Heavier Sales Expected On Bright Leaf Tobacco Market Here Next Week

SALES LIGHT OPENING WEEK

Tobacconists turn Attention to Preparation for Receipt Of More Liberal Offerings from Farmers; Demand for All the Grades of Leaf Expected to Continue Active Here During Remainder of Season.

With the first week of the 1932-1933 season marked by probably the highest sales in years, the Greenville tobacco market today turned its attention to receiving heavier offerings of bright leaf next week.

The first week was concluded before the noon hour yesterday with prices reported as improved on the better grades of leaf, but with considerable common tobacco in evidence.

Starting out with a general average of over eight cents, the market concluded the week well above ten cents. The average was held down considerably by common tobacco which predominated sales throughout the week.

One of the most remarkable features of the sales was the fact that less tags were turned than any other year in history of the market. Turning of tags indicates the farmer's rejection of the bid on his tobacco, a method that has been in use since the introduction of the auction system.

The light offerings during the opening week were attributed by tobacconists to the inability of the farmers to prepare their tobacco for marketing because of cotton picking operations and other farm duties. Then, also, there has been a disposition on the part of some to hold back the marketing of better grades until the price situation develops.

The Greenville market sold last year more tobacco than any market in the bright leaf belt, according to government figures, and facilities are as great this year as they were then.

The market is capable of taking care of 1,750,000 pounds of tobacco daily and this does away with the possibility of the old time "block" sales which in many instances necessitated farmers remaining on the market for two days or more.

With the crop cut more than 50 per cent in this section because of plant shortage and unfavorable weather conditions, demand was expected to remain active throughout the season with prices continuing the advance exhibited the opening week.

Two Men Free IN Murder Case

Robbinsville, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP) Non-suits left Jack Prince and Charles Peterson, two of the four men indicted for the slaying of Eagle Rose, free today, but the other two, Oliver Baker and John Gladden, continued on trial in Superior Court here.

Judge P. A. McElroy ordered the non-suits on the grounds of insufficient evidence as to Prince and because it was brought out that Peterson was only eleven years old when Rose was slain in April, 1926.

The jurist denied motions for non-suits of the cases against Baker and Gladden.

The State rested its case late yesterday. Attorneys for the defense said it was possible the case would go to the jury late today.

PROBE BLAST ON N.Y. FERRY

Marine Police Continue to Search For 11 Persons Missing After Disaster.

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The District Attorney of the Bronx announced today that he would hold Alexander Forsythe, captain of the ill-fated steamer Observation, as a material witness to the explosion which yesterday caused the death of at least 39 men.

Details of the disaster will be laid before a Bronx grand jury next Tuesday morning, the prosecutor said. Forsythe, now a patient in Fordham Hospital, is expected to appear. Physicians said that his injuries are not serious.

Eleven men still are missing and police were grappling for their bodies today at the 138th Street dock in the East River where the 44-year-old steamer was blown to bits by its boilers. Of the 63 persons injured, 38 were still in hospitals.

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Wives and children of the missing watched sadly from the shore today as divers searched the floor of the East River for victims of the explosion of the labor ferry "Observation."

By mid-morning another boy had been found on the muddy river bottom and another of the injured died in a hospital. Police figures at that time read: Dead, 39; missing, 11; injured, 63.

The "Observation" blew up yesterday morning as it left the ferry house at 135th Street with iron workers employed to build prison cells in the new penitentiary on Riker's Island.

By DALE HARRISON

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP)—They counted at 37 today the dead of the little wooden steamer "Observation"—the 44-year-old "Observation" which "went up like a firecracker" in the East River yesterday.

The injured numbered 64 in a recheck by police this morning, thirty-six of them remained in hospitals, their injuries in some cases critical. A guard stood at the hospital cot of one victim—Alexander Forsythe, captain of the boat. He was too seriously hurt to permit questioning.

All he could say was: "I cannot account for it. We were just backing out when the (Continued on page four)

James J. Walker And Secretary Embark at New York For A Visit to Europe.

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Jas. J. Walker, who resigned as mayor of New York a week ago during a hearing as to his fitness to retain office, sailed for Europe today with George F. Collins, his former executive secretary.

He and Collins were accompanied to the liner Conte Grande by Mrs. Walker and she was at first thought to have sailed with her husband. It was learned later, however, that (Continued on page four)

FEW CLUES IN ROBBINS CASE

Police Perplexed By Lack of Leads in the Disappearance Of Dry Leader.

Washington, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The disappearance just a week ago of Colonel Raymond Robbins, friend of President Hoover, today still perplexed a host of federal agents working hundreds of miles apart on a score of theories but few clues.

They concentrated in Chicago where two persons said they had seen the prominent prohibitionist and social economist during the week, but also were active in Florida, origin of threats of violence feared by Mrs. Robbins, and in New York, where Robbins checked out of the City club last Saturday.

CITY SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

Teachers Already In City Preparing For Work; Heavy Enrollment Expected.

The Greenville city schools will open Monday morning at 8:25. The teachers have already arrived in the city and were busy today working with the principals and supervisors and making plans for the opening day of work.

Very little time will be lost in getting started because all the preliminary work has already been done by the superintendent and the principals.

The lower grades from one to seven inclusive will be kept one hour Monday morning. The High School grades will be kept until 12 o'clock. There will be no normal assemblies at the opening. These will come later, at which time parents and friends will be invited.

The figures in the office of the superintendent of schools show that the enrollment this year will exceed that of last year. During the past two days children from a large number of families who have recently moved to Greenville have registered.

The course in Commercial Education and General Office practice which is to be inaugurated this year for adults has awakened a great deal of interest in the city, and indications now are that this course will have a capacity enrollment. Those interested in this course are asked to remember that the first meeting of this class will be held next Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Commercial Department of the High School.

There are no changes in the textbooks to amount to anything this year.

Send Relief To Storm Section of the Bahamas

Nassau, Bahamas, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The relief ship Lady Cordaux, bearing food and medical supplies to storm sufferers in the Abaco group of the Bahamas, reached Green Turtle Bay and found the town of the island devastated.

Sacramento authorities today prepared to search the river for her body, meanwhile asking police in Reno to determine whether Miss Millite ever reached the Nevada capital.

The double search was ordered because officials were not certain whether the woman drowned, swam ashore or left the steamer at Sacramento unnoticed. All they knew was she boarded the steamer in San Francisco, was seen only twice en route, was not seen to leave the boat at Sacramento, and her luggage was left aboard. An empty thing suit bag found in her effects lent some credence to the theory she may have faked a suicide.

Huge Drop Indicated In Valuation of Carolina Public Service Bodies

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP)—The valuation of public service corporations in North Carolina for the year 1932 today was announced as slightly more than $342,000,000, a decrease of over $8,000,000 compared with the 1931 figure of $350,000,000.

The valuations are used as the basis for levying taxes, both State and county. The Board of Assessment sets up pro rata tables showing the valuations in each county for each corporation included in the report.

HEALTH WORK REACHES PEAK

Over 8,602 Persons Inoculated for Typhoid Fever in Last Eight Months.

More people have been immunized against typhoid fever in Pitt County for the first eight months than any single year in the history of the county, according to records of the Health Department, made public today.

Up to September 1 the records indicated that 8,602 persons had been administered complete courses of toxin-antitoxin. The total number for the previous year was given as 5,000.

The immunization campaign hit its peak in July when 3,008 persons were inoculated in the various clinics of the county. At that time next with 2,331 taking the complete courses of treatment.

For the first six months, 3,263 persons were given the injections. Although it has been impossible (Continued on page four)

Bolivia And Paraguay In Grip Of Bitter Fighting

La Paz, Bolivia, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Bolivian troops were fighting a bitter battle with Paraguayans at Fort Bouqueron in the disputed Chaco region, an official communique said today, but were holding their positions and maintaining the defense of the fort.

The Paraguayan attacking force was large, the communique said. It denied Paraguayan reports they had captured the fort.

The Paraguayans began the attack yesterday morning at dawn, it said.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The Paraguayan government prepared today to inform the League of Nations that Bolivia had opened war-like operations in the Chaco, without a declaration of war.

A Paraguayan aviator participating in yesterday's fighting at Fort Bouqueron said the Bolivian left wing capitulated at 9 a. m. and that he engaged in a battle with three Bolivian planes and believed he shot (Continued on Page Four)

NEW WALKOUT IN N. C. MILL

Seventy Percent Of Hosiery Mill Workers Strike at Winston-Salem.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP)—North Carolina's troubled hosiery industry had another strike on its hands today.

Approximately 70 per cent of the workers in the knitting room of the Hanes Hosiery Mill here walked out in protest against wage cuts and joined one hundred employees of the boarding room who quit and demanded an increase in the wage scale.

Representatives of the workers said they were asking for a return to last year's wage, less 20 per cent. They asserted the wage cuts which have been made amount to over 50 per cent.

A total of about two hundred workers are on strike. The strike here follows numerous labor troubles this summer in other hosiery mills. At one time nearly two-score hosiery mills, mostly in High Point, were idle because of strikes. The major strike was settled by arbitration.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP)—North Carolina's courts will be called upon to decide whether the Charlotte city council can forbid the playing of golf on Sunday here.

Complete Flight Manteo - Murphy

Manteo, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP)—From the sunlit sounds of North Carolina's coast to the towering pinnacles of its western border, "From Manteo to Murphy," now is no more than half a day's journey.

John Parrott, of Kinston, a 17-year-old aviation enthusiast, tied the two ends of the Tar Heel commonwealth together in about six hours yesterday. He left the beach at Nag's Head in his plane at 5:15 a. m., flew to Murphy, dropped a letter from the Manteo mayor to the mayor of Murphy and returned to the coast, completing the flight at 5:45 p. m.

He stopped at Charlotte going and coming to refuel. His father, Dr. Albert Parrott, and Carl Goersch, of Washington, N. C., accompanied him.

The Republicans are looking to the east and the Democrats to the west in the forthcoming presidential election.

While the Democrats are flaying the Republicans for their inability to improve general economic conditions.

In this connection they are calling attention to the effort of President Hoover to bolster industry.

Nobody expects the party to pull any Aladdin tricks, but they do want to see some concrete evidence of improved conditions before they are snared by the Republican simulation of prosperity.

With the world series set for September 28, the baseball-loving public will begin marking time from now on until the date for the great classic rolls around.

One of the big lights of the fight this year, if the Yanks continue to win, will be the exploits of Babe Ruth with the bat, in spite of fear that an attack of appendicitis would keep him out of the game.

The Bambino, always one of the big guns of baseball, will be on hand to smash the Yankees to victory, and while he may not be all of the show he will be there to furnish the usual thrills with the willow.

There are lots of great players in the game but none has ever occupied a more important place in the public eye than Ruth, and his exploits in the coming series will be followed with interest by both grownups and kiddies alike.

The first week of the Greenville tobacco market came to a close yesterday with prices still showing an inclination to move upward.

Greenville is capable of handling 750,000 pounds of tobacco daily, and this eliminates the old-time block sales which used to cause farmers to have to remain in town two or three days sometimes before selling their offerings.

The market not only offers the best facilities to be found on any night leaf market in the world, but it is forever striving to obtain the best of prices for the growers.

When good tobacco is selling Greenville always pays the highest prices and growers who sell they may satisfy themselves that they are getting the best of service along with the best of prices.

City schools will begin work here Monday and county schools will open September 19.

Both city and county systems are looking forward to successful seasons in spite of reduction of appropriations, and hope to come out at the end of the year with the same splendid records of service to their credit.

The county schools have made remarkable progress, growing from a collection of one and two-room schools into great consolidated districts equaled by none in the state.

It is difficult to maintain high standard of service on shortage of appropriations, but the schools did it last year and will strive to do the same this year. Patrons should

SYNOPSIS: Behind the security and wealth of Wear, her husband's country place which she is seeing for the first time, Nan Wear senses sinister movements. Chapter 18 HORRORS VISIT NAN

Nan sat up in bed in the dark. Something had awakened her, but she didn't know what it was.

At first the darkness seemed to fill the room, pressing in upon her so that the posts of the bed, the red hangings, which she had pushed back as far as possible, and the big wardrobe (which was somewhere on the opposite side of the room, were all lost in an even velvet dark.

Then the curtain at the far window moved in some unseen current of air, and a pale luminous streak divided the darkness. The immediate effect was to make the room seem immensely large.

A moment before, everything had been pressing in upon her; she could have touched the walls with her outstretched hand. And now, with a puff of wind, everything was immensely far away.

She drew another long breath. It must have been the wind that had waked her. She pushed back her hair and relaxed. It was rather horrid to find herself sitting up in the dark and not know how you had got there.

She pulled up a pillow behind her back and watched the moonlight run across the floor like a wave flung up by the tide. Like a wave it ran back again. She could see all the furniture now, mysteriously soft and large. A pleasant drowsiness began to steal over her.

She slipped a little further down in the bed. She was slipping down into soft flowing waters of sleep, when all of a sudden they ebbed away and she was awake again, her heart beating and her eyes staring into the darkness.

It wasn't the flapping of the curtain that had waked her before, and it wasn't the flapping of the curtain that had waked her now. It was a sound—not in the room—somewhere else. Now that she heard it, she could remember that she had heard it before. The memory was like an echo just caught on the edge of sound.

She slipped down on the floor, went barefoot to the door, and stood with the knob in her hand, summoning up her courage to open it. The knob was cold, and very smooth with age; it was mahogany like the heavy door. Just above her hand there was a bolt. She could slip the bolt and get back into bed again.

She turned the knob and opened the door; and as she did so, light came in with the draught and the moonlight ran across the floor. She stepped outside and closed the door behind her, holding to it. There was a soft woolly mat under her feet.

Her room was at the end of a short passage. The passage gave upon the stair head. The dog's whine and the sound of his padding feet came up the well of the stairs.

She latched her door and went along the passage to the head of the stairs. It was not dark here. The moon struck through a long window set with painted glass, bleaching its colours and making them like colours seen in a dream. Nan leaned on the rail and looked over into the dark hall. The padding and the whining had stopped. She called softly:

"Bran—Bran—" and immediately she heard him take the stair. She saw him for a moment, huge and black against the lighted window, said his name again, and then he was pressing against her, jerking his head up under her hand and whimpering.

"What is it?" said Nan. "What is it, Bran?" He nuzzled her hand and whined. All at once Nan was twice as frightened as she had been before. She wanted to get back to her room and bolt herself in. She took Bran by the collar, and he ran with her. She was breathing hard as she shot the bolt.

When she turned from the door, she saw Bran reared on his hind legs at the window with the curtain blowing round him. The moonlight threw a monstrous shadow almost to her feet. His nails scraped on the sill.

She ran to him and pulled away the curtain. "What is it? What's the matter, Bran?"

He quivered and blew against the glass. With her hand on his neck she could feel his hackles rise. She pressed against him and looked out. The window looked to the southwest. It was open at the top. Bran pushed the glass with his nose and whimpered. It was a heavy old-fashioned window, and Nan strained as she raised it. The wind flooded the room—a soft, damp wind—and she and Bran leaned out together.

The terrace beneath the window looked like grey blotting-paper with symmetrical blotches of ink at regular intervals. The blotches were flow-beds of crimson and scarlet and orange and flame-coloured snapdragons. They had been brilliant under the grey sweep of the rain; now, under the moon, they were blotches of ink. It was queer to think of all those bright colours asleep.

The terrace was wide. A low balustrade guarded it. Then the grass fell away, shadowy, mysterious, to the unseen ravine, whose waters made a deep undertone to the sighing of the wind.

All at once the moonlight drained away. And then under her hand she felt Bran's great throat muscles thrum to a growl too faint to reach her ears. She pressed closer to him and whispered:

"What is it?" He flung up his head impatiently. The thrumming went on. A gleam of light slipped out between two hurrying clouds. A far off rumble seemed to answer Bran.

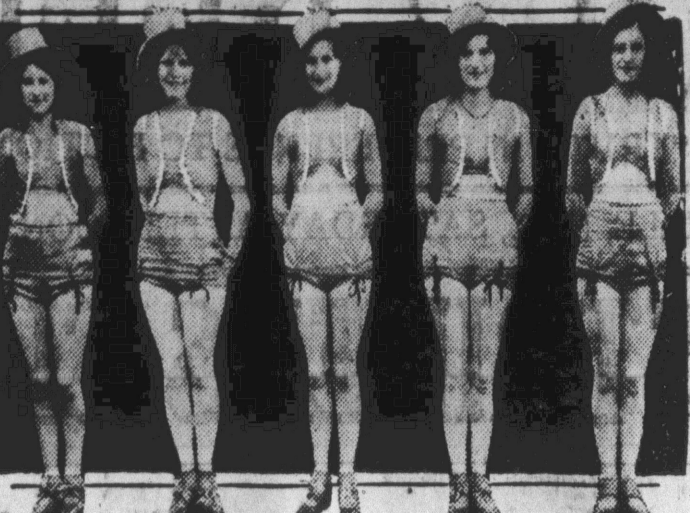

Nan rubbed her cheek against his ear. "Darling lamb—don't you like thunder? Is there going to be a storm?"

He shook himself free and leaned forward. She could hear him growling now. A pite violet flare changed the sky, and was gone again. Bran quivered and snuffed the wind. Nan puled at his collar, and might just as well have pulled at the hasp of the window.

A second flare lit everything with a sudden brilliance. Nan saw the black shadow of the ravine, the ink-black trees beyond it, and the curve of the cliff. It was when it was gone that she knew she had seen something else—a black shape on the edge of the dark ravine. And the shape was the shape of Robert Leonard.

Another flash, and he was gone. (Copyright, 1932, Lippincott)

PIEDMONT TO END SEASON'S PLAY TONITE

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP) Whipped to a financial fizzle and staggering to the finish line, the Piedmont League came today to the end of a disastrous season.

The Class B circuit, which began the season with eight members, wound up with six, but winner in the strenuous struggle of President W. G. Bramham, the league directors and players alike to keep the league alive in this sad year when so many minors collapsed.

The final games pitted Raleigh against Charlotte, Greensboro against High Point, and Durham against Wilmington.

A post-season series still remains between Greensboro, winner of the first half, and Charlotte, the second half champion, for the league pennant, but tonight's games will wind up the regular chores of the players.

No official statement has been made, but whether the league will function next year probably will depend upon the developments of the winter and the business situation next spring.

The league looked back upon a series of disheartening events. Asheville, one of the starting entries, was lost because the Louisville club of the American Association with drew its financial support in mid-season. High Point was dropped at the same time, but the New York Giants, who controlled the Winston-Salem franchise, later moved it to High Point.

The Raleigh club finished the season on all-fours. Unable to meet salaries, the club management turned the franchise over to the players who operated it and divided the account lack of attendance.

CASUALTIES ON GRIDIRON ON INCREASE

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP)—The first casualty reports were beginning to come in from the Big Five training grounds today as practice sessions turned from light skirmishes to heavy work.

Albert Pop Werner, veteran guard and choice of many sports writers for an All-State berth last year, was the first victim at Duke. He wrenched his knee during the morning practice yesterday and will be out of the game indefinitely.

Ralph Caton, fullback and the heaviest backfield man on Davidson's squad, suffered a slight sprain. He will be inactive for a few days.

Lenoir-Rhyne, one of the North State Conference members, also reported a casualty. Jess Bumgarner, a likely freshman prospect, broke his leg when he fell with the ball.

While the loss of Werner for the time being was sad news at Duke, there was also news on the bull side of Blue Devil stock. E. F. Dunlap, regular freshman center last year who had not been expected to return to school, appeared on the campus to bolster line prospects.

With a flock of veterans on hand, training in progressing fast at the University of North Carolina. Coach Chuck Collins was able to send two teams through signal drills yesterday, the boys picking up where they left off in spring practice without a hitch.

His first string was composed entirely of veterans of last fall's campaign and the only sophomore on the second team was Manley, a freshman.

Still looking for a center, Coach Doc Newton, of Davidson, shifted McElrath, ordinarily a tackle, to the position. The post was not entirely new to McElrath who played it in high school.

While Newton worked with the line, his assistant, Gene McEvry, tried out several backfield combinations.

Rt Raleigh the N. C. State Wolf-pack took things a little easier after the hard workout of Thursday. Most of the squad showed up for practice a bit stiff and sore.

SENATORS IN CLOSE RACE FOR 2D PLACE

By HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer

While the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs proceed leisurely to snare the victories that bring them closer and closer to the major league's two championships, Walter Johnson's Washington Senators are roaring along at a terrific clip that may yet earn them second place in the American league.

Twenty victories in their last 24 games today had carried the Senators to within a game and a half of the Philadelphia Athletics and in excellent position to move into the runner-up post should the A's continue to falter. That streak of Washington's has been featured by excellent pitching, especially from Fred Marberry. Bill M. Agee and Alvin Crowder but it was the Senators' bats that beat back the St. Louis Browns, 6-4, yesterday. The Senators scored their six runs in the first four innings and held a five-run lead as the Browns came to bat in the last half of the seventh. Then Crowder weakened and before the frame was over the Browns had scored three runs and were very much in the game. Marberry stopped that rally and Lloyd Brown pitched the ninth and held the Browns scoreless.

The Yankees, needing four victories to clinch the pennant, got absolutely nowhere, dropping two games to the Detroit Tigers, 14-13 in 14 innings and 4-1 in five frames. The first game was a wild affair marked by 25 walks, 14 by Yankee pitchers, and five errors. Sam Byrd's error in the 14th allowed Gerald Walker to reach second base, thus putting the fleet Tiger outfielder in a position to score the winning run on Heinie Schube's single. MacFayden walked four men in the nightcap, forcing in one run in the second inning. Arndt Jorgens' error permitted two more to cross the plate.

The Boston Redsox overcame a six-run lead and whipped the Chicago White Sox, 9-6, in 10 innings. The Cubs moved one game closer to the National league pennant by beating the Boston Braves, 5-2 as Lonnie Warneke scattered nine hits and hung up his 21st victory of the season against only five defeats. Twelve more Cub victories automatically will give Charley Grimm's club the pennant.

Seeing Through My Windshield

By ETHEL NICE, H. D. A.
Up to Date Gardens

Three years ago I was talking with a woman in this county and she told me that they did not fear the winter months because they owned a cow and had collars in the garden. Of course we all agree that milk and collars are two invaluable foods and we need them, but a winter diet of milk and collars would become mighty tiresome. Today a winter garden that provides just collars is considered an awfully old fashioned one. A year-round garden is one that you can go to any time and get at least two root vegetables and two green ones. Have you made your fall plantings?

Crops of Green

Along with your collars and turnip plant some kale. Siberian and Curled Scotch varieties, are good. Make the first planting early this month and follow with another the latter part of the month. You will also like Broccoli, salad and mustard spinach, which should be planted at the same time. Spinach is another green which adds variety and should be planted early this month and again the first of October. Virginia Savoy is a good fall crop.

Root Crops

Turnips may still be planted. White Milan, Purple Top, and Strap Leaf are good early-maturing varieties.

Beets and carrots should be up, but if they have not been planted, get them in the first of this month. Good varieties for beets are Crosby Egyptian and Detroit. Dark Red Chantenay carrots are best.

For spring onions plant sets by the latter part of September, either Norfolk Green or White Pearl. Radishes may be planted once a week throughout the month.

Don't Stop Canning

Several varieties of vegetables and fruits are still available thru-out this month. All surplus should be preserved in some way. If you have run out of jars, try drying green beans, wax beans, lima beans, dry shelled beans, sweet corn, squash, pumpkin, apples, pears, peaches and grapes.

Another Demonstration
On Wednesday September 21, Mrs. Cornelia Morris, conservation specialist, from the State Department of Agriculture, will give demonstration in Greenville using Muscadine grapes. Don't fail to see this demonstration. Women will be invited from Martin, Beaufort, Washington, Tyrell, and Pitt counties.

Smith To Attend School, Chicago

Walter Smith, linotype operator of the Daily Reflector, and ministerial student, left today for Kinston, to spend a few days with relatives before going to Chicago to attend the Chicago Training School for preachers.

Smith plans to leave by automobile for Chicago Wednesday, arriving in the Illinois city in time for opening of school the first of next week. He will be accompanied as far as Indianapolis, Ind., by Nathan Brooks, who has been filling the pulpit at Memorial Baptist church this summer during the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, and who will resume his studies at Louisville, Ky., this fall.

Smith was licensed by the Methodist church several months ago and since that time has preached at numbers of churches in this part of the state. He has been in the printing business for many years and will continue in this line of business between school work until he has completed his training for the ministry.

Surprise Birthday Party
Farmville, Sept. 8.—A lovely social affair of the week was the surprise birthday party given in honor of Mrs. Gus Roebuck at Riverside by Mrs. D. E. Oglesby and Mrs. Paul E. Jones.

Several cars of Farmville friends made up the party with the honor and her husband, the former unsuspecting of the purpose of the trip. Boating, and bathing were enjoyed until evening when the guests were invited to a picnic supper, the table being centered with a birthday cake and glowing candles, the inscription of which revealed the surprise. A candy bird was presented as a special gift. Following supper dancing was enjoyed with fruit punch and cake served later in the evening.

CASH FOR COAL
The coal consumers of Greenville owe the staggering sum of $20,000 to the coal merchants. We cannot continue to sell coal on a credit basis, so we will sell for cash only. Your coal dealers are compelled to pay cash for their coal.
The adoption of this policy has been necessary due to the excessive number of delinquent accounts and the need for ready money to pay freight on coal, which must be paid for cash on delivery.
On and after Sept. 12th all coal will be cash on delivery. In taking this step, we have reduced prices on all standard grades of coal. Start saving now for fuel needs this winter.

Smith & Sugg Leading Eastern Carolina

We desire to express our appreciation to the Tobacco Growers for the patronage they are giving us at the New Star Warehouse this season!

Smith & Sugg sold more tobacco during first week than any warehouse in Eastern Carolina. We had 125 patrons to sell with us this week who did not sell with us last year and a great many who have never sold with us before. The farmers of Eastern Carolina are turning to the Greenville market because, after looking over the others carefully, they are convinced it is to their best interest to sell with us.

Mr. John Hardee of the Winterville section sold a small load with us Thursday averaging $28.62.

Mr. Fred Hargett of Onslow County sold a load of 5,000 pounds with us Friday and averaged over 17c for the entire load. Several of our patrons have averaged over 20c for small loads of primings. Prices stronger Friday than any day of the season.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 4 points higher on steeper Liverpool cables which, however, were offset partly by favorable weather.

Prices held fairly steady during the first few minutes, but eased slightly with December working off from 8.27 to 8.18 by the end of the first hour when the general list was about 3 to 5 points net lower.

Rumors of bullish cloth statistics following the large business reported in the domestic goods market last month were circulating, but had little apparent effect on the immediate market. Liverpool cables reported Continental and Alexandria buying with Japanese selling there and said a fair business in cotton goods with India was pending. Brokers with Japanese connections were among the early sellers here and there was also some selling for Liverpool account.

Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Dragged down by a bearish export crop from Canada, wheat prices suffered new setbacks late today.

Only three times in history has the Canadian wheat crop totaled as large as this season, 467,000,000 bushels for all provinces, against 304,000,000 bushels in 1931. The prairie provinces were officially given 464,000,000 bushels, compared with 284,000,000 last year, suggesting 607,000,000 bushels in sight for the current season against 465,000,000 at this time last year.

Wheat closed unsettled, 3-8 to 3-4 under yesterday's finish; corn 1-2 to 7-8 off; oats at 1-4 to 1-2 decline, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents lower.

Stock Market

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER (Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The stock market backed and filled irresolutely today, until publication of the weekly freight car-loadings report gave the list a slight boost in the late dealings.

Losses of 1 to 2 points registered early in the second hour were largely regained, and several issues closed with gains of a point or two.

The closing tone was steady, with net changes largely narrow. The turnover was only about 1,300,000 shares, the smallest for a Saturday in three weeks.

Report of U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage, which did not appear until later the market had closed.

Rails stiffened somewhat in the final dealing, as result of the car loading figures. Extreme losses of 2 points in Allied Chemical and Eastman were about regained.

NEW MILLIONS GO TO RELIEF

ately under the relief act. He said this amount would bring this fiscal year's total construction outlay to over $750,000,000, which, in turn, would bring aggregate construction expenditures since the depression began to about $2,300,000,000.

Mr. Hoover announced the government's plan to speed construction with relief act funds in a formal statement late yesterday accompanied by a letter from Secretary Mills saying the money would be available at once.

"The actual projects which will be speeded up under this additional sum will be announced by the various departments."

The first of these announcements, allotting the relief act's $100,000,000 public building appropriation, is due at the Treasury Monday. Comptroller McCarl has ruled the 10 per cent economy slash must be made in this sum, but it is undecided whether this cuts the entire figure or the amounts spent on individual projects.

Other departments are expected to make an early apportionment of their funds.

FORMER AYDEN BANKER HELD

(Continued from page one) only information received of them until their return several weeks later, was a letter from Mrs. Surrrell to her husband stating she would not come back.

McGlohan, it was understood, returned to Ayden about two months after his disappearance, remained in the country for a while and then went to New York. Mrs. Surrrell also returned home to her husband and two children sometime later.

Although it was first reported that the couple left Ayden together and had been seen in some other part of the state, this fact has been vigorously denied by both McGlohan and Mrs. Surrrell, it was stated by close friends.

Although a shortage was discovered in the bank immediately after McGlohan's departure, it was several days before auditors were able to definitely check the shortage in accounts, estimated at $1,700.

In view of the fact that the National bank is under government supervision, the case against McGlohan will be prosecuted by the government. It was not known when he would be returned to this state to await hearing, but it was believed he would be held in New York and probably returned a few days prior to the trial.

McGlohan is a member of an old and socially prominent family of the Ayden community and was held in highest esteem by hundreds of friends. He was connected with different banks of the town for a number of years and his integrity was unquestioned. His disappearance precipitated a stir in the thrifty town and speculation ran the gamut especially in view of the fact that he was reported to have left with Mrs. Surrrell, pretty, and for years one of the social leaders of the community.

NEW TURN IN BERN'S DEATH

The woman was stricken with a mental ailment and for years following, up to the time of his death, Bern cared for her, paying her approximately $350 a month. Bern said her mind forsook her almost to the extent of apparently forgetting the man who provided for her and last April, she decided to go to California for her health.

She lived at a San Francisco hotel. The day following the film executive's death she left a San Francisco hotel, taking the steamer for Sacramento.

FEW CLUES IN ROBBINS CASE

(Continued from page one) Bryant said she had seen Robins in the Chicago Loop Thursday afternoon, today was given the support of a statement by W. W. Haupt, automobile dealer, who said he met and greeted the missing man the same day.

Haupt fixed the time of the meeting at half an hour after Mrs. Bryant said she saw Robins. Both have known Robins for twenty years.

"I couldn't be mistaken," Haupt said. "I recognized him in the crowd and said 'Hello, Mr. Robins.' He answered me and walked on."

Another theory that Robins had dropped out of sight on a "lone wolf" hunt—advanced when failed to keep an appointment with President Hoover last Tuesday—was abandoned today by prohibition officials directing the activities of 185 special agents working on the case.

They felt the passage of a full week and the widespread publicity given Robins' unexplained absence eliminated such a solution. Meanwhile, Mr. Hoover frankly was concerned about the case.

At the request of the White House, justice department agents in Chicago questioned Mr. Bryant but refused to disclose any findings. Police began a city-wide check of hotels on the chance that Robins might be suffering from amnesia.

Mrs. Bryant said she saw the missing man in the Loop before reading accounts of his disappearance and that he appeared "distracted." From her home at South-west Harbor, Me., Mrs. Robins doubted that the man seen in Chicago was her husband. She knew no reason why Robins should have gone there.

she had returned home and was unable to make the trip because of the necessity of continuing medical treatments for a recent severe illness.

Walker said he had reached the decision to make the trip last night on advice of his personal physician, Dr. William Schroeder, head of the city department of sanitation.

At this point, Dr. Schroeder went aboard the ship to say goodbye and Walker pointed to him with a smile.

"That's the man who did it," he said. "I'm just being shanghaied by a medical man."

YOUTH SLAYS HIS MOTHER

(Continued from page one) soon after the crimes had been committed last night, but after several hours' search young Huddle had not been located.

Police Chief T. T. Snavely said the youth first shot his two aunts who lived near Rural Retreat and then returned home to pack his clothes preparatory to leaving the county.

Snavely said that when Huddle's mother followed him into the yard in an effort to persuade him not to ## leave, he turned upon her and fired a shotgun charge into her body. She died instantly.

Police said the youth carried three guns with him when he left home. Huddle's father who had just driven a team into the barnyard was said to have witnessed the shooting.

Following the bloodhounds, police soon found further evidence of a trial which they lost after several miles.

Neither of the youth's aunts were believed seriously wounded.

Police said Huddle had been drinking.

PROBE BLAST ON N. Y. FERRY

boiler blew." That was the story, too, of other survivors of the "Observation" which sank in a minute and a half just as it pulled from its Bronx pier in the East River yesterday morning, carrying its load of workmen to Riker's Island where they were employed on the new penitentiary.

There was a strong possibility, marine police said, that the number of missing might be as high as 25. The one man who was in a position to know exactly how many were aboard—the man who collected the dime fares of the workmen—is missing.

There was no explanation of the explosion, but four investigations are being conducted.

"It might have been dynamite for all we know about it yet," said John Crone, supervising inspector of the United States Bureau of Navigation and Steamship Inspection. This bureau opened its investigation today, examining survivors.

United States District Attorney Medley, conducting a separate investigation, subpoenaed for questioning the inspectors who examined the bodies of the "Observation" last April and who reported them satisfactory.

A third inquiry was being conducted jointly by police and fire departments, and a fourth was in charge of District Attorney McLaughlin of the Bronx, who sought to determine if there were circumstances connected with the explosion which should be called to the attention of the grand jury.

BOMBS WRECK MOVIE HOUSES

Detectors said there has been conflict between two unions of motion picture operators, but no evidence was made public connecting this dispute with the bomb plot.

Three men in a sedan were seen speeding away from the Brooklyn theater about the time of the blast.

The blast that shook the lower East Side tossed the ticket booth into the street, twisted heavy doors open, and shattered glass in many scores and tenement houses. The Brooklyn explosion tore a hole in the theater's tiled entrance, wrecked its glass work, and ruined windows in buildings nearby. Huge crowds gathered as sleep people tumbled out of their houses in fright.

The theaters were empty at the time, and no one was injured. Edward Brown, night watchman in the Canal Street Theater, was thrown down flight of stairs by the explosion, but escaped injury. Slugs and metal fragments found in the neighborhood were turned over to explosive experts who began an attempt to reconstruct the bombs.
