NON-PARTISAN FIGHT SOUGHT

New Taxes Proposed by Ways and Means Committee Call For One Cent Increase in First-Class Postage and Trimming Down of Exemptions Allowed on Surtaxes and Corporations.

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—Responding to an appeal by the Speaker, the House rose with an outburst of applause to pledge itself to a policy of balancing the budget.

Taking the floor at about the time that the Ways and Means committee was making known its substitute for the rejected sales tax, Speaker Garner called for a member who favored the policy of restoring to the revenue bill "some taxes by which this country's financial integrity may be maintained" to rise.

With a roar of applause, the membership arose. The speaker said that he favored action in a non-partisan manner on the tax bill and that although he had always been opposed to the sales tax, and still was, "the first taxes you could possibly levy would be better than no tax at all." For that reason, he said, he had given his endorsement to the proposal.

"I don't care what taxes you impose. This committee of yours is going to bring in a program. But if you don't like them, won't you have the patriotism enough and the manhood enough to offer something else?"

During his remarks a crowded floor and overflowing galleries, Garner said he was opposed to the sales tax which was rejected last week but had been willing to accept it, believing that "the worst taxes you could possibly levy would be better than no taxes at all."

Three times during his speech, the full House membership applauded. The first ovation came when he stood up and addressed the chair, the second when he appealed to the membership to evidence their determination to balance the budget by rising in their places, and the third when he left the floor after concluding his remarks.

The new taxes proposed by the Ways and Means committee called in addition for an increase of one cent in first class postage, trimming down the exemptions allowed on surtaxes and corporations, changes in the administrative features of the present law, special taxes on selected articles, and taxes on transfers of bonds, stocks and real estate.

Washington, March 28.—(AP)—A ten per cent sales tax on cosmetics, the first of the Ways and Means committee substitute proposals, was passed by the House without a vote. The committee estimates it will raise 25,000,000.

Agree to Settle Election Charges on Sixth of April

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—The Senate Elections committee today agreed to meet on April 6 for final action in the North Carolina and Alabama election contests. In the North Carolina dispute the committee has before it the complaint of fraud filed by George M. Pritchard, Republican, in the election of Senator Bailey, Democrat. The question is whether to ask the Senate for authority to make inquiry.

TWO ACCOUNT SUITS AND DIVORCE OCCUPY ATTENTION OF CIVIL COURT HERE.

Three cases were disposed of in the opening session of the second week civil trial of Pitt County Superior Court which convened here yesterday morning with Judge E. H. Crammer of Southport, presiding.

There are approximately sixty cases on the calendar for this term and it is believed the majority would be completed. Two cases were disposed of in the first week's session last week.

Barnes Shoe Co. was awarded judgment for $246 against Pitt Shoe Company in a suit for an account which the firm owed when it suspended business here some time ago. The local concern, however, was allowed credit for $36 which was represented in returned goods.

G. B. W. Hadley was awarded $58.11 against J. D. White, former farm tenant of the plaintiff, in a suit for $160 growing out of final settlement between the two parties in connection with operation of a farm. White filed a counter claim.

The men broke into the Richland Mercantile Company by breaking through two doors. They pried out the combination dial of the safe and used a tool to force out the spindle and release the spring catch.

Bandits Kidnap Sheriff And Rob Store of $600

Columbia, S. C., March 29.—(AP)—Three armed men early today kidnaped "Lish" Wilson, night policeman at Eastover, Richland county town, handcuffed him to a tree in a negro churchyard and then robbed a store of between $600 and $700 in cash and checks.

The men returned three hours later and released Wilson. They told him he would find his pistol and flashlight on the steps of a church a mile and a half from Eastover.

Wilson walked to Eastover and notified county officers, who began an investigation. Wilson said the robbers wore no masks but had their faces made up with paint or a similar substance.

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—A call to arms for prohibition workers was sounded today at a conference of the National Women's Temperance Union.

HYDE SCORES FARM LOANS

Secretary Hyde said in an interview today that as a loan agent the Department of Agriculture was the "prize boob in the history of finance."

The secretary of agriculture made his statement in explaining that the department was handling agricultural loans instead of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "because the corporation is doing business on a business basis and loans that are now being made under the name of agriculture can not by the furthest stretch be called good business."

The men broke into the Richland Mercantile Company by breaking through two doors. They pried out the combination dial of the safe and used a tool to force out the spindle and release the spring catch.

Almost $500 of the haul was in cash. Merchandise apparently did not interest them.

The men came on Wilson as he was making his rounds. Displaying pistols they ordered him to get up. He said he was unable to discern whether the men were white or negroes because of their makeup.

STUDENTS GO BACK HOME

Only Halfway Successful in Sociological Research in Coal Fields.

Frankfort, Ky., March 29.—(AP)—Halfway successful in their visit to Kentucky, a group of approximately 70 Eastern college and university students today headed home from whence they came last Friday to make a sociological survey of the troubled Southeastern Kentucky coal fields.

Defeated in their intention to visit mining camps in Harlan and Bell counties where labor troubles last year resulted in numerous deaths and where the students claimed a "reign of terror" existed, they succeeded in unfolding to Gov. Ruby Laffoon, of Kentucky, and Gov. Henry Horton, of Tennessee their story of alleged mistreatment by Tennessee and Kentucky officers.

After listening to statements by delegations of the students both governors told them in effect there was nothing they, as chief executives of the bordering states, could do about their case and were advised that the only course for their alleged mistreatment was with the courts.

Visiting Gov. Horton yesterday morning, after traveling from Knoxville, the students continued into Kentucky, arriving at Frankfort last night by way of Louisville.

Gov. Laffoon received their spokesmen in his private office in Frankfort.

MISSOURI WILL SUPPORT SENATOR JAMES A. REED

St. Louis, March 29.—(AP)—Missouri's fifty-four delegates to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago June 27 will "use all honorable means" to obtain the presidential nomination for former United States Senator James A. Reed, but will not be bound to support him "until personally released," as they were at Houston four years ago.

The Democratic State Convention here last night "wholeheartedly and unqualifiedly" endorsed Reed for the presidency, but the convention, other than instructing the delegates to "use all honorable means" in Reed's behalf, made no mention of how long they should support him.

Portland, Maine, March 29.—(AP)—National politics injected itself as the principal contender for the spotlight in the Democratic State Convention here today and tomorrow.

State issues assumed lesser significance in view of a prospective controversy over a pledged or unpledged state delegation to the national convention.

AIRS VIEWS TO NEWSMEN

The President Asserts Passage of Such A Measure Would Irretrievably Impair Effort now Being Made to Improve Conditions; Says it Would Also Undo Effort to Cut Expenses.

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—President Hoover announced formally today he was "absolutely opposed" to the enactment by Congress of additional soldiers' bonus legislation and indicated he would veto such a bill if passed.

The President, speaking at his regular press conference, stated that informal polls of the House of Representatives have "created apprehension in the country" that a further bonus bill calling for an outlay of about $2,000,000,000 would be passed.

Such action, he asserted with great emphasis, would undo "every effort that is being made to reduce government expenditures and balance the budget."

As he spoke to newspapermen gathered about his desk, Mr. Hoover placed increasing emphasis upon his words in reading a formal prepared statement held before him.

Concluding the brief statement, he said sharply: "That is all."

The President's statement follows in full: "Informal polls of the House of Representatives have created apprehension in the country that a further bonus bill of $2,000,000,000 or thereabouts for world war veterans will be passed.

"I wish to state again that I am absolutely opposed to any such legislation.

"I made this position clear at the meeting of the American Legion in Detroit last September 21st and the Legion has consistently supported that position. I do not believe any such legislation can become law.

"Such action would undo every effort that is being made to reduce government expenditures and balance the budget.

"The first duty of every citizen of the United States is to build up and sustain the credit of the United States government.

"Such action would irretrievably undermine it."

THREE WOUNDED IN STILL RAID

Turbo, March 29.—(AP)—Ashley Moore, alleged blockader, was expected to die, Deputy Sheriff Harry Mayo lost an eye, and Deputy R. O. Watson was wounded about the face in a gun battle which followed a still raid near here.

High Pittman, found at the still with Moore, was held as the first of the first shot. He and Deputies Rufus Felton and Charlie Priggen escaped injury in the gunplay.

N. C. ASSOCIATION OF JEWISH WOMEN TO MEET Gastonia, March 28.—At the annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Jewish Women which will convene April 3 and 4 at the Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, a special religious school conference will be held on Sunday, April 3, at 2 p. m., with Mrs. Albert Klein of Greensboro, in charge.

The North Carolina Association of Jewish Men will meet at 4 p. m., Sunday, with J. Shrago of Greensboro, as leader. This session will be of special interest to all Jewish men and women of the state, as timely Jewish topics will be discussed.

The outstanding feature of Sunday's program will be a formal dinner at the Sir Walter Hotel, at which Mrs. Abram White of Charlotte, president of the association, will preside, and Rabbi Morris S. Lazarus of Madison Avenue Temple, Baltimore, will deliver the principal address.

Monday's session will open with breakfast meetings of the Haddassah, the Council and the Sisterhood. A luncheon on that day will be presided over by Mrs. Gustav Lichtenthal of Asheville, and Major Perry of Raleigh, will speak.

SCHOOLS TO TAKE PART IN TRIANGULAR DEBATES Chapel Hill, March 29.—Reports which have been received at the central office here of the High School Debating Union of North Carolina indicate that the stage is set for the twentieth annual series of triangular debates which will be held in 210 participating high schools throughout the state on April 1.

The query which will be discussed in all of the debates is: Resolved, That the United States should adopt a system of compulsory unemployment insurance. The schools winning both sides in the triangular contests will send their teams to Chapel Hill to compete on April 14 and 15 in the final contest for the Aycock Memorial Cup, the trophy donated by the intercollegiate debaters of the university.

Other events besides the final debating contest on the university's annual high school week program will be the twentieth annual interscholastic track meet and the seventeenth annual interscholastic tennis tournament.

The youthful North Carolina debaters have made an intensive study, extending over the past several months, of the entire field of compulsory unemployment insurance in their spring contests this year.

The triangles which have been arranged for the debating contest were announced today by Secretary E. R. Rankin, as follows: Durham, Raleigh, and Fayetteville; Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem; Greenville, New Bern and Washington; Gastonia, Lenoir and Shelby; Goldsboro, Kinross and Rocky Mount; Chapel Hill, Pittsboro, and Sanford; Belmont, Mt. Holly, and Stanley; Cliff side, Ellenboro and Henricetta-Carolene.

Bicentennial Flower Gardens. This is the time of year to think about planting flower gardens. Every back yard, every strip of fertile soil is a potential flower garden and may be made to bloom in honor of the Father of His Country in this Bicentennial year. Even as little as fifty cents worth of seeds will plant a garden anyone may be proud of and which will give joy to hundreds of passersby.

In a nation-wide broadcast at 1:30 p. m., March 17, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, officially opened the Bicentennial flower garden campaign which is sponsored by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. The United States Marine Band orchestra played a program of appropriate music and Congressman Sol Bloom, associate director of the commission, explained the proposed plan which is to have every vacant space all over the country bloom with flowers this summer in honor of the Bicentennial year.

The Garden Clubs of America are co-operating in this plan as well as school garden clubs and other floral organizations. The Bicentennial committee in each state is promoting interest in planting flowers in honor of this great celebration. The U. S. Department of Agriculture is co-operating also and horticultural experts attached to agricultural colleges in each state are doing effective work in promoting this activity, through the schools of each state. In consequence, hundreds of amateur gardeners will plant colonial flowers, annuals and perennials, which were familiar in the time of George Washington and which will bloom each year as a permanent memorial to his memory. The U. S. Commission has secured from the department of agriculture a list of flowers which were familiar in colonial days which will be particularly adaptable to this kind of celebration. For bright sunshine with plenty of fertility and moisture: Over 4 feet high, castor bean, cosmos, sunflowers, sorghum, fetterita, milo, and Indian corn; over 3 feet, Joseph-coat, love-lies-bleeding, feather cockscomb, orange sunflower, prince-cypher, spiderflower and summer-cypress; 30 inches, cornflower, larkspur, scabiosa, scarlet sage, strawflower, and zinnia; 24 inches balsam, calliopsis, China-aster, summer chrysanthemum, cockscomb, coneflower, four-o'clock, galliardia, Aztec marigold, platycodon, poppy, salpiglossis, snapdragon and snow-on-the-mountain; 18 inches, Jobs-tears, mignonette, and stock; 12 inches, calendula, California-poppy, calliopsis, candytuft French marigold, petunia, Drummond phlox, pink and Iceland poppy; under 12 inches, ageratum, cockscomb, lobelia, portulaca, sweet alyssum and verberna.

Of easiest culture under ordinary garden conditions: Over 4 feet, sunflower; about 3 feet, Joseph-coat, love-lies-bleeding, heliopsis and prince-cypher; about 30 inches, cornflower, strawflower and zinnia; about 24 inches, calliopsis, summer chrysanthemum, coneflower, galliardia, marigold, poppy and snow-on-the-mountain; about 18 inches, mignonette; about 12 inches, Cape-marigold, calendula, California poppy, balsam, candytuft, petunia, Drummond phlox, pink, dwarf nasturtium, portulaca and sweet alyssum.

On light fertile soil: Galliardia, marigold, Drummond phlox and portulaca.

On light soil, not too rich: Cockscomb and feather cockscomb.

On poor soil: Love-lies-bleeding, prince-cypher, Joseph-coat, cape marigold, godetia, dwarf nasturtium, portulaca, grass-pink, sweet alyssum, garden balsam and calliopsis.

On land near the seacoast: Plants from the three foregoing lists, depending on the fertility of the soil, together with the castor bean, sunflowers, heliopsis, spider-flower, cornflower, strawflower, zinnia, calliopsis, snow-on-the-mountain, four-o'clock, stock, calendula, California-poppy, petunia and sweet alyssum.

In partial shade: Basketlower, sweet-sultan, clarkie, platycodon, godetia, Drummond phlox, pansy, sweet alyssum, lupine and forget-me-not.

Especially responding to rich soil: Castor bean, scarlet sage, balsam and China-aster.

To cut for everlasting: Rose everlasting, feathered cockscomb, globe-amaranth and strawflower.

Not adapted to the south, except for late and early spring: Salpiglossis, pansy and forget-me-not.

Plants that can be started to advantage in hotbeds and coldframes for early flowering, whether they are to be used for bedding purposes or for cut flowers: Ageratum, China aster, calliopsis, castor bean, calendula, cosmos, cockscomb, chrysanthemum, godetia, lobelia marigold, grass-pink, scarlet sage, spider-flower and verberna.

Some plants that may be sown in beds in the open ground and later transplanted to their permanent locations are ageratum, calendula, calliopsis, China-aster, clarkia, cockscomb, dahlia, galliardia, godetia, lobelia, mignonette, pansy, pink, snapdragon, spider-flower, stock and zinnia. Most of these may be sown earlier in a hotbed or coldframe and thus be made to bloom earlier.

Kitty Frew

By Jane Abbott

SYNOPSIS: Garfield Frew was born to wealth and his wife Kitty to economy, which makes their marriage stormy. Because he will not work, she leaves him and gets a job. Gar's half-brother, David, who is unfriendly to the family, advises her. Gar's mother resents Kitty. But Kitty expects Gar to capitulate.

Chapter I

CONTRABAND
Kitty had hoped Gar would come straight here. And he had not. She put stock away, sooty.

She was the last to leave the building. She stood for a moment outside, irresolute, letting the home-going crowds jostle her. It seemed for a moment not possible to go back to a lonely evening in Ketchum street. And suddenly she was aware of a man standing at the curb, his back to her, a figure so dearly familiar that she gave a quick cry: "Gar!"

She ran to him, calling again. He wheeled about. She saw his face set, dark with a scowl, but she did not heed it, nor the passers-by, "Gar! Oh, Gar!"

"So Tubby wasn't lying."
"Gar, let's go where we can talk," she caught the lapel of his coat, clung to it.

"I'll say we've got something to talk about, Kit! My..." He halted a cruising taxicab. He opened the door and stood stiffly aside to permit her to enter.

"Where to, sir?" asked the driver. "Oh, anywhere! Keep going until I tell you to stop," Gar answered savagely. Then he stepped in and slammed the door shut behind him.

"Now!" he growled, turning to Kitty. But her face, lifted to his, was so alight with love, so warm with longing, that his anger melted. He caught her roughly to him, holding her close; he kissed her.

"Oh, Kit, how I've wanted you." He felt tears against his face and he kissed them from her cheek and her eyes.

"Gar—I've missed you!"
That was all that they could say, then.

But after a little Gar roused. "You kid, you ought to be spanked. What I've gone through hanging on to myself until you got over your sulks. How long have you been in town, anyway?"

"I didn't get to Bridgewater, Ga. Pounded knee—"
"But it was Pound told the mother that you'd gone to your folks!" Kitty grew back a little from his arms. "Pound told your mother that?"

A growing certainty brought a little frown between her brows. Pound had not told Mrs. Frew that—it was that she wanted Gar to believe.

"We'll let the family go on thinking you've been in Bridgewater all this time. I don't intend the mother shall know what you've been up to. Tubby'll keep his mouth shut. I told him to. But where have you been staying, Kit?"

"On Ketchum street, with a friend of David's. I went to David that night, Gar. You see I'd met him once when he came to have dinner with his father. He was nice—"

"Nice!" Gar exploded. Then suspiciously: "How come you didn't speak of it at the time, Kit? That's darn funny."

"I couldn't give him away. I mean, his practice of coming to the house to see his father when the rest of the family were away."

"The devil he did!" He tightened his hold on her, masterfully. "It makes me sick, Kit, thinking of you going round with any of David's rotten crew. But you're through with that business, let me tell you."

"What do you mean, Gar?"
"Mean? I'm going to take care of you. You're just a silly little kid from the country. You don't know anything about the big world. You're a precious sweet—"

He pushed off her hat to bury his face in her hair. His lips moved down to press hard against hers. "I'm going to take you home."

His ardor was burning through her like a flame; his voice, his endearment, the remembered clean smell of his hair, his hands, his cheeks close to hers filled her stammered heart with a passion of adoring. And even while she protested: "Oh, Gar, not there — to your mother's," she clung to him more tightly.

"Gar, darling, I'm sorry about that last night. I was angry — but I didn't mean everything — but I did mean —" She had to struggle against the longing to surrender wholly — "Gar, we'll never be really happy until—"

She closed her eyes that she might not see his face. If he were angry, now, she could not bear it, she must die—

But he did not relax his hold of her.
"Funny little kid. Old Sweet! Have it your way! I'll take that job with Dad tomorrow, if it's going to make you happy. Now, is there anything more to be said?"

"Yes!" She laughed softly. She turned a radiant, flushing face to his.

"You haven't told me that you love me."
"I love you, and more tomorrow and more the next day—"

"David!" Kitty halted David as he was turning away from the Times building several days later.

"I believe you saw me and that you were going to go on without speaking to me," she accused.

"What nonsense — I'm getting near-sighted. Or maybe it's that you look a little dazzling—"

"And then I'll say nonsense to that. And I'm not going to let you go now, either." She put her hand through his arm with a little impelling gesture, lifting a glowing, soft face to his. "Let's have tea somewhere. Let's go back to our apartment—"

"Not there," David answered quickly. "But I'll go anywhere else. What's the matter with that place?" He nodded toward a chintz-hung window.

"Perfect!"
She settled herself comfortably in her chair, regarding David with affectionate interest. "It's been perfect ages since I've seen you. Did you go out to your little house square things up for you?"

He flashed her a quizzical, half-ironical glance. "It disposed of it," he answered shortly.

"David, I've missed you!"
He shook his head. "You can't expect me to believe that, Kitty. Much as I'd like to." He surveyed her, affecting astonishment, under which Kitty grew more radiant.

"You are dazzling," he repeated. "Silly! It's only a new hat and a new coat, and inexpensive ones, at that. But I don't wonder they make you stare — you've only seen me in those disgracefully shabby things I wore on Ketchum street. I suppose I do look like a different creature."

"With a measure of martial bliss to finish the miracle?"
He had not kept a mocking edge from his voice. Kitty's flush deepened.

"I am happy, David, and I've wanted you to know. That's why I was so glad when I ran into you. Everything's going beautifully. Gar is working for his father and he likes it. We've leased a furnished apartment at the Tudor Arms until we're enough ahead to take a house somewhere."

"And you've made a truce with Mrs. Frew?"
Kitty hesitated, disconcerted for a moment by David's implication. "Something like that. She's very charming when we meet. She's far too busy to come to see us — she's been over only once. And I don't think of her any more than I have to. Gar doesn't know what I overheard that day, you see. There didn't seem any use in telling him. I can forget it, now." She spoke triumphantly.

But David's expression made her triumph seem empty.

He wasn't drinking his tea; he pushed the little cakes he had ordered away from him. Kitty noticed that his clothes looked shabbier.

"David, let's talk about you. How's the book going?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Stagnant. If it starts any action it'll be toward a waste basket."

"David! What does Dorcas say to that?"
"I haven't seen Dorcas lately."

She protested again.
"How about yourself? The last time I did see her she asked me what I'd heard of you."

He had countered Kitty effectually. She had seen Dorcas only once since she had left Ketchum street.

"My housekeeping keeps me very busy," she answered, a little primly. "I love it, David. And evenings Gar always wants to do something —" But her defense sounded lame in her own ears; she stopped, a little confused.

"And, we're contraband, anyway," David finished. She gave an impatient little shake of her head. "You always put things so disagreeably, David! Just when everything's particularly nice you say something to spoil it. Is it that you like to offend me? If so I'll go straight away and save you the bother."

HOW LOVE SOLVES OUR PROBLEMS

Seek the best gifts, says Paul. Seek the gift of tongues, seek knowledge, seek eloquence, but with all thy seeking follow after love—sacrificial love. For the love that bears, that endures, that sacrifices unto death is that without which nothing else in the world is worth while. It is the thing that makes life worth living. It is the essence of the real life, the life of the spirit. It's to the spirit what breath is to the body. There is no spiritual life without it. There is no good without it. For God is love; and a thing is good as it approaches the likeness of God.

Paul wants to impress upon our hearts the truth that whatever else we may have, if our hearts are not saturated with this highest form of love, we are nothing. Love is the fulfilling of the law—the law of God, the law of life, the law of all good. Love is the thing that secures for us all that is beautiful in life and preserves us from all that is ugly and makes us wretched. For example, it is patient with the faults of others and keeps us from the misery of worrying over them or other men's weaknesses. It never envies and therefore keeps us from much unpeppable misery. It never thinks too much of self is never puffed up, and, therefore, keeps us safe from the danger of being humiliated. It never behaves itself unseemingly, and therefore saves us from the unhappy consequences of acting the fool. It is not always seeking its own and making us miserably selfish. It is not easily provoked, and therefore saves us from those outbursts of temper that make so many unhappy. It does not suspect men, and so saves us from losing faith in humanity. It never takes delight in iniquity, a sensation which a man never has without becoming more of a fiend than he was before. It finds joy in the progress of the truth. It bears and endures all things. It looks on the best side, and believes in the best that's in men and it never ceases to hope.

God is love, for great is God. How may we come in possession of this great gift? By opening our hearts to God who is love. If we will lay ourselves entirely upon His altar, if we will receive Him wholly into our hearts, He will come in and take possession of us. And when He is in possession, love will be in possession.

How CARDUI Helps Women

"I WAS passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal," says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Qullan, Texas. "I improved very much after I had taken Cardui for a while. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. As each one of them arrived at womanhood, I gave her Cardui for several months. I found they were less nervous and felt stronger. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes. In my home we have all been better for having taken it."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE — WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

Wakes up your liver and sets the world going. Don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a meep movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Rosent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today, one point off to 3 points up on some southern selling coupled with trade buying and covering. Orders were evenly divided. May sold at 6.51.

Fluctuations in the Liverpool market and the rapid advance in exchange, caused some confusion concerning the parity between the two markets, but houses with Liverpool connections were among the buyers here particularly of the late months.

This sent active months 2 to 5 points higher during the early trading, but the bulge met increased offerings, and early fluctuations were irregular with May selling from 6.25 to 6.67 or about 3 to 6 points net lower.

Liverpool cables reported general liquidation and selling on the advance in sterling and said the decline in cotton was restricting business in cotton cloths and yarns at Manchester.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—Gales in Kansas damaging wheat put some backbone into the grain markets late today, and to some extent offset weakness connected with Washington plans to tax exchange transactions.

Injury to Kansas wheat crops was reported to cover a large territory. An additional stimulating price factor was a decree by the government of Greece said to fore-shadow a credit purchase of 7,000,000 bushels of United States Farm Board wheat.

STOCK MARKET

New York, March 29.—(AP)—The securities markets developed a decidedly better tone today, as Wall Street was encouraged by indications that Congress was once more making real progress toward balancing the budget.

Stocks pushed up at the opening, withstood rather impressively a flurry of selling in International Telephone during the morning, and worked slowly higher once more after 12 o'clock trading remained sluggish, however.

By early afternoon gains of a point or two appeared in such issues as U. S. Steel, American Can, Santa Fe, New York Central, American Telephone, North American, Allied Chemical, Drug, Air Reduction, American Tobacco B and Sears Roebuck. In the morning selling, International Telephone dropped 23-8 to a new low at 5, but later recovered more than a point. A few other soft spots appeared at that time, Anaconda and Southern Pacific sagging about a point to new lows.

The more reassuring outlook for a balanced budget was reflected in a letup of pressure against the American dollar in the foreign exchange markets. The French franc slipped back well below the point at which it would be profitable for Paris to take more gold from New York, and the pound sterling reacted a few cents. There was also a lightening of pressure against U. S. Government Bonds.

STILL HOPES TO SAVE BABY

NEW INVENTION AID PRINTING

Semagraph Patented by Charlotte Man Does its Own Reading and Writing.

Charlotte, March 29.—(AP)—A man who dreamed for 15 years of a machine to do the work of a linotype operator today read in his home newspaper the statement of experts that he had made the greatest contribution to the printing business since the linotype itself was introduced.

It is called the semagraph—literally, a machine that reads and writes. The reading is a mystery to the layman, and the writing is in the form of ordinary lines of type, thousands of which make up the daily newspaper.

Burford L. Green, who put on his Sunday clothes yesterday to demonstrate it to newspaper and Press Association men from many places, is the man who had the dream which Curtis B. Johnson, publisher of the Charlotte Observer, made come true with financial backing.

Green's invention is really two inventions. One of them, an electric typewriter, solved the problem of spacing which up until now has hindered every effort at electrical linotype operation. On this machine the reporter or copy preparer writes the story. Directly under each letter is a symbol. A scale tells exactly when a line of a given size of type has been "written." If the line has too few letters, a special key carries the carriage back, and a symbol "informs" the mystic linotype keyboard that each ordinary space bar, or each letter must have a thin space inserted in addition.

This copy is then ready for the typesetting machine—linotype or intertype—inserted under a tiny point of light, it is penetrated exactly at each dot of the symbol assembly below each letter. A photo-electric cell—the electric eye of modern science—registers the light impulse and transmits it to a magnetic light relay which trips the releases of mats just as now by the human hand.

It is estimated that one man will be able to handle four linotype machines after installation of the new attachment. His sole duties will be to insert copy, unload type, and keep the machine in repair as does the ordinary composing room machinist.

Green says every safety device possible has been installed on the machine when breakdowns in the intricate machinery have been known to occur. All of these devices register immediately with the "Mechanical operator" stopping it and turning on a red light over the machine to attract the attention of the attendant.

Green began studying the possibilities of such a machine years ago—even before the linotype had reached its modern development. He built a small electrically operated machine, operating on a system similar to the common telegraph office teleprinter. Too much wiring, with consequent short circuits, and special difficulties caused him to discard this idea.

Another machine was built. It also failed to please, and then with the money of Mr. Johnson and the mechanical advice of John P. White and the research efforts of engineers throughout his country and Germany in an effort to find a speedy enough relay for the electric eye, the present machine, entirely mechanical except for the photo-electric device, was developed.

REBEL TROOPS PUSH FIGHTING (Continued from Page One) In Manchuria under tutelage of the Japanese, are led by General Li Hai-Tsing. They apparently had defeated the regular troops of Governor Hsi Hsia outside the town of Nungun which was reported on the verge of surrender. The small Japanese detachments sent from here radioed for help, saying they had suffered heavy casualties in the fighting.

The rebels have established their headquarters at Fu-Yu and are in control of the territory south of there as far as Nungun.

The belief that Nungun had fallen was strengthened when the radio communication with Japanese headquarters became silent at 2:30 p. m. An infantry regiment under Colonel Oshima prepared this evening to enter at Harbin for the battle zone.

The staff of the Japanese branch consulate at Nungun and the remainder of the Japanese residents of the city were believed to have escaped before the presumed occupation by the Chinese.

The last message received said a band of Japanese civilians, with the aid of air bombers, was blasting a path through the surrounding rebel lines in the hope of proceeding eastward to the Yeamen, a station on the Chinese Eastern railway, fifty miles north of here. It was not known whether small detachments of Japanese police and soldiers, previously sent to Nungun, were remaining in the city or had withdrawn with the civilians.

BANKER DIES AT HIGH POINT

(Continued from Page One) He launched his business career in 1876 as a fruit tree salesman. Coming to High Point in 1880, he married Miss Bertha Snow, daughter of Captain W. H. Snow, High Point's founder, and began the manufacture of shuttle blocks for textile mills. At that time High Point had a population of 700 people.

The shuttle block business gradually expanded until Mr. Cox was doing a large export business to the British, Germany, Italy and Russia. He built new plants in North Carolina and one near Morehead, Miss.

In 1891 he founded the Commercial National Bank, and was its president until recent financial stringency forced it to close, a blow from which he did not recover.

Mr. Cox was formerly treasurer of the American Bankers Association, a member of its council for 15 years and president of its national bankers division for one year. In 1908 he ran for governor on the Republican ticket.

He was a member of the board of trustees of the Duke Endowment and of Guilford College; president and director of the High Point Savings and Trust Company; vice-president of the Tomlinson Chair Company of the Colonial Life Insurance Company of High Point; vice-president of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of Greensboro; vice-president of the Atlantic Stock Land Bank of Raleigh; vice-president of the Carolina Mortgage Company of Raleigh; a director of the M. C. Cline store chain, of New York; a director of the Virginia Trust Company, of Richmond; a director of the Reading Gap Hotel company; and of the High Point, Randolph, Ashe and Southern Railroads.

STUDENTS GO BACK HOME

(Continued from Page One) the presence of state officials and newspapermen. After listening to their claims that they were treated harshly, several of their group injured and their constitutional rights denied by officers who turned them back three times at the Bell county border line, the government told them they were "applying to the wrong person."

"I do not even have authority to issue a warrant," the chief executive said, "but the courts are open to you."

STORMS TAKE TOLL OF LIFE

Cold rain kept all but 11,000 youngsters from the egg-rolling on the White House lawn. Last year there were 30,000. At Bedford, N. Y., four persons were drowned when an automobile, its driver blinded by sleet, plunged into a lake. At Centerville, Md., the town hall lost part of its roof.

DEAL TALKS TO ROTARIANS

A new member, J. B. Bullard, was welcomed into the club.

The inter-city meeting to be held here April 14 was discussed and it was generally agreed that every effort would be made to make this one of the most outstanding gatherings of the kind held in this part of the state in years.

About twenty clubs from this part of the state were expected to be represented. Although the program has not been completed, it was tentatively outlined at a meeting the latter part of last week. It calls for an address of the district governor and several entertainment features for wives of the visiting Rotarians.

Davenport, Iowa, March 29.—(AP)—The State Democratic Convention opens today with State Chairman R. P. Mitchell of Fort Dodge predicting victory for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. Belief that the 26 Iowa votes in the National Democratic Convention in June would be pledged to Roosevelt was expressed by Mitchell last night after state party chiefs concluded a preliminary conference.

Meanwhile the forces of Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, who admittedly do not want the Iowa delegation instructed and have predicted the state convention would not take issue between Roosevelt and Murray, opened a last minute offensive.

ROOSEVELT IS PUZZLED OVER SMITH'S ACTION

James Roosevelt took up the burden for his father when Mayor Curley, director of the Massachusetts campaign for Roosevelt, was prevented by illness from attending the rallies. Last night's meeting marked the beginning of an intensive drive which the Roosevelt supporters hope will pledge the Bay State's 36 convention votes to the New York governor at the primary April 26.

Meanwhile, Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic state committee and a leader of the Smith organization in Massachusetts, contributed the only counter move to the Roosevelt activity with the terse comment: "They (the Roosevelt group) are campaigning for us by getting the Smith voters all worked."

SEES DANGER FROM BANKING REVISION BILL

Payne, chairman of the board of the Auburn-Cayuga National Bank and Trust Company, Auburn, N. Y., and a former president of the New York Bankers' Association, said other bankers in his estimation, would be hampered.

Payne was immediately accused by Senator Bulky (D., Ohio) of speaking in "vague generalities."

Earlier the bill had been described by Thomas H. Preston, Chattanooga, Tenn., banker, as containing "many constructive features," although he criticized some of its provisions.

He objected to some provisions, including one increasing the amount of reserves which Federal Reserve member banks must maintain. This, he said, would cost his institution about $24,000 a year and is not needed.

Preston also expressed the view that too great a financial burden would be placed on member banks under the provision for a liquidating corporation to aid depositors of closed banks, as it is now written.

The bill is designed primarily to strengthen the country's banks.

NEW RUPTURE FACES THE PEACE CONFERENCE

"Mr. Quo," the statement said, "has unnecessarily opposed the Japanese proposals of a military nature, thereby greatly impairing the progress of the conference. We wonder if he is not trying to avoid responsibility on the pretext of opposition to the Japanese proposals from the Chinese people."

The proposals to which this statement referred were those regarding the method of withdrawing troops of both sides still in the field.

The statement asserted that Quo had emphasized on several occasions that the peace parley is confined principally to such military matters as formal cessation of hostilities and the withdrawal of troops. It is therefore "singularly humorous," said the spokesman, that the Chinese representative should criticize the selection of General Kenkichi Uryeda as the chief Japanese delegate.

"Japan never has proposed to modify its basic agreement with China," the statement said, "but it appears now that Mr. Quo is trying to upset the very foundation of that agreement. He is trying to make it possible for Chinese soldiers to occupy immediately such areas as are to be evacuated by Japanese troops. Such a plan may be recognized as a willful invitation to a recurrence of the unfortunate incidents in and around Shanghai.

He has demanded the immediate withdrawal of the Japanese forces to the international settlement. Any well-informed person knows that is a physical impossibility in view of the number and extensive equipment of the Japanese forces.

Those forces are in China to safeguard Japanese lives and property but China is demanding that the troops be withdrawn without any provision for such safeguard. China is demanding even that we designate a time limit for such a withdrawal, but without such security.
