Many Democrats Accept Roosevelt Nomination As Accomplished Fact

OPPOSITION SWEEP ASIDE

Opponents Surprised Not Only By the Strength of New Yorker, But by Their Own Weakness; Major Reliances of Combination Against Roosevelt Are Fading One by One

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—The presidential candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt continues to sweep all obstacles aside with such spectacular regularity that many Democrats now speak of his nomination as an accomplished fact.

Some still hope for his defeat, but they concede that only an extraordinary reversal of form or a desperate stand in the convention can stop him.

The opposition has been surprised not only by his strength, but by their own weakness. The major reliances of the combination against him are fading one by one.

During the past week, in the New York and Wisconsin primaries, Governor Roosevelt has flattened out still further the hopes of those few leaders who left that Alfred E. Smith might stop the procession.

One more favorite son, Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, has stepped aside to leave a delegation unpledged but friendly to Roosevelt. A tactical victory, at least, was won by selection of Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky a Roosevelt man, as the national convention keynoter.

The defeat of Smith successively in New Hampshire, Minnesota, Maine, Wisconsin, and the single contested New York district, has combined with a recession of activity on behalf of Speaker John Garner, the other great hope of the step-Roosevelt movement.

Nor have the fortunes of any favorite son been benefitted materially. In fact, except for one or two delegates, no candidate but Roosevelt has won any support at all outside his home state. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma has one in North Dakota, and Smith probably has one in Wisconsin.

Of the 338 delegates chosen thus far, 174 are counted definitely for Roosevelt. Murray has 23, James A. Reed of Missouri, 36, Smith probably 1. All the remaining 104 are in doubt, but 84 of them belong to New York, generally expected to go pro-Roosevelt to Roosevelt.

On the basis of this showing, and with other victories assured for the near future, the Roosevelt managers are sounding the bandwagon call with great effect in the territory still in dispute. The opposition battles on, with its back to the wall, as its disappointments multiply.

Meantime, the Republican supporters of President Hoover are heartened tremendously by the returns from their party's primary in Wisconsin. The figures still are incomplete, but there appears no doubt the administration forces have made considerable gains the LaFollette Insurgents. Hoover may, in the end, have a majority of the delegation.

Of course, the president does not need Wisconsin support to get the nomination. To date he has 231 of the 269 Republican delegates selected, and a renomination is assured. But the vote of confidence given him in this northwestern state of all others, is cheering to Republican hearts which have been saddened by dark prophecies of party losses in the election this fall.

The Wisconsin vote is important just in so far as it may be taken as an index to the Hoover strength elsewhere. Republican party leaders have insisted all along that however low the president's stock might go, a rally would come before election. They hope the Wisconsin upturn means that the rally is definitely on the way.

REGISTRATION BOOKS OPENED

City Prepares for Aldermanic Election to Be Held on Monday, May 2

Books for the registration of voters in the aldermanic election to be held here May 2 were thrown open today. The books will remain open for twenty days in various drug stores of the city, and persons who have recently moved to Greenville and those who have changed wards since the last election will be required to register.

The election will be held for the purpose of electing five aldermen to serve for the usual period of one year. Three other members of the board are elected for terms of two years and will not be voted upon during the forthcoming contest.

Books for the registration of candidates will close two days prior to election, and those desiring to enter the race from either ward are urged to get busy and register at once.

It was stated that only three persons had registered up to the present time, one an incumbent and the other two new candidates attempting to upset the incumbent of old members.

Aldermen completed the setting up of machinery for the election last night. Votes will be cast under the Australian ballot system at the courthouse and booths will be provided for the convenience of voters and in compliance with state legislation.

Only minor interest so far has been centered around the contest, but it was expected this would pick up steam as the date of balloting draws nearer. The populace has its attention centered largely on (Continued on page six)

Grisly Extortion Plot Investigated By Police

Cleveland, April 8.—(AP)—A grisly extortion plot, in which a finger hacked from a human hand was sent to a prominent Cleveland man as a terrifying warning, was investigated today by detectives.

The man who received the gruesome threat was John B. Wilberding, 59, president of two building and loan companies, former member of the London, Ohio, prison commission, and former chairman of the Cleveland boxing commission.

Accompanying the finger, left in Wilberding's mailbox, was a demand that he pay $3,000 to a messenger of the extortionist.

Whether the finger was severed from a dead or living body will be learned after an examination by experts at Western Reserve University. It had been cut and torn from the left hand of an adult, then wrapped in an envelope for delivery.

Wilberding received a demand for $2,000 on March 29, accompanied by a threat of death if he failed to comply. The next day, the extortionist telephoned to ask if the letter was received.

Pretending it had not been received, Wilberding replied: "What letter?"

"You are double-crossing me and you'll pay for it," the other man (Continued on page six)

THOUSAND MEN TAKE PART IN GIANT PARADE

Petitions Containing 2,500,000,000 Signatures Presented to Congress Members

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—Marching behind bands, over a thousand veterans went to the capitol today with a truckload of petitions urging cash payment of the bonus and were promised by majority spokesmen of the House and Senate their plea would receive consideration.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, sponsors of the demonstration, said there were 2,500,000 signatures on the petitions delivered in 20 packing cases.

They were delivered to Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, Small of New York, the Republican leader, and Senator McNary of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, who were grouped on the capitol steps with other members from both branches of Congress.

President Hoover a few days ago urged that legislation for payment of the bonus be not passed at this time and Henry L. Stevens, national commander of the American Legion, also has opposed it.

SEEKS TO AID RELIEF DRIVE

Governor Roosevelt Evolves Plan for "Putting Country Back on its Feet"

Albany, N. Y., April 8.—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt plans to lay before the country a definite program which he believes would put it back on its feet economically.

The first three points of this program he explained in part last night. They were:

Restore the purchasing power of the farming half of the country. Aid the small banks, and through them the home owners and farm owners faced with mortgage foreclosures, by "at least as much" as the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction program for the "big banks, the railroads and the corporations," which he said did not reach the "little fellow."

Revise "this foolish tariff of ours" to stimulate trade by permitting the other nations to sell to us so they will have funds to buy in return, creating demand to put idle mills to work.

The governor said these were "only part of ten or a dozen vital factors" needed to restore prosperity. He is expected to take up other parts of his program in later addresses. He spoke over the radio last night.

CHILE PLACED UNDER SIEGE

President Takes Drastic Action to Stop Political Disorders in Country

(Associated Press Correspondent) BY MAROLD P. BRAMAN

Santiago, Chile, April 8.—(AP)—President Juan Esteban Montero, backed by the congress, declared a state of siege through Chile today.

He struck swiftly at political opponents whom he charged with responsibility for a stirring day yesterday which began with a run on the National Bank and ended with a new cabinet.

Immediately after the congress approved his request for martial law early this morning the president issued a manifesto in which he denounced an alleged conspiracy of opponents of the government to undermine the administration, and seize power.

The cabinet resigned last night after a serious run on the Central Bank of Chile and a defeat in Congress for the president's plan for solving the country's financial troubles.

The president immediately appointed Victor Robles, former member of the Chamber of Deputies and one of his closest advisers in the Radical party, to form a new cabinet. Robles completed his list shortly before midnight, with himself as minister of interior. Five of the members of the old cabinet appeared on the new list.

Abettors of opponents, Senator Montero said in his manifesto, had attempted to work up sentiment among the unemployed and poorer classes for overthrowing the government. He indicated this was the run on the bank yesterday when the people crowded in, demanding silver coin.

Although they were not mentioned by name, the manifesto indicated it was directed at followers of former President Carlos Ibanez whose regime was overthrown last year and who is now in exile.

SELECTION OF JURY FINISHED AT HONOLULU

Court Adjourns Until Monday as Last Juror is Accepted in Murder Case

By WILLIAM H. EWING

Honolulu, April 8.—(AP)—It is barely possible the world may never know who killed Joseph Kahanahawai, a reliable source revealed today following selection of a jury to try Mrs. Granville Porteous, eastern society woman, and three naval men on charges of lynching the young Hawaiian.

This source revealed that not even Clarence Darrow, gray-haired leader of the defense, was certain how far he would go in attacking the second degree murder case against his clients.

However, two alienists who figured in sensational murder trials of the south-west United States, were here today to confer with Darrow, indicating that the defense is prepared, if necessary, to have one of the four accused admit the shooting and plead emotional insanity. Only if forced to this last resort is the defense expected to reveal one of the quartet as the slayer of Kahanahawai.

Wall Street Bankers Combat Rumors Affecting America on Foreign Markets

New York, April 8.—(AP)—Wall street international bankers said today that they would leave no stone unturned in their effort to protect the American dollar in foreign money markets against the insidious spread of false rumors, such as the rumor published yesterday in Paris that a large American bank had suspended payments.

While they were not prepared to say that an organized attack had been instituted against the dollar, using false propaganda for its ammunition, they did not hesitate to express their irritation over the (Continued on page three)

Several Pitt County Men Leave for Federal Prisons in Ohio and Georgia

Fourteen members of the illicit whiskey traffic captured by federal officers in a series of raids in this community the last two months today were on their way to federal penitentiaries in Ohio and Georgia following conviction in Federal court at Washington this week.

Sentences ranged all the way from three years to three months and the majority of defendants were white.

Pitt stirred the heard of officers charged with the responsibility of delivering the prisoners to the prisons to which they were assigned because of the fact that some of them were fathers of large families and left behind their wives and several children. The court gave each of the men today to make preparations for serving their terms, and many a heart-stricken scene was enacted as they took their departure.

Some of the prisoners have been cut under bond following preliminary hearing before U. S. Commissioner Bowman, and the remainder were held in jail pending final hearing.

These sentenced were: Lee Hardy, a year and a day at Atlanta; Curtis Peterson, a year and a day at Chillicothe, Ohio; A. C. Campbell, a year and a day at Atlanta; Joe Clinton and John Taylor, colored, three months in jail; Johnnie Cromwell, a year and (Continued on page three)

Aldermen Complete Machinery for Aldermanic Contest Here May 2

The Board of Aldermen completed setting up machinery for the aldermanic election to be held here May 2 at the regular monthly meeting at the city hall last night.

Several other matters of business were completed during the session.

Mrs. Alex Viola, J. W. Foley and Mrs. Suzie Fleming were appointed poll holders and they will be given an assistant should this be found necessary.

The election will be held at the courthouse and the citizenship will have the privilege of voting on one ward from each of the five wards. Other machinery in connection with the election was set up at a previous meeting.

Mayer R. C. Flanagan was instructed to have the city attorney begin suit against delinquent taxpayers and the city clerk was advised to advertise 1931 delinquent taxes during the month of May.

SHOWDOWN ON ECONOMY EXPECTED AT CONFERENCE

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—Seated at the head of his cabinet table, President Hoover today armed himself with new facts upon which to base his meeting tomorrow with the House economy commission in a unique move toward balancing the budget.

The affair consisted of a narrow piece of cardboard, printed in various colors and bearing upon its edges the names of various government divisions and figures running (Continued on page six)

STEVENS TO BE TAKEN TO TASK

Indignation Meeting Called at the Court House Tomorrow Night at 7:30 to Protest Against National Commander's Opposition to Cash Payment of Compensation; Former Service Men and Public Asked to Attend

Members of Pitt County Post of the American Legion donned their "fighting clothes" today and went after Henry Stevens, of Warsaw, national Legion commander, for his support of President Hoover's opposition to the Patman bill providing for cash payment of veterans' compensation certificates.

Among the first in the country to draft resolutions favoring the bill introduced in Congress by Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, office of the local post today called an indignation meeting at the court house for tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock to register protest and denounce the action of the national commander.

All members of the post, former service men and the public were invited to attend and take part in registering Pitt county's disapproval of the effort to deny payment of funds which the service men fought for in the bloody struggle against German autocracy.

That Stevens—a product of North Carolina and leader of the unnumbered thousands who threw all of their weight on the side of democracy in the great world conflict—should have turned his back on his men at a time when they were fighting for economic relief is more than members of the post are able to comprehend, and will be fighting blood aroused they plan to do everything possible to counteract any sentiment which the statement of the national commander has created.

In a statement issued to the press Wednesday, Stevens made the assertion that only 23 posts out of 10,000 in the country had "kicked over" by endorsing the legislation sponsored by Representative Patman providing for the payment of over two billions of dollars. He also asserted "that Legionnaires recognize that as much as they would like to have the money, the government is not in position to pay it."

Legionnaires declare the statement is not representative of the sentiment of the hundreds of posts throughout the country, and that it would be refuted by the concerted movement which will be brought to bear now that the members have been awakened to the attempt to defeat their cause.

If Congress is able to release millions in loans to railroads and other large corporations, it should find a way to pay an honest debt to men who fought that the nation might hold its present enviable position in the eyes of the world, it was declared.

It was also argued that the release of this enormous sum of money would aid in the recovery of the country from the period of depression which has swept over virtually every hamlet and city with crushing effect.

The money placed in the hands of the former soldiers would find its way into regular channels of trade and everybody would find conditions better than they are at present.

Instead of embarrassing the government, the plan of Representative Patman would be a boost to the economic campaign recently inaugurated by President Hoover, it was believed, and thousands of men who offered their blood as a sacrifice on the country's altar would be able to alleviate the suffering and misery of their families until better times roll around.

It is the first time such pronounced dissatisfaction has been (Continued on page five)

AWAIT PARLEY IN BABY CASE

Norfolk Intermediaries Expect to Confer with the Kidnappers Again Today

Hopewell, N. J., April 8.—(AP)—Three intermediaries seeking the kidnapped Lindbergh baby awaited a new summons to parley today, while in Hopewell optimism ebbed.

The three—Rear Admiral Guy H. Burgess, John H. Curtis and the Rev. H. Dobson-Pearce, all of Norfolk—have not abandoned hope of getting Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. back through a person who approached them and represented himself as a go-between for the kidnapers.

All three were in Norfolk, pursuing a watchful waiting policy, while police who expressed skepticism about that angle of the search went on with the endless task of checking and re-checking leads. (Continued on page five)

BASEBALL TO MOVE MILLIONS OF SIMOLEONS

New York, April 8.—(AP)—Major league baseball, even if it draws no better than last year, figures to put between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 into circulation during the 1932 campaign.

country's business, close to $1,000,000, under the proposed new tax bill, will be collected by the sixteen National and American league clubs for the benefit of the United States Treasury.

Despite its proportions and well-established organization, the big league game as a whole will be lucky to break even in 1932. Nine of the sixteen clubs finished "in the red" last year. The majority this season again will likely have difficulty keeping off the financial shoals, despite economies effected by the reduction of salaries and the player limit.

Only three clubs can count on doing a million-dollar business—the New York Yankees and Giants and the Chicago Cubs. Brooklyn was in this class two years ago and is one of the biggest potential money-makers in either circuit but the Flatbush folks are fickle.

Cincinnati and Detroit, two clubs that were hit hard at the "gate" last season, hope to do much better as a result of energetic measures taken to make them more conspicuous in the pennant races. The world champion Cardinals don't make much, even when they win.

All the magnates are hoping there will be no duplication of the one-sided finishes of 1931. Attendance last September fell off like the leaves of Autumn when the Athletics and Cardinals ran away from the pack.

Few realize the heavy costs involved in operating a major league baseball enterprise or the difficulties of most clubs in trying to balance their budgets. The sport is subject to the caprices of the crowd as well as the weather, with no method of controlling either element.

The payrolls alone for the two leagues run between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 in the aggregate. The players account for at least 80 per cent of this. Each club maintains a large staff of employees, many of them the year round. In addition each contributes generously to the two league organizations, as well as to the advisory council, headed by K. M. Landis, $65,000-a-year commissioner.

Nowadays the big league athletes travel in pullmans and live at the best hotels. Hotel bills for a season, per club, run from around $13,000 to $17,000. The railroad expenses are more than twice as heavy. The National league's railroad costs alone amounted to $300,000 in 1931 and the American league's expenses in this respect were no less. Thus it costs at least $50,000 on the average, per club, to transport and board the athletes.

Taxes, chain-store systems, scouting parties and training expenses combine to eat up close to another $1,000,000. It costs at least $200 a day, on the average, just to open a big league park.

SPORT TALK

Columbus, O., April 8.—(AP)—The New York Yankees checked up on individual batting averages today and discovered Sammy Byrd, reserve outfielder, was the leading hitter of the spring training campaign.

Byrd set up an average of .593 compared with 351 for Babe Ruth and 342 for Frank Crosetti.

Chattanooga scored three runs off Pete Jablonowski in the first three innings, yesterday, but was helpless before the Sarge and Lefty and the trio won 4 to 3.

PARADE ON IN PIEDMONT

Wilmington, N. C.—(AP)—Hal Weaver had a thing or two to tell his Wilmington Pirates today about bunting hits. They got 12 safe hits in an exhibition game with Williamsport (N. Y.-Pa. L.) yesterday, but lost 5 to 4 although the Pirate hurlers limited the Grays to five hits.

Asheville, N. C.—(AP)—Irving Cohen, big right handed pitcher, may get a regular place on Asheville's pitching staff. He looked good in a practice game which the regulars won from the Yannisians 10-3 yesterday.

Raleigh, N. C.—(AP)—A sharp fight has developed for the first base job with the Caps. Art Sprouse, former University of North Carolina captain, and Babe Spotts, a former Washington and Lee athlete, are bidding for the place.

HEELS BEGIN VIRGINIA TILT

Charlotte, April 8.—(AP)—North Carolina's Tar Heels invaded the Old Dominion today for the first of the annual three game series with the University of Virginia's baseball team.

With victories in their first two starts of the season, the Tar Heels had high hopes of turning back the Cavaliers and adding another game to their credit in the Tri-State League.

From Charlottesville, scene of today's game, the Tar Heels will go to College Park, Md., to meet Maryland tomorrow.

Delaware University is finding the North Carolina baseball teams tough. The Easter nine took it on the chin from Duke Wednesday and yesterday were trimmed 11 to 3 by Wake Forest. The Catawba Indians were hosts to Delaware at Salisbury today.

Warming up for Delaware, the Indians played Davidson yesterday and lost a slugging match 18-10. Lenoir-Rhyne played steady ball to edge out the Marine nine at Paris Island, S. C., 3-2.

After losing successive matches to Emory, Ga. Tech, and Georgia, Davidson's golfers hit their stride yesterday and won all matches to defeat Furman 10-0.

The Duke and University freshmen ushered in the outdoor track season with a meet at Chapel Hill today.

By WARE TORREY
New York—Tragedy, futility and disappointment stalk through the pages of "Three Loves," by A. J. Cronin, author of "Hatter's Castle." It is the story of Lucy Moore a Scottish woman, whose love was as intense that it destroyed her happiness and finally even her life.

Lucy loved her husband to the point of obsession. When she thought he was about to desert her she set out in mad haste to prevent it, and thereby caused his death.

Immediately she transferred her fanatical love to her son. She worked at degrading jobs, lived in abject poverty, eschewed all enjoyment or life to enable a none too appreciative son to become educated as a physician. When the goal was in sight, Lucy's son delivered the crowning disappointment of her life and she turned to religion for solace.

The prospect of devoting the rest of her life to serving God brought new enthusiasm to Lucy and she entered a nunnery. Here again her consuming emotions would not compromise with temporal exigencies, and Lucy left the convent, a broken, defeated woman.

As A Reporter Sees Life

Georgette Carneal, as a reporter for Baltimore and New York newspapers, studied life in those more realistic of classrooms—the morgue and police court.

A resulting savage and cynical outlook on life is reflected in her first novel, "The Great Day," a character study of a group of men and women who seek fortune thru exploiting tabloid and "true story" journalism.

Miss Carneal, who also is the biographer of Lee de Forest in "The Great Day," has written in style almost an American "Point Counter Point."

New York, which furnishes constant challenge to authors who write in the grand scale, is the back ground of "Passing Strangers," Felix Riesenbergs new novel.

Riesenbergs struggles to present the manifold aspects of metropolitan life by the introduction of a large cast of characters, "the kind of people you meet in the streets."

On Judging.

It has been said that a judgment is the mental act by which one thing is affirmed or denied of another. Always, judging is merely a matter of opinion—but sometimes is biased because of partiality, inexperience, obligation, or lack of courtesy. Every judge should possess four qualities: to hear courteously, to consider carefully and soberly, to answer wisely, and to decide impartially; for, "a corrupt judge is not qualified to inquire into the truth." But, why evidence pervarication? Judges are but human, and like other men they are swayed by prejudices. This whatever name we give it, is in reality corruption.

In every walk of life, a judgment is but an opinion—better judges having better opinions. A baseball pitcher throws the ball hoping it will curve and pass directly over the plate; the batter swings hoping he will swing the "horseshoe" high over centerfielder's head. It is, in both cases, a matter of judgment—and this opinion. But, we have seen pitchers walk men—and batters "fan out."

"Rather had I to be judged than to be judge." A judge has by no means an easy job, but rather an extremely difficult one. The judgment passed by him may be compared to a scale, where the most ordinary machine is sufficient to weigh pounds and ounces; but the most elaborate alone can point out the grams and fractions thereof, and distinguish the smallest differences of weight. Is this an easy task? When a competent impartial judge delivers his decision, let us not hastily criticize him or his opinion; for surely he did not do so without careful consideration.

But, what do I know about judgments? Anything I say is but my judgment on judging—

Individuality.

James Russell Lowell once said, "Insist on yourself—never imitate!" Lou Gehrig says, "Be yourself." If we take anyone's advice, why not that? These quotations are given by two men—vastly different in respect to occupation and outlook upon life, yet both became "successes" in their own fields. Lowell, a poet; Gehrig a professional athlete.

We—the majority of us—do not copy well. We are all different, so why should one attempt to copy another? It merely causes confusion and cramps our style. Often times the result is flat and disgusting. For what is more disgusting than a copied essay? The copying is so obvious—nothing behind it. If we could put our personality into our work, the result would be amazing. There is nothing more kaleidoscopic than human character. The most enduring of all paintings are portraits. Humanity's multifarious personalities are always different, always changing. And it is possible to make our work reflect our personality.

CHARLES SHURT—10.

On Being Contrary.

All of us, it seems, are born with that desire to be more or less different. Being different appears to give us the uplift or ego which our being necessarily desires. Along with those who desire to be different, however, there is always one who seems to have a desire to be eternally contrary for purely superficial and selfish reasons.

In reality, we make no friends by disagreeing when someone pays a compliment to the neighbor's new baby, by picking petty arguments or by blarneying announcing that "George Washington—or any other celebrated hero, was all wet." Such action, though it puts us in the eyes of our listeners, breeds disgust rather than respect. Many times when we attack cherished opinions and appear to differ even in minor details, our desire to be heard is even more contrary to our real self.

We think, personally, that being different is very plausible in that variety is the spice of life. But being habitually contrary is quite a silly, childish, and disgusting habit—if one allows it to become a habit. To be contrary for the pure sake of argument is another superficial and selfish aim.

Being contrary for the sake of being contrary is sickening, although taking the opposite side for conscientious, genuine reasons is quite an admirable quality.

Juniors Discuss Banquet

Tuesday morning, during the home room period, the Junior class met and discussed the Junior-Senior banquet, which will be given sometime in May. The meeting was conducted by President Slav aided by Miss Horne and Mrs. Herring. It was decided that ten members of the sophomore class should attend the banquet, as they will perhaps graduate next year. Nothing definite was decided as to the nature of the banquet, but suggestions were freely given.

The following banquet committee was appointed by the president to investigate details concerning the banquet and give a report to the entire class: Laurine Skinner, Virginia Pierce, Harold Sugg, George Willard, Helen Sawyer, Frank Wooten, Carolyn Hamrie, Naomi Gaskins, Martha Seville, Mildred Herring, and Mattie More Gaylord.

Members of the faculty to work with the committee are: Miss Thomas, Miss Maddocks, Miss Horne, Miss Rogers, and Miss Powell.

Golf Team Organized

The Greenville high school has assembled a golf team composed of seven boys, who in the future, with others will uphold Greenville's reputation in the realm of golf. This team is composed of Frank Park, manager; Howard Sumner, Billy McLean, Thornton Meeks, Neal Herrin, Ben Herring, and Louis S. Ficklen will play their first match with a similar team from Goldsboro, in Goldsboro Saturday morning.

This is the first time Greenville has ever had a golf team, and this one is largely due to the efforts and interest of Mrs. Luter Herring. The high school is looking forward eagerly to the future of this new interplay.

Musical Program Rendered

The chapel program which was presented Friday morning at 10:40 was one of the most interesting ever given by the Greenville high school. It was given by the boys' and girls' voice clubs under direction of Miss Ona Shandler and the band and orchestra under direction of Mr. Roberson. This program was not only given as a chapel program but as a practice for the musical department of the Greenville high school which will enter the district contest to be given here on Saturday, April 16, to determine the winner of this district.

The following is the program as presented:

"The Long Day Closes," by mixed chorus.

"Fairy Folk," by Girls Glee club.

"Blow High, Blow Low," by Boys' Glee club.

"I Passed By Your Window," by Boys' Quartet, Ben Herring, George Willard, James Dees, Preston Smith.

"Four Leaf Clover," mixed quartet, by Dan Wright.

"Dreaming," Girls Trio, Lucy James, Martha Seville, Helen Sawyer.

"Come Unto Him," from "Messiah," soprano solo, Lucy James.

"Ritornello," alto solo, by Elizabeth Ferguson.

"Smugglers," bass solo, by Preston Smith.

"The Two Grenadiers," baritone solo by James Dees.

"Come to Market, Johnny," unchanged voice solo, by James Simpson.

"Romance," clarinet solo by Harold Sugg.

Trombone solo, by Ben Herring.

With a musical program of this calibre it is expected that Greenville will again this year win further honors in music.

While the clocks were out of order, the students worked by "standard straight bugle time." Why not equip your clock with a bugle? (It's much more effective—see Ben.)

Harold sez he can even remember when the faculty came to all our athletic games, when pep songs were sung, and when we were told to get the Ole School Spirit. Of course Harold has always had a taste for ancient history—or perhaps he may like to drink of "them days that are gone forever."

Mr. Curtis has announced twice that he has had contact with the person he believes to be acting for the kidnapers, and that he was assured the baby was well. Today he was awaiting a call for another secret rendezvous. Admiral Burroughs said Col. Lindbergh had asked the Norfolk men to continue their efforts.

Developments were so scarce a new white gale on the Lindbergh property was the hottest news. It was put up after a motorist drove right in with a suggestion for the colonel.

State troopers escorted him away from there.

SELECTION OF JURY FINISHED

following the unexpected completion of the jury yesterday. The jury is preponderantly caucasian, an unusual circumstance for this mid-Pacific meeting place of east and west.

Nevertheless it contains representatives of six nationalities or races—five of American descent, three Chinese, one Dane, one Portuguese, one German and a Hawaiian.

The jury is the result of four days of maneuvering between Darrow, who tried to seat as many Anglo-Saxons as possible, and Prosecutor John C. Kelly, whose leanings were towards Orientals and Hawaiians. They examined 93 veniremen.

The ultimate selection was far better than the defense expected. Darrow having predicted not more than three Anglo-Saxons would be seated.

He and others of the defense declined to comment upon the arrival of the two alienists last night on the liner Malolo. The two are Dr. Edward Huntington Williams and Dr. James Orison, both of Los Angeles. They figured in the trial several years ago of William Edward Hickman, who hanged for kidnaping and killing Marion Parker, a Los Angeles school girl. Dr. Williams also testified in the recent trial of Phoenix, Ariz., of Winnie Ruth Judd, condemned "trunk slayer."

Whether they would appear in the Perkesue trial, none would say, but their appearance here was interpreted as showing that the defense was preparing for any emergency.

VETERANS MARCH ON CAPITOL

hundred banners, including the American flag and colors of American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Posts. Representative Rainey and Senator McNary received the petitions from Paul C. Wolman past commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"We wish to present to you these petitions bearing 2,240,030 signatures from every state in the union," Wolman said.

"On behalf of the United States, I am happy to receive the petitions," McNary said.

Then Rainey spoke, standing next to Representative Snell, the Republican House leader.

"As ranking member of the ways and means committee and as majority leader of the House," Rainey said, "it gives me a great pleasure to accept these petitions for full cash payment of the soldiers bonus."

"These represent the right of petition thus granted the people by the fundamental law of the land, and these petitions, I take pleasure to say, will be considered by the ways and means committee at its initial meeting on the bonus next Monday."

Several times during the ceremony shouts of "to the White House" and "pay us the bonus," rang out from the crowd of veterans.

Captain Raymond A. Burke, who led the victory post band of the Legion, told newspapermen he represented one thousand Legion posts and several women marched at the head of the parade which formed at the foot of Capitol hill.

Included in the group which received the petition were Representative Hawley of Oregon, Ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, Senators Brookhart (Iowa), and Thomas (D. Okla.) and Representatives Patman of Texas, Democrats and Murphy of Ohio and Bowman of West Virginia, Republicans.

President Hoover already has served notice that a veto awaits any new soldiers' bonus legislation received at the White House.

Then Henry L. Stevens, national commander of the American Legion, has supported President Hoover in opposing bonus legislation. He said his position was in accord with the action taken by the last national convention of the American Legion at Detroit after an address by President Hoover.

Slightly more than a year ago President Hoover vetoed legislation to allow veterans to borrow up to half the face value of their compensation certificates which were allowed by congress eight years ago over the veto of President Coolidge.

Congress, however, overrode the Hoover veto, the House 328 to 79 and the Senate 76 to 17.

Today, as is customary during such events, half a hundred special policemen were marshalled before the capitol steps to keep order during the march.

ABOUT TOWN

Henry Stevens, national commander of the American Legion has "gone astray" in opposing cash payment of veterans' compensation certificates in the opinion of members of the organization in this county. The commander, considered one of the most popular members of the legion at the time of his election, has lost much of his prestige and influence through his action and this will grow more pronounced as the fight for the measure now pending in congress continues.

Texas called for Stevens' impeachment in a communication dispatched to members of Congress yesterday, and while no such drastic step is anticipated, it may be said with certainty that the commander has created for himself a sentiment it will take years of the most loyal service to dispel. It is the opinion of legionnaires that payment of the compensation certificates would alleviate many ills resulting from economic depression and accompanying unemployment and that every channel of business would derive benefit from it.

President Hoover, an avowed opponent of the plan, declared the government is in no position to meet the demand for payment owing to the critical financial situation, yet he is willing to loan millions to railroads and corporations. The veterans surely have a greater right to demand payment than the President has to ask the government to furnish money for the operation of vast industrial enterprises. This is something the government owes the former service men for the long days spent in military service. It is no bonus, but a just and honest debt, one that should be paid before the peoples' money is thrown to the winds in a vain attempt to revive business conditions by putting more money in the hands of industrial "gluttons."

The Legion has a right to be provoked at the action of Commander Stevens in renouncing their right to what is due them, and they should put forth every effort to bring him to a realization of his colossal mistake. High School ball players went out to meet Washington this afternoon in what is considered to be one of the "crucial" games of the season. With two victories ahead of them, Greenville will put forth its best foot to capture the game and make it three straight.

Washington, on the other hand, will exert every effort to break the Greenville winning streak and thereby decrease their chances of winning conference honors. The local club has shown more speed and fire than any organization the last two years and Coach Porter is hopeful of noising out sufficient games to carry off conference honors. While the boys have shown considerable strength in various fields of sports the last three years, the honor of winning conference honors went to the girls' basketball team before last. It is hoped that team will find its counterpart in this season's baseball club and that the conference flag will fly over Greenville high for another year.

Facts dealing with nineteen of the most important cities of the two Carolinas are being broadcast over WPTF at Raleigh each Thursday evening, and last night the outside world heard something about the resources and possibilities of Greenville, "the largest bright leaf tobacco market in the world."

Mr. R. C. Flanagan was assigned the task of talking over the radio but pressing business back home prevented his doing so. He mailed what he wanted to say and was broadcast by the regular announcer. By reason of this information the world has been told why Greenville has forged to the front as one of the leading cities of the two states, and that should count for something in the rapid progress which the community hopes to make in the future.

There are lots of important things about the various cities of these two progressive states the public should know and the broadcasting station has discovered a happy way

Kitty Frew

By Jane Abbott

SYNOPSIS: When Kitty Frew realizes that Gar, to whom she has been married a short time, is secretly meeting Marge Crosby she is frightened but determined to hold Gar. This trouble is too grave to tell her confidant, Gar's half-brother David. She befriends Gar's sister Carol, who has left home.

DANGEROUS GROUND "I've been a fool, David," Kitty repeated. "Just because I had to turn my precious housekeeping over to Carley! Why, David, I've even tried to flirt with you! That night at the concert it annoyed me because you wouldn't talk to me. Until—David, it was funny, the way the music got me."

But there was no David there to answer because she was alone in the living-room of the little apartment, thinking, excusing that Kitty Frew she'd come to be. "You see it's partly my fault. It goes back to that fuss I made at his mother's house. Poor Gar's afraid to tell me things that might make me angry. That's all it is. And of course I don't care—I mean about his taking Marge to the concert. Didn't I sit with you, there? And Gar would have been angry about that. And about the office—well, maybe he did go back. Old Jonathan wouldn't call me up to say he'd been mistaken about Gar's not coming in for the rest of the day. He isn't Gar's boss to know everything he's going to do. Oh, Gar's all right!"

"Don't you see, David, that I've got to go on? I can't let myself suspect that everything Gar tells me is—a lie! It isn't, of course. I've got to keep Carley because Gar wants me to and I've got to go on being gay as if—as if I were happy. And I'm going to be! This is only what comes up between married people often—little differences—"

And then Kitty would hold her head high as if to defy the David who couldn't hear her because he wasn't there. But she was still frightened. There were times when she shrank from Gar's caress, when her heart sank unreasonably at his homecoming. She never called him a name. She never questioned him as to what had happened at the office or at rehearsals. When he told her she listened thinking, "This isn't a lie, and hating herself because she had to so reassure herself."

When in the evening they went out with the others she was resolutely gay and kept herself from watching Marge and Gar. They were old friends, they'd known one another since they were children. And it was Marge's way to appropriate some one of the men and Gar's way always to be champion to any woman he was with. Of course there was nothing between them! It was absurd, absurd—Gar was hers.

She did not call David, now, on the telephone. She did not go to Dorcas because there she might see him. She shrank from seeing him. He might guess the trouble she carried in her heart. She went to Carol's more frequently. Carol needed her. The Russian "doo-dads" were not selling very well. She offered Carol a loan but Carol shook her head. "If it were your money, Kitty—"

"Well, isn't it mine? What's Gar's is mine!" Kitty laughed. "Don't you know?" Carol's question was significant. "What do you mean?" And, instantly, Kitty was frightened. Carol laughed. "Why, mother gives him money every time he goes to the house! She pays most of your bills. I saw a lot of them on her desk that day I had the row. He'd just been there. Do you mean you didn't know it? Did you think you could live the way you do on what Gar earns—if you can call it that?"

Kitty had the sickening sensation of making them known. Greenville people are proud of their achievement in the field of business and industry and they are glad that other people are aware of them so they may come down and help us grow. The revenue bill continues to give Congress trouble. The Republicans want to let the big boys go untaxed and the Democrats are pushing their campaign to put the burden where the money is.

Just how the fight will come out is problematical, but it may be said with finality that the Democrats will continue to hammer away until they relieve the little man of the burden he has been carrying for so long by transferring it to the big boys' shoulders. It is the Republican idea to favor moneyed interests in every way possible and this has been plainly demonstrated by recommendations which President Hoover has sent to Congress from time to time.

For instance there's the Finance Corporation. It is helping the railroads out of a bad situation by lending them millions of dollars. Then there are great banking institutions getting a makeover while they "protect their depositors." Apparently the only redeeming thing about the scheme is the loan for farmers, but by the time they get through paying interest, the government will have it all and the farmer nothing. Washington, with President Hoover on the throne, is a paradise for men of influence and affluence, but all the little man will find around the town is "air"—and plenty of it—because that is all the President has to offer him.

upon the floor swaying beneath her. When she spoke her voice sounded queer, brittle. "I know that—that time. The bills had to be paid up, right away. We'd gone in a little deep at Christmas time. Gar—just borrowed it."

"Borrowed it!" Carol's retort was scornful. "No, thanks, I'd rather starve than use any money she may have given Gar."

"Well, she'd rather starve, too, than eat food bought by Mrs. Frew's money, thought Kitty holly, helplessly. She remembered how easily Gar had assured her that the bills had been paid.

And she could do nothing. She had to go on, humiliated to her soul, beaten. That was it—her fine satisfaction in their independence was a mockery, now those days of careful budgeting a joke. She had boasted to David that she wasn't afraid of Gar's mother. Gar was afraid. She pictured Gar going to her, every day, perhaps. Gar's mother was waiting, only biding her time until Gar realized his mistake, keeping him dependent upon her, feeding her sweet poison.

And what hurt her most of all were the little silences that came up between her and Gar, when, talking, all at once she'd know she was bordering on dangerous ground and break off abruptly. Did Gar notice how often it happened? "Sally and Phil are going to be married April second," she told him one evening. "Can you get away, Gar?"

"Sure as anything. You don't think I'd miss it do you?" "I'm her only bridesmaid. I'm to wear blue," she sent me a sample. And then Kitty stopped. "Get something good," Gar directed. "Go to Felicia's and have your dress made."

Mrs. Frew had her clothes made at Felicia's. Dangerous ground. Isobel Peters' house one night. Isobel's bride with Tubby and Buck, she heard Isobel tell Tubby that Marge was going to be married in April. Her heart gave a involuntary leap of joy. Marge went away and stayed for a long time, it would be easier to straighten things out. And going to Bridgewater would help, too.

She ordered the blue bridesmaid's dress at Felicia's, as Gar had told her to. He was interested in every detail of it. It appeared to anticipate their holiday as joyously as he did. And planning for it, talking about it to Gar, going to Felicia's for repeated fittings of the blue dress helped Kitty put out of her mind the torment she had suffered.

One evening Gar was detained downtown. She decided that she would go to Dorcas. She wasn't afraid of seeing David, now. She wanted to talk about his book. He must have had some word. She called Dorcas on the telephone. "I've just turned the lock on my door, Kitty, but I'll let you in."

Then she wouldn't see David. But she went to Ketchum Street. Dorcas was wearing the old flannel dressing-gown, the soft, heeless slippers. Her appearance reminded Kitty of that night David had brought her to the house. "Where's David?" Kitty asked, after an hour's casual talk. "Out in the country," Dorcas' tone was short.

He'd gone, then, without a word to her! Kitty did not reason that David never called her, that all her meetings with him had come from her suggestion. She allowed herself a little feeling of hurt. Then at once it occurred to her that the book might have been rejected. David had gone to the little house to face down his disappointment. "Has he heard from those publishers?" she asked quickly. "Dorcas smiled. "Yes. Didn't you know? Norwood sent for him. He went to New York last week."

"Oh, then they've taken it?" "Kitty's joy brought Dorcas' glance levelly on her. "No, they turned it down. It was too sour. That's their exact word for it. Probably it reflected David's state of mind while he was writing it."

The calmness of Dorcas' manner exasperated Kitty. A lot of help she was to poor David. "If you'd—if you'd stand by him more—" she began a little incoherently. "Oh, Dorcas, David needs you a lot! And he's too proud to let you see—" "He doesn't need me," Dorcas said flatly and tensely. "But he does! Why, Dorcas, David's in love with you!" Dorcas laughed.

"You talk like a goose, Kitty. You're the one who is blind! David never has cared for me, in the way you mean. That's absurd. I might as well make him if I'd tried. But I wouldn't try. If he didn't, without a doubt, we've talked it over. I could have taken what he had to give me but I didn't choose to cash myself with any half-loaf. Now I see that I was wise—" "Oh, Dorcas, you're all wrong!" "Wrong?" Dorcas flared. She rose abruptly and stood over Kitty, her eyes angry. "Can you tell me, Kitty, that you don't know that David is desperately in love with you?"

Copyright, Jane Abbott. Did Kitty refuse the challenge? Dorcas' statement puts an unexpected complexion into her friendship with David.

"Make it Four, Father!"

If you once have a taste of the New NuGrape, you always come back for more. It's just that sort of a flavor—a mysterious something, born of plump Concord grapes and sunshine. There is nothing anywhere near like it, with its bouquet of dew-ripened grapes, and its sparkling, dancing life—as of champagne.

Next to impossible to keep the New NuGrape on ice at home—the family sneaks in for "just another bottle," even when a case is purchased at a time. But since Nature and Science brewed it and brought it to its delightful state of appetizing perfection—you can drink as much as you please as often as you please.

There is no substitute for the New NuGrape. Accept none, for it would only mean disappointment. The genuine is sold everywhere for 5c.

NEWS CELEBRATION IN EDENTON

(By Judge Francis D. Winston, chairman of the North Carolina George Washington Centennial Commission)

The North Carolina George Washington Centennial Commission urges a very large attendance of our citizens at the unveiling of the Joseph Hewes monument in Edenton on Thursday, the 28th day of this month.

It will be an historic occasion, marking an historic era in the most historic city of our state. A glad and gracious welcome waits us at the hands of our patriotic people of historic Queen Anne's creek. The monument is the gift of the nation to commemorate the patriotic services of a national patriot and signer of the Declaration of Independence. The program for the day and night is an elaborate and entertaining one. The navy of our country will be represented by high officials and ships. It will be a great sight to watch our ships in parade on the beautiful Albemarle. The head of the Washington Bicentennial Commission, Hon. Sol Bloom, will speak. Other patriotic citizens will be heard. Let us show our appreciation of our government's generosity by attending this great ceremonial.

Twenty-five thousand people in Edenton on April 28th will bring to public note the great historic value of our splendid section and will let the nation know our wealth of beauty, usefulness and profit in this great historic section. The ferry tolls across the Chowan will be greatly reduced that day, if not abolished.

The Methodist Troop Scouts will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Rotary building. It is necessary that every Scout be present as arrangements for summer camp will be discussed. Also there will be an election of new patrol leaders.

Joe Taft, Scoutmaster.

Mrs. Lewis in Hospital
Friends of Mrs. W. E. Lewis will regret to learn that she is quite ill in the local hospital.

MOORE-KILPATRICK

Farmville, April 7.—Coming as a surprise to many friends was the marriage of Miss Gladys Kilpatrick to Mr. William Henry Moore at Greenville, N. C., on Friday evening, April 1, at 8:00 o'clock.

The marriage was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage, the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. L. Hillman and witnessed by a few intimate friends. The bride was attired in a medium going away costume of navy blue with accessories to match.

Mrs. Moore is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Kilpatrick of Brevard. She is a graduate of E. C. T. C., Greenville, and has been a popular member of the Farmville High School faculty for the past four years, being instructor in Home Economics.

Mr. Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moore of the Falkland section. He graduated at a commercial school in New York and has had charge of the bookkeeping department of J. H. Harris, general merchant, here, for several years.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for a short motor trip. Upon their return they will make their home in Farmville.

Mayor Has Busy Monday

Farmville, April 7.—Farmville's colored citizenry is as a rule quiet and peaceable but bedlam broke out Saturday night at the home of George Newton in the vicinity of Washington Heights, a negro section of the town.

Members of the local police department felt that they had earned their months pay over the week end, eighteen men and women being jailed on Saturday night and held before Mayor Belcher on Monday morning.

Hostess To U. D. C.

Farmville, April 7.—The Rebecca Winbourne chapter U. D. C. met on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. P. E. Jones at her home on North Main street. Mrs. B. O. Turnage presided over a business session, in which a report of the recent memorial tree planting was given by Mrs. A. B. Walter and a committee composed of Mrs. R. H. Knott, Mrs. G. M. Holden and Mrs. G. A. Rouse, was appointed to make an appropriate window display representative of the organization at the 60th anniversary celebration.

A review of notorious women spies of the War Between the States was given by Mrs. J. Y. Monk; a paper "Repatriate of Southern Girls" was read by Mrs. I. E. Satterfield; Miss Annie Perkins related the history of the song, "The Homespun Girl," and the rendition of this number was given in vocal duet form by Mrs. M. V. Jones and Mrs. A. W. Bobbitt, bringing the interesting program to a close.

Refreshments were served by the hostess during a pleasant social hour.

Farmville Literary Club.

Farmville, April 7.—An interesting account of the life of Elizabeth Barrett Browning by Mrs. P. E. Jones, and a paper relative to her poetry by Mrs. G. A. Jones, read in her absence by a club member, made up the splendid program presented at the Literary Club and completed the study of "Other Peoples' Lives," outlined by Cornelia Spencer Love.

Mrs. A. C. Hodges was elected as a delegate to the State Federation meeting to be held in Winston-Salem, May 2-4; universal membership was discussed and the correct pronunciation of familiar words was brought to the attention of the club by the president, Miss Annie Perkins.

The club met at the home of Mrs. J. W. Parker, which was decorated with quantities of spring flowers, on Wednesday afternoon. A frozen salad course was served after adjournment by the hostess, assisted by Miss Edna Poust Harris and Mrs. W. M. Willis.

NOMINEES FOR DAVIDSON COLLEGE PAPER

Davidson, N. C., April 8.—Davidson College students today began balloting for the 1932-1933 editor-in-chief of The Davidsonian, weekly news publication, and will make their choice from a field of five men nominated by the retiring editorial staff of the paper. Students nominated were E. O. Querant, of Pasadena, Calif.; D. D. McBride, of Linden; R. L. McCalle, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Charles F. Myers, of Greensboro; and B. B. Suggs, Jr., of Greenville, N. C. All of the above have been managing editors except Suggs, who was sports editor, and whose position is on a parity with that of the managing editors.

City Officials and Firemen Are Invited to Dine

Members of the Board of Aldermen and the fire department have been invited to attend a get-together meeting and dinner to be given by the Plymouth fire department Tuesday night, April 12, it was revealed today by City Clerk J. O. Duval.

The invitation had been relayed to most of the members today and it was indicated that Greenville would be well represented by both officials and firemen, although there will be sufficient fire ladders left on hand to keep the old town from burning down while they are away.

Banks to Observe Halifax Day Here

"Halifax Day," April 12, will be observed in Greenville by the closing of banks and appropriate exercises by organizations perpetuating ideals leading to the Declaration of Independence signed at Halifax, N. C., in 1775, at a meeting of the Provincial Congress. The day has been declared a legal holiday and will be observed throughout the state by reason of the decisive step taken by North Carolina for separation from the tyrannical rule of Great Britain.

Paris article which coincided with other specially written articles purporting to show that the dollar is in weak position.

They expressed their gratification that the French government was reported to have taken prompt action designed to set the French public straight on the falsity of rumors now afloat in that and other countries.

Bankers also said that the publication of the false bank report had some reassuring aspects. For one thing, they said, it showed that part of the recent selling of the dollar which had come from France was based on misinformation, and not fact. They reasoned that this selling was largely speculative, and with the true facts once placed before the public, that it would dry up.

An ironic touch was given to the French episode because, in the past several weeks when considerable mystery has shrouded persistent selling of the dollar, some of the leading New York bankers strongly defended the French against charges of engineering a bear drive against this country's currency.

Wheezy Organ Causes Hickory Preacher Worry

Hickory, April 8.—(AP)—When things go wrong with some men, they give vent to emotions through heated vocabulary but the Rev. Sam B. Stroup has other methods—he forgets to preach his Sunday sermons.

At least, Mr. Stroup, rector of the Episcopal church of the Ascension, did last Sunday, it was revealed today with the repairing of the church organ.

Sunday the organ went on a tantrum and as fast as one key would be fixed, another would go haywire and whistles and wheezes were emitted all over the church.

The service had just gotten underway and the various noises began to worry Mr. Stroup. Finally, he decided to do the job himself.

So, at an opportune time, he slipped from the pulpit and repaired to the innermost recesses of the organ. There he removed his vestments and went to work with a pair of pliers and hammer in all the dirt and grime.

Finally, a member of the congregation found him and persuaded him to return to the pulpit. He hastened on with the service, called for the offering and dismissed the congregation.

Then the organist, Mrs. J. L. Cilly, asked: "But aren't you going to preach a sermon today?"

Mr. Stroup, abashed, admitted his negligence and then added: "Anyway, I didn't forget the offering."

Youth Killed as School Bus Wrecks

Pittsboro, April 8.—(AP)—Failure of the brakes was blamed today by the driver for the overturning of a school bus five miles from here resulting in the death of Walter Hatcher, 15, and injuries to thirteen other children.

Dewey Thomas, the driver, said the gear slipped out of place while the bus was on a hill and that the brakes would not hold it. The vehicle rolled backwards over a 15-foot embankment and overturned. There were 30 children in the bus. Hatcher was the son of Robert Hatcher, of Pittsboro.

Mrs. Cruikshank Offered Job as St. Mary's Head

Raleigh, April 8.—(AP)—The presidency of St. Mary's school, Episcopal Junior College for girls here, has been offered to Mrs. Ernest Cruikshank, president of Columbia Institute, Columbia, Tenn. She has the offer under consideration. Mrs. Cruikshank is a native of Hillsboro, N. C., and formerly was a member of the St. Mary's faculty.

The Rev. Warren W. Way recently announced his resignation after several years as head of St. Mary's.

WEEKS WILL HEAD U. N. C. STUDENT BODY

Chapel Hill, April 7.—(AP)—O. Haywood Weeks, a senior from Swansboro, will be president of the University of North Carolina's student body next year.

He was elected over Hamilton Hogood, of Bunn, yesterday. Ed Hazelwood, of New York, was elected chief cheerleader.

Mary Frances Parker, of Goldsboro, was elected president of the Woman's Association.

Seeks Vote On 18th Amendment

Charlotte, April 8.—(AP)—The Charlotte, News, long considered one of the outstanding champions of prohibition in North Carolina, called upon the state today to take the lead in a move to have the Eighteenth Amendment submitted to a vote of the people.

In an editorial captioned "Let North Carolina Lead," the News demanded that candidates for the 1932 General Assembly "commit themselves or permit themselves to be instructed in the will of their constituents on the matter of petitioning congress for a re-submission of the 18th amendment, repeal of it to bestow again upon the states their once supreme right of dealing with this matter of public welfare as they themselves see or have seen fit."

Officer Pays Negro's Fine

Washington, N. C., April 8.—(AP)—Daniel Barnes, negro, found a friend in an officer who arrested him.

Brought before Judge I. M. Moeckins in federal court on a charge the judge said was minor and technical, Barnes found himself fined 25 cents but he didn't have that much.

The arresting officer paid the fine and the negro was liberated.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, April 8.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 4 points on covering and trade buying inspired by the steadiness in Liverpool cables. May sold at 6.00.

There was little or no southern selling in evidence and prices worked up slightly right after the opening on a moderate demand which seemed to include some buying for foreign account. May advanced to 6.02, and October to 6.44, making the active months about 3 to 6 points net higher, but the demand was supplied at these figures by some further near month liquidation and probably some local selling influenced by the indifference showing of the stock market.

According to private cables, Liverpool was influenced by Bombay buying and the easier sterling. These cables reported a moderate demand for cotton cloths from India but a poor demand from China.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, April 8.—(AP)—An outburst of stop loss selling late today carried wheat prices down about 3 cents a bushel, and corn to the lowest level since 1920.

The fresh breaks in cereal markets were simultaneous with a tumble by United States Steel to a new low. Any bullish effects from the government crop report due after the close had apparently been discounted in advance.

Wheat closed nervous 23-8 to 31-8 under yesterday's finish; corn 21-2 to 3 down; oats 5-8 to 7-8 off and provisions varying from 2 decline to 5 advance.

STOCK MARKET

New York, April 8.—(AP)—The stock market was still staggering under the weight of stubborn selling today.

Price averages penetrated new low territory for recent years for the 8th successive session. Trading was again in only moderate volume, and the numerous losses of 2 to more than 4 points again reflected the absence of buyers rather than large scale liquidation.

By early afternoon, there was some letup in the selling, and practical recoveries appeared here and there. The selling embraced most important groups but was particularly conspicuous in the utilities once more. Issues off about 2 to 4 to new lows for the cycle included U. S. Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph, Union Pacific, Safeway Stores and Eastman.

Exceptional declines appeared in Detroit Edison, off 8, and Peoples Gas, off 5, while a number of preferred issues declined sharply in a thin market.

The very length of the decline alone led to expectations in brokerage quarters that something would have to intervene soon to bring a turn, but the business and financial news of the day failed to provide a basis for anything in the way of bullish efforts.

The General Motors sales report for March was the principal item of corporate news, showing that domestic consumers bought 48,717 cars, or slightly more than the 46,855 bought in February, but less than half the 101,339 for March of 1931. Preliminary reports of the results of a week-old April sales campaign of both General Motors and Ford were mildly optimistic. The ordering of the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents by Nash Motors was also a favorable development.

section of the city, Mayor Flanagan advised the board that an answer to the complaint had been filed by F. C. Harding, representing the city, and that the case had been docketed. Blount claims that by reason of paving and gutter improvements in the sub-division he is entitled to reimbursement by the city. Several hundred dollars are involved in the suit. The city claims it is not responsible in view of the fact that the development was made by realty interest for the purpose of private gain. Mayor Flanagan also explained to the board his investigation concerning the $100 tax placed on operators of bankrupt sales in the city. He said that although no word had been received from Attorney General Brummitt regarding the ordinance, the city was following action adopted by the state in such matters.

The board was informed of a decision handed down in Superior court awarding $1,200 to Mrs. Lucy Moyer against the City of Greenville as payment for a strip of land through her property used as a street. The board decided to file notice of appeal to Supreme court.

After discussing the ordinance providing for new roofs on city property, the board decided to let the law prohibiting the placing of composition roofs over old shingle roofs stand as it is.

After discussing discounts on tax payments, the board decided to be governed by the Machinery Act of North Carolina.

The question of enforcing the ordinance requiring cement floors and sewer tank drainage for fish markets, the board directed that the committee on sanitation investigate and report at the next meeting.

MELLON GETS DOWN TO WORK

over, before the former secretary of the United States treasury got right to work at the American embassy, and one of his first acts was to receive British and American correspondents there.

Then the new envoy called upon Sir John Simon, Great Britain's secretary for foreign affairs, to find out about arrangements for presentation of his credentials to King George.

When the new ambassador submitted to questions of the correspondents these queries ranged over his social plans and incidental things until a reporter for one of the big London dailies told Mr. Mellon that Europe regarded him as a special ambassador on war debts and reparations.

"Who did you say invented that story?" asked Mr. Mellon quietly. "I have no special instructions to deal with financial questions."

"I realize I am fortunate in coming here at this time. Relations between our two governments were never better and while we both face problems of a most serious nature, arising largely out of the war, these problems are not insoluble and must disappear if we approach them frankly with an effort to understand each other's difficulties and affirm determination to be of assistance where we can."

"It will be the greatest satisfaction to me if I can be of any help in promoting such a working understanding between this country and my own."

Asked whether liquors would be served on the table at the embassy, Mr. Mellon said he would probably would follow the custom of the country.

bill and asking him to correct his statement that only 23 posts have endorsed further adjusted compensation certificate legislation at this session of Congress.

Many members to the Kinston post are personal friends of Stevens. W. M. Pickens, commander of the Lincolnton post, wired Representatives Bulwinkle and Patman to "ignore statement of Stevens. Members of this post want bonus paid in full now. Stand taken by Stevens does not represent the rank and file of service men."

The Wilmington post dispatched telegrams to the North Carolina senators saying it was recorded as favoring the bonus legislation. Stevens, in Florida where he has gone to attend a state legion convention, defended his position by saying it was in accord with the action of the Detroit convention.

He also said he believed compensation for disabled veterans would be reduced if the bonus were paid.

CONSERVATIVES CONTROL WISCONSIN'S DELEGATION

nary, it became almost a certainty today the Conservatives had captured 15 and the Progressives only 12 of the state's votes for the Presidential nominee.

The Republican Progressives were given four delegates-at-large and the Conservatives only three on the basis of returns from 2,270 of 2,845 precincts but the Conservatives stepped into control by apparently taking 12 of the 20 district delegates.

The outcome means that the majority of Wisconsin's Republican vote holders will go to the convention with a tacit approval of President Hoover's nomination. The Progressives are pledged to support Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

In the Democratic primary, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York made almost a clean sweep, an unusually large vote giving him 25 of the 26 delegates who were in the lead. The 26th was an independent whose campaign cry was "Smith and Prosperity."

SHUTDOWN ON ECONOMY IS EXPECTED AT CONFERENCE

retrenching is in prospect when President Hoover and the special House economy committee get together tomorrow morning around a White House conference table.

Since his quick acceptance of the invitation and challenge contained in the committee's formal request for specific savings recommendations, the Chief Executive has been energetically gathering material for the meeting in a long succession of consultations with cabinet members and department heads.

Inviting them to the meeting, Mr. Hoover put the House leaders on notice that he wanted an accounting of their progress toward achieving economy independently. At the same time he told them bluntly that he expected to put across his project for an economy group or commission representing House, Senate, and the president, which would draw a well-rounded plan for reorganizing and abolishing unnecessary or wasteful bureaus.

The Democrats, with much indignant speech-making, had brushed aside this plan. They argued there was no time left for such a commission to get any results; that is work would drag on past adjournment time and no legislation could be looked for before the November elections. Their machinery was already set up in Congress, they contended, so let the president put down his recommendations in black and white and leave the rest to them.

This attitude was carried forward in the House committee's demands. Chairman McHuffie (D., Ala.), informed the president the committee realized as you, too, must recognize, that the situation precluded political partisanship.

repeated, and then hung up the receiver. Police said today the finger and the second threatening letter had reached Wilberding the following Saturday.

"Because you have gone to police as you were told not to do, you have been fined $1,000 and will pay $3,000 in small bills to the messenger as instructed in the first letter," the second note said in substance.

"Inside the envelope accompanying this you will find a sign that I mean business," it concluded. The envelope mentioned contained the finger.

The second letter and the finger had not been mailed but were personally delivered to Wilberding's mailbox inside the front door of an apartment building.
