RAILROADS ASK MODIFICATION POOLING PLAN

Seek to Save the Credit of Many Carriers Throughout United States.

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The railroads of the country today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to modify its surcharge-pooling plan for saving the credit of many carriers.

At the same time they presented for approval a plan for a railroad credit corporation to provide the machinery with which to operate the scheme.

Today's petition is another step in the effort of railroads to secure added revenues. The commission on October 20 denied a plea for a temporary blanket 15 per cent rate increase, and presented an alternative unique and untried in America.

Approval was given surcharges of $3 and $6 a car on some types of freight and 1 and 2 cents per 100 pounds on others. Major farm crops were exempted. The money realized was to be pooled and needy railroads assisted in meeting interest on their bonds.

December 1 was the deadline set for the roads to present machinery for handling the pool. The surcharges would be automatically removed in March, 31, 1933, unless ordered off earlier.

Some railroad executives advanced serious objections to the commission's plan. They argued it amounted to more prosperous lines making large gifts to weaker roads. It also was urged that such gifts would be illegal.

The association of railway executives turned the matter over to the advisory committee. That board conferred with a majority of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the plan presented today was then worked out.

To meet the most serious objections five amendments were asked. These are:

That railroads should be granted loans instead of gifts.

That the commission remove its command that surcharges should remain unchanged but that any reductions made after the plan is in operation, come from basic rates.

That surcharges be applied to lighterage charges.

That the $3 and $6 per car surcharges be changed to cents per net ton.

Asheville, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Judge Cameron McRae today sustained a plea in abatement for John Mitchell, former chief state bank examiner, and the members of the State Corporation Commission, indicted here for conspiracy to permit an insolvent bank to remain open, and ordered the case removed to Wake county for trial.

The plea was entered by G. L. Jones, of Asheville, attorney representing the defendants. Bonds of $500 each were posted by the indicted men.

Commission Recommends Farmer-Controlled Organization to Pres. Hoover.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Private operation of Muscle Shoals, preferably by a "corporation exclusively owned and controlled by organization of farmers," was recommended today in the Muscle Shoals commission's report to President Hoover and the governors of Alabama and Tennessee.

The commission includes three members appointed by the governor of Tennessee, three by the governor of Alabama, and three by the president to confer with them. Governor Henry H. Horton, who made the report public here, withheld comment pending a study of its contents.

The report recommended that Cove Creek Dam, above Muscle Shoals, be sold to the government. (Continued on Page Six)

BISHOP DARST SPEAKS HERE

Urges Loyalty to Foreign Missions During This Period of Depression.

Stressing loyalty to missionary activities in foreign countries, Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, bishop of the Diocese of East Carolina, spoke at St. Paul's Episcopal church in this city last night.

The sermon was heard by a fairly large crowd in spite of the numerous other activities in progress throughout the city at the same time.

This morning Bishop Darst visited the Methodist conference and made a brief talk to the several hundred Methodist ministers and lay delegates gathered here in their 95th annual session.

Speaking on the subject, "We Must Not Fail in This Hour of Depression," Bishop Darst last night brought to the local congregation one of the most powerful appeals in months on the necessity of supporting the work of missionaries in foreign fields.

"Cut any local expenses necessary," the bishop said, "but do not curtail the expansion of the Kingdom of God."

He told how Eastern Carolina boys and girls had given their lives for Christ in the mission fields of the world, saying the church had representatives in China, Japan, Philippine Islands, Alaska, Siberia and other mission fields of the world.

TRY TO AVOID DIFFICULTIES

Friendly Admonition Conveyed to Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Commissar, with Assurance that no Damage was Done Russian-Owned Chinese Railway in Yesterday's Offensive; Secret Sessions Held by League in Effort to Improve Serious Situation.

Nanking, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nanking government, announced today that he was proceeding immediately to Manchuria.

His announcement brought to a high pitch of excitement delegates to the fourth national Kuomintang congress, now meeting here to patch up the Nanking government's relations with the Canton insurgents and before whom he was speaking. "I must fulfill my duty and my obligations to the Kuomintang," he said, "and prove my loyalty to my country."

On hearing his declaration the delegates arose and paid a silent tribute to the president. He did not announce the details of his plans of when he was leaving.

Tokyo, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Japanese government today instructed its ambassador at Moscow to convey to Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, a friendly warning regarding the danger of serious complications if Russia should send troops to north Manchuria.

The ambassador was charged at the same time to reassure the Soviet foreign commissar that no damage was done to the Russian-owned Chinese Eastern Railway during yesterday's offensive in the Angan-shi area.

A Japanese charge that Russia is "partially responsible" for hostilities in Manchuria was also on its way from Tokyo to Moscow today as the Japanese Nonni river army occupied territory on the Chinese Eastern Railway, within the Soviet sphere of influence.

The charge was contained in Japan's reply to an earlier note of Maxim Litvinoff. Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, which complained that Japan was "manufacturing" rumors of Soviet interference in the conflict.

The Japanese note declared that the Russian-owned Chinese Eastern Railway assisted in transporting Chinese troops to Tsitsihar and Angan-shi from the east and west and it suggests that the Soviet government issue a fresh statement declaring it is not furnishing arms or munitions to the Chinese.

Denying the Russian charge that Japanese officials "manufactured" rumors of Russian assistance to General Ma, the reply expressed the belief that these rumors were circulated by the Chinese for the purpose of encouraging their own troops with a belief that Russia was ready to support their cause.

For this reason, Japan replied, Russia should make a complaint to the Chinese if she is really maintaining a strictly neutral policy.

When a dispute occurred between China and Japan in 1929, the note said, Japan refused a request from the Chinese to use the South Manchurian Railway for troop transport and Japan hoped Russia would observe a similarly neutral attitude in the present controversy.

The note emphasized that care is being taken to avoid harming Soviet interests in the Angan-shi area. Japanese operations, it insisted, are entirely measures of self preservation for the purpose of protecting Japanese rights and interests.

Nanking, Nov. 19.—(AP)—In spite of Japanese dispatches stating that Japanese occupied Angan-shi and Tsitsihar, Manchuria yesterday, official circles here today said they had direct word from Tsitsihar saying the Chinese are still in possession of both cities and that General Ma Chan-Shan is repelling Japanese attacks in Angan-shi.

The ministry of war of the National Government announced it had received a message from Chang (Continued on Page Six)

ROLL CALL SET FOR CITY SOON

Red Cross Workers to Make House - House Canvass Here Next Saturday.

The fiftieth annual roll call of the American Red Cross will get under way in Greenville Saturday morning and continue throughout the day.

The roll call this year will be sponsored by the Junior Woman's club under direction of Mrs. George F. Hadley, president, and will cover both business and residential sections.

Groups of young women will make a house to house canvass Saturday and the citizenship has been called upon to respond liberally.

Mrs. J. L. Hassell is chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the Red Cross and has called on the public to renew memberships and in that way aid in the great movement having as its purpose the improvement of humanity.

The work of the Red Cross has been a matter of favorable comment for years, and the funds derived from the roll-calls have been spent in relieving misery and suffering in all sections of the world.

North Carolina received aid from the Red Cross during the food period, and thousands of dollars have been spent in other districts as the great hand of mercy reached out in its attempt to ameliorate human suffering.

Pitt county in past years has responded liberally to the roll call and hope was expressed by leaders of the movement that this year would witness just as much liberality as past years.

Gipsy Smith Launches Vigorous Attack On Sin

Sin, hideous and sinister, as it reaches its octopus-like arms to all parts of the earth, was graphically delineated by Gipsy Smith before a large congregation at the series of revival services in Immanuel Baptist church last night.

Sin starts small, the evangelist asserted, but like leprosy, it spreads until it has consumed the entire physical structure of mankind and "cuts out all the joy and happiness derived from the Christian life."

It was probably one of the most powerful sermons of the evangelist's campaign, which opened Sunday week, and closes next Sunday night. All the mastery and eloquence of the evangelist was thrown into the effort to convince his hearers that sin means eternal punishment and death, and his hundreds of hearers went home more completely informed than ever before concerning the influences attempting to destroy the foundation of civilization.

The morning service today was well attended and the communicants derived much inspiration from the brief sermon by Mr. Smith. These services will continue during the remainder of the week. Saturday night the evangelist will speak on the subject, "From Gypsy Tent to Pulpit." He will set forth many of the most interesting phases of the life of his father and himself, and the church is expected to be packed to overflowing by people desiring to know more of the man who has presented the city with a concrete exposition of the fundamentals of Christianity during his brief stay here.

Big doors, he said, swing on little hinges. The maid of Naman's wife was a captive from Israel, but it was she who caused Naman to be cured of the leprosy, he stated. "Are you dissatisfied?" he asked (Continued on Page Seven)

Sing services last night continued to be of an inspirational nature. Rev. W. H. Covert, assisted by the special choir, rendered several splendid selections.

Taking his text from the fifth chapter of Second Kings, dealing with Naman the leper, Mr. Smith stated that leprosy and sin are similar, in that both are small in the beginning and gradually spread until they cover the entire being.

Society takes no note of the beginning of sin, he stated, but when it reveals its final stage the people shun it, and greet coldly the ones they had formerly taken to their hearts.

A young woman is all right until she becomes the mother of an illegitimate child. She is then virtually banished from polite society and is forced to suffer because of her wrong.

He pointed out the danger of the constant habit of saying no to God, declaring that denial gave sin a chance to gain greater scope.

He said there probably were men in his audience who 30 years ago would not have believed it had a minister told them they would go on through life without accepting Christ. But they have said no much, so frequently, that no is their master and they are unable to say otherwise.

Big doors, he said, swing on little hinges. The maid of Naman's wife was a captive from Israel, but it was she who caused Naman to be cured of the leprosy, he stated. "Are you dissatisfied?" he asked (Continued on Page Seven)

RAINS STOP FIRES IN WEST

Many Eastern Districts, However, Unrelieved and Forests Still Suffer.

Charlotte, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Rain today had virtually ended the forest fire situation in Western North Carolina, for the time being at least, but no such favorable reports arrived from the east, where hundreds of thousands of acres have been burned during the past several weeks of drought.

Reports from Asheville said that several fires were still burning in the mountain counties, but that none were of large proportions and that the rains were believed to have so wet the forests as to prove an ample check.

Forest had burned in Buncombe, Madison, Burke, McDowell, Graham, Jackson, Cherokee, Transylvania, Henderson and other mountain counties intermittently for several weeks.

From Kingston and Washington in the east came reports of slight precipitation in that section which had failed so far to check the advancing flames, but adding that lowering storm clouds had revived hope of early relief. Brisk breezes were also reported to have cleared away much of the smoke menace, which has seriously impeded highway traffic for weeks, and which was held responsible for several serious accidents.

No estimate has been attempted of damage done in Craven, Cartaret, Beaufort, Tyrrell, Jones, Brunswick and other counties in which the flames have held sway.

Lindy Continues Flight to Florida

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh took off from the Byrd Airport here at 10:15 o'clock this morning to continue his trip to Miami interrupted by an overnight stay here. He is expected to reach the Florida city tonight.

Col. Lindbergh will pilot the American Clipper, world's largest amphibian plane, on its first commercial flight from Miami. The noted flyer said he decided to stop overnight at Richmond because he was a little tired and because he had received reports of fog along a portion of the route to Florida. He is flying an army observation plane, which he borrowed at Mitchell Field

Roanoke Rapids, Nov. 19.—(AP)—J. B. Shearin was dead and his 18-year-old son was seriously wounded today as the result of what was described as the father's sudden fit of drunken rage at their home near here yesterday.

Shearin wounded the boy, and then was slain by officers as he fled through the woods near his home.

Sheriff Johnson and Roanoke Rapids officers, Gray and Green, said the elder man fired at them as they sought to arrest him for shooting the boy, and that one of them slew him in the ensuing gun battle fought among the tree trunks.

C. F. Long Dies at High Point

High Point, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The funeral services will be held tomorrow for Charles F. Long, 63, for more than 30 years a prominent figure in the southern furniture industry, who died at his home here yesterday from a heart attack suffered November 6.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Nina Alexander, whom he married 30 years ago today, and two daughters, Mrs. Paul Casey, of High Point, and Mrs. Josephus D. Pell, of Rocky Mount.

LADY with a PAST

By Harriet Henry

SYNOPSIS: Venice Muir suddenly is surrounded by attention, after unsuccessful seasons in New York society. She returns from Paris attended by rumors of exciting engagements abroad. The rumors are groundless, but Venice has initiated them and now encourages them. She is trying to capture Rollo Wainwright, who formerly ignored her.

Chapter 34 ROLLO BEARS UP

Venice picked up the telephone. "Hello, Rollo."

"Hello, Venice. You're not angry with me are you?"

"Of course not."

"When may I see you?"

"Tomorrow."

"Fine. We might dine somewhere."

No, not another night when she might miss that telephone call. The week is almost up, went her mind.

"You come to dinner here. Rollo, I'll ask Lola and Jerry and we'll have some contract."

"Two's company, Venice. Four's a nuisance."

Two's a nuisance was what was in her head but she said sweetly:

"Bear up, Rollo."

"I must. I suppose. What time?"

"Seven-thirty."

Venice went early to bed with a hock. She could not concentrate.

Her mind revolved. New York's reception of the Venices Muir for whom a Marquis had killed himself. This same Venice, sensitive and only able to make light conversation when sudden attention went to her head, but men asked to be introduced to her at parties now and she had never once this winter come home from any entertainment alone. Three men had tried to kiss her. She had succeeded in holding her hands. It was fantastic, grotesque. It didn't actually matter what you were. It only mattered what people thought you were. She sighed. She enjoyed people liking her but did they really like her for what she honestly was. It all seemed empty and futile and lacking in any of the qualities that actually warmed your insides and gave you a sense of happiness. She had won the so-called popularity for which she had so long striven and she was freer than she had ever been in all her life. Like eating food that did not nourish you. She wondered if her mother could be cognizant of her doings. How glad she must be. Venice at last on the brittle "plane" she had always urged her to scale.

The next evening she took great trouble with dinner. Lola and Jerry came early so that Jerry could mix something unusual in the way of cocktails. Roland Wainwright arrived with a box of talemant roses.

"My Godfrey," Lola whispered as Venice arranged them in a vase, "you've got him hooked! What are you going to do with him?"

"Leave him gasping on the bank."

Venice fell spiteful. Rollo had given her the flowers with "Sweets to the sweet," and she almost disliked him. He had also brought in his first five minutes of three different invitations that he had refused for the same evening.

The contract was spirited. Rollo played a brilliant game and Venice marvelled how good sense had nothing whatsoever to do with the depth of one's intellect.

"Alone at last," sighed Roland Wainwright, leaning towards the blaze that crackled cheerily in the wide fireplace.

"No, I'm here," smiled Venice. She sat at quite a distance from him in a large chair and could not help admiring the glow from the flames in his gay blue eyes and the way it turned his yellow crest to gold.

"I wish you wouldn't always be so clever with me, Venice."

"I'm not really. You misinterpret my simple words. Do you really want to know exactly what I'm like, Rollo?"

"She would blush trying to explain honestly. It would be fun to tell him of her shyness, her lack of any social garnishing."

"I certainly would."

"I'm really a very difficult person. I'm not a good conversationalist. I like books and pictures and I love to talk about life and death and marriage in the abstract, all the things one wonders about."

"Well, why don't you then?"

"Very few people would want to listen to me."

"Thank God for that."

"Exactly."

There was a pause.

"You don't think much of me, do you, Venice?" This doubt was what Roland at and held his interest in her. Every one else seemed to think so very much of him that it was a break in the monotony of his contacts.

She smiled sweetly.

"Why should I, Rollo? You think too much of yourself to leave any one else very much to work on."

"You mean I'm condescending?"

"Did I imply that?" She wanted to laugh. It was so patent that he could not believe his ears.

"I suppose you didn't. I shouldn't be so super-sensitive."

"No, said Venice.

"I don't know where I'm at with you, Venice. You seem a quiet, simple girl but no nobleman kills himself for a quiet simple girl."

"Perhaps it was his debts," she smiled.

There was a pause. "Do you remember that dinner at the Philip Merring when you carefully ignored me and then kissed me so impudently, Rollo?"

"No. What was that? As a matter of fact I don't recall exactly when it was we first met. He was sincere. Even his insolence towards her had made no impression on him. She was strong. He could not even recall when they had been introduced. It was the real Venice that he had hired, a manufactured Venice that he favored. She left bitter towards him. She could see herself now left standing alone with that liquor glass in one hand while he hurried across the foyer to the other girl hidden away somewhere."

"I don't remember either," she said easily.

He suddenly got to his feet and came to put his hands on her shoulders.

"I love you, Venice."

She was embarrassed and looked away although she did not move.

"Will you marry me?" he asked softly.

(Copyright, Harriet Henry)

Venice's answer does not come quickly, tomorrow. She plans a way to get revenge for the insult Rollo once gave her.

ABOUT TOWN

Chickens, like turkeys at Thanksgiving time, are roosting high around Greenville because of the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church which convened with Jarvis Memorial Methodist church yesterday.

If there is anything Methodist preachers like, according to an old saying, it is chicken, and Greenville people, despite high-roosting, have brought together probably the largest supply of fowl in years, with the intention of giving the visitors the gastronomic satisfaction so dear to their hearts.

Greenville has the reputation as one of the most hospitable cities in the state, and its people make a study of the appetites of convention hosts, and attempt to measure up to their requirements.

So chicken for breakfast, chicken for dinner, and chicken for supper time will be the order of the day during conference week, and who will complain as long as it carries joy to the hearts of a group of hard working delegates with faces turned toward that day when all the world will be converted to the great cause which they serve.

The coming of rain in various parts of the state has been received with joy and gratitude because it has definitely broken the long dry spell that has resulted in the loss of human life as well as thousands of dollars' worth of property.

Although the precipitation has not reached this section of the state to any extent, it has been forecast and may be expected before many hours pass over our heads.

Fog and smoke have taken a heavy toll of life because of the inability of motorists to get a clear view of the road. One of the tragedies occurred in our own community when two trucks ran together between Greenville and Bethel, burning one man alive.

Although forest fires have done little damage in this immediate vicinity, angry tongues of flame have carried destruction to surrounding districts. The loss is believed will exceed a half million dollars in Eastern Carolina alone.

Rain on many other occasions was unwelcome, but this is one time the tiny drops pattering on house-tops and against window panes is the most entrancing sound the people of this district have heard in months.

John D. Rockefeller, one of the world's richest men, and certainly one of the most generous, is finding solace in the promises of God during these days of depression.

Arriving at his home in Florida to spend the long winter months, the aged man saw every reason in the world to be optimistic concerning the future of civilization.

"Let us seek the inspiration of God," he told reporters in his first interview. "He will give us ability and strength, enabling us to leap over difficulties, and to have strength and buoyancy for the steepest hills. It is God that girdeth me with strength and maketh me perfect."

It is inspirational to hear such words of praise coming from the mouth of one who is using his millions to make life just a little easier and happier for humankind.

The world will forever remember men of this type and their deeds will live on and on to shed luster over their names after they have passed on to eternity.

The city is glad to have as its guest Bishop Edwin Mouzon and the hundreds of men who are laboring with him for the improvement of humanity.

Bishop Mouzon has visited here before, but this is the first time he has presided over a conference here and that his influence and wisdom will play a vital part in the success of the gathering is not to be doubted.

Always in the lead of those things tending to improve American life, Bishop Mouzon has forged, to the front, as probably one of the greatest members of the College of Bishops in the country.

He is a man of vision and is using his knowledge and foresight to lead people back to the cause for

FIRST MIDNIGHT CHARITY SHOW IN CITY TONIGHT

The first of two midnight shows to be staged in this city in behalf of charity will be given at Capitol theatre tonight at 11:30 o'clock. The next show will be at the State theatre Tuesday night.

The shows are in keeping with a nation-wide movement of theatres to assist in providing funds for the poor during the winter months.

The proceeds derived from the two shows will be turned over to the County Welfare Department to be used in the annual campaign here.

W. B. RANDOLPH HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

The W. B. Randolph home, located on the Falkland road, several miles from Greenville, was totally destroyed by flames yesterday afternoon, according to information reaching the city today.

Practically all of the furnishings in the two-story wooden structure were also destroyed. The origin and loss had not been determined.

APPEALS TO HIGHER COURT IN ABANDONMENT CASE

Found guilty of abandonment in the final session of County court yesterday, J. K. Quinerly, of the Ayden community, was ordered to pay $75 monthly toward the support of his wife and children.

He filed notice of appeal to Superior court.

RAIN BREAKS PROLONGED DRY SPELL IN COUNTY

Rain came this morning to break the prolonged dry spell and extinguish forest fires which have swept over this section of the state the last several weeks.

Although Pitt county suffered only slightly from forest blazes, the loss in surrounding counties will go into thousands of dollars.

Farmers who had been handicapped by the dry weather in the handling of their tobacco, greeted the sprinkle with gratitude this morning, realizing that it will assist them in speeding up the marketing of their crop before the holidays.

which his denomination is waging such a glorious fight.

Men of this type should be an inspiration to their followers and the public generally, and the things they say and do will be a lamp by which the footsteps of children of future generations will be guided.

That the city will do everything in its power to make the conference everything to be hoped for is not to be questioned, and the visitors may be assured that the slogan of the city, "Our Greenville, Yours if You Come," hangs on the latch-string all the time.

PAINFUL WEAK CONDITION

"I was weak and could not do my work," writes Mrs. C. O. Sutton, of Elizabeth, Ind.

"I had pains in my back and side. It seemed like when I would get up, I would drag around to do my work, and had bad headache. My mother told me to try Cardui. She had taken it herself, and had found it a good medicine. I took several bottles of Cardui and it helped me very much."

Cardui is a purely vegetable, "building-up" medicine. Thousands of women have reported that it helped them to overcome certain womanly troubles due to weakness.

SEEK PRIVATE OPERATION SHOALS PLANT

 Shoals on the Tennessee river in East Tennessee, be constructed by the government.

It was recommended that the Shoals properties be operated "primarily" for quantity production of fertilizer and fertilizer concentrates, but the commission also advocated use of the properties for the manufacture of chemicals and for agricultural experiment and research.

As to electricity produced at the shoals, the report said fertilizer and chemical manufacture should be given first claim on the power output, but added that should there still be a surplus, provision should be made for its sale, "states, counties, municipalities and chemical operations to have preference."

Turning to terms of the lease the commission proposed that it be for 50 years, "with Boulder Dam clauses on re-negotiation as to rental." The lease should recognize the "right of recapture of the dams involved in this report, at the termination of the lease... by the states of Tennessee and Alabama preferably," the report said.

As to income, the commission recommended that "not exceeding 25 per cent" of power rentals and proceeds from the lease or sale of surplus property be used for research and investigation and not more than 75 per cent of such income would be used to create a revolving fund to buy and store fertilizer materials and develop better methods of manufacture and distribution of fertilizer.

The report advocated the enactment of "the necessary enabling legislation by Congress empowering the president or such agency as he may elect to negotiate and to conclude a lease contract... and to supervise operations thereunder, for and on behalf of the United States"

The commission gave as its opinion that, should this legislation be enacted, "such a contract will be readily negotiable, at a fair and reasonable rental, and the benefits to agriculture to be derived therefrom would be immeasurable."

JAPAN WARNS RUSSIA TO KEEP TROOPS OUT

 Hsueh-Jiang, deposed Manchurian governor, stating he is calling on all his troops to place themselves under the command of General Mah to resist the Japanese and that Manchurian artillery, with a force of 10,000 men, is being brought from the Russian border to renew the conflict.

"I have circularized all my troops in Manchuria," Chang said, "urging them to place themselves under the command of General Mah Chan-Shan to resist against the Japanese menace."

The Manchurian artillery, the war minister said, has been stationed in the Hingan mountains in extreme Northwest Manchuria against possible Soviet border activities. This, it said, is now on the way to the Taonan-Anganchi area and some of it already has arrived at Anganchi.

All of the 10,000 men in this force will enter the conflict against the Japanese, the war office said.

Adventures Of Betty And Scarlet Bunny

By W. A. LILLYCROP

Scarlet Bunny and Betty came rushing to mother. "Tell us your secret!" they exclaimed in one breath.

"Well," said mother, "when the postman came today he left a letter here that is addressed to Betty and Scarlet Bunny. And what is more there is a Fairy stamp on it." She handed the letter to Betty.

Betty and Scarlet Bunny danced for joy.

"What, what can be in it?" asked Betty.

"Let's open it and see," suggested Scarlet Bunny. So Betty tore open the envelope.

This was the letter:

Fairyland.

Dearest Betty and Scarlet Bunny—We Fairies thank you both with all our hearts for helping today the needy family.

Now we are going to ask you to do something else for our cause.

One of the "Not-True-Fairies" stole some of the Fairy Smiles and buried them in a box somewhere in your neighborhood. Please find them. Then take the box uptown and open the box and let the Smiles out.

If you succeed in this task, something mighty nice will happen to you both.

All power to you.

With love,
THE FAIRY QUEEN.

"Goodness!" exclaimed Betty with her eyes shining. "Isn't this gorgeous!"

"Yes!" said Scarlet Bunny. "It's looking for buried treasures!"

"But," remarked mother, who was as excited as they, "I'm afraid it's going to be an impossible task. You don't even know where to start to search!"

"That's so," said Betty as her face fell.

"Wait a minute," said Scarlet Bunny, "wouldn't the 'Not-True-Fairies' pick out a place where no one would probably ever think to look to bury those smiles?"

"Yes," agreed Betty. "What place are you thinking of?"

"Why," said Scarlet Bunny, "I was just thinking maybe we might look in your own back yard. Oftentimes people think they have to go miles and miles away to find treasures when what they are looking for is right where they are all the time."

"That's right," said mother.

So Betty and Scarlet Bunny hurried around to the back yard and started their search.

Scarlet Bunny suggested that they begin in Betty's sand pile as that was the place where smiles are sometimes hidden he guessed, for lots of times he had seen children frowning over their sand boxes.

So they began at the sand pile; and in a remarkably short time they did find a box buried there. Quickly they dug it out.

"No," said Betty, "how can we tell whether this is the box the 'Not-True-Fairies' hid?"

"Look," said Scarlet Bunny and he pointed to a pirate's skull and bones that were painted on one corner of the box. "That's their gloomy sign, we have the right box all right."

"Now," said Betty, "if mother says we may, we must take this box uptown and open it as the Fairies said for us to do."

"Go right ahead," said Betty's mother.

And in no time at all they had the box in their little airplane. And with a putt-a-putt, putt, they flew towards the business section of the town.

When they passed low right over the center of the business section they looked down, and what do you suppose they saw? People were moving around with frowns on their faces. There was not much going on at the stores, and little groups of men were standing shaking their heads gloomily and repeating a bad sounding word which sounded to them like "Depression."

"Quick," said Scarlet Bunny as they circled and flew back over the business section again. Betty hurriedly opened the box. And out of it wriggled numbers and numbers of the Fairy Smiles which immediately flew straight to the people on the street.

"Now look!" exclaimed Scarlet Bunny excitedly. Betty looked and what do you suppose she saw this time?

People were moving around briskly and happily with smiles on their faces. They were going into the stores which now were busy; and the men on the street were laughing and talking about a happy sounding something which they called "Prosperity."

"Well I never!" said Betty. "I never dreamed that smiles could make such a difference."

"Yes," said Scarlet Bunny, "those 'Not-True-Fairies' did a terrible thing to steal away the smiles for you know 'Prosperity' is just like a ground hog. If there are shadows and gloom around, he runs way and hides. But now that the smiles are back on the faces of everyone he has come right back again."

"Well," said Betty, "I'm certainly glad we helped the Fairies to do it! And now," she continued, "as Scarlet Bunny turned the little airplane towards home, 'I wonder what the mighty nice thing is that the Fairies have promised us?'" let the lives of these workers fall to count for the best for Christ because of the lack of support back home.

In tomorrow's Reflector read what the Fairies did for Betty and Scarlet Bunny.

The church has missionary clergy in actual service with salaries overdue and in need, Bishop Darst pointed out, yet they are carrying on, believing that the people of the church of East Carolina will share the sacrifice with them for the sake of the Kingdom.

He praised the loyalty of the church mission, in past years, and said he believed the same sacrificial loyalty would back up the missionary efforts even through such a time as this.

the holder of the thankless job. They are demanding Fess' resignation because he recently stated he would use his influence "to prevent the party from committing a fatal blunder in asking for repeal of the 18th amendment."

Even before the wets got into action, a movement had started look-

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

ing to installation of a new chairman at the forthcoming December meeting of the national committee. However, this movement was not anti-Fess. It was led by some who believed now was the time to reorganize rather than next June.

Now the uprising by the House wets led by Representative Britten of Illinois, is believed to have settled the issue. Fess' friends do not believe he will quit under fire.

Representative Schafer of Wisconsin and LaGuardia of New York joined Britten in issuing caustic statements. Britten called for the resignation in "plain justice to thousands of Republican office holders who have little or no sympathy with the silly Volstead law."

LaGuardia said:

"Senator Fess is the best asset that the Democratic party has."

Schafer held the chairman should continue the way he is doing "if he wants to be the physician at the death, and the leading pall-bearer at the burial of the Republican party."

Supreme Court Rules in Notary Case at Raleigh

Raleigh, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The North Carolina Supreme court has ruled that a notary public is a state officer, and therefore cannot hold another public office—but not without dismission.

The three to two opinion was handed down in the case of T. B. Harris against W. W. Watson, member of the Hyde County Board of Commissioners who accepted a notary's appointment. The court ruled with Harris against the lower court which ruled Watson might retain both jobs. The decision holds that Watson may not remain on the county board after accepting the appointment.

Associate Justice Brogden and Chief Justice Stacy dissented.

Eight other opinions were handed down by the court as follows: Sanders vs. A. C. L. Wilson, no error.

Benton vs. Board of Education, Cumberland, affirmed.

Hodgin vs. Town of Liberty, Alamance, no error.

Smith vs. McClung, Forsyth, reversed.

Watkins vs. Insurance Company, Guilford, affirmed.

J. M. Daniel vs. Power Company, Davidson, affirmed.

T. W. Daniel vs. Power Company, appeal dismissed.

Lowder vs. Smith, Stanly, affirmed.

GIPSY SMITH LAUNCHES A VIGOROUS ATTACK ON SIN

"You have tried practically everything—good time, the different forms of sin, but you can't find satisfaction in them. Give God a chance in your life."

God never holds the past against any man, the speaker asserted. He tells you to confess your sins and be cleansed of them.

He pointed out that there were no degrees in sin. People who break one Commandment are sinners. A person may be clean morally, he declared, but if he has not repented of his sin and accepted Christ as his Savior, he is on his way to hell.

It is not God's fault if you are a hell-bound sinner, Mr. Smith stated. The church is not for perfect men but for people who have repented of their sins and believe in a perfect Saviour.

God never holds the past against any man, the speaker asserted. He tells you to confess your sins and be cleansed of them.

He pointed out that there were no degrees in sin. People who break one Commandment are sinners. A person may be clean morally, he declared, but if he has not repented of his sin and accepted Christ as his Savior, he is on his way to hell.

It is not God's fault if you are a hell-bound sinner, Mr. Smith stated. The church is not for perfect men but for people who have repented of their sins and believe in a perfect Saviour.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Financial markets again struggled to their feet today, as yesterday's wave of selling appeared to have subsided.

Stocks were heavy at the start, with the exception of New York Central, which showed isolated strength, eventually rising about 2 points, along with Santa Fe and Union Pacific.

A better tone in commodities helped the security markets. Such adverse dividend news as appeared was so lacking in an element of surprise that it had little influence.

The Western North Carolina conference at Asheville last week favored the amendment, by an overwhelming vote.

The Rev. Thomas C. Darst, bishop of the East Carolina Protestant Episcopal church, was introduced to the conference and requested those assembled pray that the program of the teaching mission recently inaugurated by the Episcopal church may become God's pro- phet. After passing the characters of the ministers in the Rockingham district, the conference heard an address by W. G. Cram, of Nashville, secretary of the general board of missions.

J. C. Wooten, of Durham, made an appeal in behalf of the conference budget.

The conference heard a letter from the Rev. N. H. D. Wilson, of Fayetteville, requesting that he be retired after forty years of active work.

Later in the morning the report of the commission on the budget was adopted.

The following traveling preachers were elected deacons: M. W. Laurence, Maysville; L. A. Tiley, Branson; T. B. Hough, Swansboro.

The following traveling preachers were elected elders: S. E. Mercer, Elm City; S. S. Phibston, Anderson; P. H. Fields, Raleigh; F. B. Brandenburg, Lake Landing; E. D. Weathers, Durham; H. B. Baum, Popular Branch; N. P. Edens, Hallsboro.

The conference then passed the characters of preachers in the Washington, Weldon and Wilmington districts. This completed the examination of all ministers in the conference.

Bishop Mouzon made an devotional address at the opening of conference this morning.

The conference last night was marked by a sermon by Dr. Harry M. North, presiding Elder of the Raleigh District, chosen by Bishop Mouzon to deliver the principal conference sermon. He spoke on the subject: "The High Calling of God." It was described as one of the finest messages heard here in some-

The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Frank Culbreth and the opening prayer was offered by Rev. W. A. Carr, presiding Elder of the Fayetteville district.

Dr. North's sermon in part fol-lows: "I press towards the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Phil. 3:14.

1. How it should be with us. The law of the Christian life is growth and progress. We should move steadily from the smaller to the larger; from the less perfect towards the perfect; we should ever rise and climb. Our experience and knowledge should expand all the while; each to-morrow should find us further than to-day. If, as Wordsworth says, heaven lies round us in infancy, should it be any less as we grow older? Our horizon ought to rise and recede as it does upon the landscape of the earth when one climbs a mountain.

Middle life should be better than youth, and the last of life for which the first was made ought to be finer than the first.

Almost everybody has at some time set for himself or herself a high goal and standard of living; the difficult part has been to press one to achieve it.

11. Consider those who have their ideals and standards.

1. Some have lowered them because they were hard to reach. The peril of the soul is the temptation to low aim and weak effort. Illustrate how this may be in the case of the physician, the business man, the attorney, the pupil, the teacher and the minister. It calls at times for a supreme effort to keep from yielding to this drag down-wards.

2. Some people have lowered their standards for the sake of gain of one sort or another: maybe political, social, financial. Illustrate this by the case of Napier, the artist, who first painted pictures of the Christ and later made pictures of dancing girls because there was more money in it.

111. The difficult period of Middle Life.

1. Many good people have found it hard to keep their faith and hope up to the sticking point through middle life. They have been going hard and well through the years, but now they feel jaded. Rarely entirely well physically. Always something to remind one of the weakness of the flesh. Just a little letting down; not quite so careful of personal appearance and conduct; not quite so alert against temptation as formerly. The runner stops to get breath; now for the first time he looks back over the shoulder and wonders if the better part of life be not behind. A sort of bleakness overspreads the landscape; the days seem strangely monotonous and gray. They reflect in such an hour that they have been able to influence very little the life of the world. So little appreciation has come their way. The heart sinks and they ask if it really is worth while to keep on as they have been doing.

2. It is possible then for life to become narrower, smaller, as the years pass; it does not seem quite so glorious to live as it once did; a character does not seem quite so desirable and possible as formerly. The life is graded down to a level of existence, and become sordid and common; the soul feels itself more covetous, selfish, impure. No longer filled with high and worthy ambitions; no broad, generous outlook upon the world; the touch and call of the spiritual and the divine are a little less strong than they once were. The time was when they expected and demanded the highest of themselves; only the best could satisfy; but the second best or the third will do. Once they said, How well can I do it? Now, it is, How can I get by with it?

Disappointed, discouraged, they see others helping themselves; they are tempted to go in and play the game as others are doing it, regardless of the rules.

4. To those who have about stopped striving, I would say that the possibilities of life are by no means exhausted. Break away from the deadly monotony of it; change its routine; bring in fresh thoughts and interests and especially new effort. Find something to take the thought off of self and look outward towards the expanding Kingdom of God. Some of you have passed the time when as young men you saw visions and have not yet reached the stage when as old men you will dream dreams; you are passing through the middle lands between the visions and dreams. Do not be discouraged with the outlook and the meager fruits you can show; maybe your life will be as the evening primrose which blooms late in the day filling all the closing hours with fragrance.

IV. The peril in the lowered standard.

When the soul contracts and the ideals shrink we do things we once thought impossible for us. The Scriptures give us memorial instances of this truth. Saul, the first king of Israel, left God and went to a witch for counsel. Gehazi, the companion of a prophet, descended to be a common liar and sharper; Judas, one of the chosen ordained, became so sordid as to sell his Lord for money. Our safety lies in consecration to the high, and in self-forgetful service. Evil forces which have pursued us through years will take advantage of us when they catch us off guard.

VI. What is this prize of the high calling of God? Fullness of stature of men and women in Christ Jesus.

Be perfect as your Father, said Jesus. Not as Moses or David, or John or Mary. He knew that these had not attained. He gave us a divine rather than a human standard. The ready answer to it is that it is impossible; still it is not a sufficient reply. Jesus did not argue its possibility. It has been the striving for this very impossible thing which has made the saints of God in all ages; virtue after virtue from strength to strength; they have thus climbed from the very low to the very high. Having that holy and imperishable ambition to be like the Lord they have dared to him who died for them.
