CHEWING GUM KING PASSES IN ARIZONA

William Wrigley, Noted Sportsman, Dies Following Attack of Indigestion.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(AP)—William Wrigley, Jr., who built a fortune from chewing gum and spent one in an unsuccessful effort to win a world's championship with the Chicago Cubs, died at his winter home here early today.

Death was due to acute indigestion. R. A. Kirkman, his secretary, announced the death with this bulletin:

"Mr. Wrigley passed away at 2:15 o'clock this morning. Death was due to acute indigestion to which Mr. Wrigley was subject."

From a soap salesman Wrigley rose through his chewing gum business to a place as an international financier and a man of tremendous wealth.

He spent more than $6,000,000 in building up his baseball team and often said he had never realized a cent from his interest in the club although it has been one of the best money earners in baseball history.

Wrigley who was 70 years old had been confined to bed since January 18 when he suffered a severe attack of indigestion followed by apoplexy and a heart attack.

His condition, Dr. George Goodrich, his personal physician said, had been critical since he first became ill.

Announcement of his death, however, came as a shock outside the immediate family as the household had maintained strict secrecy regarding the seriousness of his illness.

Dr. Goodrich disclosed Wrigley had been only semi-conscious for several days and that his death had been expected more than once for 24 hours.

Kirkman last night informed reporters, "Mr. Wrigley's condition is much improved, but he has been ordered by his doctors to remain in bed for a rest."

Dr. Goodrich said Wrigley was not conscious for several hours before death.

Mrs. Wrigley and their two children, Phillip H. Wrigley and Mrs. James R. Offield, were at the bedside when the end came. The son and daughter came to Phoenix when their father was first stricken.

Dr. Goodrich said Wrigley had not been in good health since suffering a heart attack at Catalina Islands, off the coast of California, about a year ago. In addition, he said, Wrigley was subject to indigestion.

Wrigley owned Catalina Island. Three years ago the capitalist came interested in the Arizona-Biltmore, winter resort hotel. Shortly thereafter he erected a palatial forty-room home on a small promontory overlooking the city of Phoenix, and it was in this that he died.

Private funeral services, Kirkman said, probably will be held in Pasadena, Calif., Thursday or Friday, with memorial services at the same time in St. Christopher Episcopal church in Chicago.

Burial will be at Catalina Island.

Whiskey-Laden Auto Seized By Federal Officers

A high-powered automobile laden with 24 gallons of whiskey was seized by federal officers on the Greenville-Bethel highway about two miles from this city last night.

Lathan Lloyd, white man of Washington, said to have been operating the car, was held under $500 bond for his appearance before U. S. Commissioner T. E. Beaman Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

The whiskey, said to have been of an extra fine brand, was in four cases. Both automobile and cargo were confiscated by the officers.

The car was believed to have been bound from Washington to some point north. Officers did not divulge the destination, although they believed they knew the point it was intended for.

Given Ten Years On Assault Charge

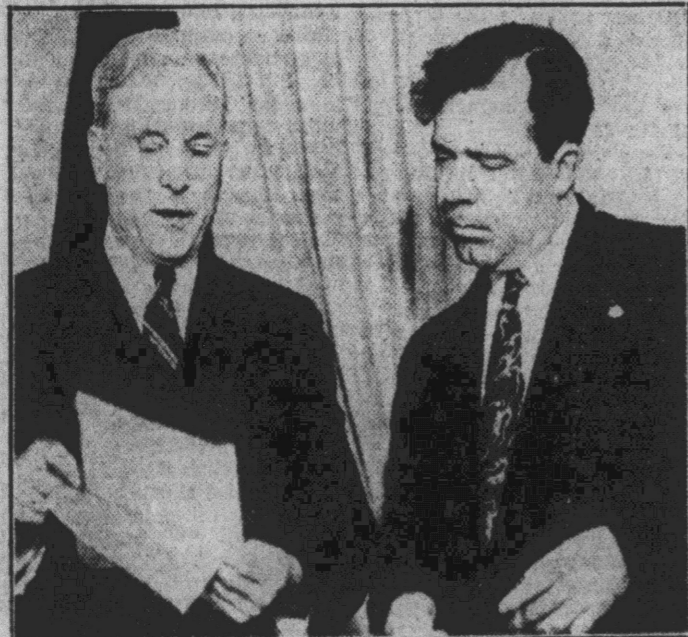

Asheville, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Harry Moore was headed toward State prison today under a nine to ten year sentence after admitting in Superior court here that he assaulted his son-in-law in an attempt to kill him.

George Davis, the son-in-law, was in a hospital, half paralyzed from a bullet in his spine. The wound was inflicted by Moore he said, in a fight last February.

Physicians said Davis' condition was critical, and that he has little chance to recover.

STAR GREET TINY PIANIST

Madam Galli-Curci Receives Edna Earle Corbett Following Recital Here.

Diminutive Edna Earle Corbett, 4-year-old Greenville musical prodigy had the thrill of her young life last night when she was received by Madam Galli-Curci following the prima donna's concert at East Carolina Teachers college.

Little hands that find as much pleasure coaxing melody from the piano as they do playing on a sandpile or presiding over the marital relations of a doll house, were clasped cordially by the operatic star, who listened attentively to a recital of the child's achievement.

CAPTURE TWO RUM STILL

Warrants Issued For Five Men Identified at Still in Black Jack Section.

Two stills, a considerable amount of whiskey, beer and paraphernalia, were captured by federal and county officers in raids in the Black Jack and Grimesland communities over the week-end. It was made known yesterday afternoon.

The still captured at Black Jack was in full operation and netted 10 gallons of whiskey, 700 gallons of beer, two shot guns, mule and cart, kegs, bottles and several other things that go into the making of the contraband beverage.

The still near Grimesland was not in operation but 200 gallons of beer were found secreted in the vicinity of the plant. The still was of a 50 gallon capacity.

Five men who were making merrily at the still in the Black Jack community escaped, but they were recognized, officers said, and warrants will be issued for their arrest.

"I wish the federal officers would run in on us now," one of the distillers laughingly informed his companions as the officers lay quietly in the underbrush surrounding the still. "We could kill them without any trouble." The remark drew a prolonged guffaw but the laugh was a coroner's jury.

STUDY PROBE OF SABOTAGE

House Naval Committee to Take Up The Charges Against Kasey in Akron Case.

Washington, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Chairman Vinson announced the House naval committee would study the Justice Department's investigation of reported sabotage on the airship Akron.

He directed Representative McClintic (D., Okla.) to obtain the Justice Department's file on the study it made of charges against Paul F. Kasey, a former worker at the Akron plant where the ship was built.

"Did your investigators find any evidence of sabotage?" McClintic asked. Rear Admiral Wm A. Moffett, navy aeronautics chief, replied: "No evidences of any," Moffett replied.

Vinson asked what had happened to Kasey. Moffett replied he understood the man had been discharged but no further action had been taken.

"Then you think this committee can assume that since no further action was taken there was no unusual evidence of guilt?" Vinson asked.

"Yes," Moffett replied. "Who would be interested in the sabotage on the ship?"

"Why, we would, of course," the naval officer answered.

"But I mean what other country might be interested in seeing sabotage on the ship?"

Before Moffett could answer that question, Representative Woodruff (R. Mich.) interposed: "That question might be embarrassing to the admiral."

Vinson then said he would ask the Justice Department for the file in the case.

Moffett a little earlier had said that while the Akron was about four per cent overweight and with its present engines and propellers could not make quite the speed contracted for, she was the best airship ever constructed.

FLOOD TRAPS 400 PERSONS

New Break in Yazoo River Levee Increases Seriousness of the Flood Situation.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 26.—(AP)—New breaks in the Yazoo river levees protecting Honey Island near Mileston, Miss., and high water in northeast Arkansas today increased the gravity of the flood situation in the lower Mississippi Valley.

Approximately 400 negro tenant farmers were trapped by the triple break at Honey Island and many already had been driven from their homes to Belzoni and nearby towns.

Officials began investigation of reports that a group of farmers using dynamite was responsible for broken levees in the vicinity of Yazoo City through which water spread far and wide.

The situation around Greenwood, Miss., was improved and the Red Cross, Coast Guard and United States engineers combined in relief work in the Mississippi Delta and in Louisiana where floods have made many homeless near Monroe. The Ouachita there was at 47.7 feet.

Four Coast Guard boats last night were sent from Greenwood to Belzoni and Yazoo City to cope with conditions there. Laborers were at work with sand bags and other equipment to build a protecting wall at Belzoni.

Mystery Witness Takes The Stand In Judd Case

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Willie Ruth Judd's expressed opinion that J. J. Halloran, wealthy Phoenix lumberman, "is perfectly grand," and her declaration that his friendship with other women "makes me so mad, I think I'll go crazy," were told by two witnesses closing the state's murder case today against the accused double slayer.

County Attorney L. C. Andrews held until the last his effort to establish jealousy as the motive for the killing last October 16 of Agnes Anne LeRoi and Hedvig Samuelson.

Miss Lucille Moore, nurse who said she met Mrs. Judd last September 1, told of a ride she took with Mrs. Judd and Halloran on the evening of October 15, the night before the slaying.

SAFE CRACKER SENT TO JAIL

Fred Pugh given Two and Half Years in State Prison for Robbing Store.

Fred Pugh, colored, jail-breaker and safe-cracker, was sentenced to two-and-a-half years in State prison for the robbery of T. J. Cannon's store near Ayden, by Judge E. H. Cramer, in yesterday's session of criminal court.

The negro, believed to have been the moving spirit in a series of other crimes in this community the last several months, accepted his fate stolidly and without comment, and will be taken to Raleigh within the next few days to begin his sentence.

Pugh, with four other prisoners, battered their way out of the county jail about a month ago, and it was while at liberty that Pugh entered the store near Ayden, hauled the safe down the road a short distance, and extracted from it approximately $3,000.

With this money he went to Williamson and purchased an automobile and began a merry ride around the country. His wanderings carried him to the Chowan community where he ran the car into a ditch.

It was while waiting to get out of this predicament, that Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, now in Washington searching for the principal in the Pactolus holdup, visited the scene of the wreck and tracked down Pugh at a negro house a short distance away. Other members of the party who broke jail here were believed to have been with Pugh at the time of the wreck, but they went to Marsden and boarded a train for other points.

Several other cases were disposed of yesterday and the grand jury (Continued on Page Two)

U. S. DEFICIT STILL MOUNTS

Government's Loss on financial Operations Passed One and Half Billion Mark.

Washington, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The government's loss on its financial operations from last July 1 to January 23 passed the one and a half billion dollar mark on the latter date.

At the close of business on January 23 the treasury's statement—issued today—showed that the government had collected from all sources $1,224,738,583 and had spent $2,725,814,832 leaving it with a deficit of $1,501,076,250.

The deficit for the six months and 23 days of the 1932 fiscal year was approximately $600,000,000 more than for the entire preceding fiscal year when it amounted to $903,000,000.

The billion and a half deficit, however, was expected to increase as the remaining five months and eight days of the fiscal year passed and be at least $2,200,000,000 on next June 30.

If the treasury's tax program is adopted by Congress its $900,000,000 more income a year is expected to halt the deficit soon after it passes the $2,000,000,000 mark. Unless, however, Congress raises that sum, the deficit is expected to soar above the figure set by treasury estimates.

Income tax has caused the chief decrease in revenue, dropping from (Continued on page four)

Daniels Sees Success For the Democrats

Atlanta, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Nomination of a progressive such as Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York as presidential standard-bearer will insure a Democratic victory beyond all question, Josephus Daniels, war-time secretary of the navy, said here today.

"In the campaign this year the progressives throughout the country, regardless of political affiliation, will vote the Democratic ticket if the party nominates a man whose progressive tendencies are shown by his political record," Mr. Daniels said.

"Franklin Roosevelt is such a man. The fact that he has the support of Tammany Hall and was one of the leaders for Al Smith in 1928 will not alienate the support of progressive thinking voters."

"He is what New Yorkers call an 'up state' Democrat and on occasion has fought Tammany when his sense of right and justice directed"

BODY DRAFTS CANDIDATES

Tax Relief Association Selects County Ticket and Boosts Daniels for Gov.

Pitt County Tax Relief association in meeting held in Greenville today adopted resolutions drafting five men, Democrats, to be by the association registered in the coming primary as candidates for the Board of County Commissioners, and drafting three Democrats to be registered as candidates for the General Assembly. The meeting was well attended. The sense of the meeting was strongly fixed in purpose to improve the present primary by drafting candidates for those offices which cause sacrifice to those who serve in them. Following in some degree the plan of the conventions formerly held, Pitt's purpose is to relieve voters of the necessity of taking chances on who may register and thereby limiting the voters to those of their own motion register for the primary. It was contended that if the voters would be candidates and their friends felt that the meeting was "packed" the primary gives ample opportunity to settle the argument. It is probable that others will register for these offices, however that may be concerted action by Democracy has made expression of choice to be affirmed or rejected by reference to the voters of the party, in the primary.

The meeting by unanimous vote adopted resolution urging Hon. Josephus Daniels former secretary of the navy under President Woodrow Wilson, to permit himself to be drafted a candidate for governor. The resolution reads:

"Whereas Hon. Josephus Daniels has rendered North Carolina and our nation outstanding splendid service marked by generous and tender consideration for the average citizen, and

"Whereas the average citizens of our state now greatly need his services as governor of North Carolina without his wisdom and statesmanship in authority as governor tax relief and business revival seem more remote.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Two persons were killed early today by terrorists who "planted" time bombs in a dance restaurant within sight of the state capital building.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Hungerford, who occupied an apartment over the cabaret known as the Italian Villa. The Hungerfords were between 70 and 75 years old.

Both were asleep when the bomb exploded at 4:30 o'clock blowing out the first floor of the building and setting fire to the second. Other occupants of the building escaped with slight injuries.

The blast was so powerful that wreckage was hurled across the street, shattering the windows of the Department of Welfare building on the opposite side.

Operators of the Italian Villa, Paul Tremaine and Sam Vignati, claimed they knew of no reason for the bombing.

Police believed the bombing was a result of underworld warfare between rival Italian factions in the city.

Judge Francis D. Winston, of Windsor, was the principal speaker at a joint meeting of Masons from Washington, New Bern and Greenville here last night.

Referring to depression existing throughout the nation and the world generally, Judge Winston advised his hearers to get away from thinking so much about these conditions and to give more thought to constructive things of the future.

He dwelled at length on the important part which Masonry was taking in the life of the nation, and urged his hearers to stick steadily to the ideals of the organization.

Grand High Priest McCrackin, of Waynesville, presided, and talked briefly on the progress of Masonry. Other speakers were Millard McKeel, of Washington; R. H. Davis, New Bern, and Hill Horne, Greenville. State Commander of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar.

The gathering was described as one of the most inspirational held in the community in years, and over a hundred members of the organization were in attendance.

Officers Must Have Warrants, Court Decrees

Charlotte, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled officers must have specific search warrants, before searching private residences, even if the tenant does not protest.

The decision was handed down here in the case of John Karwick, who was convicted of possession of liquor by the District Court at Norfolk, Va. The Circuit court at verse the District court's finding.

Officers found a small quantity of whiskey in Karwick's apartment adjoining a soft drink place and after going through it one of the officers said he would look around a little if there was no objection.

He then entered Karwick's apartment and found the liquor. The Circuit court held the conviction could not be construed as authorizing the search and that it was made in violation of the constitution.

Automobile drivers who take more than their share of the road will take even more than that if given a chance, in the opinion of Judge E. H. Cramer, presiding over the criminal term of Superior court here.

He also scored people who violate the prohibition law, and especially that element forever contending that whiskey is sold on a larger scale today than during the reign of the saloon.

He also scored people who violate the prohibition law, and especially that element forever contending that whiskey is sold on a larger scale today than during the reign of the saloon.

He told the jury he was not to be commended for observing the law, because it was his duty, and that it was expected of every citizen to do the best he can under all circumstances.

His charge was filled with wisdom and plenty of commonsense and left the jury in no uncertainty as to its duty.

The plan of the Salvation Army to provide a home for transients here is a commendable one and undoubtedly will receive the approbation of supporters of the organization.

This is a part of the ambitious program outlined by workers for the coming year and if the budget drive is a success the desire will be fulfilled.

Other cities have adopted similar movements to take care of people who have no place to go and no money with which to pay for their lodging, and hope to derive much benefit from it.

The budget drive will be staged from the first to sixth of February and everybody will be given a chance to contribute to the cause.

It is impossible to place an accurate estimate on the work done by this body of faithful workers but when it is realized they reach down to the gutters and lead men and women to a higher plane of life it may be readily seen that their achievement cannot be valued from the standpoint of dollars and cents, although proper finance is necessary to enable them to carry on the work.

relieving the staggering deficit confronting the government is to be doubted.

The Democrats continue to cut supply bills of various departments of the national government and when they get through a tremendous saving should be realized.

Congress has needed this paring knife of the Democratic party for many a day. If it had had it two years ago the appalling deficit that is giving the Republicans a mild case of apoplexy probably would not have existed.

The main trouble with both state and national governments is that not enough attention has been confined to economy.

Strength to the paring ability of the Democratic majority and may it continue to grow until it is able to sweep the government clean of unnecessary expenses and those responsible for their existence.

Boy Crazy

By GRACE PERKINS AUTHOR OF "PERSONAL MAID"

SYNOPSIS: Hope Ross, "the prettiest, richest, and most envied girl in town," has learned, at 17, how to have a good time. Her father spoils her and her mother has given up trying to mould her. A parade of admiring boys follows her, to the jealousy of her less attractive sister, Goody. Yet Hope is never contented. She is constantly on the trail of new clothes, new amusements, new excitements. She leads her gang on madcap escapades. Mrs. Ross urges her husband to curb Hope's extravagances. "I didn't behave that way when I was Hope's age," she says. "Hope is boy crazy." Mr. Ross refuses to be alarmed. He is more than able to pay for Hope's fun, and has provided an enormous estate in Westchester County for her home-comings.

"LOVE IS SO TRIVIAL" "I tried to get Hope to promise not to drink until she was twenty-one," Papa Ross remarked. "Said I'd give her that swanky rooster she was talking about. But it didn't work—exactly."

"The way you spoil her, she knows she'll get the rooster anyway," sniffed Mrs. Ross, unimpressed.

Papa Ross stared at the dull Chinese rug, and wondered about this. "At any rate," he turned back to his wife, "Hope has promised me not to drink until Christmas. Provided she can give a house-party up at Lake Placid for the holidays. I said she could have six couples. Kinda fun, Motzer—eh?"

"Howard—that's just the way you ruin her. If you—"

"The whole point of this argument being," Mr. Ross rose briskly, and tested his chin for stubble with the tips of his fingers, "are we going to the theatre tonight or aren't we?"

"No!" chirped Mrs. Ross with a toss of her white bobbed hair. "No. The Morans, the Thompsons and the Wrights are coming over to play bridge."

If the promised Christmas party at Lake Placid was to be limited to six couples, Hope's seventeenth birthday party, a month after this unsettling talk, was an open house verging on a free-for-all.

On the broad fifty-foot veranda, in the back of the house overlooking the hills of Westchester, with its tiny toy trains far in the distance, sat strolling weary commuters to cozy homes, with the stretches of a golf course two miles, barely visible in the cryptic dusk of late September, some eighteen girls and thirty-six boys gathered to celebrate in their own charming and inimitable way, the additional year in Hope's gay and selfish little lifetime.

By six o'clock of a glorious Indian summer Sunday, the circular driveway of the Ross estate might have been an amateur automobile show were it not for the jarring note of two or three decrepit Fords, and rebuilt nondescript "racing cars" crowded among the snooty chassis of cars "borrowed" from various parents robbed of their Sunday drive.

Caterers, assisted by the scowling and superseded house-servants, painted over the service of the long planked table built for the occasion and disguised by fine white linen.

Mama and Papa Ross were there, too. Papa, quite decorative in his white flannels, and his coat and cap that marked him the Commodore of the Yacht Club for that season. A costume that lent dignity and grace to the occasion even more than Mama's trailing white more than Mama's trailing white.

Only the surroundings for the Ross home, and the setting for this growingly shrill gaiety, seemed to recognize and prophesy the future.

Sad seemed the trees, with their leaves turning to a last spurt of glory, before death.

Trembling were the late autumn flowers, as she shed their mild and subtle perfume for Hope's sake, as if to make happy her last glorious memory. . . . As if knowing that this party would be the high point of remembrance in future years, marking the swift and shocking change in her spotted and pampered career.

The weeping willows bowed and whispered in the coming darkness; never again, they sighed; never again would this thoughtless, spoiling child enjoy the complete triumph of undisputed queenly reign. "She is young, gurgled the narrow brook nervously as it rushed and leaped over the stones of the rock gardens, anxious to hurry on and away from the scene of coming sorrow. She is young, persisted the brook endlessly as the moonlight beat down on its splashing current. (Yes, she is young, winked the red and yellow and green lanterns glowing in the trees. That mother and father think they know her so well, and they cannot dream the depth of her untouched and unshaken little heart. . . .)

"But the trees and the flowers, the brook and the lanterns hadn't a chance. A five-piece orchestra, set up on the terrace after the lengthy business of feasting, quite drowned out the warnings. "Once in a Blue Moon" whined the orchestra, as any good orchestra would whine in 1924.

"Once in a Blue Moon, you will meet the right one. . . ."

Bang! went the orchestra. Clarinet whining and laughing—a painful, hysterical laugh, against the piano keys telling of wordless secrets and giddy heartbeats.

But Hope wasn't listening. Hope was fluttering about, talking in a bubbling stream.

"Hello, Rusty, you big schnozzle. Listen. There's to be a Christmas party at Placid. Shh! We're not telling anyone. I can only have six couples, and Goody has to come. So that makes only five couples really. I'm asking you, Rusty, not because you're an outstanding favorite, but because my folks expect me to ask you. They have an idea, Rusty, that I'll marry you some day. Isn't it a scream? Maybe I will, when I get old and toothless, and have five divorcees. Don't propose to me again, Rusty—love is so trivial, and I want to be serious tonight. . . ."

"Let's go down by the tennis court and cool off. There's nobody down there. . . . Oh, isn't there? Look at Judy Hunt with Roger! Making up with him! I never thought she'd do it. Oh, yes, it's because of the football games. He's on the Harvard team, and Judy wants to go with the hero half-back. Listen, Judy has designed a half-back evening-gown. She wants to go and wear it, I suppose. . . . Isn't she a lark? Of course, Judy's coming to Placid. Isn't Judy my grandest friend in the world?"

"Let's go back to the party, Rusty, they'll be missing us. . . . Well, I have to care if they miss us. Well, I'm the hostess, and besides Dad might get sore if I'm not under his nose. Well, if you must kiss me, kiss me on the back of my neck. (Copyright, Grace Perkins)

NOTED FLIER FATALLY HURT IN PLANE CRASH

While over the lake motor trouble developed and Stinson maneuvered to make a safe, but forced landing. The plane, however, hit a fledgepole, shearing off the right wing. Stinson, pinned beneath the wreckage, suffered a crushed chest and internal injuries, which caused his death at 1 A. M. today.

His three companions—Clark Field of Kalamazoo, Mich., John Tompkins of East Chicago, Ind., and Frederick Gillies of Chicago, were all injured, but less seriously.

It was the first time Stinson had been injured in twenty years of flying, which had brought to him numerous endurance records and the distinction of having been in the air more than any other man in the history of aviation—more than 14,000 hours, for a distance of nearly 1,500,000 miles, the equivalent of sixty times around the globe.

Stinson, who was but 38, pioneered in aviation, and never during the whole of his long career, used a parachute.

His was a family of the air, his sisters, Katherine and Marjorie and his brother, Jack, also having won fame in the field of aviation. Stinson started when he was 20 and engaged in the business continuously, either as a test pilot, an instructor or a designer. He built the trans-Atlantic planes of Ruth Elder and George Haldermann, the around-the-world machines of William Brock and Eddie Schlee, as well as numerous others.

Strangely enough he was opposed to trans-Atlantic flights. He called them "stunts" and went so far as to forbid the sale of his "ships" to anyone contemplating such a project. This decision was reached by him after the Georgian, Paul Recler, was killed in an attempt to fly from Atlanta to Buenos Aires in a Stinson monoplane.

He held that land planes had not yet reached the stage of perfection to justify trans-Atlantic flights. "Of course," he was quoted as saying, "it was such an exploit that gives us Lindbergh, but they are stunts as such, are a detriment to aviation."

Stinson himself was a southerner, having been born at Fort Payne, Ala., in 1894. He was the founder of the Detroit-Stinson Aircraft Corporation later acquired by the Cord Corporation.

Perhaps his most spectacular experience occurred a few months after he began his career. This was when he was testing planes in New York. While several thousand feet in the air, his plane lost an aileron and part of the landing gear. He was nearly out of gasoline, but he saved himself by nosing the plane down to an embankment near a railroad right-of-way, making an angular landing that prevented the damaged side from dragging. In this manner he escaped death.

Stinson's father, E. A. Stinson, Sr., is enroute to Chicago from Aberdeen, Miss. He left last night when word that the noted flier was injured reached him.

Halloran, the witness said, went into the house alone. "Anne came to the window and looked out. Ruth said to me 'what do you think of Jack?' " "I think, I said, 'He is very nice.' " "She said, 'He is nicer than that. I think he is perfectly grand.' Halloran came out of the house, she said, with two other men, "Mr. Ryan" and "Mr. Townsend."

Mrs. Judd, Miss Moore said, took Halloran to task for allowing the other women to know she was outside in his car.

The witness quoted Mrs. Judd saying: "Jack they wouldn't know I was here."

"O, forget it," was Halloran's reply, Miss Moore said.

The state, attempting to hang Mrs. Judd for the slaying of her two women friends, quickly followed Miss Moore with its "mystery witness," Mrs. A. R. Lepker, who testified as to a conversation she had with Mrs. Judd last August.

"Mrs. Judd," she testified, "told me 'Sometimes I get so mad with Sammy and Jack that I think I will die or something.' " Sammy was the pet name for Miss Samuelson.

are lined up in the Wangpo river, waiting for the Chinese officials to obey an ultimatum directing suppression of Chinese societies said to be leading the anti-Japanese boycott.

While all this was going on all the members of the League of Nations Council, except the Chinese and Japanese representatives went into a secret session on the Manchurian trouble. It was expected that the Chinese stand would be modified somewhat because of the change in the foreign office at Nanking.

General Chen Ming-Shu was moved up from minister of communications in the Nanking cabinet to succeed Eugene Chen as foreign minister. The general is an old supporter of Chiang Kai-Shek. At the same time the government apparently was ready to set up a national defense council, probably to be headed by Chiang. In Tokyo the government approved the appointment of Joseph G. Crew as ambassador from the United States to succeed W. Cameron Forbes.

HAROLD KREUTZBERG, NOTED DANCER, AT COLLEGE FEB. 1

Next week there will be another great entertainment at East Carolina Teachers College when the world's greatest man dancer, Harold Kreuzberg, and a group of four girl dancers, each of whom is a noted dancer, will give a program on Monday evening, February 1.

This is the star attraction at Duke University, where they will appear on Friday evening. There is great interest in them in the central portion of the state, and they had considerable publicity throughout that section. They have recently been in New York City, which is Mr. Kreuzberg's fifth season there. The New York papers have had a great deal to say about his marvelous dancing and his programs with the group dancers.

The seats will be offered at popular prices.

RELIEF BILL IS STALLED

construction Finance Corporation temporarily in an inoperative state. It had no money and its board of directors had not been completed.

The House refused to accept the Senate amendment to the House bill appropriating $500,000,000 for the corporation to begin its work. The bill goes to conference to straighten out the dispute. The amendment is a minor one affecting the clerical staff of the corporation.

The President has encountered difficulty in fixing upon the third Democrat for the board of directors.

Both of these difficulties are expected to be smoothed out within the next day or so.

The problem encountered by the Chief Executive was said authoritatively to be the desire of states north of Texas and west of the Mississippi to be represented on the board.

The President intends to confer further with Democratic leaders in these states and in the southeast before making a choice.

At the same time, he has given thought to the reaction in Europe on the reconstruction program.

He feels there has been a misunderstanding on the other side of the Atlantic concerning some of the measures, since reports returned to him have spoken of certain moves as policies on inflation on the part of the United States.

Mr. Hoover feels that no steps proposed by the administration thus far involve any inflation of the nation's currency and considers the misunderstandings in Europe to have arisen from the varying interpretation of the word "inflation."

The Chief Executive is opposed to any currency inflation to overcome present business difficulties, and feels that no steps have been taken even contemplating such a move.

He regards part of his program as designed to loosen frozen credit through federally created machinery and the other part as a balancing of the budget through increased taxation and reduced expenditures.

MADAME GALLI-CURCI PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

(By Mamie E. Jenkins)

Madame Galli-Curci won her large audience completely last night by her marvelous singing, her delightful personality, and her very gracious response to the demand for encores, in her concert at East Carolina Teachers College last night. The moment she stepped out on the stage she was greeted with applause, and she came back time after time giving the encores after each group instead of waiting until the end of the program. Finally the audience, reluctant to leave when she bade them good-night with a wave of her handkerchief after singing "Home Sweet Home."

She seemed to enjoy singing and said she loved this audience, there was something so buoyant about it and the response was so lovely. The Knoxville papers commented on her generosity in giving them seven encores, but here she went much further than that, for she gave ten or eleven.

Her program opened with a group of Italian songs beginning with the oldest and coming down, from 1672 to 1879, and responded with an Italian encore. These were: "Deh piu a me," by Buononcini (1672-1750); "Chi vuol la signorella," by Paisiello, (1741-1815); "O del mio amato ben" and "Magliola," both by Donaudy (1819). The fact that these were in Italian and historical did not matter at all to the audience, as they caught the meaning through the singer's interpretation.

The next group was in four different languages, Spanish, German, French, and English, and again the different languages did not bother an audience that sometimes, with other singers, complains that they cannot follow songs that are not in English. She made them realize the universal language of song as music rather than as words. By the way, she speaks all five languages fluently. The numbers of this second group were:

"Cantar popular" (in Spanish), by Obradors; "Das Veilchen," by Mozart; "Les files de Cadix," by Delibes; "Dune prison," by Hahn, and "Lo, hear the gentle lark," by Bishop (1786-1855). This closed the first part.

All the songs were in English in the fourth group, one of which was composed by her husband, Homer Samuels, "Garden Thoughts." The others were "A Feather in the Wind," by Levy, and "The Little Damozel," by Novello. It was after this group that she was recalled five or six times, and when she gave the familiar songs, among them "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "Old Kentucky Home."

The final number was the "Shadow Song" from Dinorah, by Meyerbeer. Raymond Williams came in for a generous share of the honors both in this and in "Lo, hear the gentle lark." He is big and handsome and plays the flute so well that the audience felt they would like to hear him play the flute would be the chief instrument. He is indeed an artist.

Homer Samuels gave a group of piano numbers, "General Lavine," eccentric, Debussy; "Reverie, Debussy; Uncle Remus, Morris, that delighted not only the musicians in the audience, who had been watching his artistic sympathetic accompaniments all the way through, but every one else; and an entire program by him would furnish an evening of rare enjoyment to music lovers. The complete harmony of thought and feeling between the accompanist and the singer was noticeable all the time.

It is hard to conceive how any one can do so many things with a voice, and all of them produce lovely, musical effects, as Madame Galli-Curci does. Not only does one love the frills and furbelows of the arias and songs with wide range for the voice, but one follows her softest, sweetest tones as they fade away into a very fairy-land.

Some in the audience who had heard her before, said they felt that she had gained something that is almost indefinable, a depth of sympathy and understanding, a richness and charm. Instead of sweeping people off their feet, making them catch their breath because of sheer brilliancy and flexibility of her voice, she now seems to take them into her heart and creates a bond of sympathy and understanding, and yet they enjoy the sparkle and brilliancy.

When the concert was over, a crowd, not only of college girls, but of other people as well, from far and near here, surged to the room back of the stage, and for nearly an hour kept her busy, shaking hands with her and expressing their appreciation, and she was the gracious, charming lady until the very last.

There was a splendid representative audience from eastern North Carolina. One person said that she came "ninety-nine and one-tenth miles" to hear her, and there must have been others who came as far.

The whole party seemed to enjoy their stay in Greenville; they had a quiet restful time, as it was understood that was what they wanted. They left this morning for Chapel Hill, motoring through the country. After the concert there tomorrow night, they will return to New York and on Friday will sail for South Africa and then on for a tour of other lands.

Farm Women to Hold "Outlook" Meeting Here

The farm men and women of Pitt county will gather in the auditorium of the library at 10 a. m. January 28 for the purpose of holding an agricultural outlook conference.

Mr. J. E. Winslow, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Agriculture, will preside. Mr. B. Troy Ferguson and Miss Pauline Smith, district extension agents from Raleigh, will be the principal speakers. The cause, effects and recovery from previous depressions will be discussed at length in order that the farmers may intelligently plan their program for overcoming the present depression. It is hoped that a large number of farm women will be represented at this meeting and that from the discussion, farmers may be able to set up a program of farming for the next few years that will enable them to more quickly overcome the present unfavorable farming conditions.

After the discussion of the present situation and its difficulties, the meeting will be divided into groups for the purpose of making specific recommendations to the groups of farmers engaged in different lines of agricultural activities in the county.

High School News Omitted this Week

News dealing with activities of the Greenville high school, will be omitted this week because of examinations. It was stated by Professor Mulholland, English teacher, in charge of the news department, that the usual batch of editorials and news stories, however, will appear in the usual next week, and it is probable that much of the copy will deal most emphatically with the "trial and tribulations" of students going through grueling examinations this week.

There was a very enjoyable ladies' Bible class meeting at Mrs. W. J. Moon's, on Thursday night. After the business session games and contests were the next on the program and a delightful salad course was the climax to an evening of pleasure.

A good number attended the Falkland C. L. Club at the tea-charge on Tuesday night. Plans were made and carried out to help provide clothing for a number of children out of school. There will be another meeting on Tuesday night to sew.

Our Sunday School holds a good attendance, but we would be glad to see more come out and study the Word with us.

We are missing our friends, Jack Little, his mother, sisters and brothers, who have moved on the River-side farm near here.

Mr. Cornelia Jordan is spending the week-end at his home.

Mrs. Ada Marsler, who is spending some time in Greenville, was at home over the week-end.

Preston Pierce and Rob. Satterfield, of Greenville, were here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith went to Greenville Sunday. Mrs. C. H. Mayo and son, King, went to Arthur Sunday.

Falkland played basketball with Chocot at Wingersville Thursday night. Score: 16-24 in favor of the Falkland school.

Miss Eleanor Whitehurst spent the week-end at home, returning with her sister, who visited her.

STAR GREETED TINY PIANIST

in the field of music. "Splendid!" said the gracious Galli-Curci as Miss Grace Hunter, member of the faculty of city schools, presented the child and told of her talent for music. "I would not push her too rapidly, but let her develop normally," the noted singer advised.

Taking the child's hands in her own, the singer said they were of an artistic nature, and with proper development, would probably prove everything expected of them.

Although it was long past Edna Earle's bedtime, and she could hardly hold her blue eyes open, she smiled brightly as Madam Galli Curci toyed with her finger and talked with Miss Hunter.

Miss Hunter and the child were among the tremendous crowd that heard the famous singer in her first appearance in this part of the country, and while Edna Earle slept through most of the program, she came to life and smiled knowingly as Madam Galli-Curci rendered "Home, Sweet Home." The tune is one of the child's favorites, and she listened attentively as it was rendered by one of the greatest artists of the age, although too young to absorb this important fact.

Edna Earle first came into the limelight several months ago when she rendered several numbers at a public gathering. Since that time she has played frequently for people who were astounded at her talent. Her picture has appeared in numbers of papers and she is acknowledged as one of the most gifted musicians of her age in this part of the country.

The child may be completely engrossed with her dolls or the old sand pile in the backyard of her home, but the moment she thinks of some tune she hasn't played in a long time, she races for the piano and plays until she has satisfied her longing for melody.

CAPTURE TWO RUM STILLERS

had hardly left their lips when an officer stepped out into the open and said, "Who is that you are going to kill?"

Pandemonium broke loose at this juncture, and five stalwart figures tore through woods and underbrush with a speed that would have done credit to a deer. The officers gave chase, but without success. The distillers knew the lay of the land and out ran their pursuers.

Officers said one of the distillers, in diving over a bush, left part of his coat behind, while the remainder left hats, caps, and other pieces of wearing apparel.

Wood Fails To Set New Record

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 26.—(AP)—A one-day trip at 111.14 miles an hour placed the world speedboat record almost within the reach of Car Wood yesterday but motor trouble and broken timing equipment forced him to halt his trials until today.

The Detroit veteran pushed his Miss America IX above the present record of 110.223 miles and hour on a northward run over the Indian creek course here but motor trouble forced him down to 63 miles an hour on the southward trip and spoiled the necessary average.

The average speed of north and southward runs over the measured nautical mile course is necessary in computing the record, rules of the day the grand jury had returned a true bill on a first degree murder charge.

Myers, who has been confined in State's prison at Raleigh since his arrest Saturday week, was returned to Greenville late yesterday afternoon. His case will probably be the first to come up for consideration tomorrow morning.

The negro was arrested by Sheriff Sam Whitehurst ten days after the holdup at Factolus. He not only confessed the holdup, the officers said, but re-enacted the hold-up and robbery, one of the most sensational occurring in this part of the state in years.

Sheriff Whitehurst said the negro broke down in the midst of a grueling examination and told of the robbery.

He was alleged to have told of his visit to Hodges' store and asked the storekeeper to see some shoes. After inspecting the shoes displayed by Hodges, the negro said he left the store and walked down a path midway between the store and Hodges' home.

Later, when Hodges appeared, the negro faced him with gun in hand and told him "I want money." As he made the statement, he fired five times at the postmaster one bullet taking effect. He then obtained $10 in cash and fled.

Hodges was rushed to a Washington hospital with a wound in the shoulder. His injury at the time was not considered serious, but complications developed and he died four days later.

The sheriff said Myers also confessed holding up a local night-watcherman during Christmas and again shortly before his arrest. He obtained a pistol in each holdup, and it was with the first weapon that Hodges was shot. The officers recovered the pistols, keys and flashlight belonging to Hodges, and keys to an automobile which the negro was alleged to have stolen and abandoned after the holdup at Factolus.

Man And Wife Face Trial On Murder Charge

(Greensboro, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Terry H. Harper, 44 year old High Point traveling salesman, and his wife, Peggy, (former Chicago girl), waited in separate cells today for a decision as to what county will furnish the jury for their first degree murder trial.

Indicted and arraigned yesterday they pleaded not guilty to the indictment which charged they murdered Charles O. Holton, High Point automobile salesman, who was quoted as saying on his death bed that he and Mr. Harper had been in love, but that he had never done any harm to her or her husband to warrant his death. Holton said he went to the Harper home with Mrs. Harper the night of December 23 in the belief that they were to arrange for the Harpers to be divorced so that he might wed the woman. He said Harper greeted him with "hello, Holton," and then began shooting. Harper was arrested immediately, and his wife ten days ago. P. B. Holton, brother of the slain man, alleged in the warrant against Mrs. Harper that she lured his brother to the home so that Harper might kill him.

Brought into court separately yesterday, the Harpers did not speak to each other. Each pleaded "not guilty" without show of nervousness and in clear tones.

Solicitor George A. Younce asked for the special venire, which was opposed by the defense, and a hearing on the motion was set for 2:30 today.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 4 points on trade buying and covering, promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and light offerings from the south. May sold at 6.89.

There was further liquidation of the near months which was absorbed by the trade against sales of later later deliveries, presumably to transfer hedges, while in some cases, sellers of March and May appeared to be replacing with the later months. Business was not active and orders seemed to be quite evenly divided with the market holding steady at net advances of two or three points at the end of the first half hour.

March sold a 6.71 and July at 7.05 during the early trading. A couple of February notices were issued without apparent effect on the market. The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates the world's consumption of American lint cotton for December at 1,077,000 bales making 4,934,000 for the first five months of this season against 4,445,000 for the same period last year.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Disparity between United States wheat prices and those in other countries, shutting off this country from export business, had an evident bearish effect today.

Argentine wheat laid down in Liverpool was quoted five cents a bushel lower than Chicago May delivery. World's available supplies of wheat increased 2,208,000 bushels for the week, and net aggregate 773,391,000 bushels, compared with 496,010,000 a year ago.

STOCK MARKET

By CLAUD A. JAGGER (Associated Press Financial Editor.) New York, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The stock market again attempted a cautious climb today, but had little heart for it, and slid back after midday.

Traders were extremely wary, in view of the uncertainty over the U. S. Steel dividend, to be announced after the close, and the continued delays in the railway wage conference in reaching an agreement.

U. S. Steel rose fractionally, then eased off, selling slightly under yesterday's close. Rails had an interval of strength. Cotton belt common rose more than 2, and the preferred 3 points, on the I. C. C. Conditional approval of acquisition by Southern Pacific. Such issues as Southern Pacific, New Haven and Baltimore and Ohio lost early gains of a point, and New York Central sagged fractionally. Such issues as American Can, Allied Chemical, Case, North American and National Biscuit sold up a point or more, then slipped back.

While Wall Street continued to take a hopeful view of the railway wage negotiations, earnings statements appearing for December and for the full year of 1931 were unfavorable, and advance estimates of the freight car loadings tabulation for the week ended Jan. 16 indicated an increase of only about 8,000 cars, or but a slight fraction of the usual seasonal gain for that week.

Wall Street regarded the improvement in the outlook for new financing as distinctly improved, and early flotation of long deferred offerings is being planned. It was regarded as significant that the consolidated Gas Co., of New York had applied for authority to issue $75,000,000 in bonds of subsidiaries.

SMITH TO VISIT N.Y. GOVERNOR

Two Leaders of Democratic Party to Confer When Smith Visits Albany.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose presidential aspirations are supposed by some to have cooled their old friendship, will meet in Albany shortly.

Governor Roosevelt said last night the former governor had sent word he was coming to Albany within a week or so to visit his daughter and that he would come to see him at that time.

Mr. Roosevelt has just announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. Mr. Smith the 1928 choice of his party, has given no hint as to his own intentions. His silence has been read by many as proof that he was hoping for the nomination again. The possibility of a Smith declaration as the chief threat to the Roosevelt candidacy, believed to be well ahead of any other in the field so far. It was indicated the coming meeting might be about February 12.

Woman Brought Back to Life

Greensboro, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Miss Grace Roberts, 31, was alive today, "brought to life" after nurses believed her dead.

Miss Roberts was brought to a hospital here Sunday suffering from a severe case of diabetes. During the early morning she lapsed into a coma and indications were that life had passed.

Believing she was dead nurses called Dr. J. G. Thomas who administered artificial respiration and stimulants and the patient began to breathe. Dr. Thomas said her condition was still critical.

Escaped Convicts Kill Jail Trusty

Milledgeville, Ga., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Aubrey Smith, Abe Powers and Roy Gardner escaped from a steel cage at the state penal farm here early today and their speeding car killed a trusty who tried to stop them.

The trusty was John S. Williams, principal in Georgia's notorious "murder farm mystery" of 1921-22. He was serving a life sentence on charges of killing several negroes.

Williams and several guards attempted to stop the trio as they sped from town in a stolen automobile. Authorities said the fugitives turned the machine into the crowd, clipped Williams and disappeared into the night. The 70-year-old trusty died in a few minutes.

Smith was the prison pal of Leiland Harvey and Jack Martin, and together they composed Georgia's infamous "Houdini trio" and have scored prison walls. Harvey and Martin escaped last week from the death cell at the prison. Smith was serving 45-50 years term for a series of robberies. He has escaped frequently. Powers, member of what was known as the Woodward-Bunco gang and a master of previous escapes, was one of the state's most highly publicized prisoners.

Cullowhee.—(AP)—J. H. Painter has gone from here to Kansas to organize the campaign of Dr. John R. Brinkley, native of Jackson county, N. C., for Kansas governor.
