HAWLEY HITS AT TAX RAISE

Says He Is Not Convinced Tax Increase Is Imperative At This Time

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Placing relief of the government second to relief of business, Representative Hawley made it plain today he is not convinced a tax increase is imperative.

He headed the ways and means committee of the last House, which group must originate revenue legislation.

Returning to the capital the day after Senate administration leaders declared additional governmental revenue essential, the Oregon Republican said he had hoped "no increase would be necessary but sentiment around here seems to favor one."

"If an increase should become necessary, we would have to study the situation carefully and put the additional levies where they would do the least harm, he added. "It seems to me the way should be made as plain as possible for an economic recovery and that additional taxes would delay that recovery."

Hawley viewed business conditions as beginning to return to normal and said: "That is what makes me careful regarding tax matters. Relief of the government is a secondary consideration; relief of the people and (Continued on page six)

Escaped Convict Given Long Term In State Prison

Newton, N. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Charlie Hilton, escaped convict and confessed pal of Dave Pressley who was fatally shot as the two robbed a Hickory filling station Saturday night, was sentenced to 30 to 45 years in state's prison today on three charges of highway robbery.

The aggregate sentences of 10 to 15 years for each offense are not to become effective until Hilton completes serving of his present 12-month sentence for a payroll robbery here last February.

Hilton was arranged before Judge Wilson Warlick in Superior court here following his confession of the Hickory holdup to officers and his capture yesterday near Marion.

Hilton had escaped three times while serving his sentence for the payroll robbery and was a fugitive from justice when he and Pressley staged the filling station holdup.

Pressley, officers said after the whole story had been gathered, was killed by Oscar Teague, who drove up to the filling station of Hatcher Haver just as the bandits were leaving with $95. His body was found in an abandoned automobile the pair had stolen, near Connelly Springs, where Hilton admitted he left it.

WEST STILL IN COLD GRIP

Mountain Roads Are Closed After Heavy Snowfall; Dozens Of Motorists Rescued

San Francisco, Nov. 17.—(AP)—A storm which trapped dozens of persons in the snow covered mountains of California, among them Noah Beery, screen actor, held much of the American northwest and the Pacific slope in its cold grip today.

Mountain roads, especially those leading over the Sierra Nevada from California to points east, were closed due to the heavy snowfall. Dozens of motorists were rescued after having been forced to abandon their automobiles.

With but six exceptions, all those mentioned were reported safe last night including Beery and two companions, who struck out Sunday morning into the snow-clad San Gabriel mountains near Palmdale, Calif., to search for Robert Elliott of Liano, Calif., who was reported lost.

Elliott was found by an Indian and brought to safety, but Beery, O. G. Norris, his ranch foreman, and A. L. Hendricks, a real estate man, were themselves lost.

Caught in a terrific winstorm which followed a heavy snowfall, the three braved the elements for 36 hours. They found shelter in a deserted cabin Sunday night.

Early yesterday they started the hard trek back. Three returned to Hollywood near exhaustion late last night.

Search was under way for two men believed to be near Bloods, a outpost in the high Sierra east of Anselc Camp. The two, Alexander and Fred Lombardi, father and son were rounding up cattle when the storm broke.

Four Sacramento men, marooned in a cabin at Echo Lake, were awaiting favorable weather conditions to make a try for the outside. They had food and fuel for a week's sojourn. Their six companions of an outfit trip fought their way out and reached Sacramento last night after a harrowing trip through the heavy drifts.

OLD RALEIGH SCHOOL BURNS

Building On Morgan Street Used By Salvation Army Completely Destroyed

Raleigh, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The old Raleigh high school building on West Morgan street, abandoned as a school but recently tenured the Salvation Army as its home here, was destroyed by fire at 2 o'clock this morning, a few hours before Raleigh launched its annual community chest campaign.

Captain L. Shackelford and his corps of Salvation Army workers had labored for weeks preparing the old school for their use and had expended more than $1,000 in the work. Clothing, food and other supplies in preparation for relief work during the winter were wiped out by the blaze, as well as most of the office records of the organization.

Douglas Avers of Sparta, N. C., assistant to Captain Shackelford, was in charge of the building last night. He said he believed the fire resulted from defective wiring as he could hear an electric buzzer in full blast in the basement after he was awakened by Carl H. Wark of Louisville, Ky., one of a half dozen homeless men spending the night in the building. Wark said he was the first of the group to awaken and found dense smoke in the building and the floor warm.

All uptown fire fighting equipment was called out to fight the blaze, which was almost directly across the street from the central fire station and within a stone's throw of the state capitol.

The building was constructed more than 25 years ago and was used until two or three years ago (Continued on Page Four)

National Grange To Meet In N. C.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The National Grange will hold its next convention in a North Carolina city to be selected by the national and North Carolina executive committees.

Choice of North Carolina as the next convention state followed a plea by W. Kerr Scott, Haw River, N. C., master of his state's grange. He said the south was the birthplace and that the organization owes it to the south "to come home for its next convention." There has never been a national grange meeting in the south during the 65 years since it was organized.

The convention was on the verge of being awarded to Washington, to be held in connection with the bi-centennial celebration when the plea by Scott turned the tide of sentiment.

Louis J. Taber of Columbus, O., was elected to his fourth term as national master at the meeting here.

STILL READY FOR BATTLE

Chinese General Agrees To Fall Back If Japanese Evacuate Nonni River Sector; Anxiety Spreads Over League of Nations As Result Of Action Of America And Russia; United States Not Ready To Take Part In Deliberations

Tokyo, Nov. 17.—(AP)—General Mah Chan-Shan, the Chinese commander in Manchuria, has submitted a set of counter proposals to the Japanese general Honjo, dispatched from Mukden said today, but is standing his ground south of Ananchi with no indication that he intends to withdraw.

Dispatches from Harbin earlier in the day indicated that General Mah had accepted the Japanese demand that he withdraw, but the Mukden report of the counter proposals said he would fall back only if the Japanese evacuate the Nonni river sector and give guarantees that General Chang Hai-Peng shall not be permitted to use the Taonan Ananchi railway.

General Mah also repeated his assertion that he cannot withdraw all his forces north of the Chinese Eastern railway because of the presence of bandits in the south.

Meanwhile, it was said that military authorities here had decided to ask the cabinet that reinforcements be sent to Manchuria quickly because of the increasingly threatening situation there. It was announced that Lieut. General Ninomiya, vice-chief of the general staff, will leave for Mukden this evening "on an important mission."

Portents of changes in the attitudes of the United States and Russia today threw fresh fits of anxiety over the League of Nations council, which is facing the test of its dozen years in an effort to restore peace in Manchuria.

Reliable indications appeared overnight that the United States was relaxing its firm stand for Japanese evacuation of the disputed area and that Russia is beginning to bestir herself against Japanese military activities close to the Siberian frontier.

The members of the council, with out the Chinese and Japanese representatives, met privately at the Quai D'Orsay shortly before noon. The meeting followed private individual conversations of Ambassador Dawes and Chairman Briand with the Chinese and Japanese spokesmen, Dr. Sze and Ambassador Yehshizawa.

The impression gained ground that Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and the United States Government are not inclined to co-operate closely with the League in its efforts to settle the controversy and a report was received from a high authority that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, has filed a protest at Tokyo regarding Japanese army movements in the region of the Chinese Eastern railway which is in the Russian sphere of influence in Manchuria.

This news led to the belief that Russia would not keep her hands off the situation indefinitely if the League and the United States failed to halt the Japanese advance.

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Ambassador Dawes is staying out of the League of Nations Manchurian sessions at Paris because the United States is not ready to decide how far it will accompany the League along the pathway toward forceful measures against Japan.

Secretary Stimson said today that assurances had been given or were being given whether this government would join in an economic boycott or withdraw its diplomatic representatives from Japan if the Japanese troops stay in Manchuria. He denied flatly a published story that a promise against such action had been given.

The United States does not regard itself as involved in the present League dilemma arising from Japan's refusal to withdraw her troops by last night as the League requested. Washington did not associate itself with that time limit, and is letting the League decide for itself what it will do.

LEAF PRICES BETTER HERE

Prices on the Greenville tobacco market showed a pronounced upward trend yesterday, and the market averaged $11.11 on 1,204,808 pounds of leaf, it was made known today in the official report of K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales. The total amount paid out by the market was $133,889.56.

For the season the market has sold $6,834,688 pounds for a total sum of $4,696,264.97 at a general average of $10.00 per hundred pounds.

Improvement of prices was noticed on virtually on all grades. Good tobacco has attracted attention of the competitive buying companies the major part of the season and this has resulted in fairly good prices being paid for such grades.

So far on the floors of the various warehouses today but sales were expected to be completed during the late afternoon.

Sales are usually always heavy prior to the Thanksgiving holidays and this season is expected to be no exception.

STRESS WORK OF LIBRARY

Display Of Falkland Schools Shows Appreciation Of Local Library To District

Showing its interest in Sheppard Memorial Library here, the Falkland School has placed an attractive display in the window of the Merchants Association office on Evans street.

The display, one of the most unique of its kind produced by any of the county schools, contains cardboard buildings representing the Falkland school building and the Sheppard Memorial Library.

A roadway winds lazily from the school to the library, and two farmhouses with fields of grain and other products forming the landscape give an impression of the scenery of the district.

Falkland is one of the largest patrons of the library, and the display of the school children is an attempt to express their appreciation of the wonderful service which the library has been to them.

Scores of people have paused in front of the Merchants Association office to look at the creation, and the faithful manner in which the library and school buildings have been reproduced was a matter of much praise and commendation.

The interest which rural communities are displaying in the library is a matter of much satisfaction to members of the Library Commission who have repeatedly stressed the fact that the institution is a community-wide asset and should be used by everybody.

Falkland for years has been one of the most progressive districts of the county, and the advantage which they are taking of the vast opportunities offered by the library, it is believed, will mean much to the future life of the citizenship.

Adventures Of Betty And Scarlet Bunny

By W. A. LILLYCROP

Betty was just wondering how long it would be before mother would say: "It's bedtime, dear," when suddenly footsteps were heard coming up on the porch: "Hippity-hop, hippity-hop, hippity-hop. Then the doorbell rang.

Mother turned on the porch light and opened the door. Who do you suppose was there? It was Scarlet Bunny!

"Come right in, Scarlet Bunny," said mother cordially. "You are just in time to see Betty before she goes to bed."

"But I wanted to ask you if Betty might go with me tonight to visit the Fairies?" said Scarlet Bunny as he came inside. "To visit the Fairies?" repeated mother. "Where?"

"Just over on the college campus. Mother," chimed in Betty. "Scarlet Bunny says there are some Fairies there. Please let me go just this once! We will come back whenever you say!"

Mother looked at the two of them for a moment then she said: "Well, this is unusual. But also, it's unusual to see the Fairies. You may go this once if you will promise to start back home again when the ten o'clock lights flash over at the college."

Both promised. Then in no time at all with coat and hat on, Betty climbed into the little red airplane with Scarlet Bunny and with a putt-putt, putt, they were flying towards the lake on the campus.

When they had arrived near their destination Betty brought the plane down. Then they climbed out, and he and Betty tip-toed to a spot near the lake shore. There they hid behind a bush.

They had been crouching behind the bush for a while a long time it seemed to Betty, without seeing anything but the darkness and without hearing anything but the falling leaves and the wind blowing.

"She was just about to say: 'Let's go back home,' when Scarlet Bunny asked her: 'Isn't it lovely?'"

"Lovely?" grumbled Betty. "Why I don't see any Fairies or anything else lovely here!"

"That's because you only have your eyes half open," said Scarlet Bunny sadly. "So many people are unable to see the beautiful things always around them because they have their eyes only half open."

At this Betty opened her eyes wider and sure enough she saw something besides the dark now. In the woods on the lake shore there were the loveliest hues of pink and violet, blue and silver and golden light everywhere. Moreover, what she had thought was empty woods she saw now was crowded with happy faced Fairy folk.

As for the falling leaves, which she had grumbled about before, she now saw them being used as parachutes by other Fairies who were sailing happily on the fluttering brown and orange and red leaves to their meeting in the woods on the lake side.

Also, she saw that the leaves floating on the water of the lake were being used by still other Fairies who were merrily rowing them as boats to reach their happy Fairy meeting.

When she had overcome her surprise enough to speak, Betty touched Scarlet Bunny and whispered: "It is lovely! But where does the light come from? The Fairies have no lanterns, yet it is light as day here."

"Why the light is due to the Fairies' dispositions," explained Scarlet

Bunny. "All the true Fairies are helpful and cheerful and thoughtful and kind. And their lives are filled with light for themselves and for each other."

"But look over there," pointed Betty, "there is a dark spot in the Fairy group. What is that?"

"You will see in a minute," answered Scarlet Bunny. "That is a group of Fairies who have turned out to be 'Not-True-Fairies.' They have refused to be helpful and cheerful and thoughtful and kind. And now their lights have gone out. You will see in a short time what happens to them."

Fascinated, Betty and Scarlet Bunny continued to watch.

The Fairies seemed to be having such a jolly time. They were talking and laughing with each other. And although Betty and Scarlet Bunny were too far away to hear all the Fairies were saying, they guessed from the few words they did hear, and from the happy expressions on the Fairies' faces, that they were telling each other of good deeds they had done.

After a time they noticed that the Fairies were forming themselves into a large circle as though for a meeting. Then Betty gasped with pleasure for into the center of the circle, as the leader of the Fairy meeting, there appeared the most beautiful person you could imagine.

She was like the golden sunlight itself. Her dress was of rainbow colored silk which had been spun as finely as a spider's web. On her head there was a crown of gold studded with flashing precious stones, in her hand was a shining wand while her lovely face was radiant with kindness and sweetness and light.

"It must be the Fairy Queen!" breathlessly whispered Betty to Scarlet Bunny.

"Yes," he nodded his head without speaking. The first thing the Fairy Queen did was look sadly towards the dark spot where the "Not-true-Fairies" were huddled together. Then she raised her wand in their direction. And instantly the dark spot was gone from the Fairy group.

"What happened then?" asked Betty of Scarlet Bunny in a whisper.

"Why those 'Not-True-Fairies' were banished from the kingdom of the Fairies," explained Scarlet Bunny. "They have refused to spread helpfulness and light. So now they have been sent away to live forever in the darkness they love."

"But what will they do in the darkness?" asked Betty.

"Listen!" whispered Scarlet Bunny. Betty listened and she heard what sounded like the croaking of frogs.

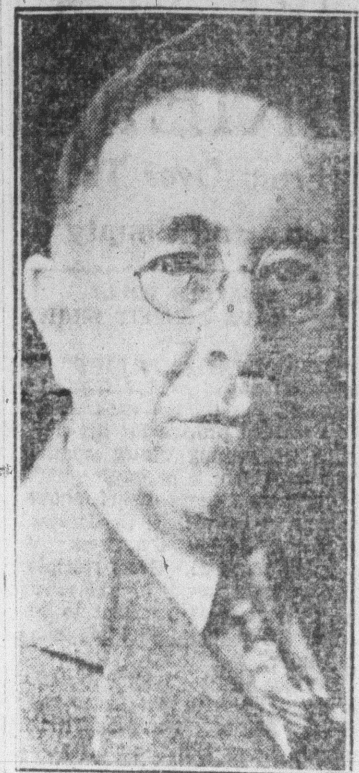

"That," continued Scarlet Bunny. "is some of the 'Not-True-Fairies.' They are such ugly creatures that they are croaking and bellowing now trying to upset this Fairy meeting. Others of them will get into people's radios and try to drown out with noise the sweet music of the radio programs. Still others of them will look around for boys and girls who are troublesome and unkind and gummy. Then the 'Not-True-Fairies' will hide in their clothes and make them more so."

"Can you come over to my house tomorrow, Scarlet Bunny?" "Yes," said he, "Why?"

"If you will," answered Betty, "I have thought of something we can do to help the Fairies!"

In tomorrow's Reflector, read about Scarlet Bunny and what they did to help the Fairies.

May Move Up.

William P. Kenney (above) of St. Paul, vice president in charge of traffic on the Great Northern railroad, has been prominently mentioned as successor to Ralph Budd as president after Budd becomes head of the Burlington line.

"I'm glad I'm not a grumpy girl!" quickly declared Betty.

To this Scarlet Bunny just smiled but did not say a word.

Both of them looked again toward the Fairy group; and they saw the Queen talking very earnestly to all the Fairies.

They listened very quietly, and they could hear a few words of her sweet, bell-like voice.

"Kind Fairies," she was saying, "we must help people now as never before. There are many needy and unhappy people in the world. We must do all we can. In fact, we must even enlarge our numbers by getting some other kind hearted creatures to help us—"

Just at that moment the lights of the college flashed. Betty and Scarlet Bunny did not have time to hear more. Quickly they left the bush and tip-toed back to where they had left their airplane to keep their promise to mother.

However, as the airplane gently came down in Betty's yard, before she told Scarlet Bunny good-night, Betty asked:

"Can you come over to my house tomorrow, Scarlet Bunny?" "Yes," said he, "Why?"

"If you will," answered Betty, "I have thought of something we can do to help the Fairies!"

ABOUT TOWN

Welcome Methodists! This is the greeting which will be heard on all sides today and tomorrow as hosts of the Methodist Episcopal Church from all sections of Eastern and Central Carolina gather here for their annual conference.

The gathering will bring to the city some of the most prominent members of the denomination and the session promises to be one of the best in years. It is the third time the church has brought its annual conference to the city since 1891 and the welcome is just as cordial and hearty now as it was then.

Greenville and the Methodist too have grown numerically since that first session and both can look back upon a splendid record of progress and achievement.

Members of the denomination here have done everything in their power to make the occasion truly representative of the great cause it serves and every delegate will find the doors of hundreds of homes thrown open to them in true Greenville style.

All through the week until the concluding conference session next Sunday, the city's slogan, "Our Greenville, Yours If You Come," will be in ascendency, and the ministers and laymen are urged to take full advantage of it.

This business of firing on highway patrolmen is getting to be serious and it should be the purpose of the law enforcement officers to throw out a dragnet and round up the responsible parties.

Twice within the last month a patrolman has been fired on while performing his duty, and each time the assailants have escaped.

Policing the highways is just as important as policing a town or city these days, and the officers should be permitted to carry out the law enforcement program without interference from anybody.

Shooting at an officer who drives up beside a car to enforce the law and protect hundreds of others from reckless drivers, is one of the most reprehensible crimes to be imagined and it is hoped the officers will continue hammering away at the case until the guilty parties are brought to justice.

Gipsy Smith will close his campaign in Greenville this week and everybody has been urged to turn out and hear the final message of the gifted evangelist.

He has delivered several interesting appeals dealing with fundamental principles of Christianity and church goers have been greatly inspired.

It is this kind of preaching that the world needs to lift it from the inertia into which it has drifted the last few years, and if the great truths of the Bible should be preached from every pulpit it would not be long before the people would be brought nearer to God.

The rise of Gipsy Smith and his son to the highest pinnacles of the religious field of England and America has all the glamour of the best of fiction. This story will be unfolded by the son himself at the Saturday evening service here.

Reaching down into a band of nomads, God brought two figures who stand out prominently in His evangelism of the world, and Greenville is proud of the fact that one of them should have come here to attempt to lift its public life to a higher plane.

More men of the type of Gipsy Smith and his father are needed during this complex age, and the sooner the people heed their call to the ranks in which they are battling the sooner the world will reach that unobstructed sphere where sorrow and heartache and pain, never come.

The Conservation Department is considering placing a ban on hunting in an effort to prevent the further spread of forest fires during the dry period, according to information from Raleigh yesterday.

Thousands of dollars worth of timberlands have been destroyed by flames during the last month and the toll will increase unless effective measures are taken to improve the situation. There is not a hunter in the state who would not be glad to suspend activities in the woods until there is a change in weather conditions, and the Conservation Department would not go amiss by taking the contemplated action.

Greenville was the shrine to which people of this section came last week to take advantage of the special sale event put on by various merchants.

The stores will have unnumbered values to offer from now until the holiday season and nobody would go amiss by coming here to take advantage of the splendid offerings.

If you did not visit the city last week make it a point to come between now and the holidays and get your share of the goods.

Chaffee, police and officials from a private detective agency, which caused Chadwick's arrest, declined to name the bank from which the bonds were taken. Philadelphia dispatches said an indictment against Chadwick would be sought tomorrow, after which which Governor Pinchot would be requested to sign extradition papers

Counsel for Chadwick here said he will fight extradition, and added "we can prove that Mr. Chadwick has not been in Philadelphia in 15 years, save for passing through on the train." Chadwick, an official of numerous Wilmington companies, said he was attempting to negotiate the bonds merely as broker, and admitted signing the name of J. W. Nelson, of New York, on them. He said Nelson was a New York broker who owned the bonds. He was arrested Saturday.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 17.—(AP)—But a few careers remain to be turned before the end of the 1931 football season comes in sight and the south is already looking over prospects for this year's all-star Southern Conference honor team.

They were limbering up exercises, wind sprints and work on pass defense. Coach Chuck Collins said there probably would be no scrimmage this week.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 2 points in response to steeper Liverpool cables coupled with trade buying and covering. January sold up to 6.41.

There was some southern selling and liquidation but offerings were generally light and January advanced to 6.47 during the early trading while May sold up to 6.81, or 6 to 7 points net higher. Reports of rains in the western belt which seemed to be headed eastward may have been a contributing factor on the advance, but reports of reactions following an opening advance in the stock market seemed to bring in a little more selling and the market was 2 or 3 points off from the best at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables said that foreign buyers buying and trade calling with an absence of selling pressure was responsible for the steadiness in this market but that the decline in silver was checking business in cotton cloth.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Corn acted as drum major of grain price advances today. Heading the procession with a rise of 3 cents a bushel, corn responded to news that farmers throughout wide areas west of the Mississippi were without adequate feed supplies, and that prevailing prices in more fortunate sections were apparently no incentive to induce a larger movement of corn to primary market centers. Corn specialists said the 1931 corn crop was below the average yield and had followed an exceedingly short one last season, and that the market results were now taking effect.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—After sagging for six successive sessions, the stock market dug in its heels and managed to resume its climb today as further strength in wheat gave bulls new courage.

The market was under pressure during the first hour, but selling was checked some after the opening of the Chicago grain pit, and the list began to rally. Trading quickened on the advance.

The share market had ignored the resumption of the advance in wheat yesterday, but as the rise continued for the second day, Wall Street apparently impressed.

problem "existing in the relations between countries."

He made the statement at a press conference in the office of Secretary Stimson at a time when he was scheduled to confer with a few hours with President Hoover.

A little later, however, his discussions with the president was postponed until tomorrow morning because of a prior engagement of the Foreign Minister to speak at a meeting of the "overseas writer," a newspaper organization.

TWO SLAYING AT NEW YORK

Four men sat out. They entered the restaurant with pistols in their hands and walked quickly toward a table where sat three men.

The guns blazed in unison, the rear of the weapons being magnified by the walls and ceiling.

The killers backed out the door, covering their retreat with their smoking weapons, got into their car and were lost in the darkness before pursuit could start.

The two who were slain were Guillermo Guica, 28, known as a gangster and recently acquitted of a homicide charge; and Benedicto Ruggiero, 27, concerning whom police said they had no record.

The third man at the table, who apparently saw the killers as they were entering, dropped under the table and crawled out a kitchen door. None of the restaurant workers knew who he was.

The only theory the police could suggest, following their first study of the crime, was that Guica had been killed by friends of Joseph Martin, for whose murder last September Guica was tried and acquitted. Ruggiero is believed to have been a friend of Guica's whose misfortune it was to pay for his friendship with his life.

FOREST FIRES STILL RAGING

Early morning hours and reports from many cities reported record densities while many said automobile headlights later in the day could be seen hardly a hundred feet away.

The United States Weather Bureau at Charlotte, where the density was particularly heavy, said the smoke and fog had no relation to each other but that both combined to make traffic hazardous.

At New Bern, outposts of buildings could be seen only a distance of 50 feet and traffic was extremely slow.

At Raleigh, Durham, High Point, Elizabeth City and Wilmington the density was reported as "probably the heaviest on record" while at Hickory, Rocky Mount, Washington, Marion and other points the density was reported as "heavy." In almost all these cities automobile moved cautiously until mid-morning, the streets were thick with heavy atmosphere.

Minor accidents have been reported since Sunday in many of the cities, while today reported a continuation of the heavy density.

Clemens J. W. Harrel, an director of the Department of Conservation and Development, said the reports have been "somewhat exaggerated" for the past of smoke "raises during the day."

He said tourists during the last few days have reported travel during daytime has been "not as usual" but that it has not been jeopardized by the smoke and fog.

The conditions reported from the various cities today point out that the poor visibility conditions during the early morning hours and clears up during the latter part of the morning.

METHODISTS TO BEGIN 95TH ANNUAL SESSION IN THIS CITY TONIGHT

At the approaching session will be to take a vote on a proposed Judicial Council. This is a constitutional measure enacted by the last general conference, which must be ratified by the annual conference before it becomes a law of the church. Its purpose is to create a body to settle controversial questions and matters now coming under the judicial function of the College of Bishops, and the Committee on Appeals. Practically every conference that has voted on the affirmative.

Reading of appointments of preachers to their charges for the ensuing year will make the final day of conference week. Attention will center on those who are rounding out four year terms, or who have served longer at the same charge, that they are most liable to be changed. Methodist law no longer requires a preacher to move at least once in four years, as was the case, but Methodist tradition still keeps her preachers on the move.

The North Carolina Conference hosts two college presidents, Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University, Southern Methodist's largest and most famous institution of learning, and Dr. J. L. Cunningham, president of Scarritt College for Christian Workers, in Nashville, Tenn.

GREY SMITH DECLARES ALL STRENGTH IS IN GOD

Morning services were inaugurated today at 10 o'clock and a good crowd was in attendance. The services will continue through the remainder of the week. The revival will come to a close next Sunday night.

The evangelist will give a thrilling account of the life of Gypsies at Saturday night's services. His subject will be "From Gypsy Trail to Pulpit" and will give an intimate glimpse into the life of the forefathers of the evangelist whose father was born in a Gypsy tent of Gypsy parent.

Congregational singing last night was one of the highlights of the service. It was led by Rev. W. H. Covert, pastor of the church, who also rendered a solo number.

The evangelist took his text from the last verse of the thirtieth chapter of Judges, "So the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life."

He prayed his sermon by reference to the powerful appeal of the drama and speeches in the Bible. He said he had always thrilled at the story of Sampson about

HERMAN ALLEN BURNED TO DEATH IN TRUCK COLLISION

Shortly after eight o'clock this morning, Allen, driving a truck belonging to Hicks Transfer Company of this city, was on his way to Norfolk with thirteen bales of tobacco when the accident occurred.

The two trucks were rounding the bend on this side of the highway bridge and collided in the dense fog.

which centered and marvelled at his power.

He stated the source of Sampson's power lay in the spirit of the Lord and he had learned that this was the first law of success. No man can reach the perfection of power until he learns this law, he declared, and all effort will prove futile until it has been instilled in our lives.

As long as Sampson stuck to the power of God he was successful, but when he yielded to the influence of his goddess wife he was scorn of his strength. She teased and taunted him until he, at last told her his strength lay in his long hair. Mr. Smith declared, and then his enemy was upon him, and he was thrown into jail to suffer for playing with his weakness.

Most people go down the same way, the speaker said, by constantly fooling with their weaknesses. We may wrestle against the ruler of darkness, he said, but no man ever beat the devil unaided.

He held up pride as one of the things keeping people out of Heaven and thought a woman filled with unholy pride and vanity was just as mean as those who deal in immorality.

When the enemies of Sampson gathered to celebrate his defeat, he was led gray-haired and blind, to the house where they had met to attempt to destroy them. Lifting his sightless eyes to Heaven, he called upon God to remember him. He put his giant body to the task and wrecked the building, giving his life along with the task.

Sampson, led back to God, found his strength, and if we are to gain strength we must go back to God, the speaker vigorously asserted. It was a powerful appeal to church members to turn their thoughts back to the work of the church and regain the power which they lost when they ceased to take an active part in advancement of God's work.
