Investigators Go To N.Y. To Question Frank Berg In Lindbergh Kidnaping

BELIEVE HE CAN AID HUNT

Probe of Former Kidnapper Started Following Information by Max Phillips, who was Victim of Berg Plot Years Ago; Nothing New Concerning Finding of Coat Near Window Where Baby Was Taken.

Hopewell, N. J., March 15.—(AP)—Investigators went to New York City today to question Frank Berg, prominent figure in a fantastic alleged kidnap attempt years ago, to determine whether any new clues might be obtained from him in the Lindbergh kidnap mystery.

Berg was arrested in 1925 in connection with a reported attempt to lure Max Phillips, wealthy collar manufacturer, aboard Berg's yacht. Berg and a woman Phillips said represented herself as a countess but was really Berg's wife, were never indicted and charges against them were dropped.

Phillips went last week to see Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of state police, and after a lengthy conversation it was announced that every effort would be made to find out if there was any possible connection between the alleged attempt to kidnap Phillips and the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

"Investigators from this office are in New York to question Frank Berg and investigate his activities," Schwartzkopf said in his mid-morning bulletin.

"Max Phillips came to this office voluntarily," the bulletin continued, "and related his experience with Berg and his associates in 1925 when an attempted kidnaping of himself was betrayed by advance information. No interview was had concerning the Lindbergh case."

"The information surrendered by Max Phillips will be given the necessary attention for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the kidnapers responsible for the attempt upon him can be connected with this case."

The bulletin concluded with a general statement that the state police in charge of the investigation could not be responsible for statements concerning the case given from any other sources.

It said there was nothing new concerning a report that a coat had been found near the window from which the baby was taken. No other police departments, it had reported any definite leads.

New York, March 15.—(AP)—Two more mysterious advertisements appeared in the "personal" columns of New York newspapers today. There was speculation that they might have some connection with negotiation between Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

Each was signed "Jasfje," as were previous notes which have appeared. One said: "Money is ready—Jasfje."

The other, appearing in a Bronx publication, said: "Money is ready. No cops. No secret service. No press. I come alone like the last time. Please call, Jasfje."

New York, March 15.—(AP)—The mysterious John Smith who was questioned last week about the Lindbergh kidnaping and then moved from Tombs prison to West Side prison, was taken in an automobile today to the office of Richard R. Patterson Jr., commissioner of correction, for further examination.

It was learned that Smith, whose occupation and address have been withheld by police, was the subject yesterday of a conference of high police officials in West Side prison.

Dies From Injuries Mount Airy, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Rudolph Worrell, 17, of Hillsville, Va., injured when his automobile overturned near here yesterday, died about last midnight in a hospital here.

Light Fails As Eastman Passes Away

Rochester, N. Y., March 15.—(AP)—Ever since a portrait of George Eastman was hung in the Eastman School of Music here, a light had been kept burning continuously over the picture.

Yesterday noon the school janitor noticed the light was cut although a few minutes before it had been burning.

He was at a telephone calling for a new bulb when news of Mr. Eastman's death reached the school.

WET FORCES CLAIM GAIN

See Future Chances of Victory in House Against Liquor Yesterday.

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—Conflicting claims from both sides echoed the test of strength in the House yesterday on submitting prohibition to the people once again.

The result—a 227 to 187 vote against considering a resolution proposing to amend the constitution by giving the states individual control over liquor, was hailed by wets and modificationists as presaging victory next time. The dries claimed the result proved their lines strong, though some conceded a gain to their foes.

CANDIDATES FACE TEST

Roosevelt and Murray Principals in the North Dakota Primary Today.

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—A decision of vital bearing on the Democratic Presidential candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Governor "Alfalfa" Bill Murray of Oklahoma, will be given in today's North Dakota primary.

Roosevelt started with the edge, enlisting the support of the state's party leaders long before Murray appeared on the field. The Oklahoman made a personal campaign, stumping the state. If he loses decisively Murray may find himself moved down a notch or several notches in the list of contenders. If Murray wins Roosevelt may find himself with an uphill fight through much of the western territory which has so far been very favorable to him.

For the New York governor, today's is the second test in a three-way tussle. A week ago, far in the east, he took the New Hampshire delegation against Alfred E. Smith. A week from tomorrow his forces in Georgia will go up against a slate which favors Speaker Garner of Texas. In each of these contests the odds favor Roosevelt, but they are nevertheless considered indicative of trends and important in influencing other states.

The Dakota tests has a bearing also on the fortunes of President Hoover, as the Republican primary there is to select between delegates pledged to him and a slate which would run unopposed but is regarded as against him.

The Democrats obtained a measure of light last night on the campaign status of former Governor Smith through a letter he wrote to Mrs. Jessie W. Sarre, daughter of President Wilson. She had asked whether a Massachusetts delegation instructed for him would be free, after his own chances at victory had faded, to vote their own second choice or would be considered them bound by loyalty to vote for a Smith choice. The former governor replied: "The Massachusetts delegates are entirely free and the matter is up to them."

At the same time he asserted again that he was neither for nor against any other candidate.

SENATOR BYRNES ASKS SENATE TO TRANSFER DUTIES TO AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.) today asked the Senate to transfer to the Agriculture Department duties of the Farm Board.

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—The Senate today passed a resolution transferring to the Agriculture Department duties of the Farm Board. The measure was passed by a vote of 75 to 15.

The senator testified it was unnecessary to maintain the Farm Board to encourage cooperative marketing, contending that could be done by the Agriculture Department.

Calling attention to the demand from President Hoover and others for consolidation of departments, Byrnes asked: "If we are sincere how can we justify two departments of agriculture?"

He said the department and the board were duplicating effort and that to maintain both was extravagant.

DEATH ASKED FOR ATTACKER

Hawaiian Authorities Take Drastic Steps to Stop Assaults On Women.

Honolulu, March 15.—(AP)—Determined to check repeated assaults upon Honolulu women, Prosecutor John C. Keller said today the death penalty will be demanded for the first time for such an offense in Hawaiian history when Joseph Young is brought to trial.

Young was indicted by the grand jury yesterday for an assault upon Bernice Lum, 1-year-old Chinese. The burly youth, a Korean-Hawaiian, was arraigned shortly after the indictment was returned, but he will not enter a plea until Saturday. He said he was innocent.

Keller said he expected the trial to be next week, when he will demand the death penalty as provided by a recent legislative session.

The only other man to be tried for assault since that law was passed was John Fernandez, a Portuguese, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment the same day—March 1—that he attacked a Japanese woman.

Forest Fire Rages in McDowell Co.

Marion, March 15.—(AP)—A forest fire fanned by a high, wind-burned briskly today over a three-mile front near Northfork in McDowell county.

Several hundred acres had burned and still the flames advanced. The fire began Saturday and burned slowly until Monday.

Charges Foreign Greed With Causing U. S. Loss

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—Summarizing the Senate Finance committee's investigation of foreign loans, Senator Hiram Johnson told the Senate today that American losses were due to the "greed" of international banks and "guilty complacency and supine indifference" on the part of the government.

The gray-haired California Republican, who sponsored the investigation of American losses in foreign bond issues, started the Senate with the ferocity of his attack.

He said the government had failed to deny Hargraves' part in the abduction of the DeJute boy, son of James DeJute Sr., wealthy Niles contractor, but did argue that the state had failed to prove there was an attempt at extortion as the indictment charged, and therefore the state had no case. The court overruled a motion to dismiss the case.

Much of the prosecution's case was finished yesterday when the boy calmly told how two men overpowered him March 2 and hid him in a bootleg liquor storehouse near Youngstown.

An anonymous "tip" sent police there several days later and in answer to the boy's shout, "Here I am!" the officers broke through a false wall and found him in a secret room.

WORLD MOURNS SHIP JAMMED GEO. EASTMAN IN HEAVY ICE

St. John's, N. F., March 15.—(AP)—Old Man Hard Luck is trailing light along after the ice-bound sailing vessel.

Radio reports today brought news of the Sealer Ranger, Captain Baddock, being jammed in heavy ice 15 miles off Funk Islands. She had 150 men aboard and her propeller was gone but there was no immediate danger.

The government steamer Kyle was ordered to the Ranger's position at daylight.

The Sealer Eagle reported she was in a small patch of seals off Funk Islands at the northernmost end of Newfoundland. She was jammed in the ice and reported all ships in the vicinity were held tightly in its grip.

The ships left here several weeks ago on their annual pilgrimage. Seals have been reported plentiful in recent years and the sealers have had great difficulty rounding them up for the kill, which was set for today.

Funeral services will be conducted at the grave in Beaufort county this afternoon by Rev. Wilbur Bennett of Bath.

The deceased was a member of the Disciple church and was held in high regard by scores of friends and acquaintances.

He is survived by his wife and six children.

Believe Soviet Russia To Recognize Manchuria

Tokyo, March 15.—(AP)—News from Manchuria today led Japanese officials to express the belief that Soviet Russia will soon recognize officially the new Manchurian state under the dictatorship of Henry Pu-Yi, former Chinese boy emperor.

Clinton, Iowa, March 15.—(AP)—One hundred thousand dollars stolen from the City National Bank today by five robbers was recovered on a farm 3 hours after the hold-up, by John and Arvid Flood, farmers.

The bandits are believed to have stopped at the farm, changed their clothes, thrown away their guns.

DEMAND DEATH FOR KIDNAPER

Verdict to be Rendered Tomorrow in Abduction Trial At Warren, Ohio.

Warren, Ohio, March 15.—(AP)—The trial of Dowell Hargraves, 31, for the kidnaping of 11-year-old James DeJute of Niles, was concluded this morning with the state demanding the maximum penalty of life imprisonment. Common Pleas Judge Lynn B. Griffith indicated he would render his verdict tomorrow.

Hargraves had waived a jury trial, placing his fate in Judge Griffith's hands. Defense counsel did not deny Hargraves' part in the abduction of the DeJute boy, son of James DeJute Sr., wealthy Niles contractor, but did argue that the state had failed to prove there was an attempt at extortion as the indictment charged, and therefore the state had no case. The court overruled a motion to dismiss the case.

U. S. CANNOT BAN RUSSIA

Secretary Mills Says Government Powerless to Act in Face of Existing Laws.

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—Secretary Mills held today that under present laws the government is powerless to impose a general ban against importation of Russian products.

This was his answer to a delegation headed by Senator Oddie (R. Nev.) which asked that Soviet products be excluded.

More than 100 representatives of business labor and civic organizations went with Oddie to the Treasury department to present a petition saying Russian laws made labor compulsory.

It added that "imports produced under the conditions of virtual slavery which exist in the Soviet Union are a serious menace to many branches of industry and agriculture in the United States."

The delegation urged the products be excluded under section 307 of the tariff act which bars from importation all articles made in whole or part by convict labor and all products manufactured by forced or indentured labor unless there is an insufficient quantity produced in this country to meet domestic demand.

Secretary Mills, however, said that if Congress intended to place a general ban against Russian goods it must provide more specific legislation before the Treasury could take such action.

Morris Rosner, former government agent who is supposed to have wide connections in gang circles, is believed to be aiding in negotiations seeking the return of baby Lindbergh. Rumor has it that Rosner caused the naming of two gangster "go-betweens" to act in the case.

The action was taken by the committee shortly after Representative Sney of New York, the Republican leader, had informed the President of his belief the new tax measure would be passed virtually intact.

A poll of House opinion, the minority leader said, showed both Republicans and Democrats to favor almost unanimously a balancing of the budget, and adoption of the tax program as a non-partisan emergency measure.

The New York Republican, however, disagreed with some advice previously given the chief executive by his colleagues. Commenting upon a statement at the White House recently by Rep. Wood (R. Ind.) that the tax bill should be amended, Sney said he thought there would be no boost in the present figures.

"This bill," he said, "is about all the boost we'll have this year. We can't go much further in raising taxes. This is about all the people can stand. If this does not balance the budget we shall have to do it by cutting expenditures even further."

DARROW WILL ARGUE CASE

Noted Lawyer to Go to Honolulu to Appear in the Massie Murder Case.

By E. H. HIPPLEHEUSER (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Chicago, March 15.—(AP)—Once more, Clarence Darrow has abandoned his retirement to become attorney for the defense.

This time, it's the Fortescue-Massie murder trial in Honolulu. Wednesday night, accompanied by Mrs. Darrow, the noted defender leaves his home on Chicago's midway, bound for San Francisco. On March 19 he sails for Hawaii, to guide the defense of Mrs. Grace Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas Massie, U. S. N., her son-in-law, and two naval enlisted men, charged with murdering a native.

Like other trails that drew Darrow to the defense, this one, too, has captured world attention. The native was accused of attacking the naval lieutenant's wife.

Darrow, having turned from "The Story of My Life," to other writings on sociological and philosophical subjects, quits his study on the eve of his 75th birthday.

Darrow started to retire two decades ago, after the McNamara dynamite trial in California.

But retirement was not for him. There was more labor-capital disputes; the Loeb-Leopold case, in which he startled the world by pleading the young slayers of Bobby Franks "guilty," and then, on a hearing in mitigation of sentence, saved them from the hangman's noose.

Too, there was the Scopes trial, with its court battles on evolution and fundamentalism between Darrow and his friend-turned-foe, William Jennings Bryan.

One element is lacking in the Hawaii trial, the possibility of the death sentence. The indictments there charged second degree murder.

"So late in my life," Darrow said "I could not go into another trial when my client's life was at stake."

Darrow, who abandoned the general attorneyship of a great railroad to defend Eugene Debs after the railroad strike, and who since has defended nearly a thousand, mostly poor, has never yet had a client lost to the death penalty.

CANNED FOODS STRICKEN OFF REVENUE BILL

Rainey Says Amendments Will be Offered to Replace 2.25 Levy from Goods.

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—Canned foods today were stricken off the list of articles which the House ways and means committee proposed to subject to a manufacturers sales tax.

Representative Rainey, Democratic leader, said the committee will offer amendments in the House to lift the 2.25 per cent levy from canned fruits, vegetables, fish and meats.

The committee also will recommend taking the tax off of telegraph messages to newspapers.

Rainey said the loss in estimated revenue by dropping the canned foods taxes was $11,000,000.

"The committee at another meeting will consider new sources of revenue to make up for this loss," Rainey said.

The action was taken by the committee shortly after Representative Sney of New York, the Republican leader, had informed the President of his belief the new tax measure would be passed virtually intact.

A poll of House opinion, the minority leader said, showed both Republicans and Democrats to favor almost unanimously a balancing of the budget, and adoption of the tax program as a non-partisan emergency measure.

The New York Republican, however, disagreed with some advice previously given the chief executive by his colleagues. Commenting upon a statement at the White House recently by Rep. Wood (R. Another Light Snow Visits City

It was generally believed today that last night was the coldest night of the winter for Greenville and community but that fact was disputed by B. T. Clark, local observer of the United States weather department.

The minimum temperature last night was given as 22 degrees, but one night last week the mercury dropped to 18 degrees, Mr. Clark said. The temperature this morning at 8 o'clock was 24.

Although the cold wave has continued here for the last several days, the mercury hit the toboggan again yesterday afternoon under the force of a stiff wind accompanied by snow. The snow flurry, bearing all the earmarks of a blizzard, continued about 15 minutes and the countryside was covered with a light blanket of white.

Much of the snow had disappeared this morning but it was still in evidence in places protected from the wind.

The weather bureau predicted continued cold for tonight and tomorrow but after that time it was expected springtime weather would return.

Rampaging Tar River is Receding

After overflowing its banks and inundating miles of lowland, Tar river was reported as slowly falling today by B. T. Clark, local weather observer.

The river reached its crest at 15 feet yesterday afternoon, Mr. Clark said, and shortly afterward began its downward trend.

It was the first time the river had reached flood stage in some time, and its muddy red waters attracted considerable attention of motorists.

In the car were Dowling, Bechtel Alcock of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Freddie Kountz of New York and M. G. Mehan of Pinehurst. All received minor injuries. Their machine was demolished.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of father, John Harrell Kirtrell. (Died Jan. 16, 1932)

The day had long been over, The sun had sunk in the west, His body so tired and weary Was ready for peace and rest.

He heard his Master's welcome, And entered the boat to sail To that beautiful land of somewhere, Beyond life's stormy gale.

It only seems as yesterday Since you left us here, But we know that you are dwelling In a nobler, higher sphere.

We miss your calls, and smiles, dear father while here we roam It makes us sad and lonely, But we know we'll meet and part no more.

In that beautiful happy homeland.

Father, we know you're safe in the homeland, Beckoning us to come To that beautiful land of somewhere That beautiful happy home.

Celebrates Birthday.
Yesterday afternoon from four until five-thirty, Margaret Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnson, entertained about forty of her little friends in honor of her fifth birthday.

The home was very prettily decorated with various cut flowers carrying out a pink and green color scheme. As the little guests arrived they were served fruit punch. Various games and contests were enjoyed. The dining table was beautiful in its decorations and centered with a birthday cake topped with five candles. Much merriment was caused in the cutting of the cake.

An ice course was served at the end of a delightful hour.

Mr. and Mrs. McGowan Entertain.
Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McGowan entertained several neighbors and friends Monday evening.

The occasion was in honor of Mrs. McGowan's mother, Mrs. E. H. Rouse of Pollockville, also it being Mrs. McGowan's birthday. As the guests arrived, they presented Mrs. McGowan with many useful and attractive gifts. The living room was decorated in spring flowers, where three tables were arranged for cards. Refreshments were served throughout the evening, and were decorated suggestive of St. Patrick's Day, which motif was carried out in the table appointments.

After several games were enjoyed the guests were invited to the dining room. The dining table was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The centerpiece was a large white birthday cake topped with candles and shamrocks. It was surrounded with a bounteous supply of refreshments.

The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. A. W. Clements and Mrs. J. R. Lawrence.

Those enjoying the evening with Mr. and Mrs. McGowan were: Mrs. E. H. Rouse, guest of honor, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Clements, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Faircloth, Mrs. Laura Jones, Mrs. Jack Teel, Mrs. R. P. Collier and little Miss Irene Dresbach.

IRISH PLAYERS WILL APPEAR HERE SATURDAY

The Irish Players that will be at East Carolina Teachers College on next Saturday evening, are all Irish trained in the Abbey Theatre of Dublin, and the play is of Irish life, "The Far Off Hills." This group of actors is considered the greatest in the world today, all of them, even those taking minor parts in this play, great actors.

This theatre has been the inspiration of all the movements in the modern drama that have made this a period of great achievement.

in that field. The winners of the prizes for plays, the leading actors and actresses, successful playwrights, have usually come from the "little theatres" and all of these have received their inspiration from the Abbey Theatre, using that as their model. The Carolina Play-makers have been influenced by them and the movement has followed rather closely the Irish movement. The Abbey Theatre however, has had for many years an endowment, and its actors are paid regular salaries by the state and the same ones have long and successful experience on the stage. Some of these actors have learned as many as a hundred or more parts.

The cases consisted mainly of larceny, violation of prohibition and traffic laws. It was expected work would be completed during the late afternoon or early tomorrow.

Rush For Farm Loans Continues In This County

The rush for loans through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation continued among Pitt county farmers today, and scores were expected to apply at the farm department for blanks during the next week or so.

E. F. Arnold, director of the department, said this morning that 169 applications had been made since the receipt of blanks last Monday. He stated that 106 of this number had been approved by the local committee and that the remainder were in the hands of the farmers awaiting certification. Loans when fully approved are usually received about two weeks after filing of applications. Fifty million dollars is being made available to growers immediately under legislation recently passed by Congress, and with debentures, the sum will probably reach $150,000,000.

Two carloads of hogs will be shipped from the stockyards here tomorrow. It was stated today by E. F. Arnold, director of Pitt County Farm Department.

ABOUT TOWN

The House of Representatives of the United States showed the world yesterday it is "dry" and not "wet." This was indicated in the vote on consideration of legislation to turn back liquor control to the states when the proposal was defeated by large margin.

This gave the wet bloc one of the most pronounced setbacks of the year and may mean the complete undoing of those who are exerting every influence for renascence of legalized whiskey traffic.

They realize that if the matter was left to the determination of the states many would go wet in the course of a few months, and this would mean that other states, or border districts, would have the time of their lives trying to prevent smuggling.

The situation is complex as it is but it is impossible to conceive the enormity of the traffic if returned to state control.

The House probably has made mistakes this session, but they will be forgotten in this stroke in behalf of the protection of the millions of honest men whose very existence would be jeopardized by a return of whiskey rights.

Superior Court Solicitor D. M. Clark of Greenville has won the esteem and respect of Greenville people through his handling of court business in that county. Commenting on the work of the Pitt county man, the Snow Hill Standard-Laconic had the following to say:

"That the people of this judicial district made no mistake when they chose Solicitor D. M. Clark for the position he holds is most evident to one who watches him day after day in handling the interests of the state. A high type lawyer who never stoops to any of the tricks of the profession but who conducts the court's business upon a plane fair to all concerned, an able advocate before a jury, if the man or woman charged with crime is guilty he rarely fails to so convince the jury."

Although death by highway accidents has undergone a pronounced decrease the last several weeks, it behooves the driver to keep constantly before him the fact that the best he can do will not be good enough in time of great emergency.

This makes it necessary to drive carefully and cautiously at all times, paying strict attention to the operation of the car and the road ahead. The majority of accidents are not caused by the inexperienced driver but by the cocksure person that takes chances other people would not.

Regardless of how expert you may be at the wheel, do not let this cause you to forget that it is your duty not only to protect your life but the hundreds of others you come in contact with from day to day.

The season for destructive fires is just around the corner and it is to be hoped people who frequent the woodlands will do their utmost to prevent a recurrence of fires in this community.

With the coming of springtime farmers will begin clearing off their lands and burning rubbish, and this increases forest fire hazards to not little extent. In such cases, the growers should see that fires are protected as much as possible so they will have no chance of spreading to nearby wooded areas.

Fishermen being away to nearby streams with the first breath of warm weather should also keep in mind the forest fire danger and see to it that all cigarette and cigar butts are properly extinguished before thrown away.

If these safeguards are observed the condition ought to be improved during the coming spring and the property owners saved several thousands of dollars.

Kitty Frew

By Jane Abbott

SYNOPSIS: Kitty Frew, attractive and well-liked in her own home town, finds hostility and scorn when she marries Garfield Frew and comes to live in Winston. His mother resents her, his father ignores her and his sister, Carol, treats her with cold indifference except for one warning to Kitty that a trap is planned against her. Kitty persuades Gar to ask his father for a job, although he is more satisfied living on his mother's money and working with a little theatre group started by Marge Crosby. Marge is trying to gain Gar's interest, and his absorption in the plays helps her game. There seem to be endless committee meetings, and Kitty is left at home alone to make her uncertain plans for a home where she and Gar can be alone. Carol has told her to study Marge's technique, but she has determined not to be jealous.

Chapter 12

PICKING UP A CLUE "Well, I've been thinking about that myself, Kitty," Gar said. "We ought to have some sort of a place where we could have the bunch come in for supper. Di says there's an apartment for rent in the Tudor Arms. Let's take a look at it. We could get most of our meals out."

"Why, Gar, I'm going to love cooking!" Kitty protested. Tudor Arms—she had to down a little dismay. But not now would she cross Gar.

He kissed her nose. "Funny little thing," he laughed. "Have you any idea how funny you are?"

"But you love me!" she challenged impudently.

Gar had promised Marge to go with her to look at the architect's sketches. "The work's got to be rushed on that barn, you see. Kit, and Marge's depending on me."

"But you'll see your father at four o'clock?"

Gar promised, easily. Marge had made an appointment with Decker, the architect, at two. He'd be through in plenty of time.

"Gar, I think I'll make your father very happy, having you in with him. He looked that way—pleased, just thinking about it. You ought to be with him more."

"Never have a chance, Kit. He's always been too busy to bother with any of us. He's work, I tell you. Your dad doesn't know what work is, pottering around with his pickles and things. If mother wasn't the sort she is she'd have set up a howl a long time ago."

Kitty's arms tightened around Gar's neck. "You're always going to have time to bother about me, Gar! I'll see to that." She hid her face because all at once there were tears in her eyes. "Gar, I want you to be so splendid—about everything; I want us to keep our marriage like it seemed, you know, those first days—"

He felt her trembling. "Why, of course, sweet! You're not thinking for a minute that we won't?"

Oh, no, she wasn't thinking that, now. They kissed, a little solemnly. Then she sent him away to keep his appointment with Marge. She wasn't afraid of Marge, rather a little proud now that Marge so depended upon Gar's judgment.

After Gar had gone she took a walk. She did not go to the Park to watch the children; she went down past the shops and amused herself staring in through the windows where such engaging things as wall-papers and silk and chintz hangings and bedroom furniture were displayed. She stopped in a small tea-room and ate a salad with no thought of loneliness.

When she went back to the house, Pound told her he had made a fire in the library. "The day's sharp like, Mrs. Gar." He smiled at her glowing face. Her cheeks were red but it was not alone from the crispness of the September air. But she liked the thought of the fire and the deep chair where she had sat when David was with her.

She hunted out a book at random and settled herself before the leaping flames. Their warmth embraced her and made her pleasantly drowsy, contented. She did not open her book at once; quizzing him in an effort to determine just how much he knows about the abduction which has provided the nation with the greatest mystery in years.

Capone is confident that if he should be able to deliver the goods he would probably receive clemency, and working up that theory, is doing his best to obtain release under bond.

It has been suggested that the master gangster knows more than the officers give him credit, and who knows but that the suggestions is nearer the truth than evident on first blush.

Capone is still the guiding mind of the most powerful criminal element of the nation, and world for that matter, and it would not be difficult for him to direct an abduction although confined behind bars. While this is merely a suggestion, it might prove as good as some of the theories hundreds of officers have been running to the ground since the child's disappearance.

It might help the cause along to release Capone and then let police determine exactly how he found the child, in case he should. It would give them an opportunity to send the gangster back to jail with additional years tacked onto his sentence in event his complicity should be revealed.

spare dimes and quarters into a locked box.

"You liked Italy, Muriel? I found the shops all right but the people were robbars! All I did was count my change—"

They would go to Italy, Capri, Naples, Venice. Pictures of vine-clad sunny hills, sapphire seas, sleepy, old piazzas came to Kitty. They'd make it a second honeymoon—

"Muriel, you'll forgive my asking you, but how is Gar's unfortunate marriage coming out?"

"I can tell you that better, Agatha, a few months from now! Ffs. Frew's voice had been even; Kitty could fancy that she was smiling!

"My dear, I was aghast when I heard of it. I think you were wonderful, letting him bring her back here. They are not many mothers who'd do that. Of course I know how proud you've always been of Gar; I can feel what a frightful shock it must have been to you. I said to my husband what are the young people coming to, the way they rush into the most serious things, as if life was some sort of play. The dear boy must have been terribly taken in. What are you going to do about it, Muriel? I know you must have thought it all out carefully. You wouldn't face it any other way. I said to my husband—"

"Thanks, Agatha, I have thought it out. I've had to think it out for Gar's sake. I am happy to say that the girl hasn't undermined my boy's confidence in me and in my wisdom."

"Maybe Gar and I can go abroad some day," Kitty thought over her application to the printed page before her. They might begin a traveling chest right now, drop down if it'd been my John. Really, we mothers ought to take out some kind of insurance to cover the mistakes of our children. Is she dreadful, the girl? I haven't asked anyone. I didn't want to hear any gossip about anything so close to you. But I've been praying that she isn't too bad; nowadays the worst husbess can dress themselves up to look like our own sweet girls—"

"She's not that sort, Agatha. In fact she's quite simple, unsophisticated. But I am convinced Gar will tire of her the sooner for that. I know that her limitations are embarrassing him already. All I can do, Agatha, is to stand by my boy. I am keeping him home, with all the time in the world to play about with his old friends, dependent upon me. And when he sees his mistake I will be ready to help him—"

Kitty heard no more. A hot fury was surging through her, deafening her.

A simple creature! Gar was to discover his mistake, throw her aside! She'd taken Gar in—

From the hall a clock chimed. Four o'clock. The strokes vibrated softly through the rooms. And suddenly Kitty laughed, soundlessly, triumphantly. At this minute Gar was with his father, talking about his new job. They'd go away at once, anywhere; she would not stay another night under this roof. She had outwitted his mother.

Suddenly she remembered what Carol had said. Carol knew—a trap she'd called it; Carol'd said she was sitting on a trap, that a game was being played under her nose. And that Margery Crosby did not hold the trump cards. Oh, fool, fool that she'd been not to see— (Copyright, Jane Abbott)

Tomorrow, Kitty offers Gar his choice between her and being "bought" by his mother.

HALF LOAF BETTER THAN NO LOAF AT ALL

Mr. Editor:

A reputable investment house is offering county and municipal bonds for sale. They give the tax levy and the amount uncollected in each of the counties and towns for years 1929 and 1930.

That for Pitt county follows: 1929 levy, $790,404; uncollected, $108,817.

1930 levy, 773,183; uncollected, $303,943.

Figures for 1931 are not submitted.

We must adjust ourselves to present conditions. Unnecessary offices should be abolished and public salaries should be based on private income. For lack of money hundreds of school buildings in Arkansas are closed and 36,000 children are on vacation that ought to be in school. Under existing conditions, how much longer can we keep our schools open in Pitt County? Half a loaf is better than no loaf at all.
