ELECTION OF 'WET' FEARED

Furman University Head Discusses National Issues at Baptist Convention

St. Petersburg, Fla., May 12.—(AP)—Fear that "a damp will be elected" was expressed here last night by Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of Furman University, Greenville, S. C., and president of the Southern Baptist Convention, in a discussion of national politics and the prohibition issue. Dr. McGlothlin, who arrived to preside over the convention that opens tomorrow, said Southern Baptists are vigorously in favor of prohibition although they are "not satisfied" with enforcement as it is now. "We certainly hope for a dry," he continued, and added he could see "no advantage" from any proposed prohibition referendum. The Baptist leader said it might be possible to attribute some of the nation's so-called crime wave to prohibition. Church finances, he said, will be the major problem before the convention here. Dr. Hight C. Moore, of Nashville, Tenn., senior secretary of the convention, said last year was one of the greatest in the convention's history "except financially."

The woman's missionary union and Baptist brotherhood of the South had conventions preceding the general church meeting. Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor University and former governor of Texas, was the Baptist brotherhood program.

SEN. MORRISON FLAYS G O P

(Continued from page one) Senator Morrison prefaced his remarks with observation on some of the charges that had been made against him in this part of the state relative to his alleged opposition to property revaluation and tax relief.

He declared he had always been a champion of tax reduction, and read excerpts from the address which he delivered at his inauguration as Governor of North Carolina, showing that he had always recommended the lifting of the tax burden from the shoulders of the landowner.

He urged his hearers to forget party strife, that the supreme duty at this hour was to sweep the Republic away throughout the nation, he asserted, does not come from within the party, but from the Republicans who have destroyed prosperity through reckless spending of the people's money.

He held the high tariff principle as one of the main causes of the ills affecting all branches of industry. He said the barrier was made so high that foreign trade was shut out and other powers retaliated, creating one of the most severe economic crises in history.

Eight millions of unemployed people are walking the streets of this country because of the narrow isolation policy of the Republican party, Mr. Morrison said, and industry will remain prostrate until they are put out of office.

He painted a graphic picture of the suffering and despair prevailing as result of the selling of homes for taxes, closing of banks and giant industries, and described President Hoover as "a joke" even to children because of his inability to live up to his promises of prosperity made at the beginning of his administration.

Discussing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the speaker, declared there would have been no relief for the hard-pressed farmers of this country had not the Democrats fought to the last ditch, asserting the right of the farmers to be relieved along with great institutions and corporations. The relief was obtained, but no thanks go to Herbert Hoover, he maintained.

In spite of the fact that the nation is confronted with a deficit of over two billions of dollars, the senator said Congress continued to spend money wildly under G. O. P. leadership, and the only way to stop it was to put the Democrats back in power. A titter ran through the audience when he said they were even building a great structure at Washington in honor of President Hoover. He scored centralization of government under the present administration and urged his hearers to rally to the Democrats in the next election and improve the situation.

MEANS BEGINS HIS DEFENSE

Out of jail yesterday, he talked at last of the amazing case and other suspicions leveled at him, the loud denunciation of his accusers.

He scoffed at the charges. Mrs. McLean, he shouted, "don't have a leg to stand on! This is a travesty. You think I'm afraid of Mrs. McLean!"

Then he told how he got into the McLean-Lindbergh adventure, how he believed he could get the child. "I'd been to the pen. I knew the underworld and the underworld knew me and the underworld knew I shoot straight; and the underworld shoots straight with me."

He denied the allegation that he did Mrs. Finley Sheppard, of New York, the former Helen Gould, out of a considerable sum of money. Mrs. Sheppard, he maintained never employed him and he "never took a dollar from her."

In this he was backed up later by Ralph M. Easley, head of the National Civic Federation who said he once employed Means to investigate Soviet Russian activities, but that there was no word of truth in the Sheppard story.

LONG SAYS LOUISIANA IS 'SOLID' FOR ROOSEVELT (Continued from page one) minds as to a choice. "Roosevelt will be nominated," he said. "I do not believe there will be more than one ballot."

"When they get down to about the T's in the roll call there will be enough sentiment to put him over." The Louisiana delegation will adopt the unit rule, the senator added, assuring the entire 20 for the New Yorker, who is now well in

LAST TRIBUTE PAID DOUMER

A king and four princes of the royal blood trudged behind the rumbling artillery caissons all the way from the Elysee Palace to the cathedral, a march of an hour and a half in the warm, damp morning. At the cathedral the requiem mass was celebrated by Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris, who wore a black and silver chasuble over his flaming red cassock. The vnic of Pope Pius XI, Monsignor Maglione, presided over the ceremony from the Arch-Episcopal throne. Army bugles sounded "To the Fields!" at the elevation.

Well over 1,000,000 people thronged the streets and squares to watch the funeral procession pass.

At the Pantheon, on the very "Mountain of Sainte Genevieve," in the shadow of the edifice in which repose the nation's illustrious dead, Premier Andre Tardieu, in a moving oration described the dead President as "The supreme type of Democrat" while the army, in which M. Doumer's four sons gave up their lives during the World War, marched past with flags tipped at salute.

The Premier reviewed the late President's three-quarters of a century of toil, recalling his services as a colonial governor in Indo-China as presiding officer of the Senate and as chief executive of the nation.

The bells of Notre Dame began ringing as the caisson drawn by six black stallions, came into view.

Before it marched three hospital nurses and on either side were the pall bearers.

The family, with the exception of Mme. Doumer, followed on foot behind the hearse. Then came the officials of the late President's military and civil households, the officers with their swords wrapped in crepe.

Albert Lebrun, President Doumer's successor in office, followed next, alone and bareheaded, wearing the broad red cordon of the Legion of Honor.

Then came tall, gaunt Albert, King of the Belgians, in khaki, with a mourning band on his arm. He was followed by four princes, the Prince of Wales; Duke of Aosta of Italy; Prince Paul of Yugoslavia, and the young Emperor of Annam.

Don't let the weevils take your crop

It wasn't much use to plant cotton if the boll weevils are going to get most of it. All reports indicate that the weevils mean business this year. The warm winter, the late damp spring, the possibility of a wet summer, all point to a very heavy infestation. A late crop won't stand much chance. If you can set your crop ahead of the weevils, you will be reasonably safe. If there is one thing that will pick your cotton up and push it right past the weevils, it is Chilean Nitrate. Nothing takes its place for side-dressing cotton. While 200 pounds would be better, put on 100 pounds per acre right after chopping. That may prove enough. If not you can come along with 50 to 100 pounds more later in the summer. Be sure you get Chilean. Specify Chilean to your dealer. He has it or can get it immediately. See him now!

ABOUT TOWN

The political fight in North Carolina has been converted into a series of charges and counter-charges in which Governor Gardner seems to be bearing the brunt of the battle.

The more the governor talks the more deeply involved he becomes, and it might be to his benefit to maintain silence until the question of his successor has been settled.

His last statement was to the effect that he is deeply concerned with preserving the credit of the state.

What the state needs is not so much credit—we have had too much of that already—but a program of economy that will reduce all unnecessary expenses and save the taxpayers money.

The time for getting down to "brass tacks" has come and the governor nor anybody else will be able to accomplish anything by talking. It is going to require some real honest-to-goodness painstaking evidence before conditions are improved and when we quit nagging one another and begin to "dig in" for the economic struggle results will soon be evident.

Farmers of this part of the country last year adopted the live at home program boosted so diligently by the governor two years ago, but not many of them have homes to live in these days with the selling of their property for taxes.

Still, those who have been able to save themselves are doing the best they can in the face of the unprecedented governmental situation and economy crisis and hope to be able to keep things together until conditions begin to mend.

It has been a long time since this state has been affected as it is now from an economic viewpoint and it will be a long time before it will experience a return of the situation if those who have paid the price have their way about it. The pressing need of the moment is the lifting of the tax burden from the shoulders of the land owner, revaluation of property, and last but not least, an improvement of prices for farm products so that the distressed farmers will be able to survive.

It was to be expected that President Hoover would veto the Democratic tariff bill, which would have altered the flexible provision by removing from the proter to change import duty rates.

The Republican party, it was natural that he should have added his protest to the proposal of the Democratic party. He realized that transferring the power of fixing rates would take too much control out of the White House and if there is anything in the world the resident likes it is to change things to suit his own ideas.

About the only way for the Democrats to get a tariff bill accepted is to put Mr. Hoover out of the White House by the same landslide on which he went in, and if that is done they will be able to fix up a tariff bill just like they want it.

The chance to accomplish this purpose will come next November and with this slap in the face in the minds of party members, it is doubtful if the President will find it as easy to stay in as he got in.

The final effort to force a vote on the bonus bill in Congress will be made this week. It is hoped to get the measure definitely fixed on the calendar for then it will have to come up for consideration.

While the payment of cash compensation to the soldiers has been in for more or less criticism the last few weeks, there are others who look upon it with greater charity, believing it will be a direct means of relieving the depression. Lieutenant Governor Fountain, speaking here Tuesday night, said payment of the money at this time would be the saving grace of the people. He declared what the nation needs at this time is more money circulated among the people, and should that be accomplished he felt confident condi-

YOU CAN'T MARRY

By Julia Cleft-Addams

SYNOPSIS: "I'd like to try and cure you," Jenny Revell tells Eddie Townsend, whose nerves are shattered. Her cousin George, who has just married Eddie, is on a business trip, having told her employer that Jenny has married Eddie. Though Jenny loves Garth Agency, he has broken an engagement with her.

Chapter 22

BY SPECIAL MESSENGER "Do you know, Eddie, that there have been any number of bangings and crashings and thummings going on down in the streets while we have been talking and they didn't worry you a scrap because your ears were closed to them?"

"Now if you get panicky you'll close your ears against everything except what I'm saying to you—I'll have you all right in no time!" Eddie was enormously amused. She was glad of it—his laughter could never hurt her. Besides, she knew she was right. She let him enjoy the joke and then suggested he should inspect his bedroom and let her unpack for him.

But Eddie, thrusting his hands deeply into his pockets, became stubborn. "I don't come here to live until I come openly as George's husband," he announced. "Not as things are now. You may be right or wrong about her job—and I may be right or wrong about it—and after a weighty pause—"and she may be right or wrong. But I'm not going to be kept here like a darn bird in a cage until my wings are grown again!"

"You find me a room somewhere, Jen, there's a good kid. Gave up my rooms. Any old back street will do. No use throwing money about in a swanky hotel."

"No use at all," agreed Jenny. She stood considering, her hands in her pockets, her brows bent.

Into the silence came the sound of someone at the door. Eddie's face lost every vestige of color. He jumped back against the window as though he had some wild plan of climbing on to the leads.

Jenny realized that his first test of her power would be the last. She followed him, forcing him to look her in the eyes, cutting through his mutter of—"Don't let them send me up! Don't let them, Jenny!"

"Listen to me, Ed! No, you're not really listening, not as you can listen. Close your ears to everything except what I'm saying now. Nobody is going to send you up until you want to go and nobody is going to crash down on you."

"Honest, Jen?" "Honest. So what have you to worry about?"

"Nothing," admitted Eddie, almost unwillingly. "Then you go on listening in your mind to what I've just said. I'll see who is at the door."

As Jenny had expected, it was Gill who was at the door. He said nothing at all, but jerked an enquiring thumb at the interior of the apartment.

"Mr. Townsend is feeling better," said Jenny, answering the thumb, "but I'm glad you came up, Gill. I wonder if you know of some cheap, quiet room for him? He doesn't want to stay here."

She had expected a long, long period of ruminating, and it startled her when he suggested, "Mrs. Biggers."

"Would she take a boarder? Is her house clean? And quiet? And would she look after him a little if I weren't with him?"

To each question in turn Gill gave his weighty nod. Then he jerked his thumb again at the little hall and said, "Luggage?"

Jenny produced Eddie's solitary suitcase and the big-shouldered superintendent swung it easily from the right hand to the left. Then he seemed to expect to carry Eddie, too.

"I'll bring him along. If you will go first, Gill, and explain, I'll look after Mr. Townsend."

As long as she lived Jenny never forgot that first dreadful walk with Eddie. Last night, under her tired feet, Eyle Street had seemed long, but with Eddie clutching at her shoulder, swerving and jibbing like a terrified horse at every sudden sound—it seemed like a road in a nightmare that goes on and on until at last one wakes. By the time she had installed him in Mrs. Biggers' upper rooms, she felt as though she too, would swerve and jib and finally turn tail and run away.

But she did not let him guess it.

Thousands of others entertain the same view concerning the compensation, and whether Congress thinks it wise or not, it should give the bill the benefit of the doubt and see that it receives proper deliberation before being rejected.

President Hoover has said this action can be over-riden and the soldiers paid what they consider an honest debt in the greatest carnage in annals of the world.

The latest stroke on behalf of the Democratic party to carry relief to the unemployed people is the proposal by Senator Robinson of Arkansas that the government pass a $300,000,000 bond issue to meet the demand of the sufferers.

The proposal is destined for rough sailing but it is impossible to foresee what will be the outcome of it. It will probably go the same way as other Democratic measures designed to carry relief to the millions of men and women suffering from lack of work.

She talked to him, brightly, and steadily all the way there, while people stared and children pointed at his bandages and his uncertain steps; and she went on talking now while she unpacked his belongings.

"Isn't Mrs. Biggers a good sport? She's so ugly you think first she must be thoroughly bad-tempered but she is one of the most aimable people I've ever met. Do you think you'll find your handkerchiefs if I put them in this drawer?"

"Only girls would fuss with a lot of handkerchiefs at all," said Eddie drowsily. "Much simpler never to unpack anything, then you can always find it."

He was lying on the narrow bed, his hands behind his head, his eyes closed. He had been pushed and persuaded into Mrs. Biggers' shop in a pitiful state of nerves, but the sight of his future landlady had so delighted him that he had thrown aside his fears and followed her quite naturally up the stairs to the room he was to occupy. Mrs. Biggers had sense enough not to catechize him about his accident; she promised to come up later, when he had had "a nice snatch of sleep" and read to him from the Sunday papers; and rather to Jenny's surprise he had grinned and agreed.

"I like the old horror," he remarked when she had gone. "She doesn't get me all fussed up like those doctors and nurses did. I never could stand hospitals. Mrs. Biggers will suit me down to the ground indoors and you'll be there, won't you?—when I have to go out. Between the two of you I shall do fine."

"I'll come back this afternoon or this evening," she promised. She noticed that he had not mentioned George again. It was perhaps a pity that she must be mentioned at all. But there was no choice.

"If George stays on with Mr. Matchine," she began reluctantly, "she will have to take care that he doesn't hear that she is married. We shall have to take care to keep it secret. . . . You'll take care, too, won't you, Eddie?"

"Personally I'm going to let people say and think anything rather than tell them the truth," she added firmly. "You must back me up, because we can never know what may not come to Mr. Matchine's ears. At any rate—as he still made no kind of response—"until George comes home, and you can discuss things with her."

She waited for a moment but there was neither word nor sign. Was he really asleep? No, she was sure he could hear her. She sighed and quietly opened the door. She had a great longing to get out of the bare, poor little room with its orange lace curtains—out into the air.

"Jenny!" The call came just as she was over the threshold. "I hate to bother you about anything," she protested, returning to his side. "But George made me see that it's most frightfully important."

"All right, kid. I'll remember. I'll talk any darn nonsense anybody likes. I'll begin by telling Mrs. Biggers that I've got three wires already. Gon on, you buzz off. I'm sleepy again. Anyway, I've got plenty to think about."

She left him to it. In spite of his nonchalance she knew he was hurt; hurt and bewildered and lonely. So often she had herself been all those things that she knew how he longed to be alone.

She had a final word with Mrs. Biggers, then crossed the road to the hotel and there paid her bill and collected her few possessions. As she was leaving, the clerk called her attention to a note which had, he said, arrived for her by special messenger shortly after she had left that morning.

She opened it. She did not need to look at the signature to read that it was from Garth Agency. He had just the writing she would have imagined for him; big, sprawling and yet orderly.

"I feel sure you didn't really expect me to keep our appointment this morning. Fortunately for me, I heard that you were expected elsewhere. And so, to tell you the truth, was I."

She stared at it, read it again, then tore it into small pieces. "Expected elsewhere?" The words conveyed nothing to her; perhaps they were not meant to. When a man cut an appointment with a girl simply because he could not stand being in her company, it hardly mattered what excuse he sent! She took her way haughtily back to the apartment. Perpetually she seemed to journey to and fro along these hot streets! Was it only yesterday evening that she had left rather than heard his car draw up at the curb and had taken her place at his side? (Copyright, Julia Cleft-Addams)

The doctor shows himself still interested in the marriage tomorrow, and Jenny sees Garth Agency.

PARENT-TEACHERS SEEK 9 MONTHS SCHOOL TERM

(Continued from page one) they were for the preceding year and thirty-five thousand dollars less than they were two years ago. The meeting was in addition to the adoption of the resolutions, a delightful program was enjoyed. Mrs. S. J. Everett presided.

Reports of the secretaries of the three groups showed that considerable good had been accomplished during the past year in providing for undernourished children and in other fields of activities and were heartily commended.

An operetta, "Wairus and the carpenter," was presented by a chorus of 250 children from the fifth, sixth and seventh grades under direction of Misses Eugenia Thomas and Ona Shindler, assisted by other teachers.

Rev. W. H. Covert, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, delivered the address, stressing the need for the teachings of Christ in the life of the children.

The resolutions in detail follow: "We regret the fact that it was necessary to shorten our school term for the present school year, and we have no criticism for the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools or for the Board of Aldermen for taking this action in view of the present financial situation. However, we, the members of the Parent-Teacher Associations of the Training School, Third Street School and West Greenville School in joint meeting assembled, do hereby go on record as asking the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools and the Board of Aldermen of the City of Greenville to use every means possible to bring back to our children for the coming school year a full nine months' school term.

"This request is made and this resolution passed with the knowledge that the operating expenses of the Greenville City Schools are twenty thousand dollars less this year than they were for the preceding year and thirty-five thousand dollars less than they were two years ago. This request is also made in the light of the fact that the finances of the City of Greenville are in as fine shape today as they have been for many years past, and we feel that our city can afford a nine months' school.

"We commend the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools and the Board of Aldermen of the City of Greenville for their economic administration of our city's affairs.

"Be it further resolved by this group assembled that we request the superintendent of schools and the Board of Trustees of the schools to make provision in our schools for continued work in music, both instrumental and vocal. The progress already made is a source of pride to us and we desire to see this work continued with even more emphasis. We hope that some way can be found to make band and orchestra work in our schools free from tuition charges.

"Be it further resolved that copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Mayor of the City of Greenville, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools and to The Daily Reflector."

DO YOU INHALE?

Here goes the last "sacred cow" in cigarette advertising!

INHALING has long been an "untouchable" subject taboo in the tobacco trade... a "sacred cow"! Why? . . . Because in every tobacco leaf—even the finest, the mildest—nature hides certain impurities which, when not removed, are unkind to delicate membranes!

And since, knowingly or unknowingly, we all inhale some part of the smoke from our cigarette—Lucky Strike developed that great scientific process which removes certain impurities. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it! Do you inhale? Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

Mother's Day Banquet. The young people of the Senior Department honored their parents at a beautifully appointed banquet at the Christian Church on Tuesday evening. A Mother's Day accident was given in the colorful red and white roses and the heart motif of place cards. Miniature Madonna pictures preface the attractive programs. James Carr, in a few words, welcomed the guests. A program featuring toasts to mothers and fathers, by Mattie Moye Gaylord and Harold Sugg, respectively, and happily responded to by Mrs. Wilson and B. B. Sugg, was effectively presented by Mrs. Ryan, toastmistress, who opened the program with a charming toast to the home. A poem contest was much enjoyed and disclosed a knack for poetry as well as for homemaking among the guests. Prizes were given for the best poems. The high mark of the evening was the able address of Dr. Reberker on the ideal relationship of parent and child. His suggestion of the happy blending of the sternness of the old era and the tenderness of the new comrade relationship of the present day, was particularly well received by the guests. The spirited singing of nonsense songs, led by Mr. Rowlett, and the very lovely music of Sam Quinley on the violin, added to the pleasure of the program. Guests composed the parents of the pupils in Jack Spain's class, Mrs. Leo Burke's class and the members of the Senior Christian Endeavor. The banquet idea was conceived by Mrs. Ryan, foster mother of the young people. The delicious food was prepared entirely by the young folk, for their parents.

Miss Wright Bridge Hostess. Miss Mary Wright, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Wright, Sr., entertained Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of her parents with one of the loveliest bridge parties of the spring season. The party was given to honor Miss Ruth McLean of Asheville, guest of Mrs. Norman Winslow, and Miss Bruce Tucker, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Jesse Moye were recently announced. The living room, reception hall and music room of the Wright home were artistically decorated with a profusion of spring flowers, carrying out a color scheme of pink and white. Miniature corages of sweet peas were the favors for the ladies, while the men had boutonnieres of white roses. At the conclusion of the playing, the following prizes were awarded: Miss Tucker and Miss McLean, guest prizes of linen and compact; Mrs. Marvin Sugg, high scorer for ladies, a toilet article; Dick Gorman, high scorer for men, cigarettes. The hostess was assisted in serving an ice course by her mother. Eight tables were in play with the following out of town guests: Miss McLean, Asheville; J. Durwood Parker, Dr. W. C. Hunter, Charles Griffin, Wilson; and Miss Hetty Belle Yelverton, Fremont.

Local Store Gives China, Silverware, Linen as Free Gift. A big special sale is being featured this week at the store of Quinn, Miller & Company. Mr. Stroud tells us that this is an idea of his which should delight many local women. During this week, he is giving free of charge a 32-piece set of china, a 26-piece set of guaranteed silverware and a 7-piece luncheon set with each Sellers Kitchen Cabinet he sells. As Mr. Stroud says, a new kitchen cabinet deserves new things to go into it, so he's supplying the dishes and silver as his gift. It seems to us that this offer of his is worth looking into. The display of new Sellers cabinets in his store is worth going in to see, even if you aren't planning to buy right now. A number of new conveniences are being shown which look mighty interesting. Shelves that slide out automatically when the door is opened; bring their contents within easy reach. Ant-proof casters keep these studs out of the cabinet. A top porcelain working top provides a convenient place to prepare meals.

Nine Americans to Attend Court London Tonight

London, May 12.—(AP)—There will be nine American women in the group to be presented to the King and Queen tonight at Buckingham palace. The name of Miss Ella Uppercut, New York City, was added to the list today. The late entry was not the only unusual circumstance, for Miss Uppercut is not to be an embassy presentee, but is being sponsored by a relative, Mrs. H. A. Orme, of London. Some surprise at this procedure was expressed at the embassy, for it is rarely followed, however, since Mrs. Orme herself has been presented it appears that she has the right to sponsor young women who have been studying in England. Last night thirteen Americans courted before their Majesties at the first court of the season. The thirteen presented last night were sponsored by Senofa Regis de Oliveira, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador. They included Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, daughter of United States Ambassador Mellon and Miss Helen Bryan, of Richmond, Va.

Allen's Pitching Aids Yanks in Blanking Browns 3 to 0

BROOKLYN BEATS THE CARDINALS

By GAYLE TALBOT (Associated Press Sports Writer). The New York Yankees no longer are getting the flamboyant batting that had opposing clubs hanging on the ropes the first fortnight of the campaign of the campaign, but their pitching suddenly has become a thing of beauty.

In scoring four consecutive victories over Detroit and St. Louis and setting sail after the flying Washington Senators, Joe McCarthy's curvers have more than atoned for a marked falling off in the club's attack.

In four games the quartet of George Piggas, Charley Ruffin, Vernon Gomez and Young Johnny Allen has allowed only four runs, two of which would have been verted by snapper support. Piggas and Allen have registered shutouts.

Allen, the rookie from Toronto who barely was hanging on until he bobbed up with a great job of relief twirling last week, won himself a starting berth yesterday when he set the Browns down, 3 to 0, on five scattered hits.

The victory enabled the Yanks to narrow the gap between them and the leading Senators to two games. All the other American League teams were weatherbound at Washington, Philadelphia and Boston.

The Brooklyn Dodgers traveled twelve innings to beat out St. Louis, 6 to 3, and break a four-game losing streak. Their three runs in the twelfth were strictly a gift, the compliments of "Wild Bill" Hallahan. In that frame the Cardinal southpaw uncorked three wild pitches, tying the major league record for that specialty, passed one man and allowed three hits.

Jimmy Collins enabled the Cards to carry the fight into extra innings when he smacked his eighth home run in the fourth with Watkins on base.

Cincinnati fans enjoyed a large afternoon as their Reds made it two out of three over the Phillies, 4 to 1. Not only did "Red" Lucas hold the Phils to five hits and his battery mate, Ernie Lombardi, lead an assault on two visiting moundsmen, but there were fistfights in the bargain.

Leo Durocher, displeased when he was tagged out stealing second, planted a right on the jaw of Dick Bartell, Phils shortstop. Bartell went down and Durocher went out. Wind and rain caused postponements at Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Dies From Injuries

Asheville May 12.—(AP)—George Hynie, 15, of Marshall, died in a hospital here today several hours after physicians amputated an arm and foot that were mangled when he fell from a moving freight train yesterday.

DUKE DEVILS PUT DAMPER ON WILDCATS

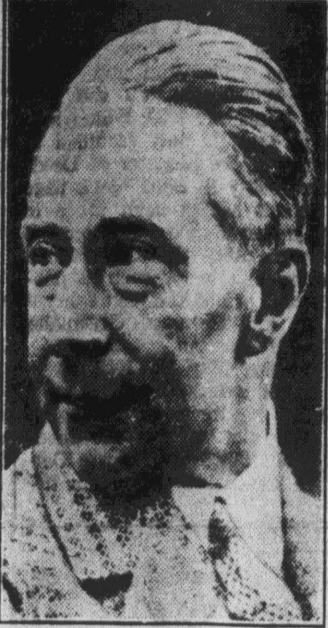

Charlotte, May 12.—(AP)—Defeating Davidson 10 to 2, the Duke Devils yesterday batted their way into a tie with N. C. State for second place in the North Carolina Big Five baseball race.

Tim McKeithan held the Wildcats to four hits, three of which were credited to Mathis, Davidson right fielder, and allowed only two free passes. Croker and West, Davidson hurlers, allowed 11 safe hits, and their team mates contributed four errors.

Wake Forest apparently has the state title clinched, with five victories and no defeats. State and Duke have won 4 and lost 3 each, Carolina has won 2 and lost three, and Davidson has lost all seven of its Big Five starts.

Appalachian, only other Tar Heel aggregation in action yesterday, closed its series with the Paris Island Marines with a 6 to 3 victory after two straight losses.

Pleads For Germany

Former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm of Germany said in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press that Europe's recovery depends upon a peaceful and working Germany, "which would assist also in lifting your American burden."

College Will Have Athletics During Summer

Organized athletics will be featured in the 1932 Summer School. For the first time in some years athletic sports of a diversified nature, and specially directed, will have a place in the summer school life.

Baseball, tennis, volley ball and basketball are being planned for the summer term.

The gymnasium is equipped for basketball and volley ball, and the courts will be conditioned for tennis. The baseball field is rapidly approaching completion and should be in excellent condition in a few days.

The athletic activities for the summer term will be organized not only for the purpose of furnishing recreation for the students, but will be so conducted and supervised as to help teachers in directing athletics, sports and games in the schools.

The summer term athletics will be directed by Prof. Deal, who is now acting as baseball coach for the college squad.

COLLEGIANS LOSE AGAIN

The local Collegians returned from Campbell College late last night with the short end of a 10 to 3 baseball score in a game between the two teams.

Hunsucker pitched a good game for East Carolina Teachers College but received poor support at times. This was Hunsucker's debut in college baseball.

The outstanding play of the game was when a Campbell player knocked a ball labelled for a sure three bagger and King retrieved the ball and threw to Hodges and Hodges relayed it to Thomas to get him out at the plate. A few minutes later Thomas had to be taken out of the game due to a finger injury on a foul tip. All of the Campbell players played a good game.

Batteries for the two teams were Campbell: Hedgepeth and Griffith; East Carolina: Hunsucker and Thomas and Forbes.

"Drawing is Only 10% of a Cartoon"

"It takes everything to make a cartoonist," says the famous originator of the Believe-It-or-Not cartoons. "You've got to be able to draw, of course. But you've also got to have a sense of humor, you've got to know what people are interested in and how human nature performs, and above all, you've got to have originality. It takes everything!"

AND a real gasoline must have everything, too! A high octane rating is not enough. To be quick-starting is not enough.

Gasoline may contain sulphur which you cannot see (though you may be able to smell it).

No gasoline is economical when you pay for it twice. Once when you use it and again when you are paying hard-earned cash for corroded bearings and unnecessary carbon removal jobs.

What you want is trouble-free, low-cost transportation. Power that gets you there without ruining an expensive engine. Power that can be counted on when you need it. Power that starts like a flash—and is still with you at the end of the run.

A gasoline to give you this must have everything.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

New York Cotton

COTTON.—New York, May 12.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 3 to 4 points on trade buying and covering. July sold at 57.

The advances in the Liverpool market, however, was considered a readjustment of differences which have narrowed recently, and after the local demand had been supplied, prices eased under increased offerings which seemed to come partly from the south and commission houses. The selling may have been promoted by the report of the New York cotton exchange service estimating domestic consumption for April at only 390,000 bales compared with 489,000 in March and 509,000 last year, while reports of an easier tone in the stock market were contributing factors.

By the end of the first half hour active months were 3 to 4 points net lower with July at 56 1/2 and December at 60 1/2. Liverpool cables said the advance there was due to local and foreign buying and covering influenced by the lower Bank of England rate and reported improved cloth demand from India and South America.

Grain Market

Chicago, May 12.—(AP)—Wheat prices developed increasing instability today and during the late transactions in particular underwent sharp downturns.

It became more and more evident that wheat was without aggressive buying support. The last hour of trading witnessed stop loss offerings on a broadening scale, with rallies feeble and far between.

Stock Market

New York, May 12.—(AP)—Selling started in rail shares and gradually embraced virtually the entire list today in the stock market.

The market remained sluggish, but the firmer tendency of recent sessions disappeared, and several of the rails penetrated new low ground. The market seemed more intent upon dividend cuts and the generally low state of trade, than upon remedial measures such as efforts toward international credit expansion, as indicated in the Bank of England's rate cut.

Union Pacific sagged more than 3 points, going under 50, on announcement of reduction of its dividend. Santa Fe slipped about as much, to a new low. Miscellaneous issues off 1 to 2 points included American Telephone, American Can, U. S. Steel, N. Y. Central, Standard of New Jersey, Eastman, Coca Cola, Allied Chemical, Dupont, Woolworth, Sears, United Aircraft, American Tobacco "B" Case, and others. Some of the preferred shares were again soft, notably those of Johns Manville, Case and Adams Express.

Union Pacific's reduction of its quarterly dividend to $1.50 from $2.50 was less drastic than expected in some quarters. Halving of the payment had been freely predicted. But selling, nonetheless, appeared from various sources, not in large volume, but sufficient to depress the generally feeble market. Selling of Santa Fe was coupled with the estimates of a reduced wheat crop.

The federal problems of taxation continued to hold Wall Street's attention, and bankers still reiterated that little in the way of recovery could be expected until uncertainties on that score were lifted.
