BOSSSES RALLY THEIR FORCES

Gov. Murray of Oklahoma Reaches Chicago With Declaration That Doing Away With Old Rule Would Mean Disaster; College President Sees Another Party if Two Thirds Rule is Eliminated; Roosevelt Forces Confident

Chicago, June 24.—(AP)—Anti-Roosevelt warriors from half a dozen presidential camps rallied today around the time-worn standard of the two-thirds rule to resist the confident march of the Rooseveltians against it.

Threats of a third party came from both this dispute and the top over the platform. Gov. Murray of Oklahoma, one of the presidential contenders, said abrogation of the rule would mean the breakdown of the party.

A university president told the resolutions committee failure to take a clear, unequivocal stand on economic issues would result in a new party being set up.

From the followers of most of the presidential candidates who have opened quarters, including Garner, Byrd, Smith and Traylor, there came protests against abolition of the rule. Senator Glass of Virginia, one of the party stalwarts, joined in them.

James A. Farley, leader for Franklin D. Roosevelt, said, however, his group already had counted noses and went confidently ahead with plans for the fight against it.

Governor Murray predicted that if the Roosevelt forces succeeded in abolishing the two-thirds rule a third party would be set up.

The Oklahoma governor, one of the numerous contenders for the presidential nomination, said, "If the Roosevelt people are successful in abrogating the two-thirds rule it will mean that Governor Roosevelt cannot be elected."

"Why, we will destroy our own party if we destroy the two-thirds rule," he added. "We might as well nominate poor old Champ Clark, long since dead. He was deserving of nomination."

"If the Roosevelt people put it over it will mean a third party."

Threat of a third party was voiced before the resolutions committee by Robert M. Hutchins, president of Chicago University, in demanding a "clear, unequivocal stand on economic issues."

The youthful university president told the Democratic platform markers that the "Republican platform brings no response in our hearts" and asserted unless the democrats "meet the issues a third party will arise."

The Democrats enthusiastically applauded Hutchins who had only two minutes in which to speak. Senator Hull of Tennessee and William G. McAdoo of California joined in obtaining an extension of time for his remarks.

Professor W. Gaston and Robert C. Rand, who proceeded Hutchins, advocated a program calling for repeal of the tariff, repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the veterans allowances.

WOMAN IS NOT AFTER MONEY

Miss St. Pierre Merely Attempting To "Show Up" David Hutton in Trial.

Los Angeles, June 24.—(AP)—Money, says Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, is not her main desire in the $200,000 breach of promise suit against David Hutton, singer husband of the evangelist, Aimee Semple McPherson.

The 30-year-old, pretty, brunette, twice-married nurse confided to friends: "All I want to do now is to show that man up in a big way."

The husky Hutton, a baritone, doesn't think there is any possibility of a verdict being given against him, but said if it was, he had no money to pay.

"I haven't been making any money lately, and it's a cinch Aimee is not going to pay her off," he told friends as Miss St. Pierre was called into court today for further cross-examination on her story of how the choir singer allegedly betrayed her under promise of marriage.

Miss St. Pierre testified that after Hutton gave her a cold shoulder, she was for the most part ill and confined to bed. She said she had been in bed two days before hearing the radio broadcast announcing Hutton's marriage to Aimee, but immediately thereafter she was "up in the air."

Two days after the radio broadcast lifted her out of bed, she admitted on cross-examination, she hurried to Lorrin Andrews, an attorney, about filing her damage suit.

The cross-examination brought bitter exchanges between Miss St. Pierre's counsel and the defense, forcing Superior Judge Lester Roth to take a hand in the proceedings.

"Did you kiss Mr. Hutton?" asked Mark Jones, one of the defense attorneys.

"He kissed me," was the nurse's answer.

"And you're sure you didn't kiss him?"

"When a person is kissed on the mouth by another person, both of them are kissing and being kissed," was the rejoinder, which brought a warning from the court that the giggling spectators would be ordered out after another giggle.

Railway Hearing Is At Standstill

Raleigh, June 24.—(AP)—Litigation over the Atlantic & Yadkin railroad's request for permission to abandon its Sanford-Mount Airy passenger service was at a standstill today while the railroad and respondents prepared additional data to place before the State Corporation Commission here.

Attorneys representing citizens and business concerns along the line contended before the commission yesterday that that body had no legal right to grant the request because the railroad's franchise of 1839 called for freight and passenger service.

The railroad's counsel, however, claimed that discontinuance of the passenger service would not void the franchise, because bus lines have been granted the right to compete with the passenger trains.

The respondents were notified to file supplementary briefs to their demurrer by next Wednesday, and the railroad will have five days after that to answer.

ABOUT TOWN

Expert swimmers, like expert automobile drivers, lose their lives more frequently than the inexperienced swimmer, according to figures compiled by experts of the nation.

This should cause young people who have been making a habit of swimming in the river to pause and consider the danger which confronts them each time they go into this water.

The treacherous river currents claimed the life of an expert swimmer hardly over a week ago. He probably would have been living now had he not attempted to cross the river at the point where most young people make a habit of swimming at this time.

Life is far too precious to be jeopardized in this way and it is hoped parents will take a hand and attempt to halt this unnecessary exposure to the danger of the cross currents of the local river.

It would be better that they never go swimming again rather than take such chances and it is hoped a concerted movement will be started to bring the practice to an end.

Prohibition will be in the line of light of the coming presidential election, but if certain Democrats have their way economic conditions are going to hold the main stage.

This sentiment is being expressed by supporters of Roosevelt, who are fully aware that action of the Republican party is going to make it necessary for the Democrats to do something to meet the situation.

Just how far they will go, however, is a matter of conjecture and nobody will know what is going to happen at the Chicago meeting until organization has been completed and the ballyhoo started.

Carrying relief to thousands of half-starved, ragged men and women should be the prime objective of both parties, and when they have done that they might turn the light on the prohibition question if there is no way of getting around it, and apparently there isn't.

"I wish you would call attention of the public to the advisability of cutting rank growth of weeds immediately," George Clark, chief of police, requested this paper today.

War on weeds was declared by the department several days ago and Mr. Clark said this will continue until every unsightly place has been cleaned up and made presentable.

The elimination of weeds is required by a city ordinance as a means of increasing sanitation and safeguarding the health of the populace, Mr. Clark said. It decreases breeding mosquitoes and helps relieve the various communities of this form of pest during the hot summer months.

Everybody should make an effort to co-operate with the department in this campaign from a standpoint of civic pride and to prevent being summoned before city court to answer to their failure for not abiding by the law.

"Can all you can" during the summer months against want of the winter season, is the advice sent out by leading men and women of the nation.

The wisdom of this advice was presented in a forceful and convincing way during the past fall and winter when food crops conserved from last summer prevented acute suffering in many of the communities.

Home canning plants have been distributed among farm women by stores of Greenville and by virtue of the fact that several plants have gone into additional communities this year it is believable canning will be conducted upon a more extensive scale than last season.

Then, too, a canning plant has been opened in Greenville where those without home plants may

Gambler's Throw

By EUSTACE L. ADAMS

SYNOPSIS: The members of Ashwood's "house party," whom he is holding for ransom, are awakened by a scream to find one of their number murdered. Stevens, a detective, Calhoun and Battles, intercepted before they attacked Ashwood's island, are awaiting a chance to help Nancy Wentworth and the other captives.

Chapter 23 ON THE BEACH

Beneath the washstand in the far corner was a steel and silver knife, its edge still gleaming redly in the light. A few inches away lay a wrinkled napkin, its corner and edge drenched with blood.

Stevens stood at the edge of the washstand, looking down at the exhibits, studying knife and napkin intently. He lifted the latter very gingerly, holding it by the edge with his thumb and forefinger. He carried it beneath the light and studied it, inch by inch. Then, with a depressed sigh, he handed it to Jerry.

"No use looking for finger prints without a microscope," he said regretfully. "Might as well pick up the knife, too. The bird that did Williams in stole the knife and the napkin at dinner time, wrapped the handle of the knife in the napkin, so as not to leave any prints. Better take care of them, kid, and we'll look them over in the morning. But I don't believe we'll find anything."

"I'll send for Alfred and see from whose place the things were stolen," suggested Ashwood.

"No use," declared the detective pessimistically. "If the feller was smart enough to cover up his finger prints this way he wouldn't have stolen the tools from his own place. Might be the best way of finding out who did not do it, though. The one whose things were missing is innocent."

He roved around the room restlessly, his faded eyes examining everything. Then he straightened up, looked at Ashwood and shook his head.

"One of these homicide experts could find a lot, maybe, with the proper instruments - microscope, chemicals, and such. But I don't see a thing that looks like a clue. The fibre of this rug doesn't hold the imprint of my own feet, even, for more than two-three seconds after I step down hard on it. No bloody finger marks except those this poor devil made when he tried to crawl off the bed. Clothes aren't mussed and no attempt made at robbery. Don't see any motive at all."

"All right, then," snapped Ashwood decisively. "I'll lock the door and have the men clean up in the morning."

The three filed out silently. The others, Lucci, Mallory, Martin, Battles and Hamilton, were still standing nervously in the hall, guarded by the armed and vigilant Mueller. The cripple locked the door, then wheeled about and faced the others.

"Gentlemen," he announced curtly, "someone has just murdered Mr. Williams. If any of you have heard any suspicious sounds this evening, I would like you to tell me."

There was a shuddering gasp from one of the listening men, but all stood there, gazing at Ashwood as though hypnotized. He surveyed each of them in turn, in the order of their nearness to the door leading into the scene of the tragedy.

Then, amid the deathly silence that hung over the strange tableau, the sound of running feet was heard. Something caused a chill to run through the listeners. It seemed to come to all, simultaneously, that the rapidly approaching man was bringing news that would add to the horror of the night.

Ashwood's face split, waited. One of the guards, panting, raced down the corridor. Seeing the strange group, he hesitated, his eyes darting from one white face to another. Then he blurted out his news.

"Boss, Di Michael's been croaked, throat cut. His gat and all his ammunition's gone."

Ashwood again scanned the face of each man who stood there in the hall. He studied each expression searchingly, lingering, as though he might read the guilt or innocence of each in the breathless silence which had enveloped them all like a fog. At length, his face showing no shadow of emotion, he stepped forward.

"Will you gentlemen kindly go to your rooms and remain there?" His tone was more a suggestion than a command.

"Hell," burst out Lucci, his face contorted. "I'm going to sit in the big room. I'm not going to have anyone creeping in and sitting my pipes for me."

The cripple studied Lucci's face

take care of their demands at a nominal cost.

Conservation of farm products has been the crying need of this part of the state for years and now enthusiasm has been aroused, everybody should get behind the movement and see that it grows until every family has enough food-stuffs laid by at the end of the harvest season to take care of them until the coming of another crop.

thoughtfully. "You may suit yourself about sitting up," he acknowledged indifferently, "but if you do, it will be in the safety and the seclusion of your own room. If anyone disturbs your meditations, you may shout for assistance. Mueller will stand watch here in the hall."

There was an instant's silence. Jerry tensed his muscles in anticipation of a sudden clash. Lucci glanced at Mallory who, now cold sober, returned the look meaningly. The flyer was amazed to note that for the moment, at least, these two were allies, not enemies. He saw Mallory's heavy form gather itself for a spring. Lucci, too, stood on the balls of his feet, his hands opening and shutting.

Ashwood backed swiftly against the wall, his gun pointing at Lucci's midriff. Mueller's automatic covered Mallory. The outside guard moved close to the gangster, patting him deftly in search for a weapon. The gangster's malevolent eyes glanced at the armed men, then he relaxed and submitted docilely to the search. Mallory, too, was swiftly examined. Jerry could see the fine beads of perspiration upon the turbulent stockbroker's brow as, by sheer force of will, the man gained control of himself.

"Stevens," said Ashwood, at last, "I wonder if you would accompany me?"

"Sure," replied the detective. "Calhoun," continued the cripple, "I'd be glad if you and Battles would remain here until we return. You two will please leave your doors open."

Mr. Hamilton laughed, an edged note of hysteria in his voice. He went to his room, bolted the door, but the sound of his shrill laughter was still audible. One after another the others turned away to follow the cripple's instructions. Ashwood, Stevens and the guards were left alone in the hall.

Wordlessly, the detective, the cripple and the outside guard walked to the beach, where bathed in the steely glare of the moon, lay a huddled, distorted figure. A ghastly black smear across his throat told of the manner of his death.

Ashwood and Stevens search for clues tomorrow, and Ashwood tells his theories of crime.

EAST - WEST SPLIT HONORS IN THE MAJORS

By HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer

Taken by and large, honors in the intersection series just concluded rested with the home clubs—the western teams in the American league and the eastern outfits in the National.

There was no question as to the all-around superiority of the East in the National circuit. Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn and Boston won 31 games and lost 24 to the four western clubs.

In the American league, it took the sensational play of the St. Louis Browns and the complete collapse of the Boston Red Sox to turn the tide to the West, 34 victories against 31 defeats.

The Cubs closed their National league trip in the East, yesterday by dropping a slugging match to the Phillies, 16-0, as Chuck Klein hit his 21st homer with the bases filled in the fifth. The Boston Braves whipped Brooklyn, 8-7 in ten innings. Al Spohrer's triple after Maranville's single, breaking up the game. The Giants got fine pitching from Fred Fitzsimmons and walloped the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-1.

In the American, Goose Goslin hammered out three home runs, driving in seven runs, and the Browns defeated the Yankees, 14-10. Babe Ruth hit his 22nd homer and Lou Gehrig his 18th in a hopeless cause.

George Earnshaw stopped the Chicago White Sox with four hits and the Athletics won a rare verdict in a game marred by nice errors. The Detroit Tigers made it four in a row from the hapless Red Sox. Home runs by Joe Judge and Heinie Manush helped Washington beat Cleveland, 6-1.

Golf Ball Does Damage
Kinston—Heber McGlohon, who keeps the Country Club golf course here, told court that a golf ball driven by Harvey C. Hines, a business man, hit him in the eye and permanently impaired his sight. A consent verdict of $1,750 was awarded.

CAPS TAKE TWO IN ROW FROM TWINS

Charlotte, June 24.—(AP)—Holding on to their lead of the Piedmont League with tenacity, the Raleigh Capitals went to Durham today to engage the cellar-place Bulls in a series which they hoped would put them farther ahead of Asheville than they already were.

The Tourists, on the other hand, had almost as good prospects, since they stayed at home today to meet the Wilmington Pirates, whose many losses made them just a little above the bottom position.

With the Twins at Greensboro and Charlotte at High Point, the battle for the Piedmont flag went on apace with every first division team fighting for a better percentage. The Twins today were leading the second division trailers by only a small margin.

Facing the necessity of making up for its two losses to Charlotte on the day before, the Capitals combatted the Bees twice again yesterday, and won both tilts. Two rookie pitchers turned the tricks. Buck Taylor defeated the Hornets in the afternoon, 3-2, and at night Bobby McFadden whipped them decisively 8-1. And the Caps needed those two wins; this left them only one game ahead of the fast climbing Tourists.

Asheville took the former league toppers, the Twins, into camp to the tune of 3-2. It was their third straight victory over the Twins.

SICK HEADACHE From Constipation

HERE is a purely vegetable medicine which has benefited thousands of men, women and children, and which you should try when troubled with constipation, or biliousness. Mr. H. H. Rogillo, of Lake Charles, La., writes: "When I let myself get constipated, I feel dull and sluggish and all out of sorts, not equal to my work. When one has this feeling it is time to take something before he feels worse. I certainly have found Black-Draught quick to relieve. I used to have severe headaches and suffer a great deal. I found this came from constipation, and that Black-Draught would correct it. That is why I began using Thedford's

ANNOUNCEMENT!

I hereby announce my candidacy for membership in the House of Representatives from Pitt County, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary to be held July 2nd.

I believe the first and most important function of Democratic Government is the education of its youth.

The state should pay the entire expense of the six month's school term WITHOUT ANY TAX ON LAND.

I am opposed to spending more for any kind of Governmental service than the people are able to pay and then issuing bonds to pay deficits, as we have sometimes done in the past.

There should be no bond issue without a vote of the people, except for refunding bonds already outstanding.

I favor re-valuation of land and all real estate at its true value.

I stand for strict, though sound economy in all departments of our Government.

Your vote and support will be greatly appreciated.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

New York Cotton

New York, June 24.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 2 higher on steady Liverpool cables and buying by trade interests but gains were small owing to the favorable weather in the South. July 5.20; October 5.46; December 5.60; January 5.68; March 5.84; May 5.99.

Except for the July liquidation and switching from near to late months, trading continued quiet after the opening and orders appeared to be evenly divided. Crop advices from the southwest were less favorable and tended to check selling on the better weather advices. A report from Dallas said high temperatures, while mostly beneficial, had caused some damage in areas rapidly becoming too dry, with shedding in parts of South Texas. July contracts were holding around 5.21 and December 5.61 at the end of the first half hour or about 2 points net higher. Liverpool cables reported covering and trade calling promoted by the firmness in Alexandria and said there was an expanding demand for cotton cloth and yarns. Egyptian futures in the Alexandria market were 11 to 21 higher.

Grain Market

Chicago, June 24.—(AP)—Overcome by bearish influence of the course of securities, grains turned downward today after an early display of firmness.

Aside from anxiety about black rust menace and relative to grasshoppers damage crop reports continued favorable both as to the American and Canadian spring wheat outlook. Export demand for North American wheat remained slack.

Stock Market

New York, June 24.—(AP)—The general level of share prices came close to the cyclical low of June 1, as demand all but disappeared from the market today, and prices gave way under meagre offerings.

Santa Fe dropped 3 points to the lowest price since 1900, and Allied Chemical lost as much, registering a new low since 1921. American Can dipped nearly 2 points, to the lowest since it was split up six years ago. American Telephone duplicated its previous low with a similar drop. U. S. Steel common went off more than a point to a new low under 24, and the preferred went under 57 for a 3-point loss. Union Pacific lost 3, and issues of a point or so included Consolidated Gas, National Biscuit, American Tobacco, B. Liggett and Myers, B. Drug Dupont, Continental Can, and others. A few issues, including Telephone and the tobacco, were up a point or so for a time in the first hour.

The market appeared to be unsettled primarily by the approach of dividend action of Santa Fe, American Can, and Allied Chemical shares. Directors of these three corporations are slated to meet on Tuesday. Also, the prolongation of the session of Congress by the knotty and controversial problem of relief legislation, and the prospect that the Democratic platform would take an important stand on economic problems, added to uncertainties.

The market showed no sign of relief at the announcement that the Senate hearings in connection with its investigation of trading had been adjourned for the summer.

RELIEF BILL IN CONFERENCE

County officers made the arrest but P. S. Attorney W. N. Ivie of the western district of Arkansas announced at Fort Smith the two would be held for federal authorities under the law law just signed by the President which makes transporting kidnapped persons across a state line a federal offense.

The confessed bandits readily admitted they had robbed the bank of Baskin near Monroe, La., last Tuesday and exchanged shots with pursuers, but said they did not know anyone had been killed.

Deputy Sheriff Elmo Ferguson of Rayville was shot to death in an exchange with the hunted men at a bridge near Warsaw Landing, La.

In the running gun fight that ensued, four other possemen received wounds and a woman companion of Mrs. Mabel Beck of Birmingham, Ala., was shot down and captured.

Early in the fight, the bandits kidnapped Ferryman S. D. Caldwell in the Louisiana swamp country.

Wednesday night, the bandits went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Taylor of Franklin Parish, La., got them out of bed on a pretext they were needed to care for a sick woman, and then forced the two to drive them onward in an effort to escape into Oklahoma.

Bearden and Thomas said a third man had been with them but left the party early yesterday at Ruston, La.

can. About four gallons of the fluid had been extracted when Jackson, police said, turned and saw the cop waiting for him.

A chase ensued and it is probable Officer Brewer might have been left behind had it not been for several young men who joined in the chase and eventually overtook Jackson and held him until the officer arrived.

Jackson was taken to the police station for confinement but bond was arranged and he was released pending hearing the next session of County court.

SEE END OF CAPONE RULE

That civil warfare may wreck the syndicate and free the city from its encircling talons was the theory advanced today by a high enforcement official.

On his desk lay a diagram of all branches of the vast Capone empire from which the jailed gangster derived his princely income. They spread, talon-like, from the heart of the loop to the outermost limits and suburbs.

The underworld, he said, at this very minute might be sitting on a powder magazine of gang strife unequalled in intensity since the bloodshed that accompanied Capone's rise to power.

And the gangster whose followers Capone men were believed by investigators to have decimated in the St. Valentine's Day "massacre" of 1929—George (Bugs) Moran, mortal enemy of Capone—may be the man to set the spark.

"Public Enemy" George (Red) Barker was mowed down by machine gunners last week. His funeral was typical of gangland. Seventeen auto loads of flowers followed him to the grave. Capone lieutenants—his friends—carried the casket.

Who killed Barker? Gangland or hard ridden racket victims?

The official, who declined to be named to preserve the efficiency of his enforcement unit, says: "Only the men who pulled the trigger and the men who hired them. But the next killing will tell."

BRUMMITT REGINS PROBE OF ELECTION IRREGULARITY CHARGES IN SURRY COUNTY

After reading the affidavit this morning, Brummitt said "This is not a trial, no one is a defendant and no one is prosecuting. This is only an effort to find out the true facts."

Fifteen witnesses testified up to noon-time today, but none of them produced testimony to support the charge of irregularities in the voting.

Democratic officials in five precincts and Republican officials in three precincts paraded to the witness stand. Each of them in turn denied there had been anything improper in the conduct of the primary, so far as he knew.

Assisting Brummitt in his investigation are Assistant Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell and Solicitor Carlyle W. Higgins of the 11th judicial district.

VETS REFUSE TO EVACUATE fight at the polls at home. W. W. Waters, of Portland, Oregon, commander in chief of the veterans reported: "We are dipping in."

It appealed to the men not to leave and issue an order requiring them to secure passes from their headquarters before departing. A good many, however, were leaving anyhow but others continued to "take their places."

An increase of panhandling on the Washington streets, in defiance of orders from veteran leaders, and complaints by merchants that some of the men were coming in groups and virtually demanding contributions, were noted by authorities. They feared that if food at the camps became scarce, these activities would grow to menacing proportions.

leaders they had followed in martial parade across Virginia's plains and hills in never-to-be-forgotten campaigns and skirmishes, but the line of march today led them past the statues of Southland's greatest chieftains.

The parade route led up Monument avenue, past the statue of J. E. B. Stuart, cavalry leader, past the monument of Robert Edward Lee, past the monument of President Jefferson Davis, and past the monument to Thomas Jonathan Jackson—the great "Stonewall."

The Stars and Stripes and the Stars and Bars fluttered overhead. Bands played "Dixie."

Tomorrow the lines form again for another parade in a different setting. Up Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington the gray-clad band will march past the White House where seventy years ago Abraham Lincoln directed the forces that finally subdued them.

It is likely, however, that they will not be greeted by President Hoover who probably will be en route to his camp on the Rapidan, but will be reviewed by Charles F. Adams, secretary of the navy.
