French Cabinet Resigns

LAVAL SENDS RESIGNATIONS TO PRESIDENT

Paris, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Defeated by 23 votes in the Senate this afternoon, Premier Laval and all members of his cabinet presented their resignations to President Doumer.

The vote was on the premier's request to defer debate on the government's general policy until Feb. 19 because of the importance of negotiations now going on in the disarmament conference at Geneva.

By a margin of 157 to 134 the Senate turned him down, and as he had made the vote a question of confidence he proceeded immediately to confer with his political advisers and turned in his resignation.

It was the third time in the past seven years and the fourth time in French parliamentary history that a government has been overturned by an adverse vote in the Senate.

Usually it is the Chamber of Deputies which votes a ministry out of office.

Although the defeat was ostensibly on the request for postponement of debate, actually dissatisfaction has been growing among the opposition for some time.

When the premier presented his resignation to the president this evening it was accepted immediately.

Probe Bomb Found in Roman Church

Rome, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Italian police and Vatican authorities cooperated today in an exhaustive investigation into the mysterious planting of a bomb in St. Peter's, possibly at the time Premier Mussolini appeared there after his visit to Pope Pius or before the Pontiff said his tenth anniversary mass last week.

The bomb was removed Saturday after authorities were informed of it through a mysterious cablegram from the United States. It was placed beneath a large bronze lion near the central altar.

As far as could be learned no arrest had been made today. Vatican authorities declined to discuss the cable that led to the discovery of the bomb and police also maintained silence pending the outcome of their efforts to reach a solution of the problem.

The bomb was exploded by Italian artillery officers yesterday on an artillery range, near Rome and they said it had power enough to have lifted off its pedestal a massive bronze lion under which it was found.

Woman Jailed For Slaying Mail Man

Spartanburg, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Cussie Fine, 37, mother of three children, was held in the county jail today charged with slaying Judson F. Reel, 38-year-old Sunday school superintendent of his life.

Reel, a city mail carrier, was shot down yesterday as he was making his rounds on one of the main streets of the city. Three pistol bullets were fired into his body.

After the shooting, Mrs. Fine went to a nearby residence and asked that the police be summoned. The officers quoted her as saying: "I shot him because he wrecked my life. I resisted his attention as long as I could."

Reel, married and father of four children, died in a hospital a few hours after he was shot. He was superintendent of the Glendale Baptist Sunday school.

Mrs. Fine had followed Reel in her automobile to the scene of the shooting.

Authorities said they found a whiskey bottle in the machine. The woman told them, they said, she had bought the whiskey to "get up nerve" to slay Reel.

MISSING GIRL IS BACK HOME

Strange Man Returns School Child Home After Her Abduction at Lillington.

Lillington, N. C., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Helen Bolling, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Bolling of R. F. D. 2, Lillington, was left at a neighbor's house two miles from the Bolling home between midnight and daylight today by a strange man, the sheriff's office here said.

Officers went to the home of Wil Butler, the neighbor, in an effort to clear up the mystery. It was not immediately known whether the girl was injured or who was in the party that took her away from the school.

Lillington, N. C., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Helen Bolling, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Bolling of R. F. D. 2, Lillington, has been missing since two youths and a young woman took her from her school yesterday, telling her teacher the child's mother was ill and they had been sent for her.

Mrs. Bolling was not ill and she and her husband said they did not know the three young people who took the child from school or why they should have taken her.

The Bollings are not wealthy and police said there was little likelihood the child had been kidnapped for ransom.

The parents' description of the child said she had light hair, blue eyes and a "new front tooth." She was wearing red-checked socks and high shoes.

SEIZE TRUCK LOAD OF RUM

Two Men and 1,199 Gallons of Booze are Nabbed by Officers at Lumberton.

Lumberton, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Police loaded Robeson county jail with 1,199 gallons of Scotch and Canadian whiskey and two men today a few minutes after they peeped into a truck parked on a street here.

The whiskey, bottled in bond, was packed on a five-ton truck carrying Michigan license plate number 1-503-066. The men, arrested as drivers of the van, gave their names as Fred Scott and George Allen of Detroit.

They said they had loaded their machine "at some point in Columbus county" and were headed north. They refused further information.

Suspicious officers were aroused when the truck, similar to one loaded with whiskey that wrecked at Dunn yesterday, was parked on the street, here about 8 a. m., while the operators were at breakfast in a cafe.

Investigation proved the machine was packed with cases of whiskey.

The Canadian beverage, bearing a label "Rare Old Canadian Whiskey, Bottled in Bond," carried the firm name of Joseph E. Seagram and Son, Ltd., Waterloo, Ont.

The Scotch was branded "Weston's Special Reserve," with the firm name of Dunlop West & Son, London & Glasgow.

There were 339 burlap bags containing three gallons to a bag and seven kegs containing 26 gallons each. Some of the cases bore the date 1922.

Negro Youth Accidentally Kills Himself

"Death by accident" was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Johnnie Fleming 18-year-old negro youth, who was killed while hunting rabbits yesterday in the Pactolus community.

The negro was believed to have been killed by a charge from his own gun when he slipped off a stump. The charge entered the boy's stomach and he died about an hour later.

It was at first thought he had committed suicide or was a victim of foul play but this theory was abandoned following investigation of the jury headed by Coroner Elwanger.

House Adopts Move Against the Lame Duck

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—A resolution proposing to the states a constitutional amendment to abolish the "lame duck" session of Congress was adopted today by the House.

The vote was 335 to 56. It was approved by a two-thirds vote as required for a proposed constitutional amendment. Having already been approved by the Senate, it will be sent to conference when minor differences will be composed.

It provides that a new Congress shall meet two months after the November elections, instead of thirteen months later as at present. Terms of congressmen would begin on January 4 and of the president and vice-president on January 24.

WETS MEET NEW SETBACK

House Judiciary Committee Rejects Resolution for Home Rule Submission.

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The wet bloc resolution proposing submission of a home rule constitutional amendment on prohibition was rejected today by the House Judiciary committee of a 14-9 vote.

Anti-prohibitionists gave notice they would demand a vote on the floor in the House by the new discharge petition requiring 15 signatures.

The home rule amendment—embodied principles advanced by John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee—is sponsored by two men, Rep. Lincoln of Maryland, chairman of the Democratic wet bloc, and Rep. Beck of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican wets.

These groups were not hopeful of favorable committee action, but were prepared to push, as an alternative, a report of the resolution to the House without recommendation. Such procedure would avoid use of the discharge petition.

The raids were staged by the "wrecking crew" from Kinston.

ABDUCTED MAN MAKES ESCAPE

Wealthy Sportsman Suffers Rough Handling From Kidnappers in Ohio.

Cleveland, Feb. 16.—(AP)—After a spectacular escape from kidnapers who had kept him prisoner, his life in danger, since last Thursday, Harry H. Blagden, 45, wealthy eastern sportsman, staggered today into the home of a friend in Cleveland. He was suffering from knockout drops, rough treatment and fatigue.

Blagden, prominent in New York and Washington society, had been held for ransom since last Saturday when he was kidnapped from a cottage at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Relatives had feared he was murdered.

He said he was brought to Cleveland by his kidnapers after many hours of traveling and probably two days imprisonment in a windowless room above a garage, which he believed was in Albany, N. Y. All of the time his life was in danger and once the abductors threatened to kill him.

Shortly after their arrival in Cleveland, two of the kidnapers, known only as "Jim" and "Zeke," went into a house to eat, leaving Blagden lying in the back of the truck under guard of a third man called "Curly."

Blagden feigned sleep, he told police later, and when Curly relaxed his vigilance, the sportsman summoned all his remaining strength and knocked the guard to the floor with a blow to the stomach.

Chinese Troops Moving Into Front Lines Cut to Pieces by Japanese Artillery; The Shelling of Chapei Subsidies and Japanese Troops are Still Moving up for Expected Offensive.

By MORRIS J. HARRIS (Copyright, 1932, Associated Press) Shanghai, China, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Shanghai shook to the bombardment of heavy artillery firing across Chapei tonight after a day of comparative quiet.

It appeared that the Japanese had brought up their biggest guns, for the cancanading was heavier than in several days.

Shanghai, China, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Japanese air scouts, flying high over the Kiangnan district between Shanghai and Woosung this afternoon spotted a large body of Chinese troops, including cavalry, moving into the front lines.

Quickly the planes darted back to the Hongkew base and in a few moments Japanese artillery was cutting the Chinese column to pieces.

The Chinese sought cover but not until heavy casualties had been inflicted. Japanese headquarters said.

In other sectors this was a quiet day. The bombardment of Chapei had subsided and there were no open hostilities at Woosung, but Japanese troops were still moving up for the expected offensive which is not yet materialized.

The Chinese took advantage of the lull to strengthen their lines and repair roads and communications in the Chapei area.

Japan's army of 25,000 turned the ordinarily peaceful mill district of Shanghai in which it is quartered into a scene of feverish military activity, leading to a belief that the long-expected big battle was about to begin, ending a situation which had become a shifting game of checkmate.

Infantry columns marched here and there and cavalry and artillery units dashed about. Columns of artillery lined the roadways, well-groomed horses hitched to the big guns. Groups of officers rode ahead of the artillery units and foot soldiers tramped behind the pieces.

Motorcycles skidded through the cases and infantry formations, although no one seemed to know where they were going. Headquarters officials kept a close-mouthed silence and one's observation was hampered everywhere by sentries who frowned on prying eyes.

Long trains of brown army trucks moved up and down the road from the Japanese wharves, completing the unloading of military supplies from the transport ships in the river. Each truck was under heavy guard, carrying unsung rifles, heavy hauled bedding, food, cooking outfits, tents, clothing, fuel ammunition and other war supplies.

Japanese aviators warmed themselves around fires at the newly-built airfield at the settlement limits. Mechanics "tuned up" the planes and others filled the bomb racks with bombs.

At the same time Russian and Chinese laborers continued leveling the new runways of the field. Thirty planes glistened in the brilliant sun. All were a bright metallic color with glaring red tails and they bore the rising sun emblem of Japan on their sides.

Trucks roared in and out bringing additional supplies. The atmosphere of the place indicated that something was about to happen.

Except for a brief artillery duel over Chapei earlier in the day in which Chinese and Japanese guns boomed rather harmlessly at each other, there was little firing during the day.

General Tsai Ting-Kai, the dapper, brilliant young poet-commander of the Chinese forces, shifted his 50,000 troops with surprising rapidity, apparently to block Japanese moves. Confirmed shifting was in progress within the Japanese lines, also, and each side apparently sought to counteract the increasing preparations in the other camp.

Both sides prepared for some (Continued on Page Six)

The club voted to donate $10.00 to care for a young girl dependent on charity.

Plans were completed for the Leap Year dance to be given on Friday evening at the club.

Two letters written to the club were read. One was a note thanking the club for funds rendered for a tonsil operation; the other a note from the Senior Woman's Club thanking the Junior Club for a gift presented them a few days ago.

At the close of the business session Miss Frances Norman, program leader, very graciously introduced Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, recording secretary of the N. C. After thinking a short while the Poes answered the challenge with a preference for the negative side of the question.

Inter-Society debates are an annual affair at East Carolina Teachers College. No event of the year excites so much interest and enjoyment as these debates. The winner of this debate will debate the Emersons. The Laniers are holding the cup this year from a victory won over both Poes and Emersons last year. A large crowd is always present to hear the debates. The president of the neutral society always acts as chairman, and the members of the society always sit in the center of the auditorium. Each society has its side of the auditorium decorated with society colors; it has its own cheer leaders, and pep songs.

Around The World Ship Makes Stop On Carolina Coast

Elizabeth City, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Roald Amundsen, replica of a viking ship used by Norsemen in early voyages to America, plans to weigh anchor here Thursday and continue her sail around the world.

The craft crossed the ocean under its own sails and after touching many ports, tied up here Friday where bad weather has held her. She expects to arrive at Beaufort, N. C., on the 20th and Charleston, S. C., seven days later.

Captain Gerhard Folgero, in command, is making his second tour of this country after his trans-Atlantic voyage in an open boat. His first was in a smaller viking ship, the Lief Erickson, in which he followed the route by which its namesake reached Vineland or Newfoundland.

He started with his present ship from his native Bergen and headed south to Palos, Spain, and from there followed closely the route taken by Christopher Columbus, touching first at Havana.

A crew of three helped him sail across the ocean.

While the Roald Amundsen is strictly a replica of the viking ships used by Norsemen prior to the year 1,000, it is equipped with an 8 H. P. motor but this is used only in harbors and in passing through canals.

ABOUT TOWN

The declaration of Josephus Daniels to run for governor was received with keen regret in this part of the state where he would have received united support had he decided to run. Mr. Daniels decided not to enter could render the people of the state the race because he felt like he could render the people of the state greater service through the columns of his paper. That he will be able to wield tremendous influence whether definitely in the race or out of it is not to be doubted, and the state will watch his magnificent battle with interest. He is a stout defender of the rights of the people and wants land taxes lifted from the shoulders of the oppressed landowners and placed upon those more able to bear them. In view of the fact that land has always borne the brunt of taxation, it does seem just and fair that it be given relief and the fight which Mr. Daniels is waging in this connection assuredly will receive wide-spread support in this territory. Delinquent tax payers are being urged by various town and county governments to get busy and pay their taxes and enable officials to meet their obligations. The slow payment of taxes is being felt keenly in all parts of the country at this time, and governments are going to be crippled exceedingly if the condition does not improve. Not so long ago the Board of Aldermen and city school trustees sent out a plea for people to settle up their taxes as rapidly as possible and enable the schools to operate full term. The response has been liberal but tax payments are still lagging and collectors are working over time attempting to bring home the bacon. This is a condition that vitally affects every home and it is hoped people who have neglected this matter will get busy immediately and take care of their obligations. Another protest has gone to Japan from America and Britain. This time they are opposing the use of the Shanghai International settlement as a base for operation of Japanese soldiers. Just what Tokyo will have to say this time is problematical, but as they are very apt at making excuses, a plausible reply is anticipated. The Japs have a way of accomplishing what they want in spite of protests, and there seems to be little hope of cessation of hostilities until they have driven the Chinese out of Shanghai. At least, this is the object of the present centralization of troops at the international boundary, and who doubts that they will accomplish their purpose in spite of the stoutest resistance the Chinese are able to offer. That farmers are interested in the fifty million dollar relief measure recently announced by the government was manifest in announcement that several hundred loans have been forwarded to Washington from this part of the state. With the economic situation worse than it has been in years, who can blame the growers for taking advantage of this effort of the government to pull them out of the hole. The Pitt County Farm Department reported a few days ago that two or three hundred farmers had made inquiries here concerning the loans, and its officers rendered all service possible. If the growers will take these loans and apply them wisely they should be able to lift their heads above the water within the next few years. However, if they spend injudiciously, they can expect nothing better than to find themselves in the same old hole in another year. By proper application of loans

Boy Crazy

By GRACE PERKINS AUTHOR OF "PERSONAL MAID"

SYNOPSIS: Money and beauty mean little to Hope Ross, recently made Mrs. Dale, since her father opposes her runaway marriage. She has not heard from Dickey Dale, her husband, since Mr. Ross turned him away from the house. Her father has seen Dickey privately, and injured him severely in a fight.

Chapter 20 A DREADFUL MISTAKE Hope—in her room—talking to her father whenever he came. Listening to him, face averted, silent, unprotesting. Waiting and waiting and waiting—until tired little line crept under the blue eyes, and a wistful droop around her mouth. Waited, with Sassy in her lap, as she wrote letter after letter—whole sheaves of them—to Dickey.

These letters she gave to Goody, who had put in an embarrassed appearance the second morning, bringing news of Mama Ross's dangerous heart attack and her lingering illness. The more questions Goody asked and Hope left unanswered the more resentful and awkward the older girl became. For once Goody found herself the favorite of the household. For once she was sought by her father for support and assistance. And Goody gloried in her new importance. She herself was thoroughly convinced of the madness of Hope's escapade and felt no guilt in corroborating her father's lie about Dickey's non-appearance. Not a word did Goody breathe of the scene that had taken place in the billiard room the night after the wedding. Never once did she whisper to Hope that Dickey was hurt—no one knew how badly—and was lying in his grandmother's house under a doctor's care.

In Mama Ross's sick room, Goody had stood by the bed (conscious of her father's broad back as he stood staring unseeing out of the window, and keeping his averted face from the two women who were plotting) and gravely, sincerely given an oath to her invalid mother that she would never mention the episode to Hope or anyone else. Goody meant well when she gave this dramatic promise, and Goody was one whose religion it was to keep a promise at any cost. She never dreamed her father half hated them both for drawing the knot tighter around Hope's disillusionment. How could she guess? She couldn't see the half sneer on his face, or the look of disgust and resentment in his tired, hurt eyes. She was concentrating upon Mama's urgent, half-hysterical prattle.

And each letter that Hope entrusted to her sister with tearful pleadings that she post it right away, Goody brought dutifully to her father. Never dreaming that he half despised her for carrying out his orders and keeping his secret so nobly, so elaborately, so sanctimoniously.

Greater even than that were Goody's glories those days. Not only was she her mother's unfailing staff of comfort, but Goody was the general supply-house of information for all of Hope's gang as they phoned the house.

It was Goody who effected the final triumph in the breaking of Hope's spirit. Papa Ross, feeling that he had done his share, refused actively to indulge in the gorgeous drama which Mama was enacting with her superb "heart attack." When, after eight days of waiting to hear an answer to her many letters, Hope had to face herself and admit that Dickey couldn't have cared for her or surely he'd make some effort to come to her, wire her, phone her, or speak to her, the child caved in completely.

Great was the sorrow, the weeping and the moanings that went on in Hope's room. Pillow cases wet with tears, bedspread stained with hacking sobs, dresses, blouses, pajamas ruined from continued sobbing. Hope faced the downfall of pride, of trust, of faith, in love—of complete disillusionment. Faced the fact that she had been an idiot, an infatuated fool, a cheap and easy mark! Realized that all they said was true! Dickey had been drinking; she had only known him a few months—she had let him walk off and have his own way—without a murmur!

When finally Hope permitted Goody to lead her to Mama Ross's darkened and incensed bedroom, she went with some dim understanding of the game Mama was playing. Lying there, weak and frail, begging her child to "come and reduction of the main money crops it ought not to take long for growers of this great agricultural region to recover their former economic position.

Atlanta, Georgia, is another town that does not mean to let moving picture shows operate on Sunday. Thirteen operators were arrested yesterday for violating laws regulating their shows, and when the courts get through with them it isn't likely they will buck the law again any time soon.

This is one of the big problems which the various towns and cities have to combat at this time in view of the effort to moving picture houses to run charity shows on Sunday.

The movement has been determinedly opposed by leading churchmen and ministers in nearly every part of the country, and apparently is doomed to defeat.

back to her." Instinctively she knew it was a part well acted. And yet, Mama did look ill; and the marks of suffering and torture were plain to be seen in her faded gray eyes.

Beside Mama Ross's bed Hope knelt, her arms stealing around Mama's neck, and her head bent in weeping it out on Mama's shoulder. "He didn't love me," sobbed Hope grateful for the soothing strokes of Mama's hand on her hair. "He didn't love me, Mama."

(Which is one way of course, of saying "I'm sorry I hurt you Mama, and I was all wrong.") Papa Ross stole into the bedroom later and sat by the bed-side with Hope in his lap. In low tones the three talked, after having banished Goody at Hope's request.

Then, quite dry-eyed, Hope sat at Mama's desk and wrote the words Papa dictated dryly, wearily: "Dear Dickey: "I want you to know it was all a dreadful mistake. I can see that now. I know you see it, too. I never want to see you again. Please respect my wishes in this regard. "Hope."

This, written wobbly, in Mama's brilliant blue ink, was dutifully folded, addressed, sealed, and handed to Papa. One letter of Hope's that was really due for mailing. A letter that would be taken out of the envelope addressed to Virginia and put in another addressed to the home of Dickey's grandmother, under whose care he still lay.

A week later Hope set sail with her father, who was slated for a six weeks' trip through Europe on business. Upon their return they joined Goody, Mama and Charlie Rand and his folks at Bar Harbor, Maine.

Hope was changed. Anyone could see that. Even Hope herself realized that. Short of temper. Cold. Sharp and eager for excitement. Tireless and ceaseless in her pursuit of pleasure. Tart and sarcastic in her recital of her runaway marriage! Talking of it quite without self-consciousness every time she was faced with the sheer necessity of talking of it, as youth faced youth, and old friends regarded one too kindly, too curiously, or too sympathetically. Talked a little too glibly about her marriage. But only when it was necessary! Never once did she talk of it in private. Not to Mama, to Goody, not even to Judy Hunt, "her grandest friend in the world." Only Judy and Rusty seemed to understand somehow. Theirs were the only eyes she avoided.

Hope had left off thinking about her marriage. Scorning the thought of a man who had so betrayed her. Trembling with rage at the whole male outfit, and bent with vicious determination to make them all suffer for what one had done to her.

Yet—despite her bitterness, Hope kept Sassy by her side. Nursed and petted and fed the white cat as if it were a baby. And if any living thing heard the innermost secrets or knew of the weak moments of heartaches and loneliness, Sassy learned Hope's hidden grief and the true meaning to her new brittle and unfeeling hate. Sassy learned the secret and kept it well.

Back in town, Hope learned from her father that the annulment suit he had filed was coming up on the calendar at the State Supreme Court late in September. Hope was not required to appear. There was no pleading, no chance of interference; for the annulment of a marriage of infants is not a discretionary matter, but an automatic procedure. Even if she wished, Hope could not have opposed it. Even, she mused, had she and Dickey insisted they wanted to be married, they would have had no voice! All that counted in the world of law on such matters of infantile love, was Papa Ross. Papa—and Papa's lawyer, and one thousand dollars. It was a funny day. A day that broke her heart.

On the night that her annulment came through, Hope let her gay and defiant banner slump into the mud of defeat. Try as she might, she simply could not face the huge party that was being given at Charlie Rand's. She pleaded forgiveness from the passive Goody, and phoned Rusty, who was to es-tor her, and made explanations, pleading a headache with these at home, and shut herself into her room. From that night onward Hope was grown up. Bravely she faced her circle. Restless, moody, Hope had a difficult battle to fight, and as long as people left her alone she fought it superbly. But no longer would she enter into "installment bargains" about drinking, and Papa Ross did not press his point. Papa Ross had less and less opportunity to press his point with his blonde and blue-eyed young rebel.

Hope learns what Dickey thinks about her, in the next installment. But how can she see him?

NEW GRIDIRON RULES DRAW DISCUSSION

Charlotte, Feb. 16.—(AP)—North Carolina's "Big Five" football coaches, as a whole, are by no means enthusiastic over new rules of the changes will help," he added.

Wallace Wade of Duke University, said his first impression is that the new rules will make no drastic changes in the playing of the game. "I believe the tendency of the changes will help," he added.

Doc Newton, new head coach at Davidson College, said regarding new rule 1, changing the style of both offense and defense on the opening kickoff, "all teams will probably punt on the kickoff, making long returns fewer, and the receiving team will probably have a flying block in action on the 45-yard line."

On rule 2, prohibiting striking about the head, he said "this should have been classed always as unnecessary roughness. Officials will have to decide the significance of the word 'strike'."

Rule 3, allowing players to be withdrawn in one quarter and reentered in any subsequent quarter will be a big help to smaller colleges with limited material, he said.

Touching rule 4, prohibition of the flying block and flying tackle, Newton said the flying block is out of date, and that despite the rule the flying tackle will continue in use as a last resort, just as now.

Rule 5, making the ball dead whenever a carrier touches the group except with hands or feet, will prevent more injuries than all other changes combined, Newton said.

He objected to new rule 6, requiring padding of equipment, on the grounds that the increased weight would prove a heavy burden in warm climates.

"To summarize," said Newton, "I think most of the changes will be beneficial. However, few, if any, of last year's deaths would have been averted if these changes had been in effect."

Chuck Collins, of the University of North Carolina, had little save ridicule for the rules.

"Changes one and six are public gestures. Changes three and five are good moves. Number 4 is not clear. Does it apply to blockers on the line of scrimmage and secondary or only to contact with the ball carrier? Change number 2 is ludicrous. The old rule was all right if properly enforced. The new rule again puts emphasis on beef. The day of the fast lineman is passing. It will now be a head bumping contest between punch drunk ice men."

Pat Miller of Wake Forest, expressed himself in similar vein. "It looks like a lot of hokey to me. In 1935 they will have us going to games in dress suits. It looks as though they are trying to turn football into English rugby. and I think they have made a great mistake. The substitution rule is good and the coaches have recommended abolition of the flying tackle. The rule prohibiting defensive players from using their hands is all wet. How else can a player defend himself?"

LEVINSKY TO FACE DEMPSEY

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey steps into the ring at the Chicago stadium Thursday night for the most important battle of his long exhibition tour.

The former heavyweight champion has been playing around with unknowns in smaller towns of the Far West and mid west but on Thursday he will be called upon to meet one of the most dangerous of the younger heavyweights, King Levinsky of Chicago.

Levinsky, a solid thumper when he connects, should give Dempsey a brisk workout in the four rounds the match is slated to go. Out of the match may come some indication of how far Dempsey can travel on the come-back trail.

Dempsey will start off the week at Flint, Mich., tonight, boxing two rounds each against Pat McLaughlin of Racine, Wis., and George Kohler, Chicago.

Other leading shows this week will be held in Philadelphia tonight, Daytona Beach Wednesday night, Los Angeles tomorrow night and New York Friday night.

At Philadelphia, Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, meets Lew Massey of Philadelphia in a ten round non-title engagement; at Daytona Beach, Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, takes on Bob Godwin at Atlanta in a ten rounder billed as for the title; at Los Angeles, Steve Hannas, promising young heavyweight from Palestine, N. J., will meet Armand Enan and within the spirit of the rules, set of San Francisco.

E.C.T.C. TRIMS WILMINGTON

Forgetting that they were doped as the underdogs the Teachers cagers went to Wilmington last night and handed the strong Wilmington Y team a 24 to 23 defeat. This game was a thriller as the score indicates and was a nip and tuck affair all through the game. The half ended 16 to 16 and this tells a true story of how evenly matched the two teams were. The Teachers played a nice passing game and had some excellent team work. These two teams will meet again Friday night at the college campus building. On Saturday night, February 20, the Wilmington Independents will come to Greenville to play the collegians in a return game.

DUKE - STATE TILT TONIGHT

Charlotte, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Duke and N. C. State basketballers clash tonight in one of the last two Big Five games of the season. Duke is now out in front with a sure hold on first place, although there is a possibility the Blue Devils might have to share honors with the University of North Carolina.

Should Duke lose tonight, and Carolina defeat State when they meet February 23, the race would end in a stalemate. Even should State win both games, the shortness of its schedule would keep it from the top on a percentage basis.

Only one North Carolina team, Lenoir-Rhyne, was in action last night. The boys from Hickory defeated the Parris Island marines 19 - 18.

Catawba and Guilford are the only collegiates who will work tonight, outside of the Duke-State tilt.

SALE LEADS CAGE SCORING

Atlanta, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Southern Conference today recognized a new individual basketball scoring leader, Forrest (Aggie) Sale, Kentucky star, whose sharp-shooting has brought him 122 points.

This six-foot four-inch courtman, who alternates between center and forward for the conference leading Kentucky Wildcats, has been among the high scorers all season and the 32 points he amassed against Alabama and Tennessee last week boosted him to the top.

Sale has 54 field goals and 14 foul throws. Close behind is Harris Samuels of Louisiana State who paced the other scorers for several weeks. Samuels led Sale by a single point last week, but while Sale was gathering 32 points in two games, Samuels struck a slump and garnered but 27 in four contests with Tulane and Auburn.

He's just two field goals to the rear with 52 baskets from the field and 14 from the free throw line. Jack Terrance, Louisiana State's big sophomore center, had a good eye for the basket during the past five day period and ran up 43 points in four games to jump into third place with 107 points, 50 field goals and seven foul shots.

Lumkin of Auburn has 92, Simpson of Mississippi 89 and Tynes of Mississippi 82. Lefty Hayne, Tulane's great football end, a basketball center, has 76 and is tied with Taylor, Mississippi State center.

Perkins, Georgia Tech center and last year's high scorer has dropped out of the running, with but 63 points.

BUILD UP TO PREVENT PAINS

How a Missouri woman was benefited by taking Cardui is described below by Mrs. Joe Schumer, of Cape Girardeau: "I suffered with irregularity. For weeks at a time I was so weak I could not work. I had aches in my back and head and legs—I ached all over. I would get dizzy and feel faint. I had read about Cardui, so I got some and took it. I improved a great deal. After I had taken four bottles, I felt like a different person."

Extra VALUES

This is possible only because Firestone concentrate their entire world-wide resources in building complete lines of quality tires, tubes, batteries, brake lining, spark plugs and accessories. These are for sale through Firestone Service Stores and Service Dealers.

Firestone do not manufacture tires under special-brand names for mail-order houses and others to distribute. Special-brand tires are made without the manufacturer's name. They are sold without his guarantee or responsibility for service.

Firestone manufacture complete lines of tires for their Service Stores and Service Dealers. Each line is designated by tread design and name. The quality and construction of each Firestone line excel that of special-brand mail-order tires sold at the same prices.

Call on the Firestone Service Dealer in your community. He will show you sections cut from Firestone Tires, special-brand mail-order tires and others. See the Extra Values you get in Firestone Tires at prices no higher than special-brand lines.

GUM-DIPPED CORDS

The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

TWO EXTRA CORD PLYS UNDER THE TREAD

This is a patented construction, and the two extra cord plys are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and 26% greater protection against punctures and blow-outs. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

Quiet, Safe, Long-Wearing Non-Skid Tread

Tough, thick rubber, specially compounded for long, slow wear. Effective non-skid gives greater traction and safe, quiet performance.
