Police Quiz Lindbergh Nurse

Flier And Wife Issue Appeal To Kidnappers Of Their Infant Son

N. Y. POLICE PROBE CLUE

Betty Gow, Handsome Young Nurse, Subjected To Lengthy Examination At Lindbergh Home today; Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh Assure Abductors they May Put Confidences In Their Promises; Mr. Hoover Invited to Conference.

Hopewell, N. J., March 4.—(AP)—Betty Gow, the handsome young nurse of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, was subjected to lengthy examination by police today at the Lindbergh home.

It was learned that police questioned Miss Gow at length last night and started again early this morning.

No statement was issued as to the nature of the questioning or as to what police hoped to develop by their protracted examination.

It was Miss Gow who discovered the kidnapping when she went into the Lindbergh nursery at 10:30 p. m. Tuesday night. She had put the baby to bed at 7:30.

When the baby, who had been sick with a cold, was put to bed Mrs. Lindbergh started to follow the usual procedure of opening the nursery windows and closing and latching the wooden shutters.

She found, however, that one of the shutters was so warped that it would not close. This shutter was therefore left open and through that unguarded window the kidnapper stole to steal the child.

Miss Gow, a pretty black-haired woman with a cheerful smiling face and the springy step of an athlete, was selected for the position by Elizabeth Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's sister.

Miss Morrow is an educational worker who runs a school of her own in Englewood and she spent considerable time in choosing the person she thought best suited for the baby.

Miss Gow has probably seen much more of the baby than has his mother because of Mrs. Lindbergh's many absences from home with her flying husband.

The young woman was considered by the Lindberghs almost as a member of the family instead of a servant.

Since the baby was kidnapped she has been Mrs. Lindbergh's constant companion.

Trenton, N. J., March 4.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh issued an appeal direct to the kidnappers of their baby today, saying the criminals that entire confidence might be placed "in any promise we may make."

The appeal, made jointly by the colonel and his wife, was issued through the office of Gov. A. Harry Moore. It was given to the press in the hope that the kidnappers would read it and immediately open negotiations for return of the baby.

"Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make personal contact with the kidnappers of our child. Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return. We feel certain that the kidnappers will realize that his interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promise that we may make in connection with his return. We urge anyone who have the child to send any representatives that they desire to contact a representative of ours who will be at any place that they may designate.

"If this is accepted we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to interfere in any way with negotiations for return of the child."

The appeal was typewritten at the Lindbergh home, signed by both the colonel and his wife, and brought by hand to the governor's office.

Body Agrees On Sales Tax

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The House Ways and Means committee today agreed formally on a 2-1-4 per cent general manufacturers sales tax designed to bring in approximately $625,000,000 in additional revenue.

Acting Chairman Crisp announced the vote was overwhelming but declined to make known the number supporting the measure.

This big item forms the base to bring in approximately $1,100,000,000 to balance the budget of the fiscal year 1933.

RAIN REDUCES FIRE MENACE

Forest Blazes Diminished in West Carolina, But Still Rage in the East

Charlotte, March 4.—(AP)—Rain today had greatly diminished the forest fire threat in Western North Carolina, but flames continued to rage along the Eastern seaboard.

McDowell county, probably the worst hit of all in the recent outbreaks, reported all fires under control and dying out after the mountains had been visited by rains which were also believed to have halted the fires which had been burning along a 100 mile front farther west.

Relief in the form of rain was also promised in the east, a blaze in Brunswick was reported under control, but one in Columbus still burned.

Later today, the weather bureau said a half inch of rain fell generally over southern McDowell last night. Forest fires in that section were virtually extinguished.

Police Not After New York Car in Kidnapping Case

Hopewell, N. J., March 4.—(AP)—Major Charles N. Schoeffer, deputy superintendent of the state police here, said early today there was "nothing to report" that an automobile bearing license plates 3L-97-NY was sought in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

An alarm for the car was broadcast by New York police at 11:11 a. m. yesterday after it was reported seen to pass through the Holland tunnel bearing a man and a woman and a child about two years old. This morning, New York police headquarters said they were no longer interested in the car.

Approve Measure For Phillipine Independence

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The House insular affairs committee today approved a bill intended to give the Phillipine Islands complete independence in seven to nine years.

Chairman Hare, (D. S. C.), explained the measure as finally accepted by the committee would require the United States to maintain sovereignty over the Phillipines five years after they had established a new government.

"They tell us it would take from two to four years to get the new government in operation," Hare said. "That would let the islands

WOULD UNSEAT SEN. BANKHEAD

Report of Investigators of the Alabama Election Presented to Committee

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—A Senate elections sub committee found today that Senator John S. Bankhead of Alabama was not elected in 1930 and that his seat should be declared vacant.

The Bankhead-Heflin contest, subcommittee divided along party lines on the report prepared by Chairman Hastings, holding that the election was fraudulent because of widespread violation of election laws.

Democratic members of the committee, Bratton, of New Mexico, and George, of Georgia, will submit a minority report.

The Republicans who agreed to the report, in an executive session, were Watson, Republican leader, and Glenn, of Illinois, in addition to Hastings.

The sub-committee report will be submitted to the full committee and must be approved by it before it reaches the Senate.

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The report of Senator Hastings holding the election in 1930 of John H. Bankhead as Senator from Alabama was fraudulent, and recommending that he be shorn of his seat, was laid today before a Senate elections subcommittee.

Under Hastings, Democratic Republican, as chairman, the subcommittee has been investigating for a year the contest brought against Bankhead's election by his picturesquely predecessor, J. Thomas Heflin.

Hastings held not only that "there was no election for United States Senator in Alabama in 1930" but that Bankhead, a Democrat, was illegally nominated because of an unlawful primary. He exonerated Bankhead on the charge of violating Alabama law and the Federal Corrupt Practices Act through excessive campaign expenditures.

In the report, a document of many thousand words, Hastings listed 25 "important facts" most of them charges of widespread irregularities, on which he based his recommendations. Concluding, he said:

"I realize that it is a serious matter for the United States Senate to declare that there was no election in Alabama in 1930. I do become independent in from seven to nine years."

CABINET TALKS OF KIDNAPPING

Concern of Nation Over Lindbergh, Jr., Reflected at Hoover Conference.

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—The kidnapping of the country for the safety of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was reflected at today's meeting of President Hoover with his cabinet.

The kidnapping brought various expressions from the government leaders in an informal discussion, but there was no suggestion of further action by the government to recover the child or apprehend his abductors. Federal agencies already are aiding state authorities in the search.

The cabinet members agreed as one that every possible resource should be invoked to find the infant.

Matters of state took a secondary position for the time that the informal discussion went on. It was clear that the expressions of serious concern were unanimous. The meeting lasted longer than (Continued on page six)

German Physicist Sees Better Times Ahead of Both Old and New World.

Pasadena, Calif., March 4.—(AP)—Dr. Albert Einstein, eminent German physicist, who has been studying with scientists here, turned homeward today with the observation that far better times appear to be ahead for both the old world and the new.

"Whether the machine age has been a benefit or a detriment to humanity as a whole, one cannot say," he said, "but at the moment it appears that, in spite of present conditions, it can lead to better times than ever before."

He said he is "too optimistic" to believe civilization is disintegrating. As for other life in the universe: "It is not known whether there

NEGRO WOMAN LOSES $700

Robbers Take Money From Lining of Mary Vines' Coat at Her Home Monday

Hiding money in one's clothing is not what it's cracked up to be, and no one realizes it more keenly than does Mary Vines, 35-year-old colored woman who had $700 in $100 bills stolen from a coat at her home in the "Bama" section of the city last Monday.

Information regarding the robbery was not divulged by police until yesterday when a circular was issued giving a description of the money, and calling on banks and merchants to assist in gaining information leading to its recovery.

In spite of widespread investigation of the case under direct supervision of Chief of Police George Clark, officers were without a theory today, but expressed hope that markings on the bills would ultimately lead to their recovery.

The fun the woman, police said, and she was planning to transfer it from the coat to a box to be buried in the ground when it mysteriously disappeared. She told officers she kept it secreted in a pillow on her bed for three years, and fearing that someone would find it, finally transferred it to her coat. It was placed in the garment four years ago.

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—President Hoover today signed the Jones resolution setting aside $10,000,000 for the secretary of agriculture to aid in the establishment of agricultural credit corporations.

It will enable credit corporations and livestock loan companies to be (Continued on Page Two)

BROOKS HOME BURNS DOWN

Country Place of Local Insurance Man is Totally Destroyed by Fire Yesterday.

The home of Frank Brooks, Greenville insurance man, about three miles east of Greenville, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss was estimated at $4,000, which was partially covered by insurance.

The family moved from Greenville to the country home last Saturday, and had hardly had time to arrange their furniture when the fire broke out. All of the furnishings, with exception of a few pieces, were lost. Mr. Brooks who was in Greenville today, stated.

The fire originated in the roof from an unknown cause, and the building was a mass of ruins in a short time in spite of heroic efforts of the family, aided by scores of neighbors who gathered when the alarm was spread.

Although it was impossible to determine the cause, Mr. Brooks attributed the blaze probably to a defective flue.

Mr. Brooks, prominent church worker and business man, had lived in Greenville for the past several (Continued on page six)

The monthly meeting of the Board of Aldermen was not held last night on account of the illness of Mayor Roy Flanagan, who was reported confined to his home suffering from a slight attack of bronchial trouble.

Although the mayor was reported somewhat improved today, no date for the meeting had been decided upon. Opinion was expressed, however, that it would be held sometime during the first of the week, probably Tuesday night.

MAN ADMITS OWNING GUN

Jesse Buff Confesses Pistol With Which Jim Burrus Was Killed Was His.

Winston-Salem, March 4.—(AP)—Jesse Buff, 33, of near Reidsville, broke down today and admitted he owned the pistol with which police believe Jim Burrus, Mount Airy taxi-cab driver, was slain early last Saturday.

Buff, one of three suspects held in connection with the slaying, said the pistol was taken from his home Friday night by Clarke York, his brother-in-law, also under arrest here.

The body of Burrus, missing since late Friday night when he left Mount Airy for Winston-Salem with York and Virginia Holder, 18, the latter's niece, as passengers in his taxi, was found yesterday on a creek bank a few miles from Mount Airy.

York and Miss Holder were arrested Tuesday. They admitted coming to Winston-Salem with Burrus, both declared they left him at the bus terminal here and had not seen him since.

Following the finding of the taxi driver's body yesterday, police inclined toward the theory that Burrus never reached Winston-Salem, but that he was attacked shortly after leaving Mount Airy and his body left on the creek bank.

A few miles down the highway, officers believe, the assailant tossed away the gun. The weapon was covered with blood when found early Saturday.

Officers had not entirely discarded the theory that robbery may have been the motive for the attack.

Although $8 in currency was on Burrus' body, close friends of the dead man pointed out that he usually carried from $25 to $30 on his person and frequently had as much as $75 in his pockets.

The announcement was made by Lo Wen-Kan, foreign minister. Another disturbing report came in Chinese official advices from Nanking which said that a new battle was under way at Taitang, northwest of here. The dispatches said the Japanese eleventh division attacked the Chinese forces there and a severe battle was under way. Japanese naval and military officials denied late in the afternoon that any fighting was taking place at Taitang, however. Military officials issued the following statement:

"The Japanese forces are maintaining the same positions as yesterday, calling a halt to their hostilities and concentrating their units within an area east of a line drawn between Nanziang and Kaling."

Travelers who arrived here from Chanyu and a few miles west of here during the day said, however, they heard artillery fire apparently a long distance to the northwest.

Everything was quiet in Shanghai. The government's notice that it would continue resistance was sent here in a communication from Lo Wen-Kan to Quo Tai-Chi, his vice minister.

"China has not declared war against Japan," the foreign minister's communication said. "Therefore, while China will continue to resist Japanese attack, she will also continue to accept friendly mediation by the powers."

"But she can only accept terms which are compatible with the nation's dignity, which are reasonable and do not prejudice her sovereign rights."

There was no din of war. The machine guns, artillery and aerial (Continued on page six)

N. C. Police Join Search For Abductors Of Baby

Raleigh, March 4.—(AP)—Action on reports that suspicious characters had been seen heading southward through Richmond, authorities in several North Carolina communities early today began a close watch for the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Capt. Charles D. Farmer, of the State Highway Patrol, announced early today that suspicious car numbers and other information regarding the search would be broadcast immediately to every highway patrolman in North Carolina, with instructions to search all New York, New Jersey or suspicious cars.

He said he would communicate all such information to the South Carolina highway patrol, also, and requested the Associated Press to keep him posted on developments.

Authorities in Raleigh, on U. S. Highway No. 1, ordered a strict watch on highways, and began a systematic check of all garages, hotels and rooming houses.

Greensboro late last night ordered all available men to watch north-south highways and search all New York and New Jersey cars. Wilmington, where Capt. Farmer was when he broadcast his orders, (Continued on Page Two)

ABOUT TOWN

One person was killed in this highway patrol division during last month, it was indicated in the monthly report made public today by Lester Jones, lieutenant.

Only one person was killed the previous month, which places the death toll even for both months. Accidents, however, were slightly less than the previous month, fourteen being reported this month against seventeen last month.

Violations of traffic laws, however, were far ahead of the previous month, the report showed. Over two thousand were recorded this month against slightly over one thousand last month.

In spite of the increased violations, it is evident that people have begun to realize the importance of driving carefully, and this resulted in the decreased accidents, if not in the death rate.

Although it is virtually impossible to avoid accidents, the toll of life and property can be greatly reduced if people would only confine more attention to the observance of traffic regulations. Driving carefully while on crowded highways, or giving the other fellow plenty of room should contribute greatly to the improvement of the situation.

In spite of the hundreds of columns which have been devoted to the Sino-Jap war, it seems generally agreed that the biggest news break of the year is the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby.

The incident has aroused curiosity and sympathy from one end of the land to the other, while people of other nations where the name of the noted flier ranks among the greatest have manifested almost as much excitement as Americans.

There is something about the sheer audacity of the crime that has caught public fancy, and millions of people all over the world are devouring every column of news greedily and waiting for more.

Of course the warfare in China more seriously involves the economic life of the various nations, but from the standpoint of genuine news interest it is considered to be the background in the face of developments at the Lindbergh country home in New Jersey.

People have speculated upon various angles of the abduction until their minds almost fail to function. The enormity of the crime, the unshakable nerve of the abductors, and the question as to whether the child will be returned to its parents alive are questions that have been flashed before the public mind with such frequency that the enormity of the thing increases each day the case remains unsolved.

The Lindberghs, and especially the father, have thrilled the world many a time the last four years, but no thing he has ever done has had a stronger appeal to morbid curiosity than the mysterious disappearance of his child.

Japan has agreed to withdraw her army from the Shanghai area if the Chinese will refrain from warfare, and the Chinese government is said to have accepted the terms under similar conditions.

Whether this gesture at peace really means anything it is impossible to say, but the public will be able to determine something definite within the next few days.

Japan has shown a total disregard for former pleas for peace, and whether she means to abide by what she has said this time is a matter of considerable speculation in League circles as well as in other countries.

The government should certainly be satisfied with the infliction of such terrible loss of life and suffer-

Kitty Frew

By Jane Abbott

SYNOPSIS: "Two children married." So Kitty Brandon's mother thinks at the wedding of Kitty and Garfield Frew. Gar has just finished college and hopes to get a job with his father, director of the most important concern in Winston. He takes Kitty away from her home in a small town and carries her off to stay with his family. Kitty is nervous about meeting them, especially Gar's mother. Her worries increase when on the train they meet Marg Crosby, a very sophisticated member of Gar's crowd at home, who devotes herself to Gar and snubs Kitty. Gar, light-hearted and easy going, does not appreciate Marg's attitude toward Kitty nor Kitty's disturbed mind. Marg's smart outfit makes Kitty feel that her own clothes are criticized. When they arrive at Gar's home, the butler informs them that his mother will see them at tea. "Maybe your mother's angry," Kitty says.

Chapter 3
"THIS IS YOUR WIFE?"
"Oh, that. You don't know the Mother yet."
"Probably she's running some important meeting at this very moment. You're going to be crazy about her, Kit. But I don't like the idea of bringing you up here. I'll talk that over with the Mother."
Kitty rushed to look about her, a sudden tenderness welling in her eyes.
"This is your own room, Gar? Your little-boy's room?"
He had to kiss her for the tone in her voice. "Well, I moved up here after I graduated from a nurse but I don't think you'll find any toys about."
Pound came in, then, coughing discreetly. Under Gar's direction he deposited the bags and retreated.
"Gar, don't ask your mother to change us. This—is this is nice." Her tone was pleading, her eyes pleaded. She could not explain that she felt more secure here in this room that was Gar's, more so, because the fear of sharing him was too new-born a thing within her to voice it.
"Oh, well just as you say, sweet."
"I'll only be here a little while, Gar." She walked about the room, looking at its photographs. Over his desk hung a framed picture of Margery Crosby in beautiful pose. Kitty regarded it, smiling unconcernedly.
"Here, I'll open your bag," Gar recovered upon a people who were just recovering from floods which claimed hundreds of lives and set the nation back several years from an economic standpoint.

The drive of the Japs is one of the most inhuman in the history of present day civilization and it is no wonder the government has failed to receive the slightest sympathy from other powers.
Al Capone has always had a knack for getting into the headlines, and he displayed it again yesterday in offering $10,000 reward for the capture of abductors of the Lindbergh baby.
The crime was described by the gangster, now confined in a federal prison, as one of the most reprehensible of the present generation, apparently forgetful of the death and destruction of human life caused by his own activities.
Capone and members of his gang of criminals may not approve the kidnapping of babies but their constant defiance of the law not only endangers the lives of children but people of every age and in all walks of life.
Al believes he would be able to assist in rounding up the kidnapers were he on the outside looking in, instead of on the inside looking out, but the public feels decidedly safer with him inside the bars and his generous gesture in the case of the Lindbergh baby has not gained for him one iota of sympathy.

"We are much gratified over the way our Milk-for-Health campaign is being received out in the state," says Warren H. Booker, head of the division of sanitary engineering of the State Board of Health, under whose direction this state-wide health movement is being conducted. "From present indications," he says, "the campaign is going over in a much bigger way than we ever dared hope for. From all over the state come reports of county organizations, inquiries, and requests for plans of organizations, requests for literature and offers of support."

"But the most surprising thing is the interest taken in the campaign by other states. Telegrams and letters of inquiry from people both in and out of the state come pouring in to the extent that extra office help and high work are required to keep pace with the progress of the campaign. We have four men in the field who give whole time service to the counties, helping their committees to organize and get their work started, but they are not enough. We should have twice as many. It looks now as if the campaign had been staged at the right time, and that there is an imperative need for such a movement."

office, where it was given to the press by John Toohy, the governor's secretary.
New York, March 4.—(AP)—One of the scores of tips received by New York police headquarters on the possible whereabouts of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby has so impressed Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney with its potential value that he has been working on it himself, he disclosed today.

The commissioner, refusing to divulge the nature of the clue, said he had been out last night himself following this particular lead and "will continue to follow it until satisfied there is nothing to it."
Mulrooney said he had learned of the conference called for tomorrow by Governor Harry Moore, of New Jersey. The telegram announcing the conference was addressed to Mayor James J. Walker, and Mulrooney said he would confer with the mayor about it.

The following telegram was sent to the mayors of Newark, New Jersey, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Philadelphia and New York:
"Entire country shocked at kidnapping Lindbergh baby. Impetuous that coordinated efforts be made to apprehend abductors and restore child. Have called conference at my office at the state house in Trenton for tomorrow (Saturday) at 11 o'clock of police officials of leading American cities. Request to cooperate. I earnestly urge you to send a representative of your government best qualified to assist."
Signed A. Harry Moore, Governor of New Jersey.

Philadelphia, March 4.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh may call upon the American Legion "to a man" to aid him in finding his kidnapped baby, Henry L. Stevens, Jr., of Warsaw, N. C., national commander of the legion, said today.
"The flying colonel is among the legion's best friends," Stevens said on arriving here to attend a nine-county rally of Southern New Jersey Legion posts tonight in Camden. "There is not a member who would fail to respond to a call for help to find the Lindbergh baby and bring the criminals to justice."

End of the Century Club
The End of the Century Club met Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 with Mrs. E. W. Harvey on Latham street.

This being a George Washington program, the living room was decorated with American flags and a large picture of Washington by Gilbert Stuart.

After a short business session, presided over by the president, Mrs. J. L. Fleming, the program was turned over to Mrs. W. S. Harden, who read an interesting paper on "Washington, the Country Gentleman." This paper dealt largely with the prosperous and luxurious life of the typical Virginia gentleman from 1700 to 1775—the life that Washington loved above all else. It is said that he once remarked, "I had rather be on my farm than be Emperor of the World."

At the close of the program, some very interesting current events were given by the members and guests of the afternoon. This part of the program is always much enjoyed, and brings forth a great deal of really interesting discussion.

Mrs. Harvey, assisted by Mrs. Milton White, Miss Loraine Hunter and Miss Mary Ellen Powell served a salad course followed by delicious fruit cake and coffee.

The guests for the afternoon were Miss Loraine Hunter, Mrs. Milton White, Miss Mary Ellen Powell and Mrs. E. W. Stark.

Farmville, March 3.—Continuing its program of intensified patriotic endeavor and effort during this year of the Bicentennial celebration, the Major Benjamin May chapter, D. A. H. Cozart of Wilson, in behalf of the local Daughters. Mrs. Cozart was introduced by the Regent, Mrs. T. C. Turnage.

Supt. R. E. Boyd accepted the gift and the portrait was hung above the right hand stage entrance, occupying the corresponding position given to an oil portrait of Miss Perkins, who has taught in the Farmville schools for the past thirty years, and in whose honor the auditorium was named Perkins Hall.

The program opened with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by the school, assembled, after which the flag salute was given. Two appropriate patriotic solos were rendered by Elbert Holmes with patriotic accompaniment by Mrs. John Dwight Holmes.

The Daughters forming the committee for the purchase of the gift frame and program arrangement were Mrs. G. M. Holden, Mrs. R. H. Knott and Mrs. M. V. Jones.

SALES OF FERTILIZER WAY BELOW LEVEL NOW

Fertilizer—The cotton trade is actively speculating on the effect on future cotton growth of the marked decrease in soil fertilization in the principal growing states. This reduction is indicated by the fact that sales of fertilizers in the nine principal cotton-growing states are running well below those of recent years. The New York Cotton Exchange Service reports total sales in these states from December 1 to February 29 at $72,000 short tons, against 732,000 last season, and 1,359,000 two seasons ago.

Check Flashers Active in N. C.

Check flashers are active through out the state according to information furnished C. B. Rowlett, secretary of the Merchants Association by secretaries from various locals as well as advise from the offices of the State Association. A quartette of check flashers, two men and two women are operating in North Carolina, and from the success they have had in certain localities, they are taking a lot of money out of the state unless they are apprehended.

In this group the men pose as skilled mechanics, claim to be employed by some plumbing, electrical or roofing local firm and the women pose as wives of these workmen. They have in their possession a small stencilled set of rubber letters and figures from which they make rubber stamps to be used on supposed pay roll envelopes of the local firm for whom they claim to work.

While there are other operators reported to the local association, the above quartette appear to have more success than any of the others, and many cities and towns are anxious that they be apprehended.

E. C. T. C. CELEBRATES FOUNDERS DAY

SCENE AT COLLEGE GROUND BREAKING

Dr. Robert H. Wright

Dr. Robert Herring Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers College, is not only a scholarly man of unusual attainments, but an aggressive executive as well, and the remarkable growth of his institution and its increasing value to the profession and public are due almost entirely to his ability and progressive ideas. He was born at what is now Parkersburg, R. F. D., Sampson County, North Carolina, May 21, 1870, a son of John C. Wright and grandson of Isaac Wright.

President Wright first attended the public schools of Sampson County, after which he became a student of Oak Ridge Institute, Guilford County, N. C., but left it in 1891 and taught school in Bladen County, N. C., for a year, after which he taught in Marion County, S. C., for fifteen months. In January, 1894, he entered the University of North Carolina, and was graduated therefrom in 1897, with the degree of Bachelor of Science, having completed a four year course in three and one-half years with honors. During 1897-98 he was principal of Stanhope public schools of Nash County, and from 1898 to 1901 he was instructor in English and mathematics at Oak Ridge Institute.

Entering Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, as a graduate student, he specialized there in physiology and economics during 1901-02, and from 1902 to 1906 was teacher of history and economics at the City College, Baltimore. In the

James Lawson Fleming

Whenever beginnings are sought and the early days of the Training School recorded the name of James Lawson Fleming will appear. Descended from sturdy, honest, industrious and noble ancestry, he inherited their sterling qualities, while his early life spent on a farm served to develop his body and to give him that independence of spirit that comes from contact with the freedom of country life. As a boy he attended the country schools and knew the advantages and disadvantages to which the rural school is subject. Later he became a pupil of W. H. Ragsdale, then teaching in the Greenville Academy, by whom he was prepared for Wake Forest College. After graduation from college he taught for a year, then read law with Latham and Skinner of Greenville. Later he attended the Law School of the University of North Carolina. He was admitted to the bar in 1892, and located in Greenville, where he soon built up a lucrative practice and at the time of his death he possessed a large practice in the Superior, Supreme and Federal Courts. Soon after locating in Greenville he was elected mayor of

One the second day of July, 1908, the ground was broken for the erection of the first buildings at East Carolina Teachers Training School. The picture above shows the scene. Governor Thomas J. Jarvis stands near the center holding the spade used in the ceremony. Around him are grouped the interested citizens of Greenville who were present at that time: Mrs. Haywood Dail, Mrs. T. J. Jarvis, Mrs. Will Lipscomb, Mrs. H. A. White, Col. F. G. James, Mr. H. D. Bateman, Mr. H. A. White, Sheriff W. H. Harrington, Mr. Jesse Speight, Mrs. A. M. Moseley, Mr. B. W. Moseley, Mrs. Irma Dunn, Mr. R. A. Tyson, Sr., Mr. W. H. Dail, Governor Thomas J. Jarvis, Mrs. Ed Evans, Mr. R. W. King, Mr. Ed H. Evans, Mr. D. J. Whichard, Sr., Mr. Cecil Cobb, Mrs. C. V. York, and Mr. R. J. Cobb. It is hoped that the people pictured here and their families will attend the celebration of Founders Day.

Gov. Thomas J. Jarvis

The name of Governor Jarvis, as he is universally called, is so closely associated with the East Carolina Teachers Training School, that whenever the history of the institution is written, much concerning its first years will be found in the history of Governor Jarvis's later years. Since this is true, it seems quite fitting that the initial number of the school magazine should contain a sketch of him who continue to give freely and lovingly such service as can only come at the close of a full rich life.

The earliest settlements in North Carolina were made in the same county, January 18, 1836. Young Jarvis spent his boyhood on his father's farm. Of the many sane and wholesome influences that surrounded him, none was greater than that of his mother, who instilled in him lessons of virtue, piety and patriotism—essentials in the making of a useful life. At the age of nineteen he entered Randolph-Macon College, Virginia, and with money partly earned by teaching he was able with many interruptions to complete his course there, graduating in 1860. A few months later he opened a school in Pasquotank County where he was when the Civil War broke out. He enlisted as a private, but in a comparatively short time he was promoted to the rank of Captain. He remained in active service until he was disabled in the early part of 1864. From the wound he received

East Carolina Teachers College will hold its first celebration of Founders Day on Saturday, March 5. The exercises will take place at the Campus Building of the College, beginning at ten-thirty and lasting until twelve-thirty. The public is invited to attend.

An interesting program for the day has been arranged by a committee of the Alumnae, of which Miss Elizabeth Smith, assistant to the dean at the college; Mrs. Lewis Gaylord (Mathe Mye King); and Mrs. Clifton Edwards (Mary Lee Galtup) are members.

Dr. R. J. Slay will serve as chairman and will preside over the meeting. Among the speakers for the occasion will be Dr. Robert H. Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers College; Mr. S. J. Everett, who will make the principal address of the day; Dr. J. Y. Joyner, of Raleigh, for many years a member of the Board of Trustees; and Miss Deanie Boone Haskett, president of the State Alumnae Association. One especially interesting part of the program will be greetings from members of the original faculty: Miss Kate Lewis, Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, Miss Sallie Joyner Davis, Miss Marie Graham, and Dr. Leon R. Meadows.

Notice of the celebration of Founders Day has been sent to the various branches of the Alumnae Association, and it is expected that a large number of former students will be present. Representatives of the first three classes to be graduated from the institution, 1911, 1912, and 1913, will attend and will be introduced to the audience. The Greenville Alumnae Association, of which Miss Dixie Taylor is president, has shown great interest in the plans for Founders Day and will be well represented. In addition a number of former members of the faculty, members of the Board of Trustees, and a large group of special guests will be present.

President Robert H. Wright; Miss Annie Morton, dean of the college; the speakers of the occasion; and the members of the faculty will sit on the stage. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Spilman and Miss Ola Ross, who have been connected with the school for a number of years will likewise have places on the stage. Miss Ross has been connected with the college since the first summer school, in which she was a student. The following fall she went into the Bureau's Office as assistant to Mr. C. W. Wilson and has held a position of responsibility on the staff ever since. Others on the stage will be Mrs. A. E. Hoogood, daughter of Mr. W. H. Ragsdale, co-author with Governor Jarvis of the bill providing for the establishing of a teachers training school, and Mrs. J. L. Fleming, wife of the late Senator Fleming, who introduced the bill in the Legislature. It is regretted that no representative of the family of Governor Jarvis will be present. Mr. A. T. Allen, superintendent of public instruction, and Mr. Roy Flanagan, Mayor of Greenville and a close friend of the founders of the college, will also be present.

Special guests for the occasion will occupy reserved seats in the audience. Among these will be Mrs. C. W. Wilson, Mrs. H. E. Austin and Miss Nellie Denny, Mrs. Charles Laughinghouse, Mrs. S. B. Underwood, Miss Margaret Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Hardins, Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Carr, Mrs. John Carroll of Winterville, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ragsdale.

A number of former members of the faculty will also be present. Among these will be Mrs. K. B. Pace, Mrs. Ed Bachelor, Miss Ruth Hillhouse, Mrs. William Wooten, Miss Daisy Bailey Waitt of Raleigh and Mrs. Will Hooker, who is one of the original faculty members.

Miss Patty Dowell of Wintrop College, Rock Hill, South Carolina, will attend the Founders Day celebration. Miss Dowell was the first student to register at the East Carolina Teachers Training School and he first to be graduated from the institution.

The marshals of the college, of whom Miss Wrae Ward is chief marshal, will act as ushers.

At the close of the program at the Campus Building the Alumnae and the guests of the college for Founders Day will be entertained at a luncheon at the Dining Hall.

Paper Read By Jarvis At Third Anniversary

A paper read by Governor Thomas J. Jarvis at the celebration of the third anniversary of the breaking of ground for the erection of the buildings of the East Carolina Teachers Training School is of timely interest, now that the school grown into a college, is holding on Saturday, March 5, its first celebration of Founders Day. A few excerpts from Governor Jarvis' paper as published in the "Training School Quarterly" for April, May, June, 1914, will serve to record the establishing of the East Carolina Teachers Training School, to trace the development of the institution in its early years, and finally to state clearly the purposes of the school and the great need which it fills in the state.

"The Act establishing the East Carolina Teachers Training School (Governor Jarvis says) was passed by the legislature at its session, 1907, and was ratified March 8, 1907. "On the 7th of May, 1907, the people of Greenville, by practically a unanimous vote authorized the Board of Aldermen to issue and sell $75,000 of bonds, with the distinct understanding that the larger part of it was to be appropriated to this school, if it should be located in Greenville.

"And on the 14th of May, 1907, the people of Pitt county, by a very large majority voted to issue and sell $50,000 of bonds for a like purpose.

"The Act creating the school appropriated $15,000 toward the erection and equipment of the buildings and authorized the State Board of Education to locate the school at some point in Eastern North Carolina. A number of the progressive towns in the eastern section of the state, made attractive bids for the location of this school in their midst. Greenville and Pitt county jointly offered the State Board of Education $98,000 in cash to be expended in the purchase of a site and erection of buildings, if the school should be located at Greenville.

"The State Board of Education visited the several towns bidding for the school, inspected the sites offered, and in July, 1907, the board after careful consideration, located the school at Greenville, and selected the present site.

"The trustees of this school were appointed by the State Board of Education, in accordance with the Act creating the school, and these trustees met in the town of Greenville on the 9th day of March, 1908, and organized. At this meeting Thomas J. Jarvis, J. Y. Joyner and Y. T. Ormond were appointed an executive committee, and Hook and Rogers of Charlotte, N. C., and H. W. Simpson of New Bern, were chosen architects.

"The second meeting of the Board of Trustees was held in Greenville, April 16, 1908, at which time the architects submitted to the board the plans, which had been approved by the executive committee, for four buildings, to-wit: an Administration building, a Girls' dormitory, a Boys' dormitory and a Refectory. The plans were approved by the board, and the committee was instructed to call for bids and proceed with the erection of the four buildings.

"The committee advertised for bids, and on the 9th day of June, 1908, these bids were opened. There were eighteen bidders present. They came from Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, and New Jersey. There was $36,270.13 difference between the highest and lowest bids, the highest being $117,800 by W. G. Wharton of Belleville, N. J., and the lowest by the Building & Lumber Company of Greenville, N. C., for $81,529.87.

"The Building & Lumber Company gave the bonds and executed the contracts required by the committee, and on the second day of July, 1908, three years ago, the ground was broken for the erection of these buildings.

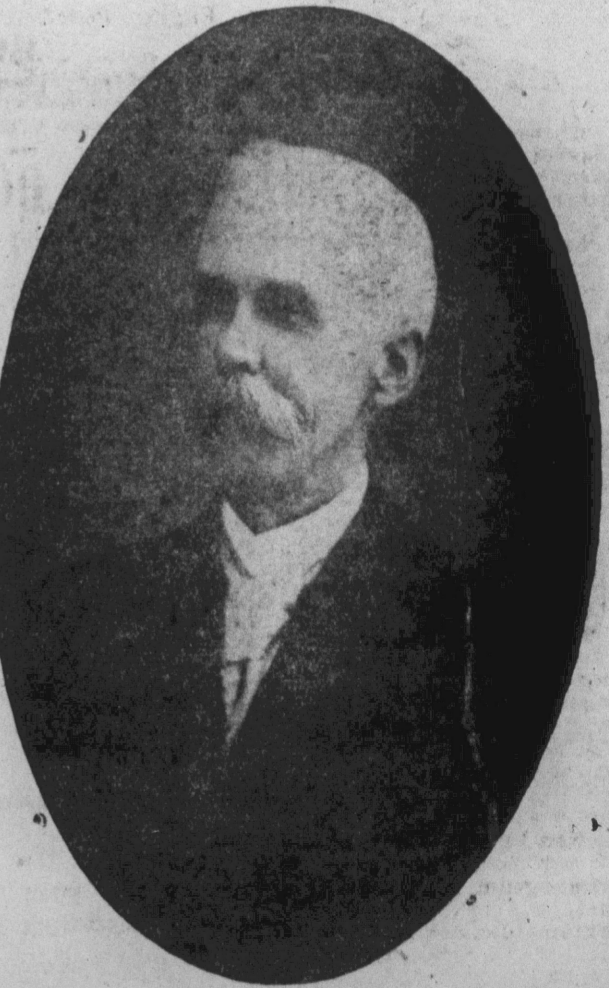

Hear This Marvelous Story.

"The contractors began the work of construction as soon after July 2nd as they could complete their preparation, and they pushed the work with all speed and consistent with good workmanship; both Messrs. Cobb and York, the managers of the contracting company, giving their constant attention, and the architects and executive committee making frequent inspection. In excavating the ground for the Administration building the contractors encountered at its west end, on the highest point of the ground, an extensive pocket of black quicksand, into which one might insert a rod several feet with one hand. This unexpected difficulty necessitated a suspension of work on this building till we could go into the weeds and cut and haul piles and get a pile driver on the ground to drive them. As soon as this could be done, 100 piles from 12 to 18 inches in diameter, and from 25 to 30 feet long were driven into this locality of quicksand and on top of these were put three feet of concrete. It cost $1,700 extra to make this foundation safe and secure, and this being done the work on this building proceeded.

"The Legislature of 1909 appropriated the sum of $50,000 for two additional buildings, a Central Power House and an Infirmary, and for furnishing and equipping all six buildings, including the Laundry and Refrigerating plant. The executive committee directed the architects to prepare the plans for these two new buildings. Bids were asked for these and for the furniture and equipment for all these buildings. These bids were opened on the 4th day of May, 1909, by the executive committee, and the contract for the two additional buildings was awarded

W. H. Ragsdale

W. H. Ragsdale was born in 1855 and received his training at a time when the general impression prevailed that anybody could read and write and cipher could teach school. But in that day there were some men and women teaching school whose chief attainments were not their attainments in scholarship but a warm heart, a big soul, and a strong personality. Ragsdale, the boy, came under the spell of some one of this type who inspired him to prepare himself as well as possible for life's work, and he was graduated from Wake Forest

Calls on Veterans To Aid in Search for Missing Baby

Graham, N. C., March 4.—(AP)—Clarence Ross, of Graham, commander of the North Carolina Veterans of Foreign Wars, has called upon every post in the state to sound a new call to arms against the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

His general order said: "As commander of the Department of North Carolina, veterans of foreign wars of the United States, and in the interest of and in conformity with our organization as devoted to public service, I am hereby requesting each post commander to call an immediate meeting of his post to declare war on the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby."

"I am urging that each post immediately offer its services by going in a body to the police and county authorities in its city and county and by appropriate resolutions passed in the post assist in every way by diligent search of all suspicious persons and places."

"Would suggest that you obtain and have read at the meeting all newspaper information available as to the description of the Lindbergh baby. We consider the kidnapping of children in the same class and category as enemy spies."

"Let each post of the Department of North Carolina immediately enter this campaign with the spirit of determination with which we met and overcame the enemy of foreign battlefields."

Two Fort Bragg Soldiers Killed In Auto Wreck

Laurinburg, March 4.—(AP)—Cole B. Stevenson, of Neeses, S. C., and Herman Peterson, of Pensacola, Fla., privates at Fort Bragg, were killed, and three women, one a negro were injured when their car overturned near Wagram.

The woman injured where Mrs. J. C. Stevenson, who said she was from Colorado but visiting in Camden, S. C., and who said her husband was a naval officer now stationed in China, Mrs. W. C. Ingram, of Orangeburg, S. C., and the negro woman who was not identified.

After being treated for their injuries, Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Ingram were lodged in jail on drunkenness charges.

The Board of Trustees met on June 11, 1909, and after having received full reports of the progress of the work of construction, determined to open the school for the reception of students on the 31st day of October, 1909. At this meeting, Prof. Robert H. Wright was elected president of the institution, and C. W. Wilson, H. E. Austin, Sallie Joyner Davis, Maria D. Graham and Mamie E. Jenkins were elected professors. The other positions were filled out later on; and by earnest and untiring effort the buildings were ready and the officers and teachers on hand prepared to open the school on October 5, 1909. The enrollment of students on the first day exceeded our fondest expectations, and in a few days the school was fully organized with a large attendance and doing earnest work.

"On the 12th day of November, 1909 the president-elect was formally inaugurated in the presence of the board of trustees, many notable educators from other institutions, the student body and a large concourse of visitors.

"The first regular session of the school opened on October 5, 1909 and closed on May 20, 1910. There were enrolled at this session 172 students.

"The first summer session opened on the 24th day of May, 1910 and closed on the 30th day of July, 1910. There were enrolled at this session 330 teachers.

"The second regular session opened on the 13th day of September, 1910 and closed on the 23rd day of May, 1911. There were enrolled at this session 228 students.

"The present session of summer school opened on the 6th day of June, 1911 to close July 29, 1911, and up to the present time there have been enrolled 280 teachers; the total enrollment for the two years being 1,010.

Marvelous Summary.

"In three years' time we built, furnished and equipped with the most approved up-to-date conveniences and appliances, six beautiful buildings, well fitted and adapted to school work, and that 1,010 students have entered these buildings and have received instruction from an able corps of high class teachers. In addition to the number that have enrolled, not less than 200 others have applied for admission into the dormitories for the two summer terms. The president was compelled to write them every room was taken. Some of these found rooms in the town.

"There is another fact in this record that should not be forgotten. The title to this property, buildings, furniture, equipment and everything pertaining thereto, is in the state, but the state has put but $85,000 into this valuable plant, while the county of Pitt and the town of Greenville have put into it $98,000. So that the state is still behind" by $33,000. This remarkable record teaches these important lessons that should appeal to the friends of education everywhere. There was a need for this school, and it is filling that need. The people appreciate and approve the stand it is taking, and the work it is doing because they see in its mission the coming of better schools for their children, and they are rallying to it.

Governor Jarvis then tells the purpose for which the school was established and discusses the value of a teachers' college to the people of the state. He says in words as timely today as they were twenty years ago:

"It (the school) stands for trained teachers for our public schools, and it is bending all its energies to furnish such teachers. It is so near the public schools and comes in such close touch with them that it may well be called a part and parcel of the public school system of the state. It is... the imperative duty of the state to furnish competent teachers for the children who are forced to attend these schools, or none. Anything short of this is a criminal neglect of a public duty."

JAMES LAWSON FLEMING

(Continued from Page Four) low citizens. In 1904 he was elected by a large majority to represent the county of Pitt in the Senate, and again in 1906. As Senator from Pitt in 1905 and 1907 his services were marked by vigor and distinction.

Among the important measures which engaged his attention, education in Eastern Carolina was not least. Upon his election in 1906 he agreed to introduce a bill to establish such a school in the eastern part of the state as had become the town, and served his term of office to the satisfaction of his fellow citizens and the hope of the educational leaders of the eastern section of the state. When the General Assembly met, Senator Fleming introduced the bill but its career was not an easy one.

A similar bill from Elizabeth City had been killed by the previous General Assembly. There was stubborn opposition on the part of those who did not realize the needs of the eastern section, and who did not favor the State's increasing number of schools already established. Under Senator Fleming's wise guidance, however, and by his tireless efforts, in season and out of season, the bill was so successfully presented that those who had thought it became its friends, and those disinterested became interested. The bill passed, and the East Carolina Teachers' Training School became a reality. It remained to secure the school for Greenville and here again Senator Fleming used his tireless energy to secure the location in Greenville.

Two years later, just one month after the buildings were completed and the school opened, on November 5, 1909 he was killed in an automobile accident, and it was left for others to see and realize what the establishment of the East Carolina

Teacher Training School, for which he had labored so earnestly and so successfully, was to mean to its section of the State. He was truly one of the founders and his work had been so well done that it was easier for others to continue to work for the maintenance and support of the school.—(From the Training School Quarterly, April, May, June, 1914).

GOV. THOMAS J. JARVIS

(Continued from Page Four) in his right arm at this time he has never fully recovered. Many who served under him have testified to the faithfulness, prudence, persistence and courage of the young captain.

The qualities that made him successful as a soldier were just the qualities needed in the leadership of the State through the trying years that followed the war. It is not surprising to find Captain Jarvis representing Currituck County in the State Convention of 1865. Then he began his public career which with the rounding out of another year will have extended through fifty years. To few has been granted the privilege of half a century of usefulness. In 1867 a new State government was authorized by the Great Reconstruction Act of Congress. Captain Jarvis was elected in the following year to represent the people of Tyrrell County in the new Legislature. He belonged to the pitifully small number of legislators who really had the best interest of the State at heart. Small though it was, this little band of patriots formed a nucleus of movement that became strong enough to inject into the legislative body of 1870, a conservative element that impeached the governor of the State, restored peace and order and opened the way for the white people once more to get control of their government. So great was their confidence in his ability, moderation and wisdom, that Captain Jarvis's colleagues elected him Speaker of the House for this eventful session. In 1875 he became a member of the Convention that secured an amendment to the Constitution that relieved the eastern counties from the dominance of negro rule. In 1876 he was elected Lieutenant Governor and in 1879 when Governor Vance became Senator, Captain Jarvis succeeded to the duties of Governor. He was elected in 1880 to serve a full term. No governor ever rendered more efficient service to his state. It is too well known to be reviewed here. The two most important pieces of work he accomplished were perhaps his management of the sale and construction of the Western North Carolina Railroad, and his advancement in the cause of education in the increase of the common schools throughout the State. In 1884 he was appointed Minister to Brazil. After a change in the administration of the United States Government he returned to North Carolina in Greenville which had been his home since 1872. Upon the death of Senator Vance he was appointed to fill out the unexpired term after which he again resumed his practice. Since that time, although he has held no high official state position, his influence has been none the less great. As a private citizen he has continued on all State questions, in all public crises to be the people's counsellor. In the great suffrage campaign of 1900 no man's advice was more eagerly sought for and listened to. Nor has his influence been felt in State and political affairs alone. Whatever relation he bears to life—in his home town, in his church, among his friends, he touches it closely and always helpfully. It is this power, to touch life closely, to visualize the future clearly that enabled him to see and grasp the needs of an educational institution in Eastern North Carolina, and once seeing it, he went straight for it. The bill establishing a Teachers Training School, was written by him and his friend, William H. Ragsdale, was introduced in the Legislature by Senator James L. Fleming, and was passed in the winter of 1907. Later, Governor Jarvis appeared before the Board of Aldermen of Greenville, to interest them in the location of the school. At that time the town was considering street improvements and a bond issue of $25,000 Governor Jarvis urged the Board to make the debt $75,000, appropriating $50,000 for the establishment of the school. The county was urged to do likewise and as the result bonds were issued to the amount of $100,000 for the location of the East Carolina Teachers Training School, in Greenville. When the school was finally secured Governor Jarvis was made chairman of the Building Committee and largely through his personal supervision the buildings were ready when the school opened in the fall of 1909. Since that time as chairman of the Executive Committee, he has kept in close touch with the school, and has loyally supported the President in adhering to the purpose of keeping the school a strictly professional one.

There has lived in North Carolina no man whose life is a greater force for good than is that of Governor Jarvis. As a legislator, governor, senator, diplomat, lawyer, private citizen, he has impressed the State as few have done. In advancing the cause of education in this school, he has rendered a service that will grow with years and expand with the coming of each succeeding generation.—(From the Training School Quarterly, for April, May, June, 1914).

While he was still engaged in the private school work he was elected

Superintendent of Public Instruction of Pitt County. At that time a County Superintendent was not expected to do much work, and the salary was much smaller than the work.

Mr. Ragsdale kept up the duties of his school and of his new office to which he had been elected until the Greenville Graded Schools were established in 1903. From that time on he devoted his entire time and energies to the county schools. A correct estimate of his work in this County cannot be made, but a comparison of conditions expressed in figures will give some insight into his work.

In 1899 the white school census was 5,157 and the number enrolled in the schools was 2,975. The average school term was 73 days. The value of the school property for the white race was $7,540. As late as 1903 the best public school building in the County, including the towns, was the one-room frame building which was the home of the Greenville Male Academy, to which reference has been made.

In 1912 the white school census was 6,965 and the enrollment was 5,665. The average school term was 101 days for the schools generally and 160 days for the local tax districts. The value of the school property for the white race was $85,000.

These figures tell the story of tireless labor, undaunted energy, prophetic vision, hope, love and diplomacy. His optimism and faith in humanity inspired men and women, both teachers and citizens, to do their best and to be their best. His persistent and cheerful efforts in behalf of the children of all the people met with a glad response. To him a little child was greater than anything of a material nature, greater than his own salary and his own comfort, and today the children of this County rise up to bless his memory.

The loss sustained in the death of Mr. Ragsdale is keenly felt in his town, in his County, and in the educational circles of the State, but it is not felt more keenly anywhere than in the faculty of the Training School. Just what he meant to us in our work cannot be told in words. He was with this school in its beginning—even long before it had a beginning—he was sowing the seed which ripened into an irresistible demand for its establishment.

One of his biggest problems in the County school work had been the question of efficient teachers. He undertook his work in this school with peculiar interest because its problem was the same that he had had for many years; the problem of trained teachers for the county schools. He brought to his work with us here, not only his enthusiasm and good common sense but his intimate and first-hand knowledge of the conditions and the needs of the country schools.

His wise counsel was a potent factor in shaping the policy of the Training School and saved us from many mistakes. His advice based upon his personal knowledge of rural conditions helped us the more easily to pull away from the traditional educational standards and policies and to keep our own problem clearly before us. Through his ideals of helpfulness we revised our standards of service and got a fresh glimpse of the privilege of helping rather than eliminating from school those generally called plodders. He helped us to keep the children of the country districts constantly in mind in all our work.

In Mr. Ragsdale and his relation to the faculty of this school was a concrete illustration of the full significance and meaning of genuine friendship. He was always "true, sympathetic, and helpful. His presence inspired us to greater achievement and to a more hopeful service. The outlook upon life is brighter because of his example of faith in childhood.

It is in a sense true that the life of every successful man when it is endeavored a public possession. The life of W. H. Ragsdale is held by this faculty as a priceless heritage and his influence lingers with us to sweeten life's labors, to lighten life's burdens, to elevate life's standards and ennoble life's purposes—a cherished boon.

Market Report

Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, March 4.—(AP)—Cotton opened firm today at an advance of 1 to 4 points on trade and commission house buying. May sold at 7.09.

After holding fairly steady early, the Liverpool market eased off just before the local opening. This may have brought in a little selling. There was some southern selling also through spot houses, but the offerings appeared to be quite readily absorbed at the start.

Later prices sagged 3 to 4 points with the market fairly active and with the market fairly active and steady at a shade above yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first half hour. Liverpool cables said that hedging and liquidation and selling on the improvement of sterling had been a factor on the decline in that market, but reported freer cloth buying for India and China.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 4.—(AP)—Responsive to late improvement of the New York stock market, cereal values averaged higher today in the final dealings.

Kansas reports falling of 60 degrees fall in temperatures in 24 hours were an additional bullish factor as to wheat, as were also cable dispatches indicating an active demand ahead for wheat to supply European, continental countries on the other hand, crop comments from India were more optimistic.

Wheat closed irregular 1-4 off to 1-4 up; compared with yesterday's finish; corn at 1-8 decline to 1-4 advance; oats unchanged to 1-8 to 1-4 off and provisions unchanged to 7 cents down.

STOCK MARKET

New York, March 4.—(AP)—The stock market crept up close to the best levels of 1932 today, as bulls were encouraged by further evidence of the restoration of banking stability.

The list encountered a little setback in the first hour, but offerings were readily absorbed, and early losses eased. Active buying developed after midday.

Among favored groups were the utilities, chemicals, food and merchandise shares.

Bullish activity switched into the utility group after midday, and such issues as public service of N. Y., American Water Works, Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas mounted to more than 2 to new tops for the year.

Among miscellaneous issues rising a point or more were American Telephone, General Electric, Union Carbide, New York Central.

The market remained largely professional, but some brokers reported traces of public buying. The bidding up of such issues as utilities, chain stores and food shares, representing relatively stable industries, was apparently in an effort to attract a public following. Several of the earning statements for 1931 of the utility and food companies have been among the more favorable.

Maddy is Elected Baptist Secretary

Raleigh, March 4.—(AP)—The General Board of the Baptist State Convention, in session here, elected Dr. Charles E. Maddy, of Raleigh, general secretary, as treasurer, and decided to increase debt service funds from 27 to 35 per cent of the church receipts.

General expense reductions were also decided upon—for the third time in less than a year.

CABINET TALKS OF KIDNAPING (Continued from page one) usual, an hour and more. After Vice-President Curtis and others emerged, Attorney General Mitchell remained behind with the president.

It was the attorney general that Mr. Hoover called in on the morning that the press carried the startling news of the kidnaping. A while later Justice Department, Prohibition Bureau, Immigration and customs agents were ordered to help hunt for the child as much as possible.

Word that Governor Moore of New Jersey was wiring a request for the president to send a representative to his office tomorrow, to attend a conference on the Lindbergh case, reached the White House from newspaper sources ahead of the telegram.

Pending receipt of the message, White House officials and the attorney general declined to comment. It probably will be referred to the Justice Department, but there is no doubt that President Hoover will comply if he thinks such a step would in any slight way help to find the baby.

PARISH TELLS OF BLAR RAID (Continued from page one) June, 1930. "In the face of an attack by Standard Oil and Henry L. Doherty" was presented to a House Judiciary committee today by Representative Gregory (D. Ky.).

The Parish statement said a highway began construction a 200 mile natural gas pipe line system between the Texas pan handle and Indiana, and was endeavoring to secure the necessary financing through common stock.

It said that L. Fischer, vice-president of the North American Light and Power company, told him in Chicago on June 14, 1930, that unless the proposed line was abandoned, the stock would be raided on June 16.

"Fischer said that unless I would abandon the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Company project and cause that company to sell all of its gas reserves to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and all of our pipe lines and by contract authorize construction contracts to H. L. Doherty and Company, the market on Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. stock would be attacked and raided on June 16; that I would be bankrupt and the company liquidated and that if I showed opposition I would even be attacked personally and slandered and my family attacked."

WOULD UNSEAT BANKHEAD

(Continued from page one) not see, however, how it can be avoided without approving the shocking facts disclosed by this record. It is not necessary to show fraud by affirmative evidence. When the evidence produced shows a universal disregard by the election officers of the election laws of a state, the presumption that such officers did their duty is wholly destroyed and credence given under normal conditions to the acts of such officers cannot be depended upon.

"Opportunity for fraud is" to appear to say that it did not exist. The circumstances make the election fraudulent I suggest; that this report be submitted by the subcommittee to the full committee with such comments upon it as any member of the subcommittee may care to make.

"My own recommendation is that the Senate be advised by the committee that in its judgment there was no violation of United States Senator in Alabama in 1930."

Hastings held Bankhead's nomination illegal because the Democratic state committee barred Helin from the primary for opposing the nomination of Al Smith in 1928. He cited an Alabama statute which he said forbade application of one rule to the voter and another to the person who desires to be a candidate.

Japanese demands were "impossible"

By GLENN BABB (Associated Press Correspondent) Tokyo, March 4.—(AP)—Japanese government officials said today they were confident the "war" is over in China in spite of declarations made by W. W. Yen, Chinese representative, to the League of Nations assembly at Geneva yesterday.

When she returned home at the noon hour, the money was disappeared. The police were notified, but they were at first doubtful concerning the authenticity of the story, but immediately began an investigation which showed the woman actually had been in possession of that amount of money.

Although the closet, in which the coat was hanging contained many articles of wearing apparel nothing but the money was missing, and police declared the thief had had previous knowledge of the location of the fund.

Chief Clark refrained from discussing the case. He stated, however, that somebody who had been closely associated with the woman had committed the crime, but he was unable to advance any theory as to the identity of that person.

In sewing the money to the coat, the woman told police the thread had been passed through each end of the bills several times. The bills were of an old denomination, large size, and had never been handled since they were obtained from a bank in Norfolk.

Police said this should make identification easy and have called on all bankers and merchants to keep a keen watch for the money.

NEW PROPOSALS FOR THE ENDING OF HOSTILITIES REFUSED BY GOVERNMENT

(Continued from page one) bombs which have reduced the surrounding territory to a shambles, were not rattling the windows today. A spirit of cheerfulness seemed to have settled on the city. Shops long closed were open for business again and although an occasional rifle barked on the 20-mile front running from the southern bank of the Yangtze down to Nanchang, people smiled on Shanghai streets.

Peace efforts apparently were at stalemate, although most commentators said a lasting peace was the present outstanding problem. The Japanese claimed they were awaiting a reply from the Chinese to their latest demands. The Chinese said the demands had been referred to the National government at Lovang.

Yosuk Matsuioko, representative here of Premier Inukai of Japan, said he expected no further local peace parleys for several days. In th meantime Chinese officials said the
