Woman Forges to Front In Walker Investigation At Albany, New York

CREDIT NOTE IN LIMELIGHT

Mayor Declares He Knows Nothing About Letter of Credit for Mysterious Woman; Roosevelt Begins Tracing Movement of Two Checks for $25,000 Payable to Walker

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Governor Roosevelt's investigation of Mayor Walker today probed close to the identity of the "unknown person," who figures in the inquiry, when the mayor revealed that the mysterious recipient of money was a woman.

When Governor Roosevelt observed that the evidence showed that a letter of credit for $10,000 was arranged for the same "unknown person" to whom Russell T. Sherwood, missing accountant, paid $7,500, Walker said:

"I know nothing about the letter of credit. I do know that Sherwood handled income matters for the 'unknown person,' and an examination of her accounts would show she had several bankaccounts in the city."

The identity of the "unknown person" has been scrupulously guarded by Sam L. Seabury, investigator for the Hofstadter legislative committee.

Walker's remark was the first reference to the sex of the mysterious figure that has repeatedly bobbed up in the investigation and the executive hearing here.

The governor soon after the hearing opened began to trace the movement of two checks for $25,000, payable to Mayor Walker, and drawn on his brokerage account with Paul Block, the publisher. The checks were dated June 9 and June 16, 1927.

The mayor said he received the money on the checks, endorsed them and returned them to the Salling Baruch & Company, the brokerage firm which handled the Block-Walker account.

"I never gave those two payments of $25,000 cash to Russell T. Sherwood for deposit anywhere," Walker explained with emphasis.

The mayor has contended that Sherwood, an employee of the law firm in which Mr. Walker formerly was a member, handled only routine financial matters for him.

Walker said Sherwood gave checks to his sister, Mrs. Nan Walker Burke, of Far Rockaway, but that he gave the account the money to cover them. The governor reminded Mr. Walker that checks Mrs. Burke received were drawn on Sherwood's account at the Central Hoover Trust Company.

Curtin disputed Seabury's interjection that the records do not show the mayor reimbursed Sherwood in cash.

"I beg your pardon," Curtin shouted. "I beg your pardon! I have seen it."

Curtin fought to obtain the secret evidence compiled by the Tammany investigators, but his demand went unanswered as the governor moved quickly to a scrutiny of letters of credit that Sherwood obtained.

Curtin had particularly desired to lock over the Seabury accountants' work sheets to find out how the Hofstadter investigator reached his conclusion that Sherwood paid out large sums of money for the mayor. Roosevelt refused to ask for the work sheets.

Throughout the morning session, Mr. Roosevelt sought to untangle the evidence involving Walker's relations with Sherwood, whom Seabury was never able to question. Walker testifying and Curtin arguing contended that Sherwood, an employee of Walker's former law firm, as a "courtesy" made out checks for Walker's relatives. Each time, however, the mayor reimbursed him with cash, Mr. Walker said.

"Have you any record of the amounts in cash you gave Sherwood?" Roosevelt asked Walker. "No," replied the mayor. "I haven't even kept my own check book."

Berlin, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Leaders of Germany's 3,500,000 Communists laid plans today for a nation-wide strike war against the Von Papen government to force it into measures for the relief of unemployment.

"We must place the masses of the people in the fight against the government and the National Socialist hunger offensive," Ernst Thaelmann, Communist leader, declared in an appeal sent out to his followers. "It must be on the widest possible basis."

Sales Tax Warmed Up For Another Long Grind

Washington, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The sales tax, cause of many a bitter congressional debate, is now being warmed up for another start through the legislative mill.

The course before Congress meets the fire may go out, but there still are members who think a general sales tax of say 13-4 per cent should be substituted for the many special excise levies now in the law.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the branch's finance committee, predicts that the December session will seek a new study of the tax situation in the House, where all tax legislation must originate. Democrats already have a special committee surveying the problem.

Smoot and these Democrats are bearing in mind President Hoover's acceptance speech statement that "present increases in revenues, while temporary, should be again examined, and if they tend to sap the

FACES TRIAL FOR BRIBERY

Man Indicted for Attempt to Bribe Witnesses in Lea Case to Go on Trial Today

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Charged with attempted bribery of jurors, Wiley B. Noland, of Haywood County, was ordered to appear in court today for trial.

Judge J. H. Clement refused Noland's plea for a continuance of the case yesterday when indictments were returned charging him with attempts to corrupt two of the jurors who tried Colonel Luke Lea, of Nashville; his son, Luke, Jr., and Wallace B. Davis, of Asheville, last fall for violation of the bank laws.

The indictments alleged Noland sought to influence Hurst Justice, foreman of the jury, and Brownlow Snyder, a juror, to vote for acquittal of the former Tennessee Senator and his co-defendants. The jury convicted them.

Affidavits presented by the State several weeks ago in opposing a new trial for Colonel Lea and his co-defendants led to the indictment of Noland.

Mrs. Hurst Justice in one of the affidavits quoted Noland as saying Colonel Lea's attorneys had empowered him to offer $1,500 to learn how her husband stood and whether Colonel Lea could get a verdict not guilty.

An affidavit by Wyley Snyder, of Haywood County, said he was made an offer by a "Hawood County citizen" to influence his father, Brownlow Snyder, to vote for acquittal.

Colonel Lea and his attorneys denied any connection with the alleged attempts at bribery of the jurors.

The new trial was denied the Leas and Davis by Judge Clement and an appeal to the State Supreme Court from his ruling is now pending.

COLORED FIRE FIGHTERS HERE

The State Association Gathers Here for Three-Day Session

With a program featured by races, dances and ball games, the annual convention of the State Colored Firemen's Association convened in Greenville today and will continue through Thursday.

Registration, which started at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church yesterday, continued today and at the noon hour it was estimated that approximately two hundred firemen were in attendance. Practically every large town and city of the state will be represented, organization leaders said today, and one of the best conventions of years was being anticipated.

One of the most important parts of the program from the standpoint of the firemen and the general public are the hook and ladder races to be staged in front of the Export Tobacco factory Wednesday and Thursday. Awards will be presented to the winners of the races, and competition this year is expected to be as general and as spectacular as any year in history of the association.

PRESIDENT IS STILL FISHING

Herbert Hoover Putting in Good Time With Rod and Reel On Chesapeake Bay

Washington, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Fishesman Herbert Hoover again today kept President Herbert Hoover vacationing.

On Chesapeake Bay the president-fishesman spent the night on board the 110-foot Commerce Department boat Sequoia. Whether he ate for breakfast some of the "nice mess" of trout and bluefish the White House here said he caught, the newspapermen couldn't find out—they were respecting his wishes in keeping their boat far enough away not to bother him.

Nobody said definitely how long the President would continue his cruise. But White House automobiles were kept in readiness for word through the Sequoia radio to meet the boat whenever it headed for a dock.

The executive intended to finish his vacation with a week-end at his high and cool Rapidan, Va., mountain camp.

The President was up early this morning to get in some fishing before breakfast.

With the Sequoia at anchor he put out in a small boat accompanied only by secret service men.

Meanwhile, at the White House which was keeping in touch with the President by radio, plans for (Continued on Page Four)

CLUB HEARS AUDIT REPORT

Rotarians Also Receive Pointers On International Relations

The important part which international relations are playing in the life of the world were presented to the Rotary Club in a particularly interesting way last night by Howard McGinnis, member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College.

He told of what the nations have contributed to the world in the past and the movement now under way to effect even more friendly relations. Organization of the various governments are attempting to emphasize closer relations between the countries as a means of gaining greater economic freedom and a keener appreciation of what the other fellow is doing to improve public life, the speaker pointed out.

K. W. Cobb presided and the program was in charge of Mr. McGinnis, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Tom Clifton, club auditor, reported the result of his audit of the books of Secretary J. C. Gaskins. The report showed the club to be in excellent financial condition and with a sufficient balance on hand to impart a feeling of security for awhile at least.

Garner Determined To Stress Economic Issue

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Speaker John N. Garner, having hurled a downright denial at foes who were described as "whispering" that he scratched Alfred E. Smith in 1928, set out today determined to put the full strength of his Texas emphasis on economic issues in his campaign for the vice-presidency.

After a series of conferences, Garner and Gov. Franklin Roosevelt, running mate, whom he described as his "bos" were declared to be in full accord on the issues of the campaign. The speaker expected to go to Washington today and then home to Uvalde, Tex., before starting his speaking tour later.

Garner said he favored taking the government from the few and restoring it to the people. He indicated he intended to stress economic problems rather than prohibition, and to attack the Hoover administration on the grounds of mismanagement.

It was at a gathering of leaders presided over by James A. Farley that Garner gave his views yesterday on Alfred E. Smith, bigotry, and prohibition. He attacked bigotry, denied what had been described as a "whispering statement" that he had not voted for Smith in 1928 and said that on prohibition he was an "outright repealist."

"I began voting very early, when I was 19," he said in reply to a question by Joseph A. Maynard, Massachusetts state chairman, "and I want to say that I never split a Democratic ticket."

"I said in 1928, in two speeches I delivered in behalf of Smith, that (Continued on Page Four)

HEAVY SALES ON SOME MARKETS

Unofficial Averages From the First Few Sales Were Two or Three Cents Higher Than Last Year; Poorer Grades Considerably Stronger Offerings Not as Good as Opening Day Last Year; Growers Show Disappointment

(By The Associated Press)

Opening sales on the border belt tobacco auction markets today brought some disappointment to growers who had expected better prices in view of Department of Agriculture estimates of a small crop.

Although unofficial averages for the first few sales were two or three cents a pound higher than last year's averages, the trend indicated the official figure would not reach the 12 cents a pound freely predicted yesterday by growers and warehousemen.

On most markets the poorer grades sold considerably higher than last year, the medium grades a little higher and the better grades about the same.

An average struck for the first 25 piles sold at Lumberton, N. C., was $9.11 per hundred in comparison with an average for last year's opening day of $7.85. Warehousemen there, however, expressed belief the quality of the tobacco offered today was inferior to that of the opening day of the 1931 season.

Early sales at Darlington, S. C., were at an average of about eight cents a pound and considerable dissatisfaction was expressed by farmers. Some turned the tickets on their piles, the gesture used by farmers to reject the bid made for the tobacco.

From all markets came reports that offerings were mostly of the inferior grades as is generally the case on opening day, the growers preferring to hold up their better tobacco until they see the price trend.

Despite the estimates of a short crop, some of the markets were taxed to capacity. Between 800,000 and 1,000,000 pounds were carried to the three warehouses at Whiteville, N. C., which can handle only about 700,000 pounds a day. A new record for a single day's sales was looked for there.

Huge crowds attended the opening "breaks" on all markets.

Warehousemen said the effect of this season's weather on the tobacco had been to give the primings and other lower grades a much higher color than last season, but that they lacked weight, body and burning qualities.

Approximately 60,000 pounds were sold at Pamlico at an estimated average around nine cents after the early sales.

Warehousemen at Timmonsville believed the average would run close to 11 cents a pound for approximately 400,000 pounds offered, an unusually large opening break there. Most of the farmers seemed to be fairly well satisfied with prices and no tickets were being turned.

Lumberton, N. C., Aug. 16.—Early sales of tobacco here today were at an estimated average of between nine and eleven cents a pound. Approximately 400,000 pounds were on the floors of the five warehouses.

The average for the first twenty-five piles sold in one house was $9.11 per hundred. Last year's opening average here was $7.85.

Warehousemen said the quality of the tobacco offered today was inferior to that of last year's opening, but that the poorer grades were selling higher and the better grades about the same as last year.

ABOUT TOWN

Parents have been urged by Dr. R. S. McGeechy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health, to have their children vaccinated for diphtheria and smallpox before the opening of schools.

This action, it was believed, would eliminate the probability of an epidemic during the school term and enable the health authorities to further their prevention campaign throughout the county.

The importance of immunization against smallpox and diphtheria should be realized by every parent in the county, and it is hoped they will take advantage of this opportunity to prevent illness free of charge and contribute to the health of the community.

Wilson, vanquished by the local Kiwanis Club in a baseball game, will come here tomorrow to try to get revenge. Just what the outcome of the contest will be is purely problematical, but the local club is of the opinion they will be able to defend themselves against the attack of the visitors.

This is the first out-of-the-city club played by the Kiwanians this year and it is hoped to bring the people of the two towns in closer contact by rubbing shoulders on the diamond and instilling the spirit dominating club life.

After the Wilson contest, the Kiwanians will take on the Rotarians. This game will be the highlight of the season for the two clubs, and wives and sweethearts and offspring of club members are expected to turn out to see what the boys are capable of doing.

There will be all kinds of baseball in evidence, but the most impressive part of the game is the fact that funds will go to the support of the wife of an unemployed ex-serviceman who is confined in a hospital suffering from tuberculosis. This is a mission the entire city should be interested in and the clubs are hopeful everybody will try to attend and do their bit for this cause.

John Garner has gone to New York to assist Governor Roosevelt with the important business of drafting plans for the Democratic presidential campaign to open in September.

The Texan, one of the most colorful figures of the party, is confident the party will win with the leadership of Roosevelt and will be able to bring about better conditions.

Being the Democratic nominee for the vice-presidency, Garner will visit many sections of the country to preach the gospel of the Democratic party and what he has to say will play a big part in the victory anticipated at this time.

The party could not have chosen better running mates than Roosevelt and Garner and while it is impossible to determine the extent of their popularity, this will be shown very plainly in the vote next November.

The prohibition law will be enforced regardless of the widespread clamor for a change and the action of President Hoover declaring himself in favor of state's rights, according to Attorney General Mitchell.

This means the sentiment for repeal of the 18th amendment will not be given the slightest consideration by the law enforcement unit whose members will continue to enforce the law and expect the people to live up to it.

The attorney general indicated that some people had said the department should refrain from enforcement with sentiment so plain in favor of repeal, but declared they would not receive attention until legislation had been enacted making the sale of liquor legal.

It is difficult to handle the whiskey question as it is and if the department should relax its effort it is impossible to say what scope would be assumed by the unlawful traffic.

Prohibition is here and as long as it stays in the constitution it is the duty of the officers to enforce it without fear or favor and they

The Faithful

By Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: Though Sondra Kent and John Anderson love each other, they remain faithful to Sondra's secret marriage to Mark Merriman. The marriage is made public when Mark returns, ill, from the Congo. Neither Sondra's sister Flora nor her friend Beatrice realize John's honorable attitude.

Chapter 32
A DIFFERENT MAN
 "I suppose we all do things on the impulse sometimes," Beatrice sighed. "I very nearly eloped myself once. So thankful I didn't though!"

"Sondra seemed devoted enough to Mark," Cass said bluntly, and he wondered if it was not possible for him to warn Sondra that this girl was anything but the friend she pretended to be.

Most women were cats, he decided—thank the Lord he had managed to escape their clutches.

"Sondra is simply wonderful," Beatrice agreed with enthusiasm. "I'm going to tea with her this afternoon—Mark is allowed visitors you know, and he says I always cheer him up."

"By the way—" Cass said with a desperate effort to turn the conversation. "What has become of Mrs. Lomax?"

"I really don't know—I always thought myself that she must have gone away with Jocelyn Farr, but that can't be right, because he's still in town."

"I don't see why, because a woman chooses to leave her husband, it must necessarily be with another man," Cass objected.

Beatrice laughed. "You dear funny old thing—what other reason could there be?"

He shrugged his shoulders helplessly. "I don't understand women," he said. "Seems to me they're a rum lot."

He was unutterably thankful when Beatrice said she must go—he breathed a great sigh of relief as she joined a party of friends who had just come in.

A nasty, dangerous girl, that's what she was, he decided; he hoped devoutly she would not make it her business to talk to every one as she had just done to him. Of course he had always known that John was in love with Sondra—but well, if she didn't wish to marry him and preferred another fellow, it couldn't be helped. Cass liked Sondra and was sorry for her—she hadn't had much of a life. There wouldn't be any harm in warning John anyway; if Sondra was happy with Mark Merriman it was no use taking chances that might lead to the destruction of that happiness. It was all very perplexing; this marriage business seemed to be the sort of thing which wise men steered clear of.

It would have added greatly to his perplexity could he have seen Sondra at that moment. She was sitting beside Mark, laughing and talking as if she had not a care in the world. Her eyes were bright—a little too bright a careful observer might have thought, and one of her hands held his.

"And when you're able to be moved—" she was saying gaily, "Mr. Anderson is going to lend us the little house I told you about, at the shore. It's lovely there, Mark, the sea is like champagne, and the air perfectly glorious. You'll soon be as well and strong as ever."

Mark smiled—"I feel a different man already, since I found you again, Sondra—it was rotten being ill, but all the time at the back of my mind there was an ungrateful sort of thought that if only I was ill enough, I might be sent home to you."

He looked a very different man to the one who had said good-bye to her a few short months ago, but Sondra knew that every day he was gaining strength.

"It's only a question of time—the doctors had told her. His heart is naturally weak, but with rest and care he ought to get quite fit and well again."

It was a week since he had been brought home. A queer sort of week it had seemed to Sondra, and even now she had not grown used to being addressed as "Mrs. Merriman," or to the sight of the wedding ring on her finger.

It seemed a long cry back to that rainy morning at the pier and to her own dread of seeing Mark again, Sondra thought. And yet at the first moment of their meeting, pity for him, and a faint returning of the old love she had once felt, had chased all other emotion from her heart.

Since then she had many times tried to understand herself and had failed.

She knew that her heart and happiness were in John Anderson's keeping, and yet she knew also that even if now he had been willing to take her away, she could not have left Mark.

"I suppose there are several kinds of love," she thought hopefully. "Or else I'm not capable of loving one man with my whole heart."

Anderson had been to the nursing home several times, but she had never spoken with him alone. She had sat and watched him while he talked to Mark, a queer little pain in her heart, and yet she was always glad when he went away.

What's the use? What's the use?

she asked herself hopelessly. I can't ever belong to him, and it's my own fault, so I might as well make the best of it.

But it was a difficult task—at night when she went back to her rooms at Mrs. Sears' things were not so easy and yet in her own unaccustomed way she tried to be brave although always in her mind was the strange feeling that none of these happenings was real—that it was just a strange phase through which she was passing.

Then one evening when she had come in, tired and dispirited, Mrs. Sears came knocking at the door. Sondra looked up without interest.

"Who is it?"

"She wouldn't give a name—but she's quite the lady, M'am."

"Well—ask her to come up," Sondra said.

So few people came to these unpretentious rooms to see or that she naturally felt a little excited.

"The lady, miss—" Mrs. Sears said rather respectfully, and Sondra turned to face her sister.

There was a little silence, then Flora laughed.

"Behold how the mighty are fallen!" she said.

"Where have you been? And how did you find me?" Sondra asked.

"And do come in and shut the door." Flora obeyed and they stood looking at one another silently till Sondra asked again: "How did you find me?"

"I range John Anderson and he told me."

"Oh—ad did he tell you....that I am married?"

N. Y. GIANTS GIVE UP TWIN FRANCHISE

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Piedmont League is sick again. The six-club, Class B basketball circuit that adopted a couple of orphans when the old South Atlantic League went under and started out to amount to something has another attack of "no finances."

This time it's the Winston-Salem club, an outfit controlled until yesterday by the New York Giants.

The Giants notified Judge W. C. Bramham, of Durham, president of the loop, they no longer cared for responsibilities incurred by owning the Winston-Salem franchise.

They told the judge that from now on he could do with the franchise as he liked. Directors were divided over whether to declare the franchise forfeited or leave it in the Twin City with the league accepting responsibility.

Poor attendance was blamed by the Giant management for withdrawing support from the Twins. The club is only one rung from the bottom in league standings.

Judge Bramham said he would take up the matter with the Giant officials by telegram and hoped to have a definite decision by today.

Winston-Salem was not alone in its troubles. At Raleigh, where the management recently surrendered its franchise to the players when it was unable to pay salaries, things were just as dark.

The Twin were scheduled to play in Raleigh last night, but as there were not enough customers on hand to pay in the $35 the club has to deposit with a utility company before getting lights for the field, the game was called off. A double-header was announced for tonight.

Under private ownership, Raleigh's light bill went long past due. The owners arranged to pay the power company $35 each night the field was used—$20 for current for the game and the balance on account. When the players took over the franchise, the same agreement was made.

All was not gloom in the league, however. Things looked very bright at Wilmington where the Pirates were putting a double licking on the Durham Bulls.

Tiny Butler, usually a Pirate jinx, was just another pitcher when the Wilmington crew faced him last night. They slammed him all over the lot to pile up nine runs while the Bulls were scoring three in the opener.

In the five-inning night-cap, the Bulls took a three-run lead that lasted until the final frame when Wilmington pushed across four runs to win the game.

Blackie Carter and Stumpy Culbreth were the big shots in Charlotte's 10 to 6 victory over Greensboro. Carter got a triple and a pair of singles in three tries, while Culbreth cracked out his seventeenth home run to tie Poison Parker Perry, of Wilmington, for the circuit sweat leadership.

When the old "Sally" League disbanded, Charlotte and Asheville joined the Piedmont to make it an all-North Carolina circuit. Its class was raised from C to B.

Wilson To Try To Get Revenge On The Locals

The Wilson Kiwanis Club baseball team will seek revenge for the defeat handed them two weeks ago when they cross bats with the Greenville Kiwanis team at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Third street school park in West Greenville.

Captain Joe Taft of the local team, who has just returned from a week's vacation at Virginia Beach announced this morning that a letter had just been received from Captain Bill Sharpe of the Wilson team, confirming the date and adding that his team would be here ready for the battle Wednesday. It is expected that the visitors will have a much stronger lineup than when they went down to the tune of 18-12 two weeks ago on their own diamond. However, Capt. Taft will be in a position to put a stronger team on the field Wednesday than the one which won the slugging match in the first game.

"Mug" Massey, the star first sacker of the Greenville team in the old East Carolina League, will be at his old position in this game. "Mug" didn't play at Wilson and his presence in the game Wednesday will not only add defensive and offensive strength, but it will also increase the morale of the team. Then there are two new Kiwanians who will likely see service in this game. Oliver Matthews who played shortstop at Davidson College for several years, will be at his old position, and Clayton Hilton, who has just moved back to Greenville from Charlotte, may see service in the outfield.

The return of Massey to the game will give Herman Duncan, another star of the old East Carolina League, a chance to play his regular outfield position. And Dave Moore, injured in practice before the first game, has recovered sufficiently to make him available for utility service in this game. Batting as a pinch hitter at Wilson, he delivered a scorching single to right just after President Guy Smith's third hit of the day, starting a five run rally which cinched the game in the last inning. Jim Barrett and Donald Conley will again be ready to toss them over for the local club.

In the first game, each team was privileged to get an outside man to do the catching. If the same agreement is made this time, Barnhill of the Greenville Water and Light team, will likely be behind the bat. In addition to catching a nice game at Wilson, he made several hits, one good for three bases.

Charlie Flye cinched a position on the team when he hit for four bases in the second inning at Wilson. Ralph Deal, former Davidson College star, who coached the East Carolina Teachers College team this spring, will also be ready for service in this important battle.

There will be no admission charge for this game, but a free-will offering will be taken and the money received will be turned over to the finance officer of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion to be used to help defray the expenses of the wife of an ex-serviceman. This lady is now being treated at Sanatorium and the local Legion Post has obligated to take care of the monthly expense. This is a very worthy cause and the public is asked to come out and see a good game and contribute something, whether it be small or large. It will be worth your time to see Guy Smith run bases and Jim Barrett's delivery in the box, and if "Mug" Massey can get his suit dirty enough, you'll see some fancy playing around first base.

Don't forget the time, Wednesday afternoon of this week, at four o'clock. The tentative lineup of both teams, together with the batting order, follow:

Greenville—Joe Taft 2b; Duncan cf; J. Barrett 3b; Massey 1b; Chas. Flye lf; Guy Smith rf; Matthews ss; Barnhill c; Conley p. Utility: Bostic, Moore, Hilton, Braswell, Deal, Utley, Darden, Woodward, Rivers, Bell, Futrell, Suggs.

Wilson—Thomas 2b; Nadal lf; Sharpe cf; Wright p; Sumner c; Boseman rf; Gardner ss; Hale 3b; Pittman 1b. Utility: Wagner, Gray, Daniels, Adams, Kirman.

Roxboro, N. C.—(AP)—Alonzo Nelson, 21, was killed when he was drawn into the machinery of a crudely constructed saw-mill.

Fire Destroys Pitt St. House
The single story house occupied and owned by John Caraway on the lower end of Pitt Street was destroyed by fire this morning at 3 o'clock. The loss, which was partially covered by insurance, was estimated at around $2,000.

The flames had in a few seconds headed way when the alarm was sounded that the building was practically doomed when the firemen arrived, and they confined their attention to the saving of nearby property.
Practically all furnishings were a complete loss.

The origin of the blaze was not determined.

Open Highway Bids at Raleigh
Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The State Highway Commission today opened 122 bids on fifteen projects which it was estimated will involve expenditure of about $1,000,000.

Some 250 contractors and interested parties gathered in the hall of the House of Representatives for the opening of bids and announcement of the proposals had not been completed early this afternoon.

As fast as all bids of a project were read aloud, statisticians of the Highway Commission began work figuring the proposals, but it was expected to be late in the afternoon before any low bidders would be announced.

The full commission will meet here Tuesday to formally confirm award of contracts, but usually low bids get the work.
Chairman E. B. Jeffress expects work to start on some of the projects by September 1st.

122 Qualify for Bar Examinations
Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Pending a final check of all applications, Edward Murray, Clerk of the State Supreme Court, estimated this afternoon that 122 persons had qualified to take the semi-annual bar examinations here next week.

There were originally 139 persons who served notice they expected to take the examination, but all did not qualify by paying the fee and filing proficiency and character certificates which had to be in by noon today.

The Supreme Court will convene here Monday after its summer recess to hold the examination and will sit to hear oral arguments from the First Judicial District on Tuesday, August 30, to open the fall term.

London—George Bernard Shaw has confessed a mistake.
The New York production of "Too True to Be Good" has as a character a measles microbe. In an interview with George Bishop in the Sunday Times, Shaw explains that has been changed for the English production, with the doctor explaining he just invented a microbe to please his patients.

Auto Licenses Fall Off in N. C.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Sales of automobile licenses in North Carolina are steadily decreasing as compared with previous years. Records of the office of L. S. Harris, head of the Motor Vehicle Bureau, revealed today.

Since July 1 sales of tags have been almost 10,000 less than during the same period last year, Harris said.

Up to today 366,236 licenses have been sold this year, compared with 410,933 to the same date last year, a decrease for the period of 44,697.

Revenue Department officials estimate that the change in the method of licensing cars, which made the basis weight instead of horsepower this year for the first time, caused a shrinkage of $224,000 in license collections for the first six months of this year, compared with last year, but the total decrease in revenue from tags during the six months was $827,679.15.

Seize Property Spanish Rioters

Seville, Spain, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Farcical orders for the confiscation of the property of monarchists and nobles were issued by the local government today in its clean-up resulting from last week's abortive monarchist rebellion.

The government took possession of a chalet belonging to the Marquis of Esquivel and announced it would proceed to take over all the possessions of other noblemen and "Bourgeois" found to have aided the rebellion financially.

Again Ask Borah To Head the Drys

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two national prohibition leaders again have asked Senator William E. Borah to seek the presidency as head of a prohibition ticket, and the Idaho statesman was expected to make his decision today.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, chairman of the Board of Temperance Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Leigh Colvin, National Chairman of the Prohibition party which recently tendered the nomination to Borah, conferred with the Senator last night and renewed their plea. Borah declined to comment.

Reynolds Will Welcome Red Men

Asheville, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Robert R. Reynolds, Democratic senatorial nominee, will be invited to welcome the national convention of Red Men of the United States when delegates assemble here Sept. 11th.

The Great Council of the Red Men of the United States has not met in the south before in many years.

The Rev. R. A. Whitten, pastor of the First Christian Church of Henderson, is chairman of the North Carolina committee arranging the program.

NEWS BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)
New York—John Fraser, staunch Democrat, is more certain than ever that he'll vote the Democratic ticket in November. An elephant named "G. O. P." kicked him at a Brooklyn zoo.

Corfu, Greece—The sailors of the Mediterranean fleet hope the Prince of Wales and Prince George will drop around again soon. After the princes inspected the fleet, signals "Splice the main brace" and "Make and mend" were hoisted. In case you aren't a sailor, that means an extra top of rum for every one and half holiday.

Excelsior Springs, Mo.—Shades of Jesse James! A warrant for a man giving that name was issued, charging him with non-payment of a $10 board bill. He claimed to be the original bandit, recorded as slain in St. Joseph, Mo., years ago.

Paris—The courts have ruled that there is only one citizen of France who legally can be refused a room in a hotel. He is called "Monsieur de Paris," and he is the official executioner. The courts backed their decision on a law dating back to 1563.

Sentenced to Pen for Killing His Employer

Lumberton, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The bitter argument over religion which caused Houston Williams, 33-year-old farm hand, to strike his employer, Frank Pridgen, 70, will cost Williams from 10 to 28 years imprisonment.

The blows which followed the argument on July 26 killed Pridgen and yesterday Williams pleaded guilty to manslaughter in Robeson Superior Court.
Judge Walter Small sentenced him to 18 to 20 years in state prison.

The young farm hand said Pridgen's claim that he was sanctified and incapable of sin led to the argument, the passing of the lie and the blows.

Masons to Meet At Greensboro

Greensboro, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Hundreds of Masons and members of the Eastern Star from every section of North Carolina are expected to assemble here August 25 at the Masonic and Eastern Star home for the annual celebration of Robert Morris Day.

The exercises will commemorate the birthday of Robert Morris, the founder of the Order of the Eastern Star. Six hundred attended last year.

A special meeting of the Grand Chapter, Eastern Star, will be held here that morning and Mrs. Clyde P. Fitzgerald of Raleigh, new grand conductress, and Miss Bessie Gaddie of Wingate, grand Martha, will assume their offices.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 3 points higher in response to steady Liverpool cables and on Wall Street and foreign buying which absorbed considerable Southern selling.

There was also considerable realizing or liquidation, but buying was stimulated by the strong opening in the stock market, and prices for all deliveries soon made new high ground for the movement with December selling up to 7.74 and March to 7.96 or about 9 to 11 points net higher.

Houses with Western as well as Wall Street connections were among the buyers on the advance, and while the demand tapered off somewhat, the market was fairly active and steady within 2 or 3 points of the best at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables said the market there has been influenced by covering in the speculative buying promoted by the success of the British conversion loan, and reported fair cloth sales for shipment to India.

Grain Market

Chicago, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Swinging loose from stock market control, wheat prices turned backward in the late dealings today, and much more than lost all of an early advance.

A bearish element was vanishing of export demand for United States wheat, whereas the largest overseas business in some time was put through from Canada. At the high point today, wheat was almost three cents above Saturday's low point.

Stock Market

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Railroad shares pushed through to new highs for the summer recovery in today's stock market, but the list as a whole was unable to follow.

The session began with a wild flurry of buying, which boosted many issues 1 to 7 points, but trading turned quieter, and profit taking was encountered, as the session wore on. Rails came up strongly in the middle of the day but as the session went into the fourth hour, the peak levels of the first few minutes had not, in the aggregate, been duplicated.

Union Pacific, Case, Allied Chemical and Norfolk and Western made extreme gains of 6 to 7 points, but the first three soon lost 2 to 3 points of the advance. U. S. Steel opened 5 higher at 45, with a 10,000 share purchase, but thereafter slid back a couple of points. American Telephone was a firm feature in the afternoon getting up more than 4 to duplicate the high of the morning.

The ability of the rails to lead the list into new high ground, at a time when many prominent carriers are keeping their heads above water only through borrowing from the Reconstruction Corp., has been one of the phenomena of the recent upswing.

COLORED FIRE FIGHTERS HERE

(Continued from Page One) Tuesday will furnish competition for the Greenville Giants. Among the social features will be a dance each evening at Gorman's warehouse.

The convention formally opened this morning with a general session at the court house. Mayor R. C. Flanagan extended the visitors a cordial welcome to the city and commended them for the fine service which they are rendering the various cities of the state.

Presiding at the opening session was Colonel Taylor of Fayetteville, president of the association, and for years one of the leaders of the volunteer movement in this state.

In addition to several other addresses dealing with the association, inspirational song numbers were rendered by picked singers of the city and community.

The association is the guest of the Hope Fire Department of this city, one of the oldest and most active colored firemen's organizations in this part of the state.

Although Greenville has never taken an active part in the hook and ladder races, competition will be offered this year by what firemen declared was a "rookie" organization. All other participants have been in the field of competition for many years and were expected to provide some of the fastest races of the kind ever witnessed here.

Special seats will be reserved for white people at all sessions of the convention, Ferd Barnhill, chief of the local department said, and hope was expressed that everybody would attend and take advantage of this opportunity to see the state volunteer men in action.

PLEASE FOR THE LIFE OF FLIER

He praised the "bravery" of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, in baring her tangled love affairs with the two men from the stand to aid Lancaster. The state charges the love triangle was the motive for the alleged slaying, while the defense calls the young writer's death suicide partly resulting from the snarled affairs of the trio.

Carson enumerated five circumstances on which he said the state based its case:

1. Lancaster's love for Mrs. Keith-Miller, whose affections Clarke had gained in Lancaster's absence on an unsuccessful flying venture.

2. Testimony that Lancaster had threatened Clarke on hearing of the new love affair.

3. The fact that Lancaster bought a pistol in St. Louis before he returned to Miami on learning of the love affair, and that Clarke was shot with that pistol.

4. Lancaster's admission that he forged two suicide notes.

5. Lancaster's alleged worry after the shooting, whether Clarke would be able to speak before he died.

"We admit all these points but that of the threats," Carson said. "But the points we admit are in no way sufficiently connected, in this sketchy circumstantial case to give you any reason for believing Capt. Lancaster killed Haden Clarke."

"As far as the state's claim concerning the threats is concerned, counsel for the state yesterday told you to disregard them."

Carson expressed pity for Mrs. Keith-Miller. "This woman's bravery is an outstanding point in this trial," he said, "as she brings out into the glaring light of public opinion the story of weaknesses she had thought would be forever hidden."

"Every detail of her story, as she told it, to bring out the truth, and Lancaster's innocence of this charge has been corroborated by indisputable testimony."

Lancaster was smiling as Carson discussed Mrs. Keith-Miller. "It will be up to the jury soon," he commented, "and I don't think it will take them long."

IOWA'S FARM STRIKE GROWS

(Continued from Page One) Sioux City bore the brunt of the movement. All roads were blocked by the "strikers" and all trucks were stopped. Drivers of some moving vans were forced to open their trucks and let farmers inspect them before they were allowed to proceed.

At Leeds, near here, one milk truck went through the farmers' lines but pickets smashed the windshield with sticks and rocks. Two of the drivers suffered cuts on their faces.

Meanwhile reports came that similar strike movements were under way in four other states—South Dakota, North Dakota, Illinois and Nebraska.

At Stevens, S. D., more than two hundred farmers held up each vehicle for inspection. Other towns reported similar conditions.

In North Dakota the object was to raise the price of wheat to $1 a bushel. Dell Willis, Tolna, farmer and originator of the strike, said he had reports very little wheat was reaching the market.

In Illinois the strike was declared effective by E. E. Kennedy, secretary of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America, who said the sale and delivery of farm products by members of the "farmers' holiday" would cease for thirty days.

D. S. Wightman, of Wayne, Neb., reported the movement was gaining headway in his state.

FARM FAMILY HURT IN FIRE

Mack Fleming, young farmer residing a short distance from the Foskey home, was held for investigation by officers in connection with the blaze. It was stated that footprints leading from the scene of the fire to Fleming's home, were discovered during an investigation immediately following the fire.

Arnie Foskey, eight-year-old youth, was probably the most seriously injured, and was confined in the local hospital today suffering from a jagged wound in the temple sustained when he crashed through a window to safety. The mother was also wounded as she climbed through a broken window. Mr. Foskey and a younger son were painfully burned while two smaller children were said to have escaped without injury.

Robert Belcher, who roomed at the Foskey home, had his mustache burned off before he crashed, practically unconscious from suffocation, through a window.

Foskey said he was awakened about 4 o'clock this morning, half suffocated. He jumped out of bed and rushed to a door and threw it open. As the door opened a cloud of smoke and fire enveloped him, who dropped to the floor in an unconscious condition. He was rescued by neighbors who broke through windows and succeeded in carrying all members of the family to safety.

SECOND SON BORN TO THE LINDBERGHs

(Continued from Page One) first baby was kidnapped from the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J. The Lindbergh's first baby was twenty months old when he was kidnapped and would have been little more than two years old now if he had lived. His body was found near the Lindbergh home, however, after a world-wide search. Officials believe he was killed by the kidnapers, perhaps accidentally, almost immediately after being stolen from his nursery.

The fact that Mrs. Lindbergh was expecting a second child became generally known only after the first son, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped.

She astounded the world, from the very moment her first baby was kidnapped by the strength with which she met the tragic situation into which fate threw her so soon after the death of her father, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, who died last year while she and Colonel Lindbergh were making a flying tour of the Far West.

So far as could be learned Mrs. Lindbergh continued about her household duties even from the first, making herself of service to all searchers for the baby who made the Lindbergh home their headquarters.

Colonel Lindbergh, from the moment on that blustery March night when he discovered his first son was missing, has sought assuagement of his grief in constant activity of one sort or another.

Up to the time the baby's body was found he was always in the van of the searchers, himself directing various phases of the hunt for the kidnapers.

During all the frenzied months of search for the missing baby and attempts to capture the kidnapers, it was found that the baby was dead, preparations went steadily forward for the arrival of the second child, who was born today.

While the Lindberghs remained at Hopewell during the long search for their first son, Mrs. Lindbergh made weekly visits to the Morrow home here for consultation with physicians.

When the first Lindbergh baby was kidnapped Mrs. Lindbergh's first thought was for his health. The baby had been suffering from a cold and only for that reason had the Lindberghs stayed over the week-end and been in Hopewell on the night the kidnapers came.

In the hope of safeguarding the child's health, Mrs. Lindbergh broadcast a detailed description of the baby's diet and begged the kidnapers to continue this diet pending their return of the child to its parents.

She asserted that the "beer parlors" were but "beer saloons," and asked "who will say the saloons are not back" when at the closing hour of 11 p. m. "you see young men and women walking out of them unsteady on their feet and in their brains?"

Miss Helen L. Byrnes, a field secretary, told of her trip around the world in behalf of temperance.

"In one country," she said, "I saw a sign reading: 'Don't say whiskey, say Johnny Walker.' Over here we might say: 'Don't say beer, say Jimmie.'"

"The policies of the Von Papen government can never be the policies of the National Socialist party," the Nazi statement said.

The government was experiencing considerable difficulty in securing financial backing for its unemployment plans, and this was taken as an indication that a storm road lay ahead of it.

BRITISH TALK TRADE PLAN

(Continued from Page One) taxes against foreign food products in Great Britain, a move which is generally conceded would be unpopular with the British people, was the chief difficulty the conferees were facing. The demand of Canada for restrictions against what she has called "dumping" of Russian products in Great Britain is another.

In spite of the publication of the alleged details of a British agreement giving Canada a 10 per cent preference on lumber, which probably would react against Russia's huge lumber shipments to Britain, responsible sources said flatly today no bargain of any kind had been made on lumber.

In a general way, it was indicated Canada's offer now includes continuation of special dumping duties to accelerate the flow of British goods into Canada, and a substantial modification of policy in respect to artificial valuation of British goods for duty purposes.

Scott was badly injured in the fighting which preceded the calling out of troops by President Hoover.

John O. Olson, 44, a carpenter whose address was given as Valparaiso, Neb., was charged with felonious assault upon Patrolman Richard O. Banker. The indictments said Olson used a table leg as a weapon and that Faulkner and McCoy flung bricks.

The grand jury, which has been investigating the bonus army riots since August 5, made its report to Justice Jas. M. Proctor in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Collie Burch and Walter Chappell were formally charged with murder yesterday as an inquest was begun into Joe Burch's death. The hearing was halted and continued until Wednesday afternoon.

Apparently young Burch was beaten to death with a hammer which was found some distance from the highway. Chappell was arrested because he had been seen with Burch the day of the slaying and the elder Burch was arrested when officers learned he came home with stains, apparently made by blood, on his clothing the night of the killing.

He praised the "bravery" of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, in baring her tangled love affairs with the two men from the stand to aid Lancaster. The state charges the love triangle was the motive for the alleged slaying, while the defense calls the young writer's death suicide partly resulting from the snarled affairs of the trio.

Carson enumerated five circumstances on which he said the state based its case:

1. Lancaster's love for Mrs. Keith-Miller, whose affections Clarke had gained in Lancaster's absence on an unsuccessful flying venture.

2. Testimony that Lancaster had threatened Clarke on hearing of the new love affair.

3. The fact that Lancaster bought a pistol in St. Louis before he returned to Miami on learning of the love affair, and that Clarke was shot with that pistol.

4. Lancaster's admission that he forged two suicide notes.

5. Lancaster's alleged worry after the shooting, whether Clarke would be able to speak before he died.

"We admit all these points but that of the threats," Carson said. "But the points we admit are in no way sufficiently connected, in this sketchy circumstantial case to give you any reason for believing Capt. Lancaster killed Haden Clarke."

"As far as the state's claim concerning the threats is concerned, counsel for the state yesterday told you to disregard them."

Carson expressed pity for Mrs. Keith-Miller. "This woman's bravery is an outstanding point in this trial," he said, "as she brings out into the glaring light of public opinion the story of weaknesses she had thought would be forever hidden."

"Every detail of her story, as she told it, to bring out the truth, and Lancaster's innocence of this charge has been corroborated by indisputable testimony."

Lancaster was smiling as Carson discussed Mrs. Keith-Miller. "It will be up to the jury soon," he commented, "and I don't think it will take them long."
