Flying Hutchinsons Rescued By Trawler

British Boat Picks Up American Fliers After Wreck In The Far North

LEAKING TANK STOPS FLIGHT

Hutchinson, His Wife, Their Two Children and the Crew of four Men Wade Ashore After Plane is Shattered in Landing On Reef; Eskimo Sealer Assists in Saving Of the Instruments and Supplies; All Members Party Reported Well.

Angmagssalik, Greenland, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Wrecked on the beach less than forty miles from here, George Hutchinson and the seven who were flying with him from New York to London were rescued today by the British trawler Lord Talbot.

A leaking gasoline tank forced them down in the water of Itesak Ford, but the plane was wrecked on one of the reefs which make navigation of the little bay perilous.

Hutchinson, his wife, their two children and the crew of four men waded ashore and reached the tiny Eskimo settlement of Eker, whose few inhabitants would have abandoned the place and returned to Angmagssalik for the winter in a few more weeks.

Eskimo sealers assisted them in saving their instruments and most of their supplies.

The Hutchinson party was one of the largest ever to attempt an ocean crossing by air route.

They hoped to be the first "family" to fly across the Atlantic. The landing gear of their plane was discarded at St. John N. B., and sent ahead to Europe to be used in flying over land again. The party left New York August 23, flying to St. John.

The next day they flew 330 miles to Fort Melnor on Anticosti Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and on Sept. 2, 626 miles to Godthaab, Greenland. Last week they flew from Godthaab to Julianehaab, on the southern tip of Greenland and were enroute to Angmagssalik when they encountered trouble.

They were fined for landing in Greenland without permission of the Danish government. The government warned them not to attempt a flight over the Greenland ice cap from Godthaab to Angmagssalik, as Hutchinson proposed. They followed this advice in taking a coast route.

Copenhagen, Sept. 13.—(AP)—All eight members of the party of the flying family of Hutchinsons were safe and well when they were found today by the trawler Lord Talbot. It was reported here, but the airplane in which they set out from the United States for Europe was wrecked. The party and the machine were found on land near Itesak, Greenland.

The broken ship lay at the bottom of the Itesak valley and the travelers were found at Eker, a tiny Eskimo settlement nearby.

Henry C. Beddard Dies Near Renston

Henry C. Beddard, 85, died this morning at 1:15 o'clock at his home near Renston. Death followed several months of lingering illness.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock by Elder James Roberts of the Primitive Baptist Church. Burial will be made in Jackson graveyard and near Grifton.

He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. George Dall of Lenoir County; Mrs. Sawback of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Sparrow, of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Beddard was a life-long resident of Pitt County and was engaged in farming prior to his illness.

THREE PEOPLE DIE IN WRECK

Fourth Badly Injured as Auto Plunges Into Switch Engine at Fayetteville.

Fayetteville, Sept. 13.—(AP)—A crash in the morning's early hours of an automobile on a switch engine here snuffed out the lives of three young people and inflicted injuries to a fourth that probably will cause death.

Two of the party, returning from a dance, were killed instantly when their automobile collided in the semi-darkness with an Atlantic Coast Line shifting engine at a crossing here.

One died later and death of the fourth was expected momentarily.

The dead:

Miss Margaret Poteat, 21, Fayetteville.

Euland Canady, 22, Fayetteville.

Parker Armstrong, 24, Fayetteville.

Miss Orin Olive, 21, sustained head and internal injuries that probably will cause her death, physicians at a hospital here said.

Canady and Miss Poteat were killed instantly. Armstrong died a few hours after the crash in a hospital of a fractured skull and other injuries. He was a native of Tarboro but had been working here about three years at the Branch bank.

The four were returning to their homes here from a dance when the automobile, a sedan owned by Canady, and the engine collided.

Witnesses said a nightwatchman on duty at the crossing swung his light but that the machine swerved (Continued on Page Four)

Junker Government In Germany 'Sitting Tight'

Berlin, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Chancellor Franz von Papen and the German Junker cabinet sat tight today, backed by the army and the police, though the Reichstag overwhelmingly voted no confidence in them yesterday while the chancellor was in the act of dissolving the Parliament.

Announcing that democracy had broken down in Germany, the chancellor gave every indication he intended to continue to hold the reins under the slogan: "With Von Hindenburg for Germany."

In the meantime plans proceed-

PLANE TAKES OFF FOR ROME EARLY TODAY

Doctor, Veteran Pilot and Girl Parachute Jumper Leave N. Y. on Non-Stop Flight.

By RAYMOND CROWLEY
New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—A doctor, a veteran pilot, a girl parachute jumper and a woodchuck called "tail wind" hopped off at 6:15 a. m. today on an announced attempt to fly non-stop to Rome.

Before taking off from Floyd Bennett Field on the 4,200 mile jaunt, Dr. Leon M. Pisculli, of Yonkers, N. Y., commander of the expedition, said the plane would head out over the Atlantic at Cape Cod and fly the "southern route."

He said Miss Edna Newcomer, 28— (Continued on Page Four)

EIGHT STATES GO TO POLLS

Heavy Balloting Expected in Some Sections After Heated Campaigns.

(By The Associated Press)
Eight states held state-wide primary elections today.

Heavy registrations were noted in all of them. In some states, especially Vermont and New Hampshire there has been little campaigning, the candidates holding their fire for the finals of November 8. In others, contests have been brisk, and local affairs were drawing large numbers to the polling places.

States holding primaries today were Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont, Washington and South Carolina.

Louisiana's "Kingsfish" Senator Huey Long, has campaigned for Representative Overton who is seeking the nomination on the Democratic ticket for the seat now held by Senator Broussard.

Michigan, with a long record for Republicanism, like Maine—where Democrats showed a strength in yesterday's election that exceeded even the estimates of national leaders of their own party—was concerned chiefly with affairs of state and local interest, but politicians were watching the vote closely to see what it might portend in November.

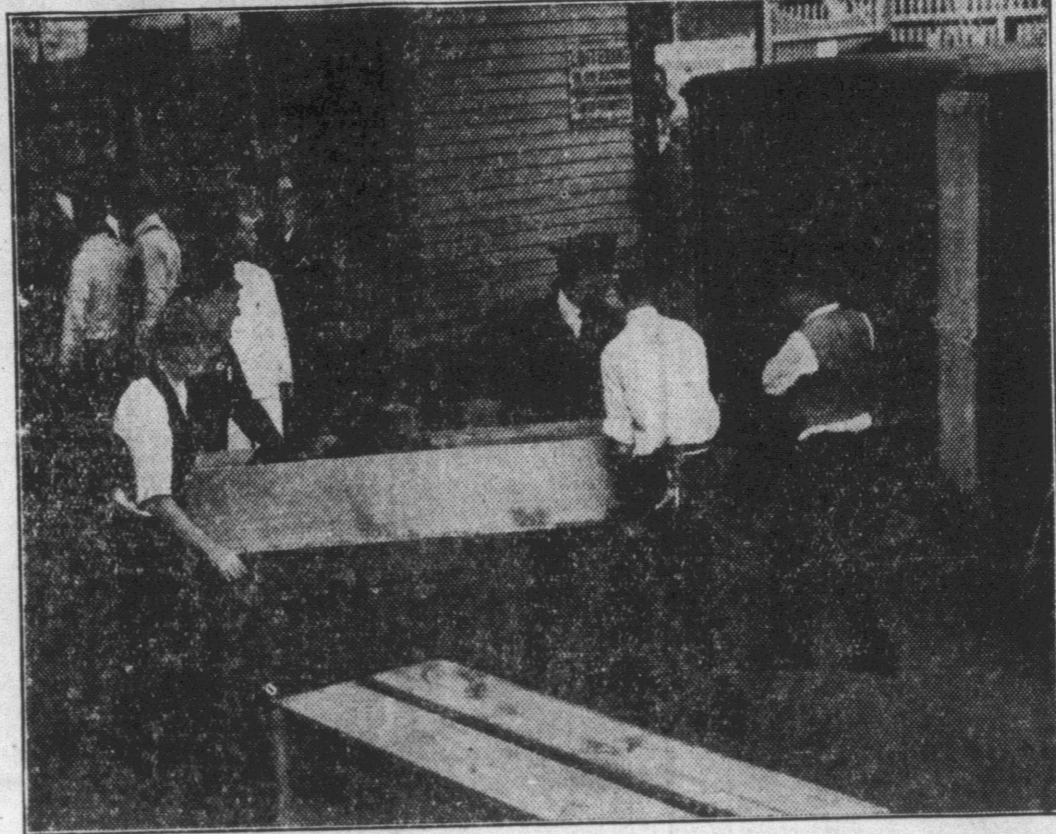

Arizona took today's primary election with more evidence of interest than in recent years. Registration was the largest in the state's history, and the number of candidates set a new record. Arizona has generally been Republican in its presidential choice but Democratic in state elections.

Former Senator Cole Blease's attempt to win the Democratic senatorial nomination from Senator E. D. Smith occupied South Carolina voters, and in Colorado senatorial nominations also were of uppermost interest to national observers.

One of prohibition's leading exponents in Congress, Senator Jones of Washington, faced sharp challenge for renomination.

Senator Porter Dale was unopposed for Republican nomination in Vermont, and Senator Moses of New Hampshire appeared to have (Continued on Page Four)

Democrats Elated Over Their Victory in Maine

Portland, Maine, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Democrats overturned a Republican stronghold of many years standing and upset tradition today by electing a governor and two congressmen. A third congressional post went to the Republican incumbent but by a very scant margin.

Louis J. Brann, Democratic candidate for governor, had a lead of 1,287 over Burrell Martin, Republican, as but 18 of the state's 632 precincts were unreported.

Congressman Carroll L. Beedy, lone Republican to come through to victory, led Joseph F. Connolly by 2,077 votes when the district tabulation was completed.

Prices Continue to Climb On The Tobacco Market

Prices continued to climb on the Greenville tobacco market today and the highest average of the season was established.

The official report of sales this afternoon showed that 156,682 pounds of leaf sold for $19,099.34, at a general average of $12.19 per hundred pounds.

Owing to the light sales, the floors of the various warehouses, were cleared before the noon hour.

FOREST FIRES SWEEP WOODS

Valuable Timber Destroyed by Blazes on Several Fronts Near This City.

Undetermined damage to valuable timber lands of this section was being done by forest fires burning on several fronts around Greenville today.

Smoke from the fires threw a pall over the city during the early morning hours, decreasing visibility and endangering traffic along some of the main highways radiating out of the city.

A red glare colored the skies in the direction of Ayden, Bethel and New Bern last night as the flames, fed by underbrush, licked angrily at hundreds of acres of valuable timberland.

Although it was impossible to determine the total amount of damage, it was known the loss would reach into thousands of dollars.

Fire over two months ago ravaged timber on lands adjacent to the present fires and farmers lost scores of cords of firewood in addition to their timber.

Effort was being made by growers of the vicinities affected to control the flames, but the job was a difficult one in view of the dryness of the forest and the fully developed undergrowth which constantly feeds the flames and gives them additional momentum.

Traffic has been conducted with extreme difficulty over the highways a few miles from Greenville and motorists were forced to drive with great care to avoid accident.

With the weather department forecasting rain for this section tomorrow, it was expected firefighters would be able to control the blazes during the next few days.

BRUMMITT TO SPEAK IN CITY

Attorney General To Make Address at the Court House Friday Night.

Dennis G. Brummitt of Raleigh, attorney general of North Carolina, will speak at the courthouse Friday night at 8 o'clock, it was announced here today.

He will discuss the subject of "American Citizenship." The address is being sponsored by the various civic organizations of the city, including the Woman's Club, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and the Pitt County Post of the American Legion.

The coming of the attorney general was received with general interest throughout the community. He has been constantly in the limelight of state affairs for many years, and is sufficiently well versed in conditions of both states and na-

Aviation Commander Merino Leads Force Against Provisional Government.

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The army air force revolted today against the administration of Provisional President Carlos Davila threatening to bomb the presidential palace or attack it with troops if he refused to resign.

The revolt was led by Colonel Arturo Merino Benitez, frequently a storm center of the air force, and his nucleus was at El Bosque airport on the outskirts of Santiago.

G. O. P. HOLD ONE DISTRICT

With Only a Few Smaller Precincts Unheard From, Democrats Were Leading by Slim Margin; First Time in 18 Years Rockribbed Republican State Has Been Broken; Inroads Into Republican Party Made In Several State and County Offices.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Sweeping slowly but steadily forward as the last few scattered precincts reported Maine Democrats increased their slight leads over the Republicans—dominant without a break for eighteen years—and had apparently named the new governor and Congressmen in the Second and Third Districts.

Republicans strengthened their hold in the First Congressional District.

Returns in the election at 12:30 p. m. (S. D. T.) gave:

For Governor:

Six hundred and eleven precincts of 632 precincts:

Brann (D.), 118,789.

Martin (R.), 117,402.

For Congress:

First District complete: Beedy (R.), 40,067; Connolly (D.), 38,817.

Second District, 209 out of 213:

Moran (D.), 31,795.

Nelson (R.), 39,374.

Bonney (Independent R.), 1,640.

Third District, 255 out of 274 precincts:

Utterback (D.), 34,386.

Brewster (R.), 33,238.

Only a few precincts were unreported, and they were almost entirely among the smaller villages and plantations—some of them not casting more than a total of ten votes in previous elections.

Even if the entire voting list turned out and gave the Republicans an overwhelming majority it was not believed they could overhaul the rejuvenated Democracy.

Louis J. Brann, close friend of Daniel J. McGillicuddy—the last Democrat to go to Congress from this State—held a lead of 1,160 over State Senate President Burrell Martin, for the governorship.

Republican Congressman Carroll L. Beedy held an edge of 2,250 votes—the greatest plurality of any of the four contests—over Joseph F. Connolly, all but three precincts were reported.

Congressman John E. Nelson—for ten years in the House of Representatives was trailing far behind E. Carl Moran, Jr., twice turned down by the voters of the State while he was the Democratic candidate for governor. There were 42 precincts yet to be heard from.

In the Third District former Governor Ralph O. Brewster was receiving the third major setback in his political career.

After two terms as governor he aspired to the United States Senate, but was unable to win the primary nomination in two attempts.

John G. Utterback, Democrat, former mayor of Bangor, drove ahead and had a majority of 1,170 with 32 precincts missing.

The Democrats turned out the largest vote they ever recorded while the number of Republican ballots fell far below the number cast in 1920, 1924 and 1928—the last three (Continued on Page Four)

ABOUT TOWN

Roosevelt is off for conquest of the west and the Republicans are preparing to attack the east. Roosevelt will charge the Republicans with responsibility for the unusual economic situation, and the Republicans, poor things, will do the best they can to make the public believe they will be able to restore prosperity.

Roosevelt really has something to base his fight on, but it is difficult to see what the Republicans will be able to accomplish in the face of such a subject failure to lift the nation from the low grounds of want and poverty.

Naturally, nobody is expecting either party to legislate prosperity, but they can play a powerful part in improving conditions by lowering the tariff wall and permitting more trade with other nations. Right here is where one of the greatest evils exists and if the Democrats get in power we may expect an improvement, but if the Republicans hold fort as they have done in recent years the wall will either remain as it is or be thrown higher. The Democrats have some mighty fine talking points for the campaign, but as far as the opposition is concerned, we are sorry for them—because the past is one of disappointment. As American people always gauge their future by the past, the Republican party really has nothing to look forward to.

If a section of Blount's creek has been dynamited as stated in recent reports reaching this city, it is the duty of game wardens to get busy and see what can be done.

This business of ruthlessly destroying game in such manner is a serious offense and should be thoroughly investigated and the guilty parties made to pay the penalty.

Such vandalism cannot be tolerated because it tends to destroy the source of food supply to hundreds, nay thousands, of people who need it more at this time than they ever needed it before.

While considerable game has been destroyed in this state in recent years from uncontrollable causes, we can at least make an effort to halt the dynamiting of creeks and other streams and the destroying of our game.

This is a matter that should be called to the attention of the State Department of Conservation so it may be gone into to the fullest and if possible the responsible parties dealt with.

The American Legion is in annual convention at Portland at this time and one of the big questions to come up for consideration is the payment of the soldiers' compensation.

The Legion at a recent convention decided against the proposal but since that time sentiment has crystallized to such extent that it is impossible to say what will be the outcome of the issue.

However, recent developments at the capital in which members of the bonus army were slain and wounded has changed the tide of opinion in various parts of the country, and many of the men probably who were against the proposed bonus are for it now, and many are still against it.

There never would have been any request for cash payment of the bonus had it not been for reckless appropriations made to practically every organization under the sun while Congress was in session, and the boys felt if the government was able to pay out such large sums of money they should receive a debt which they have been carrying since the end of the World War, especially at a time when they are suffering from the effects of abnormal labor conditions and subsequent shortage of money.

The question is a big one and must be threshed out within the next year and any action the national Legion organization may take will have a powerful effect on fu-

Nothing Venture

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

SYNOPSIS: Nan is convinced the man she saw lurking near the Weare country home during the storm was Robert Leonard and that his presence means danger for her husband. As Nan and Jervis approach the deep tidal gully next morning, Jervis tries to force the dog across but Nan, sensing something is wrong, she knows Jervis would ridicule the jumps on the bridge to block her husband. Then there is a terrifying crash.

Chapter 20 A SERIOUS QUARREL

Nan did not hear the crack of breaking timber, because it was lost in the roar of the fall, but she felt the shuddering jar of it. The bridge seemed to be wrenched beneath her. She did hear Jervis' shout, and she felt his grasp like an iron clamp upon her shoulder. She thought she screamed, and the spray and the foam and the cold came up upon her face, and her hands, and her feet. She swung giddily above the torrent, and there was nothing between her and the pool below—a long, long way below.

The bridge was gone—everything was gone. She swung giddily, a frightful noise in her ears, and the wafer waiting for her. She had no thought for why she did not fall. She swung to and fro. It was all a confusion, like the broken bits of a dream. And then suddenly she came sundering out of the dream, to hear Jervis' voice above her: "Can you lift your arm?"

The sound of the words had reached her before, but not their sense. She made a slow, weak effort to raise her right arm, but something clamped it down. Then Jervis' voice again: "Your—left—arm."

She tried, reached up, and felt him grasp her wrist. Then she was being drawn up slowly, dreadfully slowly, while the noise of the falling, churning water seemed to be right inside her head. She didn't seem able to think. The moment went on, interminably.

Then she felt a scraping sensation across her shoulders and back, and the feel of something solid beneath her. Something went round and round in her head. She gasped and struggled to sit up. She felt as if she had been wrenched in two. She got up on her knees panting.

The middle of the bridge was gone. A yard away the broken timbers stuck out over empty space. On her left Jervis held fort as they have done in recent years the wall will either remain as it is or be thrown higher.

She nodded, holding Bran tight. And added in a fluttering voice that was much less audible than she meant it to be: "What happened?"

Jervis said harshly: "The bridge broke."

She said: "I went down."

He threw her a curious look. It was almost as if he accused her—an angry look.

"You might have been killed."

"You saved me."

"I grabbed your shoulder. We came down together."

Nan's heart contracted. She might have pulled him over—she might so easily have pulled him over. The words said themselves aloud:

"I might have pulled you over!" Jervis stood there frowning.

"You very nearly did. If I hadn't, come down full length before the bridge actually fell, we should both have gone with it. As it was, I managed to hang on, and old Bran took hold of my coat and pulled for all he was worth. I got a good handful of your dress, and thank goodness the stuff was strong!"

"Was it a long time? It felt very long."

"No. I couldn't have held you for more than a moment. I said, 'Put up your arm,' and I got hold of it; but if it hadn't been for Bran, I don't think I could have got you up." At the sound of his name Bran thrust his head under his master's hand, jerking it up. Nan felt an envy of him. He had saved them both, and he could say how glad he was. She couldn't. It came over her how strangely they were standing here, speaking cold conventional sentences on the ragged edges of death.

She turned from the broken bridge and began to move stiffly down the path. Her knees shook a little, and before she had taken half a dozen steps Jervis' hand was on her arm.

"You're a bit shaky."

"A little. It's nothing."

"They came out of the trees, but instead of climbing the slopes they followed the easier gradient of the path. The sound of the fall receded. After walking silently for some time, Jervis burst out with a sudden—"

"I can't understand it."

Nan wondered if he felt the accusing leap of her pulses.

"He did it," she said. Jervis stopped dead and swung her round to face him.

"What's that?"

He still held her by the elbow, and his grasp felt rough and strong.

"He did it."

"What are you talking about?"

"The bridge."

"You've got to say what you mean!"

"Yes—I saw him."

"What do you mean? Whom did you see?"

"Robert Leonard."

He let go of her so suddenly that she felt as if he had pushed her away. There was an angry color under his dark skin.

"We've got to have this out! You have got to say what you mean!"

"Yes, Jervis. I woke up in the night—something waked me—I don't know what it was. Then I heard Bran downstairs."

"You heard Bran?" with angry suspicion.

"He was walking up and down and whining. I went to the top of the stairs and called him. He came into my room with me, and we both looked out of the window. He was very excited. I thought it was because there was a storm coming up."

"You seem to think he's a Pekinese! He doesn't mind storms."

"I know he doesn't. It wasn't the storm he was minding."

"No—I suppose it was Leonard!" Nothing could have been more incredulous than his voice; his eyes held a hint of fierce amusement.

Nan lifted her head.

"Yes. Bran is cleverer than you are—he knows when there's danger—he wouldn't go on to the bridge."

Jervis laughed angrily.

"Well—he was minding Leonard? And then, I suppose, you both saw him?"

"I did. I don't know if Bran did. I don't think he goes by seeing—he's got something else."

simplicity. "He wants to kill you." Jervis was startled clean out of his angry impatience. "You can't possibly mean a thing like that!" "I do mean it."

"You can't! I don't like the man—but it's a perfectly good thing to say about anyone without proof."

Nan looked away. There was a note of appeal in his voice that weakened her. She took a step towards the house.

"You're no proof," said Jervis. She looked back over her shoulder for an instant.

"The bridge fell," she said. She went into the house.

Miss Taft Bridge Hostess.

Miss Florence Taft was hostess at a lovely bridge party Wednesday afternoon, complimenting Miss Alma McGinnis, whose engagement to James Johnston of New York, has been announced, the wedding to be solemnized October 4th.

Beautiful fall cut flowers were attractively arranged about the living room and hall in which the four tables were placed. During the spirited progressions a tempting iced drink was served. High score was won by Miss Nellie Stewart of Washington. During the refreshments a delicious iced course, peas, nuts, cake, and mints, the hostess presented the bride-elect with a tray, upon which was placed a miniature bride, whose dress was made of an artistic arrangement of handkerchiefs given by each guest. The hostess was assisted in serving by Miss Marguerite McGinnis and Mrs. M. B. Massey.

Textile Trade Shows Gain In Every Branch

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Manufacturers of carded yarn cloths today had before them the most cheerful statistical report for any month since the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants began issuing the figures in 1928.

August set a new record for improvement in practically every factor affecting the life of the industry. Sales set a new high mark for any month in the six-year period; stocks on hand declined 25.5 per cent to the lowest figure in the period; and unfilled orders increased 113.1 per cent to 485,860,000 yards, a figure not attained since March, 1929.

The other figures for the month were: Sales, 510,531,000 yards, or 282.4 per cent of the month's production. Stocks on hand as the month closed, 209,407,000 yards.

ELEPHANT, HORSES AND DOG BECOME CIRCUS PALS

If you have the pleasure of seeing the Barnett Bros. circus this season, you will no doubt be surprised to see three great unusual pals that are constantly together from morning until night. Prince, a Canadian Great Dane dog, who has won many cups and ribbons at various dog shows throughout the Dominion of Canada, and Snookie, a full grown horse, standing 34 inches in height and just one inch taller than his pal Prince. Junie, the baby elephant and his pals present a unique and awe-inspiring display of almost human intelligence, consisting of various routines of dances, drills, poses and other difficult execution rarely ever accomplished by animals.

The management of the circus has devoted a tremendous sum of money and time to secure the best trainers available to produce this act, which is the only one of its kind now before the public. This act is one of the feature animals acts of mixed groups and has no equal.

A special car has been provided to transport these three pals with trainers and attendants from town to town and can only be seen with Barnett Bros. circus this year at Winslow circus lot, Dickinson avenue, Wednesday, Sept. 14.

DISPUTE OVER BONUS CLASH

Responsibility for Use of Troops at Washington Draws Strict Denials.

Washington, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Just who first advised using troops in the bonus army disturbance of July 28, was in dispute today, with District of Columbia commissioners joining the Justice Department in designating the police and the police chief issuing a public denial.

The dispute began with a statement by Brigadier General Peiham D. Glassford discussing assertions in Attorney General Mitchell's report to President Hoover on the bonus marchers.

The police head said some of these were "in conflict with police records or with facts known to the police department."

Included was a denial that Glassford had "replied in the affirmative" when asked the direct question whether he thought it was necessary to secure the assistance of federal troops. Instead, Glassford said:

"I stated that the police could hold the area which had been repossessed during the morning. I stated that if further efforts toward evicting the veterans by the police was insisted upon that afternoon, there doubtless would be more rioting and possible bloodshed."

"I recommended that should further evicting be required that day, the federal troops should be called upon to do it."

Soon after Glassford issued his statement the Justice Department made public the copy of a letter received from the Board of Commissioners on August 2. It stated that Glassford had conferred with the commissioners soon after the first clash with veterans and said:

"The former (Glassford) was asked by the commissioners if the situation was out of his control, to which he replied in the affirmative."

Major Glassford further stated in substance that the police could no longer hold the bonus marchers in check.

"He was then asked a direct question whether he thought it necessary to secure the assistance of federal troops, to which he replied he did."

Last night the commissioners issued a reply to Glassford. It said: "The commissioners of the District of Columbia assert positively that Major Glassford stated to them the situation in the affected area was beyond the control of the police; that in response to a direct question as to whether the presence of troops was necessary Major Glassford stated positively that the presence of troops was necessary."

Doubt Robins Seen in Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Doubt that Colonel Raymond Robins had been seen in Chicago since his disappearance was expressed today by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, head of the allied forces for prohibition, who came here to aid in the search for the missing prohibitionist and friend of President Hoover.

Unless something tangible develops today, Dr. Poling said he probably would go to New York and recommend the search for Robins from the place where the Colonel dropped out of sight more than a week ago.

"I am now checking with the persons who reported they saw Colonel Robins in Chicago," Dr. Poling said. "As yet, I have uncovered nothing that leads me to believe that he was here."

Although government agents have been conducting a nation-wide search for Robins, who disappeared while on his way to keep an appointment with President Hoover, Dr. Poling was reluctant to discard the theory that his friend was the victim of amnesia.

"Colonel Robins has received many threats," he said, "but I think it more probable that he is suffering from a temporary illness, amnesia."

Charlotte, N. C.—(AP)—The body of a man who dropped dead here Saturday was identified as John Funderburk, 40, Pineville textile worker.

ROOSEVELT ON WAY TO WEST

Presidential Nominee Makes First Stop At Cleveland, O., During Morning.

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and his Presidential campaign party arrived here on their special train from Albany, N. Y., at 8:38 a. m. today.

The Democratic nominee was eating breakfast and did not leave the dining car.

A delegation of Cleveland Democrats was at the station.

James Roosevelt, son of the New York governor, spoke to the crowd. Asked if the nominee had any comment on the strong Democratic showing in the Maine election, he relayed the question to his father, and said, his only comment was "a broad smile."

At 8:50 a. m. the special train started for St. Louis where the nominee will speak tonight.

Citizens of nearly half the nation's States will hear or see the governor before the three weeks coast-to-coast campaign sweep is over.

Spurred by his campaign managers' reports that the Mid-West are favorable areas for the National ticket, the governor hoped to win enough votes there to insure victory.

Mr. Roosevelt's name glittered in electric lights from the observation car as his special—not so elaborate as Alfred E. Smith's special of 1928—pulled out of Albany at midnight and roared away toward Ohio. Cleveland was the first scheduled stop.

The Democratic Presidential candidate boarded his private car "Pioneer" shortly before midnight, planning to go immediately to bed. He took with him the farm relief speech he will deliver at Topeka tomorrow, planning to make a few final revisions.

Mr. Roosevelt's first talk with Western Democratic leaders will be at Jefferson City, Mo., tonight. Delegates to the State Democratic Convention at the Missouri capital will board his car during a stop of nearly two hours in that city.

From Jefferson City the candidate will describe a great circle tour of the West, from Kansas City to Seattle in the far northwest, then to Los Angeles in Southern California and back through Denver to Chicago. His train will travel through twenty-one States.

Arriving at Kansas City tomorrow morning, Governor Roosevelt will be joined by John N. Garner, his running mate, who will go with him to Topeka.

At three other places after Topeka the Democratic standard-bearer will make normal speeches. They will be at Portland, Ore., Sioux City, Iowa, and at another place as yet undesignated.

Burlington, N. C.—(AP)—Funeral services were held here for Clarence B. Lloyd who died Saturday night of gunshot wounds inflicted by Sam McPherson and their daughter and then committed suicide.

NOTICE
I will not be responsible for any accounts or checks given by my son, Edward Harris. I would appreciate your co-operation in this matter.

MOUZON RAPS BOTH PARTIES

Bishop of Methodists Says They've Been Tarded with Same "Wet" Feathers.

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is of the opinion that both major political parties are "now; tarred with the same stick" in regard to prohibition.

Bishop Mouzon expressed himself before the first of a series of meetings arranged by the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League. The others are being held here today.

He charged that both the Democratic and Republican parties have been "influenced by the millionaires' wet racket" into adopting their national prohibition planks.

"We ministers, therefore, are now free, without embarrassment of any kind, to stand for public and private morals. We are opposed alike to Republicans and Democrats who favor what we are convinced is damaging to morals and religion."

Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, of Washington, president of the National Conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, is also attending the sessions here.

Eastman Estate Valued at More Than Expected

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP)—An estate of $25,561,641.60, or approximately $5,000,000 more than the estimates at the time of his death, was left by George Eastman, the kodak magnate, according to a transfer tax affidavit filed today with Surrogate Joseph M. Feely.

Of the total estate, $8,319,553.92 is in cash, the affidavit showed. Eastman committed suicide by shooting himself at his home here last March 14. He was 77.

A large part of the estate is bequeathed to educational and philanthropic institutions.

A gross value of $24,403,748.39 in personal property and $1,157,892.89 in real estate is shown. Debts, including approximately $3,000,000 in unpaid gifts to European dental dispensaries founded by Mr. Eastman, total $3,674,574.09; funeral expenses of administration $500,000, making total deductions of $4,185,738.54 and providing for a net estate for distribution of $21,375,903.06.

The shad retained its place as leader in the commercial food fishing industry, Nelson said. The effect of low prices on income of fishermen was convincingly shown by the return during the past year 10 per cent more fish.

For the 1928-1930 biennium the fishermen got $1,526,083 for 4,530,960 pounds of shad, or almost twice as much money from slightly more than 10 per cent more fish.

Cotton--Stocks--Grain

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 13.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 16 to 25 points lower in response to lower Liverpool cables and under active liquidation and Southern selling.

Cotton continued active throughout the first hour, and at the extreme decline prices were down 23 to 27 points from the previous close and showed no losses of over $10 per bale from the peak of the recent upward movement.

There was heavy general liquidation and it was the prevailing impression that traders had placed a bearish interpretation on the election returns from Maine. Weakness in the stock market also contributed to the general decline. Some large blocks of cotton were sold which is believed to represent liquidation of old long accounts.

The South was also a heavy seller. The trade bought freely at the lower levels, and there was some good buying through commission houses and by Liverpool.

Appearances of light rains along the east Gulf coast and in portions of the interior attracted some attention but failed to have much influence on the market. December declined to 75.5, a loss of 24 points, and as the end of the first hour the market was slightly steadier at net declines of 17 to 20 points. Liverpool cabled that the market there was lower under general liquidation and hedge selling.

Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Despite late rallies with stocks and cotton, wheat prices averaged lower today.

Buying on the part of houses with connections east helped give a firmer undertone to wheat as trading closed, and there was a general disposition to look for a recovery after several days of successive declines. Reports of a European cartel negotiating for the purchase of 50,000,000 bushels of wheat from the United States Farm Board were construed as bullish.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1.4 higher; corn unchanged to 1-4 lower; oats 1-2 off to 1-8 advance, and provisions varying from 12 decline to a rise of 10.

Stock Market

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER (Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The stock market was washed down a steep decline by a torrent of selling in the earlier hours of trading today, but it showed some inclination to climb back, as the selling subsided after mid-day.

Losses of two to more than ten points were about half recovered in many instances after mid-day, but the recovery was not well maintained, and the market remained highly unsettled. Selling was general throughout the market, with bonds, cotton, wheat and other commodities under pressure. Although the most severe recession was in shares, where the break was the most drastic of 1932.

Stocks off about 4 to 6 points at the worst include U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Westinghouse, American Smelting, Can. Bethlehem, North American, Consolidated Gas, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, American Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Youngtown, Allied Chemical, and others. Radio lost 3 points and General Electric more than 2 points. Recoveries of 1 to 2 points were numerous, and some were of larger proportions. After dropping 6 points, Union Pacific rebounded 5, but was unable to hold its gain. Recent pool favorites were heavily sold.

A wide range of excuses for the setback was mentioned in brokerage quarters, political as well as economic, but the explanation most commonly offered in conservative banking quarters was that the market had gone ahead too fast, and needed correction of a top-heavy speculative situation.

The severity of the decline of the past two days, brokers explained, partly reflected the fact that the market had recently become honey-combed with stop loss orders. As it became apparent that a good shake-down was in the making, buyers stood aside, and the market sank so abruptly that these orders were touched off in large volume. Some brokers reported fair buying on the decline, although there was a notable tendency to await further news from business and industry. Within the next several weeks, the usual seasonal quickening of business should have reached its peak, and many traders chose to follow a watchful waiting policy.

Expect Doctor To Throw Light on Bern Death

Los Angeles, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Arriving today from Honolulu, Dr. Edward P. Jones, personal physician to the late Paul Bern, motion picture executive and husband of Jean Harlow, screen star, was to be interviewed by friends of Bern in an effort to learn a possible motive for his suicide a week ago Sunday.

Dr. Jones cabled from Honolulu the day after Bern's body was found that he "understood the motive" of the suicide. He said, however, he would reveal his information only to "the proper authorities," the police have announced their investigation closed with the return of the coroner's verdict of suicide. Dr. Jones was expected to consult with Coroner Frank Nance and give him whatever information he has.

Miss Harlow, whom Bern married two months ago, resumed her work at the film studios yesterday.

"This staying around home is driving me crazy," she said. "I've got to get busy—to forget."

tional governments to present an illuminating discussion of the important subject.

This is the first time the gifted speaker has visited this immediate part of the state in sometime, and large attendance from other communities was expected.

As attorney general of the state for many years, Mr. Brummitt has come in contact with every phase of human life. His knowledge of conditions both in this and other parts of the nation give him a keen insight into needs of this neurotic period of life, and he is using this great store of knowledge in an effort to improve the social and moral order of the various communities of the state.

The public was urged to attend and give the distinguished visitor a cordial welcome to the community.

inhabitants were still there. Eker is populated during the summer and autumn, but seldom during the winter.

The Lord Talbot is one of the biggest and best equipped of the Aberdeen trawler fleet, but accommodations aboard the vessel are restricted and it seemed likely that it would be difficult to find room aboard her for the eight castaways.

"That's a great load off my mind," said Premier Stauning when he was informed of the rescue, "nevertheless most Danes cannot help liking and admiring Mr. Hutchinson's undaunted pluck."

News of the rescue was broadcast immediately by all Danish radio stations to relieve the anxiety of those who had been following the search for the fliers.

FEW STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK AS PLANT REOPENS

Thomasville, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—A turning point in the strike of approximately 1,000 Thomasville Chair Company employes was expected tonight at a mass meeting of strikers, when proposals for a return to work are to be submitted.

The proposals were drawn up yesterday at two lengthy conferences between T. Austin Finch, president of the company; Capus M. Waynick, editor of the High Point Enterprise and personal representative of Governor O. Max Gardner, and representatives of the strikers.

Following the conferences no word of the contents of the proposals was made public.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Striking employes of the HanesHosiery Mill will meet here today with James C. Hanes, president of the mill, and present demands they want met before going back to work.

Mrs. Madge Cass, secretary of the Industrial Workers' Association, an organization perfected by the striking group, said Mr. Hanes would be asked to put into effect the wage scale in force prior to September, 1931, minus a 25 per cent reduction on the scale that was being received prior to the first wage cut made in September, 1931.

DEMOCRATS ELATED OVER THEIR VICTORY IN MAINE

lition was completed.

The 18 districts missing in the second and third congressional districts where the Democrats were ahead were so small that they could not alter the final outcome of the unofficial tally.

Carl Moran Jr., Democrat, had an advantage of 2,420 over John E. Nelson with only four of the 213 precincts in the second missing, and John G. Iteback held a lead of 1,147 over former Governor Ralph O. Brewster.

Washington, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Democratic Congressional leaders said the Maine returns forecast victory for their national ticket in November.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the Chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said: "The Democratic victory in Maine is most significant and indicates a determined and widespread dissatisfaction with the present administration. If the same percentages of gain made in Maine appear in the election returns from other states the Electoral College will be overwhelmingly for Roosevelt and Garner, and there will be a substantial Democratic majority in the House and Senate."

"All the information I have is that the dissatisfaction in other states is greater than in Maine and that the percentage of Democratic gains will be much larger. Maine is normally a rock-ribbed Republican state, and it is safe to surmise the Republicans were able to hold down the percentage of Democratic gain better than they can in other states in the November election."

Other statements follow:

Senator Harrison (Democrat, Mississippi): "It shows the Republicans are through with the present order and are ready to join us for a new deal in November—the Republican wisecrackers cannot laugh off the Maine results."

Senator Brookhart (Republican, Iowa): "I think George Moses, the Jimmy Walker of the Republican administration, is to blame for all this. He put out so many wisecracks the 'wild jackasses' finally got him. It looks like Roosevelt will carry every state."

Senator Fletcher (Democrat, Florida): "The Maine result shows the people want a change."

Representative Oliver (Democrat, Alabama): "The Republicans doubtless will be called on now to offer an explanation on the result in Maine since they have consistently said 'as Maine goes so goes the nation.' We await the statement of Senator Moses with interest."

ly of short talks by the ministers and Judge J. Paul Prizzelle, of Snow Hill, who is conducting a one week term of civil court here.

The jurist paid tribute to the work which ministers of the various parts of the nation were doing, and declared people should make an effort to give more attention to their teachings during this neurotic period of American life.

He asserted the church is one of the greatest forces of civilization and urged the Rotarians to stand behind the denominations as they go about their business of attempting to create a higher moral and social life.

The appeal climaxed the evening's program and followed brief talks made by the ministers themselves.

Rev. W. A. Lillycrop, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, explained the operations of the Ministerial Association and the effort it was making to bring the preachers of the city in closer contact in carrying on the work of their churches. He declared it had been a powerful influence in the life of the city and deserved the support of the citizenship generally.

Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, told of the annual gathering of the North Carolina Synod of the Presbyterian Church which will convene here in the near future. He said the convention would bring to the city some of the most notable members of the denomination and invited the people to assist in giving the visitors a good impression of the city.

Other speakers of the evening were Rev. E. L. Hillman, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church; Nathan Brooks, ministerial student, and Warren Scoville, ministerial student, who has been spending the summer months here with his mother.

K. W. Cobb presided over the session and a delightful supper was served.

PLANE TAKES OFF FOR ROME

year-old brunette from Williamsport, Pa., would step out of the plane with a parachute over Florence Italy, as a tribute to Florence Nightingale, the Joan of Arc of the nursing profession. Miss Newcomer studied nursing before she turned to parachute jumping.

William Ulbrich of Mineola, N. Y., piloted the plane, named "The American Nurse," but Miss Newcomer expected to relieve him occasionally. Dr. Pisculli said he would make medical observations of the effect of a transatlantic flight on the plane's occupants, including "tail wind," the doctor's pet.

Weather for the flight was pronounced ideal. The two men wore khaki uniforms while Miss Newcomer was all in white, except for a sparkling blue jacket.

"Tail wind," found by Dr. Pisculli on a Westchester roadway suffering from a broken leg and nursed back to health, is not going just for the ride. He is a carbon monoxide detector. Dr. Pisculli said he has a theory that some of the planes lost on transatlantic flights left because the cabins filled with deadly gas. If "tail wind" shows signs of unnatural sleepiness the doctor will figure danger is near.

Besides 850 gallons of gasoline, the plane carried a hypodermic needle, a stethoscope, a shaving outfit, a signaling pistol, flare bombs, field glasses, smelling salts, tea tablets, honey to sweeten the tea, three chickens, tomatoes, fruit, two gallons of water, lamb's wool and almond oil to stuff the ears and an aviation biscuit invented by the doctor.

The vote for governor as compared with the last two elections was:

Year	1932	1930	1928
Republican	117,800	82,310	148,058
Democratic	117,960	67,172	65,572

The Democrats made severe inroads on the Republican power in State and county offices also. Two of them were named to the State Senate, defeating strong Republican wheel-horses.

Several men prominent in the public councils who were members of the House also went down to defeat.

The government closed the newspaper La Opinion because it was publishing Colonel Merino's manifesto in which he declared President Davila was unpopular and had failed to follow the Socialist program laid down when a revolt and two counter-revolts upset the government last July.

A censorship was placed on newspapers, with the official explanation, that this action was taken for their own benefit.

Side Quit Hurting, Got Stronger, Well; CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. R. L. West, of Huntsville, Ala., writes: "I was weak and run-down. I had a pain in my side, and I kept losing weight. I grew nervous over my condition—this was unusual for me, for I am very cheerful when I am well and don't easily get nervous. I knew I ought to take something. My aunt told me I ought to try Cardui, which I did. I began to feel better. I kept it up until I had taken three or four bottles. My side quit hurting and I was soon feeling strong and well." Cardui is sold at drug stores here.

Expect Doctor To Throw Light on Bern Death

Los Angeles, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Arriving today from Honolulu, Dr. Edward P. Jones, personal physician to the late Paul Bern, motion picture executive and husband of Jean Harlow, screen star, was to be interviewed by friends of Bern in an effort to learn a possible motive for his suicide a week ago Sunday.

Dr. Jones cabled from Honolulu the day after Bern's body was found that he "understood the motive" of the suicide. He said, however, he would reveal his information only to "the proper authorities," the police have announced their investigation closed with the return of the coroner's verdict of suicide. Dr. Jones was expected to consult with Coroner Frank Nance and give him whatever information he has.

Miss Harlow, whom Bern married two months ago, resumed her work at the film studios yesterday.

"This staying around home is driving me crazy," she said. "I've got to get busy—to forget."

HENDERSON MAN DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Henderson, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—C. V. Singleton, 50, for many years one of Henderson's best known business men, died from a sudden heart attack near Hillsville, Va., where he had gone on business.

He was a native of Halifax County, Virginia, but had made his home here for thirty years.

Shelby, N. C.—(AP)—J. C. Bridges of the Buffalo section reports a 75-pound calf recently born to one of his cows is the largest calf at birth on record to his knowledge.
