures the cost of necessities has dropped from five to twelve per cent during the last six months.

Meats still cost American prices, which are high in a country where wages are nothing like as large as in America. Rents have decreased twelve per cent, through orders of the government and foodstuffs as a class have dropped in price eight per cent, while clothing is cheaper by five percent than six months ago, and other necessities show a decrease in price of four per cent.

ceived injuries from which he shortly died.

The horse of Mr. Joyner served his Sister, Mrs. Mary Ann Anderson, as a fine drive horse for the next fifteen years.

Mrs. Lucy Turnage, the widow of Elias Turnage, had an Albino negro woman, Maria, who was a great curiosity to us as she was so nearly blind that she must of necessity turn and twist her head fast in order to see at all. She was considered quite a poor woman yet was very kind, and I loved to visit her and her son Jim.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

NEW YORK COTTON

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Relatively easy Liverpool cotton reports of larger fertilizer tag sales for December seemed responsible for moderate declines in the cotton market today.

After showing net losses of 18 to 20 points, prices recovered part of the loss on covering, with trading quiet and the tone fairly steady but prices still showing net losses of about 10 to 16 points during mid afternoon.

Futures closed steady, 5 to 19 lower.

Spot quiet; middling 19.00.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Prices were steady on the stock market today, with an undertone of firmness. Radio Corporation opened with a sale of a block of 5,000 shares which were up fractionally. Moderate buying of some of the motor was in evidence at the outset. Vanadium Steel opened two points higher and Atchafalaya and American were about a point lower.

The close was irregular. Total sales approximated 2,650,000 shares.

Ask Rehearing Brown Will Case

Raleigh, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A petition for a re-hearing of the Judge George H. Brown will case has been filed by Judge Browns widow with the state supreme court and referred to Chief Justice W. P. Stacy, it is learned today. Decision on whether or not the case may be reopened rests with Justice Stacy.

The Brown will, leaving a fortune to the widow, was attacked by relatives last summer on the allegation that the distinguished jurist, not mentally capable of making the will. A small fortune was involved and the prominence of the parties to the suit added to the interest in the litigation when it was tried at Washington, N. C.

A superior court jury ruled with those who sought the break the will case went to the supreme court, of which Judge Brown was for years a distinguished member.

The supreme court was divided on the question and voted against a new trial three to two.

As now stands Justice Stacy will either approve or deny the petition for a re-hearing. If he denies the petition the matter will be closed, but if he approves it the case will be docketed for another hearing before supreme court.

Falls Thru Ice And is Drowned

Montreat, Jan. 9.—(AP)—June Humphries, heroine of a futile attempt to save the life of Carl Williams, fourteen old Montreat boy who fell through the ice of Lake Susan while skating Saturday afternoon apparently was none the worse today for her experience in plunging into the chilly water despite the fact that she is just recovering from a broken shoulder received while playing basketball.

The girl, a qualified life guard, was back at her classes today dismissing with modesty all praise for her bold dive under the ice in an effort to rescue the youth. She is the daughter of Bert Humphries of Orlando, Fla., her only comment on the tragedy was that the water was terribly cold and she was sorry she was unable to save the boy.

Donald, a younger brother of Carl, was still in bed today from experience. He also dived under the ice trying to save the other boy. Funeral services for the drowned boy were held Sunday.
