SOUTH WELL REPRESENTED IN THE MAJORS

By DILON GRAHAM, (Associated Press Sports Writer) Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 9.—(AP)—There'll be no Ty Cobbs from the South in major league outfield this summer, but some of the best fly-chasers in the big time will call Dixie home.

Retired is Tyrus Raymond, called by Connie Mack the greatest all-around player in diamond history. Behind him as a monument to his genius remains probably the best individual record in baseball annals.

Five Southerners yet remain on the outfield roster of Cobb's old Detroit team. They are the Walker brothers, Gerald and Hubby, who first attracted notice as football and baseball stars at the University of Mississippi; Jonah White and Arthur McHenry, of Atlanta, and W. H. Carrier, a rookie from Manchester, Ky.

Bracketed in the Yankee outfield, along with the salaried jewel and home-run king, Babe Ruth, are Earl Coombs, a Richmond, Ky. boy who made good in the big town, and Sam Byrd, the crack golfer from Birmingham.

Smead Jolly, who hails from Joiner, Ark., is an outfielder for the Chicago White Sox, but manager Lew Fonseca has passed some talk of converting Jolly into a catcher. Johnny Watwood, of Goodwater, Ala., also is a White Sox gardener.

From Montgomery, Ala., comes Tom Oliver, one of the best of the Boston Red Sox. Murray Howell, of Atlanta plays with Brooklyn, and Riggs Stephenson of Acton, Ala. The former University of Alabama star is with the Chicago Cubs.

Bob Parham, the young outfielder, who figured in the deal which brought Hack Wilson to Brooklyn, is the property of the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals. Parham comes from Greenville, Ga.

Heinie Manush of Washington calls Tusculuma, Ala., his home. Lance Richbourg, of Pensacola, Fla., is with the Cubs. Lance has done most of his big league playing with the Boston Braves.

Two other Kentuckians are Mike Powers of Cleveland and Ed Moore of the Giants. Powers is from St. Matthews and Moore from Barlow. Melvin Ott, the former kid star of the Giants, comes from Gretna, La. D. M. Barbee of Greensboro, N. C., is with the Pirates, and Hal Lee of Ruston, La., is to be given a trial by the Phillies. Lee patted the ball in a 400 clip during the winter weeks of last season for Atlanta of the Southern Association.

WIND STORM HITS WALLACE

A similar story with a different ending was enacted at Charlottesville, Virginia led 15 to 11 at the half, but the Tar Heels came back in the last period to tie the count. Seven times during the game the count was even, and it stood that way—24 all, at the end of the regular periods. Edwards got free to throw in the winning count for Carolina in the extra period, and gave the visitors their 11th straight victory over Virginia in the annual cage tilt.

In the other North Carolina collegiate contest last night Elon 12 swamped Atlantic Christian, 45 to 32. While the cagemen were getting a short order in Knoxville, Duke's boxers also took it on the nose from a Southern conference foe. Tulane's mittmen came from behind after a poor showing to capture the match at Durham.

The sport schedule for tonight among the collegiates is rather slim. Atlantic Christian is to visit Guilford, and Catawba is to invade the Appalachian fair at Boone.

Residents Escape Injury as Houses Are Demolished by Terrific Storm.

Wallace, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Residents of Wallace today marvelled at the escape without injury of numerous persons in this section who were endangered when a terrific windstorm late yesterday swept a path about half-a-mile wide through the community.

One house on the outskirts of the town was blown down but none of those in it was hurt. It was occupied by a Mr. Riverbark and his family. Telephone and electric lines were destroyed and several house tops were blown off. A number of trees also were felled by the wind.

Residents said the rain accompanying the wind was as heavy as had ever been seen here and much hail also fell.

Doors of three houses inside the town were blown off and a number of windows were smashed. The wind was so strong an empty school bus as blown a considerable distance and the body smashed.

As a result of the fall of several power wire poles, the town was without lights last night. Repairs were underway today and the current was expected again by tonight. The storm lasted only a short while.

Charlotte.—(AP)—John P. Guldic, wanted in Virginia for founding Edward Sims, negro professor at Virginia Union University during an argument over an automobile wreck, was freed under $750 bond pending an extradition hearing.

Several Killed in Moslem Uprising

Springar, India, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Twenty-eight persons were reported killed today and thirty wounded in a renewal of the Moslem uprising at Uri, Kotli and Handwara against the government of Sir Hari Singh, Hindu ruler who was once known in blackmail cases in England as "Mr. A."

Three thousand angry Moslems carrying flags marched into Uri and stoned and wounded police. The military opened fire, killing three and wounding five.

The most serious trouble was reported from Kotli where twenty persons were said to have been killed. It was not made plain whether the casualties resulted from a communal riot or whether the military had fired into a mob.

A high throng of Moslems armed with hatchets, swords and knives launched an attack on Handwara. They looted shops and terrorized the populace and upon refusing to disperse were fired upon by police. Four were killed and many wounded.

APPROVE MILLS AS SECRETARY OF TREASURY

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Senate Finance committee today approved the nominations of Ogden L. Mills as secretary of the treasury, and Arthur A. Ballentine as under-secretary.

Warren Raps Smith's Stand

Commenting on Governor Smith's statement Representative Lindsay C. Warren, of the First North Carolina District said:

"I did not favor the nomination of Governor Smith in 1928, solely because I thought at the time that he would lose both the state and nation. I thought, however, that he had earned the right to it, and after he was nominated I made more speeches for him than any man in North Carolina.

"I am very much disappointed in his statement, made right on the eve of a great Democratic victory in the nation. Governor Smith has had his chance, and he should gracefully take his place in the ranks, and exert his great influence in the paths of harmony and for Democratic success. I cannot imagine that he can stir up any enthusiasm for himself among his former ardent supporters in North Carolina.

"I think that Governor Roosevelt will be nominated and that the effort to block him is unwise. Should Governor Roosevelt be stopped, I believe the party would turn to a man who is in nowise a candidate, but who today is the greatest living Democrat—Speaker John N. Garner."

Winston-Salem.—(AP)—Ralph Kimmel, 8, was seriously injured when he sought to catch a moving school bus, slipped and fell beneath its wheels, at Clemmons.

Three of the greatest movie dogs in the world were paying Greenville a visit today and apparently they were having the time of their lives watching people marvel at their uncanny intelligence.

They are Zander, Tarzan and Polar Ipsi, the property of Frank Barnes, of Hollywood, Calif., brother of Mrs. J. J. White, of Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes and their famous dogs will remain in Greenville until Friday and during that time the dogs will appear in performances at Greenville schools in behalf of the milk fund.

Performances will be given at West Greenville school Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Third Street school Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and at the Training School, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The dogs, considered the most intelligent in the world are valued at $30,000 and have appeared in many screen productions.

Tarzan, because of his almost human intelligence, has been denominated the "dog with the human mind," and has amazed millions of people with his power to understand the commands of his master.

Paying a brief visit to the Reflector office this morning, Tarzan did a number of tricks which indicated he has a perfect understanding of the English language, and especially when spoken by Mr. Barnes. He carried out every command with startling accuracy and precision, showing beyond doubt that he fully understands the spoken word. He will soon be five years old.

Zander, on the other hand, is only one year of age and works purely by signs. He is being trained for the talkies, and this necessitates that all of his activities be directed through signs. While still an infant compared with Tarzan and Polar Ipsi, he displayed the same degree of intelligence as the older dogs; and took part in a love scene with Tarzan that would have done credit to most any swain. Tarzan accepted the caresses with complete understanding, but apparently was glad when the infant stopped hugging and kissing.

Tarzan is about the color of any full bred German shepherd dog, but Zander, infant in size but giant of stature, is of a lighter color.

The dogs are an unceasing source of interest to everybody, but because they are of the movies, but because of their remarkable intelligence and uncanny way of responding to the commands of their master.

warship passed the Japanese destroyer off shore, the Japanese ceased firing at the fleet. They fired their guns with blanks, and fired salutes.

As soon as the foreign warships passed, they gave the command to resume firing, and turned their guns with renewed fury at the Chinese defenses.

Passing commercial vessels also merited a "cease firing" order until they had passed.

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., today announced receipt of a cablegram from its China council at Shanghai saying "the Japanese military methods are causing very great destruction and urging 'the necessity of every Christian influence for an immediate peaceful settlement.'"

Miss J. A. Hyde of Walnut, N. C., is listed among those who have left Nanking for Peiping, the cablegram said.

Greensboro.—(AP)—The Greensboro Chamber of Commerce has decided not to oppose the Atlantic and Yadkin Railroad's request to the state corporation commission that it be allowed to discontinue all passenger service.

whom prayers are offered receive very great assistance.

"All the ancient liturgies contain prayers for the dead which run somewhat like the following: 'Be mindful, O Lord, of thy servants who are gone before us with the sign of faith and sleep in the sleep of peace. Grant we beseech Thee, O Lord, to them a place of refreshment, light and peace, through the same Christ our Lord.'"

"The reasonableness of this doctrine has been admitted by many writers who are not Catholics. Mallock, for example, writes: 'It is becoming fast recognized that it (Purgatory) is the only doctrine which can bring a belief in future rewards and punishments into anything like accordance with our notions of what is just and reasonable. So far from its being a superfluous superstition, it is seen to be just what is demanded at once by reason and morality; and a belief in it is not an intellectual assent only, but a partial harmonizing of the whole moral ideal (Is Life Worth Living?—xi, 290.)"

"Asked about the possibility of miracles, the missionary replied that 'to deny the possibility of miracles is to deny the God of the Christians. A miracle is an event which occurs outside the course of nature. It is impossible for a creature to perform. One man steps from a boat and sinks in the water; another steps from the boat and walks on the surface of the water. The first is according to the ordinary course of nature, the other is a miracle. When life leaves the body it is natural for the body to corrupt and return to dust. This is the ordinary course of nature, but when Christ causes the dead body to rise and live again at the sound of His voice He works a miracle. God can work miracles for He made the world and governs it. He decreed the uniformity of nature's laws but He also decreed the exception to the law which we call a miracle. Miracles do not violate natural laws but are the works of the same omnipotent Creator who made nature and its laws. God's plan embraces the moral, the spiritual and the miraculous as well as the customary activities of physical forces. By working a miracle God is not changing His mind or altering the course of nature. He willed the miracle from all eternity. It is in accord with His mind and plan. It requires no more power to work a miracle than to preserve the world in its ordinary course. Both are accomplished by God's omnipotence. To deny the possibility of miracles is, therefore, to deny the omnipotence of God.'"

"The subject of the mission lecture this evening is 'Christ, Our Teacher.'"

County Court Is in Session Here

namely, that there is a middle state beyond the grave, and that we may assist the souls there detained by our prayers. We do not speak of praying souls out of purgatory. That phrase was invented by others. Our belief is that the Kingdom of Christ includes not only the faithful on earth, but the blessed in heaven and the souls in purgatory as well. Just as our prayers to God in behalf of our living brethren may secure for them God's favor, so our prayers for the needy in another part of Christ's Kingdom may benefit them.

"The Bible used by Christ and the evangelists, that is, the Septuagint version of the Old Testament, contained this doctrine. In the Second Book of Maccabees (xii, 42-46) we read that 'It is a holy and a wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from their sins.'"

"This doctrine is supported by the words of Christ (Matt. xii, 32) and the teaching of St. Paul (I. Cor. iii 11-15) who speaks of slight sins being burned away and the soul being saved as by fire.

The Fathers of both the East and West speak of the apostolic custom of praying for the dead. Tertullian says: 'The faithful widow prays for the soul of her husband, and begs for him in the interim repose, and participation in the first resurrection, and offers prayers of the anniversary of his death.' St. Cyril of Jerusalem, writes: 'Then we pray for all who have died in our communion, believing that the souls for

They are Zander, Tarzan and Polar Ipsi, the property of Frank Barnes, of Hollywood, Calif., brother of Mrs. J. J. White, of Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes and their famous dogs will remain in Greenville until Friday and during that time the dogs will appear in performances at Greenville schools in behalf of the milk fund.

Performances will be given at West Greenville school Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Third Street school Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and at the Training School, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The dogs, considered the most intelligent in the world are valued at $30,000 and have appeared in many screen productions.

Tarzan, because of his almost human intelligence, has been denominated the "dog with the human mind," and has amazed millions of people with his power to understand the commands of his master.

Paying a brief visit to the Reflector office this morning, Tarzan did a number of tricks which indicated he has a perfect understanding of the English language, and especially when spoken by Mr. Barnes. He carried out every command with startling accuracy and precision, showing beyond doubt that he fully understands the spoken word. He will soon be five years old.

Zander, on the other hand, is only one year of age and works purely by signs. He is being trained for the talkies, and this necessitates that all of his activities be directed through signs. While still an infant compared with Tarzan and Polar Ipsi, he displayed the same degree of intelligence as the older dogs; and took part in a love scene with Tarzan that would have done credit to most any swain. Tarzan accepted the caresses with complete understanding, but apparently was glad when the infant stopped hugging and kissing.

Tarzan is about the color of any full bred German shepherd dog, but Zander, infant in size but giant of stature, is of a lighter color.

The dogs are an unceasing source of interest to everybody, but because they are of the movies, but because of their remarkable intelligence and uncanny way of responding to the commands of their master.

PLAN FLIGHT TO LONDON

Ulbrich and Redpath Go to N. Y. to Plan for One Week Aerial Journey.

Charlotte, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Another bid for aerial fame, in the shape of a round-trip flight to London in one week, will be made in May by William Ulbrich and Peter Redpath, the fliers announced here when they stopped overnight en route to New York where final touches will be given their big cabin plane.

The men, both of who boast of long flying records, came here with L. J. Sauerborn, their manager, who said Henry L. Prichard, of Charleston, W. Va., and Thomas Wilson Smith, of Washington, are associated with him in sponsoring the flight.

A 350-horsepower motor will carry their Bellanca plane to London from New York in 29 to 33 hours, and come back in 45 hours, Redpath, a veteran navigator, associate and student of Harold Gatty, round-the-world navigator, said.

The plane will carry 150 gallons of gas, he said. The fliers intend to rest only briefly in London before starting the return trip, saying they wished to demonstrate the feasibility of two-way commercial flights across the Atlantic.

Redpath is a former navigator of the Canadian Merchant Marine. Ulbrich was formerly chief instructor at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., and has recently been making distance flights for the makers of his plane.

WARREN RAPS SMITH'S STAND

Commenting on Governor Smith's statement Representative Lindsay C. Warren, of the First North Carolina District said:

"I did not favor the nomination of Governor Smith in 1928, solely because I thought at the time that he would lose both the state and nation. I thought, however, that he had earned the right to it, and after he was nominated I made more speeches for him than any man in North Carolina.

"I am very much disappointed in his statement, made right on the eve of a great Democratic victory in the nation. Governor Smith has had his chance, and he should gracefully take his place in the ranks, and exert his great influence in the paths of harmony and for Democratic success. I cannot imagine that he can stir up any enthusiasm for himself among his former ardent supporters in North Carolina.

"I think that Governor Roosevelt will be nominated and that the effort to block him is unwise. Should Governor Roosevelt be stopped, I believe the party would turn to a man who is in nowise a candidate, but who today is the greatest living Democrat—Speaker John N. Garner."

ABOUT TOWN

What every community needs at this time is more painters to help paint the clouds with sunshine. All of us have heard enough talk about depression and hard times. We have heard it reiterated so many times that everything we think about is along this line of thought and it is difficult to get the mind to go into other channels.

If more people would begin brightening up their surroundings and talking about other things it would not be long before Old Man Depression would be forgotten. We are told by men of the leading school of thought that things are on the mend and this ought to inspire us to clear our perspective and try to get another slant on life.

Sitting around and bemoaning our fate is not going to do any good. Braggadocio will not help. But genuine faith in the possibilities of the nation to overcome the condition should bring about a transformation surpassing the fondest expectation. What we want is an army of one hundred and twenty-five million people—all painters—to help brighten up the clouds and dissipate the gloom which has hovered over the nation and the world generally for two years.

With America setting the pace it should not be long before the whole world would fall in line and clear the land of some of the dissatisfaction, morbidness, and fear engendered by the constant thinking of depression and accompanying ills. Psychological reaction is what is needed and happy be the power that causes it to sweep from one end of the earth to the other.

Al Smith's denial that he is a candidate for the presidency caused great surprise throughout the country in the face of previous reports that he would run if nominated by the party at the Chicago Democratic convention in June. The announcement came after prominent politicians and newspaper writers had nearly talked themselves to death. Smith was criticized from one end of the land to the other, everybody agreeing that he could not hope to win and would prove a menace to the party's chance of winning in the general election in November.

Al Smith has an unspeakable amount of nerve as his activities in the State of New York alone have indicated, but he has more sense than to jeopardize his party by launching a campaign without the slightest chance of victory. But, anyway, he has given the country one of the biggest scares in many a day, and many days will pass before the highly-keyed politicians recover from a shock.

The Chinese apparently are getting better results with the arrival of reinforcements, judging by reports in yesterday's papers that they killed five hundred Japanese in the day's conflict. If Japan has any intention of mopping up with the Chinese she will find that far more troops are necessary than have been sent into action so far.

China, realizing the menace, is bitterly contesting every inch of ground and it is probable hundreds of other warriors will be slain before Japan has accomplished her object. The war is a direct result of the economic condition facing Japan, and will continue until that nation has satisfied herself she has acquired sufficient territory to relieve her overcrowded condition. It is an old custom for Japan and other nations also to go over to China and annex territory whenever they feel like they need it, but China, tiring of the conquest, evidently means to hold on to what she has if she dies in the attempt. At least, that is the assertion of leading men of the nation and who doubts that they mean every word they say, realizing as they do that further acquisition of her lands will mean economic death.

"Dollar Day" will be observed by

Greenville merchants Thursday, February 11, and shoppers of this great trade territory will have the opportunity to obtain the best to be had at prices away below those usually charged.

Greenville merchants have made it a point to share profits with their customers over a period of many years, and this year will see the offering as extensive as any year since the inauguration of special trade days.

The values represent the latest creations from the world's greatest style centers and will go for the price of one dollar. It is amazing the way goods are moved on "Dollar Days" and none appreciates it more than the thrifty housewife eternally looking for bargains.

Merchants are expecting tremendous crowds from far and near and sales are expected to equal any similar event in past years in spite of the constant complaint of depression. People are going to bring out some of the money hoarded way in the past and it is going to do its part toward revival of business in this community.

JAP OFFICIALS SURPRISED AT REACTION IN AMERICA

The tendency to believe Japan was seeking further proposals from the powers, when her foreign office spokesman aired the unacceptable plan for neutralizing the important Chinese cities, appeared borne out by press dispatches from Tokyo.

The same spokesman was quoted as saying: "Those who disapprove of Japan's proposals should attempt to offer something better. General belief, however, was that more direct evidence of Japan's willingness for immediate peace would be awaited before this country, at least, advanced any new suggestions.

The situation at Shanghai itself caused fresh concern, with the news of wounding of foreigners in the international settlement by shell-fire from both Japanese and Chinese batteries. So far, however, no reports of injuries to Americans had come.

The Tokyo government apparently has not communicated the suggested new treaty plan through any diplomatic channels, apparently depending upon reaction to newspaper reports to establish the attitude of this and other nations. In his they were entirely successful, as the reception in Washington left no room for doubting that this country would not consider it.

ROCKEFELLER IS OPTIMISTIC

Mr. Rockefeller showed not the slightest effects from recent confinement because of the cold, as he walked out of his home overlooking the broad Halifax river and strolled about his tropical gardens, as was the picture of perfect health for a man of his age.

In fact, he was so delighted to be out in the warm sunshine again that once he stopped and sang a hymn as he gazed with twinkling eyes at the myriad of brilliant flowers and shrubs that surround his estate, the Casements. "Does that feel like the grip of a sick man?" the genial philanthropist said with a chuckle as he shook hands firmly with the correspondent. "I feel better than ever before."

Then he explained he had contracted a slight cold and, rather than take chances of it lingering, had decided to stay indoors until it broke up. Mr. Rockefeller said he had been well for a week, but thought it better to enjoy the sunshine for a few days before resuming his daily round of golf. He said he hoped to be playing again shortly.

The kindly faced and soft-spoken millionaire was neatly dressed in a suit of grey, with a dainty sweet pea for a boutonniere. He wore a gray felt hat and carried a Mr. Rockefeller said he regretted missing church services on Sundays because of the cold and of being deprived of the pleasure of meeting with his friends during his confinement. He thought it better to remain indoors, however, until he was completely well.

WILL ROGERS RETURNS HOME

"Everywhere I went a war broke out just after I left. Say, ain't these Chinese putting up a battle I flew hundreds of miles with a Chinese pilot, which is taking more chances than Lindbergh took. I flew over Jerusalem and through I didn't stop I could hear the wallin'. That was amateur wallin', however, compared to what I heard as soon as the ship came within earshot of Nantucket light."

"I guess I'm the only gen' who went to Cairo without seeing the Sphinx. I had already seen Mr. Coolidge. The most interesting guy I met on the ship, during which I flew twelve days steady from near Singapore to London, was a feller taking 500 cases of bees to China. I'd like to hear from that feller. I'm going back home to Hollywood to make some pictures. I am also going to write a short history of China? Yes, very short."

ROOSEVELT IN FINE HUMOR

both been amused at the vain attempt to keep the conference a secret.

Asked directly whether his obvious happiness was the result of the meeting, he parried the question.

Mr. Roosevelt also saw State Chairman James A. Farley, who has been carrying the Roosevelt banner in the presidential campaign to all corners of the nation, and Homer S. Cummings, former Democratic national chairman, while in New York. He had a "pleasant talk" with both.

ONE INJURED BY SHELLS IN INTERNATIONAL AREA

Mrs. Robertson suffered little ill effect from her taste of warfare save for extreme nervousness. She said she heard the projectile hiss over her and got behind a tree.

"As I crouched," she said, "I felt a terrific explosion and there came a rain of dust and earth. When I recovered from the shock, I saw a large crater a few feet away from which had come the shower of earth. Had I been on the other side of the tree I surely would have been killed. Two motor trucks were wrecked by the explosion."

Today's wounded in the settlement includes besides Mrs. Robertson, five Chinese women. On Saturday Dr. Love Rankin of Sweetwater, Tenn., an instructor in the National Central University, was slightly wounded in the arm by a splinter from a Japanese air bomb.

The bodies of five Japanese Blue jackets were brought into a Red Cross canteen near Chaowan-pang. Nearer the front the bodies of a Chinese man and woman lay in a muddy field and two dead Chinese soldiers, riddled with bullets were sprawled across the railroad tracks nearby, their hands tied behind their backs.

A Japanese officer said the Japanese losses were heavy, in dead and wounded, but he insisted the Chinese losses were heavier still. The Japanese force at Wosung was placed at 4,000 by their own officials.

The village was a wreck. Buildings that escaped the bombardment by the warships' guns over the week-end were reduced to ruins by the shelling of the last two days.

A group of 350 United States soldiers, men of the Thirty-First Infantry, Second Battalion, relieved the Royal Scots Fusiliers in a bound of the international settlement during the day.

They saw action immediately when anti-aircraft guns began booming as they took their posts. The Japanese had begun an air raid over Chappi.

PLAN FLIGHT TO LONDON

(Continued from Page One) Already he has sent out telegrams to obtain names of aggressive men, well established in popular confidence, to head each state committee. He planned after a further conference with Ogden Mills today to hasten to Chicago where he will establish headquarters for the drive. The heads of the national organization recently called in by President Hoover will serve as a central advisory group, to illustrate his view of the problem. Knox said:

"Much of our trouble seems to be a national headache induced by eyestrain from looking across the Atlantic. We can't remedy conditions in Europe but we can remedy them here." He estimated all but 7 1-2 per cent of American industry's production was marketed in this country, and said this fraction could be "tossed out of the window" and still, with confidence restored, the nation could lead the world back to prosperity.

(Continued from Page One) Mrs. Judd heard the verdict with out show of emotion. She was immediately taken to her cell, where she walked in front of her mirror and viewed herself several seconds. achieve arms reduction. This question has long been a stumbling block to preparatory disarmament work. "A decrease in arms is an essential," Mr. Gibson said, "not alone for the recovery of the world, but also to the preservation of the whole fabric of peace."

The United States, he said, advocates making the draft convention drawn up by the preparatory committee the basis of the discussions of the conference. In this he agreed in the stand taken by Sir John Simon spokesman for Great Britain, who addressed the conference yesterday. Gibson added, however, that the United States is willing to consider any supplementary proposal calculated to

Boy Crazy

By GRACE PERKINS
AUTHOR OF "PERSONAL MAID"

SYNOPSIS: Hope Ross and Dickey Dale are happily unconcerned with the future when they run away and get married on fourteen dollars. But Dickey calls up his father, "Hickey," theatrical manager and "the grandest guy in eight states," and Hickey tells them to come over to his apartment to be scolded and congratulated. Hope has eloped in an evening dress, and Hickey arranges the quick delivery of a traveling outfit. Hope's father, however is not expected to prove so cooperative. In fact, Hope expects him to create a riot and her mother to have hysterics for weeks. The Ross family has not approved of Dickey, mainly on the ground of Hickey's social inferiority. Hickey has promised to call up Mr. Ross to try to smooth matters over, but Hope is dubious. Meanwhile, she and Dickey and a newly annexed white kitten have breakfast.

Chapter 14
"The devil take wils," growled Dickey as he poured the coffee. "The devil take all—"

A knock at their door interrupted them. As Dickey opened the door, one Mr. Andrew Hall walked in, and greeted the golden haired child sitting in a white velvet evening gown with a white kitten in her lap. He announced himself as the manager of the hotel who had just talked to Mr. Dale, the theatrical producer, and Dickey's father.

Let him be the first to congratulate the young couple, said Mr. Hall suavely, his sleepless eyes glowing with barely suppressed mirth. He had asked Madame Renee, the local modiste, to provide Mrs. Dale with suitable apparel for going into town. Mr. Dale's orders, Mr. Dale, Sr., that is!

Exactly Hope phoned this Madame Renee, giving her size and asking what were the possibilities in the current wardrobe of the shop.

In a haphazard brown covert suit peach satin blouse, brown shoes and brown felt hat, Hope was tucked into the car beside her Dickey and bade good-by to Mr. Hall, Madame Renee, and a bill of a hundred and twenty-seven dollars.

It was a glorious morning. A teasing spring morning that seemed to be laughing at their fears. Good morning Mr. and Mrs. Are you happy? Terribly in love?

"You'll stick by me no matter what?" Dickey demanded as they flew through the main street of the town that was Hope's home.

"No matter what!" she vowed. And meant it.

On and on they traveled. Talking, at traffic stops, of the future. Of how Dickey would go to work. Real work. And write plays on the side to make a fortune for them. And how they would take a little studio apartment. And live within Dickey's means. No more college for Dickey. Life was serious now.

So serious!
Hickey met them at the door of the hotel suite that he called home; and that suite he had made home, by a mad collection of trinkets, reminiscent photographs, pieces of stage furniture, tapestries, curios, innumerable books, framed programs, and a huge Great Dane who from a pup, had been Hickey's solace in the lonely months when his son was off acquiring an education. The Great Dane, called Dobson after the play that had made Hickey's first great success on Broadway, was Hickey's ever-faithful shadow.

Hickey greeted them solemnly. Kissing Hope and calling her "daughter." With remarkable dignity in that word—"daughter."

In the great, over-crowded living room, Hickey sat, with Dobson at his feet, and faced the two slightly subdued young culprits. Heard the story of Sassy who rested quite safely in the crook of Hope's arm; and called his man-servant for ale. Hickey loved his ale, and it was much easier to keep stern and practical in treating with these two impossible young idiots with a mug of ale in his fist. Coffee was ordered for the bride and groom, and then Hickey began to talk.

"Your father," said he, hitting one leg across the other with a noticeable effort, "is simply beyond speech. You've been a very bad girl, Hope. Wait, now. You listen to me. You're going to have to do a lot of talking later."

"Your father won't discuss matters with me. I tried to hold my temper. I think I did hold my temper. Yes, I may say I did. Admirably. But I couldn't change your father's opinion. The man is quite out of his mind with worry and anger."

"Hold on, I say, and listen to me! Both of you. You had no right to run off like that last night. I'm surprised at you. I'm not going to bawl you out. What's done is done. I think you kids love each other. I'm sure of it. And I'm willing to back you to the limit. To certain limits, that is."

Hickey indulged in a long draught of the ale, and cleared his throat. Hand in hand sat Hope and Dickey, quite tense, glancing at each other occasionally, their eyes repeating the vows to "stick by, no matter what."

boy in the limp tuxedo opposite. "I want you to finish college. I think you owe it to me, son. You have only a year to go, and I want you to finish. Outside of that I'll back you to the limit."

"I want to support Hope now, Hickey. After all," Dickey threw out his hands in a hopeless gesture. "I'm married now, Hickey. You wouldn't want me not to be a man—not to face my responsibilities?"

Hickey gulped some ale and stared at the boy. "Listen," he said brusquely. "You can't tell me anything. I was married at your age myself. I had to support my wife. And I know how it feels. I know what it means. Now I believe in young love. I'm for it. But not with all the hardships you will have to face if you want to be noble idiots. I know you, son. I want you to be a man, yes. But I'll give you plenty of opportunity to show your guts time enough. Plenty of opportunity."

Hope goes home, in the next installment, and she and Dickey get a reception that surprises and angers them.

Arranging Bond in Murder Case

Lexington, N. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Edward F. Sullivan of Palatka, Fla., was arranging $2,000 bond here today for his appearance as a material witness in connection with the slaying Friday of Sheriff James A. Leonard, of Davidson county.

Sullivan, a fruit dealer, arrived here with his father, M. D. Sullivan, police goods merchant, and reported today to H. B. Talbert, chief of police.

E. C. Byerly, clerk of court, said Lexington citizens had volunteered to furnish the bond which is made returnable to the next term of superior court or at a previous call of a Superior Court judge.

Sullivan is held as a witness with Neal Wimmer, of Roanoke, Va., who was wounded in the altercation that followed a dispute between Wimmer and Leonard after the sheriff's automobile had been wrecked.

George A. Younce, former solicitor of the 12th district, and W. F. Brinkley, local attorney, were held by a coroner's jury in the killing after Younce said Leonard was shot as the two (Younce and Leonard) struggled for the sheriff's pistol after Wimmer had been wounded.
