McKeller Seeks to Draw President Out On Debt Reduction Controversy

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—A resolution to request President Hoover to inform the Senate whether there is any foundation for reports that the United States has expressed to foreign nations a willingness to reduce debts, and if so, by what authority such action has been taken, was introduced today by Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.).

Shortly before introduction of the resolution the State Department had said in a statement there was no change in the attitude of the American government on the question of war debts from the views outlined by President Hoover last June when he said he did not approve cancellation, but that further temporary adjustments would be necessary.

"The American government is pleased that, in reaching an agreement on the question of reparations, the nations assembled in Lausanne have made a great step forward in the stabilization of the economic situation in Europe.

"On the question of war debts owing to the United States by European governments there is no change in the attitude of the American government which was clearly expressed in the President's statement concerning the proposed moratorium on inter-governmental debts on June 20 of last year."

The statement came shortly after Representative Snel, of New York, the Republican leader, had said the attitude of President Hoover had not changed and he did not expect the State Department to take any action.

McKellar pointed out that in approving the moratorium Congress had declared its opposition to further change in the debts.

Another resolution was presented by Senator Gore (D., of Oklahoma) requesting the State Department to ascertain if any nations indebted to the United States desired to transfer any colonial possessions to this country in lieu of cash payment of the debts.

Meanwhile, Senator Reed (R., Pennsylvania), an administration supporter, reiterated his opposition to further revision of the debts.

"Germany, almost completely disarmed, has shown she is unable to pay reparations," Reed said. "The people owing us are paying many times for armaments what they are required to pay."

Await Report On Prohibition

Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 9.—(AP)—Carefully guarding the contents of its pronouncement regarding prohibition, the Methodist Board of Temperance and Social Service occupied itself with other matters today, awaiting Sunday morning, when the result of the pronouncement committee's work is to be made public.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., president of the board, or Dr. Eugene L. Crawford, secretary, will read the pronouncement Sunday, at a service at which Bishop Cannon will deliver a sermon. Possible reference to prohibition and the other contents of the report in that sermon will be his only statement regarding it prior to his return to Washington, the bishop said.

SAYS NO PROBE IS NECESSARY FOR TREASURY

Rep. Snell Declares Investigation Demanded by Garner Will Not Be Made

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—Speaker Garner told newspapermen today that if the Republican organization in the House thought it best for the country not to investigate the treasury department at this time because of the alarm disclosures might cause he would defer it temporarily.

Garner made the assertion shortly after Rep. Snell of New York, Republican leader, held told newspapermen the resolution calling for investigation would not be passed. Snell said there was no reason for such an investigation.

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—Despite Speaker Garner's advocacy, Rep. Snell of New York, the Republican leader, today declared that he would not support a resolution to investigate the treasury department at this time because of the alarm disclosures might cause he would defer it temporarily.

The public is cordially invited to attend each Sunday evening and take advantage of the messages delivered by pastors of the churches of the city.

Administration Opposes Total Debt Cancellation

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—A reaffirmation of the administration's opposition to any total cancellation of war debts to the United States was made today by Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader.

Snell, asked about President Hoover's position, pointed to a copy of the Chief Executive's statement in June, 1931, in which he said: "I do not approve in any remote sense of the cancellation of the debts to us."

"I am very sure," Snell asserted, "there has been no change in the position," he said.

VACCINE MAY CONTROL T. B.

Dr. Frost of Wisconsin Announces Discovery After 29 Years of Research

Milwaukee, Wis., July 9.—(AP)—In a copyright story, the Milwaukee Sentinel today said 29 years of research by Dr. William D. Frost, agricultural bacteriologist at the University of Wisconsin, have been rewarded by discovery of a vaccine "Tubuvase," which ultimately may bring partial control of tuberculosis.

The scientist, in confirming the story, warned against assumption that "Tubuvase" was either a sure cure or a certain means of prevention. He has not yet completed his experiments.

Results of experiments on guinea pigs and rabbits, the Sentinel said, indicated the vaccine was beneficial for immunization.

"It is a line of work surely worth following," Dr. Frost commented. Dr. Frost, in preparing the vaccine, the Sentinel related, followed the method of Dr. Harry Steenbock, bacteriologist, who discovered he could increase vitamin content of food by use of the ultraviolet light.

Italian Ship To Attempt Save Submarine Crew

Cherbourg, France, July 9.—(AP)—The Italian salvage ship Artiglio and Rosta prepared today to attempt what many experts considered the almost impossible—the salvage of the sunken French submarine Promethee and the rescue of her crew, if any of them is alive.

The two salvage ships arrived at 10 a. m. and proceeded directly to the arsenal to take on equipment for the rescue attempt.

Vice-Admiral de Do, chief of the maritime prefecture, said this morning it would be a most difficult task. "That the depth (the submarine is lying about 245 feet below the surface) the divers will be working in pitch darkness," he said.

"But we will first try to pass chains around the hull to permit the use of lifting gear, and it might also be possible to drag the submarine to shallower water."

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—A reaffirmation of the administration's opposition to any total cancellation of war debts to the United States was made today by Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader.

POOL TO OPEN AT NIGHT HERE

To afford an opportunity to swimmers unable to take advantage of the pool during the day, Westbrook swimming pool will begin opening four nights to the week next week, it was announced today by C. W. Porter, who is in charge of the pool's operation.

Swimmers will have a chance to take a plunge Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. This will allow two hours for one of the most popular diversions of summer months and scores of people not able to visit the pool during the day were expected to attend and enjoy a swim at night.

Mr. Porter stated that water tests this year were even better than last year, and that the pool's rating from a health standpoint was probably the best of any other place of the kind in this part of the State.

CLERIC RAPS HITCH-HIKERS

Hitch-hikers, in the opinion of Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, are nothing but "human parasites who want to get somewhere on the other fellow's gas."

Speaking at the regular session of the Kiwanis Club in the Woman's Club building last night, the minister deplored the widespread tendency to catch free rides from one section of the country to the other, and expressed belief that other states would pass a law prohibiting hitch-hiking as was recently done in the state of Virginia.

"This business of trying to obtain something other than through our own effort, the speaker said, is not confined alone to the highways, but to practically every field of human endeavor. Men and women hitch-hikers may be found in business, social, civic, commercial and religious life of the nation and world, he stated.

There are thousands in the business field forever striving to take advantage of what the other fellow has done and getting by at their expense, he asserted. The ethical standard of such people was described as negligible and in keeping with the questionable conduct of their (Continued on Page Four)

Special Venire Summoned for Trial of Scales

Winston-Salem, July 9.—(AP)—A special venire of 100 is being summoned for jury duty Wednesday morning to try the case of Wallace Scales, charged with burglary of the A. H. Galloway home here in March, 1931.

Scales, member of a prominent Greensboro family, is alleged to have been one of the two men who entered the home, broke up a bridge party and robbed the guests of $20,000 in jewels.

Scales was arrested recently at Salisbury on liquor law violation charges and brought here following the confession to police in New York of William Pryor, who said it was he and Scales who executed the robbery.

This confession, however, cannot be used by the state, it was said, as direct evidence but the contents may be used as a basis for questioning.

Actress to Wed After Divorce

Hollywood, July 9.—(AP)—The contemplated "friendly divorce" of Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes, both of the screen, had taken a surprising turn today with the announcement of George Brent, leading man for the actress, that he and Miss Chatterton will be married as soon as the Reno ink is dry on the divorce papers.

"This was all decided before Miss Chatterton left for Europe, but we tried to keep it a secret," said Brent. "We plan marriage, but the time is indefinite because of the divorce."

Forbes is in Reno where, according to his announcement, he planned to establish residence for the convenience of Miss Chatterton, who is touring Europe. Forbes intimated he planned to allow her to get the divorce on grounds of incompatibility.

Miss Chatterton and Forbes were married eight years ago after a stage romance. Forbes had announced their separation was on "the friendliest" of terms. He said they would remain friends.

R. T. FOUNTAIN ADMITS LOSING

Raleigh, N. C., July 9.—(AP)—An official canvass Monday of the result of last Saturday's Democratic run-off primary had been given the status of a mere formality today.

Lieut. Governor R. F. Fountain, of Rocky Mount, who trailed John C. B. Ehringhaus, of Elizabeth City, in the gubernatorial race, erased all doubts as to his position last night in a formal statement congratulating his opponent and conceding defeat.

Fountain released his statement when he learned that official returns from 98 of the State's 100 counties gave his opponents a majority of about 12,000 votes. The State Board of Elections Monday is to formally announce returns from all counties.

The defeated man pledged Ehringhaus "whole-hearted and loyal support in the coming election."

Ehringhaus termed the statement "fine, sportsman-like and generous," and said was himself preparing a formal statement.

With the last shadow of a doubt of the result of Saturday's primary erased—as Robert R. Reynolds won the United States Senate nomination by 100,000 votes and A. L. Fletcher got that for Commissioner of Labor by 60,000—political interest here continued to center on the selection of the Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

Major L. P. McLendon, of Durham, who managed Ehringhaus' campaign, said yesterday in Durham that his name would be offered for the chairmanship, but last night he held another conference with the gubernatorial (Continued on Page Four)

INDIVIDUAL LOANS PASS

Reconstruction Corporation Will Be Permitted to Make Individual Loans From Fund of $1,500,000,000; Other Provisions Would Set up Loans to States or Provide Loans for Jobless

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—Senate approval today completed congressional action on the $1,500,000,000 unemployment relief bill.

It now goes to the White House for an almost certain veto from the President.

As finally approved the bill provided for loans to individuals, the provision which aroused a sharp conflict between President Hoover and Speaker Garner.

These loans will be made by the Reconstruction Corporation from a fund of $1,500,000,000 created under the bill.

The vote was 43 to 31. There is little likelihood however, that President Hoover will have an opportunity to veto the bill today. It has yet to be signed by Speaker Garner and the House is in recess over the week-end. He must sign it during a session of the House.

Twenty-nine Democrats voted with 14 Republican to approve the conference report in the Senate, and 25 Republicans, 5 Democrats and Shipstead, the lone Farmer-Laborite, opposed adoption of the bill.

ABOUT TOWN

Another flight intended to set a new airplane record around the world has failed and all because control trouble caused the fliers to get off their route and land in the wrong place.

Had it not been for this trouble, it is possible that Madsen and Griffin would still be speeding around the globe seeking to lower the record set by two famous fliers not so long ago.

Fortunately, the fliers were not injured when their plans cracked up in landing in the Russian peat field and will still be afforded another opportunity to add laurels to their name.

Men of the air take great risks on trips of this kind because they are forced to traverse some of the most dangerous parts of the world under conditions not all favorable. Had these two fliers been able to hold the speed between America and Berlin they probably would have lowered the old record by a day or more.

Every century has had its trail blazers and America at this time is witnessing one of the most eventful epochs in all of her long and eventful history. Much of the future achievement of the world depends upon aviation, and each attempt made to improve this field of science always receives undivided attention from peoples of all nations.

American naval experts at Geneva do not like Britain's proposal for naval reductions in that it is beyond that suggested by President Hoover.

It was evident at the outset that all governments would not agree on this important matter and Great Britain was the first expected to show disagreement.

The outcome of the controversy is problematical at this time, but a decision must be had and our criticism of Britain's stand is not going to improve the situation. If the British are shown where they are wrong maybe they will fell like coming across, but they will not recede from their position until they have been convinced of it.

Funds to the Westrock swimming pool were contributed in a gratifying way yesterday, and it was expected by promoters to realize the goal of $200 within the next few days.

The public realize what the pool is doing toward reduction of loss of life from drowning and impairment of health and will not be slow to rally to this call for support.

The pool is an asset to the community, enjoyed by both inexperienced and experienced swimmers and people should be glad to contribute to the fund and help make its operation certain for the remainder of the summer months.

The city has started out on an entirely new economy plan this year with a 10 per cent reduction of salaries of all employees.

As result of the saving program started last year, the government saved thousands of dollars as compared with cost of operation the previous year, and is desirous of showing still further gains during the present year.

The council adopted a budget last year and never varied from it during the entire year. That was responsible for the saving and should be instrumental in the realization of still greater economy during the new fiscal year.

This is one of the most trying periods in history for both city and county governments and they must reduce debts and at the same time keep up with current expenses. If this is done for the next ten years every town and city in North Carolina should be in much better condition than it is today.

Considerable chills and fever have been reported in this community and experts believe they result from unusual prevalence of mosquitoes this

Gambler's Throw

By EUSTACE L. ADAMS

SYNOPSIS: Jerry Calhoun and Stevens are trying to end an airplane chase by attacking the hydroplane in which gangsters are carrying off Jerry's wife, Nancy. The rest of the gang is in rebellion against its leader, Ashwood, and it attacking him and the persons he is holding for ransom.

CHAPTER 35 "HAPPY LANDINGS"

The amphibian appeared to float up to meet them. Jerry, leaning forward in his seat watched the gangster ship with half-closed eyes. He must miss that upper wing by inches only. The tracer bullets from below were sweeping the monoplane from wing tip to wing tip as Lucci's gunner kept his finger clamped tight on his trigger.

Down, down. Funny, how long such a short dive could take! The tracer bullets annoyed him. They seemed to stretch like a taut string between his own eyes and the other fellow's gun. He wondered vaguely why he hadn't been riddled with lead. The luminous dial of the altimeter suddenly disappeared from the instrument board. Something else too had disintegrated as the gangster's bullets crashed through the panel. He couldn't stop to see what it was. No time for anything but to dive as close to the upper wing as he could. Must give good old Steve a fair target. Then he became aware of a new sound, a continued tac-tac-tac as of a steel riveter at work. It was Steve. At-a-boy Steve.

The long upper wing of the amphibian seemed to leap up at the bow of the plunging monoplane. Jerry pulled back desperately, wondering if he had waited too long. As the nose lifted he listened for the crash that would mean the end of everything. Steve was straightening up, pulling his gun barrel out of the panel. Jerry's breath whistled between his tight shut teeth. They were clear! Missed a collision by fractions of an inch.

"Get it?" he demanded. "I dunno. Usually do." It was all of a night's work to the detective. The monoplane was flying level again. Jerry banked hard over to return to the attack. The dark bulk of the other ship became visible. The pilot slapped his companion on the back.

"Look!" he shouted. "they're gliding!" The amphibian, her exhausts streaming flame, was gliding in a long, thin quarter-turn, her pilot obviously trying to reach the sandy beach of the mainland. Jerry measured the distance with his eye. Yes, they might make it. He must beat them to it. With his own engine full on, he too swung toward shore in a terrific power-dive, hoping against hope that he would find the beach suitable for a landing.

Jerry dived past the slowly gliding ship. With his own mighty engine wide open the monoplane was covering two feet to the amphibian's one. Down, down, with the wind whistling through the struts, the entire fabric vibrating to the banshee shriek of the motor. There was no time to drag the beach to find out whether the sand was hard or soft. It didn't matter. He closed the throttle and pivoted the plane around on her wing tip. As the fat balloons struck the sand the heavy ship lurched and faltered. Jerry braced himself, thinking that she was about to dig in and turn over. Then she rolled heavily to a stop.

Jerry leaped to the sand before Stevens had opened the door on the other side. The amphibian had just landed on the water, forty or fifty feet from shore and was now drifting in toward the beach under the forward momentum of its glide. With engine dead and its crew silent it looked like a black ghost ship in the night.

"One shot out of that gun," came Stevens' calm voice from the beach and "I'll give you the works."

There was no reply. The plane, its forward way almost lost, was inching steadily toward the shore. The water was now up to Jerry's waist.

"Throw your machine gun overboard." The detective's voice carried far across the still water. "I want to hear it splash."

Still that eerie silence hung over everything. Jerry felt a tingle run through every nerve end. The air seemed full of static electricity, like the breathless moment between a sharp flash of lightning and the resultant clap of thunder. He pushed ahead through the water then, all restraint gone, plunged forward and began to swim with a powerful crawl stroke. Somewhere in that drifting black ship was Nancy. He summer.

This brings the populace face to face with the necessity of starting warfare on the pest and attempting to eliminate as many breeding places as possible.

Rank vegetation furnishes the best place imaginable for mosquito breeding, and if every resident should see that his property is cleaned up he would find the mosquito condition much improved and safeguard his family against chills and fever.

his thoughts away from her, to try to ignore her very existence? He had loved her ever since he had first looked into her eyes, candid and level as a boy's, back there on the Merrick road. He clenched his teeth to prevent himself from telling her while she waited so silently for him to find her there in the inky darkness. His wife! That spoiled it all, for had he not promised to have it annulled? How could he tell her that he loved her now, when her heart would be warm with gratitude toward him? And when they were back in New York she would be Nancy Wentworth, not the helpless, frightened little girl of the tropics, but the self-reliant, light-hearted musical comedy star.

His groping hands touched hers. They were icy cold and clutched his own convulsively.

"Nancy," he whispered, "are you all right?" There was a moment of silence. "Yes, Jerry," she replied calmly. "Except that my ankles are bound and I am tied to this seat."

His skillful hands untied the knots and unsnapped the safety buckle. He could feel her breath on his cheek as he bent over her to help her to her feet. She would never know the struggle he was making to keep himself from seizing her in his arms and smothering that glorious red mouth with his kiss. His wife! What a joke!

"What are you laughing at?" she demanded. "I'm not laughing," he snapped shortly. "Let's get ashore."

Emory fingered his trigger impatiently as he watched men scuttle from the shelter of one palm to that of the next, always working closer and closer to the house. Dr. Titterington, looking absurdly undignified, crept across the littered floor of the living room and placed a tall glass beside the elbow of each of the defenders.

"Happy landings, Ashie," Emory nodded, catching the cripple's eye. Ashwood's face was transformed. No longer mocking and cynical, it was wiped clear of its hard lines and seemed twenty years younger.

"Cheerio, old top, here's to the next war!" Ashwood drank deep. Emory stared over the barricade. The attackers were making their way forward with infinite caution, taking advantage of every tree trunk, every clump of palmetto and sawgrass.

Lawyers Fight In Negro Case

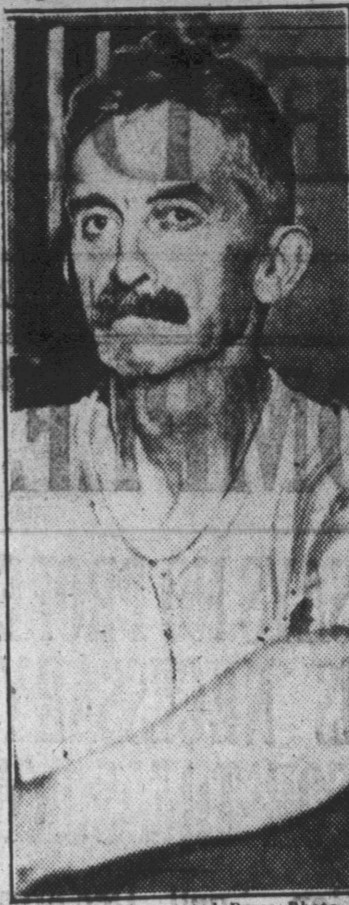

High Point, July 9.—(AP)—T. W. Albertson and Gaston A. Johnson, attorneys and the latter, a candidate for solicitor in the last primary, was counsel for Ora Martin and Gladys Gannaway, negroes charged with fighting.

The attorneys argued their cases verbally before Judge C. C. Muse and then, not agreeing with the court's decision, fell into physical argument while the two negroes stood by and watched passively.

Before either was injured, the attorneys parted. Judge Muse pointed out that he would have cited them for contempt but that court had been adjourned. The negroes paid half the costs on their charges.

"I'm going to send the cane to Gen. Roosevelt," Clinard said. "I want this fine old relic of the days of Andy Jackson to serve the man who will shortly grace the executive mansion and demonstrate a leadership and initiative of the 'Old Hickory' type."
