British Aviator Off For America

WILL STOP AT HARBOR GRACE

After Landing in New York, Noted Long Distance Flier Plans to Turn Around and Fly Back to Ireland; If He Succeeds it Will Be the First Trans-Atlantic Solo Flight from East to West; Big Crowd Witnesses Take-Off

Portmarnock, Irish Free State, Aug. 18.—(AP)—J. A. Mollison, noted British distance flier, took off from here at 11:35 a. m. on a trans-Atlantic flight to the United States.

He planned to make his first stop at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and after refueling to dash on immediately to Roosevelt Field, Long Island.

If Mollison succeeds, it will be the first trans-Atlantic solo flight from East to West and the first North Atlantic crossing in a light airplane.

A big crowd assembled on Portmarnock strand to witness the take-off. It cheered Mollison when he arrived by plane from Baldonnel air-drome, Dublin, a short time before.

He said he hoped his round trip across the Atlantic would not require more than two and one-half days. If the plane needs overhauling, he will try to snatch eight hours sleep in New York.

The plane, named "The Heart's Content," has the name painted in black script on the glittering silver fuselage.

All interior furnishings of the plane have been sacrificed to make room for gasoline.

The ordinary range of these planes is only 400 miles. The cruising speed of the plane is 110 miles an hour.

Jobless of the East and West Can't Get Together on Nationwide Fight

St. Louis, Aug. 18.—(AP)—East and West still were twin today as the "Blue Shirt" followers of the Rev. James R. Mollison is piloting a tiny plane, weighing little more than a ton, similar to the one the Prince of Wales uses for sport and to those used by other British amateur fliers who skip across the English channel for week-ends at Le Touquet.

The plane, however, has been converted virtually into flying gasoline tank.

He planned to make his first stop at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and after refueling to dash on immediately to Roosevelt Field, Long Island.

Other men have dared the ocean crossing in similar light planes. Bert

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 18.—(AP)—President Hoover's prohibition stand as set forth in his acceptance speech has been assailed as "surrender to the speak-easies, bootleggers and nullifiers of the constitution" in a statement by Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

The bishop, who helped Mr. Hoover carry the Southern States against Alfred E. Smith in 1928, forecast the address might lose the president the electoral vote of "several states."

COURT TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

Important Cases to Come Up During the Two-Week Session of Criminal Court

A two-week term of Pitt County Superior Court, for the trial of civil and criminal cases, will convene here next Monday morning with Judge W. C. Harris of Raleigh presiding.

The first week will be confined to the hearing of civil cases and the second week to criminal actions.

Calendars for both terms are fairly congested and every effort will be made to speed up work.

Among the scores of cases to be considered by the grand jury at the criminal term are three murder cases and separate charges of arson and rape.

The most outstanding of these is the charge of murder against T. H. Barnhill, aged farmer of the Bethel community, charged with the slaying of his ward, Jesse Barnhill, to obtain $10,000 insurance.

Barnhill was jailed at Williamston about two weeks ago. He was later brought to Greenville and lodged in jail after receiving preliminary hearing. Although allowed bail of $10,000 in a habeas corpus hearing before Judge Harris at Raleigh last Saturday, Barnhill continued in jail here today, following his inability to provide bond.

Jesse Barnhill was found dead on the highway near Flat Swamp Church in April with two bullet wounds in his head. Officers continued investigation of the case and about three weeks ago obtained sufficient evidence to justify the detention of the elder Barnhill, who vigorously denied any connection with the slaying.

Herman Haddeck, young white man of the Shelmerville section will face the jury for an alleged criminal attack upon Mrs. Dora Furness at her home near Shelmerville about three weeks ago. Mrs. (Continued on page six)

LOW GRADES ALSO HIGHER

Report From Tifton Says Price Situation Averaged Around $10.47 Compared With $6.64 at Last Year's Opening; Increased Prices Reported From South Carolina Markets

Tifton, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Approximately 300,000 pounds of tobacco were offered for sale at the opening of the Tifton tobacco market this morning. Prices for better grades ranged considerably higher than last year, averaging $10.47 per hundred pounds compared with last year's opening prices of $6.64.

Lower grades were selling better than last year.

Valdosta, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—An unofficial average of 11 cents per pound was paid for approximately 350,000 pounds of tobacco at the opening of Valdosta's markets today.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Georgia's 1932 tobacco crop, sharply curtailed by acreage reductions and early blue mold damage to plant beds, went on the auction block at markets in twenty cities today.

Warehousemen forecast a short selling season and predicted the total sales would approximate only 25 per cent of those of last year. Growers hoped for better prices as a result of the smaller production.

Buyers warned against too great optimism but growers cited the 15 to 20 per cent increase over last year's prices which tobacco brought at the opening of South Carolina and North Carolina border markets Tuesday and expressed hope for similar price improvement.

(By The Associated Press) Increasing prices for the offerings of South Carolina tobacco growers were reported today as the markets began to settle down to normal pace after the breaks of the first two days.

Dillon, S. C., reported a considerable increase in offerings of the better grades, with total sales of all grades reaching 30,000 pounds at an average price of $9.05 per hundred.

Increasing prices on better grades with little change in bids for the medium and low grades, were reported at Kingstree. Prices of the better grades ranged from 30 to 40 cents per pound. Between 60,000 and 75,000 pounds were on the floors.

Farmers at Darlington continued dissatisfied with prices averaging about $1-2 cents a pound. Lugs and primings were slightly higher than yesterday and the day before, but the total offerings of 55,000 pounds for the day included a smaller percentage of leaf.

Mack Fleming Confesses Firing the Foskey Home; Implicates His Brother

Mack Fleming, young farmer of the Fleming's Cross Roads community, today confessed starting a fire which destroyed the farm home of A. C. Foskey last Monday night and resulted in the painful burning of Foskey, his wife, four children and Bob Belcher, who roomed at the Foskey house.

Making his confession in jail here today before Sheriff Whitehurst, Chief of Police George Clark and two others, young Fleming also implicated his brother.

He was refreshed, tanned, and relaxed by his three-day fishing trip on Chesapeake Bay, which ended yesterday. White House officials thought that after a few hours of work today the executive would go on to his Rapidan, Va., camp in the mountains to finish his longest vacation since last year.

Trade Magazines See Indications of Substantial Betterment of Conditions

New York, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Editors of trade and industrial magazines usually hard to convince, are beginning to report there are indications of a slight, if not substantial, betterment in the lines of business represented by their publications.

The Trade Paper Journalists, in outlining conditions to the Associated Business Papers, Inc., of New York, especially stress the improvement in sentiment which, they say, has been most noticeable during the first half of this month.

As an indicator, the publishers point out the downswing in advertising.

Two Held in Jail Murder Charge

Gatesville, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Ccl. J. Burch and his son-in-law, Walter Chappell, were in jail today on first degree murder charges, following the verdict last night of a coroner's jury they inflicted fatal injuries on Burch's nephew, 17-year-old Joe Burch.

Young Burch's body was found on a highway early last Saturday. Nearby was a truck in which he had made a trip to Portsmouth, Va. Testimony was that Chappell accompanied him to Portsmouth. Officers said Chappell came home Saturday with blood-stained trousers, which he claimed was caused by chicken blood.

The trousers were sent to Raleigh for analysis.

Court Order Restrains Ruling In Walker Case

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP)—While John J. Curtin, chief counsel to Mayor Walker, argued before Governor Roosevelt today for the dismissal of ouster charges, co-counsel obtained from a Kingston Supreme Court Justice an order restraining the governor from passing upon the mayor's fitness until after the court heard arguments on the legality of the proceedings.

Neither the order issued today nor a previous one obtained by George Donnelly, secretary of the Bronx Chamber of Commerce will hold up the removal hearing the governor's legal counsel explained.

John J. Bennett Jr., attorney general, will appear before Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley tomorrow as "a friend of the court" and not as Mr. Roosevelt's representative. Bennett said he would point out to the court that it was without jurisdiction to intervene in the executive duties of the governor.

Both the Walker order and the Donnelly order came before Justice Staley at a special term of the Supreme Court tomorrow.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP)—A court order, accompanied by a stay restraining Governor Roosevelt from ruling in the Walker case until the order had been argued, was procured for Mayor James J. Walker

WAR PROCESS SOLVES MODERN AUTO PROBLEM

Hydrogenation, the famous process which nearly won the war for Germany, has finally furnished the answer to the lubrication problem of the modern high compression motor after twenty years of unending research.

In the last ten years the automobile has increased 22 per cent in speed and 50 per cent in power. High test fuels have been developed to meet the demands of the high compression motor. Yet, surprising though it may seem, the petroleum industry has never been able to make an oil which would really stand up to the job of lubricating the modern automobile power plant.

Through hydrogenation, which won for its German discoverers, Doctors Borch and Bergius, the 1931 Nobel prize for chemistry, really satisfactory motor lubrication for the car of today is available for the first time.

The ideal motor oil, it is generally agreed, should have five characteristics. Paraffine base oils are said to satisfy three—they retain their consistency at extreme temperatures, they do not form sludge, and do not use up rapidly. Oils refined from so-called naphthonic crudos possess the other two requirements—low carbon content and winter fluidity. Until the advent of hydrogenation, however, no refining process or method of blending ever discovered was able to produce a motor oil which would check on all five points.

Today the same process which helped Germany to stand off the world by enabling her to manufacture explosives out of nitrogen from the air when her supply from the outside was shut off, has accomplished what the oil industry was never able to achieve before. Scientists of the Standard Oil Development Company, which perfected the process in this country, explain that molecules of the oil are literally torn apart in the hydrogenation towers under terrific pressure and blasting heat and reformed according to the exact desired specifications. The oil is really "tailor-made," therefore, to operate the high compression engine of today. It goes under the brand name of "Esolube" and is distributed in this state through the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Everything else being equal, "Standard" engineers say, the discovery of perfect lubrication for the ## modern automobile should introduce a new era in trouble-free motoring.

today and served on Governor Roosevelt.

The order, signed by Supreme Court Justice John T. Loughran at Kinston, was asked by John J. Curtin, chief of the mayor's counsel. It is returnable tomorrow morning before a special ter mop Supreme Court at Albany, presided over by Justice Ellis J. Staley.

Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Attacking the fifteen conclusions upon which Mayor Walker's removal is demanded, John J. Curtin, counsel to the mayor, today asked Governor Roosevelt to dismiss the charges and retain Mr. Walker in his $40,000 job. Curtin, red of face and emphatic of tone, asserted the evidence did not sustain the charges.

Curtin's reference to "Judge Seabury's snoopers" brought Seabury to his feet protesting.

Turning quickly toward the chief counsel to the Hofstadter committee, Curtin exclaimed:

"There's nothing wrong with that word. It is a good word."

Mr. Curtin took up each of the fifteen conclusions, prepared by Seabury. They indicate, Seabury holds, that the mayor used his office for personal gain.

While his legal adviser argued in his behalf, Mr. Walker, attired in a gray suit with gray shirt and blue tie, went sight-seeing in the legislative chambers where he served for fifteen years, from 1910 to 1925.

Samuel H. Hofstadter, State Senator, who was chairman of the legislative committee that investigated Tammany administration of New York City, was here today to testify. He had been subpoenaed as a witness by Curtin.

ABOUT TOWN

Efforts are still under way to obtain a visiting nurse for the county, Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health, told members of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion in monthly meeting here Tuesday evening.

The movement, the health director said, is receiving the support of practically all organizations interested in public health, and hope was expressed the nurse would be obtained.

Dr. McGeachy said a nurse of this kind to work among the indigent poor was needed badly at this time in view of the fact that practically all of the time of public health workers is taken up in clinic work. The visiting nurse would make it her business to advise the poor concerning various forms of illness and in that way render invaluable assistance in the prevention campaign launched by the health officer.

The optimism of B. B. Sugg, local tobacco warehouseman, regarding the outlook for improved prices on this market, is of interest locally in view of the upward trend shown by the price situation at the opening of the border market.

With the shortages existing in this section, Mr. Sugg is of the opinion prices will be higher than those registered on the border markets of North and South Carolina.

He urged the farmers of this district to sit ready and get their crop in the best of condition before the season swings open in September.

There is mighty sound advice for the hundreds of farmers who have struggled throughout the summer to get their golden weed in shape for marketing, and if indications count for anything, they will be paid more than last year for their trouble.

Charles Augustus Lindbergh, who has had more publicity than any other man in the country since his memorable flight across the Atlantic, wants the newspapers to lay off and give his second child a chance to develop normally like any other American child.

This is a peculiar request coming as it does from one who was raised to world-wide prominence through the columns which newspapers devoted to his flight and his activities since that time. If undue publicity was given to his first son it was merely because the papers desired to pay homage to one they believed worthy of recognition.

Lindbergh probably has forgotten the power of the press, its ability to give the names of men at the prominence of the brightest star of the firmament or to cast them into obscurity for all time.

Suppose there should have been no newspapers interested in the career of Lindbergh? His flight would still be an achievement, but think of the lack of lustre that would have surrounded it had not it been painted by the hands of the most prolific writers of the day.

The kidnapping of the first Lindbergh child was not handled by every newspaper of the state because of its taste for crime, but as a means of keeping the public informed of the tragedy surrounding one of the greatest heroes of the age. It did not retard apprehension of the kidnappers because everything was so thoroughly censored by the press that none of the real facts of the investigation got into print until after the danger of publication had passed.

Had Lindbergh and the police been more candid with the press at the outset, it is possible the criminals would be behind the bars instead of prowling about the world constituting a continued menace to humankind. The press is a deterrent to crime and has done as much to discourage the activity of criminals as any other force in the world.

If Lindbergh wishes to be dropped, his request should be granted.

SYNOPSIS: When Mark Merriman returns home ill from the Congo, his wife Sondra does not tell him she is really in love with John Anderson. John tells her to be loyal to Mark, but his honorable position is not known by Beatrice Taylor, who spreads gossip about Sondra and John's friendship.

Chapter 31 A PACK OF LIES

It was terrible to Mark to be forced to stay in one room while outside the world hummed by—a world which every night took Sondra from him.

"You must be patient," she always told him when he grumbled. "It won't be for long, and then you'll be free."

Sondra was wonderful—no wife—(what a beautiful word that was!) could have been more loving and devoted.

How he longed to be well and striding again—he knew that he still looked somewhat of a scarecrow.

With an effort he dragged himself up and across the room to the dressing-table. Yes, he certainly looked scarecrow—his face was thin and colorless, and there were dark marks beneath his eyes.

He brushed a rueful hand across his hair; he supposed he would soon all out and look respectable again; Sondra had often told him that he was handsome now in comparison with what he had been when she met him at the boat.

He would not soon forget that morning—the time had seemed to drag after they told him the coast was sighted, but it had ended at last, and he had heard Sondra's voice in the passage outside the sick bay, where he had spent the voyage.

She had looked white and worried, poor darling... Mark sighed and went heavily back to his chair. Sometimes even now he thought she looked ill. No doubt it was a great strain upon her, coming to and fro every day to the hospital. She had not had any real fun for a long time—well, soon he would be able to make up to her for what she had sacrificed for him.

Women were wonderful; if they cared for a man there was nothing they would not do for him. Even his mother had at last been obliged to admit that she could find no fault with his choice of a wife. Another look at his watch—ten past three now; what could be keeping her?

Then suddenly he remembered—she had told him that she was going to lunch with John Anderson. Stupid of him to have forgotten. No doubt they had a great deal to talk about, for Anderson was to tell her about the job in Italy.

Sondra would be delighted; Mark hoped she would tell Anderson how grateful they both were.

Funny how much had happened since he went away. Yesterday Sondra had told him about Flora—how she had left her husband, and now that she had returned, Mark was not surprised—marriage was like that, a sacred, binding tie.

Not that Ben was much of a chap, but after all, she had chosen to marry him.

In many ways Mark was a simple fellow; of course he knew that women often married a man for his money, but he could not imagine Sondra's sister doing such a thing.

He knew very little of Flora, but she was the sister of the woman he adored, and that fact alone had placed her on an undeserved pedestal.

A quarter past three... it must be a very long lunch, he thought with a frown; he wondered where they had gone. Somewhere good he was sure; Anderson always did everything in slap-up style. It would be a change for Sondra, after the days she had devoted to him.

There was a step outside the door, and he started up, his face flushed his eyes eager.

Here she was at last, but it was only the nurse.

"Your mother is downstairs," she said. "Shall I bring her up?"

Mark sighed; his mother rather worried him; she was a little too talkative, too affectionate, and at the back of his mind there was a half knowledge that she was jealous of Sondra ever though only yesterday she had admitted—not very readily—that she could find no fault with her daughter-in-law.

Perhaps mothers were always like that.

warily—"I can't think of anything he can hope to get from me."

Mrs. Merriman seated herself beside him, and undisturbed her coat.

"There is something I want to tell you, Mark," she said.

"Well?" Mark had closed his eyes. "I am not a scandal-monger, as you know," his mother went on firmly. "I don't care, but when it concerns one's own son to speak, I consider it is some something—was done to put an end to it."

Mark made no comment, he was hardly listening.

"It's about Sondra," Mrs. Merriman said hesitatingly.

"About... my wife?" Mark was sitting up stiffly, his eyes dark and angry. "What do you mean?" he demanded.

"It is not I who have anything to say about her," Mrs. Merriman protested; she looked a little iritated. "But when I was at her room the other afternoon—she was out—that Miss Taylor called, and naturally enough, we talked. I always rather liked Miss Taylor, but—"

"I don't want to hear any more. Beatrice is a woman I particularly distrust. I don't want to hear any more, I tell you," he said again fiercely.

"Very well," his mother sighed resignedly. "I only wanted you to know for your good. I'm not accusing Sondra of anything, but if these malicious stories are going round it is time they were stopped."

"You won't stop them by repeating them," Mark said almost brutally. "And whatever stories are going round—it there are any—they're a pack of lies, you may take it from me. I'm surprised that you should trouble to listen. If Beatrice has anything to say about my wife she had better not let me hear of it. A fine sort of friend she is."

Mrs. Merriman insists on telling Mark the scandal, tomorrow—and just then Sondra walks in.

Wilson Kiwanians Fall Before Greenville Stick Attack

LOCALS TRIM VISITORS TO 10-5 TUNE

Using the old willow advantageously at opportune moments, the hard-hitting, fast-fielding, baseball team of the Greenville Kiwanis Club romped away with a 10 to 5 victory over Wilson Kiwanians at the Third Street School athletic field yesterday afternoon.

Wilson, stinging from defeat administered to them by Greenville on their home grounds two weeks ago, came over to the Pitt County capital to get some "sweet revenge," but the terrible part about it was they "got it in the neck."

Pitching air-tight ball, Donald Conley, who runs the county school system as a vocation and plays ball as an avocation, held the visitors at his mercy throughout the game. Except for a batting spree netting them one run in the first inning, Conley had Wilson literally eating out of his hands up to the seventh frame when Captain Joe Taft sent practically all of his substitutes into the field and told them to go to it. Conley also eased up and permitted the visitors to send four runners romping over the rubber.

Wilson used three moundsmen in an effort to stop the terrific batting attack started by Greenville in the first frame and which continued intermittently until the final ball had been tossed over the home plate. A total of thirteen hits netted Captain Joe's boys three runs in the first frame, two in the third one in the fourth and four in the sixth.

Leading the stick assault was no other than Herman Duncan, former Wake Forest and Eastern Carolina League star, who connected for four hits, a triple and three singles, out of four trips to the plate. His fielding at short was also of the spectacular variety. He accepted several difficult chances and made them all good. Some of the wallops, apparently labeled for base hits, carried the fleet-footed shortstop into the deep left field where he nabbed the ball in time to prevent safeties.

On first base the inimitable Dr. Moulton "Mug" Massey, former star in the Eastern Carolina League, who pulls teeth as a professional these days, and plays ball with the Kiwanians for a hobby, displayed old-time form and handed the old apple in a way that returned many a Wilson player to the dugout without his expected hit.

In the latter part of the game, Katie Futrell, who looks after the county poor, felt it his duty to look after the "poor" Wilson boys and nabbed a ball in left field which, under ordinary conditions, would have been good for a three-bagger.

The base-running of Guy Smith, elongated president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club, drew constant applause from the two or three hundred spectators. Despite his length and avoirdupois, Guy Smith raced down the paths like a youngster in the prime of his athletic career, and contributed his part toward piling up the big score for his teammates.

Wright, Sharpe and Thomas did mound work for Wilson, but neither was able to prevent bingles when they figured in scoring. Sharpe and Cook led the hitting for the visitors with two hits each out of four trips to the platter. The box score follows:

EXPECT RACE GET WARMER IN NATIONAL

By HUGH S. FULLETON, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer
It is hard to imagine a pennant race any warmer than the current national league affair in which the last place team is only 15 games behind the first and three teams are battling for the lead within a space of 21-2 games, but there are various signs and portents that it will become even more heated before the season ends.

Despite a record of 15 defeats in their last 17 games, many of them chargeable to left handed pitching, the Pittsburgh Pirates were only two games behind the league-leading Chicago Cubs today with the charging Brooklyn Dodgers another half game back. And Pittsburgh was threatening to stage a comeback any moment while the danger signals were flying for Chicago.

It took just about everything the Cubs had yesterday to turn back the Boston Braves, now holders of sixth place. They waged the longest battle of the major league campaign—19 innings before Chicago finally won out 3 to 2. Bud Tinning and Fred Frankhouse waged the major part of the struggle and the latter finally lost out when a single, a hit batsman and an intentional pass crowded the corners and young Frank Damaree connected with one of the first offerings of Hub Pruett, successor to Frankhouse, for a long fly that brought in Bill Herman with the winning run.

Although Brooklyn closes the gap between second and third to a half game with a 4-1 victory over Pittsburgh, the Bucs showed plenty of fight. A three run rally off Bill Swift in the eighth won the game, but Pittsburgh came back as soon as it was quelled and drove Freddy Helmach to cover. Van Mungo checked the threat with the bases full.

In the third National league game, Bill Terry of the New York Giants clouted a homer, two doubles and two singles while Jim Mooney was holding Cincinnati to four hits and the Giants won easily, 8 to 0. Rain halted the Phillies and Cardinals.

Perhaps to emphasize the difference between the American league chase and the national, the New York Yankees, leaders of the junior circuit, won their tenth straight game, defeating Detroit 8 to 3, on a strong combination of steady pitching by George Fingers and effective hitting by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. The Babe made three hits, including his 34th homer while Lou batted in three runners.

The triumph increased the Yanks' lead to 11-2 games as the Philadelphia Athletics regained second place from Cleveland with a 11-0 triumph over the Indians. Lefty Grove's four-hit hurling brought him his 18th victory and fourth shutout.

Washington, in fourth place but far out of the picture, turned back the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 2 with a seventh inning rally that netted three runs off Ted Lyons. A six-hit mound performance by Paul Andrews and three blows apiece by Dale Alexander and Smead Jolley netted the Boston Red Sox a 7 to 3 triumph over the St. Louis Browns in the remaining contest.

CHARLOTTE BANS SUNDAY BALL GAMES

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—With the circuit's funeral fore-stalled, at least temporarily, the Sunday baseball issue was hopped up in the Piedmont League once more.

Not that it will make any difference this season, but Sunday baseball in Charlotte is barred, taboo and illegal by act of city council. The action was taken unanimously last night.

The new ordinance, outlawing Sunday sports, does not take effect, however, until after August 27th, which is when Charlotte's final home Sunday game is scheduled. It may have an important bearing on whether a club will be operated next year.

Baseball on the Sabbath has been a sore point since its inaugural here this summer. Ministers and many churches lined up on one side to denounce it, while it found quite a few defenders. Its death knell will sound on the 28th.

President W. G. Bramham of the Piedmont has forwarded a formal protest to Judge K. M. Landis against withdrawal of support of the Winston-Salem club by the New York Giants. The protest totaled two thousand words.

Winston has been instructed by the Big Czar of baseball to keep operating until he hands down his decision.

Thanks to the work of Wyatt Taylor and Robert Lennox of the Raleigh Capitals, Charlotte's lead over Greensboro today was only four games.

Taylor and Lennox combined effectively to throw a rail in the spokes of the fast-flying Hornets. Taylor, former Wake Forest pitcher, kept nine Hornet hits well scattered. Lennox pounded out two homers and a single, batting in three runs. The score was 6 to 3.

The Patriots were taking advantage of the situation by training Wilmington 7 to 4. Ted Kleinhaus, left-handed ace, held the visiting Tars to six hits.

Trouble with lighting kept Durham and Winston-Salem apart.

An Important Announcement

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW JERSEY

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is proud to announce the introduction of a new motor oil—Essolube. ★ This oil has been named Essolube because all tests prove it to be superior to any oil ever before produced, making it a fit companion in quality to Esso

—“more powerful than any gasoline.” ★ Essolube has been made commercially possible by hydrofining, Standard Oil's perfected method of producing motor oil by means of the famous hydrogenation process—which won the Nobel Prize for its creators. ★ Because Essolube is so superior to all other motor oils on the market, this company has decided to replace the widely known “Standard” Motor Oil with this new product.

★ We are also pleased to announce that Essolube will be sold at no extra cost to the motorist. ★ Essolube is now available at all stations and dealers of the following companies:

- STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW JERSEY
- STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA
- STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF LOUISIANA
- STANDARD OIL COMPANY, Incorporated in Kentucky
- COLONIAL BEACON OIL COMPANY, INC.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady 7.9 lower in response to lower Liverpool cables and reports of showers in portions of the southwest.

Trading was fairly active at the start. There was selling attributed to the south, Liverpool, the continent and spot houses, as well as further Wall Street liquidation, but offerings absorbed about the initial prices and the market held fairly steady on trade buying and covering. At the end of the first half hour, December contracts were holding around 7.50 with the general list showing net losses of 7 or 8 points.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Active buying on the part of houses with eastern connections lifted wheat prices briskly today toward the last.

Reports that plans for organization of then new Commodities Finance Corporation had been perfected were a bullish factor. Eastern buying caught the wheat pit in an oversold condition.

Stock Market

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER (Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The stock market advanced and receded listlessly today, as traders were inclined to withhold judgment on the immediate outlook, pending more convincing evidence as to the market's position.

There was a mild rally in the morning, which carried a number of utilities and rails up a point or two, but these advances were replaced by losses of similar extent in a mid-day sag. By the fourth hour, it had been some recovery, but it lacked vitality.

Westinghouse, American Can and American Telephone registered losses of about 2 points, and Case got down a point, before meeting support. Issues off a point or so from the previous close included U. S. Steel, Standard of New Jersey, New York Central, Loews, and Dupont. In the main, the rails held up fairly well. The morning advance carried such issues as Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Columbia Gas, Electric Power and Light, General Electric, and Johns Manville, temporarily one to two points higher.

Commodity markets were still being closely watched. Rising prices for raw materials were felt in the retail markets during July, according to Fairchild's Index, which showed that the decline in prices of goods to the consumer slackened considerably, amounting to 1.5 per cent, compared to 2.3 per cent in June. The slump in both wholesale and retail prices during the first six months were an important factor in the adverse earnings statements reported by many companies. Sears-Roebuck, for instance, reported a loss after all charges of $2,893,734 in the twenty-eight weeks ended July 16, most of which reflected the write-down of inventories. A check to the decline might permit many companies to show profits, according to Wall Street bankers, while an actual upturn would obviously be highly beneficial. It was the increase in prices in the oil industry which brought a number of prominent companies in that group out of the red in the first half.

The bodies of Mrs. Maggie McFarland and an unidentified boy, who drowned in the rampaging boggy creek near Enid, were not recovered.

Overflows from the Skeleton River north of Guthrie drove seventy-five families from rural homes and interrupted highway and rail traffic. The U. S. Highway N. 77 bridge across the river was partly washed out and the Santa Fe Railroad's bridge was under water.

About seventy-five Enid business houses were flooded and damage to paving was heavy. However, city officials advised Ralph von Thurn, St. Louis Red Cross representative, Enid would need no outside aid, and he hurried on to Cherokee.

MACK FLEMING CONFESSES FIRING FOSKEY HOME

plicated his brother, Robert Fleming, who was immediately arrested and jailed to await court action.

The Foskeys had a narrow escape from death when they awoke Tuesday morning at 4 o'clock to find their home completely enveloped in flames.

With assistance of neighbors, they rushed to safety after being painfully burned about their faces and bodies and cut by glass as they crashed through windows to safety.

Ernie Foskey, 8 years old, was so badly cut and burned that he was brought to the hospital here for treatment. He received a jagged wound near the temple in addition to burns about the body. The father was expected to lose an eye as result of burns.

Fleming told officers today that they fired the home of the Foskeys because of a row which they had with Foskey, who with his wife, were witnesses against the Flemings in a case involving a dispute with Johnnie Anderson, who lived at the Foskey home some of the time.

He said he and his brother awoke early Tuesday morning, obtained a can of kerosene and went to the Foskey home. The oil was dashed on the wall back of the kitchen and a match applied. The youths immediately left for home a short distance down the road, going in opposite directions after reaching a pea field.

Officers investigating the case next morning followed the footprints to the Fleming home and immediately arrested Mack Fleming for investigation. He was lodged in jail, and the confession was made from his cell this morning.

I, Mack Fleming, make the following statement of my own free will and accord, and without any promises or reward:

My brother, Bob Fleming, had a row with Mr. Foskey on Friday night, Aug. 12th. I was with him at the time of the row but did not talk. Later we stood in corn patch right near Foskey's house and heard him talking to his wife and Letha Nichols. This was about 9 o'clock p. m. We had the row about 8 o'clock p. m. on the same day.

After leaving the cornfield Bob and I went home. Our plan at that time was to get Johnnie Anderson, who some times slept at the Foskey's house.

On Saturday, Aug. 13th my brother Bob was indicted for assaulting Johnnie Anderson. Mr. Foskey and his wife was witnesses against him, Bob Fleming. On Monday the 15th Bob told me that we would get Foskey and his wife for testimony against him. Bob came Tuesday morning and woke me up. We slipped out of the house. Did not wake any one. We went to the kitchen which was back of house and got a vegetable can full of kerosene. We went out to the road and up to Hakey's house.

We went down side of house on east side and around to the back of kitchen. We waited there a few moments and poured the kerosene along the wall on back of kitchen, and I struck match to kerosene.

The fire blazed up immediately. We left the house and ran across cornfield toward our home. We separated at pea patch. I went across pea patch towards the woods and came around woods to our home. Bob went out across peanut patch to the path leading to our home. I arrived home ahead of Bob and waited for him to come up. When he came which was in about 5 minutes, we both slipped into the house and to bed. No one woke up when we went in. I went back to sleep.

SAY SHOOPER GIVES UP TO SPEAKEASIES

who consider that the main issue, he added, can support neither Mr. Hoover nor the Democratic candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"The outstanding, indeed the overshadowing part of Hoover's prohibition statement," said Bishop Cannon, "is the startling declaration by a President of the United States of the helplessness of his administration in its warfare against lawlessness, in its efforts to control what Hoover denominates the 'intolerable speak-easies and bootlegging' and to prevent 'practical nullification of the constitution.'"

Continuing he said that had Hoover in March, 1929, "not only declared his purpose to enforce vigorously and efficiently the Volstead Act but also asked Congress to furnish whatever men and money were necessary to secure as efficient enforcement as for other laws. Congress would have provided the men and money and the prohibition department would have been equipped to smash the city beer gangs, imprisonment or deport alien gangsters, suppress open speak-easies and bootlegging and prevent any wholesale nullification of the Constitution."

"But, while appointing able and incorruptible officials, Hoover never requested adequate funds for efficient enforcement."

"And now, without having first appealed to Congress for money and men to aid him to prevent nullification of the Constitution, Hoover suddenly surrenders and declares the helplessness of his administration to enforce the Constitution which he has sworn to uphold and defend."

"Would Jackson or Lincoln or Wilson have made such a declaration of administration helplessness to uphold the Constitution without a vig-conqueror of the stratosphere, established a new world's altitude record today by rising 16,500 meters (more than 10 miles) above the earth in the aluminum air-tight ball attached to his stratosphere balloon.

He took off from the airfield here at 5:06 o'clock this morning (11:06 p. m. Wednesday EST) after weeks of waiting for suitable weather conditions and at noon today his headquarters in Zurich received a radio message saying he had smashed his previous altitude mark.

The radio messages sent by Dr. Piccard today were the first ever received from the stratosphere.

In his message at noon he said: "We have crossed the Engadine mountains at an altitude of 16,500 meters."

Advices from various observation posts in this vicinity throughout the forenoon indicated that Dr. Piccard had equalled his previous record shortly after his take-off. He was sighted frequently from Zurich to Sargans, and then the balloon took a more southerly course toward Italy and was reported from Davos, St. Moritz and other points.

Another message received shortly after noon reported the professor and his companion, Max Cosyn had crossed the Engadine to the east of Samaden, near St. Moritz.

"We are both well," the message said, "but it is very cold and we plan to descend soon. We wish to avoid descending into the Adriatic. We are now in sight of Lake Garda."

A crowd estimated at 40,000 persons was jammed around the airfield as the balloon rose, at first slowly, and then with increasing rapidity. Excursion trains brought the great crowd in to what it considered a sporting event, something quite different than it appeared to the hero himself, whose mind was all on the scientific results.

The professor's last words were addressed to his children, "Au revoir, mes enfants!" (Till we meet again, my children!) He called out as the balloon rose and only his head, with its shock of long hair curling about his ears, was visible, sticking out of the still open port hole in the aluminum gondola.

Just before the take-off, he had breakfasted with his wife and family in a shed near the airfield. His wife bore up bravely although after his previous flight she made him promise never to undertake another. The professor and his former companion, Paul Kipfer, were missing so long after last year's flight that almost everybody, except his wife, gave him up as lost before he landed on a mountain near Oberburgli, in the Alps.

After the breakfast and just before he was ready to step into the gondola, he saluted the crowd and then delivered a short radio address which was broadcast to the United States.

After he had climbed into the gondola and before he took leave of the children he beckoned his wife to approach. Gallantly, he kissed her hand. As the balloon soared away a few minutes later, the anxious mother consoled herself by answering the children's eager questions about where their daddy was going and why.

It took three hours to inflate the big balloon and make the last minute preparations for the flight. The maneuvering cords and safety valve drew particular attention. Seeking to avoid his dangerous experience of last year, when the balloon was belated for hours at an altitude of more than 20,000 feet, every precaution was taken to insure the safety of the passengers.

The manhole in the gondola used this year is larger. It is operated from the interior of the gondola as is the safety valve which leads through a tube of mercury from the balloon.

The exterior of the gondola is painted all white, an improvement suggested by the near-roasting occupants suffered on last year's flight when one side was painted white and the other black.

the market until prices go higher, hemmed in Sioux City on all sides, and the situation appeared serious enough to Sheriff Hugh Slocum at Stevens, S. D., to appear to the state sheriff for help.

Sheriff Slocum decided to make his appeal after a group of about 100 farmers, picketing a highway at Stevens, forced him and his deputies to stop escorting a fleet of five trucks to Sioux City.

One shot was fired in the air by the sheriff, who was overpowered by the farmers and relieved of his weapon. It was the first shot fired in the area affected by the strikes, one of which is being waged by farmers who have declared a 30-day holiday on selling all kinds of agricultural products.

The decision of Nebraska farmers to join Iowa and South Dakota producers in the blockade of the highways, which has been under way since last Monday, was announced last night by J. F. Krieger of Dakota City, who said that the pickets had been given orders to stop all trucks enroute to market.

Authorities of northwestern Iowa and southeastern South Dakota meanwhile took further precautions to preserve order. Sheriff Ralph Rippey of Plymouth county increased his force of deputies by 20 men while authorities of neighboring counties in all three states consolidated their forces to break the blockade.

"And now to remedy the 'intolerable' conditions which he declares his administration cannot control, Hoover makes an indefinite, illogical and impracticable proposal to legalize the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, but which will contain a guarantee that the Federal Government will prevent the return of the moon and violation of the laws of dry states."

"Until Hoover specifically formulates a provision whereby he proposes to prevent the return of the saloon, his proposal is simply an indefinite and glittering generality. How will he define where the legal hotel or restaurant or drinking parlor ends and the illegal saloon begins?"

appeal and bond was fixed at $2,000.

Asheville, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Found guilty of offering to bribe a member of the jury which convicted C. Luke Lee, Tennessee publisher and former United States senator, and two others of violation of state banking laws, Wiley Noland, Haywood county farmer, faced sentence today.

A jury in Superior court took but 45 minutes yesterday to reach its verdict of guilty. Noland was released under $2,000 bond.

The jury accepted the prosecution's charge that Noland attempted to influence Hurst Justice, former of the special Haywood county jury, which heard the banking cases.

Mrs. Justice signed an affidavit that Noland told her attorneys for Lee were willing to pay $15,000 to find out how her husband "stood" and if there was a chance for acquittal.

the market until prices go higher, hemmed in Sioux City on all sides, and the situation appeared serious enough to Sheriff Hugh Slocum at Stevens, S. D., to appear to the state sheriff for help.

Sheriff Slocum decided to make his appeal after a group of about 100 farmers, picketing a highway at Stevens, forced him and his deputies to stop escorting a fleet of five trucks to Sioux City.

One shot was fired in the air by the sheriff, who was overpowered by the farmers and relieved of his weapon. It was the first shot fired in the area affected by the strikes, one of which is being waged by farmers who have declared a 30-day holiday on selling all kinds of agricultural products.

The decision of Nebraska farmers to join Iowa and South Dakota producers in the blockade of the highways, which has been under way since last Monday, was announced last night by J. F. Krieger of Dakota City, who said that the pickets had been given orders to stop all trucks enroute to market.

Authorities of northwestern Iowa and southeastern South Dakota meanwhile took further precautions to preserve order. Sheriff Ralph Rippey of Plymouth county increased his force of deputies by 20 men while authorities of neighboring counties in all three states consolidated their forces to break the blockade.

The President found that during his absence aides had gone ahead gathering data to be presented to the business leaders when they gather here August 26. Already acceptances to join the conference have been received from numerous of the 15 financial and industrial representatives invited.

As he studied the last reports on this meeting, Mr. Hoover was optimistic that he could bring out of it an organized "program of action along the whole economic front."

It was for that reason, he said, that he summoned members of the business committees in each of the twelve federal reserve districts.
